Then there was general "shaking of the feet." R. H. Billmyer said that when a waltz was played the floor was always full; all of the old boys remembered how to waltz. Among those who didn't join in but who looked on with keen interest were: J. P. O'Malley, assistant comptroller; W. B. Dudderar, assistant auditor coal and coke receipts; L. A. Lambert, auditor coal and coke receipts; W. J. Dudley, superintendent, Relief Department; W. E. Rittenhouse, auditor merchandise receipts; F. J. Scheppler, assistant to general freight claim agent; C. C. Glessner, general freight claim agent; C. H. Poumairat, auditor passenger receipts; Louis M. Grice, assistant auditor passenger receipts. And among these there was a certain gentleman who insisted on providing the others with a recipe entitled, "How to Leave Your Wife at Home."

On the homeward journey there were more songs, everything from "A Perfect Day," and "God Be With You 'til We Meet Again," to "Good Night Ladies."

It had been a perfect day and everybody said good night to everybody else with the wish that parties like this came once a month instead of once a year.

Howard T. Cromwell Now Assistant Superintendent Glenwood Shops

HOWARD T. CROMWELL, who was one of the early special apprentices of the Baltimore and Ohio, has recently been promoted from assistant master mechanic, Riverside, to assistant superintendent of shops, Glenwood, Pa. Mr. Cromwell is another of the third generation of old Baltimore and Ohio families who have given their lives to the service of the Company, gradually advancing toward the top.

Mr. Cromwell is the grandson of former Superintendent of Motive Power A. J. Cromwell; his father is Oliver C. Cromwell, who for many years was mechanical engineer and now occupies the position of assistant to chief of motive power and equipment. He comes from a railroad family and is well fitted by training and experience for his new position.

Mr. Cromwell has had a varied experience in railroad work, commencing when he was 14 years of age. During his school vacation periods he was employed in the shops of the Baltimore and Ohio. He started making cones in the iron foundry, then following on castings on the general floor and later making locomotive cylinders, and also taking a turn in the brass foundry. He then moved to the erecting shop, machine shop and air brake department. He was also employed in the Mechanical Engineer's Office and then secured experience in road work such as the operation and adjustment of locomotives on line. He has worked in the boiler shop and on electrical maintenance and repairs.

While securing the foregoing experience Mr. Cromwell continued his studies at the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and Johns Hopkins University. He has been employed as general foreman, DeForest Junction and Wilmers Shops. During the past four years he has been at Riverside.

Mr. Cromwell has gained the respect and liking of his fellow employes and officers, all of whom wish him well in his new work. Before leaving for Glenwood he was presented with a 21-jewel Hamilton watch and chain by the Riverside employes.

The story would not be complete without mention of Mrs. Cromwell, whom the writer had the pleasure of meeting recently. Of a friendly and frank disposition, Mrs. Cromwell will make many friends in her new home. Mr. and Mrs. Cromwell have two children.

Baltimore "Y" Offers Course in Traffic Management

A SCHOOL of Traffic Management will be opened in the Baltimore College of Commerce of the Y. M. C. A. this fall. The leading traffic authorities of the city have expressed the opinion that the increasing importance of Baltimore as a shipping and transportation center requires a thoroughly trained group of young men to handle the growing volume of business.

The training will be of a thoroughly practical character. The entire field of traffic will be covered, including the Fundamentals of Transportation, Tariff Interpretation, Rate Construction, etc.

The faculty will consist of three instructors, Messrs. P. J. Trueschler, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, G. H. Pouder, Board of Trade, and F. G. Blyth, American Railway Express Company.

The school will open September 27 and classes will be held two nights each week for thirty weeks. Complete information may be secured from the Central Y. M. C. A.

Special lectures will be given during the season by General Freight Agent Samuel House, Foreign Freight Traffic Manager F. J. Couse, Attorney C. R. Webber and Manager Commercial Development H. O. Hartzell of our Company.

Examples of young men receiving practical experience in traffic matters and studying traffic theory in leisure hours while in the service, then jumping to splendidly paid positions as traffic managers with industrial concerns, are frequent enough to make this and similar courses given elsewhere, most attractive to live wires.

H. T. Cromwell, recently appointed Assistant Superintendent, Glenwood Shops

Note:

All puzzles published in this department will be defined, as far as possible, from the New Standard Dictionary, edition of 1920. It is permissible to use both geographical and biographical words in the construction of puzzles, but when such words are taken from any authority other than the New Standard Dictionary, the name of such authority must be stated at the end of the definition, in parenthesis. Obsolete words will be marked at the end of the definition thus—"obs". Variant spellings of a word must be marked at the end of the definition thus—"var". Address all communications concerning this department to G. H. Pryor, Room 800, Baltimore and Ohio Building, Baltimore, Maryland, and mark the envelope "Puzzles."

THE answers to the puzzles published in the June issue are:

1. B A S S
A C C A S
S C A R E D
S A R A C E N
S E C U R E
D E R M A
N E A T

2. Shifty, fishy

3. C A S T O R
A M P E R E
S P I R I T
T E R E S A
O R I S O N
R E T A N S

4. Mendicant

5. K O L O A M A P U
H I S T O R Y
S T O U T
E L E
L

6. T
A H M
G R E E T
A R M E R I A
T H E E N I G M A
M E R I G H T
T I G H T
A M T
A

7. ONE WOE DOTH TREAD UPON ANOTHER'S HEEL

8. C I R C U S
T O R P I D
B O S N I A
P E T A L S
T E N P I N
R A S P E R

9. Chances-changes

10. P A T
A L E
N I T
P A N D E R A G E
A L I E N A T O R
T E T R A G O N S
A T O
G E N
E R S

11. Chaplain

12. INCOME TAXES

13. GEORGE H. PRYOR, AUDITOR
OF DISBURSEMENTS

14. THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

CORRECT solutions were received from the following:

Comrade, N. Jineer, D. Lemma, S. T. Udent, Ben Franklin, Primrose, Pearlle Glenn, J. F. Donovan, G. Hartman Pryor, Atlas, L. M. N. Terry, The Major, Martelia, L. E. Phant, Baltimore, Md.; Winkie, Charleston, W. Va.; Kee Pon, Malden, Mass.; Alec Sander, Philadelphia, Pa.; Spica, Whitney Crossing, N. Y.; P. M. Pennington, Cumberland, Md.; Gee, Ashc-boro, N. C.; Gemini, Poly, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wick-o-cincy, Cincinnati, Ohio; T. Hinker, Jack O'Lantern, Bangor, Pa.; Tunste, Joaquin, C. Saw, New York, N. Y.; Tow-head, Lafayette, Ind.; Ralph E. Stroudsburg, Pa.; Mentor, Chicago, Ill.; Dan D. Lyon, New Florence, Pa.; K. T. Did, Nypho, E. R. Woodson, Aluminus, Washington, D. C.; Gi Gantic, Petite, Molemi, St. Louis, Mo.; Delmonte, Richmond, Va.; Spud, Yazoo City, Miss.; Fred Domino, Corinth, Miss.; Emeline, Fairbury, Neb.; Tom Crestmore, Johnstown, Pa.; Lateo, Hoboken, N. J.; Arty Ess, Scranton, Pa.; Kappa, Kappa, Fargo, N. Dak.; Sherlock Holmes, Worthing, S. Dak.; Arcanus, Eloise, Em Jay, Iowa City, Iowa; Jemand, Wilmington, N. C.; P. A. Butterwick, Telford, Penn.

Additional solutions to May puzzles came from P. A. Butterwick, Telford, Pa.

The prize of six months' subscription to the Enigma, the official organ of the National Puzzler's League, was won by S. T. Udent (Miss Edna Whitehill, Auditor Disbursements Office, Baltimore, Md.).

New Puzzles

1. CHARADE (10)

This charade you peruse today,
Would make a poet sore,
But at least its ONE with all of those,
That I have made before.

Far, far away in sunny Spain,
Across the ocean blue,
A dark eyed senorita was Conversing with a TWO.

Whene'er a man can do his work
With great dexterity,
We speak of him with much respect,
And say he's very THREE.

And now I'll end this fierce charade
That has no poetic feet,
I hope the editor will Consider it COMPLETE.

Philadelphia, Pa.

A. T. Ourman

2. INVERTED PYRAMID

(Defined by New International Dictionary)

Across:

- 1—A placing side by side,
- 2—Twelfth parts,
- 3—A female leader,
- 4—Dentist's instruments for removing tartar from the teeth,
- 5—Traps (Obs.),
- 6—Its (Obs.),
- 7—A letter.

Down:

- 1—A letter,
- 2—Dial. var. of had, pret.,
- 3—Shall (Obs.),
- 4—(Carp.) driven obliquely as a nail,
- 5—To compel (Obs.),
- 6—Of or pertaining to the foot,
- 7—Spotted American cats (Felis pardalis),
- 8—Sirups (Obs.),
- 9—Imarians,
- 10—Same as TASSET,
- 11—Obs. or ref. sp. of ILLS.,
- 12—A ridge of drift,
- 13—A letter.

Brooklyn, N. Y.

Gemini

3. RIDDLE

I'm small and pink and smooth and round,
In graneries I may be found,
I'm large and red and ridged and bent,
I'm ne'er bestowed but often lent,
I'm sharp or dull; I'm thick or thin,
In flora alone, but in fauna a twin,
I'm green or white, and wear a beard
That's rarely plucked and never sheared;
I never leave you tho' you lend me,
From evil, master, pray defend me!
I burn and yet quite cool remain,
What am I? Reader please explain.
Cincinnati, Ohio Wick-o-eincy

4. DIAMOND

1—A letter,
2—(Slang) A mate,
3—(E. Ind.) Small trees of the family
Apocynaceae, common in Southern India
(Obs.),
4—Official certificates of government grants,
5—(geol.) The older portion of the Tertiary,
6—A Spanish Admiral, defeated by Rodney at Cape St. Vincent, January 15, 1780,
7—(Prov. Eng.) A star,
8—(E. Ind.) A sheep, the nahoor,
9—A letter.
Baltimore, Md. S. T. Udent

5. BEHEADMENT (5)

The ONES that do to girls belong
Are thought by fellows very fine.
To have your THREES around their waists
No TWO is done the boys opine.
Bangor, Pa. Jack O'Lantern

6. RHOMBOID

(New International Dictionary)

Across:

1—A Cen. and So. American pinnateleaved palm,
2—Celebrity,
3—Pertaining to nitrogen,
4—The fall herring,
5—One of the shooting stars of the star shower which recurs near the 14th of Nov., 6—(Golf.) The position of two balls on the putting green.

Down:

1—A letter,
2—A coordinate particle,
3—The female of the domestic fowl,
4—A single thing,
5—Dorsal,
6—A room for ewers,
7—A native of the region of the Upper Nile,
8—A rabbit,
9—To border,
10—Prefix denoting "two,"
11—A letter.

Yazoo City, Miss.

Spud

7. CHARADE (6)

"Oh TWO me ONE the TOTAL,
(Said little Jack) 'Tis fine
I always get the smallest ONE
When we have guests to dine."
Whitney Crossing, N. Y.

Spica

8. SQUARE

1—Stared or roamed about as if moonstruck,
2—Gilt or bronzed metallic ware,
3—A gasometer,
4—Attention,
5—Makes choice of,
6—Compulsion.

Baltimore, Md.

Red Crow

9. ANAGRAM

(Based on the titles of three novels by Sir Walter Scott.)

HEAVEN MAY ENVY SIR WALTER,
TOO, EH?

There lie three books upon the shelf
Writ by a master hand;
Oh would that my unworthy self
Such talent could command!
They tell of castles high and strong
With wall and moat around;
Of clashing clans whose border songs
Make hills and dales resound.
Johnstown, Pa. Tom Crestmore

10. PROGRESSIVE HALF SQUARE

(New International Dictionary.)

1—Cycling,
2—A city in W. Va.,
3—Following closely behind,
4—Fishing,
5—Eloge (Obs.),
6—The Chinese water chestnut,
7—A meadow (Prov. Eng.),
8—No good (Slang, U. S.),
9—A letter.
Charleston, W. Va. Winkie

11. ANAGRAM

HELP PLUNGE IN A CALM REST

Baltimore, Md.

N. Jineer

12. PENTAGON

(Defined by New International Diet.).

1—A letter,
2—To catch (Wright's Dial. Eng. Diet.),
3—Fare,
4—(Eccl. Hist.) Literally, the pure;
hence, the members of any of various sects which aimed at giving a practical protest to real or fancied corruption,
5—(Egypt Myth.). One of the four genii of Amenti, the region of the dead,
6—Chasubles,
7—(Class Myth.). Pertaining to the Muse who presided over lyric and amatory poetry,
8—Blander,
9—Bustle (Scot or Dial. Eng.).
Baltimore, Md. Comrade

13. CHARADE (5)

There was a lady named Kappa Kappa
Who often wrote puzzles, quite snappa snappa
She rode LAST a FIRST
Till an A. B. Hose burst
The TOTAL upset but snappa Kappa was happa happa.

New Florence, Pa.

Dan D. Lyon

14. HEXAGON

(Defined by New International Diet.)

1—A weight in apothecaries' weight,
2—Compositions in verse having correspondence in terminal sounds,
3—Catkins,
4—To make mention of,
5—Town in Vernon Co., La. (P. O. G.),
6—The bottom or under surface of the foot,
7—To put into a nest.
Mulkeytown, Ill. Todd

* * * *

The solver sending in the first complete list of answers to the puzzles in this issue will be awarded a copy of one of the six best sellers, the selection to be made by the winner from a list that will be submitted.

To receive proper credit all lists of solutions must be in my hands by November 5.
The answers and solvers list will be published in the December issue.

Just between You and Me

The July issue of the Enigma carries contributions from both Wick-o-eincy and N. Jineer. The former contributes an unusual and unique Rebus, while the latter offers one of her fine anagrams which brings forth the commendations of the official editor. It is very gratifying to me personally to see The Baltimore and Ohio Puzzlers, who began their puzzling careers in this MAGAZINE, have progressed so rapidly as to be already eligible for a place with the elite of puzzeldom. May there be many more such!

P. M. Pennington Wins Dictionary Offered by Vice-President Shriver

Careful compilation of solutions and new compositions submitted during the six months ending with June indicates that either N. Jineer (Miss Olive W. Dennis) or Wick-o-eincy (J. H. Wickham) was the winner of the New Standard Dictionary offered by Senior Vice-President Shriver.
While I was trying to determine how to select between the two, with the true spirit of puzzeldom, they solved the problem for me by declaring that each was the happy possessor of a New Standard and requested the prize be awarded to some puzzler who did not have one. After another careful revision of the work performed I have concluded that the prize belongs to P. M. P.
(P. M. Pennington, crossing watchman, Cumberland, Maryland). Considering all the handicaps under which Mr. Pennington has labored and the persistence with which he has maintained his interest in "In the Realm of the Riddle," I fully believe he is entitled to the honor. I extend my congratulations to Mr. Pennington and expect even greater interest and better work from him in the future.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY

Relief Department—Advisory Committee

Conducting Transportation Department

L. W. GRAHAM.....	Operator.....	Kanawha Station, W. Va.
CHARLES H. CRAWFORD.....	Yard Brakeman.....	Glenwood, Pa.
GEORGE G. JAMES.....	Conductor.....	Baltimore, Md.
JOHN F. WUNNER.....	Clerk.....	New York, N. Y.

Motive Power Department

K. W. GEIDENBERGER.....	Pipefitter.....	Newark, Ohio.
WILLIAM E. HODEL.....	Material Man.....	Grafton, W. Va.
P. J. HARRIGAN.....	Mechanical Examiner.....	Connellsville, Pa.
J. W. ALBERTS.....	Machinist.....	Chicago, Ill.

Maintenance of Way Department

W. A. EVANS.....	Section Foreman.....	Louis, Ill.
M. D. CAROTHERS.....	Asst. Engineer Maintenance.....	Chicago, Ill.
F. A. TAYLOR.....	Master Carpenter.....	Cumberland, Md.
F. M. NOLDER.....	Section Foreman.....	Westboro, Ohio.

Statement of Pension Feature

Employees who have been honorably retired during the month of July, 1923, and to whom pensions have been granted:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	YEARS OF SERVICE
Barnes, Samuel A.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation...	Akron.....	31
Bennett, Filmore.....	Conductor.....	Conducting Transportation...	Baltimore.....	40
Clancey, Patrick.....	Leverman.....	Conducting Transportation...	Toledo.....	37
Coughlin, John J.....	Sealer.....	Conducting Transportation...	Baltimore.....	34
Crane, Thomas F.....	Foreman.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Baltimore E. E....	37
Crosby, Francis C.....	Brakeman.....	Conducting Transportation...	Akron.....	34
Cummins, Howard A.....	Conductor.....	Conducting Transportation...	Baltimore.....	31
Cunningham, Aristadis M...	Crossing Watchman.....	Conducting Transportation...	St. Louis.....	26
Cunningham, Frank.....	Car Repairman.....	Motive Power.....	Charleston.....	29
Davis, Ford.....	Foreman.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Akron.....	17
Duncan, William E.....	Car Repairman.....	Motive Power.....	Toledo.....	30
Dunkerly, William R.....	Boilermaker.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	53
Jankowski, Theodore.....	Trackman.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Chicago.....	18
Kobi, John.....	Crossing Watchman.....	Conducting Transportation...	Chicago.....	21
Korzenborn, Charles A.....	Machinist.....	Motive Power.....	Newark.....	49
Late, William E.....	Conductor.....	Conducting Transportation...	Baltimore.....	39
Lewis, John N.....	Machinist.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	15
Marsh, Eli T.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation...	Baltimore.....	45
McCormick, John E.....	Mill Machine Hand.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	44
Mulquin, James.....	Trackman.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Newark.....	30
Naas, John H.....	Agent.....	B. L. T.....	Baltimore.....	21
Satchell, Samuel M.....	Train Baggage men.....	Conducting Transportation...	Ohio.....	37
Turner, Milton.....	Crossing Watchman.....	Conducting Transportation...	St. Louis.....	46

The payments to pensioned employees constitute a special roll contributed by the Company.

During the calendar year 1922, $400,008.10 was paid out through the Pension Feature to those who have been honorably retired.

The total payments since the inauguration of the Pension Feature, October 1, 1884, to May 30, 1923, amount to $5,204,867.70.

The following pensioned employees, after serving the Company faithfully for a number of years, have died:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	DATE OF DEATH	YEARS OF SERVICE
Corbin, James W.....	Conductor.....	Conducting Transportation	Monongah....	July 21, 1923.....	44
Green, Thomas E.....	Baggage man.....	Conducting Transportation	Ohio.....	May 6, 1923.....	32
Holmes, William T.....	Tinner.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore....	July 1, 1923.....	49
Kaline, William F.....	Machinist.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore....	June 29, 1923....	37
Keller, Adam.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation	Cumberland..	July 5, 1923.....	41
Meadows, George.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation	Cumberland..	July 25, 1923....	48
Metzger, Barth.....	Yard Clerk.....	Conducting Transportation	Baltimore....	July 17, 1923....	44
Purdy, Richard.....	Engineman.....	Conducting Transportation	Cumberland..	June 14, 1923....	48
Rose, Thomas J.....	Train Baggage man...	Conducting Transportation	Monongah....	July 7, 1923.....	52
Spengler, Charles W....	Agent.....	Conducting Transportation	Shenandoah...	June 7, 1923.....	39

Pensioners' Roll of Honor

*Oh, blest retirement! friend of life's decline—
Retreat from care that ever must be thine:
How blest is he who crowns, in shades like these,
A youth of labor with an age of ease.*

OLIVER GOLDSMITH—"The Deserted Village"

J. S. A. Bryant

Mr. Bryant was born on July 7, 1853. He entered the service in 1875 as brakeman, Baltimore, and in 1894 was transferred to carpenter gang where he remained until his recent retirement.

John Cowan

Was born in 1857. He entered service on August 1, 1882, as passenger brakeman, Pittsburgh. In 1885 he was transferred to train baggageman and in 1892 was made extra passenger conductor. In 1893 he was again appointed train baggageman and remained in this position until his recent retirement.

Daniel Lester

Was born in Washington County, Indiana, on September 2, 1850. In 1873 his parents moved to Seymour, Ind., where he entered the service of the old Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, as wiper, under Master Mechanic A. Thompson and General Foreman A. J. Ross. He was promoted to freight fireman in 1875 and to engineer in 1883, remaining in this service until his retirement on June 1, 1923.

J. L. Shrewbridge

James L. Shrewbridge was born at Harper's Ferry on December 6, 1846. He entered the service as water boy, under W. H. Myers, in a construction gang at Sandy Hook in 1863.

At the close of the Civil War he accepted employment in a carpenter shop at Harper's Ferry where he remained until the owner died. Then he was employed under Master Carpenter O. T. Kemp as a bridge carpenter. In 1894 he was injured and later became a watchman at Shenandoah City, looking after bridges between that station and Harper's Ferry. He was then made gardner at passenger station, Harper's Ferry. In 1911 he was made crossing watchman at Pulp Mill, and retained this position until his recent retirement.

Mr. Shrewbridge recalls clearly the John Brown raid, the capture of his men and their execution. He assisted in constructing the old bridge which spans the Potomac at Harper's Ferry. He had five sons—all telegraph operators—who were employed on the Baltimore and Ohio. Four of them are still working for the Company, three on the Baltimore and one on the Cumberland Division.

Thomas Crane

Thomas Crane was born on October 12, 1857. He entered the service on August 5, 1885 as foreman, Construction Department. At that time the Philadelphia Division was being constructed. After this work was completed, he was section foreman at Wilmington, Del., until 1892, when he took charge of an extra gang at Derby, Pa. He was general foreman in charge of construction of the East Side yards.

From 1911 until his retirement in 1923 he was extra gang foreman. Mr. Crane's entire service was in the Maintenance of Way Department.

Charles A. Korzenborn

Charles A. Korzenborn was born on March 11, 1858, at Cincinnati, Ohio. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service on May 8, 1874, as apprentice at Newark, Ohio. He was promoted to machinist January 1, 1878, which position he held at the time of his retirement, on June 5, 1923.

Milton Turner

Milton Turner was born on January 11, 1850, in Metcalf County, Ky. He attended school until he was 13 years old, when he moved with his parents to Jackson County, Indiana, and worked on a farm until 1875. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service in 1876 as trackman. Because of poor health he was transferred to a position as crossing watchman in 1917, which position he held at the time of his recent retirement. He was married in 1884, and has four children.

B. C. May

B. C. May was born in March, 1857. He was employed on a farm until he was 19 years of age. He then went to a County Normal School two terms and later taught school for several years. In 1901 he entered Baltimore and Ohio service as car inspector and in 1902 was transferred to bridge carpenter gang. In 1910 he was injured, near Somerset, Pa., and has been unable to work since that time.

William J. Berry

William J. Berry was born at Fell's Point, Baltimore, Md., on February 4, 1853. In 1882 he entered the service as crossing watchman, in which position he remained until his recent retirement.

"Do Unto Others—"

THAT City Passenger Agent J. P. M. Duvall, Washington, D. C., is a firm believer in the Golden Rule is emphasized by the following letter he has received from the general agent of one of the large Trans-Atlantic Steamship Companies:

"We take this opportunity to extend our great appreciation for the assistance rendered by you and your road to Mr. O. G. Davis, who sailed on our steamer on July 27.

"We aroused a decided interest in booking Mr. Davis over our line, because his limbs are useless, he being a World War Veteran.

"It is a pleasure indeed to know that there is a railroad that will take so much personal interest in one individual and we want to thank you for our company, also for the American Red Cross, for the treatment accorded Mr. Davis in New York."

HONOR TO WHOM HONOR IS DUE

Left to right: J. S. A. Bryant, John Cowan, Daniel Lester, James L. Shrewbridge, Thomas F. Crane, Charles A. Korzenborn

Safety Roll of Honor

DATE	NAME	OCCUPATION	LOCATION	CONDITION REPORTED
BALTIMORE AND BALTIMORE TERMINAL DIVISIONS
July 20	R. E. Ladley	Operator	Singerly	Defective car
June 15	J. A. Kopinke	Patrolman	Mt. Clare Jct.	Track
July 26	J. E. McFarland	Conductor	Skillman, P. & R.	Defective car
CONNELLVILLE DIVISION
July 30	N. L. Post	Conductor	Oliver	Track
July 30	J. O. Neil	Brakeman	Oliver	Track
PITTSBURGH DIVISION
June 27	W. G. Gretsche	Brakeman	Rankin	Defective car
CHARLESTON DIVISION
July 19	Tom Davis (off duty)	Conductor	Clendennin	Defective car
July 19	H. E. Bragg	Flagman	Clendennin	Packed box
July 30	R. A. Brake	Conductor	Blue Creek	Packed box
July 30	O. L. Mullins	Brakeman	Blue Creek	Packed box
July 30	J. R. Cox	Conductor	Pickens	Cleared slide
Aug. 4	R. A. Brake	Conductor	Mile Post 55	Cleared slide
Aug. 4	C. U. Skiles	Engineer	Mile Post 55	Cleared slide
Aug. 4	J. K. Boggs	Fireman	Mile Post 55	Cleared slide
Aug. 4	J. E. Case	Brakeman	Mile Post 55	Cleared slide
Aug. 12	C. W. Cogar	Conductor	Burnsville	Repacked box
Aug. 12	C. C. McCue (off duty)	Baggage man	Mile Posts 74, 89 and 80	Cleared slides
Aug. 12	J. W. McTheny (off duty)	Fireman	Mile Posts 74, 89 and 80	Cleared slides
Aug. 18	H. E. Bragg	Conductor	Delta	Packed box
Aug. 18	K. G. Long	Brakeman	Delta	Packed box
NEWARK DIVISION
.....	C. W. Peters	Operator	Barnesville	Defective car
July 26	F. R. Thomas	Operator	Lore City	Track
May 24	James McDaniel	Trackman	St. Louisville	Car
OHIO DIVISION
Aug. 13	J. Litter	Engineer	Darby Bridge	Extinguished fire
CHICAGO DIVISION
July 27	W. F. McCormick	Operator	Rosedale	Car
July 9	A. W. Hoyles	Engineer	Garrett	Removed obstruction from track
July 9	I. Schulthess	Fireman	Garrett	Removed obstruction from track

Stop!

Dedicated to Charles Smith, Faithful Baltimore and Ohio Watchman, Washington Street, Greenfield, Ohio

By BUD KERNODLE, in the "Greenfield Independent"

At the crossing see him stand
With the target in his hand,
A guarding angel, though he has no wings;
He is always on his beat
In the summer's broiling heat
Or when the chilling blizzard bites and stings.

At the crossing day by day
Death is watching for his prey,
A demon that no grace nor pity feels.
But the watchman's faithful eye
Guards the heedless passers-by,
And saves them from the grinding of the wheels.

For the target in his hand
Bears a short and sharp command
That all must heed until he lets it drop.
There is neither "if" nor "and,"
The rushing crowd must stand
At that grim Anglo-Saxon order, "Stop!"

Any child can understand
That imperative command
That brings the crowd to halt upon the spot.
None may take it as a joke
Falling like a weapon's stroke
And startling as a pistol's ringing shot.

To the youth who would aspire,
Urged by false ambition's fire,
To climb by crooked methods to the top,
May that short compelling word
Clearly over all be heard
As the voice of Duty sternly orders,
"Stop!"

To the maid who would begin
Some alluring course of sin
And is sowing seeds to reap a bitter crop,
Let the watchman's printed sign
Be a warning voice divine
As the inner voice of Conscience whispers,
"Stop!"

Now this watchman is no myth,
But just honest Charlie Smith
And he wears a cap and buttons like a cop.
I would write another verse
But they're getting worse and worse
And he turns the target on me saying,
"Stop!"

In the Pullman on No. 5

Woman in Chair No. 22: Conductor, I think this Pullman porter is the best one I've ever seen.

Pullman Conductor: Yes, he's a good one, Barcus is. He's had 23 years of service, and they don't make 'em like him every day.

Man in Chair No. 23: Yes, you don't always strike them like this one. Why, he just gave my shoes a regular shine, not just a brushing off. And just now, just to bluff him, I said, "George, (I call them all 'George') I'm sorry, but I haven't a darn bit of small change. Yes, I have, too. I've a nickel. Will that do?" "That's all right, suh, puffedly fine, Suh. Every little bit helps, no matter how small, yas, Suh." "And he gave my hat another brushing and helped me with my coat."

Among Ourselves

Baltimore and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio Annex Building

Law Department

Correspondent, GEORGE W. HAULENBEEK

I have heretofore advised the elimination of the words "very much" in connection with the usual "thank you," and I have to report very little, if any, progress in the matter. We seem to be wedded to the habit of saying "thank you very much," just as though it was really necessary; just as though the words belonged there; whereas, in that connection, they are ridiculous and needless and the use of them shows that we lack originality and are copying others.

I have, however, to report progress of a very decided character in my campaign requesting smokers to abstain from lighting cigarettes in our crowded elevators where we have so many lady passengers.

The young gentlemen in this great big office building are just too lovely for anything. Language of this character in extolling them, I know, is extraordinary, as we usually, and very properly, apply praise in these terms to the other sex, but really they are entitled to high commendation, for the habit has almost entirely vanished. Now and then a cigarette is started, much to the discomfort and annoyance of the ladies in the lift, but this is generally done by outsiders. I think we are getting along.

I did not make the observation complainingly, but in a recent contribution to the MAGAZINE I remarked that in alighting from a train I had to depend entirely upon myself, and to use extra caution. Since the admonition appeared in the MAGAZINE, however, I have had no trouble in alighting. A young gentleman trainman on train 509 the other Sunday night at Mt. Royal, gave me full attention, and it was appreciated.

James Cordon Bennett in the New York Herald, before the Civil War (now listen to that), was in the habit of inserting in some of his editorials, the words "due entirely to the influence of the New York Herald," and so I ascribe the prompt and immediate attention referred to in my case, as due entirely to the influence of the MAGAZINE. Some one at the helm read that paragraph and suggested the proper remedy, and it was applied.

"A prophet is not without honor, save in his own country," is a true saying in the main, but when E. W. Young, our chief clerk, returned from his vacation in the far west in August, and told me how he had enjoyed my letter in the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE while traveling eastward on No. 8, I felt that that was satisfaction enough, and when my young friend, J. Ronald Horsey, proclaimed similar sentiments, I felt an additional tinge of satisfaction. Mr. Horsey is the gentleman who was awarded the first prize for the best thesis by the Faculty of Maryland University Law School.

I am obliged to admit however, that my plan to have the girls trot out the familiar darning bag as an aid in the capture of an husband, has proved a dismal failure. Admitting that I have been unsuccessful is not a pleasant step, but I realize my utter want of capacity; my deficiency of means to achieve an end, and I shall be very cautious and careful in the future.

In the July number of the MAGAZINE, there was a picture of the Clarksburg freight office force. Even the men smiled, and the girls, well they were just too nice for anything. I looked at the picture again and again and again.

A passenger on our train No. 524 the other Saturday was returning from a trip to the Pacific coast to his home in Philadelphia. He had made eleven trips to California, ten of them by the Baltimore and Ohio. The eleventh he had made by a competing road, and it was the worst of all. Someone told him he deserved it. The Baltimore and Ohio furnished him good accommodations on the ten trips and he was sorry he had swerved away from it to go by any other route.

General Baggage and Milk Agent

Correspondent, MABEL L. MENGES

W. A. Clark, baggage agent, Camden Station, who accompanied the Presidential Special on its trip to Alaska, returned with the sad party from San Francisco. After the trip terminated so sadly, it was necessary for Mr. Clark to take several days off, upon his return, to recover from a cold which he had contracted, and to rest from the exacting duties in caring for the personal effects of the party and the many floral offerings. The westbound trip was interesting and instructive.

From the reports brought back by Mr. Clark, the type of baggage car used on the "Best and Only" made a favorable impression on the western railroad people. The reputation and service of this department was also frequently and favorably commented upon.

It has been confidentially reported that Miss Lewis, the fair stenographer in the Rate Room, was seen leaving Baltimore recently for Rising Sun. Inasmuch as there are no rivers or lakes near this little city, we are wondering "why the bathing suit" in the large package she so carefully guarded?

Messrs. Denton and Dugan while in New York City recently, accompanied General Manager R. B. White on an inspection tour of the Staten Island Lines. Mr. Dugan thinks it would be well worth while for all Baltimore and Ohio people to get a mental picture of the Staten Island property and their importance as a part of the Company's New York City terminal connection.

The call of the Country Fairs is beginning to be heard. This is a reminder that the good old summer time is drawing to a close. While the suggestion of the country fair is apt to draw a smile from each of those who have had the exciting pleasure of attending at least one of them during his life time, how many realize what these fairs really mean to passenger traffic, and the responsibility it places upon the railroad to protect these movements? It is a yearly problem of this department to protect the baggage phase of it and every effort is being made to handle it this season without a single loss or complaint. Will all those in a position to do so please lend a helping hand?

Introducing our correspondent, Miss Mabel L. Menges, General Baggage Department. Left: Dreaming of—Baltimore? Right: Listening while Niagara Falls!

W. O. Johnson, train baggageman, Cincinnati, and wife recently returned from a pleasant vacation trip to California and other western points of interest.

Fred Grice, train baggageman, running between Cincinnati and Louisville is wearing a smile that won't come off. About a year ago while spending his vacation in California, Mr. Grice decided to dabble in oil stocks, and recently he received the good news that his company had brought in a thousand-barrel well. (Now is the time to get that nickel back that he borrowed from you.)

Our Company's successful experiment in handling bulk milk and cream shipments in glass lined steel tank cars continues to attract attention, judging from the frequent inquiries this office is receiving from shippers, dealers and other carriers, as well as tank car manufacturers.

Mr. Harry S. Calvert, president, Elyria Enamel Products Company, Elyria, Ohio, recently paid this office a visit in the interest of milk-cream tank car service.

EDITOR'S NOTE.—Miss Menges is one of our valued and regular correspondents. It is a rare occurrence for a month to pass without at least a few notes from her pen. She has recently returned from a well-earned vacation, and our friend, John Newman's criminal bird of the underworld, got in a little of his fine work for us. You will see the result. Miss Mabel, in one photograph, is viewing the beauties of Niagara Falls, while in the other she appears to be dreaming of Baltimore as she gazes over the still waters of the Hudson. After spending a week visiting New York, Niagara Falls and other places, Miss Menges enjoyed her vacation at Pen Mar!

Offices of Chief Engineer and Engineer Maintenance of Way

Correspondent, J. E. BARNHART

In the last issue of the MAGAZINE, notes of the General Offices of the Maintenance of Way Department, Baltimore, made their first appearance in the "Among Ourselves" columns. The perpetrator, or I might say agitator, of the idea, gracefully relieved himself of any further responsibility in the matter by "unloading" on the present incumbent, and while the duty is accepted, it is not quite understood why he should have "picked" on me.

Since it is the intention of these notes to promote among ourselves a spirit of good fellowship, it is hoped that all may accept whatever may be hereafter written in the same spirit.

Vacation days are rapidly drawing to a close and all hands are ready to settle down to another year of hard work.

We understand that a new sport may be expected to be popular this Fall. "Stump Jumping," though strenuous exercise, is, so we are told, exhilarating. Any contestants for match games will please correspond with the "chief exponent of the art" in room 1205.

The efficient file clerk in the Office of Engineer Maintenance of Way, recently returned from a pleasant and "sun burning" vacation. Ask Walter how easily a Ford can jump a ditch and climb a tree.

Now we will have something to talk about before getting down to work in the mornings. Bowling is on. Roberts, the "Old Timer" expert, still continues to lead the gang with his usual luck. Any one desiring instructions, particularly on how to make a strike by hitting the No. 10 pin, should confer with "Bill."

Did you ever see a Ford (Foard) drive an Overland car? Quite a feat, but it has been done.

It seems to be the consensus of opinion that Eddie needs a little trimming up. We understand that he doesn't like the barber shop and the thought has been expressed that possibly we might be able to get "The Girl" to take him in hand again. Who is willing to intercede?

The force, generally speaking, is busy stopping the leaks. About the only thing that leaks out nowadays is the noise of J. E. B. and D. S. F. trying to keep forms M. E. and M. U. going, and Dyche trying to explain to his friend at Camden Station what requisitions are. Ask Myerly.

Miss Wales still maintains, as usual, that riding on "The Best and Only," is far superior to "sitting burros," especially when climbing the high mountains of the Golden West, where she spent several weeks, recently, resting (?)

Engineering Department

Correspondent, O. K. EDEN

"Remember there are two sides to every question. Get them."

With the passing of Warren Gamaliel Harding, our 29th President, we have lost a true friend. A HOME man, perhaps better than any other word, best describes him. That a man so lovable, kind, generous in all things, not affected by the pomp and power of being the head of one of the greatest nations, should be taken while in the prime of his life, hurts, especially where there is so much good work to be done. Everybody who knew our late President had a kind word to say about him. Even his political enemies, and he had not a few, were among the first to pay tribute to him and condole with the bereaved widow.

"Be truthful. Get the facts."

And now, after having paid our respects to our departed President, let us all, with one accord, join in cooperating with his successor, Calvin Coolidge, 30th President of these United States. If ever a man needs a friend, it is when he is thrust into a high position.

"Mistakes are inevitable, but strive for accuracy. I would rather have one story exactly right than 100 half wrong."

Since vacations have been in order many of my fellow workers have indulged in coats of tan. Some of them had the brains (?) enough to try to procure a coat all at once, the consequence being one or two were in agony for days with blisters.

"Boost—don't knock."

Money on the Floor

"A shoe manufacturer one day watched a workman operating a machine, which among its other uses, puts eyelets in shoes. Noting the carelessness of the man, who had been working some hours already, he searched around the floor near the machine until he had picked up eyelets to the value of about eight cents. He watched the operator a while longer, and then asked him to pick up the eight cents he had dropped. This puzzled the man—he could see no money on the floor. Finally the manufacturer explained.

"Inquiry revealed that in this factory of 2,000 workmen, carelessness on this one small item meant a loss of nearly $500 weekly, enough to pay the wages of a good many of them."

In reference to the above article, taken from a recent issue of The Wall Street Journal, while we don't make shoes, we DO work with materials where, if proper care is not exercised, waste will abound. The quotation is a good "copy" for our slogan "Stop that Leak." Think it over!

"Be decent, be fair, be generous."

U. S. H., child prodigy of the thirteenth floor, is still up to his baby pranks. He has been home suffering from chicken pox, but we hope by the time this appears in print (with apologies to "ye editor") he will be with us again, hale and hearty.

"There's good in everybody. Bring out the good, and never hurt the feelings of anybody."

The quotations given at various intervals above, were all part of our late President's creed; especially when he was head of the Marion Star. Might be well to read them over carefully and then draft some for ourselves.

At a recent baseball game at Oriole Park, one of our scouts reported eyeing a certain young hopeful seated in a box, alongside of a certain other young person. Furthermore—but we can't afford to spill "all" the beans at present. We'll see!

It is understood that certain young people from this department habited the Atlantic City on Labor Day. From reports received the water was fine—among other things. We could tell a lot more, but—what's the use.

Don't forget the "Prospective Business" card. Make use of it if possible. More will be supplied upon request.

By the way, "Spike" Schanze is a real golfer these days. In addition to his "Mexican hairless" on his upper lip, and his golf knickers, he acquired some "real" golf shirts at a recent "Summer Clearance Event." He certainly does talk a mean game.

A certain young lady was heard to ask of a waitress in the lunch room one day "What kind of cocoanut custard pie have you today?"

"Joe" Kemp went on a mysterious mission to several points on the Potomac River a short while ago. Probably surveyed the local conditions concerning several popular county fairs. With the coming of the autumn season his duties will very likely take him out of the city on Saturday afternoons. Maybe!

Vacation Notes

"Empty," tiring of "down on the farm" hid himself to Atlantic City for a few weeks. We understand the girls were furnished a treat (?).

Harry Roebuck and Wittie Warren, seeking new fields of conquest, visited Sherwood Forest. After a few days sojourning there, they decided to move their headquarters, and forthwith journeyed to a popular Jersey Coast resort namely, Wildwood-by-the-Sea. We don't know where their field kitchen was established in this latter territory. We do know that previous to their departure from the city, considerable correspondence passed to and fro betwixt them and a certain hostelry. The popular belief is that the trip was devoted mainly to the inspection of several golf courses.

It seems strange that two of our secretaries should take a liking to one of our southern states with an Indian name signifying "here we rest," i. e., Alabama. Going to two distinct parts of the state, it is nevertheless rumored they went for identical reasons—other than getting a rest. How 'bout it, "Ozzie" and "Alf?"

"Alvie" Weston and the Missus sailed the ocean blue. After visiting friends in New England they embarked from the port of Boston, steamed outside the three-mile limit and returned again to the port of Baltimore. "Alvie" reports that the fishes were amply provided for during the trip, and further avers that he did his bit.

"Babe" McLaughlin, the assistant to our genial file clerk, Walter Pohl, was detailed for special duty in the Blue Print Room during vacations. Had a wonderful time, he says.

"Mac" McCracken and the wife "flivvered" to New England, but contrary to expectations, brought back his young and healthy pipe. They spent fully two of the fourteen nights in a dry tent, the other nights being somewhat damp. "Mac" still insists that camping out is all that is claimed for it.

Engineering Department Pittsburgh, Pa.

Correspondent, J. M. WHELAN

The country has suffered a serious loss in the tragic and untimely death of Warren G. Harding. How true, indeed, the poet's words:

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
The path of glory leads but to the grave."

But by the grace of God, a new captain steps upon the bridge, a new pilot is at the wheel, and the great ship of state rallies from the shock and sails serenely on.

The South Hills acquires a new family this month as P. J. R., Mrs. P. J. R. and the kids are now in full possession of the home on Benson Avenue. Congratulations!

We were favored recently with a visit from Miss Louise Bayonnet, a former stenographer in this department, who is now employed in the Adjustment Bureau, Cleveland. Miss Bayonnet, we understand, was one of the prime movers in the celebration of "Galloway-Fries" day at Cincinnati.

A prominent member of the Valuation Department reported for duty recently and reported touring about eight hundred miles with a party of friends. He reports the "Chev" was a "darb" during the trip as he had no trouble whatever. No, I am sorry, but there really isn't anything else to report.

R. Maxwell personally investigated the report that there was fishing at Meadville, Pa., but regrets that notwithstanding the fact that the party was properly attired and had the proper kind of bait, the fish refused to bite. Of course, it may be possible that the members of the party had not been properly introduced. No, positively, they hadn't a thing with them!

The genial "Colonel" Frye spent a few days with us recently and our correspondent had quite an interesting talk with him. Mr. Frye, owing to the circumstances over which he had no control, was having trouble with his throat. You know the "Colonel" loves an argument and I imagine that he left here sort of satiated, as it were.

And now we have a few words to say to ye Editor. In many respects we find the July number of the MAGAZINE to be one of the best that we have ever seen. (Thank you.—Ed.) In spite of the fact that we understood the Capitol as a subject, was rather hackneyed, we find it used in a clever and intelligent manner in the cover design. (Intelligence is our middle name.—Ed.) We are also glad to see the return of the colors to the cover and hope that the change is permanent. (It's still only

THE GENERAL FREIGHT CLAIM AGENT'S OFFICE SENDS US

1. E. M. Litke, a former employe, now employed by the Southern California Edison Co., Big Creek, Cal. 2. Miss M. Howard, A. A. Spurrier and Miss M. Wingate. 3. The sunshine that brightens the home of Mrs. Lena Lozon, O. S. and D. Division. 4. M. Friedman, H. Anderson, E. Redding, E. Wootton, S. Seigler and A. J. Fineman. 5. Misses Martin, Morewood, Coniff and Howard

The family of "Sparky" Spicknall, "Mayor" of Westport. When not "Mayoring" he's a compositor in the Printing Department one color, Mr. Whelan. Have you a liking for the Green?—Ed.) If we might be pardoned the criticism, some of the cover designs have not been at all in keeping with the character and importance of the MAGAZINE. (Suggestions are always in order.—Ed.) There is also a wonderful improvement in the picture reproductions used in the publication. (The art editor, engraver and printer here bow together.—Ed.) We are going to write the editor soon and ask his opinion of an innovation which we have in mind for the MAGAZINE and with a final apology for our seeming impertinence we will close. (We are impatient to hear it. Shoot!—Ed.)

Office of General Freight Claim Agent

Correspondent, NORMA H. APPLGARTHE

Report account of absence from duty

One morning recently one of our investigators checked short and while the head clerk was wondering what had happened to him, the telephone rang. Miss P. answered—"Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Freight Claim Department, Miss P. talking." "Why this is Mr. S. Well—Umh—Ah—Oh, we had a little excitement around our way last night. What was it? Why it's a girl and weighs seven pounds."

Congratulations!

We understand R. L. Baldwin recommends "Stay Comb," as a wonderful product. Just look R. L. B. over early some morning and be convinced.

Just when the weddings are to be we cannot say, but Misses M. H. Rider and H. Hopkins have new diamond rings. "It won't be long now."

Harry Gannon gave us a surprise when he suddenly took unto himself a wife, Miss Ethel Lautenbach, on July 20. Being rather conservative he naturally could not stand the strain of a parade up a church aisle, so he was quietly married at the home of Rev. L. M. Zimmerman.

Some one asked the question—What would you do if somebody gave you a house? Many different opinions were given. Mr. Rodden said he would think the questioner crazy and have him put away. Miss Harris says she would get a man, put him in it and demand good behavior. Mr. Anderson decides he would give it to his poor relative.

Mr. Wootten (bridegroom), said he would make use of it "quick." Miss Kistner is a generous person and said she would get them around the neck and hug and kiss them and everything. Better watch that young lady. But then Miss Pearrell goes Miss Kistner one better, and declares she would find a nice man and get married. Men, you'd better watch out if she gets a house or she will get you, too. R. H. Benfer is an appreciative soul and said he would go nuts with happiness. Wonder who'll be the first to get one.

We are glad to have Robert H. Baldwin added to our office roll. The Mailing Division is to be congratulated.

Printing Department

Correspondent, HARRY TOFT

Composing Room Foreman Frey has returned from his annual vacation. He reports a good trip and looks well. He was relieved by Cost Clerk C. J. Lehman.

We have been fortunate in securing this month the photograph of the three sunbeams in the home of Compositor "Sparky"

Spicknall, better known as the "Mayor" of Westport. Now we understand his smile.

Your correspondent has joined the happy band known as "commuters," having secured a home in the wilds of Essex, Md. That's the place where they hang up the sun every morning and take it in at night. Be patient, boys, the house warming will come.

Recently, Proofreader Meyers appeared with a very badly swollen face, his left eye being almost closed. His alibi is that he caught cold. Maybe it's a case of "Maggie and Jiggs!" Ask him.

Auditor Coal and Coke Receipts

Correspondent, J. LIMPET

Poor Rose! Her latest loss is her pocket-book. Year before last, while on her vacation, Miss Dahne had her clothes stolen. Last year she lost a coat. This year a purse is minus. We feel sorry, Rose, but apparently the best thing for you to do is to cut out vacations.

Auditor of Disbursements

Correspondent, LILIAN E. SCHUELER

The base ball team which represents the Baltimore and Ohio in the Inter-Club League, Baltimore, went to Connellsville, Pa., on July 28 and defeated the Connellsville division team by a score of 5 to 1. It was a well-played and interesting contest for six innings, but in the seventh the Baltimore boys hit three runs and put the game safely away. The pilgrims had a delightful trip and enjoyed every minute of it. They were entertained by Mr. Smith, Baltimore and Ohio Y. M. C. A., and were made to feel at home by other Baltimore and Ohio people of Connellsville. They hope to have the opportunity for another friendly tilt with that fine bunch of sportsmen.

Our four boys in the photograph seem to be having a good time, eh? They are Herbert Franz and Calvert Schlick, Maryland Swimming Club, and Frederick Glaser and George Burcke of this office and Ariel Rowing Club, who went on a canoe trip down the bay during the week of July 16. They stopped to cook their meals and explore the beaches along the Patapsco and Magothy Rivers and the Bay. We judge from their healthy appearance they must be good cooks. They had several thrilling

Left: O. R. Lutz buys a new bathing suit and poses at Bay Shore. Right: The smiling Miss L. C. Stark

SUMMER SPORTS FOR BOYS AND GIRLS OF AUDITOR DISBURSEMENT'S OFFICE

1 and 3. Misses Simmering, Silance and Fuller enjoy a trip through the Yellowstone with their friends. 2. W. J. Hayes and his pupil.
4. Messrs. Herbert Franz, Calvert Schlick, Frederick Glaser and George Burcke experiences along the 70 miles of their trip but came home with no more serious injury than a good coat of sunburn.

The Birthday Club, Transportation Bureau, celebrated the first anniversary of its organization on July 19. It was a real affair with lots of ice cream and cake and—secret—even a speech by "Tommie" Campbell.

Misses Simmering, Silance and Fuller have returned from an interesting trip through Yellowstone Park. They tell us that a knicker suit is the ideal dress for a comfortable vacation. Just look at them; it not only is comfy but good looking also!

A number of A. R. A. clerks attended the wedding of Joseph Luddy, who was married to Miss Leona King, Car Service Department, on July 12 at St. Jerome's Church.

Miles Cavey, also of the A. R. A. Bureau, was quietly married to Miss Laura Collars on July 21. We extend our heartiest congratulations to both lucky fellows.

Poor George looks so sad these days since that young lady was transferred from the A. R. A. to the Payroll Bureau. Wake up, George, better days are coming.

Score another for Cupid. Maintenance of Way Bill Writer W. Preston Miller entered on the long, long trail with Miss Evelyn Townsend, on August 20. Details are lacking but we understand a three days' honeymoon was spent at Gwynn Oak Park, after which the loving couple hung their hats permanently in their own love nest. Fellow workers extend best wishes.

Sherlock Holmes has nothing on W. C. Garman, Jr. Recently W. C. G. discovered that his papers were being tampered with by those little visitors commonly termed MICE. After a prolonged journey under his desk he finally emerged announcing that he had detected their means of entrance, namely, the mice climbed up the telephone wire and gained entrance through an aperture (which is about the size of a needle's eye), into his desk and thus destroyed his papers. Some nifty detective work, eh? Who says the J. E. Bureau hasn't genius!

"Silent" W. J. Hayes, Payroll Bureau, the acclaimed champion speed counter-signer of paydrafts, has burdened himself with an extra job; that of private tutor to a deafened World War Veteran, Carroll Amoss by name, a member of the 313th Infantry, "Baltimore's Own." Mr. Amoss has shown marked proficiency in the mute language, and as a result he has been "restored to society" so to speak. Mr. Hayes is known to be the only totally deaf employe on the Baltimore and Ohio System and he has made good as a clerk for the past eleven years. He is a graduate of two Pennsylvania Institutions for the deaf and for a time was a student at Gallaudet College for the Deaf, Washington, D. C. He speaks and reads the lip movement with ease and is also a good piano player, the only deaf one in the United States. We think Mr. Hayes deserves a great deal of credit for his past accomplishments and his new undertaking.

The latest excitement in this office is the spreading epidemic of automobilitis. Seems like the germ of the auto salesman's silvery "smoos" infects 'em sooner or later and the only cure is "driving it yourself." As railroad employes we have all been taught the SAFETY FIRST measure to CROSS CROSSINGS CAREFULLY. So when you run her up to the crossing, practice the old STOP, LOOK and LISTEN, then after you're safely across let her pick up to make up for the few seconds delay.'

The sad news of the death of Harold R. Wilt's mother and serious injury to his father, caused by an automobile accident at Fort Wayne, Indiana, en route to Baltimore, elicits the heartfelt sympathies of his co-workers.

There is hidden genius somewhere in our office—a poet in disguise—for I found this on my desk.

You asked me to describe my trip:
Well, we started away at a merry clip
And reached the City of Brotherly Love,
And stopped for a while at Willow Grove.
We saw all the B. & O. Veterans there;
Some went to work when they left their high chair.

Then along the Wissahickon trail,
Over high hills and down the deep vales
To Doylestown, given by one Billy Penn
To two peace loving Irish gentlemen;
To Easton and there we stopped for a nap,
Then on to the Delaware Water Gap.
No pen should ever attempt to describe,
Go see it—it amply repays the ride.

The trail takes you on to Mt. Pocono,
High up near the clouds with the valleys below,
Past Tobyhanna, Goldsburg, Moscow and Elmhurst

To Scranton, so wet you'd think a cloud 'd burst;

No rains they say, for so long a time
They have to have Beer in their autos to climb

The stupendous mountains, to get to the top,
There it's quite easy to get a "small drop."
A chap right ahead had a rear tire "bust"
And suspicious liquid leaped out on the dust.

It was here we saw the last of the trail,
It is here you see the last of this tale.

"Navonod"

Auditor Passenger Receipts

Correspondent, CHARLES C. WARWICK

"Old Sol" kept right on the job during the past vacation season, and every Monday morning found another blistered individual in our midst. A hearty slap on the back was often returned by a vigorous punch on the nose. The burning question of the day is, how to prevent the office belles from peeling, after burning. To obtain a coat of tan, without the usual discomforts, we suggest practice of the modern cure-all, auto-suggestion. Don a bathing suit and take a few strokes up and down the bath tub; then lie on the floor and repeat to yourself: "Week by week, my neck and beak are getting browner and browner." Continue this until your complexion has reached the desired shade. A certain amount of caution must be observed, as one absent-minded individual baked himself without realizing what he was doing.

STATEN ISLANDERS

Left to right: Fireman DeWaters and Wagner, Engineer Naples, Fireman Currie and Engineer Kelly. Trainman Mercer, Engineer Cahill, Clerk Delaney and Engineer Kelly. We are sorry Conductor C. F. Troy was "lost in the shuffle." Only part of him can be seen

The wedding of Miss Fannie Reeder, formerly of this office, and Lieutenant Lewis McDonald, U. S. N., took place on August 4 at the home of the bride. A farewell luncheon was given the bride by the girls at the office, and a linen shower was held at the home of Miss Cora Dudley. Congratulations!

Our sympathy is extended to our fellow clerks, Miss Mildred Fisher, whose mother passed away on July 4, Miss Edith Cooper who lost her brother on August 13, and Mrs. Anne Lawler, whose husband died on July 7.

Auditor Passenger Receipts

Our milk waybill artist, Walter Leutner, gained considerable fame when he drummed "Gus Mack's Happy Six" into first prize, a silver loving cup, in the jazz band contest held at River View Park, on August 1. We are told that Walter twirled a mean drumstick.

Sidelights on the Picnic

The annual picnic of the Welfare Association; Auditor of Passenger Receipts, Office, was a grand success in every way, and we wish to congratulate the committee, Messrs. Grund and Thomas, on the result of their untiring efforts. The afternoon was given over to dancing, baseball, racing and other contests.

Johnny Klees won the hundred yard dash for men, while Mildred Eberhart showed the girls how it should be done by navigating the course in nothing flat. "Bob" Machen demonstrated his farming ability by returning victor in the potato race, and Earl Hoppman put the rest of the contestants to shame by inhaling half a watermelon in less time than it takes to tell.

Only three of our young ladies were willing to admit their eligibility to run in the fat ladies' race. Lee Adele McNally was the first to cross the tape closely followed by Elizabeth Meredith, who lost both her heels doing a hook slide across the line. Helen Kirkwood developed a balky streak at the post and didn't even get started.

No one seems to remember the score of the baseball game, which ended so abruptly when the ball was lost and the orchestra started to play. The shock of hearing music and being unable to dance was almost fatal to Margaret O'Leary. She declared that she would jump overboard if they played "Running Wild." Fortunately, this number did not seem to be in the repertoire of the orchestra.

"Dick" Purdy and "Tom" Cook did noble duty in satisfying the thirst of the crowd.

Helen Harte refused to imbibe such a strong beverage as coffee, and brought along a supply of good old Irish tea.

There was not a dull moment from the time we left the office until the special cars brought us back to the city. Did we have a good time? I'll tell the world we did.

Relief Department

Correspondent, H. IRVING MARTIN

In Memoriam

Back Home—To cross over the river and rest under the shade of the trees.

Back Home—Where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

Back Home—To rest forever on the bosom of Mother Earth.

On July 16, Albert I. Helfrich, father of Miss Elizabeth Helfrich, Savings Feature.

On July 18, Mrs. Ella M. Ritchie, mother of H. T. Mitchell, file clerk, Relief Feature.

On August 3, at Clarksburg, W. Va., Mrs. John McDonough, sister of James P. Fleming, Sr., Reception Hall man. Mrs. McDonough was born in Derbyshire, England.

The residents of the modest town of Relay, Md., the hamlet around which cluster so many of the stories which form an important part of the early history of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, thought that in their midst there would be placed a new Lick Observatory. Was it the Transit of Venus that they thought they had discovered? A new planet or a new star? Back they came to earth when they found it was no more than Friend Hachtel shooting over the hills in his new "Hup." "Hach" is sure some out-of-door man. He's learned how to add ballast to his canoe and the Savings Feature now takes a full deep breath.

"Baker Tall at Saunders Range." But five words, yet it means a whole heap if Baker takes it all in for its full value. Head erect, shoulders squared, he blew back among us. Care-free. Ready to find that lost "file" even if it meant digging to the bottom of every "ice-box" in the office.

Every man loves to go a-fishin'. Uncle John Bredehoeft takes a day off occasionally. And John Brooks. He doesn't use many words to picture his luck. But that wonderful sun-burn he caught speaks loudly for itself.

Miss Elizabeth Brune, the always smiling stenographer to assistant superintendent, whiled away the hours of her vacation at Oxford, Md.

Ernest Buchheimer is back from his trip. With a satchel full of reservations and a card case full of cash he started out to visit all of his relatives. We don't think he missed any.

J. Norris Desverreux introduced his smiling countenance to the citizens of Boston, Albany, New York City and Niagara Falls.

J. Edward McCann has gone into politics, studying it from all viewpoints. It is rumored that he will spend his entire vacation campaigning for Highlandtown's candidate for Governor, Mr. William J. Guber. "Andy Gump" as a campaigner will have to take a back seat.

Miss Lillian C. Gerhold, home from Yellowstone Park, chockful of enthusiasm about the wonders and beauties of that bit of Nature's wonderland. What a successful tourist agent she would make if she retold in that vivacious and sparkling way all of her story about Old Faithful Geyser, the vari-colored terraces at Mammoth Camp, the geysers and hot pools, the canyons and falls, and the snow-capped mountain setting.

Whereas, the 27th day of September is to be the happiest day of the whole year (and of one man's whole life). No, that isn't the President's Thanksgiving proclamation, but the announcement from Earl Plowman that on that day he and Miss Hilda Loveless will wed.

Vernon Miles and family went into seclusion for two weeks at Sharp's, Va., one of those river points that do not show big on the map, but loom large when it comes to enjoying a good rest.

Powell picks up his pen

Miss Katherine Meyers, who assists in sending out checks to pensioners promptly at the end of each month, was compelled to take a furlough because of illness. Her place is being filled efficiently by Miss Margaret L. Vernetson.

Walter R. Carroll is one of the newest arrivals in the Relief Feature. After spending three years at the Polytechnic Institute (four years to graduate) he gives up the possible fame of a great engineer to serve the railroad in a clerical capacity.

Another welcomed to our force is William A. Cavey, formerly connected with the Valuation Department.

New York Properties Staten Island Lines

Correspondent, G. J. GOOLIC

Biff-Bing-Bang-Fourth Annual Ball of the Employees' Mutual Benefit Association, Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway, will be held at Stapleton Club Rooms, on November 3, at 8.00 p. m. Music will be furnished by our favorite and well known Jazz King, Professor N. P. Vice. Officers in charge are; B. F. Kelly, president; E. E. McKinley, vice-president; J. B. Sharp, treasurer; G. J. Goolic, recording secretary; J. V. Costello, corresponding secretary; Executive Committee, J. F. McGowan, W. P. Slattery and J. J. Lestranger.

The Committee is working hard to put this over with great success and make it the best affair ever held on Staten Island. Come along and enjoy yourself!

Don't forget the Date—Time—and Place.

On August 4, the team representing the Union Pacific Railroad Company traveled to Staten Island and there met defeat at the hands of the Staten Island Transit Railway Club, by the score of 13-1.

This game put the necessary finishing touch to the Staten Islanders form, as they were to play the Baltimore Blue Socks on August 11.

August 11 saw the downfall of the far famed Baltimore Blue Socks by a score of 15-5. In the first inning, Frank Martin, our versatile second baseman, started proceedings by hitting safety. Rebban, the old reliable, doubled and Martin scored. The Staten Islanders scored another run in the third.

Baltimore became active and scored three and this score remained until the fifth inning, when the Islanders scored five runs, in the seventh five runs, in the eighth two more and, to cap the climax, three in the ninth.

Baltimore made a brave but futile effort in the eighth inning but could muster only two runs.

The features of the game were the remarkable back stop work of McCullough, who kept the boys from Baltimore hugging their bags; not a stolen base chalked up against him, and the batting of Rebban and Martin.

Needless to say the pitching was well taken care of as the score indicates the lack of runs.

While on Our Vacation

"Patsy" Santoro advises that he is now at Kenoza Lake, N. Y., and that cider made by the residents near the Lake makes a fellow forget about Prohibition. Miss Helen Delaney, Law Department, returned from a two weeks trip to Shrewsbury, Mass. Joseph Fanella had a three days trip by auto to Atlantic City. Joseph is now in training for the Fall Campaign.

"Wise Cracks" by Frank Rebban

"Gee, the old man's made a double."

'THE BANKERS'

"Bob" McCullough is somewhat elated by the Baltimore Girls.

Raburn has captured Johnny Larkin's sister.

Johnny Larkin was somewhat nervous on the eve of the game at Baltimore. Ask Raburn, he knows.

Frank Martin thought while riding in the Pullman that he was atop of a box car.

Pier 22, North River

Correspondent, JOHN NEWMAN

Meeting my old friend "Joe Coffee," alias Antonio Paturso, mentioned before in the MAGAZINE, coming across "the farm" one day recently, lugging two large market baskets, one in each hand, one containing solid edibles, sandwiches and pie, the other one fourteen bottles of milk, for the consumption of some of the office force, I suggested to him the idea of getting a cow. He thought goats would be preferable, fourteen goats to be named after and dedicated to the service of the consumers. He could herd them upstairs at lunchtime and the lunchers could have their milk on tap. "Now me the goats," said "Joe," shaking the milk basket, "and jackassa to," shaking the other "bask."

Agent J. J. Bayer, Pier 22, who also has received honorable mention in these pages at various times, has had several hundred mimeograph copies made of the prospective business card enclosed in the July issue of the MAGAZINE, for the use of our freight receiving clerks. These men have an opportunity to note on the trucks delivering westbound freight to us, shipments that could be handled via our lines, routed over competing lines; they get the necessary data for the "traffic tip" and do the tipping accordingly. Mr. Bayer says that the scheme works beautifully, and looks to the traffic men for results.

The time for vacations now being about over, we may view them in retrospect, contemplatively. (Nice long word that.)

The most pleasure derived from vacations is in the anticipation of joys to come, joys foretasted that seldom materialize. Why are these lapses from routine called "vacations," anyway? It would, perhaps, be proper to put the question "How did you enjoy your vacation?" to one convalescing after a trip on rough water, but otherwise the question is not apropos. It is the chair one has occupied that gets a vacation. The vacator gets a "fine time," oh, yes!

Frank Going draws a picture in lead color of a rainy week in a country boarding house, describing the indoor joys derived from a rickety and rocky pool table with flatwheel balls and home-made cues for the "gents," and an antique square piano, with some notes false and some missing, for the ladies, who knew the words of some popular songs but didn't know how to sing them, for, says Frank, "it was terrible." He also mentions that among other "mottos" hung in the mess-room was one that read "Prepare to meet thy God," upon the appropriateness of which he commented, saying that with what they served to eat there the admonition was not out of place.

Our irrepressible young fisherman, John Duffy, is at this writing, somewhere in Maine, fishing. He invested a heap of hard earnings in such accessories as togs, rods and flies for "casting" for trout. He also took along an ex-German, ex-service army rifle; he is bound to get some fish; if they don't want his flies he will shoot them. Go to it, Johnnie, have a "fine time."

Someone has told a story about a party of tourists, togged out in proper sport clothes, hipboots, wicker baskets, an assortment of rods and flies, and bottled lunch, "casting" up and down one bank of a stream, getting never a nibble, while on the other bank a barefoot boy with a crooked stick and a piece of twine pulled them up every so often. But the tourists had the "fine time," with them it was "sport;" they wanted the fish for a picture. With the boy it was an occupation; he wanted the fish for supper.

Chief Clerk "Bob" Riddell is getting ready for a belated honeymoon trip to extend over a month's time and across the continent, to the Pacific Coast, with stopovers at all the points of wonderful interest along the routes, Baltimore and Ohio and Santa Fe going, and Southern Pacific coming back. One such "vacation" every ten years is more worth while than the regulation nine-day frolics once a year.

"Ed" Kiernan, personal secretary to terminal agent, has, for reasons of his own, chosen Montreal, Canada, for his objective. He is there now, I believe, and is having a "fine time." The T. A. himself visited there last summer, and the secretary might have picked up some tips that made him decide to go there.

I am sorry to announce that my popularity as correspondent appears to be on the decline. The absentees have neglected to send me cards from the hills and lakes where they have been having fine times this summer. They are also very reluctant in turning in pictures for the MAGAZINE. Have I been too free with raillery and given offense? If so, I beg pardon, not that I feel guilty nor that I am contrite, but for politeness sake.

Baltimore Terminal Division

Correspondent, H. R. LINCOLN

A number of changes have been made in the personnel of the forces at Riverside, Howard T. Cromwell going to Glenwood as assistant superintendent of shops, Ralph H. Cline taking position of assistant master mechanic at night. George W. Short comes from Cumbo to take the place vacated by Mr. Cline as general foreman, days. W. J. Eppinger is the new assistant boiler foreman, vice Joseph L. Sweitzer, deceased. Howard King takes the place of E. J. McGuiness, who also went to Glenwood.

In arranging for her vacation "Mith" Evelyn E. Comra caused a run on the supply of forms 712 and 1534. She still comes to work in her "Chev" and can be heard three blocks away. In crossing the tracks at Riverside the young lady is compelled to let go of the steering wheel and hold the body with both hands to keep the chassis from running away from her.

"Barney Google" (Herman Chrender) and "Spark Plug" (4402) continue their joy riding.

James T. Schmeinke appeared recently in a new spring coat. It is suspected that somewhere between Riverside and Camden there must be a girl.

While on the subject of coats, we are wondering how much longer the bunch of holes that "Jack" Tarr calls his "office coat," will hold together.

D. W. Dean, Riverside, nearly caused several cases of heart failure by appearing on time.

"Sam" Paid is still looking for someone who will take the job as material man.

Each day at noon, a number of the fellows from Camden Station gather at Conway Street yard and indulge in what they term baseball. Judge K. M. Landis should really visit this place some noon time and learn how the Great American Game should NOT be played.

"Ernie" Ohle, record supervisor, Bay View District, decided on a trip to Atlantic City for his vacation, having heard a lot about but never having seen "America's Playground." Evidently his visits could not have impressed him, as he was seen daily after the first few days at Clifton Park Swimming Pool.

What has hitherto been regarded as a sort of an Eveless Paradise, has at last been invaded by the "female women." We now have two lady clerks in the Agent's Office at Locust Point.

John Higdon, file clerk, Superintendent's Office, spends most of his evenings on the river, emulating Walter Hoover. The pity of it is that "Hig" only stands about sixty inches in his stocking feet. If he had another foot in height we might have the Baltimore and Ohio represented on the Schuylkill during one of the regattas.

We know a "stenog" whose taste runs to chocolate eclaires and cake eaters. Seems rather appropriate.

Other of Bauernschub's clever cartoons will be found elsewhere in this issue

EVERY ONE'S HAPPY AT MOUNT CLARE

Left to right: Flue Plant Helper and Mrs. G. Scott, with baby Ruth; Melva, daughter of Flue Plant Helper L. E. Collender. Why is Smith Shop so popular? Here's the answer—Misses Ruth Bowers and Amy Fisher

Mt. Clare Shops

Correspondent, W. H. ZELL

Much credit should be given Foreman Marion V. Pascal, for the manner in which he helped to handle the large crowd that went to the Veterans' picnic at Willow Grove Park, Philadelphia, on August 7. Mt. Clare was well represented and the Mount Clare Band helped to liven up the day.

Chief Clerk and Mrs. Serp and Labor Supervisor and Mrs. J. E. Tatum, spent part of their vacation motoring to Atlantic City.

Our old friend Frank Ogle, foreman, Steel Car Plant, spent his vacation at Atlantic City, although we understand that isn't all he spent!

The Mount Clare Freight Car Department Baseball Team journeyed to Piedmont and came back victorious, by a score of 8 to 7. The game was thrilling and was witnessed by one of the largest crowds of the season. Eyerly and Johnson, for the Car Department, each got a home run, while Mansfield of the Dry Bugs got two. Punk Smith, the fast shortstop of the Mt. Clare team, and at one time a member of the Piedmont team, was warmly applauded when he stepped to the plate for the first time, and responded with a three base hit.

We are glad to announce that Harry D. Griffith, supervisor of shop schedule, Passenger Car Department, has taken unto himself a wife. This is his third attempt Congratulations!

Mt. Clare Yard

Assistant Correspondent, J. F. TEARNEY

It was a sad and sorrowful occasion indeed, the day that Patrolman E. L. Johnson was "to measure his beat, with his big feet, on another street." Always with a smile and a cheery word for all, which always won the same in return "Johns" will be missed by all with whom he came in contact, both from a personal and business standpoint. Even the girls, passing the yard office to and from work, ask about "Smiles," as they knew him by no other name. We all wish him success in his new territory.

A certain young lady in the vicinity of Halethorpe was observed on a certain occasion, with a certain adornment, on a certain finger, of a certain hand, which depicts a certain coming event, and a certain young man in Mt. Clare Yard Office blushes at mention of this certain said fact. He doesn't deny, nor does he admit, but we are saving up our pennies just the same.

His "Unk" at Riverside says J. Carroll goes around Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, not to mention Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, Sunday being without doubt. Give us the good word, "Ben." We all flop sooner or later, only some fall a whole lot harder than others.

At a recent enjoyable evening spent at the home of Chief Yard Clerk Tearney, Elkridge Highlands, by some of the boys of the yard office force, "Walt" Brennan found out he could sing barreltonc, and insisted on leading all vocal selections. He has announced his intention of collecting fruit and eggs at a certain local vaudeville house next Thursday night. We'll all be there, "Walt," to cheer you. When "Cheers" run out, we figure on throwing benches.

District Record Supervisor O. J. N. Burkart is spending part of his vacation with relatives "way back in Indiana, down on the farm." He writes of having a fine time, but we doubt if he enjoys that part of his vacation as much as he does the other part spent around here. We're glad to say he'll soon be back. Even the office cat isn't the same since he went away. She misses being kicked out the door, regularly without fail, each a. m.

It seems to be a mania among the conductors in the yard to wear odd shoes. Recently Conductor H. L. Hudson appeared in a brand new pair, not knowing the difference until the odd appearance was called to his attention. He plans to take them back to the second hand store, where purchased, as soon as he can borrow another pair to wear in the meantime.

Conductor C. A. Bokman appeared this morning in a pair of dreadnaughts, one black and the other tan. He blames this on his eyesight, saying he thought he had his patent leathers on.

Camden Station

Correspondent, W. H. BULL

Picked up 'round Camden Station by The Tatler

Judgin' by th' 'mount o' milk brung in th' office ev'ry noon, seems we might save money keepin' a cow or two ourselves. 'Course, might cause some 'citement etc., fer awhile 'til we git th' hang o' milkin', but then w'y not 'point one special fer that. Me thinks Miss Smith'd make a right pretty little milk maid, so here an' now I'm nominatin' her. What, say boys? Send your votes in, one an' all, soon's possible.

Some has taken a likin' to this "chocolit milk" lately, so o' course they'd have to keep a separat an' distinct cow an' feed her chocolit bars; but then maybe th' other cow'd git jelus, thinkin' we wuz playin' fav'rits.

Shore do look 'spicious; them two suit cases our own Charley Griffith done took with 'im when he went on his vacation jist recently. Figured spendin' vacation in Betterton; maybe takin' sudden sick an' no doc right handy to give 'im a prescription. 'Sall' right Griff, don't blame yu' none whatever fer bein' prepared, only jist beware o' them gents known as "bition agents."

EXTRY! EXTRY! Didja' hear th' news, folks? Jist recently our old friend, John W. Hardy, took unto himself a bride. John is the pride of the Inbound Rate Department, and we all joins in wishin' th' two newly wedded doves all kinds o' good luck.

As wuz pictured in these columns sometime ago, maybe you'll remember friend Kruemmel wuz leadin' in the "Matrimonial Handicap" with friends Fiege, Stone and Davidson, just a notch behind and Friend Fred Hardy in the rear coaxing a nag, that wouldn't be coaxed, to "giddap." Since then our friend Fiege haz bin conferred the honor of bein' papa of another darlin' lil' girl, blue eyes, pink cheeks an' everythin.' 'Course Lawrence allus did like the girls. This incident tightens the race somewhat as the aforesaid papa moves into a tie with Friend Kruemmel. Ter'ble expensive Lawrence; them gals.

Baltimore Division

Correspondent, W. H. TARR

Passenger Brakeman A. C. Maddox, who died on July 26, had been ill for about eight weeks. Mr. Maddox was born on October 2, 1877. He entered the service on January 4, 1901 under agent, Locust Point. From there he went to the Car Department in 1905. He later became a brakeman and entered passenger service in 1907, continuing in that service until the time of his illness. He was very popular and had a lively disposition. Anything that was within his power to do to accommodate anyone it was his pleasure to do.

Samuel B. Bosley, former road foreman's clerk, Riverside, was presented by the engineers and firemen on the Baltimore Division with a gold watch, chain, and charm. The presentation took place at Friendship Hall. Mr. Bosley held the position of road foreman's clerk on first entering the service, which brought him into personal touch with all the engine crews. Mr. Bosley's father was an engineer and he is following his father's footsteps, now assuming duties of fireman. In his capacity as road foreman's clerk he became well posted on locomotive operation. Mr. Bosley served in France during the War with the 113th in the heavy drives around Montfaucon and came out of the fray without injury.

Freight Trainmaster C. E. Owen has completed and moved into his new home at Ashburton. Good wishes!

Of the number who are on their vacation, we mention Miss Cora Ekin who spent hers at Pittsburgh. We are told she is greatly interested in automobiles. Specialty—A Ford.

Here we are. Our former family artist by an artist:

Dedication

The picture here as you will plainly see,
Is easily recognizable as Abe, "The Grouchy,"

He never smiles, always moaning,
Snappy, never happy, mostly groaning.

Brace up Abe, try to smile,
Or your friends, you will lose in a while.
Out of luck, you will surely be;
What you gain, we cannot see.

No one likes to see you looking glum,
Smile, cheer up, sing or hum,
Gloom—you cast o'er everyone;
You certainly have us going some.

With apologies—G. L. H.

We learn Mr. Hoskins spent a very enjoyable vacation touring around Pittsburgh, Monongahela City, and Chambersburg in his new Oakland 6-44 touring car.

Train Dispatcher H. Hambleton is improving in health. We hope to see him back at the key in the near future.

Pier 22, South Philadelphia, Pa.

Correspondent, MARY G. GUTHRIE

J. E. Sands, terminal agent, is at his desk again after spending two weeks' vacation at his home, Louisville, Ky.

H. L. Goodman, Secretary to Superintendent,
Baltimore Division

John Callahan, cashier, Pier 22, has opened his bungalow in Ocean City where his family are enjoying the ocean breezes. "John" commutes every day.

The "stork" has been a busy bird, paying a visit to the home of Messrs. Carrigan, Mahoney and McDevitt. Congratulations!

We are glad to announce that Mildred Blackburn's mother, who underwent a serious operation, is much improved. We hope for her early recovery.

We have added to our office force a new member, Samuel G. Starrett, who recently came from Londonderry, Ireland, where he was cashier and auditor, Londonderry and Lough Swilly R. R.

Our friend Wallace Search has purchased a Light Six Studebaker. One warm evening, after the worries of the day, he took the girls of the Cashier's Department to Willow Grove. Who said Wallace was a quiet boy?

Miss Marie Fester, collection clerk, recently returned from a vacation trip to Boston on the Steamship Nantucket.

The railroads, as a whole, are making a splendid showing. If given half a chance they will keep on improving and developing better service for shippers and travelers. Notwithstanding the difficulties placed in their way, the Baltimore and Ohio renders the best service ever provided in the transportation line.

Washington, D. C., Freight Station

Correspondent, W. L. WHITING

Oh, Boy! Oh, Joy! Just to think that the usually busy stork should have been guilty of missing any one connected with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in his wanderings up and down our fair city! But he has evidently been locking about for any places that he missed and in his journeys discovered that for ELEVEN long years the home of our yardmaster, Fred. O. White, had not been enlivened with the sound of his wings hovering over it; so, as a surprise, and in order to try to make up for lost time, he paused there long enough to drop a big, bouncing boy down the chimney of the home of "Meme" White and his good wife. Do we congratulate the happy parents? We do, most heartily! We wish them all the happiness that such events bring to "Aged Couples."

The late Brakeman A. C. Maddox, who was a favorite with everybody

Agent A. H. Howes, Pataskala, Ohio, with his family, consisting of Mrs. Howes and son, Howard, and Miss Ora Moore, a friend of the family, recently made a visit to this city. While here they stayed at the home of your correspondent. They were here during the sad ceremonies connected with the death and funeral of President Harding, and were thus enabled to witness the impressive rites that the solemn occasion called for.

Many of our force have availed themselves of holiday opportunities, and good old New England, the glades of the Southland, the mountains of Pennsylvania and ever popular Atlantic City have seen the smiling countenances of the Baltimore and Ohio people who have left the dusty streets of the city for a period, and are gradually returning with ruddy cheeks and brightened color, showing the benefits they have derived from the change of air and scenery.

Once more we are able to make a blank report on our sick list, and sincerely hope that this condition will prevail for a long time.

Brunswick, Md.

Correspondent, R. L. MUCH

A well known member of our community is James Hartley, whose photograph appears here. He was born on May 15, 1838, in Morgan County, Va. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service as track laborer on June 12, 1858. On August 12, 1861 he enlisted in the Northern Army, and was discharged in 1864. In February, 1865 he again returned to the Baltimore and Ohio in local freight service and was later promoted to conductor, remaining in train service until he was retired in 1901.

Mr. Hartley tells us that in his day freight trains did not carry cabooses and that he had to ride outside in all kinds of weather. When your day was completed you had made a day's pay, he says, even though it might take you two days to do it. He had to make up his own trains and in many cases had to rob one train of links and pins in order to make up another.

Mr. Hartley is still hale and hearty at the age of 85.

Yard Conductor Walter Phillips, Brunswick, has asked the MAGAZINE to express his thanks to officers employees and the Police Department for many kindnesses extended to him and to his family, during the period of illness and subsequent death of his wife.

Cumberland Division

Correspondent, JOHN J. SELL

At the Divisional Safety Meeting, held in the Superintendent's Office, Cumberland, on August 14, the new members recently selected were in attendance, and from the amount of business transacted and the number of observations reported, the new committee promises to be one of the most active in the promotion of Safety that we have yet had. W. D. Lenderking, safety inspector, was present and expressed himself as well pleased with the manner in which the new members took hold of the Safety movement. With the cooperation of every employe we should be able to make our division head the list in the Safety Honor Roll.

A number of local employes journeyed to Cincinnati to attend the "Galloway-Fries" day picnic, and pay a fraternal visit to our Western Lines Veterans. These annual outings are much enjoyed, and with the get-together spirit which prevails, insure better cooperation and tend to the betterment of the service.

The apple shipments from this territory are increasing daily, and heavy movements will continue until the season closes. The crop this year is large, and a trip through the apple belt, extending from Harpers Ferry to Keyser, shows the trees loaded with luscious fruit, some of the branches completely broken down with fruit. They can be seen from our trains, and add to the attractiveness of a trip over our lines through the beautiful Potomac Valley. It is estimated that there will be more than two thousand carloads shipped from this territory this season.

The tomato crop in the vicinity of Cherry Run and Sleepy Creek is reported heavy, and the local canneries will be kept busy for some time putting up the yield. The buckwheat crop, in the glades adjacent to Deer Park and Terra Alta, is also heavy this year, while our line serves some of the largest coal producing regions of the country, and delivers this commodity to the cities and towns both east and west to keep the wheels of industry humming, and warm the homes of thousands in winter.

James Hartley, Brunswick

Few of our readers realize the variety and extent of crops raised in the territory through which our line runs.

The old armory yard, just west of Harpers Ferry Station, has been cleaned up and covered with grass and a marker erected showing the location of the old U. S. Arsenal, captured by John Brown in his famous raid of 1859. The foundation of the buildings can still be plainly seen, and the improvement receives favorable comment from our patrons passing through that historic town.

Something over a year ago the plank crossing at Frederick Street, Cumberland, was replaced with a tarvia bound stone and screening crossing, which has proved very satisfactory. The Harrison Street Crossing is now being replaced with the same material, which will make quite an improvement.

Track Supervisor Walter R. House received a painful injury to his left hand while working with the steam ditcher at Patterson Creek recently. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery and return to service.

We were glad to hear of the promotion of our fellow correspondent of Keyser, Harry B. Kight, to the position of traveling passenger agent, Cumberland. While Harry will be missed from Deer Park Hotel station and Keyser ticket offices, his promotion is well merited, and we hope he will find time to send in a few lines now and then.

We understand our old friend "Ed" Tasker, assistant shop clerk, Keyser, is grooming his crack checker team, with a view of taking the division championship this fall and winter. He will have to go some, for the Champion Cumberland team under the able guidance of G. Frank Messman, report clerk, Superintendent's Office, with such players as George Bramble, Col. Cogan, "Hotty" Spearman, "Bob" Meltinger, Ambrose Martin and a large field of experts to draw from, still maintain their supremacy in the game.

While the average miles per car per day for the division has not been as high as that reached earlier in the summer, it is steadily increasing. With every employe doing his utmost in the prompt release and movement of cars from sidings, and with the anticipated heavy fall movement, it is hoped we will soon be able to reach our high record made this spring, and possibly make an even better record. Let's put our shoulder to the wheels, boys, and set the pace for other divisions to follow.

This is a new "old" story: An empty car earns no coin
Unless it's gotten loaded and then kept right again'
Then the sequel to the story is to get the empty loaded
Move load to destination, without your being goaded.
An empty on a siding, where no loading to be had Might just as well be on shop track, sick and very sad.
And a shop car earns no money, standing idly around
Fix it up right quickly and make it safe and sound.

This is all about more miles per car per day
Keep the car a' moving, make them earn their pay
You ask how to increase the miles per day, that's fine
Read the July issue, see pages eight and nine.

Above: Miss Margaret Irons, Brunswick Y. M. C. A. Below: Secretary McDaniel in his working clothes

Lineman H. C. Rhodes, who has been absent because of illness, is improving rapidly and we hope to see him back shortly.

On August 25, the American Red Cross First Aid Car visited Cumberland. The lecture and demonstration by the doctors in charge was much appreciated by employes and others who availed themselves of the opportunity to attend. The car also visited Martinsburg, Cumbo and Green Spring, August 16 to 24, where similar lectures were given.

Another car which visited this territory August 23, and gave exhibitions and demonstrations at Oakland, Potomac and Cumberland, was that of the Maryland Soil and Improvement Special. A large number of agriculturalists and employes visited the special and were much impressed by the exhibits. This territory is rapidly coming to the front as an agricultural district.

Former Superintendent and General Superintendent M. H. Cahill, now vice president, Seaboard Air Line, passed over the division recently, en route to Niagara Falls, and renewed acquaintance with a number of old friends and former fellow employes. We are always glad to see Mr. Cahill with his beaming smile, and we are glad he used our line when opportunity permitted.

THE "QUEEN CITY" PROVES ITS RIGHT TO THE NAME!

Left: Miss Frances D. Menefee, daughter of A. E. Menefee, Cumberland Round House, and granddaughter of retired Engineer. She graduated from Allegheny Nurses Training School in May, 1923. Center and right: Catherine E. and Eleanor C., daughters of Wreckmaster P. D. Ziler, graduated from Allegheny Nurses Training School in May and June, 1923.

Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, Fort Cumberland Lodge No. 403, recently tendered a swimming party to the officers and employees of the Cumberland Division. A large number joined in the evening's pleasure at the Crystal Swimming Pool. Let's have some more of these times, boys. We all like to swim!

The accompanying photograph is engine 13, taken many years ago. This engine was renumbered 57 and saw service on the Cumberland Division and in Cumberland Yard for many years. The picture was loaned us by a local employe who said that there is an interesting history connected with it. He could not tell us much about it, but would like to hear from some of our Veterans, who will possibly recognize the engineer and know some of the engine's history.

Art Editor Dickson, of the MAGAZINE, recently spent some time in Cumberland, sketching views of our terminal, and we look for some interesting pictures of pincts on the division. Mr. Dickson is a "Prince" and we are glad to have had him with us.

We extend our sympathy to Joseph Shaffer and family on the loss of the wife and mother, who died at Keyser on August 16. Besides Mr. Shaffer, who is a car repairman at Keyser, she is survived by two daughters and two sons, both of the latter being employed by the Baltimore and Ohio. Chester W. is maintenance of way accountant, Cumberland, while Dyche is employed in the Car Department, Keyser.

We miss the smiling greetings of our friend, Michael Laffey, crossing watchman, Bedford Street, Cumberland, who has been off duty recently because of the serious illness of his wife. We hope for her speedy recovery and "Mike's" return to duty.

Our genial agent at North Mountain, Burr Flagg, is a busy man these days, handling the heavy apple crop being shipped from his station. Burr is right on the job when it comes to getting the cars loaded and moving.

Well, boys, with the track in shape, motive power all keyed up and all of us ready to go, there is no question about the fall business on the Cumberland Division getting highball movement, but its new records we want and the Car Miles to grow. Stop that Leak! Let's Go!

Bridge 88, over the Youghiogheny River west of Oakland, is being replaced with a steel plated girder bridge. This bridge has been in service for a number of years and the substantial steel structure now being erected will accommodate the heavier power used over the mountain.

We regret to report the recent death of our estimable division passenger agent, W. W. Picking, at his home, Somerset, Pa. Mr. Picking saw more than forty years' service with our Company, the last five

DO YOU KNOW HIM?

Our Cumberland Division Correspondent sends us this old time photograph. Do you know the engineer or the history of the engine? If so write us about it

You May Never Run the California Limited—but You Can Own a Hamilton Watch

WHEN Engineer J. K. Ramsey, the pilot of this famous Santa Fe train, purchased a watch he chose a Hamilton. Why? Like thousands of other railroad men, he knew it was a watch that could be depended upon to give him accurate time.

That is what the Hamilton does—and has been doing for thirty years. That is what has made this watch “The Railroad Timekeeper of America.”

The Hamilton is a watch with a service record—a watch that is always built up to highest standards. When you buy a Hamilton you own a timekeeper that is the favorite of railroad men from Maine to California and from Canada to the Gulf.

Go to your jeweler and

Ask to see the “992”

The Hamilton most railroad men prefer. In this model you have a watch that will pass time inspection on any railroad and give you accuracy and dependable service for many years to come.

For other than time inspection service, we recommend our No. 974 movement, which gives you Hamilton quality at a lower price.

HAMILTON WATCH COMPANY, LANCASTER, PENNA., U. S. A.

Hamilton Watch

“The Railroad Timekeeper of America”

Send for a copy of the “Timekeeper,” our booklet that describes the various Hamiltons and gives much valuable watch information. It is sent free to any railroad man. Send for your copy today.

of which were spent on the Cumberland Division. By his genial and affable manner he won a host of friends for himself and our Company.

Prompt service is now in order. Miss Ella Dougherty, one of our charming telephone operators, has returned from a vacation trip to Canada. Miss Agnes Murphy has returned from a vacation spent in the eastern cities. "Line's busy" no longer in order.

Green Spring, W. Va.

Timber Preserving Plant

Correspondent, E. E. ALEXANDER

"Over and over again,
No matter which way I turn
I always find in the Book of Life
Some lesson I must learn."

President Harding's funeral train passed through our town at 6.52 p.m., on August 7. A large crowd assembled at the station to mark its passing and pay a tribute of respect to our deceased executive. The touch of the sorrow it bore reached every heart as the great engine, draped in mourning, slowed down and silently rolled by with its precious burden. And, we think, the heartfelt sympathy of that little gathering joined the sorrow of the multitude that had already marked its passing and was felt by the lonely woman riding with her dead—our President.

President Coolidge having declared it a day of mourning, the plant was closed on August 17.

Word has been received here of the marriage of A. F. Leonard, a former Plant employe, and Miss Edith Malone, a local school teacher, in Detroit, July 29. Congratulations!

Narrow Gauge Engineer "Press" Allen drives up to the gas station now. It's an Overland, brand new and delivered in time for the big picnic, too.

Little Vernie and Mary Lewis, children of Craneman C. M. Lewis, have been confined to the house with whooping cough. We hope the doctor lets them out soon.

R. N. Angier, chemical engineer, relieved C. L. Kittle, treating inspector at Finney, Ohio, during the latter's vacation. Mrs. R. N. Angier visited her home in Baltimore during the absence of her husband.

Mrs. J. D. Rockwell, wife of operator, accompanied her sister, Mrs. V. S. Dillard, who has been visiting her, to her home at Lakeland, Fla., August 8, where she will spend a few weeks. Mr. Rockwell accompanied the ladies as far as Washington.

General Foreman E. M. Stottlemeyer has been confined to his home since August 1, with an injury to the muscles of his right leg. It will probably be some time before he is able to be out.

August 4 was a day that will be talked about in this community and remembered for some time to come. It was Green Spring's own holiday, the occasion of the big Plant picnic. Nice accounts appeared in local papers. Our special guests were Hon. John J. Cornwell, general counsel, Miss Jennie Smith and "Aunt Mary," who will tell you all about it elsewhere in this issue.

Mrs. A. E. Irving, librarian, Baltimore, was the guest of her son, A. E. Irving, tie inspector, August 5, and attended the Plant picnic.

Are you hauling your full tonnage every day or are you running light, perhaps dead-heading part of the time? You know it is the engines that handle full tonnage that produce the most revenue. We should take a lesson from them.

Above: "Uncle Tom" Morgan, Engineer.
Below: John, son of Engineer Grubb and Ruby, granddaughter of Painter J. L. Dawson

Miss Margaret Talbott Stevens, associate editor of the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Alexander for the picnic. Miss Stevens, who was one of the principal speakers Saturday, spoke at the Methodist Sunday School here Sunday morning and also at the U. B. Church. Miss Stevens is a splendid speaker with a charming personality and we hope to have her with us again. (Hampshire Review, August 8.)

Tieman and Mrs. C. T. Seeders announce the birth of a son, Lee Irving Seeders, on July 24. Congratulations!

Miss Elizabeth Goldie Sisler, sister of Plant Laborer B. L. Sisler, died at the home of her grandmother here, on July 27. Born at Green Spring, January 3, 1899, bereft of a mother's care at a tender age, her grandparents were the only parents she knew. Her's was an exemplary life; she was well known in this community and loved by all who knew her. The bereaved relatives have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends. Funeral services were conducted at the Methodist Church at Green Spring, with interment in the family lot, Indian Mound Cemetery, Romney, W. Va.

Another home is broken, another wife alone and little ones left fatherless by the death of Tieman Wilson Lee Kenney on July 28, at his home near Green Spring, following a prolonged illness. Born September 9, 1886, a son of Okey and Sallie Kenney, he was cut down in the prime of life, leaving a little family to whom he was devoted, a wife and three little ones, Thelma, age ten, Martha, four and a baby Cecil, two years old. For these he had hoped to get well and live, but it was not to be. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. G. Yost, interment in Forest Glen Cemetery. Pall bearers, his fellow workers at the Plant, were W. T. Lichliter, N. B. Hinkle, E. Allen, P. Allen, Rev. Z. J. Powers and E. D. Robinson. The bereaved ones we commend to the tender mercies of a Divine Master who knoweth and understandeth their sorrow better than any other. May He ever sustain them.

Tieman Kemper Comer was called to his home at Stanley, Va., July 17, by the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. Ruebin Comer, from which she failed to recover, dying on August 3. We extend Kemper the sympathy of his fellow employes.

The Maintenance Engineer and the Union Pacific Magazine for July contain an article about the new Tie Treating Plant built and now in operation for the Union Pacific Railroad at the Dalles, Oregon, costing approximately $550,000. The new plant has four cylinders and a capacity of 2,000,000 ties per annum.

The Union Pacific Magazine for July also contains a picture and nice write-up of Miss Jennie Smith, railroad evangelist, whom the writer says has been acquainted with every president of the United States since President Arthur.

Sabraton, W. Va.

Correspondent, L. M. GUMP

Vacations are the order of the day. We are getting many reports of enjoyable trips and pleasant times.

Oak Park, after having been closed for a year, is again coming into its own. Excursions are frequent and large coming from Morgantown, Clarksburg, Fairmont, McKeesport, Mt. Pleasant and Connellsville. Evidently our eastern friends do not know what a popular little resort we have on the M. & K., or they would visit us. We invite one and all to come and enjoy a little outing.

The accompanying photograph is of Engineer Thomas Morgan, usually known as "Uncle Tom." Mr. Morgan is a passenger engineer, and a real old timer, having entered the service in 1892 and promoted to engineer in 1897.

Our second picture is of John Grubb and Ruby Dawson. John is the brother of Master Mechanic's Stenographer Miss Ella Grubb, and the son of engineer James Grubb, Rowlesburg. Little Ruby is granddaughter of Painter J. L. Dawson, Fairmont, W. Va., and John's cousin.

Carpenter J. M. Deakins, who has been off duty during an extended illness, has returned to work. We are glad to see him.

Storekeeper Farrell has gone house-keeping. No, girls, he isn't married—yet.

You never miss the water until the well goes dry. In the same manner you seldom appreciate the quality of service your home road gives until you get away from it. The next time you ride on a foreign road, look about you and see if it's as accommodating, up-to-date and cleanly as the Baltimore and Ohio. It usually isn't.

Hostler Harry Flynn recently purchased a new automobile. Harry's account of the transaction and the nights of sleep it cost him is interesting. Anyone who has not heard it should do so at once.

Jim Ware and Slim Lantz are interested in what brand of bird-seed to feed their new cuckoo clocks.

The correspondent has been thoroughly called down and warmly "bawled out" recently because of the lack of Sabraton items. Sad but true. The correspondent's time is limited, his journalistic ability more so, and the assistance he gets with his write-ups is less yet. Perhaps a word or suggestion from the men along the line, on the road and in the shops, would help. Did you ever think of that? TRY IT!

Martinsburg Shops

Correspondent, W. L. STEPHENS

Foreman F. C. Maxfield has returned from a long vacation, spent at his old home in New Hampshire. The genial Max looks well, indicating that the much needed rest did him good. His old homestead, where he passed the time, was built in 1735.

The fellow employes of Carman David Shotts extend their sincere sympathy to him on the death of his mother. Mrs. Shotts had lived in Martinsburg for 26 years.

Death claimed another venerable patriarch of the Baltimore and Ohio when James Powell, retired engineer, passed away recently at North Mountain, W. Va. He was almost 73 years of age, and 49 years and 9 months of this time had been spent in active service with our Company. He entered the service in 1866 and retired in 1916. Many years of his life were spent in Martinsburg, where he was well known and highly esteemed. He was a member of the B. of L. E. and Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association.

George Meadows, pensioned engineer, died at his home in Martinsburg on July 25, at the age of 81 years. He was born at Frostburg, Md., in 1842, where he was educated, and later moved to Cumberland. In 1867 he married Susan B. Ford of Westernport, Md. In 1868 he moved to Martinsburg and lived here for many years. He was then transferred to the Berkeley Springs Branch. When retired, he returned to Martinsburg to reside.

Mr. Meadows entered the Baltimore and Ohio service in 1860 and served actively for 47 years. Sixteen years ago he retired from active service. His wife died several years ago. Five children survive, one son being employed as machinist in the local shops.

The funeral services were held in St. Joseph's Church, of which the deceased had long been a devout member. Father W. A. McKeefry conducted the service. Members of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans acted as pall-bearers, and interment was made in St. Joseph's Cemetery. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Paw Paw, W. Va.

Correspondent, M. L. SHARON

We are glad to note that former Agent C. T. Bevens has returned to his home here after spending some time in the hospital, Cumberland.

Second Trick Operator Eugene Grope, Okonoko tower, is now occupying his new home here.

Bell Nixon, brother of Engineer John T. Nixon who handled the President's special on the East End, is seriously ill at the home of his daughter, Mrs. E. Ambrose. Mr. Ambrose is superintendent of the Paw Paw Tannery and Mr. Nixon is the father of our efficient and genial merchant, Earl Nixon, the latter being State Senator from this district. Engineer John T. Nixon, with his wife and two children are at the bedside of their relative.

The apple shipments from this station have commenced. The new packing and grading plant is in operation. The crop is heavy and a large amount of business will be handled by our Company between now and early winter.

Uncle "Josh" Lewis, a retired watchman, who has served the Company since 1862, and has passed his 81st mile stone, has not been well of late.

DEPOSITS $1,055,260.26

The First National Bank
Keyser, W. Va.

SPECIAL SAVINGS DEPARTMENT
Interest paid every six months
from date of deposit

The late George Meadows

$1.00 BRINGS YOU

This Famous Illinois BUNN SPECIAL

Most remarkable watch offer ever made! Simply send me $1.00 with your name and address—that's all.

No Red Tape
No Delay

We'll send this famous size position — 21 Jewel Illinois Bunn Special, guaranteed to pass railroad inspection—for 30 days Free Trial. Take four full weeks to test this remarkable timekeeper under any and all conditions. If satisfied, pay only $5.65 a month until you have paid only $57.50—Regular cash selling price. Otherwise return it and we will refund your dollar. Only a limited number sold on this plan — Rush your dollar TODAY.

FREE Send today for a copy of our introductory catalog. America's Best Values in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry—PAY-AS-YOU-PLEASE. Your own terms within reason. Address Dept. 64-S.

O. F. Bale & Co. EST. 1888

21-23 Maiden Lane New York

Ed. Wentling, one of our merchants who used to set his Waterbury by your correspondent's watch, now uses The Capitol Limited to get the correct time.

Your correspondent and his wife attended the picnic at Green Spring and spent an enjoyable day. We heard Governor Cornwall's eloquent address and saw the scenery from France which Aunt Mary brought back with her. And that dinner! No, we cannot tell you everything we had to eat, it would take too long.

Keyser

Correspondent, H. B. KIGHT

It is with regret that we report the death of Division Passenger Agent W. W. Picking, at his home, Somerset, Pa., at 8.00 a. m. on August 11. He came to Cumberland five years ago from Chicago on his appointment to the position of division passenger agent here.

Mr. Picking made many friends during his stay with us and he will be missed by all. To his family we extend sincere sympathy.

Agent Strouse, Terra Alta, is all smiles—it's a boy. Congratulations!

Stop That Leak! There are many ways in which this can be done. In my travels recently, I had occasion to visit a station about daybreak. The ticket clerk on duty turned off the lights as soon as it was possible to see without them. By turning out lights when not needed he had helped to cut the electric bill in half. Good boy, Jimmy!

Fireman Hollen deserves high commendation for his watchfulness. Recently when his engine was standing at Queen City station waiting for No. 1, he noticed an engine backing down and saw a lady step out into the path of it. He jumped down and pulled her aside, falling as he did so. However, someone caught the lady and Hollen, sweeping them both to one side without injury.

Connellsville Division

Correspondent, C. E. REYNOLDS

The Division correspondent just returned from an enjoyable vacation spent in Somerset, Johnstown, and other points of interest in that vicinity, accompanied by his wife and little son.

On August 6, a baby boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Shank. The little fellow has been named Earl, Jr. The proud father is assistant chief clerk, Superintendent's Office.

On August 8, a baby girl arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Payne. The little one had been named Mary Ellen. This was a happy event for Charles, who is chief clerk to Superintendent Martin, Connellsville.

On August 9, Yardmaster and Mrs. J. E. Dice and family returned to Somerset from Sylvan Lake, Ind., where they spent two weeks visiting relatives and friends. Sylvan Lake is in the vicinity of Mr. Dice's native home, and he has been making annual pilgrimages to his birthplace for a number of years.

On August 10, Gail Fishback, Grafton, arrived at Connellsville to take up the duties of car distributor, vice Harry L. Ash, who was assigned to other duties.

NOTICE! There are many items of interest on the Connellsville Division that do not reach the division correspondent. Therefore, at this time, I ask that you send to me, at Connellsville, all items of interest, including photographs, in order that we may make a better showing for the best division on the System. This includes all employees on the Connellsville Division, and it is hoped that future results will not be disappointing.

The Misses Cecelia and Frances Friel, stenographer and time clerk respectively, division offices, are now spending two weeks vacation in Toronto, Canada, and other points of interest in the east, including Niagara Falls.

The accompanying photos were taken at Springfield, W. Va., on the South Branch of the Potomac, while several of our office girls were camping with the NIGHT OWLS at that point. The girls report a good time.

Foxburg, Pa.

Assistant Correspondent, D. H. KIRKWOOD

Trainmaster J. F. Miller has resumed duty after a vacation spent at Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other eastern points. Conductor C. D. Newman and Engineer J. W. Edinger are in Canada at present. Brakeman Grover C. Rankin is in California. Dispatcher M. W. Ross spent his vacation trying to catch whales in the Allegheny. Conductor W. A. Mattern is back again after his trip.

Agent M. H. Hindman, Bruin, recently became a benedict. Congratulations!

Dispatcher McGorlick, who has been absent some time because of illness, has resumed duty. We are glad to have him with us again.

Agent L. D. Richardson, who has been away on six months furlough, has resumed duty. He is relieving various agents for vacations.

Have you seen the beautiful folder entitled "Back to Nature on the Beautiful Butler Branch." If not secure one from the nearest ticket agent. They are fine.

Miss Bertha O'Hara, agent, Karns City, has purchased a Buick coach.

Pittsburgh Division

Correspondents, EARL FAIRGRIEVE and MARY BREEN

Glenwood Shops

Correspondent, EDRIC C. GREAVES

Thousands of people from Pittsburgh and vicinity visited Glenwood Station and yards on August 7, to witness the passing of the funeral train of the late President Harding.

President Coolidge passed through Glenwood early on August 10, on his way to Marion to attend the funeral of the late President Harding, the special changing engines at Laughlin Junction. On the return trip the train stopped at Glenwood to change engines.

W. A. Whalen, former shop clerk, East Side, Philadelphia, has been appointed chief clerk to district master mechanic, and by his strictly business manner has already gained the confidence of his associates. Success to you "Bill."

Earl A. Abbott, former assistant district chief clerk, who is taking a medical course at Valparaiso University, Indiana, and who has been away from Glenwood for a year, has returned and is employed in the District Master Mechanic's Office. Mr. Abbott will return to college in the early fall. Glad to have you with us again, Earl. We know that a certain young lady in Connellsville is cheerful these days.

Miss Kathryn E. Farrell, Superintendent of Shops' Office, has been recuperating at Roanoke, Va. Glad you are back again, Miss Kitty. We are living in anticipation of listening to your wonderful voice in the near future.

Howard T. Cromwell, assistant master mechanic, Riverside, has been appointed assistant superintendent, Glenwood Back Shops. Mr. Cromwell assumed his new duties on August 10, and has the good wishes of all.

Miss Claire Farrell, Stores Department, reports that Geneva on the Lake, Ohio, is a charming spot for a vacation.

The Glenwood Social Club is preparing for its next dance and entertainment. By the silence of H. F. Schwab, chairman, Entertainment Committee, we are inclined to believe he has some new novelties "up his sleeve."

An Efficiency Bureau has been organized at Glenwood Back Shops, of which former shop clerk at Riverside, E. J. McGuinness, has been appointed as one of the inspectors. Mr. McGuinness assumed his new duties on July 23, and by his tactfulness and courtesy has already made many friends. Here's to your success, "E. J."

Glenwood Roundhouse

Correspondent, JANE P. PASSMORE

In the first part of June, Assistant Chief Clerk C. E. Rider took a few days' vacation. When he returned, he informed the office force that he was going to be married

CONNELLSVILLE GIRLS GO A HIKIN' AND CAMPIN' AND EVERYTHING

Above, left: Misses Esther Weltman and Blanch Stafford. Right: Misses Blanch Stafford and Lenora Grace. Below: Misses Blanch Stafford, Lenora Grace, Thelma Capper and Lorain McGarrity

seon. But we got ahead of him and the news leaked out that he had been married on June 9, to Miss Alvenia A. Miller, at Cumberland, Md. A few days later, he was summoned to the office and presented with a fine dinner set. Now Rider, our promise holds good—don't forget yours—that is, a dinner served off those dishes. Congratulations!

We are all glad to know that Miss Julia Hart, clerk, General Foreman H. J. Meinert's Office, Allegheny, Pa., is able to be back on the job after being absent for three months, because of illness.

Master Mechanic C. E. McGann and family have returned after spending a vacation in Atlantic City.

This is such good news that I want everyone to know it. While coming in on the train recently, I could not help but hear a conversation going on between two gentlemen seated back of me, something like this. "You know this Baltimore and Ohio put on a dandy train—The Capitol Limited, I believe they call it—makes record time right into Washington—don't think there is anything to beat it on the railroad; best train going." Now does that not make Baltimore and Ohio employees feel good? I can tell you it made me feel good. I could not help turning around to smile at the man after such a good boost for our road as that—what do you think about it?

At times the conversation in the Office of Master Mechanic, and especially after so many trips have been taken, runs something like this:

"You know, I had the best drink of cream I ever tasted. They have the best cream in Mars."

"Talk about a good time—and all the nice fellows I met.—Say, I did not get frightened when I discovered I lost my purse." Tie a string on it the next time Mary.

Monongah Division

Correspondent, ANNA MARY UNKS

"Joe" Deegan and John Bradford spent their vacation drinking the wonderful deep blue sea water at Atlantic City.

Everybody is invited to the Superintendent's Office, as well as to the other offices in the station, to see how a clean wall agrees with them. We think they are just fine.

The accompanying snapshop is of C. W. Yates, boiler foreman, Cincinnati Shop. Mr. Yates may be called one of our graduates having served his apprenticeship with us.

Ohio River Sub-Division

Parkersburg, W. Va.

Correspondent, CHARLOTTE MARLOWE

Who do you suppose spent a recent weekend in Parkersburg? None other than Marie Slatterick, correspondent, Wheeling Division. Your correspondent had the honor of meeting this delightful girl, who, endowed with the charm of a Nina Spengler, the brains of a Margaret Talbott Stevens and the beauty of a Magdelene Lauer, is likely to go a long way. We were quite taken with Marie, and, judging from appearances, there were others—one in particular!

We have some interesting news for our Wheeling readers that we are sure they will never hear if we don't tell them. The inimitable Marie got lost on Blennerhassett

ON THE MONONGAH DIVISION

Above: Raymond, son of Dispatcher Claude Wolfe. Center: Boiler Foreman C. W. Yates. Below: How Brakeman H. Withers spends his spare time

Island. No, she was not alone. And the same individual who got lost with her, stayed out so late one night when calling on her, that his papa got worried about his precious chee-ild and started out to find him. It developed he was only star gazing after he had left Marie. Papa found him on a street corner, gazing up at the stars and babbling incoherently to himself something about "Luv."

Does everyone know Norman Harrison, alias "King," "The Battling Kid," "Caetus," also numerous other aliases? We have discovered that he is a real baseball player, "h-m" some pitcher, too. He recently

Sell Shirts

Sell Madison "Better-Made" Shirts, Pajamas, and Nightshirts direct from our factory to wearer. Nationally advertised. Easy to sell. Exclusive patterns. Exceptional values. No experience or capital required. Large steady income assured. Entirely new proposition. WRITE FOR FREE SAMPLES. MADISON SHIRT CO., 603 B'way, N. Y. City pitched a game at Rockland, Ohio. The opponents only got 7 runs in the first inning, but "Sunshine" didn't let them get a hit.

P. K. Partic comes to us from the Toledo Division. Welcome, Mr. Partic!

Safety First! Please don't leave any more draw bars lying around where "Tubby" Frazer can kick them.

G. C. Barnett was recently transferred from the Low Yards to the High Yards.

Who said "Pete" McCabe was afraid of snakes? Didn't he kill that one that "Sherm" Johnson brought from down the river in a sack? Of course, we must admit that he was about 40 feet away from the ferocious reptile, and the weapon of offense was a chunk of coal, but it was a real snake, and a big one at that!

Heard over the 'phone:

Bill: "That you, Tubby?"

Tubby: "Uh-huh."

Bill: "Well, that blamed coal report won't balance."

"Tubby: "That's queer, I know it's right."

Someone said they saw B. F. Butcher playing center field for the Homestead Greys the other day.

"Vic," Springer's mother and his brother Marcus arrived in Parkersburg on August 13, from Nebraska. They will make their home here.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Dale Harmon.

Just the very nicest baby

Any parents ever had

Is the one we're very certain

That has made your home so glad.

So we send Miss Georgia Louise

Our congratulations true

For her very wise selection

Of a happy home with you.

Thomas Ball is the latest devotee at Henry's shrine, having purchased a new sedan. You may be sure he does not ride alone if anyone happens to be going his way. In fact, he goes out of his way to give some of the weary ones a lift. He is truly a good Samaritan, and we believe an extra bright star will be added to his crown.

"Benny" Horner, our wide-awake crew dispatcher, says that if he could keep the old Buick out of the shop "she" might run once in a while.

Ross Wagner says he caught a fish that long up Worthington Creek the other day—Aw, what's the use? There isn't room enough in the MAGAZINE to tell how long it was.

5.45 a. m. Sunday! The Yard force is all lined up for its regular Sunday morning treat. As usual, "Bill" O'Niel has bought out the five and ten cent candy supply.

Can you imagine any one so attractive that she couldn't go into the ocean for a dip without being vamped by a sea lion? It won't be hard to believe if you will look at the photo of our "Little Mary" in this issue. This summer, Mary went to the Pacific Coast to visit her sister, and her mother reports she went bathing at Balboa Beach. No sooner had Mary begun to frolic in the water, than a gay Lothario of a sea lion came up and playfully tossed Little Mary (or Pee-wee, as she is known to her intimate friends) into the air. Pee-wee screamed for help and the handsome life-savers dashed out in their boat and rescued the fair maid. Pee-wee says it was her first time in the Pacific and it is going to be her last. Although she is very peevish just now about her experience, we opine she will be somewhat consoled when she returns and finds that she has been assigned to a position that pays a few more marks per day than the one she left when she started on her adventurous journey.

Carding Clerk George McDiffitt has left us to take a position with the Reynolds Tobacco Co., Winston-Salem, N. C. If he makes as good a salesman as he did a carding clerk, he will be a "humdinger." The entire force wish him success. Until the position has been permanently assigned, it is being capably filled by L. A. Morgan.

When it comes to furnishing heroes of national repute, the local Freight House is in a class by itself. Our latest entry to the hall of fame is none other than our efficient(?) bill clerk, George Beck, or "Buddy," as he is affectionately called by his billing (and cooing) partner. The facts as given by an observer are as follows. While riding with John Maloney in his "tin can" on a recent Sunday evening, as they were passing through Buena Vista on the inter-urban car line, our hero made the startling discovery that a large frame dwelling was on fire. The tin can was immediately brought to a stop; our hero leaped out and running to the house proceeded to hammer on the door, but received no response. The nearest house was half a mile down the road and George, bidding John watch the fire until he returned, started on a run for help. Neither one thought of using the tin can, and it was just as well, as ten miles an hour is the limit of speed for John's "rattle-box," while George can make a mile in 1.50 flat, he having once walked to Cincinnati and return.

After arousing the nearest family, George rushed back to the burning house to assist in the rescue of the household goods. Breaking a window and getting inside the house, George proceeded to hurl the pictures, dishes, glassware and other breakable articles, through the window, but he was careful with the mattresses and rugs, carrying them to the window where John could take them on his back, carry them to a safe distance, and set them down carefully. George remained at his post until driven out by the smoke, and was given a rousing cheer by the onlookers as he emerged from the burning house. John was also congratulated for his heroic work in carrying the mattresses to a safe spot.

By the time the fire department arrived the entire house was consumed, but the family mattresses were saved, which enabled the owners to get a night's sleep, thanks to George and John. Hero George's picture appeared in the August issue. Hero John's photo appears in this number.

Mrs. Joe Cromley would be quite conceited if she could hear her husband bragging about her cooking, and he certainly looks as though it agrees with him. We wonder if she wouldn't let some of us skinny folks board with her!

Miss Mary Ethel Owens has returned from a vacation spent at eastern points, Atlantic City seeing the most of her. She acquired a gorgeous yellow dress while away. If she wore it on the Boardwalk, we are sure she must have knocked 'em cold.

Arch Taylor, Low Yards, is running around, sticking out his chest, bragging about young "Patsy" Taylor, age one week, and do you wonder? Pipe young "Pat" mounted on his T. B. tested Holstein! "Patsy" is the twelfth child to pick out Arch for his papa!

Above, left: John Maloney, fire hero, with bunch of "American Beauties" presented by grateful and admiring crowd. (See notes for details.) Right: Mary Keenan, affectionately known as "Pee Wee." Below, left: Claim Agent W. A. Smith. Right: "Self-explanatory"

PUGH BROS. JEWELRY COMPANY

211 House Building
Pittsburgh, Pa.

5410 2nd Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pa.

14 Hipp Arcade
Youngstown, Ohio

OFFICIAL WATCH INSPECTORS FOR BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO.

HIGH-GRADE RAILROAD WATCHES OUR SPECIALTY

Cash or Payment Plan

Write for our Catalogue on

DIAMONDS :: WATCHES :: JEWELRY

Name.....
Address.....
State.....

CUT OUT AND MAIL

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Notice to vacationists. We sent in a number of items for the last issue regarding vacationists and what they were doing, but evidently every other correspondent did the same thing. The Editor, in a circular letter, advises that so many of these items came to him that most of them had to be left out. Some of you will be sad, some glad, but we hope none will be just plain mad.

Charleston Division

Correspondent, C. W. DIXON

"Slow of heart to believe."

There's nothing particularly wrong about that. Take any new method that might be thrust upon us. A man is but a mere machine if he does not want to take a little time to consider. But, listen! After he does believe, what's the matter with making up that lost time?

The Charleston Division was visited by a severe rain storm on August 12, which caused considerable damage on the line between Burnsville and Richwood.

In the Richwood territory, the waters coming down Big Laurel almost obliterated all trace of the Saxman Coal & Coke Company's Railroad before reaching our line, where it continued to do much damage.

One reason for the few lines from the Charleston Division in this issue, is the fact that the correspondent has just returned from his vacation. Nothing startling happened to him during his trip, except that he was very much sun-kissed while boating on the old Muskingum River, above Zanesville, Ohio.

It is with sincere regret that we announce the illness of our superintendent and fellow worker, Mr. Trapnell, who left us on an enforced vacation on August 16.

The employees of the division sympathize with Mr. Trapnell and join in wishing him a speedy recovery from his illness.

W. E. Kearfott, assistant division engineer, Connellsville, Pa., formerly located at Weston, has been enjoying a short visit with us.

In these columns will be found picture of Edna Fern Dean, three year old daughter of M. D. Dean, secretary to superintendent. Her parents may well feel proud of their possession.

Operator L. A. Teskey, "SU" Office, Weston, coming into the office a few mornings ago, remarked about the atmosphere in the office being too close. He had no sooner made the remark than he "threw up" a window.

Everyone in the Weston offices seems to miss the smiling face of "Trix" McDermott, jolly girl that she was. It was a great game while it lasted, but the young gentleman from Roanoke seems to have taken the "trix."

Miss Juanita Hostetler has objected so strenuously to our making mention of her in the MAGAZINE that we will refrain from doing so—at least in this issue.

Engineer J. W. Taylor, after being absent for sometime because of illness, has resumed duty.

Yard Conductor R. B. Kessler has resumed duty after spending several days with relatives at Cincinnati, Ohio.

Yard Conductor J. P. Reid has returned from Baltimore, Maryland.

Miss Margaret Patton, clerk, Weston Freight House, has returned from her vacation, spent in Virginia.

Trainmaster W. C. Deegan has returned from his vacation.

If times are hard, and you feel blue,
Think of the others, worrying, too;
Just because your trials are many,
Don't think the rest of us haven't any,
Life is made up of smiles and tears,
Joys and sorrows, mixed with fears;
And though to us it seems one-sided,
Trouble is pretty well divided,
If we could look in every heart,
We'll find that each one has its part,
And those who travel Fortune's road,
Sometimes carry the biggest load.

(Author Unknown.)

Gassaway Shop Notes—Same as last month.

Weston Shop Notes—Same as last month. One would think nothing ever happens at those two places. Won't someone please take it upon himself to help the division correspondent out by sending in a few items of interest.

Not a month goes by but that we have an interesting episode in connection with Chief Clerk Schide and his boat. We have a dandy this month but it was too serious to broadcast.

Western Lines

Cincinnati Terminals

Correspondent, J. BEEL

Miss Bertha Goetz, Superintendent's Office, left for a two weeks' vacation on August 1. Her campaign against the eligible men during this period does not seem to have met with the desired result, else why return? We trust Miss Kathryn Weber, who left on August 16, will meet with better success.

Edna Fern, daughter of Secretary to Superintendent Dean, Charleston Division

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Learn Photography at HOME

Make $75.00 a Week on the Side

Establish yourself as a Photographic Expert quickly—during your spare time—under a leading photographer. I'll show you how to start your own business—or command a large salary. Send for my unusual offer—it's only temporary. Act at once. A postal will do. R. Dupont

INTERNATIONAL STUDIOS
Dept. 4656, 3601 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The hair growing era is now at hand. Honors should be extended to W. J. Maloney, general chief yard clerk, who has added a few fine specimens to his sparsely settled crop.

Another odd sight is two newly bobbed heads in the Superintendent's Office. All seem pleased with the change, with the exception of Frank Nock, who loudly proclaims, "The rage of freaks is spreading."

G. B. Farlow, assistant division engineer, is visiting his home. Now won't our Georgie make Little Old New York sit up and take notice.

He's a bright and laughing person,
Jolly all the live-long day,
Everybody whom we know,
Likes his light and friendly way.
And before this gay good humor,
Shadows surely fly to bits;
Who is this you greatly wonder,
Why, the man we all call "Fitz."

Tall and dark our lady fair,
Hers a type most sought, yet rare,
From her praise we can't refrain,
She, you see, is our Lorraine.

The employees of Storrs Roundhouse are glad to hear that our friend William Gerth is improving steadily. He has been missed by his fellow men, and we hope he will be back soon.

We beg to announce that Machinist Apprentice Edward Massmann joined the ranks of the "Benedicts" on September 1, and spent his honeymoon taking a trip to Denver, Colorado. Congratulations!

The sympathy of the employees at Storrs Roundhouse goes out to Chief Clerk Andy G. Haar, who had the misfortune to lose his beloved father on August 1.

Machinist E. Jordan has joined the ranks of the "Benedicts." Best wishes from the employees at Storrs Roundhouse.

The officials at Storrs Roundhouse are proud of the first trick, middle crew, P. Schuetz and his fireman, J. Dineen, who have their engine—1584—trimmed up in good condition. If any other engine crew tries to take this engine, they will have a hard time. "Pete" will fight for engine 1584 at all times, as he says that engine has his name on it.

Akron Division

Correspondent, J. A. JACKSON

The New Castle High School Band, which was entered in the recent contest held in Chicago, was handled over the Baltimore and Ohio, and was entertained royally en route to the Windy City. They were awarded fifth prize, which, considering the large number of entries, was a creditable showing. The boys were loud in their praise of the treatment received on the trip, and each member of the band will be a real Booster for the good old Baltimore and Ohio.

Fred Ellis, clerk, Division Accountant's Office, Akron, and Miss Elizabeth Klee

INTERESTING PLACES AND PEOPLE ON THE AKRON DIVISION

1. Standing, left to right: Messrs. E. F. Creel, D. A. Cassiday, N. R. Butler, J. A. Tschuor, A. J. Allison, K. E. Floeter. Seated: C. M. Powell and C. A. Burdge. 2. Huston and Richard, sons of Assistant Trainmaster and Mrs. C. M. Trussell, Akron. 3. Misses Margaret Weinberg and Margaret Sullivan. 4. Baltimore and Ohio station and crossing with the Big Four at Greenwich, Ohio. 5. "G. N." Tower and crossing with the A. C. and Y. at Greenwich, Ohio. 6. M. DiPero, E. W. Hott, R. C. Gallagher, A. P. Zeitler, R. C. Crump, W. F. Harris, N. R. Butler, Misses Margaret Sullivan and Margaret Weinberg. 7. An interesting view at Greenwich. Operator J. E. Hiester is in charge of the tower seen in this photograph.

were married on June 26 at the home of the bride, New Castle, Pa., Rev. S. E. Irvine, Pastor, First Presbyterian Church, officiating with the ring ceremony. Miss Gladys Bevan was bridesmaid and Howard Dixon served as best man. Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served to twenty-five guests. The happy couple later departed on a wedding journey to New York, Atlantic City and Washington, D. C., and are now at home to their friends in a newly furnished home in Akron, Ohio. Congratulations from their many friends among Baltimore and Ohio employees.

Trainmaster C. P. Angell was called to Pittsburgh on July 1, on account of the death of his mother. His many friends on the Akron Division extend their sincere sympathy to him.

George Gordon, assistant chief clerk to superintendent, has resigned his position and is now located in San Diego, Cal., where he is employed in one of the leading banks in that city.

James R. Foster has been appointed assistant claim agent, Youngstown, Ohio, succeeding W. W. Baldwin. His many friends wish him success in his new location.

Lorain Terminal

Mystery surrounds the Car Office. "Jonesie" has a diamond ring and no one knows where it came from. We can guess, however, and we further surmise that it will be an early fall wedding.

Road Foreman of Engines P. C. Loux is on his vacation. Northern Michigan is the place. When he returns "fish" stories will be in season.

Yardmaster G. L. Irish has returned from Pittsburgh where he attended the Relief Department Convention.

Rule Examiner F. W. Green spent two weeks with us the latter part of July. Most of his time after working hours was spent at the bathing beaches watching the waves and —. Tell them, Fred!

General Roundhouse Foreman K. E. Floeter has the premises around the Roundhouse in "tip top" shape. Other terminals might use this point as a model.

M. A. Gleeson is again with us as assistant master mechanic. Welcome, "Mike."

Night Watchman E. Doran still continues to sort the mail and load it on the passenger train. He has been in the service for over 25 years and is one of our faithful employees.

Conductor J. W. Creel has taken unto himself a wife. Congratulations!

Haselton, Ohio

Correspondent, LEE RICHARDS

It has been rumored that our assistant car foreman was married while on his vacation, but he is doing his best to keep it a secret. Fess up, Bauman, tell us the truth.

Miss Helen Maurie has given up her position as stenographer to Terminal Trainmaster J. C. Kline, to accept a life position in the line of matrimony. We all join in wishing her happiness.

A number of yard brakemen went to Milton Dam on a fishing trip. All reported a good time, but no fish.

Brakeman Cunningham has been off duty because of illness.

Fireman Crane has been away because of illness, but is now back on the job much improved.

Andrew Naufer, formerly employed at the Freight Office, Youngstown, Ohio, has accepted a position with us as second trick crew dispatcher.

Walter Carmichael, who has been night yardmaster, East End, for a number of years, will resume his duties as conductor on the Akron Division.

Mr. Jones, second trick chief clerk, has been appointed night general yardmaster, succeeding B. Leingen, who took third trick at East End. We all wish "Jonesy" success.

Our old friend J. Flynn is again in the service.

R. H. Jones, second trick crew dispatcher, has been placed on first trick.

G. W. Van Camp, crew dispatcher, is on leave of absence because of illness. The smiling face of R. H. Jones now graces the office in his capacity of crew dispatcher.

C. D. Updegraff, general yardmaster, has purchased a new Star Sedan. "Red" says no one can pass him on a hill and that the Star is the best little boat ever made. Who agrees with him?

Margaret Griffin, a former employe of the Baltimore and Ohio, has returned as secretary to J. C. Kline, vice Helen Maurie.

J. C. Kline, formerly general yardmaster, Martinsburg, W. Va., is now terminal trainmaster, Haselton, Ohio, vice R. E. Pyle, who was transferred to Southwestern Division.

Youngstown, Ohio

Correspondent, PEARL C. SCHMUTZ

Miss Alice Craig, piece work operator, was called to Bradford, Pa., account death of her grandfather recently.

Robert Kohl, secretary to division freight agent, Youngstown, Ohio, has been promoted to secretary to assistant general freight agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Miss Margaret Hodge has been promoted to general stenographer, Youngstown Freight Station.

New Castle Junction, Pa.

Correspondent, AGNES BARNES

Joseph E. Phillips, claim clerk, Agent Knox's Office, and Mabelle E. Barber were married on June 21. After a wedding trip to Washington, D. C., and other eastern points, they are at home at 231 N. Crawford Street. Congratulations!

Harry G. Boyd, tallyman, New Castle Freight House, and Ruth M. Barber were married on June 21. Mrs. Boyd is a cousin of Mrs. Phillips. Mr. and Mrs. Boyd are spending the summer at their cottage in Edenburg.

"Sam" Ross, chief clerk to freight agent, has traded his Buick and now has a new Overland touring car.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker Balentine, a nine pound son, at New Castle Hospital, June 21. The young son has been named Richard Wendell. Mr. Balentine was formerly employed in the Division Accountant's Office, and Mrs. Balentine, nee Miss Betty Richards, was secretary to F. H. Knox, freight agent, New Castle.

A nine and three-quarter pound baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Kramer, at Bellevue Hospital, Pittsburgh, on June 24. Mrs. Kramer will be remembered as Miss Justine McCune, switching clerk, New Castle Freight House.

William Childress has been promoted from gang time keeper, Maintenance of Way Department, to extra gang foreman, Lowellville.

Easy to Play Easy to Pay

BUESCHER
TRUE-TONE
SAXOPHONE

Saxophone Book Free

Tells when to use Saxophone single, in sextettes or in regular band; how to play from cello parts in orchestra, and many other things you would like to know.

Easiest of all wind instruments to play and one of the most beautiful. With the aid of the first three lessons, which are sent without charge, the scale can be mastered in an hour; in a few weeks you can be playing popular music. You can take your place in a band within 90 days if you so desire. Unrivalled for home entertainment, church, lodge, or school. In big demand for orchestra dance music.

Free Trial You may order any Buescher instrument without paying in advance, and try it six days in your own home, without obligation. If perfectly satisfied pay for it on easy payments. Mention the instrument interested in and a complete catalog will be mailed free

BUESCHER BAND INSTRUMENT CO.

Makers of Everything in Band and Orchestra Instruments.

8488 Buescher Block

Elkhart, Indiana

Buescher Band Instrument Co.
8488 Buescher Block, Elkhart, Ind.

Gentlemen: I am interested in the instrument checked below:
Saxophone.....Cornet.....Trombone.....Trumpet.....
(Mention any other instrument interested in.)

Name.....
Street Address.....
Town.....State.....

Miss Julia V. Quinn, secretary to trainmaster Dorsey, wishes to extend her thanks to all who cast a ballot in her favor in the Relief Department campaign.

Little Mary Louise Murphy, four year old daughter of Yardmaster Murphy, while playing in the back yard of their home, fell off the porch, breaking her right arm. Mary Louise is improving satisfactorily.

J. I. McIntyre, yard brakeman, passed out cigars and candy on July 31 in honor of a ten pound boy, who arrived on July 30. The young son has been named Raymond. Congratulations!

General Yardmaster H. L. Evans and family toured York state, including Celeron, Allentown, Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Harry reports a wonderful trip.

On June 8, a ten pound girl was born at New Castle Hospital to Yardmaster and Mrs. C. E. Gee. The baby has been named Evelyn Ruth. Mrs. Gee will be remembered as Miss Ruth Colnot, formerly employed in the Division Accountant's Office. Congratulations!

Freight Traffic Department
Cleveland, Ohio

Correspondent, A. R. STROME

On July 17, the Traffic Department employees held a Beach Party at Rocky River Park, eight miles west of Cleveland.

While the majority of the party were enjoying a swim and walking on the beach, Division Freight Agent Gosnell supervised the cooking of the weiners.

Supper was served about 8.30, and it was a hungry bunch that partook of a tasty repast. The party broke up about ten o'clock, everybody hoping to have the opportunity of surrounding some more Campfires before the summer is over.

The Traffic Department of Cleveland held their Second Annual Picnic at Mentor Beach Park, about 35 miles east of Cleveland, on the afternoon and evening of July 28.

AT THE CLEVELAND TRAFFIC DEPARTMENT PICNIC

Left: Nancy, daughter of Division Freight Agent C. M. Gosnell, Akron. Right: Messrs. Strome and Glancy represented Annette Kellerman

The party, about fifty in number, made the trip in automobiles, and on arrival at the park, J. W. Freeland, chairman, Entertainment Committee, took charge and put on an interesting and entertaining program, prizes being awarded to the winners of the various contests.

At six o'clock, dinner was served, the table being tastefully decorated for the occasion.

Too much credit cannot be given Eva H. Oldham, chairman, Commissary Committee as it was only by hard work on her part, assisted by other members of the committee, together with the wives of employees, that the dinner was such a marked success.

The following out of town guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Farmer, Youngstown; Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Gosnell, C. M. Groninger, Miss Bailey and C. H. Groninger, Akron; Miss Margaret Hunter, Pittsburgh.

We regret to learn that J. A. Scheuerman, coal freight agent, has been transferred to Baltimore, but at the same time we extend our best wishes for his continued success.

On behalf of the employees, Assistant General Freight Agent Kimes presented Mr. Scheuerman with a beautiful walrus leather brief case, in token of the appreciation of our long and pleasant association with him.

Newark, Ohio

Correspondent, B. A. OATMAN

Walter E. Laird, chief clerk to Superintendent Kruse, is convalescing after a serious operation. We wish him a speedy recovery.

Effective August 1, H. F. Wyatt assumed the duties of trainmaster, East End, Chicago Division, Garrett to Willard, with headquarters at Garrett. We congratulate "Harry" and feel sure that he will make good, as he did on our division.

Effective August 1, T. J. Rogers assumed the duties of trainmaster, Newark, vice H. F. Wyatt promoted. We welcome Mr. Rogers to the Newark Division staff, and wish him success in his new location.

Was Newark Division well represented at the Western Lines Picnic? Well, if you had been around to see the scramble for reservations on the special which left Newark at five bells, you would have thought that the Newark Division had decided to spend the day at Chester Park.

WE ARE STILL LOOKING FOR MORE CAR MILES.

IN FACT WE ARE EXPECTING IT. YOUR INDIVIDUAL PART IN THIS CAMPAIGN

HAS A DECIDED EFFECT ON THE EFFORT.

ALL DIVISIONS ARE MAKING TO INCREASE.

Accounting Department

Correspondent, R. T. GEORGE

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Oren J. Payne, Jr., a boy, Donald Eugene, on July 25. Mr. Payne is employed as maintenance of way accountant at this station. Congratulations!

We are now prepared to challenge any employe on the System to compete with "the one, and only triple jointed contortionist in the world." You will note in the accompanying photograph a difficult feat performed by the title holder, Otto Hohenzollern Reichert. After much persuasion, Mr. Reichert consented to twist himself into this shape, and have a photograph taken especially for this MAGAZINE.

Not much use for anyone to go on a fishing trip now that the chief clerk is back. You know fifteen pounds, twenty-five pounds and all that kind of stuff. I went on a fishing trip about two years ago, so of course I know it's all true.

Mansfield, Ohio

Correspondent, C. R. STONE

C. F. Parks, supervising agent, recently paid us a visit in connection with inspection and station routine.

Traveling Freight Solicitor E. C. Dodna was with us recently, securing various L. C. L. and C. L. shipments for the Baltimore and Ohio.

George Sellers, ticket agent, reports that passenger business is brisk and that the Sunday excursions to Cedar Point are giving the Baltimore and Ohio a nice revenue, which shows that the people are taking advantage of the reduced rate offered to spend a splendid day at the Point.

General Yardmaster L. L. Kerr is still looking for empty cars and people are still after him to get them. If any one along the line has an empty that is O. K. for loading, kindly send it to Mansfield and we will see that it is properly loaded and routed so that we will benefit by a long haul or handle to destination.

Yard Conductor Amsey Bird is talking of painting his Ford car. The body is to be light green, the wheels dark red, and the top black. The writer is going to get a fly swatter and if he ever passes another Hudson or Cadillac will swat that fly.

Moorland Edwards, trucker, Freight Station, is contemplating driving from Mansfield to Ironton for a visit. We hope he has no bad luck!

During the past month Mansfield had the privilege of seeing President Harding's Funeral Special. There were 35,000 people who viewed the train as it transferred from the Pennsylvania to the Baltimore and Ohio and then to the Erie for the last run to Marion, Ohio. The tracks were patrolled by police officials from all three roads and the American Legion boys directed traffic. We were all waiting silently when a mammoth Pennsylvania pilot engine came slowly across the thoroughfare, draped in black, and with the former President's picture on the pilot, edged with black crepe. About 20 minutes later two Pennsylvania engines, fittingly draped with black crepe, slowly came towards us. As the writer looked over the crowds, there was not a person who spoke or made a noise. As the special slowly moved through the throng, mournfully tolling its bell, the crowd stiffened and unconsciously came to attention, and with hats in hand paid silent tribute to the Nation's Fallen Chief. As the last car passed us, wherein lay the body of the dead President, the casket could be plainly seen, draped with our flag, with soldier and marine standing at attention as guards.

The train slowly moved to the Erie tracks and there the two draped Erie engines started the train on its last lap of a sorrowful journey. As the last car moved out of sight, the spectators seemed to sigh in unison, and then slowly wended their way to their homes. It was what we came to see and it was a sight we will never forget. "Greater love has no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friends."

The work on the new team tracks south of the Freight House is progressing rapidly.

Agent W. O. Stockwell is moving and we don't envy him. One doesn't realize how much you can accumulate until you move it.

C. K. Kauffman, cashier, Mansfield, is planning to go fishing at Detroit in the near future. The writer may attend the opening of the bot—I should have said season, and proceed to feed the fishes as prescribed by law.

Home of Conductor J. D. Kinney, Newark, Ohio, built with the assistance of our Relief Department

H. W. Kale, freight house foreman, will put in a new system. Articles to be loaded in way cars will be radioed to "Dave" Bridges and he, in turn, will try to locate them. "Dave" made a notation about checking an empty barrel over, contents apparently O. K. We have often wondered what would happen to "Dave" if they quit manufacturing Red Horse.

Columbus, Ohio

Correspondent, R. KENNETT
Assistant Correspondent, EDITH ROACH

We regret to announce the death of General Yardmaster H. E. Decker on July 23. Mr. Decker had been in bad health for the past two years, which had caused him to be absent from duty a greater portion of this time. He had been in the service 30 years, spending all his time in the Zanesville and Columbus yards. He was a member of the Newark Division Veterans. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Born to Operator and Mrs. Ray Hines, Black Lick, on July 20, an eight pound son. Congratulations!

We are glad to see Engineer Herbert Brown on the job after two months' absence because of being injured.

Trainmaster Broughton will now sing that little ballad entitled, "Who stole the lock on my garage door?"

Conductor Thomas Cowan has resumed duty after being absent some time because of sickness.

Scientists report finding petrified giants in Grand Canyon with feet 19 inches long. That's not saying much. They should give our Night Yardmaster Smith the once over. He's no giant, either!

We understand the prize fight to be held soon will consist of three 10 round bouts:

First bout—Kid Hukill vs Battling Smith.
Second bout—K. O. Griffin vs Baldy Woods.

Third bout—Racehorse Allen vs Windy Cline.

The exact date and prices for this bargain bill will be announced later.

PATENTS

BOOKLET FREE. HIGHEST REFERENCES.
PROMPTNESS ASSURED. BEST RESULTS.
Send drawing or model for examination
and report as to patentability.

WATSON E. COLEMAN
PATENT LAWYER

624 F Street, N. W.

Washington, D. C.

General Foreman VanBlarcum spent his vacation visiting Michigan points. Conductor Branthaver and family spent a week camping on Big Darby.

Thos. Yeager, Freight House, has been made relief yard clerk while our clerks are taking their vacations.

The Baltimore and Ohio Employees Annual Picnic was held at Mr. Burgett's home in Grove City, August 3. Owing to the rain it was held in the house, but plenty of cats and a good time made everybody happy.

T. J. Payne, "Our Stand-by Tim," has not been able to work for some time owing to a bad attack of rheumatism. We miss him and wish him a speedy recovery.

Miss Marie Brink is on leave of absence for a much needed rest.

The Sewing Club met at Mrs. Fred Head's home, August 16.

Marietta, Ohio

Correspondent, G. R. STEEN

General Superintendent Stevens, Freight Traffic Manager Lewis, Superintendent Kruse and Division Freight Agent Kendall were guests at the picnic of the Washington County Experimental Farm last month.

There is a story about our demurrage clerk, J. P. Kerwin, that runs something like this. Joe had been calling on a certain girl for about ten years. One night Mr. B. said, "Mr. Kerwin what are your intentions?" Mr. Kerwin answered, "Mr. B. I have no intentions." "Get out, burn no more gas for me," and "Joe" went. Some time later he was seen in the office with a traveling bag full of photographs and other girlish trinkets, showing them to some of the fellows and was heard to remark: "Boys she was a good girl at that." Poor "Joe," you have our deepest sympathy.

Rate Clerk Walter Mellor says the girl he will marry must have golden hair, blue eyes, be about five feet, three inches tall, very beautiful, and a real good sport; like

IN THE LIMELIGHT ON THE NEWARK DIVISION

Left to right: A charter member of the sewing club, Robert Bridgely Head; Extra Train Dispatcher J. A. White, Newark; Trackman James McDaniel; Otto Reichert, posing as a contortionist

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

A FINE TRACK AND A FINER WATCHMAN

Right: Crossing Watchman "Billie" Watterson, Mathis Street, Madisonville, Ohio. The Dorothy Perkins pink rambler rose is sixty feet long. Left: Roxabel Hill, showing ballast washed gravel placed there six years ago to fish, hunt and swim, in fact be a real partner. If any one knows of such a person, please let the writer know, as Mellor would never get a chance.

Chicago Division

Correspondent, GERTRUDE G. CROW, Secretary to Division Freight Agent

We regret to announce the death of Conductor Chas. E. Carlin, which occurred on August 10, at his home on South Peters Street.

Mr. Carlin was taken ill in the Spring with leakage of the heart, but after several weeks was able to resume his duties. However, he was again taken ill, and had been confined to his bed since July 30.

Mr. Carlin was born in Carlinville, Ill., a town named after his grandfather, who was governor of Illinois, and entered the service of the Company in 1899 as brakeman. Several years later he was promoted to freight conductor, and at the time of his illness was running on express trains 13 and 14.

He is survived by a widow and four children, who deeply mourn his loss.

The many friends of M. Marea will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed general manager of the Electric Short Line Railway, with headquarters at Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. Marea was formerly general foreman of the Garrett Shops.

The Public Relations Committee of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad entertained a number of Garrett Business Men at a luncheon at the Garrett Country Club on August 9. Division Freight Agent Sullivan gave an interesting talk concerning rates, and Company Counsel Mountz explained to those present that the object of the meeting was to promote better relationship between the public and the railroads. It is the intention to hold these meetings twice a month.

Several changes took place on the Chicago Division recently. J. E. Fisher was appointed trainmaster vice T. J. Rogers, transferred to the Newark Division, and H. F. Wyatt, Newark Division, was transferred to the Chicago Division with headquarters at Garrett. We regret the departure of Mr. Rogers, but as the transfer is a promotion, we wish him the best of luck. Mr. Rogers was presented with a handsome traveling bag, and Mrs. Rogers with a beautiful hand bag, by officials and employees with whom he was closely associated. Chief Dispatcher Carroll made the presentation speech.

L. E. Groves, Claim Department, has been assigned to the Chicago Division as assistant to our division claim agent, J. M. Allen, with headquarters at Garrett.

D. E. Sullivan says those who have observed the immense tonnage that has been moving over the Chicago Division for some months past will not begrudge the Traffic Department just a little vacation, especially since they had none last year. But they are told to "hurry back" and be prepared for a strenuous campaign this fall and winter.

On July 5, the Veterans' Association, Chicago Division, presented Mr. Sullivan with a service button for 40 years' service with the Company.

South Chicago, Ill.

Correspondent, ESTHER J. MOBERG
Storekeeper's Office

Our Country and our Company deeply feel the loss of two good men—President Warren G. Harding and the late E. W. Hoffman. We feel that the loss of Mr. Hoffman is great to the Company, as the loss of President Harding is great to our Country, and we are sincerely sorry.

The employees of the Mechanical and Stores Departments have purchased a new flag, which was first raised, at half mast, in honor of the memory of our deceased President. Much credit is due Pipe Fitter Schultz, who took charge of the flag services.

Ohio Division

Correspondent, A. E. ERICH

All Get Together. Ring the bell at the forty mile per car per day mark.

On the Baltimore and Ohio, a gain of one-half day's time on each car placed for loading or unloading will improve the gross car supply by about 660 cars per day. See that the car is loaded or unloaded and moved promptly. INCREASE CAR MILES!

W. ("Bill") L. Allison, district safety agent, recently participated in a regular "movie hero stunt." A team of horses belonging to a farmer became frightened in an alley near "Bill's" home on East Main Street, Chillicothe, and tore through the crowded streets. The owner gave chase and when he came to the Allison residence, "Bill" had him get on the running board of his automobile and then drove after the run-aways. Getting alongside of them, he guided his automobile closer and closer to the side of the frightened horses, until finally the owner jumped from the running board to the wagon. Then, as the lines were down, he crawled along the tongue of the wagon until he could grab the reins and brought the horses to a stop. No damage or injuries resulted from the mad flight. The only thing lacking was the camera man cranking in front of all this action. Seriously, by "Bill's" quick thought and action, possibly considerable damage and injury was averted, and the owner of the team was loud in his thanks.

Left to right: Conductor C. E. Carlin, Trainmaster J. E. Fisher, Garrett, Ind.

Charles Lechner and Carl Boll, have been added to the "new faces in old places," among the Freight House force.

Miss Katherine Moore, one of the young ladies of the Local Freight Office, and daughter of Agent Moore, has said "Yes" and signed a life contract with John Gallaher, foreman of the Chillicothe Lumber Company. We all join in wishing them happiness.

Another young lady of the Freight Office, Miss Bertha I. Graves, slipped to Covington, Ky., where she and G. Harry McDonald were married. Congratulations!

N. R. Guthrie and O. L. Sarg have been appointed assistants on Corps, Maintenance of Way Department. We wish them success in their new positions.

F. L. Cline, electrician, is receiving congratulations on the arrival of a baby girl.

Willard Hoffman, machinist, has taken unto himself a wife. Miss Mable Sweetland is the lucky girl.

R. Hunter, machinist apprentice, is the proud papa of a baby daughter, who has been named Mary Catherine.

SAVE FUEL. Saving one pound of coal means the moving of one ton of freight six miles. Each scoop of coal (15 lbs.) costs the revenue of one full passenger fare for one mile. SAVE FUEL! STOP-THAT-LEAK!

SAFETY FIRST versus SAVING FUEL

R. "Bob" Wilson, instructor of fuel economy, while on vacation via automobile route, was waiting at a crossing for a train to pass. Several other tourists were waiting and one remarked to him that it certainly was a good idea to "CROSS CROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY" these days. He said formerly you could easily see an approaching train, even if you were unable to hear it, because the black smoke made it evident that train was approaching, and you could tell just how far it was from the crossing; however, now that black smoke has been practically eliminated, the "Say-it-with-brakes, and save-the-flowers" slogan was the safest way. This bit of conversation goes to show that not only is SAFETY FIRST being observed but also the SAVING OF FUEL is evident.

Yes, "Bob" Conner, Division Accountant's Office, is married. He at first denied it but finally admitted the truth. The fortunate (or unfortunate) lady was Miss Lucille Moore. Congratulations!

Glad to note the recovery of Mrs. Helen Simpson, wife of Operator J. B. Simpson, Leesburg, Ohio, after a serious operation, at Bethesda Hospital, Cincinnati.

Mrs. Ed. Barrett, operator, Leesburg, and sister, Miss Margaret Townsend, operator, Harpers, are visiting home folks in

FORDS run 34 Miles

(an Gallon of Gasoline)

Low Gear Seldom Used

With Air-Friction Carburetor

Guaranteed to reduce gasoline bills on any car from one-half to one-third and increase power of motors from 30 to 50%. Makes old cars better than new.

Sent on 30 Day's Trial

Fits any car. Attach yourself. Starts easy in cold weather. No shifting of gears in slow moving traffic. Send make of car and take advantage of special 30 day trial offer. Agents Wanted.

AIR-FRICTION CARBURETOR CO.

149 Raymond Bldg. Dayton, Ohio

North Carolina. Operator "Ed" Barrett looks lonesome and says he doesn't like batching any more. Cheer up "Ed," she'll be home soon.

Sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. F. B. Littlejohn, operator at "Q" Tower, and hope for her speedy recovery.

The new abutment being put in at "DA" Tower is rapidly nearing completion, under the supervision of the Vang Construction Company.

The Safety Secretary Says:

If you are enjoying good health and want to remain well, don't be careless and probably have an accident. Practice Safety First. Watch what you are doing while you are doing it. That's Safety.

Let your motto be Safety in your daily work.

Safety means looking out for others as well as yourself.

ON THE OHIO DIVISION

Above: left to right: L. A. Pausch, Supervisor and his home at Leesburg, Ohio. Supervisor L. A. Pausch. Track east of Lynchburg. Below: Foreman Fred Weaver and Trackman M. L. Dininger. Track Foreman Fred Weaver, Section 43. Track Foreman J. E. Weaver, Greenfield, Ohio

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Open Day and Night - Short Orders - Quick Service

UTOPIA DINING ROOM

MRS. EVERETT WHITACRE, Prop.

MEALS SERVED FAMILY STYLE
Strictly "Home" Cooking

We Cater to Baltimore and Ohio Employees

In Connection With
"EVERETT'S SHOPPE"

1917 E. Third St.
Dayton, Ohio

THAT DEPENDABLE GROCERY

THE

WAGNER GROCERY

STAPLE & FANCY GROCERIES

Third and Springfield Streets
DAYTON, OHIO

We Surely Appreciate Your Liberal Patronage and Thank You for Same

EAST DAYTON SHOE STORE

1911 EAST THIRD STREET

(HOME OF EDUCATORS)

I just want to tell you how I surely appreciate the business the Baltimore and Ohio R. R.
families have given me

BEFORE BREAKFAST SERVICE

LIPPINCOTTS

Pasteurized Products

THE CREAM OF THE MARKET

We are more particular than our customers

SERVICE MADE US SUCCESSFUL

We thank the Baltimore and Ohio Employees

M. CUMMINGS

The Grocery of Quality

OUR MOTTO—A SQUARE DEAL TO ALL

We appreciate the patronage of the Baltimore
and Ohio R. R. Employees

1911 E. THIRD STREET

Car Miles

Remember that if all divisions should make during the same week the best Average Miles per Car per Day record that each has made in the best record week of it's history, the average for the system would jump to 41.7, excluding bad order cars.

The mark we have set is 40 miles.

It Can Be Done

Toledo Division

Correspondent, C. E. THRASHER

Division Freight Agent's Office

Correspondent, GERTIE MCBRIDE

Miss Maude Veidt, for three years secretary to division freight agent has resigned her position. We are sorry to have Miss Veidt leave but trust that after she has regained her health we will have her in the Baltimore and Ohio family again. Miss McBride has been transferred to the position vacated by Miss Veidt.

Clara Leingang had a dog,
Its hair was long and shaggy,
And everywhere that Clara went
That dog went—wiggly waggy.

It followed her to work one day
And jumped into the car
And trusted luck to steal a ride
But got—not very far.

The operator spied the dog,
Poor Clara looked abashed
He grabbed that doggie by the neck
His fare he hadn't cashed.

He put him gently off the car
And bid him ne'er return
Now Clara leaves him safe at home
And works—his bones to earn.

Thomas Heiland, division passenger agent, can work just as efficiently in khaki overalls as in his broadcloth. If you don't believe it, just take an early morning ride on Salem Avenue.

East Dayton, Ohio

Correspondent, EDWARD M. MANNIX

On August 6, we posted a bulletin from Superintendent A. A. Iams, entitled "Traffic Tips." This surely has a strong appeal and, needless to say, East Dayton will cooperate to secure all business possible for the Railroad. No business is too large, and none too small for us to handle. "Give us the tip and we'll put it across."

We should, with a feeling of gratitude, acknowledge the wonderful work our Press is doing in the "Careful Crossing Campaign," in the editorials, appearing almost daily.

I desire to call attention of our employees locally to the advertisements placed in our MAGAZINE by several of our merchants. We appreciate them, and ask our readers, in return, to patronize them and mention the MAGAZINE when doing so.

The late C. E. Hendricks, St. Louis Division

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Immediately upon being informed of the death of our beloved President, Warren G. Harding, General Foreman W. A. Gilmore ordered our shop flag at half mast. During the lowering of the flag, our employees stood with bare and bowed heads paying their tribute in silence.

Charles Partlow, conductor, Wellston Division, has just purchased a beautiful home on Linden Ave., and is going to give the boys a house warming. Nice work, Charles, we'll all be there with bells on.

Little "Bob" Mannix, so well known around East Dayton shops, is now a full fledged booster, having entered the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio under Agent L. F. Hockett.

Travers H. Smith, boilermaker, East Dayton, is the proud father of an eight-pound boy, who arrived on August 8. Congratulations!

Some of soft-headed speed demons must think that the sign "Stop, Look and Listen" was intended for engineers, the way they ignore it. "Better stop that jay-riding and place a little value on your life."

We frequently receive a visit from our Company physician, Dr. Frank Thompson, and the impression he leaves is lasting. He is a strong exponent of "Safety First" and his advice and aid are valuable to our employees.

The air brake instruction car arrived at East Dayton on August 10 under the supervision of William Shriver, air brake instructor. His lectures and instructions were scheduled each day at 2.00 p. m. and 7.15 p. m., and were attended by capacity audiences.

REMEMBER THIS

The Chance Taker is the Accident Maker.

BETTER

Stop, Look and Live.

St. Louis Division

Correspondent, ALTO SMITH, Trainmaster's Office, Flora, Ill.

W. J. Bassett, inspector of accounts, has sold his home in Flora to Chief Clerk to Captain Police Carl Edwards, and will move to Washington, Ind., his present headquarters.

Breezes from East St. Louis

Erwin Buckmueller and Harry Rehage promoted to the Traffic Office, St. Louis. This promotion is due to opening a new Traffic Office in Tulsa, Okla., and boosting the boys a few notches out of the St. Louis headquarters.

G. W. Hunt, general yardmaster, is back on the job after spending his vacation in Florida, New York and Niagara Falls.

What's up now? Lots of talk about a new yard going to be built near East St. Louis.

The clamshell is filling tanks with coal at East St. Louis, making the operation look modern once more.

The old adage "It never rains but it pours" was proved in East St. Louis on the night of August 8. The water got up over the rails in the Lower Yard, lightning striking the C. & A. switchman's shanty, which is only a few paces removed from the Baltimore and Ohio switchmen's shanty. Terminal Tunnel was filled with water delaying traffic because of having to route it via Eads Bridge.

Orville Hutcheaft, first trick caller and a mighty good one, is now prepared to "live happily ever after." Orville is just back after a thirty day's honeymoon. Congratulations! And while we are passing them out, we hand them to Fireman A. E. Hogan, who is the proud father of a new fifteen pound boy.

Yardmaster M. E. Logue traded in the old "stand-by" and now has a new Chevrolet Sedan.

Cross Crossings Cautiously! Where the real responsibility for the crossing accidents lies, is now being shown by such incidents as the awarding of $5000 damages to the C. & E. I. R. R. for damage to their engine, against the estate of Harper Daniels, killed in a crossing accident at Danville, Ill. The too venturesome driver who fails to heed the approach of trains when crossing railroad tracks not only endangers himself but passengers on trains. The weight, momentum and strong metal construction of automobiles, combined with its speed, wrecks trains.

Conductors W. H. Platz and J. Rittenhouse and Mrs. Rittenhouse have returned from a trip on the Great Lakes and through Canada.

R. E. Pyle is acting as assistant trainmaster on the St. Louis Division in place of W. P. Cahill.

G. M. Bradford, clerk to general foreman, Flora, Ill., made a motor trip through Wisconsin and Minnesota accompanied by his wife and the latter's parents.

We cannot vouch for the authenticity of the following story but they tell it on "Cy" Rink, one of the industrious members of the crew of Cochran, Ind., switcher, better known as Caruso II, because of his vocal ability. "Cy" claims to have sung before a large crowd of people at one time; they were so elated over his singing that several of his admirers hoisted him onto their shoulders and carried him through the streets of the city. Some of those present say that he was only carried as far as the Ohio River, where he was promptly and cheerfully thrown into that muddy stream. They state that if you do doubt the authenticity of this story, all you have to do is hear "Cy" sing "Beale Street Mamma!" Then you'll wonder why a weight wasn't tied around his neck!

One of our employes, who believes in courtesy to our patrons, is Assistant Yardmaster F. G. Hoskins, Flora, Ill. Recently a lady from London, Ky., accompanied by her husband and daughter, died on train No. 3 as the train was nearing Flora. Mr. Hoskins took charge of the situation, the lady was removed at Flora and Yardmaster Hoskins arranged for undertaker, and was of great assistance to the bereaved family in getting in touch with relatives, securing additional funds and starting them back to London. The father and daughter were deeply grateful for the services he rendered.

Another instance of service rendered patrons was the finding of pocketbook containing $45.00 by Brakeman V. C. Reid on train No. 49 recently. The pocketbook was the property of James Gordon, Mill Shoals, Ill., and was placed in charge of ticket clerk at Flora, and Mr. Reid notified Mr. Gordon on his return trip that the pocketbook had been found.

While working way car on train No. 72, August 14, Brakeman C. U. Leonard found some old-time slips, dated June, 1908, covering trip on trains 21 and 22, St. Louis to Vincennes, Conductor H. A. Smith, Engineer C. Hall, Baggageman W. Hunt, Brakeman F. H. Wright. Another time slip for trip on train No. 38, Conductor Crump, Brakeman F. H. Wright and H. H. Chess, Engineer F. Nimmicht. Only two of these men are now in service, Conductor Crump and F. H. Wright who lost an arm in 1909, and is now chief caller at Flora.

The death of Conductor Charles E. Hendricks removed from the seniority list one of the oldest passenger conductors. "Shorty" took service with the Baltimore and Ohio South Western Railroad on April 28, 1898, and was promoted to freight conductor October 8, 1902. Conductor Hendricks died on August 1, rounding out twenty-five years of service. We have lost a good and faithful employe and a much loved man. Interment was made at Ashland, Ill.

The accidental death of Brakeman Arthur M. Tracy at Odin, Ill., August 8, was a shock to his host of railroad friends. Brakeman Tracy was a loyal employe and ready to perform any duty. He took service as brakeman in 1917 and, to help out in emergency, transferred to Cone yards during wartimes. He later resigned but again took service in 1920. Funeral services were held at Antioch Churchyard, east of Claremont, Ill. Services were conducted by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Our veteran conductor, Charles Ireland, made his appearance on July 31, with two bright gold stars on his sleeve, symbolic of fifty years' service with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Mr. Ireland is one of our most popular conductors on the Springfield Sub-Division and it is everybody's hope that he will be with us fifty more years!

Walter A. McKelvy—Vigorous, Keen, Alert—Rounds Out Half Century of Service

ON August 5, 1873, Walter A. McKelvy entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as an apprentice at Mt. Clare. Fifty years later to the day he

Walter A. McKelvy

$215 In One Day

Bentley of Philadelphia made that, hundreds making fortunes, too, with Oliver Oil-Gas Burner. Gives 3 times the heat. No coal or wood. Fits any stove. Burns 95 per cent. air, 5 per cent. kerosene. 1 minute to demonstrate. Sells itself. No wonder agents clean up—many in spare time. OLIVER OIL-GAS BURNER & MACHINE COMPANY, 2099 Q Pine Street, St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS! Write for exclusive territory and Special Offer at once.

was putting in long hours of overtime with hundreds of other emergency men on the washed out section of the Old Main line at Gaithers, holding up his end of the work at the rapid pace set during that record-making reconstruction. Several days later he came on request to the MAGAZINE Office to tell about his half century's stewardship. Broad shouldered, straight as an arrow, eye keen, voice clear and strong, weather-tanned and alert, he is a remarkable example of how friendly unremitting toil can be to a man even over a period of a half century. It is risky to tempt fate with prophecy but barring the unforeseen we predict that Walter McKelvy is in a fair way to break some long standing service records of the Baltimore and Ohio, before he is retired.

Mr. McKelvy's apprenticeship at Mt. Clare was served under Wm. G. Primrose, foreman of the Bridge Shop. He then went as machinist under the supervision of Benjamin Uncles in the Water Department of Maintenance of Way. His territory covered all east of Cumberland, looking after the machinery of the water supply system. Now, though engaged in the same work, the intensive growth of the Road has reduced his territory until it comprises only from Baltimore west to Weverton, including the Washington and Metropolitan Branches. His work has always been a pleasure to him and especially has he enjoyed keeping up with the many improvements that have been made in his department.

Mr. McKelvy was born in Baltimore on April 28, 1859. He and Molly V. Lepson, daughter of a Baltimore Police Department captain, were married in 1886. Mrs. McKelvy died in 1920, but the six children of the happy union, three boys and three girls, are all living. Walter A., Jr. is doing work similar to his father, on the East End of the Baltimore Division. Edith G. is the wife of Stanley B. Miller of our Engineering and Accounting Department.

Mr. McKelvy joined the Relief Department when it was started and has only drawn two months relief during all the years. His service comprises a number of five year periods during which he never missed a day at work.

Today you will find him in the cozy and well ordered little maintenance shop at the historic station at Relay, still adding day after day of happy toil to the long and faithful years already to his credit.

Following the Good Will Girls through France

(Continued from page 29)

the doggerel, "My-mother-told-me-to-take-this-one," pushed the button for the second floor, and found ourselves confronted by another individual.

"Where do we find the chef-da-gare?"

"Je ne sais pas, Mesdames, a gauche, peut-etre." (I do not know, ladies, to the left, perhaps.)

So once more we went a gauche and down a long hallway to a room at the end. Here sat several railroad men, their feet upon the table and pipes in their mouths.

Where would we find the gentleman who would show the Good Will Delegate from the Baltimore and Ohio about the station?

Ah, he regretted that he did not know. Had we brought our letters?

We had not.

Then he would take us to a gentleman who would surely know. We entered another office, where a stately, white-haired gentleman received us courteously, heard our request, picked up a telephone, then said presently that the chef de gare (station-master) would see us in his office. He would take us to the chef de gare.

But we did not know that before seeing the chef de gare it was necessary to see the sous chef de gare, his worthy assistant, in order to explain our mission before being allowed to see the great man who had charge of the station.

The sous chef de gare was extremely polite. And he spoke a little English, which, of course, was helpful. After telling him our story he went personally to the chef de gare. Then the chef de gare sent for us and received us personally in his little office. It was quite formal. And then he directed his assistant to conduct us through the station and to show us every courtesy. This was done to the letter.

The clocks of the station are set by electricity from the Eifel Tower. There are tables in the station on which one may slide his baggage beside him when purchasing a ticket. There are also any number of writing tables throughout the station, with materials provided for correspondence. Sometimes there are magazines and time tables there for the convenience of passengers. As on the streets of Paris, there are toilets everywhere. On the walls of the station concourse there are innumerable pictures of scenes along the railroad, alphabetically arranged. Behind each picture is an electric light to enhance its coloring.

Near a doorway there was a huge refrigerator. What for? For milk. Milk? Oh, yes; there are many babies that travel on the trains of these railroads and babies must have milk. It is distributed free to them en route.

On the walls also there were posted notices to the effect that there were special rates for families traveling and for wounded people.

There was quiet in the yards. We were told that all of the heavy trains and the freight trains for the day had departed during the night or earlier in the morning. There would be no trains for several hours. This seemed rather peculiar when we considered the size of the yards. There are nine large buildings for cleaning equipment. One of these which we entered looked not unlike one of our own roundhouses, with its mallet engines. There are no large shops at Paris; the nearest one is at Ville Neuf St. George. This one employs 2100 workers. There is another shop at Lyons.

Switching is done frequently by big horses. We were told that often women push the cars from one track to another, but we did not see any of these. Across the large tracks were extra little one for switching. There are special tracks for important personages who visit the city of Paris, as well as special waiting rooms. There are three-wheeled trucks with electrical engines that hasten the distribution of baggage. I had a nice ride about the baggage room on one of these trucks. We glided in and out between trunks and bags and had a glorious time.

In the telegraph office were a number of girls who worked away at the instruments. In showing me her machine one of them clicked out a message on a strip of paper, transcribed it on her machine, then showed it to me. It read:

VIVE L'AMERIQUE LES AMERICAINS SONT LES AMIS DE FRANCE —which, translated, means: LONG LIVE AMERICA. THE AMERICANS ARE THE FRIENDS OF FRANCE.

In the dispatcher's office we found that heklographed or mimeographed instructions to employes were written in long hand.

There were no evidences of safety rules here or anywhere else on the French railroads that we could see. There were signals, of course, which were rather interesting. We went up into a signal tower in which there were 200 levers. The floor here was the cleanest one that I saw anywhere in France, and not only was it clean, but it was also polished as if ready for a dance. There are four kinds of signals: the carre, the disque rouge, the disque bleu, and the semaphore. The carre is a square signal in which are placed alternately four red and white squares with a place therein for a lamp; the semaphore is somewhat after the manner of ours, save that is a perfect oblong in shape, and the disque rouge and disque bleu are red and blue discs, respectively, that are used to stop and start trains. There is no signal given to indicate starting time by any employe. Nor does the conductor stand with his watch in his hand. All that happens when it is time to go is that the blue disc shows blue, a little bell rings as a signal to the engineer, and the train pulls out. These discs are placed at the end of the track nearest the station.

On the platforms between the tracks are stoves here and there, for the purpose, as our guide, M. Morin, told us, of having a place for employes to gather around "when they are hard at work in winter." Thus the train shed is heated.

Pacific type engines are always ready for the heavy trains and the names of the engineers are always on the cabs. There are three assistant stationmasters who wear white caps. One of these told us that since the advent of the motor truck there has been a considerable falling off of freight.

A little illuminated indicator at the head of the track announces the time of arrival and departure of the train.

French Dining Cars

I have spoken of the French dining car before. The first experience that we had with one was on our initial trip to Paris from Havre—the day when we walked through eleven coaches to get to the diner and stepped over pigs and guinea pigs, half-dressed babies and baskets of bread and vegetables in the narrow aisles of the third-class coaches. Arriving at the door of the kitchen we were surprised to find piles of bread, tomatoes and potatoes on the floors. These chefs certainly are not the most cleanly of cooks. There are lots of copper cooking utensils around—but they are always hanging up for decoration. The actual cooking is done in almost anything.

Bread is found on the floors of dining car kitchens, of houses and hospitals alike, and still there is always the sign that reads, "NE GASPILLEZ PAS LE PAIN," meaning "don't waste the bread." I remember also one day when I took the trip to the perfume factories at Grasse that we came to a bread stall on the top of a hill. (Bread as you know, is sold at open stands, where the flies get as much of it as you do. You make your purchase and take the bread in your hand or over your arm, if it happens to be of the doughnut shape, and go on your way rejoicing without a sign of a paper or other wrapper around it. If your shoe-string comes untied, you just drop your bread in the street and tie your shoe; then you pick up your bread and go home, and throw it in the corner until you are ready to eat it.) The little French girls, thinking to please me, bought me two loaves of dark bread, of the shape of doughnuts. The flies having had their share of it, I hardly knew how to go about eating it, and yet I didn't dare refuse for fear of hurting the feelings of some of my little friends.

I watched my chance, called their attention to something on the opposite side of the road, stealthily broke off a part of the crust of one loaf and threw away the broken crust. Then I dived in and got a big handful of the inside and began to eat it heartily. A sudden idea came to me. "We shall have what Americans call a 'love feast'!" I told them. "I'll take a bite, then each one of you must take a bite of my loaf; we must eat it together." Thus was my bread eaten,

9 UP - EVERY HIGH-GRADE RAILROAD WATCH MUST BE ADJUSTED IN THIS POSITION IF IT IS EXPECTED TO KEEP ACCURATE TIME

Don't buy an inferior watch—ask for a

21 or 23 JEWEL - 6 POSITION
Bunn Special

Dial up

Dial down

12 up

3 up

9 up

6 up

If a Bunn Special is given the care and consideration that any good watch deserves, it will be an accurate time-keeper for a lifetime and longer

Ask any jeweler or write for circular

ILLINOIS WATCH COMPANY
SPRINGFIELD

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Girl Waitresses

Coming back to dining cars—we always found there girl waitresses, with a dining car conductor in charge. The latter always served the cheeses and the ice cream at the end of the meal. He it was who also opened the bottles of wine for his guests. Water was always provided on the diners, ice water sometimes, but the great mystery to the French people is how the Americans can drink so much water, for as they will tell you, water, in France, is made to wash in.

The shrieking whistles of the trains always made us laugh; they sound like the little tin horns that the children get at Christmas time.

Then there was the freight house, with its yellow glass roof that seemed to bring sunlight into the room. A rather good camouflage it was, too. I could have declared that the sun was shining, and yet, outside of the train shed the rain was pouring down. Here were carloads of vegetables being unloaded, although most of them had been unloaded during the night and sent to market. There were celery and artichokes and asparagus, loads and loads of them. The markets of France, with these huge piles of vegetables, more than we ever see in our markets at one time, are most interesting. Rabbits and chickens were crowded into little boxes; I saw one box that measured about 18 by 30 by 6 inches containing about 30 rabbits. Rabbits are eaten extensively throughout the country.

Leaving the freight house we came to the great sheds on the sides of the regular train shed where there were hundreds of emigrants awaiting their trains. These that we saw were Italians, probably on their way to Havre to take a boat to America.

We took a little tour through a train that soon would be ready to leave for Switzerland. First came the cars of the P. L. & M. Railroad; then came the Swiss cars, then the Italian cars—all of first class for tourist travel (only fools and rich Americans travel in first class, they will tell you); then come the wagons lits or sleeping cars, and the restaurant or dining cars. The sleepers and diners belong to another company as do our own Pullmans. This is the regular make-up of a train from Italy to Switzerland.

On the outside of some of the cars you may see the little indication that reads thus: A3 C2 B5-f. This, our guide explained to me, means that this is a first class compartment car, and that it contains a handbrake and a telescope. The inside of some of these compartment cars is interesting. There are several varieties. In the lit salon there are three beds in each compartment, each of which folds up into a chair in the daytime, with extension seats to form the bed at night. There are small washrooms and toilets for each compartment, pictures on the walls, little closets in which to hang your coats, and tiny dressing tables with drawers. Guide books are always supplied for every compartment.

On every seat is a ticket, sometimes in a little frame, giving the name and address of the person who is to occupy that seat. Seldom does one ever see a conductor on a train. Tickets are invariably taken up at the gate. Compartments may be closed and locked and the shades pulled down, even during the daytime, but there is always the lever to be pulled in case of alarm. I wondered just what would happen if the lever were pulled. There are also communicating rooms.

On leaving the Gare de Lyon, Miss Martin and I decided that we would have lunch in the station restaurant before going down to the Gare de 'L'Est, another railroad station, which is the property of the State.

A grand staircase leads from the concourse to the restaurant. Handsome paintings decorate the walls, and within the salle a manger, or dining room, the ceilings also were elaborately decorated. Lovely washrooms were to be found here, the nicest that I saw anywhere in France.

For lunch we had a variety of hors d'oeuvre; (oh, but the French are strong on that hors d'oeuvre!). Shrimp, potato salad, bologne, sardines and several other things were included in this. Then came delicious salad of turbot, a fish of which they are very fond (the dressing was made with carrots and peas); stewed rabbit with mushrooms, and hearts of cream with luscious strawberries, and coffee. The price of the meal was 85 cents each, including the tip.

Down at the Gare de l'Est we got permission to go through the gates to see the double-decker trains that are used in commuter service. The stairways are on the outside and people cling to the cars and stairways like ever and ever so many bees, slowing going into their hives. These are always crowded to the outside, but despite the fact that there are no conductors for these cars, the boarding of them is unusually quiet. There was hardly a word spoken by anybody who climbed on. Upstairs the ceiling is very low; it has to be because of clearance; a person cannot stand upright in the upper car; he must bend his head until he gets to a seat. On making our way back we found that another gateman had taken the place of the one who had but recently let us through. This one was not disposed to let us through; however, I passed him a Baltimore car check, which I happened to have in my pocket and we had no further trouble. I wonder if he ever found out what it was.

(To be continued)

Death of Division Passenger Agent W. W. Picking

DIVISION Passenger Agent W. W. Picking died at his home in Somerset, Pa., on August 11 at the age of 65. He was educated in the Public School at Somerset, later entering the United States Naval Academy. He afterwards learned the printing trade in the Somerset Herald Office, and was later employed in the New York Herald Printing Office. He was also employed as a custom house clerk in New York and as superintendent of warehouse of a wholesale glass importing house in the same city.

Mr. Picking commenced his railroad career as travelling passenger agent at Pittsburgh in 1887. In 1891 he was appointed city passenger agent, Chicago; in 1900, general agent and in 1902 district passenger agent, Chicago.

In 1916 Mr. Picking came to Cumberland as travelling passenger agent and early in 1918 was appointed district passenger agent. On December 1, 1918 he was appointed division passenger agent and held this position at the time of his death.

Mr. Picking served as 2nd Sergeant, 1st Sergeant and 2nd Lieutenant, Company G, 10th Regiment, Pennsylvania National Guard.

Funeral services were held in Somerset on August 13. The esteem in which Mr. Picking was held was shown by the large number of beautiful floral remembrances, one of which was a blanket of roses sent by the Passenger Department.

Engine 5233, Chicago Division, draped in mourning to handle the late President Harding's funeral train. In the foreground, left to right: General Foreman Reese, Road Foreman Frazier Round House Foreman Harwood

The late W. W. Picking

Hundreds Honor Memory of Late E. W. Hoffman at Funeral Ceremony

THE funeral of the late General Superintendent E. W. Hoffman was held on August 10, at Indianapolis, Ind., from the home of his parents, both of whom are still living, at 1828 East Ohio Avenue.

The services at the home were in charge of the Scottish Rite Masons, Raper Commandery Knight Templars acting as escorts. The services at the cemetery were conducted by Ancient Landmarks Lodge, No. 319, A. F. and A. M.

Interment was at Crown Hill Cemetery. The floral offerings were many and beautiful, three vehicles being required to carry them from the home to the cemetery, and indicated the high esteem in which Mr. Hoffman was held by his friends and fellow workers. Included in the floral pieces was one from the executive officers of the Baltimore and Ohio at Baltimore.

The active pallbearers were: H. B. Reynolds, trainmaster, Pennsylvania R. R., (who gave Mr. Hoffman his first position); H. F. Reynolds, train master, C. I. & W. R. R.; T. W. Calvin, supervisor station service, Baltimore and Ohio R. R.; M. Mathews, yardmaster, Pennsylvania R. R.; Dr. J. M. Applewhite, and M. V. Hynes, general superintendent, C. I. & W. R. R.

The honorary pallbearers were: F. B. Mitchell, R. W. Brown, M. S. Kopp, F. S. DeVeney, H. White, C. W. Havens, W. G. Farling, M. H. Broughton and W. J. Head.

The following officers of the Baltimore and Ohio were present at the funeral:

E. B. Russell, assistant to genl. mgr.; G. D. Brooke, sup't. of transportation; E. T. Ambach, ass't. sup't. telegraph; F. B. Mitchell, general superintendent; J. H. Meyers, superintendent; R. B. Fitzpatrick, trainmaster; J. M. Shay, master mechanic; P. A. Callahan, ass't. engineer; T. W. Calvin supvr. station service; H. E. Duncan, chief clerk to S. M. P.; F. J. Brinkman, secretary to gen'l. sup't.; R. R. Jackson, district storekeeper; G. W. Squiggins, general passenger agent; all of Cincinnati. J. A. Spielman, ass't. to gen'l. sup't., Pittsburgh, Pa.; R. W. Brown, superintendent, Cumberland, Md.; M. S. Kopp, superintendent, Grafton, W. Va. W. G. Brown, general passenger agent; P. C. Benedict, division passenger agent; R. R. Huggins, terminal train master; H. H. Hall, ass't. secy. & treas.; F. B. Huntington, general auditor; F. S. DeVeney, superintendent; G. P. Palmer engineer maintenance; H. White, chief clerk to V. P., all of Chicago, Ill. R. Mallen, train master, Chillicothe, Ohio; F. R. Gelhausen, master mechanic, Chillicothe, Ohio; A. A. Iams, superintendent; O. E. West, dist. supvr. terminals; F. J. Parrish, ass't. engineer, from Dayton, Ohio; C. W. Havens, train master, Lima, Ohio; W. G. Farling, gen'l. yardmaster, Toledo, Ohio; S. U. Hooper, superintendent, Garrett, Ind.; E. J. McSweeney, master mechanic, Garrett, Ind.; H. G. Kruse, superintendent, Newark, Ohio; M. H. Broughton, train master, Columbus, Ohio; A. R. Carver, division engineer, Newark, Ohio; E. N. Kendall, div. freight agent, Newark, Ohio; C. R. Duncan, chief clerk to G. S.; W. J. Head, safety agent; G. R. Littell, freight agent, Cleveland, Ohio; M. A. Gleeson, master mechanic; W. K. Gonnerman, general foreman; A. H. Gensley, terminal train master, Lorain, Ohio; J. L. Shriver, road foreman engines, Akron, Ohio; W. A. Radspinner, spl. engineer, G. M. Office, Cincinnati, Ohio.

In addition, a large number of officers and employes of the Pennsylvania and C. I. & W. Railroads were present to pay their last respects to their former fellow employe. Few men on a railroad had as large a number of personal friends as the late Mr. Hoffman.

"There is an Indefinable Something about Baltimore and Ohio Service"

Virginian Apartments,
Suffolk, Virginia,

August 6, 1923.

Mr. J. P. Dugan,
Passenger Agent,
Baltimore and Ohio R. R.,
Baltimore, Md.

My Dear Mr. Dugan:

Your check for adjustment on the overcharge for baggage from Defiance, Ohio, to Wilmington, Delaware, on June 14, reached me at Luray on the evening of my departure for Suffolk. The rush of moving and the arrival of a baby girl soon after my arrival here, have prevented me from acknowledging receipt of the check ($1.89), and of expressing my appreciation of your courtesy. I hereby do so in a belated, though none the less sincere way. I appreciate your courtesy and your interest in the matter, and thank you, Sir.

May I add, that, although I am not a

"There's One Man We're Going to Keep"

"Ed Wilson, there, is one of the most ambitious men in the plant. I notice that he never fools away his spare time. He studies his International Correspondence Schools course every chance he gets.

"It's been the making of him, too. He hasn't been here nearly so long as Tom Downey, who was laid off yesterday, but he knows ten times as much about this business.

"I'm going to give him Tom's job at a raise in salary. He's the kind of man we want around here."

HOW do you stand in your shop or office? Are you an Ed Wilson or a Tom Downey? Are you going up? Or down?

No matter where you live, the International Correspondence Schools will come to you. No matter what your handicaps or how small your means, we have a plan to meet your circumstances. No matter how limited your previous education, the simply-written, wonderfully-illustrated I. C. S. textbooks make it easy to learn.

This is all we ask: Without cost, without obligating yourself in any way, put it up to us to prove how we can help you. Just mark and mail this coupon

TEAR OUT HERE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS BOX 8525-B SCRANTON, PA.

Explain, without obligating me, how I can qualify for the position, or in the subject, before which I mark X.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> PHARMACY                  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Locomotive Fireman       | <input type="checkbox"/> TRAFFICMANAGER            |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Engineer       | <input type="checkbox"/> BOOKKEEPER                |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Fireman        | <input type="checkbox"/> Cost Accountant           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Inspector      | <input type="checkbox"/> BUSINESS MANAGEMENT       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Repairman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary         |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Round House Foreman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Business Correspondent    |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Trainmen and Carmen      | <input type="checkbox"/> Stenographer and Typist   |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Conductor        | <input type="checkbox"/> Good English              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> MECHANICAL ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> SALESMANSHIP              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Draftsman     | <input type="checkbox"/> ADVERTISING               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice    | <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Toolmaker                | <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL SERVICE             |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Boiler Maker or Designer | <input type="checkbox"/> ELECTRICAL ENGINEER       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating     | <input type="checkbox"/> Electrician               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL ENGINEER           | <input type="checkbox"/> Electric Wiring           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping    | <input type="checkbox"/> Elec. Lighting & Railways |
| <input type="checkbox"/> R. R. Constructing       | <input type="checkbox"/> Telegraph Engineer        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bridge Engineer          | <input type="checkbox"/> Telephone Work            |
| <input type="checkbox"/> ARCHITECT                | <input type="checkbox"/> Mining Engineer           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman  | <input type="checkbox"/> Stationary Engineer       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading       | <input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engines          |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder   | <input type="checkbox"/> AUTOMOBILES               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer      | <input type="checkbox"/> AGRICULTURE               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder         | <input type="checkbox"/> Poultry Raising           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CHEMIST                  | <input type="checkbox"/> RADIO                     |

Name _____
Present _____ Employed _____ 6-26-22
Occupation _____
Street _____
and No. _____
City _____ State _____

Canadians may send this coupon to International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Ltd., Montreal, Canada

globe-trotter, I do have occasion to travel from time to time, and I have found that there is an indefinable something about the Baltimore and Ohio service that I do not find on other roads, and I always mark the courteous treatment and the efficient service which seems to be the aim of the Company and the employes. I say this by way of commendation, without any ulterior motive. I have already had occasion to thank Mr. Lowes in the same way.

Respectfully yours,

(Signed) H. S. HARDCASTLE

"Our Passengers Are Our Guests"

Philadelphia Public Ledger Calls Our Chestnut Street Station Cheerful and Homelike

IT was pleasing to find in the Philadelphia Public Ledger of April 30, 1923, an article which singled out our Chestnut Street Station as one of the pleasing landmarks of the city. Under the caption, "just little sketches 'round our town," it said, in part:

A Sunburst Window

On July 4, 1888, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Station at Twenty-fourth Street and Chestnut Streets was opened for business—a large, comfortable depot at the service of the traveling public.

And thousands were duly impressed with the new terminal and marveled at its fine appointments.

The building, prominently marked by a tall clock tower and the unusual architecture harmonious with the Chestnut Street Bridge which spans the Schuylkill close by, has managed to stay nearly the same, and although the tracks are depressed at that point, the station has retained a certain quaint cheerfulness and unstation-like geniality, much like the unexpected jovial outlook of a gouty old man (if there ever was such a combination!).

* * * * *

But that good humor is plainly the creditable state of the Baltimore and Ohio from the minute one enters the spacious ground-floor waiting room with its huge hand-chiseled fireplace and straw benches until the last-moment dash for the train, is quite evident—and there is certainly chance for fascinating exploration.

There certainly is much to be explored—the intricate iron balustrades, the old lanterns at the foot of the steps and the famous "sunburst" windows on the landing. Those windows are fashioned of leaded glass, beautifully designed to catch the rays of the sun as it sets in the west and reflect their radiant luminosity.

It is a wonderful sight at the close of day when each small pane of glass is suffused with the iridescent glow of warm reds and yellows. Then the stairway is just one golden maze of glory.

The walls of the baggageroom downstairs are of inlaid glass and almost every section is composed of original panes, plated when the station was built. Of course, the customary equipment is there—chewing-gum slots, scales, bootblack, telephone booths, health notices and porters.

Although no mention is made of the officers and employes who handle our passengers at this point, we have heard enough of their kindness and courtesy to know that they fit appropriately into the setting of hospitality suggested by the writer.

With such an inviting rendezvous offered when one is either going to or leaving Philadelphia there must be great possibilities of increasing our passenger business at this point.

What the Magazine Saw This Month

What Have You Seen?

Chief Clerk W. H. Schide, Weston, W. Va., driving his new Essex coach.

The new "Mountain" observation cars on The Capitol Limited. A semi-compartment effect is created by the new type of headboard. It adds to the privacy of the passengers. The width of a seat back is 41 inches, while the fixed headboard is 32¼ inches in width. "The remainder of the headboard, used at night when berths are made down, is drawn from the fixed portion and locks automatically," says the Pullman News. This does away with all danger of falling boards injuring passengers, and reduces the weight carried by the upper berth during the day. The "Mountain" cars are all 10-section sleeping and observation type, upholstered in blue and with the steel grained to a perfect imitation of Italian walnut, the faces of the uppers apparently being quarter-sawn and greatly enhancing the rich effect. Ready to leave Mount Royal on The Capitol Limited, the new cars present an attractive picture.

Division Accountant W. E. Severns, Weston, W. Va., and his wife, at Coney Island, N. Y!

A waiter in the dining car "Mount Vernon" under the direction of Steward Templeman, filling a baby's bottle with hot fresh milk while the mother waits, showing that even the little babies are well taken care of by our efficient Dining Car Department representatives.

W. W. Wood, after completing what, to the ordinary person, would be a full meal, completing his dinner with a piece of real apple pie "baked on the car."

Station Master Schley, Camden, chasing "bats" (live ones) in his home at 2.00 a. m.

Miss Mabel Gessner chaperoning a number of passengers at Mount Royal at 8.00 p. m., seeing that their every want was supplied in the Baltimore and Ohio way.

Foreigners from various parts of the globe, who had arrived in New York by steamer, using Baltimore and Ohio No. 9 to the west. One of them carried a suit case with tag on it reading "via Canadian Pacific Railway steamer." Some could not speak English, but all—under the efficient care of our Passenger Department, reached their destinations safely.

The Rose Window reflecting a golden blaze of glory from the setting sun

A special car on No. 525 from New York for Baltimore, carrying sportsmen to the Baltimore Aquatic Meet.

Assistant Division Engineer Lynch, Weston, W. Va., arriving at Camden on No. 4 on Sunday. The reason is in Baltimore!

Dan Moriarity, Newark, Ohio, with a paper of pins in his hip pocket. What for?

J. Swikert, Relief Department, doing a jazz dance with an old lady at the outing of the Accounting Association.

Geo. W. Sturmer, grand president of Veterans, whistling for a horse to "gee up" at the Cincinnati picnic.

Edward A. Mannix, East Dayton, eating ice cream cones—or was it "hot dogs?"

Nina Spengler, Good Will Delegate, leaving the office to be married in October; girls advising her that she'd better make it sooner, for "there's many a slip 'twixt—etc."

Vice President Fries getting bumped by a flag-pole.

H. R. Lewis holding a grand reception in his office, Cincinnati, on the morning of Galloway-Fries Day.

C. M. Groninger and "The Bunch" from Cleveland waiting for dinner.

All the superintendents' wives gathered together in a group.

"Mister Ed" Drawbaugh watching the picnic crowd pass through Cumberland.

Mr. Jones, Coal and Coke Receipts Office, daring a lady to flirt with the engineer of a passing train.

C. A. Thompson wondering where in Baltimore he can find anything besides a drink of water.

Harry B. Kight camping on the trail for passenger business.

Mrs. Otto Wallburg, Lima, Ohio, looking for Mrs. Wallburg's husband.

W. E. Duffey "dieting" on three ears of corn, a plate of soup, and two helpings of everything else on the dining car menu.

Operator E. E. Hurdle Over Forty Years in Service

RECENTLY we had the pleasure of a visit from E. E. Hurdle, operator, Waverly Tower, at Mount Royal station. He was accompanied by A. L. Knight, engineer, Chesapeake and Ohio Railway. Their photographs are shown on this page.

Mr. Hurdle entered the Baltimore and Ohio service at Baltimore, in September 1877. In 1881 he was promoted to the position of operator and since that time has been in continuous service. His entire service has been on the Baltimore Division. He has been at Waverly Tower since January, 1920.

Mr. Knight runs between Richmond, Va. and Gladstone, 120 miles, on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway. Before leaving he expressed himself as well pleased with what he had seen of the Baltimore and Ohio and its employees.

Sweet Words—These

THE FARMERS SUGAR COMPANY
Defiance, Ohio

D. E. Sullivan
District Freight Agent
Baltimore and Ohio R. R.,
Garrett, Indiana

Dear Mr. Sullivan:

I came down from Chicago yesterday on your train leaving there at noon.

I sat all the time in the observation car watching the track and I want to express to you my appreciation of the work done on the road bed.

I am not an expert but it does not take an expert to see how well the road bed is kept up and how easily and pleasantly the train glides along.

Some one is deserving of a lot of credit, I do not know who it is, possibly a lot of men deserve credit and likely it reaches from the president down, but whoever it is, I desire, as one of the traveling public, to express my appreciation of a work that certainly has been well done and shows in the results attained.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) C. H. ALLEN
President

WELCOME VISITORS AT MOUNT ROYAL

E. E. Hurdle, Operator, Waverly Tower, and Engineer A. L. Knight, C. and O. Railway, Richmond, Va.
Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Car Owners Wanted!

—to use and introduce the greatest improvement in Inner Tubes since autos were invented. Air Gauge in valve stem of every Tube shows pressure at a glance.

AIR-GAGE Inner Tubes

—sell on sight to almost every car owner. Save trouble, time and expense. Add one-third to tire life. Paul salesmen make big profits selling direct to car owners. Secure own tires and tubes at factory prices. We can use 2000 more men at once. Experience and capital not necessary. Big Free Book Explains All. WRITE TODAY. PAUL RUBBER CO. Dept. 7, Salisbury, N. C.

He Couldn't Forget His Trip on the Baltimore and Ohio

By B. A. OATMAN, Newark, Ohio

A TRIP long remembered was that taken by one of our friends living near Zanesville, Ohio. Twenty-five years ago he traveled over our line from Nashport, Ohio to Pleasant Valley, Ohio. Apparently he was so much impressed with the beauty of the scenery that he forgot to pay his fare. On February 18, 1923, this gentleman called on our agent at Zanesville, C. W. Jones, and paid for his trip of 25 years ago.

A trip over the Baltimore and Ohio is never forgotten.

Mistress—I saw the milkman kiss you this morning, Jane. I'll take the milk in myself after this.

Jane—It won't do you no good, mum. He promised not to kiss nobody but me.

—The Mill Whistle

A man never knows what real happiness is until he falls in love and then it is too late.

—Clarksburg Exponent

System, Planning, Cooperation, Hard Work—These Qualities Made M. of W. Prize Winners

WE conclude below the letters written by supervisors and foremen on sections which won prizes in the Maintenance of Way Department for 1922. There were so many of these sent to the MAGAZINE that we have had space for only a few in each issue. There has, however, been such a surprising freshness and variety in the letters that we are sure all maintenance men on the Road have enjoyed them.

We All Worked Together. Team Work Did It

The reason we received the prize was because I had three good men, and we all worked together to accomplish everything we could to better the condition of our section. I took the lead and my men followed. I always look over a piece of work before we start to figure out the easiest and best way to do it, and then have it done right. I do not want all the credit for winning this prize; I want my three men to have their full share. They were William Maurey, Frank Sperry and T. R. Willey.

D. C. POPE,
Foreman, Middletown, Va.

Do a Good Day's Work

When I started out with my gang in the morning, it was my aim to do a good day's work. When we put in a piece of track, we tried to do it so that it would "stay put." That gave us time to work on other places, and we did not have to worry about the place we had just finished.

T. E. ARNOLD,
Foreman, Hyattsville, Md.

Close Supervision Helps

We did it by close supervision and did well everything we started. We avoided trucking and unnecessary handling of material. We gave personal supervision to unloading ballast, to avoid trucking. Good, competent foremen did wonders.

R. E. EADER,
Supervisor, Baltimore Division

Make Every Hour's Work Count

I planned carefully to make every hour's work produce useful and permanent results and am gratified to receive the prize. This shows that we have been able to make a decided improvement during 1922.

C. ANDERSON,
Foreman, Washington Jct.

If We Do Our Work Right, We Get Results

The work I did, I did right and I think if we all practice this plan, we will have a better railroad in future.

A. DIFURIE,
Foreman, Havre de Grace, Md.

Our Motto Was Safety First

I paid strict attention to the movement of passing trains, while I was at work, to see whether or not they were running smoothly. I found that free use of the level board made a great improvement in my section. We did our best to work hard on our section and uphold our motto of Safety First.

JOHN WINTER,
Foreman, Washington, Pa

Always Try to Do Better

As I have been fortunate enough to get first prize on track work for the season of 1922 on this sub-division, will try to tell you how it was secured.

By hard and careful work at all times, always trying to do each piece of work a little better and quicker than the last one. It will pay us to try to do our work a little better each day. I believe we have fair and just officials on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and that they will appreciate our effort.

D. ELDRIDGE,
Foreman, Chicora, Pa.

Watch the Little Things

I feel that the offering of these prizes is an incentive to everyone to try to be first, the honor alone being worth the effort, and I have no doubt every track foreman puts forth his best efforts trying to win one of the prizes.

One of the secrets to success for track foremen (with the fluctuation of forces), is to always watch the little things, take care to correct them in their infancy and not to wait until they become monsters, thereby making the majority of our work minor activities. The one who does not put off until tomorrow the things he can do today always produces good results.

Foremen should feel that the sections of which they have charge, are theirs, that they absolutely own them, and they will not be satisfied with anything but the best. When a foreman needs anything, he will ask for it and if it does not come within a reasonable time, he will ask again and again until he gets what he wants. He should also get his men to feel that they own a part of the section on which they work, and that they will not allow their neighbor to have better conditions than they; when this exists there is no doubt of results. The track and right of way will be kept free from filth and dirt, the scrap picked up and placed in bins and heavy growth of weeds kept down, ditches will be kept open and water permitted to pass off unobstructed. With Harmony for Strength and Co-operation for Support, we can accomplish much.

L. A. PAUSCH,
Supervisor, Leesburg, Ohio.

Whatever is Worth Doing is Worth Doing Well

I was taught at home from infancy that whatever was worth doing, should be done well.

My railroad experience has practically all been under my present supervisor, and it has always been his instructions to work to standard and never be afraid of doing the work too well. In past years I have made it a point to be ready for all general instructions as they come, and comply with them as quickly as possible. I watch the little things and correct them as they come up, and consult my supervisor for advice; he is always ready to give advice and to assist. When in doubt as to what is best to do, ask for advice. This will be cheerfully given.

J. E. WEAVER,
Foreman, Greenfield, Ohio.

Plans Work at Meetings

Good fortune comes to every one at some time or other but the breaks of the game must go in your favor or you will not win.

I try to plan my work with the division engineer and, in turn, with the foremen who handle the work. All season's work is laid out for each foreman at meetings which I hold each month. At these meetings, a comparison of the work done by each man the previous month, is made. I watch in

MAINTENANCE OF WAY PRIZE WINNERS

1. Foreman John Winter. 2. Foreman D. Eldredge. 3. Supervisor D. C. McGregor. 4. Foreman H. B. Miller. 5. Foreman A. Difurie. 6. Foreman T. E. Arnold detail, the delivery of the right material at the right time and spend considerable time with each gang so as to improve their methods of work.

In order to be sure all tracks are safe, I make a personal inspection, checking all main tracks, frogs and switches and going over heavy curves with a gauge and level. I try to have each gang spend a portion of their time on running repairs, but during the summer season I have them spend not less than 75 per cent. of their time on renewal work.

To all the foremen I give credit for doing the best they can. The foremen on this sub-division are strictly Baltimore and Ohio men, having started on this road as laborers.

D. C. MCGREGOR,
Supervisor, Pittsburgh Division.

Joseph Jenkins' Musical Family Troupe

THOSE who are accustomed to go in and out of the Baltimore and Ohio Central Building, at Baltimore, Md., will recognize in the accompanying picture the honest face of Joseph Jenkins, porter. The picture also shows Joseph's wife and nine children.

The stringed orchestra is Jenkins' pride, and well it might be, for its members are all within his own family circle. They give performances for many occasions, including church entertainments.

Jenkins first came in contact with the Baltimore and Ohio when he worked for the contractor who built the Baltimore and Ohio Building. Later he decided that he would like to work inside the splendid structure which he helped to build, so, in 1911, he came into the service of the Railroad as porter. Here he has served faithfully ever since. For nine years he has worked every single day, including Sundays, except for his vacation days.

The Jenkins children, in order of their ages, are: Ruth, Ethel, Ephraim, David, Ezekiel, Paul, Naomi, Martha, Joseph, Jr., and James. Their mother's name is Mary.

The Talented Jenkins Family

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

"Unusual Courtesy" is the Usual Thing on the Baltimore and Ohio

MARYLAND CASUALTY COMPANY
Home Office, Baltimore

April 24, 1923

Mr. E. V. Baugh
Manager, Dining Car and Commissary Department

Baltimore and Ohio Railroad
Camden Station, Baltimore, Maryland

Dear Sir:

Enclosed please find check for $1.70. In explanation wish to say that on Sunday morning, April 22, I boarded Train No. 8 at Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, for Plainsfield via Boundbrook and had with me my two and one half year old granddaughter. About noon when I was ready to go to the dining car I found to my consternation that I had left my pocketbook at home. This of course did not mean anything so far as my lunch was concerned but my instructions were to feed the baby at all hazards at noon. Your dining car steward, Mr. A. R. Sampelle, just then passed my seat in the parlor car and after explaining the situation, he very courteously invited me to the dining car, told me to forget about the money and order what I pleased.

I would like to comment upon the very courteous manner in which your Mr. Sampelle handled the situation and I am certainly under many obligations to him.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) J. W. RAUSCH.

NOTE: Mr. Rausch's kind letter was accompanied by a check to cover the cost of his meal.

Machine to Test "Flat Spot" of Car Wheels at Purdue

FLAT spots of car wheels break many rails in a track, some even showing 600 breaks due to one flat place on a wheel. To help eliminate this big loss, a "flat spot" machine has been designed and installed at Purdue University to determine the limit of flat spot allowable so that rails will not be broken.

Only $2.00 Brings This Famous Special Bunn Railroad Watch

The Master Railroad Watch of America. Adjusted to 6 positions—Time-Tested, Rated and Cased at the Great Illinois Factory.

This Master Railroad Watch is guaranteed to pass the most rigid inspection on every railroad. Adjusted to 6 positions, extreme heat, cold and isochronism—21 jewel lever set movement, Montgomery or Arabic Dial, in a durable and handsome 20-year gold filled screw back and bezel case.

NO RED TAPE—NO RISK

$2.00 brings this famous 21 jewel Bunn Special to you prepaid—without delay. Wear it 10 days. Then, if you are not convinced it is the Greatest Railroad Watch in the Country, accurate, durable and dependable, send it back and your $2.00 will be refunded immediately. Otherwise, pay only $5.55 a month for 10 months until the spot cash price of $57.50 is paid. SEND TODAY

Only if you are convinced after 10 days' trial that it is the Master Railroad Watch, do you pay for it at the rate of only a few pennies a day. Your watch is here waiting for you. Order today—NOW.

Million Dollar Bargain Book FREE Send for it today. Thousands of bargains at your disposal. Save 1-3 by writing to Dept. 4016

J. M. LYON & CO., INC. IN BUSINESS NEARLY 100 YEARS

2-4 Maiden Lane, New York

The plant is not entirely out of the experimental stage as yet, but may be described briefly as follows:

One axle of one truck under an ordinary flat car, capable of being loaded from light weight to full capacity, is run onto two supporting wheels, one being an ordinary supporting wheel about 30 inches in diameter, carried on two bearings. The other supporting wheel is arranged differently, the wheel being a horizontal circular track 10 feet in diameter revolving on a central vertical shaft, and so placed that the car wheel with the flat spot rests upon it.

Immediately below this point where the car wheel rests upon the circular track is a roller wheel carried in ball bearings and resting upon the end of a vertical piston rod to which is attached a piston or plunger fitting into a cylinder containing oil below the piston. The car axle is bolted to an electric motor by means of a belt and split wood pulley. By this means the car wheel containing the flat spot may be run at any desired speed. As the car wheel turns (and with it the circular track) the blow delivered by the flat spot is transmitted to the circular track, thence to the roller wheel and piston. The downward pressure of the piston on the oil is then transmitted to a recording device when the force of the blow may be measured, as the recording device is calibrated in such a way that the record is readily convertible into feet or pounds. Knowing the force of the blow delivered, and the known force applied when rails are broken it is not a difficult matter to establish the maximum length of flat spot allowable.

Six Pensioners with 327 Years of Service

By HARRY B. KIGHT, Magazine Correspondent, Keyser, W. Va.

THE west end of the Cumberland Division has long been noted for the beautiful scenery and for the efficient performance of its employes. Men here have spent most of their lives on this division in the employ of the Best and Only; they have given to the Company the best years of their lives; now time has caused a number of them to lay aside their duties; they have been honored by the Company and have been pensioned. Keyser boasts and is proud of the records of its pensioned residents and points to them with pride.

In the accompanying photograph are six of them, known to every man, woman and child on the West End of the Cumberland Division. It is in no spirit of jealousy that the Cumberland Division boasts of leading and that other divisions must follow. The combined ages of these Veterans total 452 years, their actual combined length of service, 327 years.

The one thing to which we would direct the reader's attention is the youthful appearance of these Veterans, who in spirit are even more youthful than they look. Note how erect they stand! Time has truly dealt gently with them.

Left to right are John Christman, conductor, who is still in the service, has served 54 years, and is 74 years of age; John Compton, pensioned conductor, served 52 years, age 75 years; Marshall M. Sayre (the bucking walrus), pensioned conductor, served 60 years and is aged 78 years; Col. W. J. Lavelle, train rules examiner, still in the service (and going strong) has served 51 years, aged 68 years; Jacob Criser, pensioned conductor, served 54 years, aged 75 years; John Carr, pensioned conductor (follower now of Isaak Walton), served 56 years, aged 80 years. Sayre and Carr served in the Federal Army during the Civil War. Criser served in the Confederate Army.

While this picture contains but six of our honored veterans, we still have some more with long service records and who have grown ripe in years, and we are truly

Baltimore and Ohio Had 60 of 500 Miles of Railway in U. S. in 1832

A COMPILATION of railroad mileage in the United States made ninety-one years ago showed that there was then in operation less than 500 miles of railroad in this country. This compilation has been uncovered in a recent find of a complete file of the Railroad Advocate at Atlanta, Ga.

This magazine, one of the earliest railroad publications in the world, was published, according to its announcement, by an association of gentlemen to promote interest in the railroads, and to enlighten the public on the feasibility of railroad operation. Many of the columns were taken up with demonstrating the superiority of the railroads over other means of transportation, and in general boosting the railroad business.

The extent of railroad building at the time of the January 19, 1832 issue, is shown by the following compilation:

"This is a list of railroads now constructing, several of which are in part finished, and in successful operation:

"Baltimore and Ohio—whole length 250 miles—60 miles completed and in use.

"Albany & Schenectady—16 miles in length—12 miles in use.

"Charleston & Hamburg—135 miles in length—about 20 miles completed, upon which United States mail is carried.

sorry that the likenesses of Sam Kight, pensioned conductor, and Mike Dugan, pensioned boilermaker, are not here.

Should any other division or any other Railroad in the United States produce the same number of men with the same combined age and length of service, we will then call in a few more old timers and prove to the world that the Baltimore and Ohio means Best and Only and has a record in everything that cannot be excelled.

"Mauch Chunk, completed and in use 9 miles.

"Quincy, near Boston, now in use, 9 miles.

"Ithaca & Owego, 29 miles.

"Richmond & Chesterfield, 12 miles.

"Camden & Amboy, 50 miles.

"Lackawaxen, 16 miles.

Besides this was a list of about twenty other railroads that had been started or were "about to be commenced."

—New York Times

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!—"Is this a fast train?" the salesman asked the conductor.

"Of course it is," was the reply.

"I thought it was. Would you mind my getting out to see what it is fast to?"

—Evansville Crescent

Two can live on bread and cheese and kisses if they don't run out of bread and cheese.

—Clarksburg Exponent

She Evidently Knew Him

(A messenger boy with a telegram for Mr. Smith rings at two in the morning): "Does Mr. Smith live here?"

Feminine Voice (Wearily): "Yes! bring him in."

—Clarksburg Exponent

A SEXTETTE TO BE PROUD OF

Left to right: John Christman, John Compton, Marshall Sayre, Col. W. J. Lavelle, Jacob Criser, John Carr

Stifel's Indigo Cloth

Standard for over 75 years

The white won't weaken

REGISTERED U. S. PATENT OFFICE
CANADA AND OTHER COUNTRIES.

MADE IN

U. S. A.

"Boy! you're right! Work clothes made of Stifel's Indigo cloth have more wear in them than any you ever sold me before. Hereafter I'm looking for the Stifel Boot-shaped Trade Mark whenever I buy work clothes."

Railroad men in cab, caboose, yard and shop wear work clothes made of Stifel's Indigo Cloth because they are stronger, wear everlastingly and keep their looks. All leading Overalls, Shirts, One-piece Garments and Women's Dresses are made out of it. Look for the boot-shaped trade mark on the work clothes you buy. Then you'll be satisfied.

GARMENTS SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE
WE ARE MAKERS OF THE CLOTH ONLY

J. L. STIFEL & SONS, Indigo Dyers and Printers
WHEELING, W. VA.

FREE

This superb 110-piece Set, with initial in 2 places on every piece; decorated in blue and gold with gold covered handles, consists of:

- 12 Dinner Plates, 9 inches
- 12 Cereal Plates, 7 in.
- 12 Soup Plates, 7 1/2 inches
- 12 Cups
- 12 Saucers
- 12 Cereal Dishes, 6 inches
- 12 Fruit Dishes, 5 1/2 inches
- 12 Individual Bread and Butter Plates, 6 1/2 in.
- 1 Platter, 13 1/4 inches
- 1 Platter, 11 1/2 inches

- 1 Celery Dish, 8 1/2 inches
- 1 Sauce Boat Tray, 7 1/2 inches
- 1 Butter Plate, 6 inches
- 1 Vegetable Dish, 10 1/4 inches, with lid (2 pieces)
- 1 Deep Bowl, 8 1/2 inches
- 1 Oval Baker, 9 inches
- 1 Small Deep Bowl, 5 inches
- 1 Gravy Boat, 7 1/2 inches
- 1 Creamer
- 1 Sugar Bowl with cover (2 pieces)

Brings 110-Pc. Martha Washington Blue and Gold Decorated Dinner Set

Send only $1.00 and Hartman will ship the complete set. Use it for 30 days on Free Trial. Then if not satisfied, send it back and Hartman will return your $1.00 and pay transportation charges both ways. If you keep it, TAKE NEARLY A YEAR TO PAY—a little every month.

Your Initial in Gold, Surrounded by Wreath of Gold, in 2 Places on Every Piece (Gold Covered Handles)

Beautiful Colonial Martha Washington shape. All handles are of solid design and are covered with gold. Every piece decorated with a rich gold band edge, a mazarine blue follow band and Old English design with gold wreaths. Beautiful white lustrous body. Guaranteed first quality; no "seconds."

FREE

Beautiful Centerpiece, Six Dainty Doilies to Match and 6 Silver Plate Knives and Forks

We want to prove to 50,000 more customers that Hartman gives the best merchandise, biggest values and most liberal terms ever known. And to get these 50,000 new customers at once we send FREE a 36-inch "Indian Head" linen centerpiece; 6 dainty doilies, 12 inches in diameter, to match; 6 extra silver plated knives and 6 extra silver plated forks, fleur-de-lis pattern. Only 50,000 will be given FREE with the Dinner Sets—so act quick. Send the coupon—now!

Order No. 320EEMA18. Bargain Price, $34.85 Pay $1.00 Now. Balance $4.00 Monthly.

The Centerpiece, 6 Dainty Doilies to Match and 6 Silver Plate Knives and 6 Forks are FREE

HARTMAN Furniture & Carpet Co.

Dept. 5651 Copyright, 1923, by Hartman's, Chicago Chicago, Ill.

FREE BARGAIN CATALOG FREE GIFTS

316 pages of the most astounding bargains in furniture, rugs, carpets, sewing machines, silverware—everything for the home; also farm machinery, etc.—all sold on our easy monthly payment terms and 30 days free trial. Also explains Hartman's gift plan by which you receive many splendid articles such as glassware, dishes, silverware, tablecloths, napkins, etc. absolutely FREE with your purchases. Send a postal for this big free bargain catalog today.

"Let Hartman Feather YOUR Nest"

Hartman Furniture & Carpet Co. Dept. 5651 Chicago, Illinois

Enclosed find $1. Send me the 110-Piece Dinner Set No. 320EEMA18, Price $34.85, as described, and with it the centerpiece and 6 doilies; also 6 silver plate knives and 6 forks absolutely FREE. It is understood that if I am satisfied, I will send you $4.00 monthly until full price of Dinner Set, $34.85, is paid. Title remains with you until paid in full. If not satisfied, after 30 days' free trial, I will ship all goods back and you will refund my $1 and pay transportation charges both ways.

Name..... Occupation.....

R. F. D., Box No. or Street and No.....

Post Office..... State.....

If your shipping point is different from your post office, fill in line below.

Send shipment to.....

Print Initial You Want Here

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine

LIGHT BLASTING AT BRYDON, W. VA.,
For Additional Track. Part of $45,000,000 Improvement
Program, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, 1923

October 1923

WHEREVER YOU ARE

Trail Blazers

ALL over the Great West is written the record of the pioneers who blazed the first trails that guided civilization in its westward march.

As settlers followed, Montgomery Ward and George R. Thorne blazed a new trail to them, being first to fill their wants direct by mail and in the complete spirit of the Golden Rule.

Trail Blazers—Business Pioneers we were, and are. Fifty-one years have but given us experience. We stand today more alert, forward looking, searching out new methods in manufacture and trade to secure for you better goods and bigger values and greater savings.

Trail Blazers of over fifty years ago, Montgomery Ward & Co. still cling to this spirit of leadership—we are the Oldest Mail Order House and Today the Most Progressive.

WHATEVER YOU NEED

LEWIS and CLARK
Blazing the Oregon Trail
1804-1805

Fall & Winter 1923-24 Catalogue No. 99
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

All Over America

This Book is Now Saving Millions of Dollars for the American People

The opportunity is now yours to Save Money on nearly everything you buy—for the Farm, the Home and the Family.

You have a copy of this book—or a neighbor has one. Because into every state, into every city, into every county all over America the Montgomery Ward & Co. Catalogue has gone, bringing its opportunity for money saving this Fall.

Montgomery Ward & Co. Is Working Constantly to Keep Prices Down

Over Forty Million dollars' worth of merchandise has been bought and manufactured especially for this Catalogue, bought when prices were the lowest—articles of steel were manufactured when steel prices were down, leather goods when hide prices were low.

Our buyers have actually searched the important markets of the world in their determination to secure these bargains for you—to help hold prices down, to make your savings larger.

Are You Using This Book?

Are you taking full advantage of your money-saving opportunity? Is your family buying from this book?

You can save many dollars this season if you use this Catalogue, if you buy from it regularly, if you study this book and see for yourself the saving it brings to you.

Ward Quality—and low prices

Never, in over fifty years, have we intentionally sacrificed quality to make a low price. We offer no price baits on unserviceable merchandise.

It is our policy to sell only goods of Ward Quality—the kind of goods that stand inspection and use. So a low price at Montgomery Ward & Co. is always a low price on reliable goods of standard quality.

We believe it takes both standard quality and low price to make a bargain. And every bargain we offer is a reliable, serviceable article that will give you entire satisfaction.

Begin today saving money by using this book. Begin today sending all your orders to Ward's—where your patronage is always appreciated, where for over fifty years every customer has always been given a square deal.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
CHICAGO KANSAS CITY ST. PAUL
PORTLAND, ORE. FORT WORTH

Your Order will be Shipped in Less than 48 Hours

Our new perfected system of filling orders is now over a year old.

And our records prove that during the past year nearly all orders were shipped in less than 48 hours.

48 hour service is our promise to you. But we do better than our promise—because a large percentage of our orders are actually shipped within 24 hours.

So you can order from Montgomery Ward & Co. and feel sure that nearly every time your order will be shipped in less than 48 hours, and frequently within 24 hours.

The Oldest Mail Order House is Today the Most Progressive
Montgomery Ward & Co.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

I Offer You $200 a Week

My Special Offer to Railway Men

The Amazing Story of W. S. Cooper Points the Way To A $200 A Week Income for You

J. R. HEAD

of Kansas, who lives in a small town of 631 people. He has made as high as $69.50 in one day selling Comer All-Weather Coats.

E. A. SWEET

an electrical engineer, is making from $600 to $1,200 a month and works only about four hours a day.

A. B. SPENCER

of Pennsylvania, is an insurance man who represents us in spare time. We paid him $625 for one month's spare time.

My name is Cooper—W. S. Cooper. I live in Ohio, and this is a true story about myself. I am writing it because there are thousands of men in America struggling along on starvation wages, just like I was, who can do just what I did and make from $5,000 to $10,000 a year.

I Was a Wage Earner

A short time ago I worked in a factory. I was not the owner, not the superintendent, not the boss. I was a wage-earner. I made as much as the average man and no more. I was just like nine out of ten other men—a slave to my job—no real money, no real future. Why, I couldn't have raised $100 in cash if my life had depended on it. And that was only a little while ago.

Today, I am a successful business man. I have a large income, money, investments. I have hundreds and hundreds of friends. I get a lot of pleasure out of life. I have no boss. I work just four hours a day and only five days a week. And the reason for the change in my circumstances is very simple.

The Curse of a Small Income

Please remember that only a short time ago I was practically broke—doing like most men, trying to make a meagre salary meet the constantly increasing expenses of life. It couldn't be done. We wanted to live like other people. We wanted some of the luxuries of life. We wanted to buy our own home. But there simply wasn't enough money. We were living from hand to mouth. And it made me almost desperate to think of what would happen if I became sick or lost my job.

And yet, today, I am a big success. Money no longer worries me. I buy what I want and pay cash for it. I travel where I please. I give my family the luxuries that every family is entitled to expect from the head of the family. I hesitate to say it, and maybe it does sound foolish, but just the other day I paid $900 for a diamond ring that I had wanted for a long time.

Now I am going to tell you how this great change came about. One day I heard that a man could make from $100 to $300 a month in his spare time by doing a certain kind of work.

I didn't believe it. I couldn't believe that a man could make as much in an hour or so as I was making by eight hours' hard work.

W. S. COOPER

Just to satisfy my curiosity, however, I investigated. As you read this you will feel just about the same way I did then. I thought it couldn't be true, and yet, it might be, and it certainly was worth finding out.

I Find Myself

I found a wonderful thing. I discovered that instead of making only from $100 to $300 a month, men who were doing this work were making as high as $1,200 a month—men like myself who had never had any experience were easily cleaning up from $100 to $150 a week.

When I look back to that day and realize how close I came to passing up my opportunity it sends cold chills down my spine. All that I have today, my entire success, is due to the proposition that I learned about that day.

I Have Succeeded Beyond My Dreams

There is no secret to my success. I have succeeded beyond any dream. I may have had a few years ago. And please remember I consider myself only an average man. Here are the facts about my success.

I am the local representative for the Comer Manufacturing Company. This company manufactures Comer All-Weather Raincoats—the finest coats in style, material and workmanship that can be bought anywhere.

Comer Coats are not sold in stores, but through a local representative. The local representative does not have to buy a stock. He doesn't have to invest any money. All he does is take orders from Comer customers,—orders that almost come without asking,—and he gets his big profits every day for the orders he takes.

Many of my customers now come to me. I don't know how much bigger my business will get, but I no longer consider it an exceptional day when my earnings exceed $50 or $75. There are few business men in this city whose profit is greater than mine, and I can only see unlimited opportunity in the future.

You are Now Offered the Same Opportunity

If you are interested in increasing your income from $100 to $1,000 a month, and can devote all your time, or only an hour or so a day, to this same proposition in your territory, write at once to The Comer Manufacturing Company, Dayton, Ohio.

This is their special offer to Railway Men. They will send you, without any preliminary correspondence or red tape, a complete selling outfit that puts you in business for yourself, with full instructions, samples, style book, order book and everything you need to get started. Sign and mail the coupon now, and in less than a week you can be making more money than you ever believed possible.

FREE TO YOU

In addition to your big earnings we offer you a Buick Touring Car, without a cent of cost, that you can use to help you in developing this great business. Mail the coupon for full details of our special proposition.

NOTICE

The Comer Manufacturing Company is the largest business of its kind in the world. Any man who becomes a representative is assured of fair, square, honest treatment, and will have reason to be proud of his connection with the company.

Mail This NOW

The Comer Mfg. Co., Dept. SBX-69, Dayton, Ohio.

Please send me, without expense or obligation, your special proposition, together with complete outfit and instructions, so I can begin at once to earn money.

Name .....

Address .....

Print or write plainly

Volume XI

Baltimore, October, 1923

Number 6

Contents

Prides of the Baltimore and Ohio No. 9—The Courteous Gateman . . . M. T. S. plus C. H. D.	4
When Prosperity is a Visitor He Always Shakes Hands All Around . . .	5
These Pennies Show How the Baltimore and Ohio Dollar for 1922 was Earned and Spent . . .	6-7
Pinch Hitters . . .	8
Pleasant Recollections of Imperial Potentate . . .	9
Over $22,000,000 Being Spent on Road Improvements by the Baltimore and Ohio This Year . . .	11
August Actual Car Miles Show Eastern Lines Still Ahead . . .	12
The Ruhr . . . Newton D. Baker	14
The Coal Bill and the Yard Engine Hour . . .	16
Archie Brick Tries to Enter the Beauty Contest at Atlantic City. He Meets Mr. Grease Plug . . .	17
Bollman Trusses on Valley of Virginia Branch Will Soon be Memories . . . Philip George Lang, Jr.	18
Editorial . . .	20
Homilies of the Hudson . . . John Newman	21
They're Helping Maintain the Capitol Limited's Already Distinguished Record . . .	22
Only Ten Minutes to Spare! . . . Henry F. Pringle	23
Consignees Usually Willing to Do Their Part if Railroad Does Its Part in Moving Cars . . . O. L. Wailburg	27
President Harding's Trans-Continental Journey . . . Ernest Chapman	28
"Soil Doctor Special" Gets Hearty Response from Maryland Farmers . . . O. K. Quivey	31
Pensioners' Roll of Honor . . .	33
Following the Good Will Girls through France . . . Margaret Talbott Stevens	34
Women's Department—Edited by Margaret Talbott Stevens
"Economy is Not Stinginess," says President Willard . . .	38
Andy Wanted a Shirt, but Elizabeth Made Herself a Dress Instead . . .	39
With Simple Patterns Like These, Home Dressmaking Becomes a Real Pleasure . . .	40
Are Your Children Safe from the Fire Hazard? . . .	43
News from Martinsburg Auxiliary . . . Clara McDonald Taylor	43
Our Little Railroaders . . . Aunt Mary
All Right, Girls and Boys, Are You Ready for the Prize Contest? . . .	44
When "Tommy" Ran Away . . . Fanny Keith	45
The Chicago Passenger Club Goes to Washington over the Baltimore and Ohio . . .	47
Tribute to Colonel Walter V. Shipley . . .	50
Conductor Charles Ireland Completes Fifty Years of Honorable Service . . . Alto Smith	51
New Facilities for Automobile Handling in Baltimore . . .	51
In the Realm of the Riddle . . . G. H. Pryor	52
Those Who Entered Trade Mark Contest . . .	55
Safety Roll of Honor . . .	60
Among Ourselves . . .	61
Early Days in the Stationer's Office in Baltimore . . . Oscar F. Flippo	92
Former Agent Tells of Small Town Agent's Work . . . Harry B. Kight	93
Charleston Division Train Employees Praised for Emergency Service . . .	94
Reminiscences of Our Oldest Lorain Dock Employee . . . F. W. Harmon	95

Published monthly at Baltimore, Maryland, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to improve its service to the public and to promote a greater community of interest among its employees. Contributions are welcome. Manuscripts and photographs will be returned upon request.

THE READER AND ADVERTISING

Circulation of the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine is 50,000 copies per issue, our aim being to place it in the hands and in the homes of practically all English speaking employees of the Railroad. An examination of our advertising will show that it conforms to the highest standard. We do not guarantee it, but we believe that it means exactly what it says, and for that reason feel free to urge our readers to patronize our advertisers whenever they consistently can.

CHD.

An Engine an Hour

The Baldwin Locomotive Works recently turned out an engine per hour for thirty-one hours.

This is a record in construction. It looks small beside Henry Ford's 6,000 Tin Lizzies per diem, but it is a notable achievement just the same.

Each one of these engines is capable of hauling at least seventy-five freight ears holding an average of twenty tons of goods, or 1,500 tons. Thus in thirty-one hours, the railroads of the United States have had 46,500 tons increased capacity added to their facilities.

It would not take long to catch up with the transportation overload if the roads could buy locomotives as fast as the builders can produce them.

—New York Evening World

But He Carries It Home, Unaided!

Three boys were boasting about the earning capacity of their fathers. The first said:

"My father can write a few lines and call it poetry and sell it for $10."

The second said:

"My father can draw a few lines and put a few dots on them and call it music and sell it for $25."

The third said:

"That's nothing. My father can write a few lines and get up in church and say them and it takes six men to carry the money down the aisle to him."—Exchange.

A ducky and his brown sweetheart followed by three pickaninnies applied to the clerk of a Southern courthouse for a license to wed.

The clerk eyed the assemblage doubtfully. "Whose children are these?" he asked.

"Dey our'n," was the ready response from the man.

The clerk was scandalized, being new at his post. "You ought to be ashamed of yourselves, waiting to get married till you have a family half grown—"

"Jedge, you'll have to excuse dat," interrupted the "bride" sweetly. "De roads out our way is so bad!"—Harper's Magazine.

Electrician Needed

"I've just read an article about electricity, Henry," said his wife, "and it says that before long we shall get everything we want by just touching a button."

"It won't do us any good," her husband sadly replied.

"Why not, Henry?"

"Because nothing would ever make you touch a button. Look at my shirt."

—Exchange.

Hitting the Trail

A guest in a Cincinnati hotel was shot and killed. The negro porter who heard the shooting was a witness at the trial.

"How many shots did you hear?" asked the lawyer.

"Two shots, sah," he replied.

"How far apart were they?"

"'Bout like this way," exclaimed the negro, clapping his hands with an interval of about a second between them.

"Where were you when the first shot was fired?"

"Shinin' a gemman's shoe in de basement of de hotel."

"Where were you when the second shot was fired?"

"Ah was passing de Big Fo' Depot."

—Exchange

For "Good Time" Buy one of these famous Railroad Watches

on the

"KATZ Liberal Credit Plan"

These watches will pass inspection on any railroad in the country

21-Jewel HAMILTON, 20 yr. Guaranteed Case

58.50

21-Jewel BUNN SPECIAL, 20 yr. Guaranteed Case

Mail Coupon for one of our Catalogues.

Name.....

Address.....

Do you work for Baltimore and Ohio?.....

Division.....

Occupation.....

OFFICIAL R. R. WATCH INSPECTORS

S. and N. KATZ

DIAMONDS, WATCHES, JEWELRY AND SILVERWARE

105-107 N. Charles Street

Light and Cross Sts. 1013 West 36 St.
Eastern Avenue and Third Street.

Prides of The Baltimore and Ohio—No. 9

I keep the crowds in order as they quickly pass along,
I scan the tickets closely just to see that nothing's wrong;
It's only now and then that some old
grouch, on trouble bent,
Pretends he's lost his ticket—just to start an argument,
And though I speak quite pleasantly, my statements are quite frank—
I wouldn't spoil a happy day to argue with a crank.

There are so many civil folk who smile as they pass by—
Each passenger's a friend of mine;
can you guess the reason why?

M.T.S.

Prosperity is a Sociable Fellow—When He Visits He Always Shakes Hands All Around

LAST winter an interesting group of men had dinner and spent the evening together in New York City. Outstanding leaders in Railroad Management and Railroad Labor broke bread with the frank purpose of promoting greater friendship between the two interests they represented. They were trying informally to bring the interests together, to bridge "the great divide," to make, if possible, one interest out of the two.

Seated next to each other were two men of about the same age. They started work at about the same time, both as poor boys. Each knew the rigors of old time railroading, its thrills, its uncertainties, its hardships. Each had carried the little tin lunch box, experienced the "hospitality" of the distant terminal boarding house, and felt the satisfaction of the run home. For years they had eaten, slept, talked, worked and lived practical railroading, and now they had risen to leadership in their respective fields. But one was Railroad Management and the other was Railroad Labor.

Is it any wonder that they could get together to discuss intelligently and fairly the "mutual" interests of those they represented? Is there any wonder that there was a general understanding between them on the general aspects of the railroad question? Is it not even reasonable to suppose that mere chance had, in the early days of decision, cast the fortune of one with Organized Labor, and the other with Railroad Management, and that, with a slightly different turn of the wheel of fate, their careers would have been reversed?

Talking together earnestly over their cigars, the Brotherhood man leaned over quickly, looked his friend square in the eye, and, with an air of finality, said:

"Mr. M., the whole question depends on the extent to which we can get all our people to understand that what profits the railroads, profits them, and vice versa."

"That's true," assented Management, as he smiled inwardly.

(For years he had known that this was the solution. For years he had been preaching it and trying to practice it on his railroad among officers and men alike.)

"We must not fight," went on Mr. B., "except as we fight shoulder to shoulder for our common interests. How can we prosper if we work at cross purposes? It is axiomatic that good working conditions, steady employment and fair wages can only be provided if your railroad and others have the funds to provide them. This is what I call "enlightened selfishness." And when there comes a true understanding of just what that means, our differences will adjust themselves automatically."

The brotherhood leader struck the nail on the head. A complete understanding of what "enlightened selfishness" means in the relations between Management and Labor, will bring an era of peace and prosperity. And if our MAGAZINE does not, from issue to issue, in season and out, make this complete understanding its chief objective, it will have failed in its purpose. It may be newsy, attractive and interesting, but if it does not show the irresistible logic of "enlightened selfishness," it is not worth the paper it is printed on.

WITHIN the last week there came a visitor to the MAGAZINE Office, an employe, long a trusted and respected leader of his brotherhood. He is a good Company man and a good Union man. And if you think that such a combination isn't possible, you are making a big mistake.

He was telling me of his difficulty in getting some of the men he represents to see how true it is that what profits the Company profits its employes. He said:

"One of the men in my gang saw a passenger shove $15.00 over the counter in the station for a ticket, and from the way he talked you'd have thought he ought to have gotten $14.00 of it. He sees the big business the Company is doing and says: 'They ought to pay me more money.' But when I told him of the 80,000 others on the Railroad who have to share that $15.00 he began to do some thinking.

"And then he gave me another opening," my visitor continued. "We had finished lunch and we were going back to the big building in which we are making a new installation. He said:

"Wonder why they're putting in this new equipment? Bet the insurance company made them do it—afraid of fire!"

"No, that isn't it," I answered. "They're doing it because business is good and they are now able to do it. They've had the plans ready for that installation for the last five years to my knowledge. I helped work out some of the details but they've never had the money to do it before. Now the Company is making a little more money than it needs for running expenses and interest, and it goes into improvements like that. That building was the best of its type when it was put up, but the better lighting and air provided in the new plan will not only make handling costs lower but will make the surroundings much more pleasant for the men who work there. You can see that yourself because you are helping put the job across.

"He admitted that I was right but added that he didn't see how that helped him. So I tried to show him. I said:

"Look, now, doesn't that one job mean six months' work for our gang—steady work for fifteen of us! You bet it does, and that is the result of the Company's prosperity. It couldn't be done if the cost of doing business ate up all the money we take in. Isn't it better to be sure of six months' steady work than it is to be fighting for a few cents more an hour when that increase might mean furloughs for some of the gang in a month or two?"

My friend seemed to me to have put in his homely and forceful way to his less thoughtful pal, the whole philosophy of the inter-dependence—the mutual dependence—of all of us on the Baltimore and Ohio payroll.

If the Company had not had a prosperous first eight months in 1923, it is not probable that the job mentioned would be under way, and perhaps the man who asked the question would not be on the payroll.

AND where does the prosperity come from? It comes from you and from me if we do our work conscientiously and well. It comes from the fireman who saves that "scoop of coal a mile" that we have been talking about so much in the MAGAZINE, and who thus helps cut down the coal bill; from the passenger conductor who is pleasant and obliging to patrons and who thus gets more patrons for the Road; from the engineer who handles his train skilfully, keeps his engine properly

These Pennies Show How the Baltimore and Ohio Dollar for 1922 Was Earned

In 1922 the Baltimore and Ohio did a gross business of about $200,000,000. In the above picture this total is represented by 100 pennies, and they are divided into piles representing the shares of the total revenue brought in by the transportation of the principal classes of commodities and of passengers.

Each of the piles is self explanatory except the last 4 pennies out of the hundred, and these represent revenue received for switching; dining and buffet service; demurrage; transportation of milk; storage; grain elevator; joint facilities; station, train and boat privileges; excess baggage; and a few other items.

"Giving Good Service" is the shortest answer to the question "How Can We Increase Our Revenues?"

And "Giving Good Service" is a trust confided to all officers and employes of the Baltimore and Ohio.

Together we can keep the trust unbroken and unimpaired.

One person failing in his share simply means increasing the other fellow's responsibility. Do Your Share!

oiled and looked after, and saves overtime; from the mechanic who takes good care of his tools or makes a replacement with good pieces of reclaimable material instead of requisitioning a new part from the storeroom; from the clerk who does his work carefully and avoids expensive mistakes; from the trackman who picks up and saves a spike, angle iron and bolt here and there instead of kicking them down the bank. It comes from the many, many employes who never let an opportunity slip by to put in a good word for "their Road," and thus increase its business. It comes from every man who believes that whatever profits the Company profits him and who acts accordingly. There are thousands of such men on this old Railroad of ours today, and as they continue their good work and persuade others to their way of thinking and acting, so will our prosperity continue and increase.

And let us not forget in all fairness that this prosperity has its very foundation in a considerate, square dealing, progressive Management, one of whose chief concerns is that the Baltimore and Ohio family shall be a happy family.

The other side of the picture is of the careless and indifferent employee. When a Stillson wrench, costing $3.00, is lost or needlessly broken by being used for a maul, the Company, of course, has to replace it. When a car is carelessly derailed in a yard by poor switching, the $10.00 or more expense comes out of the Company's revenue.

(Continued on page 9)

These Pennies Show How the Baltimore and Ohio Dollar for 1922 Was Spent

There are 100 pennies in the above picture, arranged in piles, which represent the principal items of expenditure for 1922. For convenience, fractions of pennies, in both pictures, have been changed into even pennies.

The largest pile, it is noted, is represented by payrolls, calling for 50 pennies out of the 100.

The next largest single item is "fixed charges," or interest on bonds, notes, etc., and takes 12 pennies out of the 100.

Cost of coal alone takes 9 pennies out of the 100.

"All other operating expenses," taking 16 pennies out of the 100, include injuries to persons; clearing wrecks; insurance; damage to property; lubricants; lanterns; water; and numerous other items.

The cost of many of these items can be cut down by concerted effort.

You, as an employe, may be concerned principally with only a few of them.

But you can do your part with these few and help "Stop That Leak!"

Being one of a series of true stories about prominent railroaders who were good for a "sacrifice" when called to bat—

Forty years ago in New England, when the snow began to fly, all but the most important trains were taken off until the coming of open weather again. Which meant that trainmen were "snowed up" for a winter of idleness, unless they could get holdover work in some other department. There were always odd jobs to be done even in zero weather.

One of them was driving piling at a stream where a new bridge was to be put in, and they needed a stationary engineer.

"Why don't you ask Russell," the road superintendent suggested to the foreman of the job.

Russell was a fireman who had made himself so generally useful that when they needed a "go getter" the answer generally was "ask Russell."

So Russell took the job—and on this schedule:

The engine was run at capacity during the day with a roaring wood fire, and the keeping up of full steam pressure, with oiling, watering, operating, etc., did not leave much time for wool gathering. When quitting time came at dusk, the water feed pipes had to be disconnected, the wood fire had to be "pulled," and a coal fire made to keep the boiler from freezing. Then came a hike of a mile to the boarding house for supper.

At nine came the tramp—often through deep, unbroken snow drifts—back to the engine, where the coal fire had to be banked to last through the night—then back to the boarding house and to bed.

Four-thirty was rising time. After breakfast and the walk back to the job, the pipes had to be connected, the coal fire pulled and the wood fire built so that steam would be up and the engine ready for the day's work.

Yes, it was a hard six weeks' work, that sixteen hour trick, in bitterly cold weather and with the ground waist deep with snow. But besides having the job when other men were loafing, the young fireman was making $2.00 a day—fifty cents better than his regular work paid—and most important of all, he was acquiring a rudimentary knowledge of bridge engineering which has stood him in good stead in handling his present work as chief executive of a great railroad.

(Continued from page 7)

When a clerk makes an error in billing, the 60 cents cost may seem small, but it cuts down net income by just that much.

Yes, the Company signs the checks to pay for all those needless losses, but—

Half of them, at least, come out of the column headed "Wages" (see page seven), and which, needless to say, vitally concerns you and me.

THE direct benefit which this prosperity brings to the employes of the Road is as evident as anything can be. You will see on page eleven of this issue of the MAGAZINE a story on our improvement program for this year. It is costing over $40,000,000.00, the largest part of which is borrowed money to pay for "Capital Expenditures"—equipment and betterments which will increase the value of the Property.

Now it may seem to the casual reader that money which the Company borrows does not indicate real prosperity. On the contrary—in a sense, at least—exactly the reverse is true. For if the Company were not having a fair share of prosperity, it would not have confidence—and it might not have credit—enough to borrow the money.

Look, for example, at the largest single project to be paid for out of this money, the Locust Point Grain Elevator and Pier Improvement. This will, when completed, give us unexcelled elevator and port facilities. In just this single improvement there are hundreds of men employed in good positions who would not otherwise be on the payroll. There are construction engineers supervising and inspecting the work. There are statisticians and bookkeepers making records of progress and costs. There are storekeepers and station forces and train crews busy handling material. There are car repair forces at work building box cars for the grain and other commodities which these facilities will enable us to handle. And when they are finished and in use there will be hundreds of carloads of freight to be handled by Baltimore and Ohio men, to fill them and keep them full. In other words there is a whole chain of workers kept profitably employed because of this improvement.

Then, besides these "new" improvements represented in the forty odd millions, are other kinds of betterment work being done. And these are being paid for with money which is being saved through economical operation and efficient workmen.

In one shop, for instance, the Company is spending thousands of dollars putting in new windows and lights, improved floors, handling devices, etc. How much more pleasant it is to work in clean, airy, well lighted workrooms than in the reverse! How much happier is the man who leaves home in the morning for an up-to-date shop, with sanitary surroundings, good tools and safe working conditions, than for a place which is dismal, damp and inhospitable. And how much happier his family in knowing that his welfare is being guarded while he is at work! Without prosperity old facilities have to suffice. With prosperity they can be improved or replaced with much resultant benefit to the worker and his family.

Out of every penny which the Company saves through efficient operation a part, at least, can be invested for the benefit of employes. Ordinarily, if operations and fixed charges eat up all income, there is no money available for continuing improvement work when hard times come. But with an increase in the Company's reserves as the years go on, a temporary slowing up in business need not mean drastic cuts in forces. Men whose service records entitle them to seniority can count on a very measurable steadiness of work. There are always important improvements awaiting a favorable time to be made, always equipment which can be repaired in dull season against the period of returning prosperity. And when that period comes, it finds the Railroad plant in condition to handle all the business that is offered, to keep large forces at work in all branches of the service, to give employes of long service preferred runs and tricks, to increase supervision and open the way to promotions.

HAVE we proved our case? Have we made it reasonably clear that it pays the employe to be efficient and loyal. Have the true colors that we have used in describing "enlightened selfishness" made it the attractive picture that it really is? If not we shall be glad to hear from the readers of the MAGAZINE. A discussion may help clarify the atmosphere.

Past IMPERIAL POTENTATE
JAMES S. McCANDLESS
803 SANTA FE BLDG.
SAN FRANCISCO
CALIFORNIA

August 9, 1923

E. W. Scheer
General Manager, B. & O. R. R.
Baltimore, Maryland

My dear Mr. Scheer:

Now that I have arrived back in my home in Honolulu and have had time to look over some of the mementos that have been given to me by the good people during my term in office as Imperial Potentate, I have among them the souvenir book of scenes along the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., the locomotive that brought me into the city of Washington and also a splendid picture of the executive office of that wonderful system.

I am taking this opportunity to express to you my most sincere thanks and appreciation of this beautiful memento of a trip over your road and for the many courtesies extended to me by the officers of the Baltimore & Ohio all along the line.

I had a wonderful year as the Imperial Potentate and traveled over your road several times and I have always been received with courtesy and kindness everywhere I went and I want you to know that I appreciate these attentions. Again thanking you and assuring you that this will be cherished and filed away among my archives as the bright spots in my trip and with good wishes to you and your road, I remain,

Sincerely yours,

James S. McCandless.

PICTURES OF SOME OF THE ROAD IMPROVEMENTS ON THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO IN 1923, THE COST OF WHICH WILL TOTAL ABOUT $23,000,000.00

1. The old coal tipple, Grafton, being removed to be replaced by a modern coaling plant.
2. Progress of the work on Piers, Grain Elevator, etc., at Locust Point.
3. Excavations for new ash pits, etc., at Grafton, W. Va.
4. Construction of additional track near Brydon, W. Va.

Over $22,000,000 Being Spent on Road Improvements by the Baltimore and Ohio This Year

THE road improvement program (exclusive of purchases of engines, cars, etc.) of the Baltimore and Ohio for the current year, is one of the most extensive undertaken in its history. The work now under way, or soon to be started, will, when completed, cost over $22,000,000.00.

Among the items of special interest in the improvement program are the following:

Grain Elevator, Locust Point, and Pier 3, at the same place, which were described in the MARCH MAGAZINE.

Improvements to 33rd Street Freight House, Pittsburgh, and to freight facilities at Toledo, Sandusky, Georgetown and many other stations.

Installation of water treating plants, Toledo Division.

Tracks between Millvale and Etna, Penna., being elevated to obviate necessity of using track of another railroad, and to eliminate interference with other traffic.

Construction of additional track, Brydon, W. Va., to Flemington, W. Va., Monongah Division.

A large amount of new rail and track fastenings for various points.

Renewal of obsolete and light bridges which are inadequate for present heavy power. Among the most important are those at the Little Kanawha, Parkersburg, those on the W. P. & B. Branch, Pittsburgh Division, those between Brooklyn Junction and Wheeling, and between Brooklyn Junction and Parkersburg. Bridges between Somerset and Jerome Junction are being reinforced, and those on the Morgantown and Kingwood Branch have already been strengthened. Bridges on the Washington County Branch and on the O. L. & K. Branch have been strengthened for the use of heavy power.

New 100-foot turntable at Lima, Ohio.

Elimination of grade crossings at Martinsburg, W. Va., Stepney, Md., Feltonville, Pa., Salisbury Junction, Pa., and East St. Louis, Ill.

Improvement of numerous shops and engine terminals.

New office building, Mount Clare, to replace one destroyed by fire.

Old incline coaling tippie, Grafton, W. Va., removed and to be replaced with modern coaling stations. New ash pits, work pits, etc., will also be constructed at Grafton.

New work pits, Keyser, W. Va.

Engine house, Ivorydale, being extended to permit handling of class "S" engines.

New and improved shop and machine tools in numerous shops.

Signalling apparatus and telephone lines are being improved and extended, including extension of interlocking at Elsmere Junction. Additions or extensions to present telephone lines have been completed or are being made on the Cumberland, Connellsville, Pittsburgh, Monongah, Charleston, Akron and St. Louis Divisions.

New passenger stations at Gallipolis, W. Va., and Callery, Pa.

Additional retort at Green Spring Tie Treating Plant.

A summary of the cost of the improvements is as follows:

Freight Stations and Terminals.....	$8,768,544
Yard, Track and other Road Facilities.....	8,258,015
Bridges.....	3,688,840
Shops, Engine Terminals and Tools.....	1,120,962
Signals and Telephone Lines.....	105,077
Miscellaneous.....	449,196
	<hr/>
	$22,390,634

This is in addition to the following motive power purchases being made this year:

Freight cars.....	$17,250,174
Locomotives.....	5,919,150
Passenger cars.....	633,075
	<hr/>
	$23,802,399

Most of the "road" improvements shown, it will be noted, are in construction work which will increase our facilities and make it possible for us to do our work more efficiently and economically. When you build a bridge which will handle heavier power, it means larger tonnage trains and less cost per ton to haul. When you increase your second track, as we are doing in the Brydon improvement, it means quicker dispatchments and fewer delays in meeting trains. When you enlarge and improve freight house facilities, you make work easier and quicker for your forces and you increase your business by being able to give better service. Etc., etc.

There are improvements almost without number that the Baltimore and Ohio would like to make right away to being about similar economies. The question always is, "Which is the most important—which will return the most in better service and larger economy." For in return for the dollars that go into such improvements must always be calculated the dollars that will come back in savings.

Many needed improvements on the Road cannot be paid for out of borrowed or "New" moneys because they will not "pay for themselves." When you paint a building, it costs money, but it does not increase the returns that the building brings in revenue. Other such non-revenue producing improvements are, generally speaking, new or enlarged passenger stations, especially at non-competitive points, improvements along the right of way to make the road scenically more attractive from the passenger standpoint, and elimination of grade crossings, the expense of which is often greater than the return in savings. Such improvements have to be paid for out of current income and make it most desirable that the Company earn enough to be able constantly to invest current funds so as to keep the property in good condition and make it up-to-date, well maintained and prosperous looking.

Superintendent Urges Use of Prospective Business Card

SUPT. IAMS, Ohio Division, made a good move on August 6 when he issued a bulletin for posting on his division, calling attention of employees to the prospective business cards being inserted in the MAGAZINE and suggesting that every employee can use this card to secure additional freight and passengers for the Railroad.

This is a good illustration of Baltimore and Ohio teamwork. No matter how good an idea may be, it takes push to put it across. Records of the past two or three years show the whole-hearted interest of many employees in securing business for the Railroad. This shows what can be done. What will be done depends upon the amount of teamwork and interest similar to that so well illustrated by Superintendent Iams.

August Actual Car Miles Show Car Bogie is Slipping. October

Actual Record, August, Excluding Bad Order Cars

Eastern Lines	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	31.0 Miles per Car per Day
Western Lines	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	30.6 Miles per Car per Day
System	-	-	-	-	-	-	-	30.8 Miles per Car per Day

WESTERN LINE DIVISIONS	Best Previous Weekly Average	Week Best Average Made	ESTIMATED—WEEKS OF,
			September, 1923
			1-7	8-14	15-21	22-30
New Castle.....	46.8	4-21-23	30.5	35.0	35.7	33.7
Cleveland.....	35.1	10-14-20	25.4	26.5	25.8	25.5
Newark.....	47.0	4-30-12	23.9	24.6	22.4	24.9
Chicago.....	51.4	4-14-23	39.6	39.8	42.7	40.9
N. W. District.....	39.0	4-14-23	30.6	32.5	32.1	31.9
Ohio.....	81.2	4-21-16	56.5	56.2	57.0	59.0
Indiana.....	33.6	2-21-20	29.3	27.5	27.9	27.2
Illinois.....	34.0	9- 7-16	26.0	26.7	25.5	24.4
Toledo.....	31.9	12- 7-20	27.4	27.2	28.1	27.9
S. W. District.....	33.0	10-21-20	30.8	30.2	30.6	30.4
Western Lines.....	35.3	5- 7-23	30.7	31.5	31.4	31.2
System.....	34.7	4-21-23	30.4	31.5	31.4	30.8

Eastern Lines Still Ahead. Surplus Should Wipe Him Off the Sheet!

EASTERN LINE DIVISIONS	Best Previous Weekly Average	Week Best Average Made	ESTIMATED—WEEKS OF
			September, 1923
			1-7	8-14	15-21	22-30
Philadelphia.....	80.2	6-30-15	51.4	59.2	66.9	63.7
Baltimore.....	19.2	11-21-13	16.2	17.6	17.9	17.1
Shenandoah.....	29.8	1-21-14	17.5	16.7	16.4	14.0
Cumberland—East.....	103.3	5-14-23	78.6	84.2	73.9	75.2
Cumberland—West.....	94.3	6-21-23	64.4	66.5	75.8	88.8
M. & K. Branch.....	18.7	11-7-22	12.6	13.3	12.5	10.1
Cumberland—Total.....	91.4	5-14-23	70.5	74.3	71.6	75.4
Maryland District.....	45.7	7-21-23	40.4	44.1	43.9	42.3
Monongah.....	21.5	5-7-23	16.7	16.2	15.8	14.3
Wheeling.....	20.3	8-7-20	12.9	13.9	14.4	13.2
Ohio River.....	44.7	6-7-16	40.2	38.8	37.3	31.0
Charleston.....	21.7	6-7-23	16.1	19.1	14.2	12.5
West Virginia District.....	21.0	5-7-23	16.1	16.6	16.3	14.7
Connellsville.....	44.4	4-7-23	30.1	30.6	28.5	30.7
Pittsburgh.....	48.5	4-7-23	35.5	34.6	39.1	41.3
Pennsylvania District.....	46.3	4-7-23	32.8	32.6	33.5	36.1
Eastern Lines.....	34.9	5-14-23	30.1	31.3	31.4	30.3

THE World War left a heritage of conditions and questions which affect the relations of the great civilized powers and involve the peace of the world. The peace of the world, at this time, worn to exhaustion as the world is by the wastage in life and treasure of war, involves the future political organization of nations and perhaps the future of what we know as civilization. The glory that was Greece and the strength that was Rome disappeared before less obvious and menacing conditions than now threaten the countries of Western Europe. These conditions centre around three problems: German debts to the allies, the inter-allied debts and continental security against aggressive or impulsive war.

What can Germany pay and what will be the consequences of making her pay more or less?

Can the allies pay the war debts they contracted to one another and what political, economic and social consequences are involved in collecting rather than cancelling these obligations?

How shall the nations of the continent be so assured against aggression growing out of nationalistic aspiration, a spirit of revenge or commercial rivalry for preferential access to the natural resources of the world, that they will gradually lessen the intolerable burden of competitive armament?

The Ruhr involves all of these questions, and French and British policy can only be understood by keeping them in mind.

Whether the French occupation of the Ruhr is technically legal is a matter of no consequence. The question will never be submitted to any tribunal for decision and opinion will continue to differ about it largely as peoples' views differ on what is best for the world's hope of recovery.

The French occupied the Ruhr professedly to force the payment of reparations, though the amount of reparations to be ultimately paid by Germany has never been fixed and at the time of the occupation Germany was only about 8% in default of the payments then deemed due. The ability of France to pay her debts to the allies is, of course, bound up with the payments she receives as reparations. At one time France agreed to accept about thirty-four billion gold marks as pay-

The Ruhr

By NEWTON D. BAKER

Formerly Secretary of War

(In "Trade Winds")

ment in full from Germany. Now she states her minimum to be twenty-six billion goldmarks plus what she owes to England and the United States, an aggregate of fifty-three billion gold marks. Meantime, it must be remembered that throughout the Versailles Conference, France demanded the left bank of the Rhine as essential to her military security. She wanted a river frontier which she could fortify. Her demand on this subject was met with the proposed treaty of guaranty by which England and the United States were to go to her assistance in the event of German aggression. In other words, it was recognized that the incorporation of the German Rhine peoples into France would merely hang another Alsace-Lorraine question over the head of Europe to be fought out some day, yet that France reasonably demanded security from a continuance of the "German peril" which had existed since 1871 and caused fabulous defensive military expenditures.

But the United States not only did not ratify the Treaty of Guaranty but did not even ratify the Treaty of Versailles. French statesmanship has, therefore, had to deal single handed, both with the question of reparations, involving the reconstruction of the devastated district and the internal and external war debt and the question of security for France without either the left bank of the Rhine or the Treaty of Guaranty.

Just how much of France's action in the Ruhr is dictated by reparations and how much by the question of security, perhaps even the French themselves do not know. I, personally, believe that if Germany had in hand fifty-three billion or any other number of gold marks and offered them to France, the French would find some reason for not taking them, or at least not evacuating the Ruhr, until the question of security was settled to her satisfaction. Meanwhile, the grip of France on the industrial resources of Germany while producing little for France is slowly strangling Germany, and one or the other of two things must happen in the near future: either an international and comprehensive settlement of the whole question will be made or Prussia will go bolshevik and join Soviet Russia in a mutually defensive and possibly offensive alliance. In the latter case, Bavaria would probably separate from Prussia and, with French aid, try to resist the bolshevik onslaught. The French circle about Prussia would then be Poland, the little entente, Bavaria and Belgium, an adequate defense against Prussia under normal circumstances, but whether adequate against a red Prussia and a red Russia, only rivers of blood could tell.

In the meantime, the English devastated region is two million idle workmen, who are living now on an unemployment dole, which keeps them idle and discontented. Work for the idle can be found only by a restoration of trade and that can come only with financial and economic security in Europe, and, by example and influence, in the rest of the world. The British, therefore, care little about European security—in the French sense—and relatively little about reparations and interallied debts. They prefer to collect, if they can, enough to balance the heavy obligation assumed in the settlement of their debt to us, but even that is secondary to a restoration of order and political stability which will open up the channels of trade and financial confidence, which will give her a market and international moneys which she can afford to take in exchange for the labor of her workmen.

Newton Diehl Baker

There is thus a complete difference in interest and emphasis in the two points of view which so far the French and British have been unable to reconcile.

Belgium, having had a preferential position assigned her, has received about three-fourths of her reparations, but she adheres to France because of the security question and for other reasons. Italy is too much involved to play umpire and too much absorbed in her own problems to risk throwing her weight decisively either way.

The world must, therefore, watch and wait the slow evolution of these tragic conflicts. The forests of international wealth and good will are in flames and the little weapons of diplomacy and mediation are beating wildly here and there but the conflagration is driving them back. Literally, no one can say what a day may bring forth. There is some hope in the fact that the

Newton Diehl Baker

Newton Diehl Baker, ex-secretary of War, was born in Martinsburg, W. Va., on December 3, 1871, the son of Newton Diehl and Mary Dukehart Baker. He was graduated from the Public High School at Martinsburg and received his B. A. degree from Johns Hopkins University in 1892. His L. L. B. degree was received from Washington and Lee University.

On July 5, 1902 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Leopold, of Pottstown, Pa. During 1896 and 1897 Mr. Baker served as private secretary to Postmaster General Wilson. He began to practice law at Martinsburg in 1897. He became city solicitor of Cleveland, Ohio in 1902 and served in this capacity for ten years. He was mayor of Cleveland for the terms 1912-1914 and 1914-1916. On March 7, 1916 he was appointed Secretary of War by President Wilson; in this capacity he served until March 4, 1921. In March, 1921 he was appointed commanding colonel, Officers' Reserve Corps.

Mr. Baker is now a member of the law firm of Baker, Hostetler and Sidlo, of Cleveland, Ohio. He is known personally by many of our employes in Martinsburg and by other men in our train service who have met him on his frequent trips over the Baltimore and Ohio.

British and French are now talking in the open. The Pope is interested and the League of Nations grows daily stronger because of its success in lesser matters, Lord Robert Cecil now represents England in the League—all these things are hopeful; but as yet no world brain or world heart has generated an idea or a pity big enough to save the situation. We can only watch and pray.

Friends Everywhere

MR. ERNEST KEMP is a member of the builders' supply firm of Kemp and Jackson in Baltimore. He knows many Baltimore and Ohio people and always routes his freight Baltimore and Ohio, if he can. He likes the people and the service.

Recently one of his manufacturers came to Baltimore from Chicago via competing road and expected to return that way. But he did not. Mr. Kemp told him about the Capitol Limited and several days later he received a letter from the man in Chicago, with the following postscript:

"You can tell your Baltimore and Ohio friends that the Capitol Limited is a very good train and that it equals anything I have ridden on in the United States. As a Baltimore and Ohio booster you will be glad to know this."

Friends everywhere!

And a friend that gets a friend to ride the Friendly Road makes more friends. Be friendly, be obliging, be courteous! Be on the lookout for opportunities like this one to make more friends for the friendly Road!

Cuts by courtesy of "Trade Winds"

Above: The French Occupation of the Ruhr

Right: French troops on guard while their comrades load coal blocks in the Ruhr District

The Coal Bill and the Yard Engine Hour

EDITOR'S NOTE: (In a weak moment the Boss gave Archie a vacation. On his way back from Atlantic City, Archie talked to one of our yard engineers, who said to him, "How come, Arch, you talked about Passenger Car Miles and Gross Ton Miles—concerning the passenger and freight enginemen, but you overlooked one awful big item, the pounds of coal burned per yard engine hour, which concerns the yard enginemen." This conversation occurred just before Archie met Grease Plug, as described on the opposite page, and the following from Archie should answer the engineer's objection.)

A Yard Engine worked one hour equals one Yard Engine Hour (Y.E.H.).

If a yard engine burns three tons of coal during an eight hour trick, the fuel consumption would be 750 pounds per Y. E. H.

If two scoops less per hour were used during an eight-hour trick, the fuel consumption would be 5760 pounds, or 720 pounds per Y. E. H.

We have endeavored to show you by illustration just what fuel consumption Pounds Per Passenger Car Mile (P.C.M.), Pounds per 1000 Gross Ton Miles (G.T.M.) and Pounds per Yard Engine Hour (Y.E.H.) mean in money value to the Baltimore and Ohio. Also what they mean in economic advantage to the country at large by the diverting of this extra money spent for coal purchases to labor and equipment purchases. Finally, Mr. Fireman, make no mistake about it—SOMEBODY'S BACK BENDS AND SOMEBODY'S MUSCLES ARE STRAINED TO PUT THOSE EXTRA TONS OF COAL INTO THE FIREBOX.

Here then is the point of attack—CUT THE COAL BILL by reducing the consumption per P.C.M., per G.T.M. and per Y.E.H. HERE'S THE PLAN—ROADMEN—A SCOOP LESS PER MILE—YARDMEN—TWO SCOOPS LESS PER HOUR.

Save Two Scoops an Hour—It Can be Done!

Archie Brick Tries to Enter the Beauty Contest at Atlantic City. He Meets Mr. Grease Plug

Yes fellows, it's true—The boss gave me a vacation—He said he needed a rest. Well anyhow, I went to Atlantic City and reading about the Beauty Contest in the papers, I thought I would enter as the Baltimore and Ohio Candidate. When I went up to the man in charge to register, he said, "Well, what do you want" I said "I come to enter for the Beauty contest" He said "you can't," I said "why not"

Needing a rest the boss gives Archie his vacation.

He said "you are barred on account of your sects" "Why, you poor boob" says I, "you don't even know whether I am a Mohamedan or a Baptist" Says he, "You poor fish, don't you know that this is for Ladies only" I said I did not, but if that was the case I would withdraw if he would let me look on—He said sure and he handed me a pair of sun glasses—I needed 'em all right. There was all kinds of them fellows

Archie arrives at Atlantic City—

—everything from Mallets down to dinkys. But first I want to tell you that I was more interested in seeing the Board Walk—I heard so much about the Board Walk that I wanted to see it for myself, so I says to a fellow at the station, "Say Brother, where does this Board Walk anyhow" He looks at me a minute or two kind of funny—I believe he thought I was kidding him—then he says "Where the Ocean Waves" and tries to see the board "walk"— and I says "Oh, and where might that be," and he says, "You'll Sea" then finally he says, turn to the left and walk two blocks. So I did—but I'll give you my word fellows, that Board never stirred, because I watched it for three whole days.

Anyhow, that wasn't what I started out to tell you—I'll pass over the parade, it and enter the Beauty Contest—was some parade at that. About the only thing worth telling about was how they dressed the women up—but I guess I won't tell you that either—there was very little to it. Anyhow, when I was coming back and got into Philadelphia just as I was getting off the car, I heard a weak voice calling—"Pick me up—Pick me up" but finds solace in looking them over.

I looked all around and finally I located the noise coming from the middle of the track. Durned if it was not my old friend "Grease Plug" Says I, "Are you on your vacation too" Says he, Vacation nothing I got a serew loose and fell off engine umpty steen" I said, "is that so" and he says "Yes, and for the love of Mike don't stand there looking at me all day, but take me down to the shop—don't you know I've got a leak

"Durned if it was not my old friend, 'Grease Plug.' " to stop" "I said, sure Greasy, I'll take you down" As we were going down the track arm in arm, who should we meet but one of our old friends the "Yard Engineer" So he springs this stuff about me giving him a raw deal by not writing up the yard service, and Grease Plug says, "Sure Archie, why don't you, and put me in it—I might get a regular job on the MAGAZINE" I said "nothing stirring Greasy old boy, you got a leak to stop on engine umpty steen," besides one like me is enough on any MAGAZINE, but I'll let you fill in when there is a hole to fill up" He said, "Gee whiz—No matter what I do, I am always filling up some hole, but I'm glad at that for that is one good way to stop a leak—all the same Arch I think I'll stick right on my own job—stopping that leak on engine umpty steen"

"Whom should we meet but the Yard Engineer."

Bollman Trusses on Valley of Virginia Branch Will soon be Memories

*by Philip George Lang, Jr.
Engineer of Bridges*

THE reconstruction of three bridges on the Valley Railroad of Virginia, now in progress, which involves the replacement of Bollman trusses with deck plate girder spans, constitutes another step in the gradual disappearance of a bridge type, once widely used for the support of railroad traffic, but rendered obsolete by modern conditions. The bridges in question are identified in the Company's records as Nos. 117, 120 and 129, located at Mount Crawford, Cave Station and Verona, Va., respectively. The Bollman trusses concerned range in length between 65 and 150 feet. The original masonry piers and abutments, now about fifty years old, are still in excellent condition, and, with slight modifications to adapt them to the new steel superstructures, will be continued in use.

Bollman Was Our Master of Road

The old spans in these bridges were designed in accordance with a form of truss developed and patented by the late Wendall Bollman, a resident of Baltimore, for eighteen years connected with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad personnel and for ten years its master of road. During the latter portion of Mr. Bollman's life, and due largely to his genius, Baltimore enjoyed a measure of distinction as an important center for the fabrication of metallic bridges. The products of the Patapsco Bridge and Iron Works, Clinton Street and Second Avenue, Canton, of which he was president, and those of the Baltimore Bridge Company, were extensively used throughout the United States, and shipped to numerous foreign points.

Probably Built at Mt. Clare

Although, in consequence of the age of the three bridges now being replaced, accurate records covering the circumstances of their fabrication and erection are no longer available, there is strong reason to believe that the spans in Bridge 117, crossing the North River west of Mount Crawford were constructed in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company's bridge shop, then located at Mount Clare, Baltimore. It is possible that the spans used at the other two crossings were made at the same point, although there is equal probability that they were fabricated at the plant of the Patapsco Bridge and Iron Works, Canton, Md.

Wrought and cast iron were used in these bridges. They were built in 1872 and 1873, and completed in the latter year. Their replacement, after fifty years continuous service, is not due to actual deterioration of the metallic parts, but to the changing character of railroad equipment which, in our day, far exceeds in weight and severity of effect on bridges the rolling stock and motive power of the 70's. The fact that it has been possible to maintain these bridges in service until this time, and the preservation of their life and utility under conditions which the designers could have had no conception of, are high tributes to the sturdiness of this type of truss, the excellence of the workmanship and materials represented in the complete structures.

These vanishing examples of early bridge design for railroad superstructures, merit an honorable place as representatives of an important chapter in the evolution of the modern railroad bridge, and constitute an enduring monument of the ingenious and satisfactory manner in which a past generation of railroad builders encountered and solved the problems of their day.

It is interesting to recall that these structures were built under direction of J. L. Randolph, chief engineer, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, from 1863 to 1883, and in one pier of each bridge there was inserted a marble stone bearing the inscription "J. L. Randolph, Chief Engineer—1873."

The erection of the new bridges is progressing rapidly; each week one old span is removed and two new deck plate girder spans substituted, without interference with traffic.

Bridge No. 129, Valley Railroad of Virginia, Baltimore Division West End, Verona, Va.

The Valley of Virginia is always beautiful, especially at this harvest season of the year when its thousands upon thousands of apple trees are hanging heavy with fruit, and a visitor now may not only see Nature resplendent but also get a last peek at these old Bollman Trusses.

Bridge No. 120, Valley Railroad of Virginia, Baltimore Division West End, Cane Station, Va.

The Editor's Turn Table

BALTIMORE AND OHIO MAGAZINE

OFFICE: Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md.

ROBERT M. VAN SANT, Editor
 MARGARET TALBOTT STEVENS, Associate Editor
 M. W. JONES, Assistant Editor
 CHARLES H. DICKSON, Art Editor
 HERBERT D. STITT, Staff Artist
 GEORGE B. LUCKEY, Staff Photographer

One Man Power

A large railroad company covers a lot of territory, and it employs many thousands of men. BUT—the average person will form his conception of that company often through one individual. This individual may be a trucker in a freight house, a clerk in an information bureau, an agent in a small country station, a brakeman on a passenger train, or any one of the dozens of employees with whom patrons come in contact.

If the one employe is discourteous or inefficient, then it will take a tremendous amount of efficiency, courtesy and kindness on the part of many to overcome the bad impression given by the one who either didn't care or didn't think what the result of his discourtesy would be.

COURTESY pays, not only for a little while, but every day and every minute of the day, whether in your office, on the line or at home. DISCOURTESY drives away patronage from the railroad, as it does in the grocery or dry goods store.

Signs of Shiftlessness

What an indelible mark of shiftlessness it is, to see, as you walk through certain quarters of our great cities, the front doors of the houses standing open. Glimpses inside picture long, unswept hallways, dirty walls, and insanitary and unpleasant conditions generally.

Such also is the impression which a good operating man on a railroad, or even an observant traveler, gets of the road whose car doors in the long trains of empties are open. And with every impression that is given that a railroad is not a well kept, neat property, it drops that much in the esteem of the general public. The impression may hardly be a conscious one, but it is there just the same.

The MAGAZINE recently pictured a train showing a number of these empties with their doors open, and from cut the doors reached long, powerful, muscular human arms gripping the ground as the train went along and giving good pictorial representation of the fact that it takes about twenty per cent. more power to pull a box car with its doors open than it does if the doors are closed. That is the economy or efficiency side of the problem—certainly important enough to make every yardmaster and employe handling empty cars on the Road, want to see that the doors are closed.

Blindness

Five blind Hindus were brought to an elephant and told to describe him.

The first felt his tusks and said: "An elephant is like a war horn, hard and pointed."

The second felt his ear and said: "Oh, no! He is like a great wallet, in which one could keep all his wealth."

The third had seized the elephant's trunk. "Why," he said, "surely the elephant is like the young sapling—round and pliable."

Here the fourth, who had felt the flat hard sides of the patient animal, cut in. "He seems more like a fence to me—a great high fence, bulging with age."

"No, no," said the last blind Hindu, "all of you are wrong." Carefully he felt of the squirming tail once more. "The elephant is like a snake or an eel—wiggly and elusive."

With a snort of disgust the lumbering animal left the group, and for all we know these five blind Hindus may still be wrangling about the proper description of the patient beast of burden.

Many times, I too, am sightless. I gather a few facts about a topic, and then feel sure that I know all about it. I ram my ideas into my friend's protesting brain. I am indignant at his lack of knowledge on the subject at hand. His ignorance appalls me. I leave him serenely confident of my superior wisdom.

I confess it. Sometimes I am a blind, blind Hindu.

How about you?—The Atlantic Reflector.

Compensations

This editorial was thought out on a Pullman sleeper and penciled in a notebook the morning after. A Pullman sleeper is a good place to think, as you usually fail to go to sleep immediately.

As we lay in an upper berth, the thought came to us that everything has its compensations.

Practically everybody tries to get a lower berth; but when the lowers are gone, somebody must take the uppers. Next time it happens to you, reflect on these facts:

The upper berth is further from the wheels, in consequence of which you get less of the vibration. It is further from the windows, by reason of which you get less of the dirt. It is nearer to the electric fan attached to the ceiling. Also, in an upper berth you never have the uncomfortable feeling that the fellow upstairs is going to fall through on you.

There are probably other desirable features about an upper berth, but we felt so pleased about the few we figured out that we dropped off into contented sleep.

The point of this whole recital is, of course, that if you can't have the exact thing you want, you can always find a lot of nice things about the thing you can have.

—The Transmitter.

Homilies of the Hudson

The Tell-Tale Tune

A procession headed by a hearse preceded by a brass band has just passed my window. The "music" was more noisy than tuneful and the thought intruded itself as it has before, that the thing was savage and incongruous, as out of place as would be an organ in a jazz-joint. There followed behind the hearse five carriages filled with flowers and a long line of "mourners." The whole ostentatious show was of no consequence and did not produce any effect on the central figure, in the hearse. Why, then?

I would like to slide over the margin with the strains of Carrie Bond's "End of a Perfect Day" lightly agitating my tympanum and carrying its musical appeal to my last consciousness before "taps"; and have Mendelsohn's "Spring Song" greet my first consciousness at the succeeding reveille.

A brass band, with drum and cymbal after the final stop? Brrrr!

(Editor's Note: Which shows again that there is no accounting for tastes! Our friendly Philosopher of the Hudson, whose "taste" is expressed above, confided in the June issue that he was born in Sweden, one of the Scandinavian countries famous for the rugged men and music it produces. Its most famous recent composer was Edward Grieg, whose name would forever be illustrious for his Peer Gynt Suite alone, one part of which is called "The Death of Asa," mysterious, fascinating—a perfect musical shroud for the departing spirit. With this thing, reeking with the Scandinavian atmosphere, in his very blood, we wonder how Mr. N. could be happy with any less rugged strain.)

Speaking of brass bands, I venture to suggest that the one he heard was composed of Italians, that it was an Italian funeral, and that they were playing Chopin's "Funeral March." Chopin was not an Italian but he certainly knew their temperament, and for sheer depth of despair followed by exalted hope for the future, there is nothing like his famous dirge.

It is well, however, as Mr. Newman has often reminded us, to have a liberal taste, for there are few who can choose what the tune shall be!

Push or Brass

Lack of consideration for others, and disregard of their comfort and of the universal laws of comity, produce—"brass." Brazen impudence may be the result of the "atmosphere," influencing the growth of the young, or it may be a by-product of self-sufficiency and assertiveness. Here in N. Y. we are so used to it in our daily commingling with the world that we do not pay much attention to it. We call it "nerve." "Some nerve!" is often an exclamation of surprise mixed with admiration. Of course, if we are brought face to face with it ourselves, personally, it is different; then we feel aggrieved and resentful.

Upon all who have travelled, and observed, the "odious comparison" has most convincingly forced itself that nowhere in the wide world is this acquisition so well developed and common as in our beloved "Noo Yowk," where the art of how to behave is nearly as lost as yesterday. Politeness is subjected to ridicule and derision. Everywhere in public this impudence asserts itself. Pushing, elbowing and clawing for precedence, to obtain an unfair advantage over others, is resorted to by everybody; hence nobody has a right to complain; and hence the often remarked and boasted "good nature" of the New York crowds.

The fellows that sit in the cars with legs outstretched, allowing us to step over them, and those that expectorate out of the windows of moving cars regardless of the passenger at the next open window, are common nuisances. But there are worse examples of "brass." I have seen a young woman in a car, in close embrace of a male companion, and both of them resting their feet in the vis-a-vis seat, regardless of the fact that several people were standing, until one, with less patience than the rest, pulled the legs down with the crook of his umbrella.

On the sidewalks in the market district, where the commission merchants "own them," I have seen a colored gentleman run a handtruck loaded with bags of onions over the foot of a pedestrian and, instead of apologizing, offer to fight him for being a fool. And on the beaches not long ago, I saw a ruffian run down a two year old toddler, filling her eyes and mouth with sand, and then stop to abuse the frightened mother for not "keeping the kid by her."

This is all New York "push." The obvious answer of a New Yorker to the foregoing naturally is: "If you don't like 'Noo Yowk' get to h—out of it." But I am not finding fault with New York. I am only calling attention to one of its "peculiarities." I like N. Y. and boost its many wonders.

There is another sort of "nerve" that may be excusable because it has an object, such as is displayed by book and other peddlars, "go-getters," and evidenced in a letter, just passed to me for attention. It bears the heading of an employment bureau and is in regard to a man seeking employment and giving this office for "reference." It is a questionnaire and the list of questions numbers twenty-three, among which, in addition to the reasonable inquiries relative to the applicant's occupation, length of service and ability, are imposed the following, each question separate and with space for reply:—"Is he honest,"—"truthful,"—"loyal,"—"prompt,"—"punctual,"—"dependable?" Then follows questions regarding his "personal appearance," "habits" and vices: "Does he gamble,"—"smoke,"—"drink?" Finally a list of his relatives and his former employers is requested. "Some nerve!" Is it not an impertinence and imposition to submit such a questionnaire to a business office and expect it answered. Only the applicant's own conscience knows the answers to the queer queries.

THEY'RE HELPING MAINTAIN THE CAPITOL LIMITED'S ALREADY DISTINGUISHED RECORD

Top row: Pullman Conductor Whitlock and crew. Second row, left to right: Traveling Passenger Agent C. W. Allen; Assistant Station Master C. S. Townsend, Camden; Station Master J. T. Schley, Camden; Car Foreman O. M. Masters. Third row: E. W. Landes, Foreman, Line Gang; Electrician Harry Doyle; Fireman W. L. Glaze and Engineer E. B. Owens (dubbed "Spark Plug" and "Barney Google" by the train crew). Fourth row: Car Repairer L. M. Kube; Foreman F. Sherman, Pullman Department; Car Repairman's Helper Edward Berwinkler. Fifth row: Dining Car Steward Cantrell and crew.

Only Ten Minutes to Spare!

The story of a bad night in Signal Tower Z

Reprinted from the American Magazine by courtesy of the author.

HENRY F. PRINGLE

THE wind howled down over the crest of the mountains and threw itself against Signal Tower Z as though it would tumble the flimsy structure into the valley below. March was coming to an end contrary to all tradition. The warmth of spring seemed as distant as in the depth of winter. It had been raining steadily for a week and now it had grown colder. The gale carried a biting chill and a large proportion of sleet with the rain that it swept along.

Tower Z marked the half-way point of a forty-mile spur of the Midland railway, running north into the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania. On the 'time tables of the system the spur was known as the Pipestone Branch because of a large mine of that name which stood at its head. A solitary passenger train ran daily in each direction. But the branch was a valuable feeder because of the coal that it carried to the main line. It had but a single track.

Howard Branton, the youthful signalman at Tower Z, shivered a little as the wind made the small room in which he lived and worked tremble. Looking out from the window he was barely able to see the green light of the semaphore which indicated that the track was clear ahead.

"Clear enough!" he muttered to himself as men will who spend a large part of their time alone. "It's clear enough, all right, although it doesn't really make a blamed bit of difference to-night. This is one rotten hole to be stuck away in—nothing to see, nothing to do but wait for No. 3 and No. 6, which usually pass without even whistling. The Division Super doesn't know I'm alive. And they told me railroading was a fine job for a young fellow to work his way up in!"

Branton jabbed savagely at the fire in the old-fashioned stove which served to heat the tower. Youth is the time for companionship, and he was lonely. He had been at Tower Z for more than a year, and to twenty-two a year is a long time. The fact that back in his home town there was a girl named Susan, who had intimated that she could not wait too long, did not add to his patience. Susan had brown eyes and a very modern nature. She felt sure that she saw the world very clearly, and it is certain that she demanded much—but Branton was trying to put Susan out of his mind for the present.

It had been dark two hours now, and No. 6 had gone by at dusk. Unless a string of coal cars came down from the mines there was little chance of additional work. The coal trains ran on no definite schedule during the night. When enough cars had been filled, the dispatcher at the mine sent along a wire instructing the Tower Z signalman to see that the line was clear. This, in turn, was relayed to Tower W, which stood at the junction with the main line. The principal function of Tower Z was to guard against landslides, and particularly to watch the long trestle which carried the track to the south.

It was just eight o'clock when Branton was summoned to his key by hearing his own call repeated.

"No more freights," said the dots and dashes. "Thought I'd tell you, so you could turn in. It's a rotten night. The rails are coated with ice. Good night."

Branton returned the greeting. He then turned toward his radio receiving set, which had helped to lighten many of the weary hours at the tower. Possibly Susan would be listening to the same concert to-night, he thought, forgetting his determination to think of her but little. The possibility comforted him, however, and he opened an evening paper which the crew of No. 6 had tossed to him and looked for the broadcasting programs from Harrisburg and Pittsburgh.

Outside the storm was increasing in violence. The wind crashed against the sides of the tower with renewed vigor and bent huge trees growing near by almost to the ground. It was a bad night, the worst that Branton had experienced in the course of his year on duty. He was glad that no trains were due. The steady clicking of his telegraph instrument gave assurance, however, that the wires were still in place.

The radio programs that night were about as usual. Branton determined to tune in for the program to be broadcast by a newspaper at Harrisburg. Much was being made of the fact that an opera company was in town that night. Part of the performance was to be sent out into the ether. The twin operas "Pagliacci" and "Cavalleria Rusticana" were to be sung. The tenor in the leading roles, so the account read, was named Signor Sanitelli.

"All right, signor," said Branton to himself as he twirled the wave-length knob on the receiving set. "Show us what you've got."

HE adjusted the ear-piece to his head, as he seldom used the amplifier except when some of the miners or men on the freights stopped in for a brief concert on their way to the junction. The signalman found that the storm had affected the transmission but little. He listened somewhat impatiently to the bedtime stories, the market reports, and the fashion hints. Then came a series of news dispatches. Among them was one stating that the storm which was raging outside of the tower had covered a large area. Several lives had been lost in neighboring towns and villages. Finally, the voice of the announcer explained that the operatic performance was about to begin.

Branton was amazed at the clearness with which he heard the pure tones of the orchestra as the music started. He lit a pipe and waited for the curtain to go up. Now it seemed as though he were actually in the theatre at Harrisburg. The sound of the storm faded into the background, and the voice of Sanitelli moved him with its beauty. Before he was well aware of the passage of time the opera had ended, and the last notes of the sobbing Pagliacci had died away. Again came the howl of the wind and the tattoo of the sleet against the windows of the tower. The voice of the announcer stated that the usual news dispatches would be broadcasted during the intermission between the two operas. Branton jumped to his feet as the first one sounded to his ears:

Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, March 28 [it said], word has just been received here that fifty-eight men are buried in the Pipestone mine, which is located about fifty miles north of Altoona in the anthracite coal fields.

THE signalman hurried over to his telegraph key after throwing into position his radio amplifier, so that he would not have to depend on the ear-piece. He broke into the circuit and called the junction.

"Haven't heard a word," came back the answer from Tower W after Branton had described the message from the air. "This storm's raising Cain with the wires. I can't get Altoona. How are your own lines?"

"Seem O. K. so far," said Branton. "Let me know if you hear anything. Relief trains may be started out, you know."

The radio was silent for several anxious minutes and then:

Later dispatches state that the officials of the Pipestone mine believe the entombed men have taken refuge in an old shaftway, and that they are alive. The accident was caused by the collapse of No. 1 shaft after an explosion in a passage in which the night shift was working.

The mine owners telephoned to Altoona about fifteen minutes ago [said a still later message]. They ask for assistance in the shape of pulmonologists, doctors, and relief crews.

A dispatch from the Midland railroad officers [droned on the voice] states that a relief train is being manned. The train will consist of a high-speed locomotive and two coaches. It should reach the mine in about two hours.

Branton again rushed to the telegraph key in the corner. Operas, as far as he was concerned, were over for the night. The relief train would necessarily run over the Pipestone Branch and past his own signal tower. It would follow the main line of the Midland for forty-five miles. This part of the journey should take about an hour. Then would come the switch to the branch on the last leg of the trip. The grade from the junction was a descending one. Here the train could travel from sixty to seventy miles an hour despite the ice on the rails.

"Notice to all signalmen and dispatchers," came a message just as Branton reached his key:

"Special train leaves Altoona at 9.55 Eastern standard time for mine disaster at Pipestone field. Has right of way over all other traffic. Tower man at Z will—"

Here the instrument gave a final click. The signalman tried frantically to get the connection again. But the wires were cold; evidently the lines were down at some point between the chief dispatcher's office at Altoona and Tower Z. He swore to think that the break had occurred just as he was to receive vital instructions. He was glad to remember that his radio set was still, apparently, in working order. At least he would get some idea of what was going on by means of the dispatches which would probably continue from the newspaper office at Harrisburg. The sound of the wind and the storm sent a chill of apprehension down the young man's back.

The broadcaster at Harrisburg sent a final message stating that the special train had just left Altoona and that "with one hundred volunteer workers, ten physicians, and twenty-five nurses, it is now roaring through the storm on its errand of mercy."

A low rumble sounded from the ravine to the south of the signal tower. It was followed by sharp cracks which rose above the turmoil of the storm. Branton, horrified, heard the grinding of timbers and the crash and thunder of tons upon tons of earth in motion. The detonations, which reminded him of artillery fire, first made him think that part of the mountain was bearing down on the tower. He started for the door, but then the sound ceased and only the storm remained.

The signalman glanced in the direction of his telegraph key to see, whether by some miracle, connections had been re-established. But no signal came from the wire. Taking down a flashlight from a shelf he opened the door of the tower and was almost thrown back into the room by the force of the wind. With the gale blowing full in his face, he groped his way down the ice-coated track to the trestle across the ravine, which was about a hundred yards distant. His worst fears were realized. Part of an overhanging bluff had slipped away, due to undermining by the constant rain and the battering of the wind. The near end of the trestle had been crumpled and now lay twisted in the gorge. The single track of the Pipestone Branch ended in mid-air.

...With one hundred volunteer workers, ten physicians, and twenty-five nurses on board, the special train is now roaring through the rain and wind on its errand of mercy—

THE last dispatch from Harrisburg throbbed through his mind. The special was due at Tower W at the junction within an hour, and once the on-rushing train had turned into the branch line no power on earth could stop it from plunging off the end of the shattered trestle and crashing into the gorge with all on board.

For a moment Branton considered the possibility of building a fire, of burning the signal tower itself, in the hope that the glare against the sky might warn the engineer of the special that disaster lay ahead. Then he remembered that the track curved just before the trestle, and that a steep cliff obscured the view. The special, coasting on the down-grade from the junction, would be running at fearful speed. The signalman again groped his way to the side of the gorge and stood peering into darkness. The nearest bridge was two miles above, and the first house on his side of the canyon even farther. By the time that he could reach a telephone it might be too late. And, besides, the first duty of the tower guard was to remain at his post.

He hurried back to his tiny office, but the wires were still silent. Branton could not get connections in either direction.

The situation, he reflected, was hopeless. A long-abandoned mining company had dammed the stream almost opposite the tower and because of this obstruction a deep body of water, a hundred yards across and a half mile long, had been formed. The trestle was just below the dam. Help might lie across the stream; but Branton had no boat, and he could not swim well enough to get across in that way. The only boat he knew of was moored on the other side. The Fates seemed to have considered every factor and thrown them all against him. Branton knew that to clamber down below the dam would be suicidal, for the precipitous rocks were coated with ice. To go around the headwaters of the dam would take too long. The spring freshets meant that a full head of water was thundering over the dam, so he could not walk across that. And besides, came the ever-present reminder from the code of the tower man: he could not leave his post for more than a very few minutes!

While Branton had been out of the tower, the second of the two operas had started. An audience at the Harrisburg Opera House sat warm and dry and unconcerned while the train rushed on to destruction in an effort to save the entombed miners. The music seemed peculiarly loud, and made him feel the more helpless.

THE signalman was out of breath from his battle with the storm and weary with a feeling of horror that he must stand idly by, powerless to help, when the rushing train crashed off the trestle. Finally he dropped into a chair. In doing so his hand brushed against the knob that controlled the wave-length mechanism. The singing had just started, but instead of the bell-like tones of Signor Sanitelli, a piercing, wailing screech came from the horn.

Branton recalled that on previous occasions the amplifier had given forth loud and raucous tones when the wave-length apparatus had been improperly adjusted. Suddenly he conceived the idea of utilizing the weird sounds.

Only a short distance on the other side of the dam was a house, but it had seemed as remote as the poles, because of the barriers in the way. In it lived a man named Tompkins, a somewhat eccentric character, who had made good in the days when mining had been more of a matter of individual hard work and luck. His home was crude but comfortable and, most important of all, as Branton recalled, he had a telephone, and the telephone wires might still be intact. Moreover, he owned the solitary boat on the other side.

Feverishly Branton took down a coil of double-strand telegraph wire from the wall. He attached the ends to the receiving set and ran headlong into the night, this time with the amplifier in his arms. Unrolling the wire as he went, he hastened along the track to the edge of the gorge. He quickly adjusted the wires to the horn.

"If only Sanitelli will yell his head off now!" he muttered to himself as he dashed back to the tower and twirled the knob on the radio set. Faintly, because of the fact that the wind was blowing against the sound, he heard a wailing and screeching from the horn. The signalman hurried outside again, taking with him two small chairs, a can of kerosene and an armful of dry kindling wood.

Across the water, carried by the gale, the wild sounds from the amplifier swept out into the night. Branton hastily piled his kindling wood on the ground and soaked it with the oil. Using his body to shield the flame of a match from the wind, he ignited the pile, and in a moment flames were leaping ten feet into the air. On the top of the blaze he threw the chairs. He hesitated for a moment to listen, and wished that a more powerful singer had been engaged by the Sanitelli Opera Company, a soprano with a high pitched voice, or Caruso at his best.

"If only Tompkins will come out of his cabin and look across the stream!" cried Branton aloud as if in prayer, as he again returned to his post at the tower. His wires connecting with the outside world were still dead. It seemed as though an hour had passed since he had heard the roar of the landslide. Half afraid, he looked at his watch and was relieved to find that it was only ten-ten. The special would still be forty-five minutes in reaching the junction. The door of the tower opened and Branton leaped to greet Tompkins, who stood, holding an oar in his hand, dripping with rain and melting sleet and watching him as though convinced of the signalman's insanity.

"What in blazes," he demanded, "is the

"Yes, and you've got to help. Is your 'phone working?"

"It's workin' right enough," said the old man, still puzzled and unimpressed; "but what gets you so het up? Supposin' the durned trestle is down? They ain't no more trains to-night, is there?"

"But there is a train," answered Branton. "There's trouble up at the mines. A Then tell them to broadcast this message at once, and to wire all other plants to send it out also. And hurry, hurry!"

HE scribbled a message on a telegraph blank and rushed Tompkins, suddenly galvanized to action, out of the door. There was only a chance, a very faint chance, that the plan would work.

Across the water, carried by the gale, the wind sounds from the amplifier swept out into the night matter with you? I near got drowned crossin' that pond in the storm. But I hears that racket and looks out o' the window, and then I sees your fire. Are you celebratin' a raise in pay or are you drunk?"

"The trestle's down," burst out Branton.

"So that's what happened a little while ago? I thought I heard a lot o' noise."

special's on the way. My wires are down, so that I can't get the junction—I can't get any place at all. The train will start on its way here from Tower W in less than an hour. You're the last chance. Tell the telephone operator to try for Altoona and the junction. If you don't get either, try to get the Westinghouse radio plant at Pittsburgh.

But Tompkins would act swiftly and with intelligence, the signalman knew, for the man had gone through several mine disasters himself, and would be spurred on by the plight of the entombed men.

"I got 'em, boy, I got 'em," came a triumphant call some minutes later from the doorway, and Branton turned from his still useless telegraph key to grasp the miner's hand.

"Tell me about it," he demanded.

"I gave the girl at the exchange your message," he said. "I said to burn the wires to Pittsburgh. I got the Westinghouse plant inside of three minutes after she'd said the Altoona wires was down and no answer came from the junction.

"I'm talkin' for Tower Z of the Midland-Pipestone Branch," I says to 'em. 'They's been a landslide,' I says. 'The wires is down. A special is hell-bent for the cave-in up to the mines, and will run off a busted trestle unless she's stopped pronto. We can't get to the junction to warn 'em. If you folks'll broadcast this here message maybe some radio nut near the junction will pick it up and tell 'em to stop the train.' Then I reads 'em your message."

During this time the amplifier, which Branton had brought back to the tower was giving forth the strains of the second opera. It fell on unhearing ears, for Branton failed to share the optimism expressed by the older man, who seemed certain that the message would be heard and the train halted. Both men then looked toward the wireless.

"Stand by for important announcement," came the voice of the broadcaster again, this time breaking into the music. "The Harrisburg radio station has just received the following message from the Westinghouse plant at Pittsburgh:

"All persons living near the Midland railway system and particularly on the line running from Altoona to Pipestone junction are urged to see whether they can intercept special train on way to disaster at mine. Trestle is down and wires not working. You have only a few moments to save more than a hundred lives!"

"There's your message now, boy," cried Tompkins in triumph, "that'll get 'em. What'd I tell you?"

"It's weird," returned Branton. "I never felt before the way I do now. The special won't get to the junction for twenty minutes. And I know of a dozen people near there with radio receiving sets. It may work, Tompkins!"

In an effort to quiet his own nerves, Branton made a cup of coffee for himself and the miner. His watch showed that the was now eleven o'clock. Either the special had been saved by this time, or was beyond the reach of mortal hands. Both men, from time to time, looked appealingly at the radio amplifier, as if their very anxiety might persuade it to speak. At last they heard the voice of the announcer:

For the information of those who heard the appeal to stop the special [it said], we are happy to state that the train was halted at the junction. We have no further details. Good night.

"You done it, boy!" burst out the miner.

BUT Branton did not speak. The strain of the past hour left him numb.

He was soon alone in the tower again, as Tompkins returned to his home. The telegraph instruments were still silent.

The hours of the night passed slowly, but at last the eastern sky beyond the horizon of the hills turned from black to gray and from gray to white. The rain had stopped entirely and the coming of the sun brought faint touches of pink, which rested, in kindly fashion, on the rocks and crags of the mountains. Branton stumbled to his feet as dawn crept through the windows of the signal tower.

He hurried down the track to the trestle, where a scene of the wildest confusion met his eyes. The track swung crazily in the air on the near side of the gorge, for the landslide had torn away the supporting timbers and braces.

Branton was eating a makeshift breakfast when he heard the whistle of a locomotive and again hurried out of the tower. On the other side of the ravine he saw an engine to which was coupled a large derrick. A flat gondola car at the end of the train was piled high with lumber, rails, and other equipment for repair work.

"Hello!" called out the engineer of the locomotive, leaving his cab and advancing along the track to the point where the break had occurred. "Hear you had some trouble."

"Just a little," replied Branton, standing on the side of the ravine. "How long will it be before things are going again? And what's happened up at the mines? I can't make a soul answer over my wires."

"Guess we'll get the break done by night," answered the engineer. "I haven't any dope about the mine. The Division Super sent this message to you. I'll wrap it around a stone and toss it over."

THE engineer folded a telegraph blank, which he took from his hat, around a pebble and threw it to Branton. The young man read the message eagerly, and then frowned in bewilderment.

"What does it mean?" he called to the engineer, who was watching him with a delighted grin.

"I don't know a thing, son," was the reply. "Don't know a thing. Well, I'll see you later."

He turned and hurried back to his locomotive. Branton opened the telegram from his chief once more.

Listen in on Harrisburg program tonight [it said].

Branton, after getting a few hours' rest, returned to his post in the afternoon and was surprised when, at eight o'clock, the engineer, the foreman of the wrecking crew, and a number of the workmen appeared at the tower.

"We laid a little foot-bridge across the busted part of the trestle," explained the engineer. "We want to hear this radio stuff. Got her wound up yet?"

"Come on in," smiled Branton, "she's wound up all right. Hello, Tompkins; you here, too?"

"Stand by for news dispatches from Harrisburg," ordered the voice of the broadcaster from the amplifier which Branton had again attached, this time so that his audience could listen in. The little circle of men leaned forward eagerly.

Philadelphia, March 29 [began the dispatch]. A special train, with more than a hundred people on board, was saved last night when a farmer living near Tower W at the Pipestone junction of the Midland railway heard an appeal on his radio set to warn the engineer that a trestle on the branch ahead had been torn away by a landslide.

In a statement issued from his offices here today, E. H. Merriam, president of the Midland system, declared that the credit should go to Howard Branton, a youthful signalman.

One of the worst storms in the history of the state swept through the Allegheny Mountains last night. Branton, having been told by wire that a special was being hurried to the mine, was on guard. He—

"Hey, what'd you cut her out for?" came from Tompkins, as the voice suddenly stopped. "What's the big idea? It was just gettin' excitin'."

"I know most of the rest of it myself," returned Branton, his face crimson. "But what did the relief workers do? Did they get to the mine? And where did the newspaper get all that stuff?"

"I told 'em some of it," admitted Tompkins. "I got so blamed curious about the fellers at the mine that I called up a newspaper office at Johnstown this mornin'. The editor tells me that the relief squads continued the trip by auto after the train was stopped, and that most of the miners were safe. Then he made me tell him what you done. The boys fixin' the trestle said I wasn't to let on."

The audience then filed slowly out of the door and back to work of repairing the trestle. Branton was alone again—confused but happy and glad. After all, his chance had come and he had made good. He wondered whether Susan had heard, Susan of the brown eyes. Maybe she had just been listening in. Possibly promotion would follow, and possibly she would not think that he was so slow. His thoughts were interrupted by the click of the telegraph, the wires having been repaired. His own call sounded.

Proud and happy [came the message]. Heard it all. When will I see you? SUSAN.

"Can I send a return message?" he asked the operator.

"Sure," came the telegraphic answer.

Coming first furlough [he clicked].

Miss Lilian Says:

If some of our boys were as anxious to learn the "line of rail" as they are "the line of track," more money would go into the Christmas Fund! —Lilian E. Schueler

Consignees Usually Willing to Do Their Part if Railroad Does Its Part in Moving Cars

By O. L. WALLBURG, Chief Clerk to Freight Agent, Lima, Ohio

A REMARKABLE showing has been made by the Western Lines on car mileage and yet it seems to me we have only scratched the surface. If every employe having anything to do with car handling would concentrate every energy and effort to the end that the time a car is standing still shall be reduced to the minimum, I am absolutely certain that 40 miles per car per day could be reached easily.

To do this means that the minute a car is loaded, billed out and ready for movement, everyone connected with the handling of it must be on his toes ready for it to come. The man authorizing its loading must see that there are no defects serious enough to involve a transfer after it is loaded. It must be carefully sealed to avoid delay en route by reason of pilferage or loss of contents. It must be correctly billed to avoid delay at any terminal. Accepting shipments, especially carloads, in the face of embargoes, routing improperly, and failure to show complete information, mean delay and consequently less car mileage.

The Yard Clerk Can Move Cars!

I doubt if yard clerks everywhere realize what an important position they fill in the railroad field. By their watchfulness and care they can assist materially in increasing our car miles, by exercising care in the listing of cars to yard conductors; every error means delay. They should always keep ahead of the game and have all tracks listed to avoid a hurry up check and consequent errors and subsequent alibis. They should always be careful in filing bills. A misplaced bill or home route card spells delay and how it does cut into car mileage! Time is lost telephoning and wiring for copy of bill and home route. After a week or so the bill turns up from where? No one knows. But the car has been standing still all the time.

A "Nobill" never earns money for the Company. This delay may mean loss of patronage involving thousands of dollars annually. How fast does it travel? It's glued to the rails. That's not transportation. And car mileage is not increased. The more "nobills," the less car mileage.

Superintendent Transportation G. D. Brooke Says—

"An intimate knowledge of yard office work is apparent in Mr. Wallburg's interesting article.

"Of course, the big factors in car mileage are keeping left-overs in yards down to 10 or 15%—which means a plentiful supply of good power; preventing congestion by regulating business with embargoes, etc., proper schedule for yard work so that cars will be placed in outbound trains quickly after loaded and moved to industrial plants promptly on arrival at destination, and prompt loading and unloading by the railroads at freight and store houses and by the public on private sidings and at team tracks."

Consignees Willing to Cooperate

After car arrives at terminal and is delivered to consignee, or to interchange track for further movement, and proper data is furnished agent or connection, so that consignee may receive prompt notice, every individual car should be handled with consignee to secure prompt unloading. In nine cases out of ten the consignee will be on the job in two hours, yes, sometimes in less than that after you notify him. The consignee and shipper are earnestly striving to help the railroads in their present situation by releasing equipment promptly. Of course, there are exceptions, but they are in the minority and they are rapidly getting the correct viewpoint, that in order to help their business, they must release equipment promptly. They know that otherwise it is tied up everywhere, and their business suffers.

If consignee does not commence unloading during his first 24 hours of free time, the matter should be taken up with him at once, not arbitrarily, but on the basis of keeping his patronage. It should be explained courteously that the car he is holding up is badly needed for another load.

After cars are released they should be listed and moved out empty in the next switch movement. Again I say the next switch movement. Who has ever taken up with consignees to secure prompt release of equipment and has not met with a counter proposal that the railroads move out the empties? Then patrons will see that we mean business and will expedite the release of cars to a greater extent.

Nothing retards the efforts of a railroad more in securing shipper's or consignee's cooperation in prompt release of cars than allowing the very same cars after they have been released by the consignee (often at additional expense to himself), to stand idle on his siding for 3 or 4 days, or a week, before they are moved.

When the consignees see that the Baltimore and Ohio means all it says, about more car mileage, and moves his empties out in the first switch after he has released them, our car mileage will be increased still more by the increasing effort put forth by the consignees to release their equipment. I believe none of our conductors or yardmasters fails to realize what it means to our patrons when his switch is not given attention currently. He releases the car and it is not moved out next day. His aggravation grows. Result; Company loses revenue somehow, at sometime. When? We do not know, but we know it does. On the other hand when he releases his car and it moves in the next switch he appreciates it. Result; More business and more revenue. Remember an idle car is earning no revenue and making no mileage.

Hide the Pin Point!

By W. L. WHITING, Chief Clerk, Washington, D. C., Freight Office

In connection with the ever present Campaign for "Safety" there is one little suggestion that comes to the mind of the writer as being worth sending in, and that is in regard to the manner in which pins are inserted in papers, when it is necessary to attach one or more papers to a file. Many a finger has been poisoned by the prick of a pin sticking out from papers when opening an envelope in a hurry, and if, when the pin is inserted, one more movement is made and the pin point hidden under the first or second paper in the file, it will result in safety to all who handle the file afterwards, and thus prevent, perhaps, serious injury to someone. "PREVENTION IS BETTER THAN CURE!"

RETIRED FREIGHT CLAIM AGENT
C. V. LEWIS

Mr. Lewis was with the Baltimore and Ohio for many years. He is the father of Freight Traffic Manager H. R. Lewis, Cincinnati. He is now at his home, "The Pines," near Medoc, Indiana. His faithful dog, Teddy, is a confirmed camera friend.

President Harding's Trans-Continental Journey

Intimate Observations from the Diary of Ernest Chapman, Captain of Police and Member of Party

ONE of the interesting things in connection with the movement of the Presidential party over the Baltimore and Ohio and thence to Alaska was the fact that three Baltimore and Ohio men accompanied the party all the way. These were Col. Walter V. Shipley, division passenger agent, Washington, D. C., who had charge of the train; Captain of Police Ernest Chapman, Parkersburg, W. Va.; and Baggage Agent W. A. Clark, Camden Station.

One of the most interesting reports of the journey that we have read was sent in the form of a report by Captain Chapman to General Superintendent of Police Denton, at Baltimore. We only regret that it is not possible, because of space limitations, to publish the entire report in the MAGAZINE. Mr. Chapman was well known to the late President Harding, for he had accompanied him some years ago on his Presidential campaign.

President Harding's Interest in People

The fact that President Harding was always ready to come out to speak to the people, sometimes even getting up at six o'clock in the morning and coming out on the platform of the train in his dressing gown, was one of the first things mentioned in the story; his untiring attention to Mrs. Harding and consideration of the members of his party were always impressive. Then follows the story of the many, many receptions, of the journey through the lovely Yellowstone, of the Pioneer Dance at Meachan, Ore., where the President and Mrs. Harding led the grand march; the smoking of the Peace Pipe, the visit to the disabled veterans of the World War at Portland.

"One of the striking features of the entire trip," says Mr. Chapman, "was the democratic manner in which the President and Mrs. Harding displayed their good will and friendship by making special inquiry concerning and requesting to meet, on all railroads, the officers and employes, and in having them come to the private car, where they were received with great courtesy. Col. Shipley, who was in charge of transportation, and Mr. Clark, who was in charge of baggage, were both well liked by the members of the party. I heard much favorable comment about them."

Alaska a Land of Surprises

The description of the journey through Alaska, the land of almost perpetual daylight during the summer, is particularly interesting. Mr. Chapman tells us that it was a hard matter to go to sleep while it was almost as light as day. They could easily see well enough to read on deck of the ship at midnight, and at no time on their journey through Alaska did they see a dark night. Imagine a regular baseball game at midnight!

The luxuriant vegetation, rhubarb four to five feet high, roses and peonies a foot in diameter, trees growing out of rocks and in places where it seemed absolutely impossible for vegetation of any kind to exist, all these are the result of the dampness of the country and the warmth of the Japan current which modifies the temperature of the five thousand islands in the midst of which the party passed.

Alaskans Don't Lock Their Doors

"We were impressed," he says, "with the high standard of personnel of the people in charge of the activities on these islands. We saw many canneries, and those in these canneries were generally graduates of eastern colleges. We were impressed with the high standard of citizenship of the white population of Alaska. They told us that they never lock their doors and that nothing is ever stolen. This seems to be accounted for by the fact that if anyone stops in Alaska and violates this code of honor, he is put into a boat and told that he is better off away from Alaska. The whites in Alaska represent the survival of the fittest: they are the men and women who are not afraid of pioneer life, and whose character is as rugged, and in many ways, as attractive as the scenery."

Of the precautions taken to insure the safety of the President, Mr. Chapman tells us: "A destroyer went before and another behind the Henderson. These destroyers were equipped with special sounding devices, and at times, rather than take any risk, the Henderson would ride at anchor."

The story of Father Duncan, a pioneer missionary in Alaska, is delightfully interesting, as is the description of the visits to Metlakatla, Wrangle, Juneau and Skagway, where he tells a tale of the days of the Gold Rush. Then comes the baseball game at midnight, and later the story of how President Harding rode the engine of the Copper River Railroad. The fishing industry occupies a section in the story, as does also the lore of the totem poles of the Alaskan Indians.

Mr. Chapman's description follows the journey all the way, including the arrival of the party in San Francisco and the death of the President.

"I am unable to describe in words how the news of the President's death shocked the members of the party," he says.

He describes Mrs. Harding as a truly "wonderful woman." "She is ever looking after the welfare of others, realizing in her own private sorrow that her countrymen had certain rights in connection with the going of their President.

"Mrs. Harding observed the crowds waiting along the line, and in the towns—and even the country sections between the towns—the tracks would be lined with automobiles. The people would leave their cars and stand at attention, while the train sped swiftly by. Mrs. Harding requested that the train should not exceed ten miles per hour through the communities where the crowds had gathered to pay their last tribute. Thereafter Mrs. Harding's wish was followed all the way into Washington.

"At Chicago about one and a half millions of people lined the railroad tracks. We were two hours running 19 miles through Chicago, it being necessary to use the pilot of the engine to force the people off the track, and it required four of the city policemen and myself to keep the crowd off the rear car in which the President's body rested. At many stops the bands were playing the Star Spangled Banner and funeral marches. Floral designs of all kinds were presented everywhere along the sad journey across the continent.

"The flag which still rests upon the casket of the late President was personally carried by me from the Southern Pacific Station to and into the room in which the President's body lay.

"The Guard of Honor, consisting of four military men, was supposed to stand at attention when on duty throughout the entire journey from San Francisco to Washington, but Mrs. Harding, still thinking of the welfare of others, instructed those in charge to allow the military guard to sit down while running between towns."

There is a wealth of other interesting incidents in Captain Chapman's story, as may be judged from this brief description, and we hope to be able to present some of these as they appear in his diary, in future issues of the MAGAZINE.

Chief of Police Ernest Chapman, Parkersburg, as he appeared during the war as a government employe in the Plant Protection Service

Above: Winding rivers which tread their way deep down in timeworn gorges are only suggestive of the many charms of the Butler Branch

Left: The Clarion River winds through wooded hills

A Gallon of Coffee a Day for Henry Grandon

By CHARLOTTE MARLOWE, Office of Agent, Parkersburg

AT last! Henry Grandon caught by Kodak! And you'll all agree that the likeness just can't be beat! It's a sure enough taken-from-life photo. Mr. Grandon, better known as "Hank," has been in the service for more than forty years continuously and is still able to turn out more work than any man we know. His age (67 years) doesn't seem to make any material difference as far as his efficiency is concerned.

For a period of 35 years Mr. Grandon has never tasted water! (We think he would make a good "shiek," he could stand the deserts, just like a camel.) Henry drinks one gallon of coffee daily, which takes the place of water.

No water for Henry Grandon, 67 years old, 40 years in service

We one and all hope to see Mr. Grandon continue the good work he has carried on during the 40 years of his service. Oh, yes, we almost forgot to mention the pipe! If we were to meet "Hank" without that pipe we just simply wouldn't recognize him. It's always in the one position; note the way he grips it. "Hank" became quite attached to the birds that built their nests in his beard in the spring, but they have gone South for the winter, and he is lonely indeed.

Death of John F. Lehrer

JOHN F. LEHRER, a veteran of the Baltimore and Ohio, died on August 2, at his late home, 109 S. Calhoun Street, Baltimore, from a complication of diseases. Mr. Lehrer was born in Philadelphia on April 25, 1835. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service in 1855 as a blacksmith at Mt. Clare and served until he was retired in August, 1906, as a general blacksmith and tool-dresser.

Mr. Lehrer was beloved by his shop mates and all others who came in contact with him. He was a Civil War veteran and enlisted in Company B, 8th Maryland Volunteer Infantry, 2nd Brigade, 2nd Division, 5th Army Corps of the Army of the Potomac, with the rank of sergeant, from August 19, 1862 to May 31, 1865. He fought in the Battles of the Wilderness, Laurel Hill, Spotsylvania, Petersburg and in many other important engagements of the war. The funeral services were held on Monday morning, August 6, with a solemn requiem high mass at St. Martin's Roman Catholic Church and burial in Loudon Park Cemetery. Mr. Lehrer is survived by a widow, Mrs. Ellen Lehrer, a daughter, Miss Ella M. Lehrer, five sons John F., Jr., William H., Chas. P., James F., Patrolman Lawrence L. of the Baltimore Police Department and 10 grandchildren. The pall bearers were Comrades of A. W. Dodge Post No. 44 of the G. A. R.

The Beautiful Butler Branch

An Interesting and Attractive Pamphlet Written by MISS OLIVE DENNIS

"BACK to Nature on the Beautiful Butler Branch," is the title of an interesting folder compiled by Miss Olive Dennis, inspector of passenger service.

The folder contains, in addition to a bit of history concerning the points on and in the vicinity of the Clarion River, a list of the hotels and boarding houses on the Butler Branch, and the prices charged at each, a number of attractive cuts of scenes along the line between Pittsburgh and Mt. Jewett and tales of the days when Indians roamed about that section of the country. The lumber, iron and oil industries are described, and help to make the folder attractive enough to make anybody wish to spend a vacation in scenic Pennsylvania.

Please—

Send to the Magazine Office all Surplus Copies of the May, July and August issues.

They are needed!

The late John F. Lehrer

Scenes on Tour of Soil Fertility Special

"Soil Doctor Special" Gets Hearty Response from Maryland Farmers

Baltimore and Ohio Soil Fertility Train Helped by University of Maryland, County Agents and Lime Manufacturers

By O. K. QUIVEY, General Agricultural Agent

THE Maryland Soil Fertility Special conducted by the Baltimore and Ohio, under supervision of its Commercial Development Department, in co-operation with the University of Maryland Agricultural Extension Service and Experiment Station, and with the various agencies interested in the promotion of the three forms of agricultural lime, proved to be one of the most effective agricultural demonstration and promotion trains ever operated.

Starting out from Baltimore on the morning of August 20, the Special made a total of nineteen stops, visiting the twelve Maryland counties traversed by the Baltimore and Ohio. The first meeting was held at Cowenton and the program was opened by Agricultural Agent P. O. Hurley who explained the purpose that the Special was endeavoring to serve to Maryland farmers. He was followed by Dr. Woods, President of the University of Maryland, who expressed his gratitude for the wonderful cooperative movement between the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the University of Maryland, together with the various manufacturers of liming materials. Dr. Woods stated that farmers should be gratified with the excellent service being given them by the railroads instead of clamoring for a reduction of freight rates, which is at present the popular cry among so many farming communities. He said that the farmer cannot expect the railroads to reduce their rates greatly, as the present rates are based upon cost, plus only a reasonable return and that it was only fair that the railroads should have this.

Dr. Woods was followed by Dr. J. H. Patterson, Director of the University of Maryland Experiment Station, and Dr. A. G. McCall, Maryland's expert authority on soil fertility.

Wide publicity had previously been given the train. Farmers had been asked to bring samples of their unproductive soil to the train where it would be analyzed by the Soil Doctors in much the same way that the physician makes an analysis of human ills, and that following the analysis the Soil Doctor would write a prescription calling for just that material needed by the "sick soil." As the prescription was handed to the farmer, who brought his soil sample in for analysis, he was invited to back his wagon up to the train where his prescription was filled with enough liming material of the kind indicated in the prescription to correct on one acre the condition which exists in his soil and which prevents adequate crop production.

The Maryland Soil Fertility Special was met by good crowds of real farmers, Oakland, Maryland, having the largest turnout, 750 people. A total of twelve carloads of liming materials, namely, burnt lime, hydrated lime and ground limestone, were distributed gratis for demonstration purposes to Maryland farmers by the Special.

In writing the prescriptions, Dr. McCall prescribed at least two forms of liming materials, in order that the farmer could make his own test with the different forms and determine which gave him the best results. It became a common occurrence, as the trip progressed, to hear farmers express surprise at the small amount of lime needed to correct their soil troubles, it being the common belief that several tons per acre were required, whereas the actual tests made on the train by the soil experts showed that the lime requirements were much less.

Several Maryland county agents have stated that liming materials will now be used more liberally by farmers, who have previously been afraid to use lime in the belief that such large quantities of this commodity were necessary effectively to neutralize soil acidity. At the conclusion of the schedule, Dr. McCall, on behalf of the University of Maryland and the other cooperative agencies, tendered the Baltimore and Ohio a vote of thanks for the splendid cooperation that was given in the planning and conduct of the Maryland Soil

(Continued on page 33)

On the opposite page, see—

"When the Soil Doctors Came to Town"

The picture at the top of the page shows the Soil Fertility Special at Hagerstown, Md. Below this are those in charge of the "school" and the distribution of lime, etc., to the farmers. Left to right are: Professor A. M. Smith and Professor J. M. Snyder, of the University of Maryland; P. O. Hurley, Agricultural Agent, Baltimore and Ohio; H. M. Camp, of the National Lime Association; Professor F. W. Oldenburg and Mr. Bowers, of the University of Maryland; Mr. Emack, Mr. E. H. Bunkley, and Mr. E. Smith, County Agent, Hagerstown. The third picture shows the "school" in session, the farmers learning a few things about the needs of the soil in their own particular locality. In the lower picture a farmer has just backed up his cart for a free distribution of lime.

Above: Farmers awaiting their turn to get lime at Childs, Md. Below: Testing soil samples brought in by farmers

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY

Relief Department—Advisory Committee

Conducting Transportation Department

L. W. GRAHAM.....	Operator.....	Kanawha Station, W. Va.
CHARLES H. CRAWFORD.....	Yard Brakeman.....	Glenwood, Pa.
GEORGE G. JAMES.....	Conductor.....	Baltimore, Md.
JOHN F. WUNNER.....	Clerk.....	New York, N. Y.

Motive Power Department

K. W. GEIDENBERGER.....	Pipefitter.....	Newark, Ohio.
WILLIAM E. HODEL.....	Material Man.....	Grafton, W. Va.
P. J. HARRIGAN.....	Mechanical Examiner.....	Connellsville, Pa.
J. W. ALBERTS.....	Machinist.....	Chicago, Ill.

Maintenance of Way Department

W. A. EVANS.....	Section Foreman.....	Louis, Ill.
M. D. CAROTHERS.....	Asst. Engineer Maintenance.....	Chicago, Ill.
F. A. TAYLOR.....	Master Carpenter.....	Cumberland, Md.
F. M. NOLDER.....	Section Foreman.....	Westboro, Ohio.

Statement of Pension Feature

Employees who have been honorably retired during the month of August, 1923, and to whom pensions have been granted:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	YEARS OF SERVICE
Bissett, George W.....	Car Inspector.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	42 <sup>2</sup>
Hopkins, Thomas.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Wheeling.....	44
McAdow, Charles F.....	Yard Brakeman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	St. Louis.....	50
McConnell, Albert E.....	Gate Tender.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Akron.....	44
McGinnis, Alexander W.....	Supplyman.....	Motive Power.....	Toledo.....	32
Merritt, George R.....	Car Inspector.....	Motive Power.....	Ohio.....	25
Mills, John F.....	Brakeman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Newark.....	33
Phipps, Edward.....	Laborer.....	Motive Power.....	Cumberland.....	50
Schmitt, Ernest D.....	Fireman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Cumberland.....	24

The payments to pensioned employees constitute a special roll contributed by the Company.

During the calendar year 1922, $400,008.10 was paid out through the Pension Feature to those who have been honorably retired.

The total payments since the inauguration of the Pension Feature, October 1, 1884, to June 30, 1923, amount to $5,240,283.65.

The following pensioned employees, after serving the Company faithfully for a number of years, have died:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	DATE OF DEATH	YEARS OF SERVICE
BEVANS, EDWARD.....	Laborer.....	Motive Power.....	Indiana.....	August 10, 1923...	47
Boone, Melvin.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Indiana.....	August 17, 1923...	44
Boyd, D. W.....	Oil Issuer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Baltimore.....	August 10, 1923...	23
Brown, Michael.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Ohio.....	August 22, 1923...	52
Cowman, James H.....	Blacksmith Helper.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	August 30, 1923...	40
Houser, George P.....	Carpenter.....	Motive Power.....	Ohio.....	August 9, 1923...	35
Lehrer, John F.....	Blacksmith.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	August 2, 1923...	35
Murphy, John.....	Crossing Watchman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Toledo.....	July 25, 1923...	35
Powell, James.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Cumberland.....	August 4, 1923...	49
Riley, Timothy.....	Crossing Watchman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Chicago.....	August 5, 1923...	43
Tidd, Michael.....	Laborer.....	Motive Power.....	St. Louis.....	August 12, 1923...	43
Turfield, Ella B.....	Car Cleaner.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	August 29, 1923...	25
Woods, Henry B.....	Baggage Master.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Connellsville.....	August 13, 1923...	28

Pensioners' Roll of Honor

*Oh, blest retirement! friend of life's decline—
Retreat from care that ever must be thine:
How blest is he who crowns, in shades like these,
A youth of labor with an age of ease.*

OLIVER GOLDSMITH—"The Deserted Village"

Arthur W. Booth

Arthur W. Booth, pensioned yardmaster, Chicago Terminal Division, was born on April 5, 1858 at Ainsworth, Lake County, Ind. He first entered railroad service with the Wisconsin Central Railroad at Stevens Point, Wis., in 1880.

On October 26, 1897, Mr. Booth came to the Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal, as a transfer service employe. He was made assistant general yardmaster (night service) on November 1, 1906, and on January 1, 1916, assistant general yardmaster, East Chicago. His name was placed on the sick list on March 22, this year, and his retirement was listed on August 7.

Edward Phipps

Edward Phipps was born in 1857. He entered the service on March 1, 1873 as track laborer. In 1909 he was appointed pumper at Cumberland and in 1912 hostler at Magnolia. In 1913 he went to Cumberland as painter's helper and in 1914 was transferred to the position of laborer. He retained this position until his recent retirement.

Charles A. Kight

Charles A. Kight was born on December 3, 1854, near Westernport, Md. He lived on a farm until March 21, 1883, on which date he entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as a car repairer at Piedmont, W. Va. In 1905 he was made car inspector, in 1906, boilermaker's helper, in 1908 janitor, the latter being the position he held at the time of his recent retirement.

John F. Mills

John F. Mills was born in 1858. He entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio in 1879 as section laborer. In 1896 he was transferred to position of freight brakeman, which position he held at the time of his recent retirement.

Louis Richter

Louis Richter was born in Germany on June 4, 1858. He first entered railroad service in his native city, Hanover, when about 17 years old, his first duties being in a machine shop. Mr. Richter says that the laws in Germany are very strict as to applicants for railroad positions, especially in the Transportation Department. An applicant for position as fireman is required to spend one year in a shop in order to learn the various parts of an engine. After this experience he is permitted to enter service as a fireman and thereafter earns his promotion to engineer.

After several years service in Germany, Mr. Richter came to the United States, arriving on August 25, 1885. He went to work as a machinist on the Illinois Central about two weeks later. He then was employed by the Chicago, Harlem and Batavia Railroad, which road was later taken over by the Great Western and later by the Chicago Terminal Railroad.

Of special interest is the fact that Charles Hegley, now train examiner, Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal, was assistant superintendent of the C. H. & B. Railroad when Mr. Richter started his career in the United States.

Mr. Richter entered Baltimore and Ohio service at Chicago as an engineer on September 1, 1888, which position he held at the time of his recent retirement. He is married and has one daughter living.

"Soil Doctor Special" Gets Hearty Response from Maryland Farmers

(Continued from page 31)

Fertility Special. In this connection the following letter is interesting:

UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND AGRICULTURAL EXPERIMENTAL STATION
College Park, Maryland

August 28, 1923

Mr. O. K. Quivey
General Agricultural Agent
Baltimore and Ohio Bldg.
Baltimore, Md.

Dear Mr. Quivey:

I wish to extend to you an expression of our appreciation of the interest which the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is taking in the development of the agricultural interests of Maryland, especially with reference to the Soil Improvement Special operated over your lines last week. I am highly satisfied with the results of the trip. I feel very sure that all three of the co-operating agencies made many friends during the trip and that the cause of a better agricultural method has been substantially promoted.

As soon as our data is compiled I will send you a detailed report together with additional comments.

Yours truly,

A. G. MCCALL

In Charge Soil Investigations

The Baltimore and Ohio wants to take advantage of this opportunity to thank publicly the University of Maryland Agricultural Extension and Experiment Station, The National Lime Association and the various lime and limestone manufacturers for their generous and helpful cooperation and for the opportunity thus extended the Company to serve the agricultural interests of Maryland.

NOW ENJOYING A WELL-EARNED REST

1. Arthur W. Booth. 2. Edward Phipps. 3. Charles A. Kight. 4. J. F. Mills. 5. Louis Richter

Following the Good Will Girls through France

By MARGARET TALBOTT STEVENS

(Continued from the September issue)

Callahan—XIX

THE week in Paris rushed by like a whirlwind. As I look back to it now I realize that we hardly knew day from night. Early in the morning we usually began our program. We arose between seven and seven-thirty. Breakfast took not more than fifteen minutes at the most and we were ready. Sight-seeing trips occupied the mornings; afternoons were usually devoted to receptions and teas; evenings meant dinners and some form of entertainment.

One of the events of the journey was Callahan's visit to Ireland. Callahan was quite a favorite. Of course she had a given name, but nobody knew it; she was full of fun and real Irish wit, and nobody felt like calling her anything else but Callahan, so Callahan it was.

She came to America some years ago. Her mother and her sister still live in Ireland, so when Callahan was elected to take the trip to France you may be sure that she called on all of the saints to intercede for her when she begged to be allowed to take a flying trip home. It was while we sat at lunch in the city of Nîmes that someone brought a message to her. She read it and burst into tears. She couldn't eat another mouthful.

"Oh, Callahan," we asked, "what is it? Not bad news?"

"Bad news! I should say not. I'm that happy I can't help cryin.' Why, bless yer heart, I'm goin' to me auld Mither!" And almost shouting for joy, she left the table and went to her room. Of course we rejoiced with her. So, instead of seeing all of the Devastated Region as the rest of us did, Callahan went home.

When she came back and joined us in Paris she was the happiest mortal imaginable.

"Tell us about it, Callahan," we begged.

"Well," said she, "it was like this. Oi rode on the train towards home, me heart goin' pit-a-pat at ivery turn av the wheels. Whin Oi got ferninst the place Oi thought me heart would bust. Oi got off at the station and walked across the fields to me auld home. Nobody there knew that I was comin.' There sat me mither on the step; me sister was a-churnin' in the yard.

"Oi walked up to her an' sez, 'Say, it looks loike ye was busy today.'"

"Me sister dropped the churn handle an' looked at me. She couldn't believe it. Down she dropped on her knees.

"Mary, Joseph, Mither of God,' she prayed, 'have mercy on us!'"

"Me poor Mither was spacheless.

"But it didn't take thim long to figure it out. It doesn't take the Oirish long to figure out anything. In a few minutes they was a-preparin' fer a big party. An' a party it was you bet. Sure an' we danced the whole endurin' night, until six in the mornin'—an' thin they started to get ready for another party. Why, bless the saints, nearly all of Oireland was there to see me, an' whin I come away even the pigs grunted afther me. Sure an' it was wan gr-r-rand toime!"

The story may sound a bit funny to those who read it, but to have heard Callahan tell it was worth a trip to France.

Paris Fashions and Customs—XX

Some of our women readers will want to know about the fashions in Paris. To tell the truth, Paris did not quite come up to our expectations in this, or rather, the Parisian women did not. But there is a reason. In America we find working girls wearing their best clothes on the streets. In France it is quite different. Working girls dress mainly in black, and when they can possibly do so they travel in twos and threes. The best girls of Paris never like to find themselves alone on the streets and when they go unchaperoned it is in the daytime and not at night.

To see a group of girls in Paris or in any other French town (save Nice, perhaps), one would imagine all of them to be in mourning. Dull black seems to be the proper color for a working dress. Most of the girls in the shops wear black. In the evening at the opera they dress. And then it is that their gayest frocks come forth. One evening, when we went to hear the "Meistersinger" at the Champs Elysees Theater, as the guests of the French Government, we saw some of the most gorgeous wraps imaginable. Great, colorful silken wraps in almost every shade. There were many combinations of reds, yellows and greens, quite Spanish in effect, which were worn with high ornaments in the hair.

We did not care for the manner of dressing the hair anywhere in France. At the time that we were there, it seemed to be the style to wear the front hair parted in the middle and bobbed back as far as the ears, and the back hair gathered into a knot at the back of the neck. There were few hairnets to gather up the straggling ends, and the effect was anything but neat.

On Sunday afternoons in the Bois du Bologne or on the Champs Elysees the papas and the mamas take all their children for a walk. Oftimes then we see the older daughters attired in smart suits. This is when they look their best.

Most of the Parisian styles of which we read are worn by tourists or are found in the windows of the shops to attract the attention of Americans. And yet, we must realize that the French, for the most part, are still in a poor financial condition and few of them can afford to dress as we do in America.

The Metro—XXI

The trolley cars in France are very narrow. There are always the three classes and sometimes four. A partial partition denotes the separation between the spaces designated for the various classes of riders. If you ride third class you will probably stand; in the second class section you have a better chance to get a seat, and in the first class section you nearly always get one. The peculiar thing that I noticed, and one of the members of the Committee informed me that it is always done, is that the conductor on the Metro always punches the tickets on the blank side. You may hand them to him right side up but he will turn them over in spite of anything. One pleasant feature about the subway or Metro is that directions are clearly shown on a huge map at the entrance. Arrows show you that if you are at the Bastille and wish to go to the Republique, you go down a certain stairway and take a certain car and get off at a certain stop. This is a great convenience and transferring is a simple matter.

More Sightseeing—XXII

There were so many things to be seen in so short a time, and we could not afford to miss anything. As one of the girls then expressed it, "I feel like Alice in Wonderland."

A Visit to Montmartre

Before one goes to Paris he hears of Montmartre, and when he gets there he is always assured that he has never seen Paris until he visits Montmartre. We had read about it in the daily paper published aboard the ship on the way over; the French people had told us about it, and naturally, we were anxious to see this "awfully attractive, ridiculously wild place." So you may know that when the time drew near for our departure we began to be worried for fear that we would not see it.

Then came the announcement that on Wednesday evening the Good Will Delegation would be taken to Montmartre for a celebration. We were wildly excited. On that morning we visited the hill of Montmartre—once known as the Mount of Martyrs because of its connection with the martyrs of religion who had made this hill their favorite spot by dying here. Here is a famous Catholic church, the Sacre Coeur, through which we were taken, and where several of the girls brought their rosaries to be blessed. Old and gray looking on the outside, one would never dream of the magnificence inside of its walls.

That evening there was much ado about dressing. As usual we had only a few minutes, but having become quite accustomed to dressing in a hurry, we were soon ready. Our coaches were waiting for us outside the door of the Hotel. Coaches? Ah, yes, our regular auto buses. Sometimes it did seem a bit queer to be riding in these to the opera, but it was quite jolly.

On we went, up the long hill that leads to the Place Pigale (sometimes called by Americans the Place Pig Alley), which is the center of the so-called "high life" of Paris. Here one may see gaily decorated

HERE AND THERE IN FRANCE

1. A group of schoolboys of southern France. Note the black aprons. 2. Good Will Girls wanted to carry home the little French babies of the clinic established by the American Committee. 3. Entrance to a dug-out in the Devastated Region. 4. American girls place wreaths on the grave of the Unknown Soldier at the Arc de Triomphe. 5. A typical trench near Fort Douaumont. In places like these our soldiers fought in the World War. 6. "One Dines at Montmartre"—a good advertisement taken from the daily paper published aboard ship, and incidentally, a good picture of the doings at Montmartre. 7. A French soldier teaches his little son to honor the American Flag cafes bearing such names as Le Rat Mort (The Dead Rat), Cafe Neant (Cafe Nothing), Lapin Agile (Jumping Rabbit), Bal Tabarin (Clown Dance), La Chaumiere (The Cottage), Heaven and Hell, etc. To one of these we went, walked in and took our places before the tables. Decorations were everywhere. This evening was to be devoted exclusively to the Delegation. There was splendid music and everything was quite lovely. Delicious ham and cheese sandwiches came around, a few of the girls danced with each other and with a few of the Frenchmen who attended.

The French as dancers do not appeal particularly to American girls, and I might say that there was not one girl in the party who was heard to remark that she would exchange her "beau" in America for any Parisian. As a matter of fact, the average Parisian has an expression of weariness on his face. Whether this is a mark of the war or whether it is the result of late to bed and early to rise we were not able to figure out. However, when evening comes they are ever ready for diversion, but the morning hours see the streets filled with men dragging wearily to work.

There were great rolls of confetti, colored paper balls and balloons everywhere. At about nine o'clock great paper dolls, Pierrots and Pierrettes, were distributed.

We went home early on that evening for we had much sleep to make up and many places yet to visit.

Versailles and a Dinner Party—XXIII

I think it was the next morning that we started on our journey to Versailles, the city where the Peace Treaty of 1919 was signed. The ride was delightful. We had splendid weather during our stay in Paris, a little rain occasionally, but not enough to mar our pleasure at any time. We arrived at Versailles in about an hour and went through the magnificent suites which at one time were occupied by kings and queens and court favorites. We had luncheon in the little park which surrounds the chateau. I shall remember that luncheon because of the long time that it took to be served, and we were oh, so hungry.

After luncheon we loitered about the beautiful fountains, the lovely gardens and the wooded parks. Another long ride and we came to a little enclosure where the cars were to be parked for some time, and where many of us got out and walked toward the home of Anne Morgan where we were to be entertained at dinner.

If you will turn to the last issue of the MAGAZINE you will see the picture of the delightful little cottage and miniature farm of Marie Antoinette. Here she was accustomed to retire with her ladies in waiting when she became weary of court life. This was one of the places that we enjoyed so much, that is, all of us except Miss Lauer. There is a little stream, about three feet wide, that runs before the cottage, across which, a few yards further down stream, there is a rustic bridge.

Now it did not just suit Magdalene to cross the rustic bridge; it would be lots more fun, she thought, to jump across the stream. But it so happened that when the gentleman tailor who, a few weeks before, had fashioned the Parisian creation which Magdalene was then wearing, had not reckoned that an American girl, still retaining some of the traits of early childhood, would attempt to jump across the stream in it; therefore, its width was not at all compatible with the width of the stream.

Cautious Nina, who deserves to be decorated with the medal of the Delegation, for she is a true exponent of Safety First, warned her companion.

"Oh, Magdalene, you'd better not. Honestly, something might happen!" she cried.

But Magdalene kept on. She backed back, got a good running start and—Splas-s-s-s-sh!

It had happened. Magdalene had fallen into the stream. Fortunately it was not deep, so that it was not the work of a hero to fish her out. She ran around until, except for her feet, she was quite dry. Nothing further happened to her before dinner save that she lost the heel of her shoe before we reached our destination.

There was plenty of time, so we loitered about the fish ponds and fed the carp with the bread that we had saved from our lunch. Under the shade of the lovely trees along the side of the road we stopped to rest. A few noble souls who pretended that they were not tired executed a Virginia Reel, led by "Professor" Peck. A little further on we came to a great stone gate, which was opened for us, the first time that it had been opened for thirty years. There we posed again for pictures, passed on through a little village, and soon found ourselves within the lovely villa of Anne Morgan.

Miss Jay, one of our leaders, whose hobby is landscape gardening, had a fine chance at Miss Morgan's home to study it. There we found beautiful shrubbery; green clusters of boxwood were cut to represent birds and animals; at the end of a little fountain lake was the musical conservatory where an orchestra delighted us with American jazz as well as with the slow measures of the French waltz.

It is interesting, indeed, to know the number of American songs that have gained popularity in France. Many of the old "standbys" have been translated into French and are sung by the people. A man whom I met this morning and who has just come home from a journey through France, informed me that "Yes, We Have No Bananas" is taking Paris by storm. I can imagine them singing it now. Wouldn't you love to see them shrug their shoulders and throw out their hands as they inform the world that "Oui, Nous N'Avons Pas Les Bananes?"

Dinner at Miss Morgan's was delightful. There was an open fireplace (near which Miss Morgan made Magdalene sit because of her wet feet) and the little tables were placed here and there, each one having some particular guest in addition to the Good Will girls. The real American ice cream was a treat; Miss Morgan knew just what would please us.

After dinner there was another concert, and at about ten o'clock we started for the hotel.

Another Montmartre Party—XXIV

We were having coffee in the dining room at about eleven o'clock that night, after our return from Versailles, when a certain leader of our party—there were so many of them—came up to a group of us and asked if we would like to take a trip to Montmartre.

"Oh, but it's eleven o'clock and after," we declared.

"Goodness, but do you call that late? Montmartre is just beginning its fun. Please don't go home and tell the folks that you didn't go to Montmartre."

"But we went the other night."

"And you came home too soon."

"All right; we'll go for a little while."

There were about ten or twelve of us altogether, about three of whom lived in Paris and who were to take care of us. Up the hill once more we went. First of all we went into the door of a gruesome looking place known as the Neant. At the door we were met by an undertaker.

"Ah, my good people," he said, "I trust that you have said farewell to your friends. Once having entered this mortuary you may never expect to return. Death is a beautiful thing. Please enter and be seated on the tombstones around the caskets. There I shall bring to you something which is permeated with the germs of hydrophobia and tuberculosis, typhoid and yellow fever. If one does not kill you the other will; usually they all combine and you die immediately."

He then handed us long black tapers, about the size of a little birthday candle but nearly 12 inches long. These were lighted and placed into little holes cut in the caskets to fit them.

"When these are burned out," the undertaker explained, "your life will be extinct also."

Soon a terrible rattling sound came from somewhere above our heads. We looked up and by the hideous purple light that came from human skulls suspended from the ceiling, we saw a skeleton jump from his casket and rattle his bones upon the wood. Nina grabbed me around the neck, and I surely thought that the end had come.

"Oh, it just serves us right for coming to such a place. I wish that I had stayed at the hotel," she wailed.

"Follow me into the crematory!" commanded the undertaker. So each took a candle and followed down a long, damp passageway into a dark room. We of our party kept hold of each other's hands so as not to get lost. A curtain went up and someone called for a volunteer. An American offered his services for the sacrifice and went upon the dimly lighted stage. A coffin was stood up on end. The volunteer was robed in a shroud and placed therein. Then, as we looked at him he gradually disappeared, leaving in his stead only a skeleton. By the same magic he was restored and soon stepped back into our midst. A number of such things were presented and then we started back, Nina and I leading the way through the dark passage. When we had advanced about two thirds of the distance something black arose before us. A purple light came from somewhere, and the most ghastly looking creature that I ever aid my eyes on arose from the depths of somewhere and called out in sepulchral tones: "Adieu, adieu, a—dieu!"

And it was certainly "a—dieu," for it will never be my pleasure to go into such a place again.

Once out of this and into the street, we declared ourselves ready to go home. But our chaperons were not ready.

"We just took you in there for fun. You weren't frightened, were you?"

"Oh, no; oh, no, of course not," declared Magdalene, Nina and I in one breath.

Then we made our way into another.

"This is a good sample of Montmartre," they said. "If you want to get atmosphere for a good story, here's the place to get it."

"Thank you, I've had enough atmosphere to last me quite a long time," I said.

But this is what we saw here:

A long room with long tables on either side; young men with old faces, young women and old women who thought they were young looking; freakish gowns on freakish women, and some gowns that did not deserve the name: some lovely frocks were there, too, and some that were otherwise. Take a piece of silk about two yards long; put one end of it over one shoulder, twist the other end around you, and you will have one frock; cut two holes for your arms in a bolster case and you have another; dip your face into your mother's flour barrel and put a daub of shoe polish on either cheek and you'll look exactly like one of the Montmartre dames.

I have not read a better description of Montmartre than that given by Raymond S. Tompkins in "The Sun" of September 14. A part of his description follows.

Montmartre Presents Strange Human Stew

"Montmartre, around the Moulin Rouge, is a bonfire of red electric lights and a strange human stew of the hardboiled and the innocent. We sit at a sidewalk table and drink la biere, watching the Montmartre crowd go by. Pale faced men, deadly pale; women over-dressed and overpainted, with searching looks in their bright eyes. An old, old woman with a little handful of evening newspapers, selling from table to table with a mixture of business shrewdness and pathos—who is glad to have you hail her with condescending heartiness because she knows this is the American way of treating old women who sell newspapers and that it means perhaps, a whole franc at one swoop."

The room seemed filled with confetti, paper parasols, balloons, etc. Down at one end was a bar where anything from soup to champagne might be had. Near the center of the room sat the orchestra, playing wildly, while all about the room capered wild folk, who, in the daytime, are won't to call themselves human beings. It was interesting to watch the reaction. How these people can caper about all night and go to work the next morning—for many of them are working people—is a mystery. Some of the women had lovely eyes; they looked as if they might have had pretty faces, if we could have seen their faces. But we had seen enough. We were glad to go back to the hotel. What time was it? Please don't ask.

Dinner at the Inter-Allied Club—XXV

One of the most interesting evenings that we spent in Paris was the evening of the dinner at which we were the guests of the Inter-Allied Club. The individual invitations came to us in huge envelopes. This, we were assured, was something that we could not afford to miss. Here we would meet many distinguished persons. We must look our best. Well, we tried rather hard, and I believe we succeeded. It was quite a thrilling moment when we stood in the reception room and looked over the gowns. Many of the girls had purchased frocks in the Paris shops, and some had visited Paris dressmakers, so that the array was quite wonderful. Then, too, there were the French women who were dressed better than any we had seen heretofore.

We met many delightful French people, both women and men, and also a number of Americans or people who had travelled much in America. At each table there were some French people to make the evening more interesting. When the dinner was over there were several addresses and then each delegate's name was called and she went forth to receive from M. Riebel, minister of the Liberated Regions, a bronze medal bearing her name in recognition of her work for the devastated region of France. To the honor delegates were given testimonials of appreciation to be presented to their respective cities and newspapers. The dinner dance was quite an affair, for here we met all kinds of French government officials and their wives, as well as members of the American Embassy and other prominent Americans residing in or visiting in Paris.

Other Receptions—XXVI

There was also an afternoon in which we had a delightful reception at the American Embassy. Ambassador Herrick, with his daughter and a number of guests received us. Tea was served in the beautifully appointed salons and it did not take long for the American girls to make themselves quite "at home."

One morning we made a pilgrimage to the Arc de Triomphe and there placed floral tributes in memory of the Unknown Soldier buried beneath it.

The reception by Marshall Foch in his little Office at Les Invalides was quite interesting. We stood in line and he came out going from one to the other, hearing her name, and then making his bow. He looks a bit older now than in the pictures which we have been accustomed to see. Perhaps the fact that he was dressed in "civies" made us think so. Back in the courtyard we saw many of the cannon used in the war, also the railway car in which the Armistice was signed, and an old taxicab which was one of the first used that rushed the French soldiers to the First Battle of the Marne.

Last Days in Paris—XXVII

It would take a long, long time to tell you of all of the things that we saw in Paris. Suffice it to say that we left little unseen. On the last day in Paris we were quite restless. It was hard to think of having to leave. Of course, we would be glad to get back home; at the same time we had grown quite fond of Paris and her people, her odd streets and her little shops, her art galleries and lovely buildings. But journeys must come to an end. In the evening some of us were going out when in the lobby of the hotel we met a group of Americans. Oh, how good it was to see them! Ah, yes, I think we were quite ready to go home.

"Ho, here are the Good Will Girls," said one.

"Yes. Well, what do you think of that? Are there any girls from New York?" The speaker was a woman from New York.

"No, the New York girls will be over with the next delegation, within a few days," I replied. Then suddenly I got an inspiration.

"Are any of you from Baltimore?"

A gentleman turned around sharply.

"I am originally from Baltimore," he cried, "I worked for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for twenty years!"

"Baltimore and Ohio Railroad!" gasped Nina, Magdalene and I in one breath. "Bless your soul, man, and who are you?"

Then I remembered, Mr. Montagnani, who used to come around to the offices during the war, singing Harry Lauder's songs and selling Liberty bonds. You may be sure that we were glad to see him. We had to leave then, but he promised that he'd be in Havre to see us off, for he is now located there in charge of the Marine Y. M. C. A.

(To be concluded in next issue)

Women's Department

Edited by Margaret Talbot Stevens.

"Economy is Not Stinginess," Says President Willard

THE woman who practises economy in her home, who stretches the dollars as far as they will go conveniently, and who thinks twice before she spends, is wise, not stingy. She is a help to her husband and the right kind of mother for her children; she is the woman who engenders the spirit of happiness in the home, because when the financial affairs of the family are running smoothly a great burden is lifted from the mind of the wage earner.

These are some of the ideas brought out by President Willard the other day when he was telling us of some of the ways in which the MAGAZINE could be of service to the women in the homes of our Baltimore and Ohio men. Furthermore, he said that a great number of accidents are brought about, not merely through carelessness, but because the employe is under some unusual mental or physical strain. Peace of mind is one of the best assets that a railroad man can possess, and peace of mind is one of the finest things that a railroad woman can bring to her husband through her earnest efforts to keep home affairs in order.

The thrifty housewife is a valuable woman. She knows how and when to buy, and to choose the things that will be of greatest comfort and service to her family. She does not buy everything that the pedler brings to her door, and she does not have to have a $15 or $20 bonnet just because Mrs. Brown next door has one. She knows that her husband works hard to earn the money for the family and that something must be put aside for a rainy day.

Sensible Planning

The woman in the home has a big job on her hands. She must study and plan, not only how to make the money stretch over the necessities, but she needs to have a little left over at the end of each week or month. Sometimes, in addition to planning for herself, she has to devise ways and means of getting her husband to spend wisely. Many families are continually in debt, not because its members do not make enough to keep them comfortably, but because they use such poor judgment in spending it.

The Same Money Will Buy Poor or Good Meals

I know of a family of people who never have and never will know how to spend. The husband and father made a reasonable salary. On Saturday night he came home with his pay envelope and he and the mother went to market. So far, so good. But a peep into the market basket would tell a peculiar tale. There would be meat and potatoes, of course, but what else? Substantial vegetables, oatmeal, coffee? Butter and bread? Milk? The things that go to make up the proper kind of diet for themselves and for their two growing children? No. There were pickles and cheap peach cake, candy and a half-dozen bottles of strawberry pop.

On Sunday, instead of having a nice, palatable roast with browned gravy and baked or roasted potatoes, the meat would be boiled, for that was the easiest way to cook it, and the potatoes thrown into the pot, taken out and put on the platter with the meat. This, with coffee, without milk or cream, was the Sunday dinner for the family. But the children never ate much dinner on Sunday anyway; they slept late, for the whole family had gone to the movies after the marketing was over—it wasn't Saturday night unless they went to the movies—and the children had filled themselves with candy. Besides, they never seemed to want any breakfast at any time. Alice, the nine-year old always awoke with a headache (she always had a few pennies to spend for candy before she went to bed) so all that she wanted was black coffee. Milk? No, she didn't like anything if she couldn't get cream, and the father said that condensed milk wasn't fit for anybody's stomach.

"I have the strangest children," complained the mother one day, "when they go to other people's houses they eat anything and everything, but when they are at home they never seem to want anything."

The father died of stomach trouble, leaving no insurance or other provision for the family. The mother now works in a factory and the children care for themselves after a fashion. They all look as though a good square meal, with less pickles and candy, would make new creatures of them.

I just heard yesterday of another family—they're not Baltimore and Ohio folk, thank goodness—who follow after the same mode of living. The man gets $35 per week. There are three children. They are buying a home. That's fine. But—they are also buying an automobile, which they only have time to use on Sundays; and they are buying a fur coat, because the wife said that if her husband could have an automobile she could have something of like value; and the husband and father went to his boss yesterday and asked for a loan of $2,500, to be paid back at the rate of $2.00 a week.

What does that man need? Personally, I should say that he needs a sound thrashing; certainly he needs someone to look after his finances. And if that woman were the right kind of woman she would not only give up her desire for a fur coat but she would talk her husband out of buying the car until they have the money to do it with. This man had an insurance policy, but he has long ceased to make payments on it. Suppose something should happen to him; suppose, for example, he should lose his right arm. What under the sun would become of him, his wife and his three babies? If you were his boss would you loan him the $2,500?

I certainly am not aiming at, nor do I wish to get "in Dutch" with, railroad folk who own automobiles as luxuries, for, in the first place, it is none of my business; and in the second place, I believe that most of our folks who own them undoubtedly can afford them. I hope so, at least. However, I do believe that there are those who are contemplating buying them and indulging in similar luxuries who ought to give this matter serious consideration. And I say unequivocally that it is an outrage to mortgage homes for this purpose. Particularly would this hold true of railroad people, most of whom, through the privilege of the pass, are able to travel so easily from one place to another. Moreover when we read of the auto finance corporations loaning hundreds of millions of dollars to individuals for the purpose of buying cars, isn't it high time to begin to observe the old railroad signal, "Stop, Look and Listen?"

Dr. Monroe once said in a lecture on the charitable institutions of Baltimore that poverty is a disease that only the knowledge of the proper values of money can cure. I think that he was right.

How Can The Magazine Help?

The Women's Department of the MAGAZINE was established for the purpose of being of service to the women of the Baltimore and Ohio. We have the libraries of Baltimore, our schools and colleges, and the practical knowledge of many men and women who have "made good" to draw from. And we have a desire to be of real, useful service to the women of the Baltimore and Ohio. How can we serve you? What is your particular problem? We are not so strong on giving advice, but we are willing to help you work out a budget system. We shall be glad to get together menus for days or for weeks, for your husband's or your child's lunch box. We shall be glad to furnish recipes on demand, or to help you plan your wardrobe. It is to the end of helping our women make practical as well as pretty clothes that we have bargained with our Pattern Bureau to let us have the patterns for our women at ten cents each, beginning October 1. In this way you get from two to six patterns for the price of one elsewhere.

Buying foods in wholesale lots, as is practiced by many thrifty housewives, is good policy, provided such foods can be used to advantage. Buying a bushel of fruit for preserving or for jellies, etc., is a splendid idea, but buying a bushel of apples or peaches in summer for table consumption is seldom wise. Apple sauce twice a day for a week is no fun for those who have it set before them, and even when it is varied, as in baked apples for lunch, apple pie for dinner, apple dumplings or apple fritters the next day, one's stomach soon tires of the same thing, and when a person loses his appetite it is high time to change his diet.

A woman of my acquaintance bakes her own bread. This is good, wholesome, healthful bread—when it is fresh. But she bakes ten or twelve loaves at one time. Then the family must eat it until it is all gone, and the family is not such a large one. Yes, the bread becomes stale before it is eaten. Now, if this dear lady would use her head, figuratively speaking, and make a toast for breakfast and bread pudding, with a generous supply of good raisins in it, for dinner, she could afford to make a little more bread at one time than could be actually consumed while fresh. But since she does not, it would be to her family's advantage if she would bake a smaller quantity at a time.

It would give us much pleasure to hear from some woman who has made a success of running her household. We do not have enough of these household hints in the MAGAZINE. We need more help in our Women's Department anyway—the help, not of novices like me who know only through observation, but the help of honest-to-goodness Baltimore and Ohio women who actually handle households and who know through practical experience just what theories will work out and which will not.

We shall be glad to run a Thrift Section in each issue of our MAGAZINE if you women think it worth while. What do you say?

And President Willard has put up to me the job of making this Women's Department the best Women's Department in any magazine in the country. I'm ready to try to do it and I'm going to do it, but I can't do it alone, and I just "feel it in my bones" that you're all going to help me. How about it?

Andy Wanted a Shirt, but Elizabeth Made Herself a Dress Instead

And the Whole Office Joined in the Fun

WHEN we wrote to Miss Elizabeth Lucey, of the General Superintendent's Office, Pittsburgh, a few weeks ago to ask her if she didn't want to make a dress for our feature pattern in this month's issue, the whole office took the matter in hand. Andy Moore wanted a shirt, and so did some of the other fellows. And Mary Breen, who, in a short time is to become Mrs. Cliff Somebody, cast jealous eyes at Elizabeth. But Elizabeth decided that since the letter was addressed to her, she would be it, and represent the Pittsburgh Division in a brand new dress. Besides, you see, Andy is so terribly slender that Elizabeth was fearful lest a shirt on him would not show off to the best advantage in a picture.

So Elizabeth went straightway and purchased for herself 4 yards of figured pongee, with a background of henna and figures of blue and gold.

Since this is Miss Lucey's first attempt at dressmaking we feel that she is to be congratulated.

"The dress isn't quite as nice as I would like to have it," writes that young person, "but I warned you that this was my first attempt. I didn't put the drapery down the side; instead, I put on the sash and a

ALL DRESSED UP—AND GONE ON HER VACATION

This is Miss Lucey, wearing her new dress, made from a Baltimore and Ohio pattern. She was just ready to go on her vacation when this picture was taken. The pattern comes in sizes 34 to 46, inclusive. Price 10 cents. Please use coupon

With Simple Patterns Like These, Home Dressmaking Becomes a Real Pleasure

By PEGGY

WE have received so many nice letters from women and girls who have tried the patterns shown on the pages of the MAGAZINE during the past year that we feel justified in recommending MAGAZINE in time to make use of this attractive little Mother Goose dress, which may be made of chintz, cretonne, cambric, or even of crepe paper.

4501

these patterns to our women who do their own sewing. Particularly do these patterns appeal to the novice. Simple in design, but adaptable to individual touches, and with all seams allowed, in using these dress-making becomes a real pleasure.

This month's strip of patterns includes a dress to wear at the Hallowe'en party. We trust that many of you will receive the 4501. Scotch Mist, heather mixtures, serge, cheviot and other coatings are good for this style.

4488

The pattern is cut in five sizes: 6, 8, 10,

Andy Wanted a Shirt, but Elizabeth Made Herself a Dress Instead

(Continued from preceding page)

little round collar, both made of pieces of bias material. This was the only change that I made in the pattern. The body of the dress is exactly the same. I found it very easy to make, just by following the pattern and the instructions on the outside of the envelope, which helped quite a lot.

"I have had a number of compliments on the dress. Of course people say nice things anyhow—" (we bet they do) "but inasmuch as this is a Baltimore and Ohio dress, I have accepted their kind remarks and told them the whole story.

"Quite a number of the girls want to borrow the pattern. I suppose, in order to help business along, I should tell them to send ten cents to the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Pattern Bureau, 1188-1190 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, New York, and get one. But really, I haven't the heart to do that, so, if you don't mind, I'll pass it along to them.

"I can't say exactly how long I worked on it; there was a Saturday afternoon and several evenings, but I am sure that there was not more than 8 hours' work on it; of course, anybody with experience could make it in a much shorter time.

"The pattern calls for 5 yards of goods, but since I had short sleeves I purchased only 4 yards and found it to be sufficient."

The price of this pattern is only 10 cents. It comes in the usual sizes. Use the coupon when ordering. Do not send your orders to the MAGAZINE at Baltimore, but to the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Pattern Bureau, 1188-1190 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

12, and 14 years. A 12-year size requires  $2\frac{3}{8}$  yards of 54-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4488. The house dress of today has a very important place in the wardrobe of every woman. The model here illustrated is suitable for the stout and slender figure. Gingham, crepe, ratine or printed cotton, as well as linen may be used for its development. The width at the foot is  $2\frac{1}{8}$  yards. The closing is at the left side in front.

The pattern is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $4\frac{3}{8}$  yards of 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4492. This fashionable model will develop well in kasha cloth or in satin. As illustrated soutache braid was used for trimming on collar and cuffs, a vest of embroidery in Oriental colors makes a very attractive finish.

4496

The pattern is cut in six sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $3\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 54-inch material. To make the vest of contrasting material requires  $\frac{1}{4}$  yard 9 inches wide or wider. The width of the skirt at the foot is

4486

$1\frac{1}{8}$  yards. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4505. Here is a very pleasing model, with becoming lines and smart features. The style is suitable for the new figured silks, for moire satin, or jersey weaves.

The pattern is cut in five sizes: 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A 16-year size requires  $3\frac{5}{8}$  yards of 40-inch material. To make belt and revers of contrasting material requires  $\frac{3}{8}$  yard 40-inch wide. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

There is a good looking coat in pattern No. 4484. This may be made of velour, kasha cloth, plush, or any pile fabric. Well lined, with a little padding in the shoulders, if necessary, this coat will be well worth the time it takes to make it. Fur is not necessary to make it a good, warm coat for winter. The collar may be closed high at the neck or rolled low with the fronts forming revers. Pattern comes in four sizes: Small (43-36), Medium (38-40), Large (42-44), and Extra Large (46-48). Medium size requires  $5\frac{1}{2}$  yards of 44-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4487

4295. Novelty woolen, and serge are combined in this model. The style is also good for serge, jersey or wash materials.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 10 year size requires  $2\frac{3}{8}$  yards of 44-inch material. For collar, cuffs and vest of contrasting material,  $\frac{1}{2}$  yard 32-inches wide is required. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4506. One could have this in jersey weaves, in flannel or serge; It is also a good model for linen, seersucker and gingham.

4495

The pattern is cut in three sizes: 2, 4 and 6 years. A 4 year size requires  $2\frac{1}{4}$  yards of 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4524. This pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size requires  $11\frac{1}{8}$  yards 36-inches wide. For drapery and fichu of contrasting material  $4\frac{1}{2}$  yards 36-inches wide is required. Hat alone requires  $\frac{5}{8}$  yard. Without long sleeves  $\frac{5}{8}$  yard less is required. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4485. The practical features of this model are apparent at a glance. The long

PATTERN ORDER COUPON

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Pattern Bureau
1188-1190 Fulton Street
Brooklyn, New York

Please send to the following address the patterns listed below. I enclose 10 cents (stamps, check or money order) for each pattern.

Name.....

Street.....

City..... State.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Up-to-Date Book of Fashions

Send 12c in stamps, check, or money order for our UP-TO-DATE BOOK OF FASHIONS

waist, and deep neck opening are becoming to slender and stout figures. Damask and linen could be here combined, or chambrey, with striped seersucker for trimming. This is also a good model for serge, ratine, or crepe.

The pattern is cut in seven sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $4\frac{1}{2}$  yards of 36-inch material. The width at the foot with plaits extended is  $2\frac{1}{4}$  yards. For collar, vest, cuffs and belt of contrasting material  $\frac{7}{8}$  yard 36-inches wide is required. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4497. Youthful lines, and popular style features are expressed in this model. Crepe satin with facings of the satin side and the dress portions of the reversed side, is here pictured. This is a pretty style for voile and organdy. It may also be developed in one material with embroidery or braid for decoration.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 14-year size requires  $4\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 40-inch material. Without tunic, bertha and cuffs  $1\frac{5}{8}$  yard less is required. To trim with contrasting material as illustrated requires  $1\frac{1}{8}$  yard 40 inches wide. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4493. Pretty English chintz was used for this model, with bindings of black sateen. This is a good model for gingham, percale and also for rubberized materials.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, Medium, Large and Extra Large. A Medium size requires  $3\frac{1}{2}$  yards of 27-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4507. Comfort and freedom are expressed in the style here illustrated. The model is good for gingham, seersucker, repp, pongee and kindergarden cloth. The bib and pocket, also the cuff may be omitted.

The pattern is cut in three sizes: 6 months, 1 year and 2 years. A 1-year size requires  $1\frac{7}{8}$  yards of 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4504. The stylish side closing and the pretty basket pockets will please the little girl for whom this dress may be selected. The sleeve may be in wrist or elbow length. Gingham with collar, vest pockets, belt and cuffs in contrasting material will be good for this design. Brown linen with tan or white for trimming is also attractive.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6-year size requires 3 yards of 27-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4496. Plaid gingham with linen in a contrasting color would be attractive for this style. Printed cotton, crepe or ratine are also pleasing. The waist portions are cut with skirt sections, that are joined to plaited side portions. The short sleeve is cut in one with the waist. The long bell shaped sleeve is added.

This pattern is cut in four sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 12-year size requires  $3\frac{1}{2}$  yards of 36-inch material. To trim as illustrated with contrasting material requires  $\frac{1}{2}$  yard 36-inch wide. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4486. The combination of plain and striped material here portrayed is very appropriate for this style. The long lines and "V" shaped vest, are especially becoming to woman of mature figure. Ratine and linen or gingham and chambrey could be used for this model.

The pattern is cut in seven sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $5\frac{3}{8}$  yards of one material 36 inches wide. To make as illustrated requires 2 yards of plain material and  $3\frac{3}{8}$  yards of striped material. The width at the foot is  $2\frac{1}{4}$  yards. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4487. Here is a fine "protecting" apron with plait extensions at the side front seams. In unbleached muslin with a finish of bias binding in a contrasting color, this model will be inexpensive and very serviceable. Gingham, or sateen, chintz or chambrey are also suitable, and in damask in blue and white or silver gray, it will be very attractive.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: Small, 34-36; Medium, 38-40; Large, 42-44; Extra, Large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A Medium size requires  $5\frac{1}{8}$  yards of 32 or 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4495. This model has youthful lines, and new style features. It portrays an attractive combination of plain and striped material. One could use braided or embroidered fabric for waist and sleeve, and taffeta, satin or kasha for the panel and skirt portions and for the collar.

The pattern is cut in three sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires  $3\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 40-inch material. To make sleeves and waist portions of contrasting material as illustrated requires  $1\frac{3}{8}$  yards. The width at the foot is  $2\frac{7}{8}$  yards. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

Send 12 cents in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE FALL & WINTER 1923-1924 BOOK OF FASHIONS.

Mrs. E. C. Baker, Wife of Maintainer, Washington Junction, Md.

Culinary Column

A Will and a Way—and Delicious Biscuits for Lunch

Point of Rocks, Md.

August 15, 1923

Dear Miss Stevens:

I have often felt like contributing to your page but held back because of lack of talent. There is one thing I can do well (excuse self praise) but my husband and others say so—that is, bake good biscuits. Not much of an accomplishment I'll admit, but something.

A couple of years ago some men from the Baltimore office were in our town. It happened to be a very rainy day. As our town is small it affords poor accommodation for strangers so I occasionally prepare a meal for some and enjoy doing so. This day found me very much unprepared and without a loaf of bread in the house, and worse yet, not a grocery near as you have in the cities.

About eleven o'clock my husband called saying some men wanted lunch. Not wishing to disappoint him I hustled round and mixed up the following biscuit dough: 4 cups flour, 4 teaspoons Rumford baking powder, 1 cup lard, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar. I worked this thoroughly until it became feathery, then added cold water slowly mixing with a large spoon until the mixture was all moistened. Then I dropped this by spoonfuls slightly apart in biscuit pans and baked quickly.

With these and a few other things I managed to get a meal. The biscuits were replenished a couple of times and one was left. The point of my story is this: let us all learn to meet emergencies in whatever vocation of life circumstances find us in a close place. Let us not be found wanting, we can find a way if we will, and let it be as nearly as possible the right way.

Yours sincerely,

Mrs. C. E. BAKER,
Wife of Maintainer.

Baked Corn

By LOUISE OATMAN, Daughter of B. A. Oatman, Master Mechanic's Office, Newark, Ohio

1 can corn, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 2 cups milk, salt and pepper, cracker crumbs.

Beat eggs slightly. Mix all ingredients together. Pour into a buttered baking pan. Cover the top with cracker crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until firm.

Are Your Children Safe from the Fire Hazard?

FOUR year old "Jimmy" had found a box of matches in the kitchen and was having the time of his life watching the pretty blaze. Sister, who had been taught the danger of playing with matches at school, has taken the box away from him, much to his disgust, and is giving him a severe lecture. She has learned the lesson earlier than most persons do and is trying to teach it to the rest of the family.

Instruction in fire prevention can not begin too young. Many grown persons are careless with fire because they didn't form the habit of carefulness when they were children and through pure luck they have never had an accident.

Fire last year probably killed 15,000 persons and injured at least as many more. It destroyed property worth $520,000,000. At that rate, one life was lost every half hour and property worth $1,000 went up in smoke every minute. Most of these fires could have been easily prevented by keeping the premises clean and by a little more care in the use of fire and inflammable materials.

Insurance doesn't pay for fire losses, it merely distributes them. You pay insurance on your house and furniture and the boss pays it on the factory and machinery. High fire losses mean high premiums and this cost is added to the price of everything we buy. The $520,000,000. doesn't begin to cover the loss by fire. When a factory is burned, many men are out of a job, sometimes for several months. When a house or apartment building burns down, it means a family without a home and there is a shortage of houses in nearly every city. It costs more to build now than when the destroyed building was erected and this means higher rents.

Fire prevention is your protection, both for your home and your job. The safety committee or whoever is in charge of fire prevention needs your help in eliminating fire hazards in the plant. If you notice a pile of rubbish or oily rags or any inflammable material in a place where it shouldn't be, report it at once.

"Don't smoke or light matches where 'no smoking' signs are put up," says a National Safety Council bulletin.

"Get into the habit of blowing out the match and stepping on the butt, even where there is no danger."

The same care is necessary at home. It is especially necessary to keep matches out of the way of young children. Playing with matches is a fascinating but highly dangerous indoor sport.

Preventable fires seldom start in clean places. The wife may be a spotless housekeeper but it is an exceptional home where there isn't a pile of old clothes, newspapers and other combustible stuff in the attic, the closet under the stairway, or in the basement. These are ideal places for fires to start.

A stove left unwatched with the draft turned on may become overheated and start a fire. Kerosene and gasoline should not be kept in large quantities around the house. All open lights should be kept away from them and it is hardly necessary to add they shouldn't be used for starting fires.

Every man, woman and child should learn the location of the nearest fire alarm box and know how to turn in an alarm. After turning in the alarm, stand by the box till the fire department arrives and direct them to the blaze. They know the box from which the alarm was turned in but not the location of the fire and may spend valuable minutes looking for it.

News from Martinsburg Auxiliary

By MRS. CLARA McDONALD TAYLOR

AUGUST 23 was a gala day for the Veterans and their families—the day of the big picnic at Chester Park. About 25 or 30 made up the quota from Martinsburg. The day was lovely and the weather wonderful. Everybody was happy in meeting old friends and in making new acquaintances.

Some of the Martinsburg folk went on the third section of No. 1, and some followed on Section 4. On the former were Mr. and Mrs. Delaney, Mr. and Mrs. Criswell, Mrs. W. A. Burkhart, Mrs. Catherine Fiskey, Mrs. H. Wilger, Messrs. P. M. Light, Robinson and Householder. Mr. Light and Mr. Wilger looked as though the trip had been too much for old men; nevertheless, they managed to enjoy the meals on the way back. Every time that we saw them they were eating, eating.

Our stay in Cincinnati was very brief. Chester Park is a lovely place, but there is too much to see at one time. A little bit goes a long way.

In connection with the fine train service which we of the "specials" received, I would not forget to mention the loyal porters of the Baltimore and Ohio. Those on our section were: Louis Smith, Martin Webb, A. B. Blocknell, P. Whitney, P. Parker, P. H. Speicher, Eugene Harris. These were most courteous and willing.

Raymond Russler chaperoned the crowd on Section 4. They say that he had a wonderful time entertaining the ladies, making speeches and singing his few choice selections. However, he is always on the job when it comes to entertaining. (Fishing is now over and he is killing up all the squirrels in West Virginia.)

Brother Fauver was there in all his glory. He looked as though he had got lost in the mad rush. We s'pose that he was hunting for the Missus, for it was nearly meal time when we saw him and he looked hungry, and the boys know who always furnishes the good eats.

We met quite a number of Grand Lodge folks that we never had the pleasure of meeting before. They claimed that they were having the time of their lives.

On August 20 Mrs. Burkhart and your correspondent received a letter of thanks for some little work that we had done for our Grand President, in behalf of the Newark Auxiliary. We are glad to know that we could be of service.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Criswell left us at Cincinnati to go to Chicago and several other cities on their vacation. They tell us that they had a fine time and found Baltimore and Ohio service to be the best always.

Mr. Galloway's talk at the picnic was a real heart-to-heart talk and many new thoughts were brought to his listeners. Mr. Galloway has won the friendship of all the folk on the System through his charming personality and his considerate treatment. Mr. Fries' talk was much appreciated and will long be remembered. The appreciation expressed by these two men in connection with the little tokens of remembrance made us believe that life is worth living after all.

We should endeavor to make the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association an ideal association to match up with our ideal Railroad; this is one of the thoughts brought to us through the talk given by Brother Sturmer.

The Baltimore and Cumberland Auxiliaries were well represented at the picnic.

The accompanying picture is of Miss Weaver. Isn't she happy?

Our lodge met on the night of September 6 with a good attendance.

Martinsburg has lost a valuable citizen in the death of former Mayor T. M. Turner, who died very suddenly in his place of business.

Jean, daughter of Engineer and Mrs. John Weaver, Smithfield, Pa., hunted watermelon with Grandfather G. R. McDonald, at the Versailles picnic

Our Little Railroaders

*O, come here, Sue and Johnny,
And read this page for me—
I'm sure it's something very nice
For girls and boys to see.*

*It's all about the contest—
Let us join in the fun,
The prizes are so many that
I'm sure we'll capture one!*

All Right, Girls and Boys, Are You Ready for the Prize Contest? Here It Is—

DID you ever think how much you can help your daddy be a happy man and a good railroader? Well, you can help him a lot. I am not going to tell you all of the ways in which you can do this, for that is what I want you to tell me in a nice little letter. Here are just a few things that you can do to make him a good railroader and a happy railroader.

First of all, you can obey him so that he will not have to worry about what you are doing.

Do you know that many, many accidents are caused by men whose minds are not on their work? And do you know why a man's mind sometimes is not on his work? Because he may be worried about things that are going on at home, or because he has not had the proper kinds of food to make him comfortable. Sometimes it is his stomach that bothers him; sometimes it is worry because someone at home is ill; sometimes it is because he has not had the proper rest. What can you do, what can your brothers and sisters do, and what can your mother do to make father happy and comfortable so that he may do his work best?

If all of the men who work for the railroad had happy, comfortable homes; if all their little girls and boys were anxious to help them, and if all of the mammas knew just how to prepare for their husbands the kinds of food that they ought to have to eat in order to work properly, and if everybody tried to be pleasant at all times, we'd have such a railroad as the whole world never heard of.

Now, wouldn't you like to help make it that way? You know, I am sure, that the better the man works the better the railroad is, the more money it can make; and the more money the railroad makes, the surer your daddy is of his job, the better will be the things that he has to work with, the more able the railroad will be to pay him a good salary, and because of this, your whole family will be better off.

Little girls and boys and all of the folks at home can do much to help. Just what they can do and how they can do it we shall find out in your letters. The subject for your contest is this:

"HOW WE CAN HELP DADDY BE A GOOD RAILROADER"

One of the nicest ways to find out is to ask Daddy himself. He will be sure to have some interesting things to tell you that will help you in your letter. Then ask Mamma or Grandma, Sister, Brother, or any other members of the family. After that you may ask anyone you wish. If you know some railroad officers be sure to ask them, for they can tell you better than anybody else, perhaps, except Daddy himself. Get all of the help you wish to, and be sure to say in your letter, who helped you. This is important.

Now, there may be some of you who have grandfathers who are working with the Baltimore and Ohio instead of fathers; or it may be that it is your sister, or mother, or aunt, or uncle, or brother who brings home the Magazine to you. If it should be either of these, just substitute his or her name instead of the word "Daddy" as given in the subject. For example, if your sister is a railroad girl, you would call your letter "HOW WE CAN HELP SISTER TO BE A GOOD RAILROAD-ER."

Here are the Prizes

The prizes, as you will see, are well worth working for. As in our last contest, there will be two sets of prizes; one set for those ten years old and under, the other for those aged from eleven to sixteen. If you are more than sixteen you cannot enter the contest.

I

Best letter by girl under 11 years, choice of surprise Christmas Stocking No. 1, or book of fairy tales.

Best letter by boy under eleven years, choice of surprise Christmas Stocking No. 1, or book about animals.

Second best letter by girl under 11 years, choice of Surprise Christmas Stocking No. 2, or story book.

Second best letter by boy under 11 years, choice of Surprise Christmas Stocking No. 2, or story book.

Third best letter by girl under 11 years, Surprise Christmas Package.

Third best letter by boy under 11 years, Surprise Christmas Package.

Each of ten next best letters, Blue Ribbon and Honorable Mention.

FILL IN THIS COUPON AND PIN IT TO YOUR CONTEST LETTER

My Name is .....

Post Office Address .....

Father's Name (or name of person in your family who works for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad) .....

His or Her Position .....

My Age ..... Grade .....

Name of my Home Town Newspaper .....

Drawn by Arline Tysinger, Cumberland, Md.

II

Best letter by girl, 11 years old or over, choice of 2 good books or enough wool to make a pretty sweater.

Best letter by boy, 11 years old or over, choice of a good baseball, or year's subscription to one of the following: (1) Youth's Companion, (2) American Boy, (3) Boy's Life.

Second best letter by girl, 11 years old or over, choice of a half-dozen pretty handkerchiefs or a nice book.

Second best letter by boy, 11 years old or over, choice of pocket knife or book about animals.

Third best letter by girl, 11 years old or over, one dollar in cash.

Third best letter by boy, 11 years old or over, one dollar in cash.

Each of ten next best letters, Blue Ribbon and Honorable Mention.

If there is anything that you do not exactly understand about this contest, just write to Aunt Mary, Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md., and she will be glad to tell you about it.

The rules of the contest are:

1. Write a letter, on the subject HOW WE CAN HELP DADDY (or Mamma, Sister, Brother, Auntie, Uncle or Grandpa, as the case may be) TO BE A GOOD RAILROADER.

2. Write on one side of the paper only; pencil preferred, unless you have a typewriter.

3. Send your composition in before December 10. The contest closes on December 10 and the prizes will be awarded in time for Christmas.

4. Be sure to use the coupon. Fill it in and pin it to your letter.

5. Send all letters to: AUNT MARY, Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Maryland.

6. If possible, send your picture along with the letter.

7. Hurry up and send in your letter. There is not much time.

By writing this letter you will be doing several nice things. You will be learning how to help Daddy; you will be helping Aunt Mary with Our Little Railroaders Page (for all of the best compositions will be published in the Magazine); you will be helping other little girls and boys, and you may be winning a prize for yourself.

When Tommy Ran Away

By FANNIE KEITH, Baltimore, Md.

ONCE upon a time there lived a boy whose name was Tommy; he was a very bad boy. His mother planted some flowers in the yard. Tommy went out and dug them up. Then he went in and said, "Mother, I dug your yard up for you." His mother was angry and said "I will punish you." She made him sit in a corner near a clock. Tommy kept watching it. He thought the time would never come for him to get out of the corner.

After a while he raised the window and jumped out. He ran away and as he ran he said "What a good time I will have!" After a while he came to the woods. He ran through them and played with the butterflies and picked flowers. All of a sudden the moon rose, it was dark. The owls hooted at him and the bats flew swiftly round him. He said, "Oh, please send me home."

Then he saw a man and a dog and the man called, "Tommy," and the dog barked. He ran to them. The man was his father. His father and the dog took him home. He told his mother the story and asked her forgiveness. His mother forgave him and he never ran away again.

Correct

Teacher—"Who can name one important thing we have now that we did not have one hundred years ago?"

Tommy—"Me."—Los Angeles Times

Here are Wayne Kidd and his sister Eleanor, who help their daddy to be a good railroader. Mr. Kidd is flagman on the "Tango" engine, which we see in the picture, Mr. Kidd standing on the front. They all live at Bridgeport, Ohio. Mr. Kidd enjoys working with his friends, Engineer John Shane and Conductor "Pat" Mulkern. Wayne drew the picture of the engine in the left hand corner

Dear Girls and Boys:

The answer to the puzzle in the August Magazine is "ARITHMETIC." How many of you guessed it? Well, look at this long list and see for yourselves.

William Robinson, Box 215, Hyattsville, Md.; Margaret Andersen, Relay, Md.; Ruth Troxell, daughter of Conductor E. A. Troxell, 1 Allegheny Terr., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dorothy R. Jenkins, 701 E. Reynolds st., New Castle, Pa.; Louise Clark, daughter of Joseph Clark, switchman, 1012 Eliza St., Cincinnati, Ohio.; Grace McClung, 302 McGraw Avenue, Grafton, W. Va., Inez Walker, 111 Hayes St., Willard, Ohio; Katherine Phebus, 111 W. Randall St., Baltimore, Md.; Raymond Hutson, Cumberland, Md.; Marie Draganan, 344 2nd St., Rankin, Pa.; Ernest W. Fischer, 3147 Lyndale Ave., Baltimore, Md.; Harry Neal, son of Machinist Neal, 520 Virginia Ave., Cumberland, Md.; Lorraine Tharpe, Box 289, West Newton, Pa.; Sarah Pennington, 163 Polk St., Cumberland, Md.; Thelma Hedrich, 2001 Ramsey St., Baltimore, Md.; Edward Oldewurtel, 118 S. Washington St., Baltimore, Md.; Estelle Barnes, St. Denis, Md.; Mildred and Evelyn Luh, 1818 W. Lombard St., Baltimore, Md.; Madge Buskirk, 2054 Elm Ave., Norwood, Ohio; Anna Hay, 1402 Hollins St., Baltimore, Md.; Mildred Rockwell, Green Spring, W. Va.; Octavia Getz, 8 S. East Ave., Baltimore, Md.; Alberta Benesch, 2322 E. Monument St., Baltimore, Md.; Paul Schultheis, Lansdowne, Lakeland, Md.; Louise Kanode, Rippon, W. Va.; Mary Magdalene Appel, daughter of Agent, Breese, Ill.; Ernesting Wolfe, 1210 Baines St., Charleston, W. Va.; Lena Hoppe, 1407 Clarkson St., Baltimore, Md.

The Puzzle Man says that you're sending the answers so fast that you make his poor head swim, but please don't stop sending them; he doesn't mind getting dizzy.

And some of you have been good enough to send me lots of original puzzles. These are just splendid. See if you can guess the answers.

I. Mixed Names.

Some gentlemen went for a walk. Being very forgetful, they lost their names. When they found them they could not get them together properly. I wonder if you can do this. Each syllable given below represents a part of a name. The first one, Mr. Tele, will be Mr. Telephone when he finds his right name, while the name Wire will belong to someone else in the list. See if you can straighten them out.

Mr. Tele Wire.
Mr. Tric Light.
Mr. Gaso Coal.
Mr. Phone Less.
Mr. Elec Line.
Mr. Oil Day.
Mr. Yester Cot.
Mr. Gy Baby.
Mr. Ton Bug.
Mr. Doll Spoon.
Mr. Ning Holder.

—By ESTELLE BARNES, Relay, Md.

II

This is the name of a girl and this name is a word of 6 letters.

My first is found in SING and SWING
My second in GLAD, but not in SAD

Dear Girls and Boys:

Please do not send in any more drawings of cartoons from the funny paper. I have so many of them now that I just can't find the space to use them.

If you have any drawings that will be suitable for Christmas, such as snow scenes, Christmas trees, Santa Claus, holly, chimneys with stockings in them, or windows with candles, or anything suggestive of Christmas, let me have them by November 5 and I shall try to get every single one of them into the December Magazine.

The drawings that I have on hand I shall use from time to time as I can find the space; all will be used in time. If you do not see your drawing in the first Magazine after you send it to me, keep on looking; it will be sure to get there some time.

Aunt Mary

My third is in TEA, but not in COFFEE
My fourth in DON'T, also in DO
My fifth is in YES, but not in NO
My sixth is in STAY, but not in GO
—By MARGARET ANDERSEN, Relay, Md.

Margaret also gave another, but it's such a funny one that we'll have to tell you the answer. The puzzle is: I have a tongue, I have a soul (sole) and sometimes I have eyes. Often I talk when I walk. The answer is SHOE. (Yes, Margaret, yours may talk, but mine usually squeak.)

III

(two words, eleven letters in all)

My first is in STUDY, my second in ALL,
My third is in FUNNY, but not in STALL,
My fourth is in PEOPLE, but not in CROWD,
My fifth is in SILENT, but not in LOUD

My sixth is in LADY, but not in PROUD,
My seventh you'll find, is like my third,
My eighth and ninth are found in BIRD,
My tenth is found in GIRLS and BOYS,
My eleventh you'll see in STIR and TOYS,
My whole is a motto for all girls and boys.

—By RAYMOND HUTSON, Cumberland, Md.

And now we just haven't the space for any more, but I just want to tell you a little secret. Next month there will be a puzzle which is easy to solve, and the first girl or boy to solve it will get a — but you can't guess, so just wait and see.

For each one of the above puzzles that is answered correctly, the solver will receive one French postcard, a picture of some place that Aunt Mary saw on her journey across the sea.

Send your solutions to Aunt Mary, Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md.

Now, just one more thing: Over in another section of the MAGAZINE you will find lots of puzzles for older people, puzzles which Mr. Pryor gets together for us each month. Some of them are very easy this time, and I am wondering if some of you older girls and boys couldn't get together with your parents and solve some of them. You have solved so many of our little ones that I am sure that you could. Try it.

Riddle: Guess what I am sending to you all.

Answer: My love.

Aunt Mary

Rakin' the Leaves

By MYRA GILL, Baltimore, Md.

We've been rakin' the leaves all day—
I'd rather do that than go and play.
It's like a game—so full of fun—
To work out in the autumn sun.
I love to go and rake, and rake—
One day we found a baby snake,
But he wouldn't hurt us, not a mite,
So we left him rather than give him fright.

We heap the leaves up ever so high,
It seems they're 'most up to the blue, blue sky,

And then, we jump into the pile,
And a smile's on Grandma's face the while;
And she turns her head and sighs, and heaves—
She wishes old folks could help rake leaves.
Grandma watches with eager eyes—
Says she'd like to rake again 'fore she dies.

Now, to me that really seems quite sad.
You know, sometimes I'm awfully bad,
Then I try to be good, and Grandma's glad.
She ties on my hood, gives me cookies and candy
To tuck in my pockets and up my sleeves—
Say, don't you think that's fine and dandy?
And I go on rakin' the leaves.

The Chicago Passenger Club leaving Grand Central Station en route to Washington

The Chicago Passenger Club Goes to Washington over the Baltimore and Ohio

PRACTICALLY every large city in the United States has what is known as a passenger club, the membership of which is chiefly composed of the railroad passenger representatives, ticket agents and ticket clerks in such cities. These clubs are formed purely for social and pleasure purposes, as well as to promote a greater interest in railroad and educational subjects.

Chicago being the greatest railroad center in the world, it naturally has one of the largest and most active passenger clubs, and as a part of their entertainment program it is the customary practice to make an educational or pleasure trip each Labor Day and on other holidays during the year.

The Baltimore and Ohio invited the Chicago Passenger Club to make a trip to Washington for the usual Labor Day excursion this year, the invitation being cordially accepted. The Company provided a special train to operate as a section of the Capitol Limited, leaving Chicago on September 1 at 2.30 p. m.; and returning left Washington on September 3 at 1.30 p. m.

There were one hundred and thirty people in the party, and to say that they had a highly enjoyable time is to express it mildly. Everything worked out in fine style—the train was on time all the way, the dining car service came in for its full share of praise; and the beauty of the scenery along our line was a revelation to many of these widely traveled Chicagoans.

A baggage car on the train was fitted up for dancing, and many pleasant hours were passed tripping the light fantastic. One of the Santa Fe boys brought a motion picture machine along, and after the dance interesting movies were shown. The Dining Car Department contributed its bit to the evening's enjoyment by serving refreshments.

It was the first visit to Washington for quite a number of the party and, of course, their stay was especially interesting. Those who had previously visited the Capital learned many new things on this trip that gave them a keener appreciation of the National Capital as a tourist point. A day and a half was devoted to sightseeing and inspecting the wonderful buildings in America's most interesting city. They carried away with them a knowledge of the seat of their government not only of real personal value, but first hand information on Washington that may be passed on to prospective passengers with distinct benefit.

The outstanding feature of the return trip was a stop made at Harper's Ferry, affording a good opportunity to become acquainted with the most historic and perhaps the most scenic point on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Early the next morning the party arrived in their home city, happy and delighted with our service. The following telegram sent to General Passenger Agent Brown by the President of the Chicago Passenger Club leads us to believe that the Baltimore and Ohio and Washington are going to become better known among the railroad fraternity in Chicago:

Washington, D. C., 12.29 p. m.
Sept. 2, 1923

W. G. Brown
Chicago, Ill.

Chicago Passenger Club arrived Washington ten forty-five a. m., a very much pleased party. Baltimore and Ohio Railroad service is perfect and everyone in party, one hundred and thirty two strong, are Baltimore and Ohio Railroad boosters. Messrs. Benedict, Cook and Corcoran have been extremely kind and have proven themselves worthy of their good reputation. Our best wishes for the continued success of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

CHICAGO PASSENGER CLUB

C. L. Thompson, President

An unusually gratifying incident that arose in connection with the trip was when several of the committee in charge of arrangements went to Chicago's most prominent confectionery concern, conducted by Mrs. Snyder, to purchase candy for the fifty or more young lady members of the party. When Mrs. Snyder learned that the candy was for a party of railroad people who were to travel over the Baltimore and Ohio, she promptly refused to accept any money and stated it would please her to donate the candy to the club as an expression of her friendly feeling towards the Baltimore and Ohio in view of the good service and kindly attention they are giving the public.

Passenger Representative Quickly on the Job

THE "Prospective Business" cards placed in the MAGAZINE during the past two months have brought results. A day or two after the MAGAZINES containing the first cards had been distributed, we received the following letter from I. C. White, Relief Department:

"Just a word that might be gratifying to Miss Mabel Gessner, our passenger representative. When I received the prospective business card in the July MAGAZINE, which was on Wednesday, the same evening I met some friends who were contemplating a trip to St. Augustine, Fla. I mentioned the Baltimore and Ohio Washington service to them and asked permission to fill out the card. This was unhesitatingly given. The following morning, Thursday, Miss Gessner was right on the job. Recently I met my friend again and she was anxious to express to me her appreciation of the courtesy of Miss Gessner and her willingness to assist in planning the trip. The result, I am quite sure, will be business for the Baltimore and Ohio."

Other reports of a similar nature have come to the MAGAZINE, indicating that our employees are doing all they can to secure business for our Company. The incident related above also shows that cards sent in are receiving prompt and courteous attention on the part of our Traffic Department. With employees in all departments giving "tips", and Passenger and Freight Department representatives promptly following them up, the results will be seen in increased revenue and an increasing number of friends for the Baltimore and Ohio. We are confident that once we secure a passenger, or freight shipper, he will continue to use our service.

"Big Four" Fireman Thanks Our Employees

THE CLEVELAND, CINCINNATI, CHICAGO
AND ST. LOUIS RAILWAY COMPANY

Indianapolis, Ind.
September 19, 1923

The Editor
Baltimore and Ohio Magazine
Baltimore, Md.

Dear Sir:

I want to take this method of expressing my sincere thanks to the officers and employees of the Baltimore and Ohio for many kindnesses shown to me during my trip over your line from Cincinnati to Baltimore and return. I made this trip in order to attend the funeral of my father at York, Pa.

I would appreciate it if you would publish this letter in your MAGAZINE in order that all those who assisted me at the time of my bereavement may know that their kindness was appreciated and will not be forgotten.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) GEORGE W. BOWERSOX
Locomotive Fireman, Big Four R'y.

Veteran Reed is Still at it

THE writer had the pleasure of sitting opposite at table at the dinner concluding Galloway-Fries Day, to W. D. Reed, fifty year "plus" Veteran living in Niles, Ohio. With Mr. Reed were other Veterans from the Chicago Division, Brothers Aiken and Egan among them. Mr. Reed was talking about the business getting campaign so successfully led by the Veterans in 1921. He said:

"I am still at it. Whenever I see anything especially interesting in the MAGAZINE I call particular attention of my close friends to it.

"I always carry a blue folder (the System

The Chicago Passenger Club went to Washington this year on its annual Labor Day tour, and the members, representing different time table) with me. Last week I sent two persons from Chillicothe to New York. I cannot help it. I am steeped in Baltimore and Ohio spirit up to my neck."

Mr. Reed wrote the MAGAZINE office on September 16 and told of two of his friends who wished to return from a vacation in Connecticut to Youngstown, Ohio, and the following letter speaks for itself in this connection:

Sept. 6th 1923

Mr. W. D. Reed
Niles, Ohio
Dear Mr. Reed:

I feel that I owe you many thanks for your kind suggestion that we return from our vacation over the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad.

We left New York on Monday, August 27th on train seven, going as far as Washington where we stayed until Wednesday the 29th. Then we came once more on train seven to Youngstown arriving on time at 6 o'clock Thursday morning.

I feel that I must commend most highly the Dining Car Service and the courteousness of the Baltimore and Ohio train crew. They were of the highest type and did much to insure a pleasant ending to our month's trip.

Thanking you once more, I remain

Yours sincerely,

WALTER HIRST

Hearing a Spade Called a Spade

By T. E. REESE, Chief Clerk, Mail and Express Traffic Department

THE wind-up of the writer's vacation was one that made him feel doubly proud of his Company, and glad to get back in the harness. Here's the inspiration:

While riding in the Pullman "smoker" on a train of another line headed for Washington, D. C. about the first part of August, I heard a conversation between two gentlemen, who from appearance and "hearsay" had traveled quite extensively, especially in the west. They were discussing the merits of certain western lines over which they had ridden several days previously. After finishing their discussion of those lines, they turned towards the "east" with these remarks:

Mr. Q.—"What's considered the standard line in the east?"

Mr. A.—"The Baltimore and Ohio."

Mr. Q.—"How about their dining car service?"

Mr. A.—"The Baltimore and Ohio has the best in the country!"

The answers were given Mr. "Q" such an emphatic way, and evident convinced him so thoroughly of "what what" in the east, that he made his adieu without further say.

Is there any wonder when a fellow hears such talk about the road he represents while riding on another line running somewhat parallel with his own, that he puts all the harder to help maintain that reputation, and doffs his hat to Mr. Baugh and his dining-car men?

American Legion

MEETINGS of the Baltimore and Ohio Post No. 81, American Legion, are held regularly on the fourth Monday night of each month in the Army-Navy Marine Club, West Mulberry near Cathedral Street, Baltimore. Railroad Legionnaires visiting the city are cordially invited to attend and make use of the bowling, pool, billiard and other recreational facilities.

The last meeting was held on the night of September 24 with about twenty members present. Comrade C. R. Hannum will be the Post's representative at the National Convention in October in San Francisco and we see that the handsome Baltimore and Ohio Legion banner is well displayed.

roads, voted Baltimore and Ohio Service "A-1." They even had a dance hall en route, improvised from a baggage car! See story on page 47

Tribute to Colonel Walter V. Shipley

National Hotel and Travel Gazette Praises Handling of Presidential Special Trains

THE following editorial tribute to Colonel Walter V. Shipley, D. F. A. at Washington, D. C., was paid by the National Hotel and Travel Gazette in its September issue:

"Early last May when arrangements were made for the late President Harding to make the trip to Alaska, returning by way of the Panama Canal, the transportation arrangements were placed in the hands of a man well known in railroad circles but of whom comparatively little is known by the general public. The man selected for the important position of Master of Transportation of the Presidential Special was Colonel Walter V. Shipley, division passenger agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Washington, D. C.

"On that fateful Thursday, August 2, when Mr. Harding passed to rest, Colonel Shipley's duties were made doubly important in the fact that those in charge requested that he take charge of the funeral train across the continent. While the eyes of the world followed this train step by step and its procedure had to be regulated to accommodate the vast throngs along the entire route who desired to pay their last respect to their beloved President, Colonel Shipley was the man who saw to it that every wish of Mrs. Harding was carried out and that none of those along the route through the crowded yards of the cities through which the train passed, was disappointed. On the arrival in Washington, when arrangements were completed to have the funeral train from this city to Marion go over the Pennsylvania tracks so to pass through another section of the country, Colonel Shipley was asked to take charge of the train, and when the special leaving Marion with its distinguished party returned to Washington, he was again in command.

"A man thus so signally honored forced into the limelight even against his wishes and it is therefore interesting to note the short but brilliant career of this exceedingly efficient railroad man in his chosen field, as well as the military record which seems to go hand in hand with his railroading. Born November 1, 1883, at Cockeysville, Baltimore County, Maryland, Colonel Shipley received his education in the public schools of Baltimore County, later finishing in a private school in Baltimore City. At the age of nineteen he entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as a stenographer in the accounting department and served various capacities in this department until 1911, when he was appointed traveling tariff inspector in the office of the first vice-president, serving in this capacity for four years.

"In the meanwhile, having joined the Maryland National Guard on May 17, 1904, as an enlisted man in the famous Fifth Maryland Regiment, he began what was to be an able record in the service of his country. Commissioned a second lieutenant, July 4, 1908, he passed through the various commissioned grades up to the rank of major in 1909, being appointed Camp

Quartermaster of the Maryland Mobilization Camp at Laurel, Maryland, June, 1916. In September of the same year he was commissioned Chief Quartermaster of the National Guard of Maryland with the rank of major, and was mustered into the Federal Army in June, 1917, as Disbursing Quartermaster for the Maryland District. October 1, of the same year, he was assigned to Camp McClellan, Alabama, and on July 5, 1918, took his place as Quartermaster of the Twenty-ninth Division at Prauthoy, Hte. Marne, France. Promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel at Verdun, November 10, 1918, he was assigned to duty as Assistant Chief of Staff of the Twenty-ninth Division, A. E. F. During his service in France, Colonel Shipley was awarded the distinguished service medal for meritorious and conspicuous service as Assistant Chief of Staff, Twenty-ninth Division, A. E. F., in Meuse-Argonne operations and activities subsequent thereto.

"In November 1915, Colonel Shipley was appointed passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad at Baltimore, serving in that capacity until June 1916, at which time he was furloughed for military service in connection with the Mexican Border mobilization, remaining in the military service until November 1916, at which time he again assumed the duties of passenger agent at Baltimore, serving in that capacity until June 1917, at which time he was again furloughed for military service in connection with the World War.

"At the close of the war, Colonel Shipley returned to the railroad as traveling passenger agent and on March 1, 1920, assumed his present post as division passenger agent of the Washington district. In June of that year he was commissioned Lieutenant Colonel, Quartermaster Reserve Corps, U. S. A.

Colonel Walter V. Shipley, Division Passenger Agent, Washington, D. C.

"With a career such as the above at the age of forty, Colonel Shipley's future is indeed bright and will be watched with great interest by the many in both private and official life who enjoy his acquaintance."

He Wanted This Put in the MAGAZINE

H. L. PFEIFFER is an inspector of accounts in the Auditor Disbursement's Office. Recently he was attracted by an item he saw in the Southern Railway Bulletin, and asked that we reprint it.

Of course, we will, Mr. Pfeiffer! We have been trying to say the same thing through our own MAGAZINE for the last ten years and are glad to publish another version of it as written by C. M. Mitchell, General Superintendent of Transportation of the Southern Railway, as follows:

The Southern Railway sells transportation and must compete for its share of the country's commerce and travel.

Its success depends upon its efficiency.

Efficiency is the quality that produces the best business results or the most effective service.

We may be effective, but if the competitor is more so he gets the business. People will travel and ship via Southern when they have to. We must make them do it when they don't have to.

The most effective service means more than just carrying the freight or the passenger safely from origin to destination. All the essentials of proper service must co-exist.

Our tariffs, circulars, rules and regulations tell us how to do our work.

We must serve promptly, correctly, safely, courteously, and better than the other railroad. Remember, fellows, we reap what we sow.

Now, let's sow seeds that make friends: (1) by understanding and applying the tariffs, rules and regulations. (2) By knowing your job better—get to be an authority on your work. (3) By working together for the good of the service.

And the Southern Railway—the railway you represent—will flourish and so will you.

We begin now with a clean slate. Let's go!

"This commonwealth is one. We are all members of one body. The welfare of the weakest and the welfare of the most powerful are inseparably bound together. Industry cannot flourish if labor languish. Transportation cannot prosper if manufactures decline. The general welfare cannot be provided for in any one act, but it is well to remember that the benefit of one is the benefit of all, and the neglect of one is the neglect of all. The suspension of one man's dividends is the suspension of another man's pay envelope."

—Calvin Coolidge

Conductor Charles Ireland Completes Fifty Years of Honorable Service

By ALTO SMITH, Secretary to Train Master, Flora, Illinois

CONDUCTOR CHARLES IRELAND, Springfield Sub-Division, has just completed fifty years of service with the Baltimore and Ohio. Mr. Ireland was born in Chillicothe, Ohio, June 3, 1857, and entered service as machinist's apprentice on August 1, 1873. When he finished his apprenticeship he was employed as machinist at Chillicothe, Ohio, under Master Mechanic Edward Bosley. He was transferred to Vincennes, Indiana on what was then the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad as machinist on August 1, 1877, and to freight brakeman on Springfield Sub-Division, March 1, 1880. He was promoted to freight and extra passenger conductor on July 5, 1883, and to regular passenger conductor on July 16, 1883 between St. Louis and Vincennes. Employed as passenger conductor on the main line from July 5, 1883 until June 1, 1889, General Superintendent C. C. F. Bent gave him permission to transfer to Springfield Division, where he has been in continuous passenger service since that time with a clear record. The accompanying photographs show Conductor Ireland as he appeared when making his first trip as passenger conductor and as he appears today.

Mr. Ireland is on record that "the first fifty years of railroading are the hardest." And he says that when he started the business was not considered the honorable vocation that it is today. His parents were members of the Episcopal church and had him pointed for the ministry. He wanted to be a minister, too, but when the time of decision came he was young, and, learning railroading while he was getting older he just naturally decided to make it his life's career. His grandfather was a soldier in the Continental Army and his picture hangs today in Carpenters Hall in Philadelphia, where the first Congress met. Mr. Ireland saw it there in Centennial Year, 1876, on the only trip east that he has ever made in his life.

During Mr. Ireland's early days on the road there was little distinction between the kinds of work assigned to the men on the crew. The job of brakeman and baggage-man was that of one man, and the trains were generally combined freight and passenger. Until about 1885 there were no uniforms for passenger crews, just a cap and sometimes a little badge worn in the lapel of the coat.

Mr. Ireland was chief conductor and secretary of the O. R. C. for a number of years and made the first contract that they ever had. He says:

"I used to be a peacemaker and I usually got anything I went after because I never went after anything that was not right. On two occasions I heard about possible strikes, asked to be relieved, went to the seat of the trouble and talked to the boys until the early hours of the morning. Then I went over to the C. H. and D. and saw George Howard, who was grand chief conductor, and told him that we were going to get into dispute if we broke our contract, etc.

"I have been called to task several times when I did not deserve it but I have made a practice of forgetting the unpleasant things and remembering the good. There is not a day that I make a trip on this railroad that I do not, before I start out, ask the Almighty to have me do or say something that will help somebody along. I have tried to do that."

Mr. Ireland speaks also in a most interesting way of the part he played in the Shawneetown flood in 1898, when he took relief trains in and did courageous work in succoring the unfortunate.

So that even if he did not realize his boyhood ambition of being a minister, he perhaps chose wisely, after all. For we all know the need of good men in business and that the more good men we have, the better the business will be. We can recall also the appropriateness of one of the beatitudes as applied to Mr. Ireland's life: "Blessed are the Peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God."

New Facilities for Automobile Handling in Baltimore

ON AUGUST 22 the Company announced the opening of the new and modern, covered and open, fireproof platforms at Oak Street Station, Baltimore, for the handling of automobiles. Located at the Southwest corner of Oak and 21st Streets, they are directly in the automobile industry district, yet away from the congested traffic section.

The covered section is 160 ft. long by 23 ft. wide, and is built of structural steel, with reinforced gypsum slab roof, concrete floor, steel frame walls and sliding doors. It is covered with corrugated zinc, has steel sash with wired glass and is lighted by electricity. This enables assembling of cars without inconvenience account weather conditions, but no covered storage space is available.

Two ramps serve the Oak Street front for delivery, one of which enables delivery from end-door cars. Delivery, also, may be taken along 21st Street front, from both the covered fireproof platform, (through convenient doorways) as well as from the open fireproof platform, 140 ft. long by 23 ft. wide (concrete floor), which open platform immediately adjoins the covered platform. This open platform is served by convenient exits.

Hydrants, with  $\frac{3}{4}$  inch water supply line for radiators, are conveniently located on both covered and open platforms.

These new and up-to-date facilities for automobile dealers supplement the splendid facilities at Camden Station which are so convenient for automobile concerns in the central part of Baltimore. The announcement of the new facilities at Oak Street were signed by E. S. King, district freight agent. Receiving and Delivery Clerk J. Glaser is in charge.

THEN AND NOW—
Conductor Charles Ireland, St. Louis Division

by G.H. Pryor
Auditor of Disbursements

Note:

All puzzles published in this department will be defined, as far as possible, from the New Standard Dictionary, edition of 1920. It is permissible to use both geographical and biographical words in the construction of puzzles, but when such words are taken from any authority other than the New Standard Dictionary, the name of such authority must be stated at the end of the definition, in parenthesis. Obsolete words will be marked at the end of the definition thus—"obs". Variant spellings of a word must be marked at the end of the definition thus—"var". Address all communications concerning this department to G. H. Pryor, Room 800, Baltimore and Ohio Building, Baltimore, Maryland, and mark the envelope "Puzzles."

THE answers to puzzles published in the July issue are:

1. Solvable

2. M E D L A R
E P A U L E
D A N G L E
L U G G E D
A L L E G E
R E E D E D

3. Duds—Suds

4. L
A I D
A F T E R
A F R I C A N
L I T I G A T E S
D E C A D E S
R A T E D
N E S
S

5. C-lea-r

6. S M A R T S
A R O U N D
M A N O R S
D E R A I L
R E M A I N
R A M P E R

7. S-t-rip

8. L I M P S
I K A R O S
M A H O U N D
P R O C T O R S
S O U T H W I N D
S N O W F L E A
D R I L L E T
S N E E Z E
D A T E R

9. Mystic Art

(Miss-Stick-Art)

10. S O K K V A B E K K R
C A N A D A T E A
I A P Y G E S
B O T O N
R U T
M

11. Sallow-Allow

12. Furbelows

13. P
A R
P A T E N T S
R E T I R E
N I T E R
T R E R O N
S E R O L I N
N I N

14. Thirsty-Thirty

15. B and O

16. DISCONTINUED

Magic Square	9	15	4	6
	2	8	11	13
	7	1	14	12
	16	10	5	3

CORRECT solutions were received from the following:

Ben Franklin, S. T. Udent, Comrade, N. Jineer, Primrose, Pearlle Glenn, J. F. Donovan, G. Hartman Pryor, Atlas, L. M. N. Terry, The Major, Martelia, L. E. Phant, Baltimore, Md.; Winkie, Charleston, W. Va.; Kee Pon, Malden, Mass.; Alec Sander, Philadelphia, Pa.; Reel, Zanesville, O.; Spica, Whitney Crossing, N. Y.; P. M. Pennington, Cumberland, Md.; Gee, Asheboro, N. C.; Gemini, Poly, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Wick-o-cincy, Cincinnati, Ohio, T. Hinker, Jack O'Lantern, Bangor, Pa.; Tunste, Joaquin, C. Saw, New York, N. Y.; Towhead, Lafayette, Ind.; Ralph E.

Stroudsburg, Pa.; Mentor, Chicago, Ill.; Dan D. Lyon, New Florence, Pa.; K. T. Did, Nypho, E. R. Woodson, Aluminus, Washington, D. C.; Gi Gantic, Petite, Moleni, St. Louis, Mo.; Delmonte, Richmond, Va.; Spud, Yazoo City, Miss.; Fred Domino, Corinth, Miss.; Emeline, Fairbury, Neb.; Tom Crestmore, Johnstown, Pa.; Lateo, Hoboken, N. J.; Arty Ess, Scranton, Pa.; Kappa Kappa, Fargo, N. Dak.; Sherlock Holmes, Worthing, S. Dak.; Arcanus, Elloise, Iowa City, Iowa; Jemand, Wilmington, N. C.; P. A. Butterwick, Telford, Pa.

The prize offered in the July issue for a copy of one of the six best sellers was won by Ben Franklin (Wm. E. Frederick, Audr. Disbursements Office, Baltimore, Md.)

New Puzzles

1. TRANSPOSITION (6)

Sweetie and I were both ill of a fever
Inoculated by the microbe of love,
I swore by the Gods that never I'd leave her—
I was her "tootsie" and she was my "dove."

She lived in a flat where no nook was dark,
Made me so wild I might commit arson;
So we just rented our own place to park,
And hied us away to the home of the parson.

A ring on her finger, a smile on her lips,
She told me she had me tied up good and fast;
"Tootsie, I'll love you with such a firm grip,

That, now we are FIRST, you'll not want to be LAST."

Baltimore, Md.

Atlas

2. DIAMOND

1—A letter,
2—Dexterity,
3—The portion of a horse's back behind
the saddle,
4—A rude Spanish-American mill (Var.).
5—Affected with strabismus,
6—Members of the Tutelo tribe of Indians
(New Int.),
7—Our puzzle Editor,
8—In Roman antiquity, money,
9—A letter.
St. Louis, Mo.

Gi Gantic

3. CHARADE (9)

Tall and straight a ONE adorns a street,
Essential are TWO for hands and feet.
TOTAL must be a part of a ship
'Ere she is ready for her first trip.
Fairbury, Neb. Emeline

4. SQUARE

1—(Rare) Of or pertaining to what is in front,
2—A shade of difference in color,
3—A South-American linguistic stock,
4—To inspire with ardent love,
5—(Math.) A conjugate point,
6—(Prov. or Obs.) Learns.
Baltimore, Md. N. Jineer

5. BEHEADMENT (5)

Old Hee-Ma-Hee-Ma-Kee the Indian chief
Who we all know is a great big thief,
He handles his hatchet rather too handy
And ONE drinks water if he TWO gets brandy.
Cumberland, Md. P. M. P.

6. RHOMBOID

Across:

1—A Cent. and So. Amer. pinnateleaved palm,
2—Celebrity,
3—Of, pertaining to, or containing nitrogen,
4—The fall herring,
5—One of the shooting stars of the star shower which recurs near Nov. 14 at intervals of 33 years,
6—(Golf) A position of two balls on the putting green.

Down:

1—A letter,
2—(Her.) Yellow or gold color,
3—The female of the domestic fowl,
4—One,
5—Dorsal,
6—A room for ewers,
7—A native of the region of the Upper Nile,
8—A rabbit,
9—The border of a thing,
10—(I.) Gods,
11—A letter.

Yazoo City, Miss.

Spud

7. TRANSPOSITION (7)

The cur that bites the hand
That fed it, we agree
To call a ONE
The NEXT please understand
Is "rending," Now you'll see
My task is done.
Brooklyn, N. Y. Gemini

8. PYRAMID

Across:

1—A letter,
2—To render suitable,
3—Insects that destroy woolen fabrics,
4—United in matrimony,
5—A slender prostrate branch rooting at the nodes.

Down:

1—A letter,

2—Mother,
3—To ruin,
4—To make from given materials,
5—A type of head covering,
6—Attenuated,
7—To fix in the ground as a plant,
8—A German word meaning "you;"
9—A letter.

Philadelphia, Pa.

A. T. Ourman

9. BEHEADMENT (3)

There is a little animal scarce larger than a cat,
Behead, an animal you get, O, My! as big as that!
Lafayette, Ind. Towhead

10. RHOMBOID

Across:

1—Measures,
2—Rendered docile,
3—Apparatus for smoking tobacco,
4—Anecdotes or stories,
5—A summer resort, Berkshire County,
Mass.

Down:

1—A letter,
2—(A proposition) Of a point in space,
3—A chasm,
4—To send or give out,
5—One of the individual parts or leaves of a Calyx,
6—(In printing) to take out,
7—A Japanese copper or bronze coin,
8—To this or that or such a degree,
9—A letter.

Baltimore, Md.

L. E. Phant

11. BEHEADMENT (6)

'Tis sad to FIRST that Johnny came
One day so very THREE to school;
And Tommy it did surely TWO
To see him whipped with teacher's rule,
For Johnny FOUR his apple all
When they were on their way to school.
Bangor, Pa. Jack O'Lantern

12. HALF SQUARE

1—A letter,
2—To move from one place to another,
3—One of the chief gods of the Babylonians,
4—To goad or prod (Scotch),
5—To crab plover,
6—A republic and state of the German Empire,
7—A salt of bromic acid,
8—The branch of pure mathematics which treats of space and its relations, 9—A large sea-duck of the genus Glaucionetta.
Johnstown, Pa. Tom Crestmore

13. CHARADE (9)

When you are near the skies are bright,
No fears or doubts confound me;
The days are just a long delight,
With your fond arms around me.
The nights can no more glorious be,
The countless stars above you
Shine down upon my ecstasy,—
I TWO because I love you.

Whene'er you wander from my side,
And doubts and ONE assail me;
When fearing will not be denied,
And hope and courage fail me,
Then I recall your TOTAL ways,—
That you are thinking of me,
And once again my song I raise
Because I know you love me.
Baltimore, Md. L. M. N. Terry

14. TRUNCATE INVERTED PYRAMID
(Defined from Webster's New International)

Across:

1—Euchre, with four players, in which any player can take his partner's best card for a lone hand,
2—Steam shovels,
3—Having the most streams,
4—An arm,
5—An old variant of "starts,"
6—A genus of fresh water ducks,
7—Old form of "his."

Down:

1—A letter,
2—Like,
3—Possessive form of it,
4—An inhabitant of Kurland, Russia,
5—Rears (Dial),
6—Free folds of the peritoneum,
7—Ducklike,
8—Natives of Damaraland,
9—Puts out by legal process,
10—Evils (Old form),
11—Variant of six,
12—Old form of heat,
13—Letters R,
14—A letter.

New Florence, Pa.

Dan D. Lyon

15. CLASSICAL DIAMOND

(Form No. 41 in "The Key to Puzzledom")

The National Sport in name is tame
But baseball is a "classy" game;
It brings the "diamond" much fame.
("Play ball"!)

A game in progress, home team in lead;
(cheers!)—then, a homerun puts opponents ahead; Ball hits the old-fashioned FOUR (the visitors' traveling equipage) in adjoining lot, scaring the horses that FIVE there for food, while in the bleachers and grandstand the TWOS seek consolation and comfort from the vendors of refreshing
"pop" and THREE and the ubiquitous peanuts, pretzels and "hot-dogs."

Visitors now winning; SIX of home team grows EIGHT; more so when the "Umps" gives orders to take ONE and NINE (letters) from "diamond"—two of his best men;—
how now would they fare? SEVEN before they had lost!

But why go on?—why tell you more?
Let it suffice to tell the score:
The home team lost! —by 8 to 4—
(That's all!)

Telford, Pa.

P. A. B.

Anagrams

16. NEAT DO I LINE

Cincinnati, O.

Wick-o-cincy

17. ELEGANT MAN

Yazoo City, Miss.

Spud

18. NO NOM U SAY?

Yazoo City, Miss.

Spud

19. LOAD MAIL TRAIN—STORE TRAINS

Philadelphia, Pa.

A. T. Ourman

* * * *

The solver sending in the first complete list of answers to the puzzles in this issue will be awarded a copy of one of the six best sellers, the selection to be made by the winner from a list that will be submitted.

To receive proper credit all list of solutions must be in my hands by December 5, the answers and solvers list will be published in the January, 1924 issue.

Just between You and Me

14—Truncate inverted pyramid, is shaped like this:

```

O O O O O O O O O O O O O
  O O O O O O O O O O O
    O O O O O O O O O
      O O O O O O O
        O O O O O
          O O O O
            O O O
              O O
                O

```

As in the regular inverted pyramid and as indicated by the definitions the cross words differ from the up and down words.

15—The classical diamond, is shaped like this:

```

      O
    O O O
  O O O O O
O O O O O O O
O O O O O O O
O O O O O O O
O O O O O
  O O O
    O

```

The words read the same across and up and down and a sample of the puzzle will be found in the "Key to Puzzledom" under Form No. 41. P. A. B. has supplied a rather unusual description for No. 15 but the baseball fans (and who is not a baseball fan?) should find no difficulty in locating the necessary words for its solution.

The National Puzzlers League celebrated its 40th anniversary by holding its 80th semi-annual convention at Pittsburgh, Labor Day. About forty puzzlers attended the meeting and a great deal of interesting business was transacted. The following officers were elected for the ensuing term: President, Guidon; Washington, D. C.; 1st Vice-President, Happy Thought, Baltimore, Md.; 2nd Vice-President, N. Jineer, Baltimore, Md.; Secretary, C. Saw, New York City; Treasurer, Willie Wildwave, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Official Editor of the "Enigma," Arty Ess, Scranton, Pa. The next convention will be held at Washington, D. C., February 22nd, 1924, and the League, through me, extends a cordial invitation to all Baltimore and Ohio puzzlers to attend.

Traveling Passenger Agent
Allen Stricken in Milwaukee

THE many friends of Charles W. Allen, traveling passenger agent, Baltimore Division, and president of the Baltimore Chapter of the Veterans, will be sorry to learn that he suffered a stroke of paralysis at Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on September 3. He had left Baltimore on September 1 with a special party of the G. A. R. enroute to their national encampment at Milwaukee. He complained of feeling ill during the latter part of the trip, but was not completely incapacitated until early in the morning of September 3.

Arrangements were made by our Passenger Department in Milwaukee for his transfer to a hospital and he was later sent with his daughter, who had gone to see him immediately after his sudden illness, via the Capitol Limited to Baltimore, arriving there on September 18. He is now resting as comfortably as can be expected in his home in Baltimore.

Mr. Allen came with the Baltimore and Ohio as passenger brakeman in 1885 at Baltimore and was put in charge of the Bureau of Information in 1888; in 1902 he became a traveling baggage agent and in 1903 traveling passenger agent with headquarters first at Parkersburg, then at Connellsville in 1907 and finally at Baltimore in 1910, where he has been ever since.

We express the cordial wishes of his many friends in hoping that he may soon recover sufficiently to come back to his work.

The Kind of Engine They Used
in 1887

By FIREMAN E. MURPHY

McMechen, W. Va.

THE accompanying picture of the old engine was taken about 1887, just east of the Factory switch at Cameron W. Va. The engine had just been returned from Mt. Clare Shop, after having had the diamond stack removed and a straight stack and extension front put on for the purpose of eliminating smoke and dirt, for she was to be used now to help passenger trains over the hill. The old style water pump that was connected with a crank to the back driver was removed and an injector put in its place.

This engine was not equipped with a power brake; passenger engines then were equipped with what is known as the Loughbridge brake. Air was pumped by the momentum of the engine by an eccentric connected with the axle of the front driver. Air was stored in a large reservoir on the back end of the tank. The brake valve on the engine had two movements, on and off, with three ports in valve, and could release or apply at will.

In those days we ran cut of Wheeling and had a helper. Fourteen loads of Q. D. freight, or sixteen loads of dead freight was a train. The cars were from 28,000 to 32,000 pounds capacity, and we certainly could "go to town." Sometimes we would leave Wheeling at 5:30 a. m., on No. 88 schedule, and near Cameron we would get an order to run wild, Cameron to Grafton; then we would get another order that Express 46 would run one minute late, Cameron to Grafton. This meant that 46 would be 6 minutes late, as 5 minutes variation was allowed at that time.

If we had been told to get up and run one of the present day Mallet engines, we probably would have looked it over, decided that it was a "hell in harness" and would have taken to the woods.

"Let us have done with misunderstandings, let us strive to realize the dream of democracy by a prosperity of industry that shall mean the prosperity of the people, by a strengthening of our material resources that shall mean a strengthening of our character, by a merchandising that has for its end manhood, and womanhood, the ideal of American citizenship."

—Calvin Coolidge

Thomas Hopkins and Edward Murphy, McMechen, W. Va., who used to run the old 225 shown in the background

Those Who Entered Trade Mark Contest

The Baltimore and Ohio acknowledges with thanks the interest displayed by the following persons (most of whom are employes of the Railroad) in submitting designs in the Trade Mark Contest

NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES	NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES
ABBOTT, OAKLEY B.	Hamilton, O.	1	BYBEE, W. W.	Car Accountant, Cincinnati	2
ABERNATHY, ADA.	Lebanon, Ill.	1	CALLAHAN, P. A.	Asst. Engr., Cincinnati	3
AEHLE, EDWIN.	Pittsburgh.	4	CALDWELL, L. A.	Ticket Clk., Fairmont, W. Va.	1
ALDRICH, EDW. L.	Jefferson Pk., Mo.	1	CARIDO, J. E.	Pipe Fitter, Baltimore	1
ALLARD, C. L.	Photographer, Baltimore	4	CARPENTER, C. H.	Gassaway, W. Va.	3
ALLEN, CHAS. T.	Janitor, Phila. Pass. Sta.	1	CARROLL, LEON W.	Axle Shop, Baltimore	1
ALLEN, R. M.	Taylorville, Ill.	1	CASE, R. J.	Brakeman, Cumberland, Md.	1
ALLEN, Mrs. EDW.	Greenspring, W. Va.	3	CHAINS, N. W.	Chester, Pa.	1
ANDERSON, F. C.	Operator, Keyser, W. Va.	2	CHAMBERS, MILTON T.	Secy. to Chf. Engr., Balto.	1
ANDREWS, J. FRANK.	Office A. M. A.	4	CHANDLER, CHAS. H.	Los Angeles, Cal.	1
AUSTIN, Miss CLEO.	Dallas, Texas	2	CHANDLER, R. C.	E. Akron, Ohio	1
BAILEY, FRANK C.	Asst. Eng. House Foreman, Newark, Ohio	3	CHANEY, J.	Operator, Baltimore	1
BAKER, JOHN T.	Baltimore	1	CHARLES, F. L.	Asst. Genl. Frt. Claim Agt., Cincinnati, Ohio	2
BALDRIDGE, W. D.	Brakeman, Foxburg, Pa.	1	CHESLEY, R. M.	Ticket Seller, Wash., D. C.	1
BALKEY, GEO. J.	Freight Office, Pittsburgh	1	CHICKEDANTZ, Miss M.	Sumner, Ill.	2
BALLARD, H. O.	Bloomsdale, Ohio	1	CLARK, ALBERT B.	Pasadena, Md.	1
BANKS, CLARENCE E.	"GO" Telegraph Office Balti- more	3	CLARK, ELIZABETH	Daughter of Car Inspector, Morgantown, W. Va.	1
BANSMAN, EDW. H.	Baltimore	1	CLEAIRES, I. W.	Chester, Pa.	1
BANSFORTH, Mrs. F. O.	Garrett, Ind.	1	CLEAVER, R. A.	Conductor, Philadelphia	1
BARKER, S. P.	New York City	1	COCKLEY, E. K.	Station Agt., Montana, W. Va.	1
BARGER, R. W.	M. P. Dept. Brunswick, Md.	1	COCKRILL, RALPH S.	Connellsville, Pa.	1
BARLEY, A. T. Jr.	A.M.R. Office, Baltimore	1	COLE, F. H. JR.	Law Department, Cincinnati	2
BARLEY, M. D.	Freight Tariff Department, Cincinnati, Ohio	8	COMER, THOMAS, L.	Towerman, Park Junction, Philadelphia	3
BARND, JOHN S.	Spl. Investigator, Cinti.	1	COMP, JAMES L.	Night Ticket Clerk, Pied- mont, W. Va.	1
BARNHOUSE, F. E.	Brakeman, New Castle, Pa.	1	CONLEY, J. W.	Tinner, Mt. Clare, Baltimore	2
BARR, WM. T.	Brakeman, Baltimore Division Staunton, Va.	1	CONNER, J. M.	Asst. Engineer, Baltimore	1
BAYER, ARTHUR H.	Hoboken, N. J.	1	COOK, G. F.	Baltimore	1
BECKER, E. F.	Cincinnati	4	COPLAN, FANNY A.	Valuation Dept., Baltimore	1
BELL, WM. H.	Parkersburg, W. Va.	2	COPLAN, EDITH H.	Baltimore	1
BELLAMY, D. T.	Opr. Storrs, O., Cinti.	1	COPPER, E. C.	Conductor, Newark, Ohio	1
BENNESEN, C. H.	Train Disp., Wheeling, W. Va.	1	CORVIN, J.	South Connellsville, Pa.	1
BERINGER, E. R.	Material Clk., Dayton, O.	2	CORVIN, LOUISE	South Connellsville, Pa.	1
BERRY RAYMOND, L.	Baltimore	1	COULEHAN, R. V.	Care of Division Engineer, Cumberland, Md.	1
BLANCHARD, PAUL E.	Chicago	1	COYNE, D. L.	Operator, Salem, W. Va.	1
BLOOM, J. C.	Opr., Mt. Savage Jct., Md.	2	CRAMER, F. A.	Agent, Cromwell, Ind.	1
BOLDEN, R. H.	Lansdowne P. O., Md.	1	CRAVEN, EDWARD E.	Frt. House, Youngstown, O.	1
BONNEMORT, Miss M.	Oakland, Cal.	1	CRITES, G. S.	Div. Engr., Baltimore	1
BORGEL, W. B.	Care of Genl. Pass. Agt., Cincinnati	2	CRONCHER, CARL	Tunnelton, Indiana	3
BOUGHNER, Mrs. A. G.	Confluence, Pa.	1	CROSS, T. B.	Waverly, W. Va.	1
BOVEY, CHAS.	Chicago	1	CROSS, WM. F.	Section Foreman, Morgans- ville, W. Va.	1
BRADEN, WM. F.	Baltimore	5	CUNDIFF, ROLAND D.	Care of Master Mechanic, Riverside	1
BRANAMAN, H. W.	Washington, Ind.	1	CUNNINGHAM, Mrs. B.	Lake Geneva, Fla.	2
BRIDGENS, OSCAR W.	Rosebank, Staten Island	1	CUPP, W. E.	Fairchance, Pa.	1
BROWN, LEO. E.	Switchman, Dayton, Ohio	5	CURREN, THOMAS	Section Stockman, Wils- mere, Del.	3
BROWN, Mrs. W. G.	Wife of Genl. Pass. Agt., Chicago	1	DAVIS, EDWARD C.	Toledo, Ohio	1
BROWNING, CLARK	Newark, Ohio	1	DAVIS, R. C.	G. Y. M., Washington, Ind.	1
BRYAN, ELIZABETH	Care of Supt. Telegraph, Baltimore	1	DAWKINS, H. Y.	Takoma Park, Md.	1
BUCKLEY, Mrs. C. E.	Parkersburg, W. Va.	1	DECK, W. A.	Conductor, Newark, Ohio	1
BUSICK, CARROLL	Baltimore	1	DEE, WM. G.	Foreman, Cleveland, Ohio	1
BUTLER, J. H.	New York	1	DEMING, W. C.	Front Royal, Va.	1
BUBINGER, CLAUDE A.	Dayton, Ohio	3	DICKSON, C. H.	Baltimore	1
BUJAE, M. R.	Trainman, Philadelphia	1

THOSE WHO ENTERED TRADE MARK CONTEST

NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES	NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES
DIEHLMAN, DANIEL.....	Catonsville, Md.....	1	GEMMILL, MELVILLE....	Secy. to Frt. Traffic Mangr., Baltimore.....	1
DIETRICH, WM.....	Baltimore.....	1	GERAGHTY, WALTER A....	Aud. Frt. Claim Dept., Baltimore.....	1
DI LISCO, CHRISTY.....	Mahoningtown, Pa.....	1	GILDBAUGH, J. L.....	Engineer, Newburg, W. Va..	1
DILL, MAURICE E.....	Special Clerk, Baltimore.....	2	GILL, JAMES D.....	Baltimore.....	1
DIX, P. C.....	Division Claim Agent, Connellsville, Pa.....	1	GLENMAN, EUGENE.....	Newark, Ohio.....	1
DIXON, CHAS. W.....	Weston, W. Va.....	1	GODWIN, HARRY E.....	Wilkinsburg, Pa.....	1
DIXON, PHILIP R.....	Round House Clerk, Ivorydale, Ohio; Cincinnati....	1	GOODMAN, HARRY L....	Secy. to Supt., Baltimore....	2
DOBBIN, GEORGE.....	Baltimore, Md.....	1	GORMAN, W. J.....	Moores Hill, Ind.....	1
DONELL, W. C.....	St. George, Staten Island...	3	GRANT, ROBERT J.....	Clarksburg, W. Va.....	3
DONALDSON, EDW. K....	State Sanatorium, Md.....	1	GREENE, J. D.....	Machinist, Storrs Round House, Cincinnati.....	7
DORSEY, J. P.....	Train Master, New Castle...	1	GREENE, VIOLET D.....	Cincinnati.....	1
DOTY, WM. W.....	Annochle, Staten Island....	3	GREENWOOD, E. E.....	Asst. Term. Cashier, Pittsburgh.....	1
DOTY, REGINALD J.....	Staten Island.....	3	GRIFFITH, A. H.....	Dist. Engineer, Cincinnati...	1
DU BOIS, FLETCHER....	Philadelphia.....	1	GROVE, H.....	Pittsburgh.....	1
DUFFY, JOSEPH L.....	Elm Grove, W. Va.....	1	HADAWAY, RUSSELL M..	Mt. Rainier, Md.....	2
DUNCAN, ELMER A.....	General Superintendent's Office, Cincinnati.....	1	HADLEY, F. G.....	Frt. Agent, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.	1
DUNCAN, C. R.....	Chief Clerk to Genl. Supt., Cleveland.....	4	HAIN, EDW. A.....	Baltimore.....	1
DUNCAN, W. E.....	Hamilton, Ohio.....	1	HALLAMAN, J. G.....	Baggageman, Washington, Pa.	2
DUVALL, W. J.....	Seattle, Washington.....	1	HAMILTON, J. W.....	Genl. Mgr's. Off., Baltimore.	1
EARNEST, E. W.....	Switch Tender, Pittsburgh...	1	HAMMNER, A. T.....	Des Moines, Iowa.....	1
EINWAECHTER, FRED H..	Mt. Clare, Baltimore.....	1	HAMPTON, V. E.....	Freight Repr., Chicago.....	1
ELDER, G. A.....	Operator, Hicksville, Ohio...	1	HANNIGAN, GERARD....	Wilmington, Del.....	1
ENGLISH, JOHN W.....	Loveland, Ohio.....	1	HANNIGAN, MARY G....	Wilmington, Del.....	1
EVERETT, R. T.....	Bldg. Engr., Cincinnati....	6	HANNIGAN, MARTIN....	Wilmington, Del.....	1
EVANS, CHAS.....	Watchman, Hammond, Ind.	2	HARGET, WM.....	Girard, Ohio.....	1
FARNSWORTH, R. S.....	Summit Point, W. Va.....	3	HARMON, DAN J.....	Wheelwright, Ky.....	2
FEIST, EDGAR F.....	Tariff Bureau, Cincinnati...	4	HART, EDW. JR.....	Genl. Frt. Agt., St. Louis...	1
FELDMAN, J.....	Steno., E. St. Louis, Ill....	1	HECHMER, JOHN J.....	Grafton, W. Va.....	1
FERKLER, T. B. JR.....	Baltimore.....	3	HEISERG, S.....	Conductor, Willard, Ohio....	4
FICKES, ALFRED C.....	Lancaster, Pa.....	1	HEISEY, PAUL M.....	Gen. Frt. Office, Baltimore..	1
FINLEY, EDWARD.....	St. George, Staten Island...	20	HEISLER, WM. J.....	New Orleans, La.....	1
FLORIAN, MRS. A. E....	Newark, Ohio.....	1	HENDERSON, CLARA....	Baltimore.....	1
FOGLE, W. H.....	Chief of Tariff Bureau.....	1	HENNELER, P.....	Valuation Dept., Baltimore..	1
FOLEY, E. P.....	Extra Gang Foreman, Meyersdale, Pa.....	2	HENRY, C, EDGAR.....	Operator, Hancock, W. Va...	1
FORD, HARRY E.....	Car Insp., Baltimore.....	2	HILDEBRANDT, W. H....	Camden Station, Baltimore..	1
FORSTER, EDW. C.....	Ellwood City, Pa.....	2	HILGEMEIER, AL. S.....	Rate Clerk, Div. Frt. Office, Washington, Ind.....	4
FORTNEY, MRS.....	Martinsburg, W. Va.....	1	HILL, WALTER H.....	Care of Div. Accountant, St. George.....	1
FRANKS, ALBERT W....	Connellsville, Pa.....	1	HILL, WM. E.....	Loco. Engr., Hamilton, Ohio.	5
FRANKS, H. C.....	Yard Engr., Dayton, Ohio...	1	HILLE, ROBT. A.....	Cincinnati.....	1
FREDERICK, G. V.....	Passenger Dept., Baltimore..	1	HILLER, JOHN.....	Pittsburgh.....	1
FREDERICK, CHAS. H....	Chief Clk., Genl. Baggage & Milk Dept., Baltimore....	1	HILTON, CHAS. S.....	Baltimore.....	1
FREELAND, G. W.....	Low Side Shop, Parkersburg, W. Va.....	1	HIPPER, WM. H.....	Baltimore.....	1
FRENDENBERG, AUGUST..	Cincinnati.....	1	HOBAN, T. J.....	Grafton, W. Va.....	1
FREY, L. B.....	Foreman, Mt. Clare, Baltimore.....	1	HOBART, EDW. P.....	Pittsburgh.....	1
FRIEL, JOSEPH.....	Machinist, Round House, Connellsville, Pa.....	1	HOFFMAN, ARTHUR.....	New York City.....	1
FROLICH, CHAS. F.....	Receiving Clk., Baltimore...	2	HOFFMAN, MISS K.....	Youngstown, Ohio.....	6
FULTON, LEWIS.....	Marietta, Ohio.....	1	HOGAN, H. M.....	Car Distb., Washington, Ind.	1
GAINOR, S. E.....	Genl. Frt. Claim Dept., Baltimore.....	1	HOHMAN, H. W.....	Office Aud. Mdse. Receipts, Baltimore.....	1
GALBRAITH, C. E.....	Parkersburg, W. Va.....	1	HOLLERAN, THOMAS J..	North Braddock, Pa.....	1
GANERT, FRED. W.....	Trackman, Rockwood, Pa...	1	HOLMAN, J. F.....	Baltimore.....	1
GARNER, JAMES W.....	Local Frt. Off., Cincinnati...	1	HOLTON, D. S.....	Fairmont, W. Va.....	2
GARRETT, ROBERT B....	Deer Park, Md.....	1	HOLTZINGER, F. W.....	Stores Dept., Glenwood, Pa..	1
GARRETT, PAUL C.....	Division Claim Agt., Cumberland, Md.....	6	HONSTICK, FRANK.....	Clarksburg, W. Va.....	3
GEIGEL, J. R.....	Tottenville, N. Y.....	6	HOPKINS, WM. C.....	Baltimore.....	1
			HORNING, L. L.....	City Passenger Agent, St. Louis, Mo.....	1
			HOYT, W. E.....	Agent, Walkersville, W. Va..	2
			HUBENER, ALBERT R....	Fireman, Haselton, Ohio....	2

THOSE WHO ENTERED TRADE MARK CONTEST

NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES	NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES
HUMPHREYS, R. W.....	Clerk, A. M. R. Dept., Balti- more.....	5	LINDSAY, JOHN.....	Connellsville, Pa.....	4
HUSSION, M. B.....	Grafton, W. Va.....	1	LIPPERT, B. A.....	Baltimore.....	1
HUTCHINSON, T. B.....	Tkt.Clk., Parkersburg, W.Va.	5	LIPPY, DOROTHY E.....	Multg. Opr., Baltimore.....	1
HUTCHINSON, E. J.....	Willard, Ohio.....	1	LLEWELLYN, M. H.....	Baltimore.....	7
ILG, HERMAN.....	Philadelphia.....	1	LOHMAN, MISS JEANETTE	Cincinnati.....	1
IMMLER, HARRY.....	Paint Shop, Mt. Clare.....	1	LONG, JAMES.....	Switchman, N. Vernon, Ind..	1
INGRUND, F. J.....	Willard, Ohio.....	1	LOVE, JAMES B.....	Office of Genl. Frt. Claim Agent, Baltimore.....	1
IRISH, R. M.....	C. C. to Engr. Maintenance & Construction, Chicago..	2	LOVETT, J. W.....	Switchman, Lima, Ohio.....	3
ISENOGLE, E. B.....	Div. Storekeeper, Dayton, O.	5	LUBER, HARRY N.....	Laurel, Md.....	1
IULER, J. M.....	Train Disp., Chillicothe, Ohio	1	LUCKEY, G. B.....	Photographer, Baltimore...	1
JACKSON, CHAS. H.....	Fireman, Baltimore.....	3	LUSE, C. W.....	Painter, Painesville, Ohio...	5
JANUSHEK, A. J.....	Pilot Engr., Val. Dept., Bal- timore.....	1	MANER, JOS.....	Pittsburgh.....	8
JENKINS, J. L.....	Agent Operator, Berryburg Jct., W. Va.....	3	MANNIX, Edw. M.....	R. H. Clerk, Dayton, Ohio..	1
JOHANSON, JOHN J.....	Secy. to Frt. Traffic Mgr., New York.....	3	MARSHALL, W. P.....	Covington, Ky.....	1
JOHNSON, C. W.....	Berkeley Springs, W. Va....	2	MARSH, LESTER, B.....	Milwaukee, Wis.....	1
JOHNSON, HATLER.....	Smalley, Ky.....	1	MARTIN, L. E.....	McMechen, W. Va.....	1
JOHNSTON, JOHN J.....	Pittsburgh.....	2	MATHENY, J. W.....	Parkersburg Low Yard, W.Va	1
JONES, I.....	Chief Clk. to Traffic Agt., St. George, N. Y.....	1	MATTHEWS, S.....	Trav. Car Agent, Tiffin, Ohio	1
JORDAN, THOS. C.....	Strs. Dept., Washington, Ind.	1	MAURITIUS, J. H.....	Jersey City, N. J.....	6
JUSTIS, NEWTON R.....	Section Foreman, Milan, Ind.	1	McCAGHEY, F. C.....	Catonsville, Md.....	1
KANE, A. S.....	Asst. Frt. Agt., Louisville, Ky.	2	McCAHAN, J. C.....	Hd. Cl. Treas. Dep. Baltimore	1
KATHMAN, JOSEPH W....	Care of Dist. Engr., Cincinnati	2	McCOMBS, N.....	Philadelphia, Pa.....	1
KAUFMAN, THEO. D.....	New York.....	1	McCOMBS, Mrs. W. E...	Wife of Painter, Benwood, W. Va.....	1
KEATING, FRANCIS J....	Engine Inspector, Chicago...	3	McCOMBS, W. E.....	Painter, Benwood, W. Va....	1
KEAUSE, HENRY L.....	Back Shop, Cumberland.....	1	McCREARY, W. R.....	Office Auditor Miscellaneous Accounts, Baltimore.....	1
KEFFER, W. G.....	South Connellsville, Pa.....	1	McCUSKER, HARRY A...	R. and D. Clerk, Baltimore..	4
KELLAMS, JOHN M.....	Loco. Engr., Washington, Ind.	1	McDEVITT, C. E.....	Cincinnati.....	1
KELLEY, J. P.....	Pass. Condr., Meyersdale, Pa.	4	McDONALD, E. G.....	Agent, Duffields, W. Va.....	3
KELLEY, J. C.....	Cincinnati.....	2	McEVOY, CHAS. P.....	Chief Clerk, Baltimore.....	2
KERNER, LESTER.....	Office of Engineer M. of W., Cincinnati.....	2	McFARLAND, R. W.....	Grafton, W. Va.....	1
KESLING, CLARENCE.....	Tonnage Clk., Dayton, Ohio.	1	McGARY, P. B.....	Yd. Conductor, Dayton, O..	1
KETZNER, R. L.....	Cumberland, Md.....	1	McGOVERN, LOUISE V..	Philadelphia.....	1
KIMMETT, GEO. A.....	Bagg. Checkman, Baltimore.	1	McGOWAN, Mrs. J. F...	Wife of Division Operator, New Brighton, N. Y.....	2
KING, PAT. J.....	Glenwood Back Shop.....	1	McKIBBEN, J. E.....	Cincinnati.....	3
KIRK, H. B.....	Wilmington, Del.....	1	McLEAN, COLIN.....	Mariners Harbor, S. I., N. Y.	1
KIRCHER, E. A.....	Cincinnati.....	5	McOSKER, CASH.....	Chief Clerk to Division Accountant, Weston, W. Va.	1
KLEBE, ROBT. F.....	Care of Cost Engr., Baltimore	8	MERMAN, FRANK.....	Fireman, Pittsburgh.....	1
KLIER, J. V.....	Baltimore.....	1	MEWSHAW, L. LEROY...	Relay, Md.....	1
KLINGER, MRS. M. E....	Garrett, Ind.....	1	MIESSUER, G. T.....	Pittsburgh.....	5
KNAUBER, E. F.....	Cincinnati.....	1	MILES, T. H.....	M. P. Timekeeper, Washing- ton, Ind.....	2
KOENIG, GEO. F.....	New York.....	2	MILLAR, BERNARD, C...	Mt. Clare, Baltimore.....	1
KOPPERMAN, IRVING....	Secretary, New York City...	1	MILLAR, Mrs. EDNA....	A. M. R. Dept Baltimore...	4
KORB, JOSEPH.....	Cleveland.....	6	MILLER, G. FRED.....	Secy. to A. P. R., Baltimore..	3
KOSTKA, RICHARD L....	Purchasing Dept., Baltimore.	2	MILLER, GLADYS.....	Treas. Dept., Baltimore....	1
LABISKY, HENRY S.....	Seattle, Wash.....	5	MILLER, RILEY E.....	Baltimore.....	4
LANG, D. W.....	Care of Dist. Frt. Representa- tive, Dallas, Texas.....	2	MINNICH, CHAS. H.....	West Philadelphia, Pa.....	1
LANSLOWNE, LEONORA P.	Engr. Dept., Baltimore.....	13	MITCHELL, WALTER....	Car Insp., Elsmere, Del....	1
LARKIN, WILFRED C.....	Crum Lynne, Pa.....	1	MOHLI, H. A.....	Conductor, Lima, Ohio.....	4
LECHLIDER, W. T.....	Trainmaster, Akron, Ohio...	1	MOLER, A. C.....	Yd. B'kman, Brunswick, Md.	1
LEE, HERMAN.....	Claim Clerk, St. Geo., N. Y.	1	MOLLOY, T. F.....	Baltimore.....	1
LEIGHTON, JOHN L.....	New York City.....	2	MONTGOMERY, R.....	Store Helper, Wilmsere, Del..	2
LENKEL, W. F.....	Baltimore.....	3	MOORE, J. W.....	Ex. B'kman, Roanoke, W.Va.	1
LEUKEL, MRS. W. F.....	Baltimore.....	1	MORGAN, JOHN.....	Mach., Mt. Clare Shops....	1
LEWIS, DAVID J.....	Brakeman, Youngstown, O..	1	MOORE, JOS. H.....	Cumberland, Md.....	1
LEWIS, CHAS. W.....	Aud. Pass. Receipts Office, Baltimore.....	4	MORGAN, EDWARD.....	D. F. R., New Orleans, La..	2
LEWIS, O. S.....	Frt. Traffic Mgr., Baltimore.	1	MORRISON, S. H.....	Brakeman, Versailles, Pa....	1
			MOSS, CONRAD.....	Conductor, Chicago, .....	1
			MULVEY, T. O.....	West Newton, Pa.....	3
			MURPHY, KENNETH.....	Washington, D. C.....	1

THOSE WHO ENTERED TRADE MARK CONTEST

NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES	NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES
NALTOLS, J. L.	Mt. Clare	2	RIEKE, E. J.	Night Clerk to General Foreman, Glenwood	2
NAYLOR, H. S.	Clendennin, W. Va.	1	REIS, F. W.	Deer Park, Md.	1
NEFF, J. R.	Train Disp., Chillicothe	1	RINKER, PARKER B.	Baltimore	1
NEVILLE, CHAS. W.	Pt. Pleasant, W. Va.	1	ROACH, L. W.	Brakeman, Cumberland, Md.	3
NEVILLE, HELEN M.	Keyser, W. Va.	1	ROESSEL, C. J.	Chf. Clk., New Orleans, La.	1
NEWMAN, JOHN	New York	1	ROGERMAN, J. F.	Dist. Pass. Agt., Dallas, Texas	11
NOLAN, JAMES A.	Baltimore	1	ROGERS, WM. B.	Son of Medical Examiner, Baltimore	5
NORE, CARL E.	Lorain, Ohio	1	ROGERS, Mrs. OTIS	Keyser, W. Va.	1
NORE, HOWARD	Lorain, Ohio	1	ROLLYSON, H. A.	Gassaway, W. Va.	1
OAKS, ED.	Shelby Gap, Ky.	1	ROLOSON, A. F.	Foreign Fr't. Ag't, New York	1
OBER, E.	Johnstown, Pa.	2	RUPP, JOHN A.	Office Asst. Comp. Baltimore	1
OBERENDER, HENRY V.	Baltimore	1	SANDLAS, WM. M.	Baltimore	1
O'CONNOR, M. J., JR.	Lima, Ohio	1	SANFORD, L. S.	City Pass. Agt., New York	1
OHLE, ERNEST	Chief Clk., Bay View Jct.	1	SATERNOW, KATHERYN	Sharon, Pa.	1
O'LEARY, O. J.	Chf. Operator, Akron, Ohio	1	SCHAALE, HELEN M.	Off. Aud. Pass. Receipts, Baltimore	1
OLIVER, Miss M.	Cincinnati	1	SCHANZE, CONRAD G.	Baltimore	1
OLIVER, W. E.	Secy. to Industrial Agent, Cincinnati	1	SCHELHORN, FRED C.	Yd. Clk., Cranford, N. J.	2
OLSON, LAWRENCE	West Orange, N. J.	1	SCHUEFELE, ALAN	Agent, Mt. Clare	3
ORENDORFF, PAUL J.	Washington, D. C.	4	SCHISSLER, EDWIN	Paymasters Office, Baltimore	1
ORYE, N. D. D.	Conductor, Cumberland Div.	1	SCHMIDT, GEO.	Clerk Car Accounts Office, S. I., N. Y.	1
PACKETT, G. R.	Receiving and Delivering Clerk, Hagerstown, Md.	7	SCHUCKMAN, CHAS. G.	Baltimore	3
PADGETT, Mrs. A. J.	Dickerson, Md.	2	SCHWATKA, L. F.	Baltimore	1
PAQUETTE, P. J.	Brooklyn, N. Y.	1	SCOOPMIRE, T. R.	Holton, Ind.	3
PARKES, CHAS. C.	Baltimore	2	SCOTT, W. M.	Fr't. Rep., Pittsburgh	18
PARKES, O. O.	Wheelwright, Ky.	5	SCOTT, J. F.	Foreman Carpenters, Chicago, Ind.	1
PAXTON, CHESTER	Clerk to Agent, Bellsville, O.	1	SCENSE, B. E.	Engr., New Castle, Pa.	1
PEARCE, F. R.	Rosebank, N. Y.	1	SEFF, MANUEL	Fr't. Rep., New York	1
PEINE, W. F.	J. T. Clerk, Springfield, Ill.	2	SEITHMAN, G. A.	Operator, Lima, Ohio	4
PENNINGTON, GEO. D.	Baltimore	1	SEIBERT, MATTER G.	Baltimore	1
PENNINGTON, P. W.	Watchman, Cumberland, Md.	4	SEITHMAN, G. A.	2nd Tk. Operator, Lima, O.	5
PEPPER, R. E.	Chicago	1	SELBY, Miss MARY	Newark, Ohio	2
PERDEW, J. J.	Tk. Foreman, Fairchance, Pa.	1	SEVERNS, Mrs. W. E.	Wife of Division Accountant, Weston, W. Va.	3
PERRIN, D. G.	Yd. Condr., S. Chicago, Ill.	1	SHANAHAN, ARTHUR B.	Baltimore	3
PETERS, CHAS. F.	Machinist, Westport, Md.	1	SHIPLEY, J. L.	Care of Vice Pres. Operation & Maintenance, Baltimore	1
PETERSON, ARTHUR O.	Secy. to Genl. Mgr., New York	2	SIEBEL, CHAS. V.	Louisville, Ky.	1
PETERSON, R. J.	Engineer, New Castle, Pa.	1	SINDELAR, FRANK	Track Foreman, Oak Park, Ill.	1
PETITT, Mrs. E. W.	Wife of Baggage-master, Beardstown, Ill.	4	SKIDMORE, R. R.	Brakeman, Clarksburg, W. Va.	1
PETITT, Miss GLADYS	Beardstown, Ill.	2	SLATTERY, C.	Dayton, Ohio	1
PINSCHMIDT, WM. C.	Baltimore	2	SMITH, SAM. T.	Charleston, W. Va.	7
PLITT, WM. E.	Genl. Fr't. Dept., Baltimore	1	SMITH, HERALD	Genl. Fr't. Office, Cincinnati (Assisted by C. A. Iuler)	2
POE, CARL W.	Grafton, W. Va.	1	SMITH, A. W.	Printing Dept., Mt. Clare	1
POHLE, WM.	Lighter Captain, Brooklyn	1	SMITH, C. W.	South Branch, W. Va.	3
POLCASTER, J.	Machinist, Chicago, Ill.	1	SNYDER, W. H.	Baltimore	2
PORTTENS, WILLARD L.	Off. Div. Pass. Agt., Cincinnati	1	SOMERVILLE, CLIFFORD	Brakeman, Parkersburg, South Branch, W. Va.	1
POWELL, WM.	New Castle, Pa.	1	SOUTHERINGTON, E. J.	Off. Engr., Cincinnati	2
PROSS, WM. L.	Machinist, Chillicothe, Ohio	2	SOUTHWARD, JAMES M. JR.	Asst. Secy., Y. M. C. A., Conneilsville, Pa.	6
PUMPHREY, C. H.	Div. Fr. Agent, New York	10	SOWER, A. M.	Morgantown, W. Va.	1
PUMPHREY, J. G.	Machinist, Brunswick, Md.	1	SPELLMAN, J. T.	Willard, Ohio	1
O'REILLY, J. J.	Patrolman, New York	1	SPEICHER, C. B.	General Yardmaster, Johnstown, Pa.	1
RADCLIFF, E. T.	Ellicott City, Md.	1	SPEIDEN, THEO. JR.	Pittsburgh	1
RADER, S. LOUIS	Clerk, New York City	1	SPRINGER, V. E.	Coal Billing Clerk, Parkersburg, W. Va.	3
RASH, OSCAR J.	Operator, Hancock, Md.	9	SPURRIER, OLIVER W.	Care of Aud. Disbursements, Baltimore	1
RAUSCHER, ALVIN	Port Richmond, N. Y.	1
REA, WM. A.	Clerk, Office Division Acct., Chillicothe, Ohio	2
REESE, T. E.	Mail and Express Traffic Dept., Baltimore	4
RENALDS, IRA G.	Washington, D. C.	2
RICHARD, E. E.	Hoytville, Ohio	1
RICHARDS, W. H.	Opr., Lawrenceburg, Ind.	1
RICHTSTIEG, B. A.	Steno. & Clerk, Chicago	1
RIDDELMOSER, J. F.	Baltimore	1

THOSE WHO ENTERED TRADE MARK CONTEST

NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES	NAME	LOCATION	ENTRIES
STAUFFER, MILTON T....	New York City.....	1	VOLPI, LEWIS P.....	Louisville, Ky.....	1
STEBBINS, FLOYD G....	Dist. Frt. Rep., Dallas, Texas.	14	VORWERCK, J. C.....	Valuation Dept., Baltimore..	9
STEELE, GEO. H.....	Baltimore.....	1	VOUGH, GLEN B.....	Rockwood, Pa.....	1
STEEN, G. R.....	Correspondent, Marietta, O..	1	WALKER, AARON.....	Chicago.....	1
STEWART, J. C.....	Schedule Clerk, Baltimore...	5	WALLACE, MISS E. M...	Weslaco, Texas.....	1
STIER, MRS. JOHN.....	Baltimore.....	1	WARBURTON, H. E.....	D. F. A., Dayton, Ohio.....	2
STOLL, MRS. AUGUST...	Aurora, Ind.....	1	WARD, E. G.....	Brooklyn, N. Y.....	1
STONE, EVERETT P.....	Loco. Engr., Chicago.....	1	WARNER, THEO. W.....	Secy. to Supt. Floating Equip- ment, New York.....	1
STREB, CHAS. W.....	New Castle, Pa.....	1	WARNER, W. R.....	Baltimore.....	5
STRIPPY, R. E.....	Brakeman, Harrisonburg, Va.	1	WAUGH, JAMES E.....	Asst. Chief Clerk to Genl. Storekeeper, Baltimore....	1
STULTS, C. A.....	Chicago.....	6	WEHAGE, MISS G.....	Steno., Genl. Supt. Office, Cincinnati.....	2
STULTZ, C. J.....	Fireman, Baltimore.....	3	WEITZEL, HENRY.....	Pikesville, Md.....	2
STURM, WALTER A.....	Care of Dist. Freight Agent, Cincinnati.....	1	WELLS, MISS BERTHA...	Keyser, W. Va.....	1
SULLIVAN, LARRY.....	New York City.....	1	WENDT, E. A.....	Grain Elev. "E," Mt. Clare.	13
SULLIVAN, ANDREW A...	Yardmaster, Mt. Clare.....	3	WENNMAN, W. W.....	Traffic Dept., Chicago.....	1
SWEENEY, JOHN J.....	Time & Tonnage Clerk, St. George Transfer, N. Y.....	1	WENZEL, JOHN JR.....	Baltimore.....	1
SWEPSTON, H. E.....	Genl. Clerk, Storrs, Ohio....	2	WESS, FRANK J.....	Asst. Frt. Agent, Baltimore..	1
SWINK, J. L.....	Connellsville, Pa.....	1	WESTCOTT, FRANK Y...	Boilermaker Helper, Grafton, W. Va.....	1
SWINK, S. J.....	Yard Condr., Darby, Pa....	1	WHEELER, MRS. J. M...	Baltimore.....	1
TANNER, WM. B.....	Tariff Bureau, Baltimore....	1	WHEELER, JOS. M.....	Baltimore.....	2
TARR, WM. H.....	Camden Sta., Baltimore....	3	WHIPP, C. E.....	Station Agent, Lime Kiln, Md.....	1
TAUB, FERD. N.....	Butler, Pa.....	2	WHITE, C. F.....	Chf. Disp., Washington, Ind.....	1
TAYLOR, HARRY H.....	Engineer, Akron Division...	1	WILLIAMS, L. N.....	Coal Traffic Dept., Baltimore.	1
TAYLOR, A. R.....	Baltimore (Assisted by James L. Fisher).....	1	WILLIAMS, C. R.....	Trainrider, Police Dept., Philadelphia.....	1
THOMPSON, WALTER E...	Baltimore.....	7	WILLIAMS, KENNETH L..	Washington, D. C.....	1
THOMPSON, MISS HELEN	Reisterstown, Md.....	1	WILSON, THOS. E.....	McMeechen, W. Va.....	1
TIMLIN, MARY.....	Wilmington, Del.....	1	WYATT, MISS RUTH....	Swanders, Ohio.....	3
TODD, GEORGE.....	Yonkers, N. Y.....	1	WHITE, W. O.....	Warren, Ohio.....	1
TOLE, FRANK A.....	Secy. to Foreman Cumber- land, Md.....	2	WHITE, C. H.....	No Address Given.....	1
TRENTER, MARGARET...	Keyser, W. Va.....	3	WITTENBERGER, O. J...	Steno., Off. of Supt., Chicago.	2
TUCKER, F. E.....	Newark, Ohio.....	5	WOLFE, PEARL C.....	Chief Clk. to Agt., Flora, Ill.	2
TURNES, C. N.....	Chief Clk., Div. Frt. Office, Washington, Ind.....	3	WOOD, MRS. C. A.....	Chillicothe, Ohio.....	3
TULL, R. A.....	Agent, Xenia, Ohio.....	3	WOOD, C. E.....	Genl. Foreman Elev., Balti- more.....	1
TURKLE, H. L.....	Engineer, Youngstown, Ohio.	2	WOODYARD, C. H.....	Parkersburg, W. Va.....	1
TWISS, C. L.....	Tower Hill, Ill.....	7	WUSTER, MORGAN A...	Baltimore.....	1
TWISS, HERBERT M....	Tower Hill, Ill.....	1	VAN ZANDT, L.....	Freight Rep., Pittsburgh....	2
TWISS, MRS. JESSIE...	Tower Hill, Ill.....	1	ZELLINGER, MAX.....	Aet. Agt., Hammond, W. Va.	1
VALENCH, ALBERT S....	Baltimore.....	1	ZENTER, F. A. JR.....	Care of A. F. C., Baltimore..	1
VANDERSON, J.....	Brakeman, Bridgeport, Ohio.	1	ZIMMERMAN, H. F.....	Dairy Dept., Chicago.....	1
VARNER, O. M.....	Bridgeville, Ohio.....	1
VELTEN, E. M.....	Time Clerk, Div. Acet's. Off., Dayton, Ohio.....	1

Useless Brains

A well-known Mississippi printer was fond of playing pranks. One day while riding with an illiterate negro, he began gravely to chatter Italian to his brunette driver.

The negro looked wildly at him, but said nothing. Finally the white man, in pretended pique, said:

"What's the matter? Why don't you answer?"

"I dono what yo'all talkin' 'bout."

"What's wrong? Haven't you any brains?"

"Yessah, I got some brains, all right, but dey ain' no use to me now."

—Railroad Red Book.

Read This Railroad Radio Story

You will find on page 23 of this issue a corking railroad radio story called, "Only Ten Minutes to Spare." It is as good a story of the type we railroaders like as any you will find and we call especial attention to it in this way in order to extend to Henry F. Pringle, the author, our sincere thanks for his courtesy in permitting us to republish it in our MAGAZINE. It originally appeared in the September issue of the American Magazine.

Help Wanted

Sandy and his lass had been sitting together about half an hour in silence.

"Maggie," he said at length, "wasna I here on the Sawbeth nicht?"

"Aye, Sandy, I daur say you were."

"An' wasna I here on Monday nicht?"

"Aye, so ye were."

"An' I was here on Tuesday nicht, an' Wednesday nicht, an' Thursday nicht, an' Friday nicht?"

"Aye, I'm thinkin' that's so."

"An this is Saturday nicht, an' I'm here again?"

"Well, I'm sure ye're very welcome."

Sandy (desperately): "Maggie, woman! D'e ye no begin to suspect something?"

—The Continent (Chicago)

Safety Roll of Honor

DATE	NAME	OCCUPATION	LOCATION	CONDITION REPORTED
	BALTIMORE AND BALTIMORE TERMINAL DIVISIONS
Sept. 1	M. E. Thompson...	Brakeman.....	17-Mile Grade	Defective Car.
	CONNELLSVILLE DIVISION
Aug. 26	C. W. Lininger.....	Brakeman.....	Connellsville..	Defective car.
Sept. 4	G. T. Fisher.....	Operator.....	Leith.....	Defective car.
July 16	G. W. Brown.....	Brakeman.....	Salisbury Jct..	Defective car.
	PITTSBURGH DIVISION
Aug. 5	E. M. Hartman....	Operator.....	Gidenau.....	Defective car.
Aug. 13	J. P. Davidson....	Operator.....	Layton Tower.	Defective car.
Aug. 22	J. A. Green.....	Boiler Washer...	Foxburg.....	Track.
	CHARLESTON DIVISION
Aug. 31	H. E. Bragg.....	Conductor.....	Clone Siding..	Defective car.
Aug. 31	J. L. Young.....	Brakeman.....	Clone Siding..	Defective car.
Aug. 14	B. R. Bragg.....	Conductor.....	Pinch, W. Va..	Defective car.
Aug. 14	H. E. Bragg.....	Conductor.....	Pinch, W. Va..	Defective car.
Aug. 29	A. L. Wilfong.....	Section Foreman.	Buckhannon..	Conservation of material.
Aug. 27, 28	F. Gunter.....	Conductor.....	Sand Run....	Three defective cars, hot boxes repacked.
	G. E. Lough.....	Flagman.....	Sand Run....
	W. S. Cogar.....	Brakeman.....	Sand Run....
	K. G. Long.....	Brakeman.....	Sand Run....
	OHIO DIVISION
	Woodruff.....	Operator.....	Madison Mills	Defective car.
	CHICAGO DIVISION
Aug. 29	G. H. Harer.....	Operator.....	Milford Jct...	Defective car.
Sept. 9	F. M. Thornton...	Operator.....	HK Tower....	Track
	ST. LOUIS DIVISION
Aug. 23	H. R. Allen.....	Operator.....	Riverdale....	Track.
Aug. 10	W. Hansbrough...	Agent.....	Enfield, Ill...	Track.
Aug. 17	Robertson.....	Conductor.....	Mitchell.....	Defective car.
Aug. 17	A. G. Rinehart....	Brakeman.....	Mitchell.....	Defective car.
Sept. 6	R. Meade.....	Operator.....	CE Cabin....	Defective car.
	TOLEDO DIVISION
Sept. 5	F. S. Kepner.....	Conductor.....	Taylorville...	Defective car.

Remember the Old High Wheeled Bicycle?

MAYBE the old maintenance supervisor to whom I was talking recently was giving me a little "gaff" when he told me that at the time the high wheeled bicycle was in vogue and used by bicyclists on highways, some maintenance men adapted the wheel to the Railroad track and went to and from their work on a machine of this type. But I don't think he was "gaffing" me because he said that he thought that an appeal through the MAGAZINE would bring forth a picture of such a machine.

Can any member of the Maintenance of Way Department verify the supervisor's statement? Can anyone send us a picture of the machine described, or pictures of other man-propelled velocipedes now out of date, but in use years ago? We would like to have them.

Expert Inspector and Fisherman is Veteran Samuel Hodapp

THE accompanying picture is of Samuel Hodapp, and was taken with a string of fish caught by him this summer.

Mr. Hodapp entered the service May 28, 1881, as car inspector and repairman and has continued in that capacity ever since. He was 72 years old his last birthday, reads the newspaper without glasses and is an expert on finding cracked wheels. It is no unusual occurrence at this time for him to find broken wheels, a fact which will be attested by many officers who have known him during his long years of service, including E. W. Scheer, general manager, Eastern Lines.

Mr. Hodapp is also a founder and organizer of the lodge known as "Button Order." At the close of business on the day of the Galloway-Fries picnic he had taken into the order 11,033 members. He is also secretary and treasurer of the order—in fact, is known as the "whole cheese."

Samuel Hodapp "stringin' em"

Among Ourselves

Baltimore and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio Annex Building

Law Department

Correspondent, GEORGE W. HAULENBEEK

Our Law Department is located on the third floor, Bank Lane side, of the Central Building. If we wish to know if the sun is shining, we must repair to the Baltimore Street side, and there behold it in all its effulgence. Ultimately, the Law Department, if litigation continues as at present, will occupy an entire floor, very similar to the well conducted office of my friend George H. Pryor, auditor of disbursements.

Recently I went to his office on the eighth floor to take his acknowledgement to some papers, and as I walked down the aisle to his room, I was favorably impressed with the conduct of the clerks all busily engaged.

J. F. Donovan, the chief clerk, with forty-four years of service to his credit, is located in the centre of the room. S. W. Hill, assistant auditor of disbursements, is to be found on the Bank Lane side of the building like the poor old Law Department. I am impressed with the idea that Mr. Hill's clerical force would make a grand good showing also.

Milwaukee

I have been absent from dear old Baltimore for one whole week, spending most of the time in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, eighty-five miles north of Chicago. I am full of gratitude to the Baltimore and Ohio for it did so much for our Grand Army delegation to the Milwaukee encampment. It not only furnished two cars from Baltimore, but arranged to have the cars in question convey us all the way to Milwaukee. We left Baltimore on No. 15 and stopped off at Pittsburgh for the night and the next morning our cars were all polished up for a continuance of the journey. We traveled from Chicago to Milwaukee by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and I was charmed with the road and its employes. They did all sorts of things for us; placed our cars on their tracks without disturbing us in the least, and even made our train a special train to Milwaukee. My trip pass to Milwaukee was restricted, but the conductor waived that. I am full of gratitude. It is a principle with me to praise the bridge that carries me over. My gratitude extends to the Baltimore and Ohio as well. It certainly has been good to me.

Conductor R. A. Compton had charge of train 15, Baltimore to Cumberland, and he is a brick. At Harper's Ferry he made a speech, extolling the Baltimore and Ohio; praising the gorgeous scenery, and advising the boys to get all the business possible for the Company. Our Passenger Department detailed C. W. Allen to accompany our party and he was accommodating in every particular.

Milwaukee is a lovely place. If a landscape gardener had planned and arranged the principal thoroughfare in the residential section, Prospect Avenue, it could not have been more perfect. Not a blade of grass was out of place.

Our station at Pittsburgh, well equipped, clean, and a place where politeness prevailed, compelled me to give it first place among railroad stations that I visited. No one can make fun of the Baltimore and Ohio as to running trains. Our No. 8, running from Chicago to Pittsburgh, arrived five minutes ahead of its schedule, and No. 16, from Pittsburgh to Baltimore, arrived exactly on the minute, 11.15 p. m.

Baltimore and Ohio dining cars excel all others. Steward D. L. Miller on No. 8, and Steward C. E. Scully on train

No. 16, struck me as being gentlemen possessing the necessary qualifications, politeness predominating.

Twenty-four hours in Pittsburgh, with a thorough examination of its suburbs and the immense business transacted in the manufacturing section, convinced me that unless Baltimore awakens, Pittsburgh will sail right by it. Now and then we make a great fuss about a little bit of smoke. Pittsburgh says we'll take the smoke, for it means dollars and business is what we want.

Engineering Department.

Correspondent, O. K. EDEN

"Some ships go east, and some go west,
Whilst the self-same wind doth blow;
For it's rudder and sail, and not the gale,
That decide where the ship shall go.

"Nor wind, nor gale control our fate,
As we journey along through life;
It's the set of the sail decides the goal,
And not the calm and the strife."

Ford, tell us about the floating shoe.

As was stated in the last issue of the MAGAZINE, several of the younger members of our office journeyed to Atlantic City over Labor Day, and, as far as certain persons are concerned, thereby hangs a tale. We could write tomes about the fads and foibles of certain folks, but—there's a reason why we don't.

To M. G. F. Did you ever see a board walk? (This is not a joke.)

The question has come up: "why did 'Ozzie' (otherwise known as the correspondent of the Engineering Department) travel 1,000 miles south—and in summer time, when the South is supposed to be almost an inferno—in order to spend a week of his vacation." Why?

Our golf hound, "Count Spike" Schanze, has now broken into the ranks of the intelligentsia by adorning himself with horn rimmed spectacles, of the collegiate type.

Office of District Engineer, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Correspondent, J. M. WHEALAN

For the benefit of a certain person at Meyersdale, Pa., it will be perfectly feasible to move the center of population from

Mose—"Good mornin', Jedge, I went right by yo' house dis mornin'."
Judge—"Thank you, Mose, thank you."

Zanesville, Ohio to Meyersdale, provided the matter is handled in the proper way. How uninteresting Meyersdale must be under the circumstances. But cheer up, "Bob," old boy, you will win out yet, we feel sure.

Assistant Engineer Mulvey and his family recently went on a motor jaunt through the East. They visited Atlantic coast resorts and reported having had a glorious time.

Field Engineer Moorhead was a recent visitor to Detroit for the purpose of bringing home part of his family. He reported the unique experience of catching a hand in his pocket other than his own. We were not informed as to whether the culprit got away or not.

Your correspondent regrets to report the death of the mother of Rodman H. L. Zouck, which occurred recently. Our sincere sympathy is extended to Howard in his bereavement.

We understand that one of the younger members of this Department is much concerned over the problem of being in two places at the same time. The problem, to an old married man of some standing, admits of an easy solution—simply combine the places. This column will certainly expect an invitation, T. A.

We are glad to observe that the Editor has at last reached the conclusion that a railroad employe can have a diversification of interests and still be a good railroad man. Witness the article on the motion picture "Rosita." From time to time, R. M. V., let us have more articles on subjects of timely and general interest.

General Freight Claim Agent's Department

Correspondent, NORMA H. APPLGARTHE
Our He-Vamp

Above is Sidney Sigler,
He always wears derby hats,
His suit, I'll say, is certainly cake,
And he totes some wicked spats.

Ofttimes he visits Ole N'York,
To give his actress friend a treat,
And when that pair struts down Broadway,
I'll say they can't be beat.

—"Curlhan"

We are sorry to report that this office will not have a men's bowling team this season. For reasons best known to themselves, some of our high score men have seen fit to join teams from other departments. Our former captain, Mr. Riggan, has joined the Auditor of Disbursements Team; Mr. Ittner, Engineering Team; Mr. Goeller, Comptroller's Team. While we feel that these teams will be much strengthened by these additions, we think there should have been enough interest among our younger members to have put a pennant-winning team in the field.

Our young ladies, however, expect to be in the lime-light and have the winning ladies' team this season, as we understand tournament is now being organized.

One of our young ladies who went to Boston via the Merchants & Miners and occupied room 19, tells some strange stories about the lucky number. No. 19 seems to be a winner, and in the future, girls, always try your best to get room 19. It's a lucky one if you want attention from captain or cook. Or was it the winning smile of our "Del?"

Brother Parrish finds he is a good carpet walker now that he has a new baby girl, born August 30, to assist him in his travels by night. Beware of tacks!

Irene recently returned from a trip to Boston, Mass., via the M. & M. S. S. Co., and reports having had the time of her life. With the exception of one serious affair, all went well en route. This happened one stormy night when Irene suddenly became dizzy, and it was necessary for her to see a doctor on ship-board.

Left: Carl A. Yost, grandson of E. Tyson, Head Clerk, General Freight Claim Department.
Right: Sidney Sigler, known as the "He-Vamp," in his vacation togs at Pen Mar

The wedding bells are still ringing and the latest victim of Cupid is our grave young head clerk of the Closed Files Division, Henry F. Dixon. On the afternoon of August 29, at the Rectory of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church, he and Miss Lillian M. Pierce were married. The happy couple spent their honeymoon among the romantic hills of Braddock Heights, Md. They have our best wishes and congratulations.

Amidst our vacations, weddings and other jollifications, we were very much saddened by the reports of death in families of some of our members. On August 28, G. R. Bunn lost his father and on August 31, H. S. Anderson lost his mother, and what seems saddest of all was the death of Mrs. W. R. MacCallum on September 1. Mrs. MacCallum was only a bride of a few months—and I am sure we all extend our deepest sympathy to our brothers in distress.

Office Mail & Express Traffic

Correspondent, T. E. REESE

D. Frank Clarke, formerly of the District Freight Office, has accepted a position in our department, made vacant by the promotion of D. E. Green, effective September 1. We extend our congratulations to "Dave," and welcome Frank to our fold.

Relief Department

Correspondent, H. IRVING MARTIN

In the June issue of the MAGAZINE your correspondent tried to express the affectionate regard of the employes of the Relief Department toward Miss Margaret T. Schutte, whose marriage to William R. MacCallum took place on April 24. It is now our sad duty to record the death of Mrs. MacCallum, on September 1, at the home of her husband's parents, 113 Hermosa Avenue, Hamilton, Md.

After funeral services in the home at 11.00 a. m., on September 4, conducted by Rev. Don S. Colt, interment was made in Loudon Park Cemetery. The pallbearers were chosen from among former fellow-clerks in the Relief Feature of the Relief Department, namely: John C. Bredehoeft, Wm. F. Costello, Sr., Wm. R. Smith, H. Webster Erdman, J. Norbert Coll, Edward Roy Knauff.

SOME MT. ROYAL PORTERS

Left to right: James Thomas, Clarence Thomas and Edward Dawkins, Night Baggage Porter

Mrs. MacCallum leaves surviving her husband, William R. MacCallum, who is employed in the Office of the General Freight Claim Agent, her mother, Mrs. Ella Schutte, and two brothers.

"After life's fitful fever, she sleeps well."

Here was a gentle soul. "None knew her but to love her, none mentioned but to praise."

The Relief Department was represented at the "Galloway-Fries" celebration at Chester Park, Cincinnati, on August 23, by the following: T. Parkin Scott, chief clerk, Savings Feature; John H. Meagher, J. E. Bucheimer, wife and son; W. J. Cruickshank and wife; H. Webster Erdman, wife and daughter, Dorothy; "Uncle John" Bredehoeft; Frank B. Brady; Elmer S. Wright; William F. Costello; "Bob" Smith and Walter E. Green.

It is rumored that some of the masculines qualified for prizes in a sandwich-eating contest, immediately upon the arrival of the train at Cincinnati, and that they are all wearing badges showing the carrying of a carload of "Ham-and" over the Baltimore and Ohio System.

Some of the open-eyed members of the party spent their leisure moments taking photos of the feminine delegates from the Buckeye State. One of the "no-name" photos is reproduced.

G. Edward Pfeiffer planned to see "Babe" Ruth knock one "homer" at Washington on Saturday, September 8. Mr. Stork, as umpire, broke up his well-laid plans, made him stay at his own home plate to welcome Dorothy Pfeiffer, weight seven pounds two ounces, who arrived on the date mentioned. Her claims on his presence and time were considered to be paramount to those of the other "Babe."

Raymond L. Krebs reached Washington in time to see the ball game, but he got into the "rain check" division. As this was his initial trip to Washington, he lost himself in a Woolworth Store while searching for souvenir postals.

Another late arrival is Edward Lee Day Bunting, the new nine pound "Baby Bunting," who came on August 29 to visit and stay with Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers C. Bunting.

The late Mrs. William R. McCallum, formerly Miss Schutte, of the Relief Department

Printing Department

Correspondent, HARRY TOFT

Word has been received from Compositor Dotterwich, who has been absent for some time suffering with an attack of severe eye strain, that he is rapidly recovering the use of his "lamps" and hopes to be back with the boys in a short time.

Did you get it, Martin?

Another of our compositors has caught the "suburban fever." Compositor Rinehart has moved to Raspeburg, Md. The line forms on the right for the home-warming.

As we are writing these lines we notice several new faces in our midst while some of the old stand-bys have left for other fields of endeavor. Welcome to the new arrivals, and best wishes to those who have left.

Office of General Superintendent Transportation

Correspondent, PAUL L. FAUSTMAN

"Came Opportunity one day;
He heard her timid knock,
But went on with his dozing,
Contentedly supposing,
That she would pick the lock."

Mr. Curren has just returned to the office after a two-week sojourn in Atlantic City with Mrs. Curren. We hope that their trip has proved both enjoyable and beneficial.

Louis Levison, Mr. Curren's busy little secretary, and Miss Julie E. Miller joined in the holy bonds of matrimony at the home of the bride, 2553 Madison Avenue, Baltimore at 4.30 p. m., August 30th. The Rev. Dr. Shaffer officiated at the ceremony, after which a reception was held at the Altamont Hotel. The couple left Baltimore on the following morning for an extended trip to Chicago, after which they visited Ashland, Ky., and later, New York City. With the congratulations of the office force they were presented with a beautiful and serviceable gift. We wish them both happiness and prosperity.

Gilbert Kaufman, a young stenographer in our office, certainly has his eyes open and is bound to make his mark later on. Some time ago we were called upon to handle some private coal cars and the papers in our files failed to show what the initials on the cars signified. A few days later this young man went on his vacation and to my surprise I received a telephone message from him saying that he had been to Washington and had seen one of these cars and gave me a full description of it with the significance of the initials. This may seem like a trivial thing but it made a hit with me. So many stenographers think that their mission is fulfilled when they can read and write their notes. Indeed some are lucky when they can do that.

In all of my years of association with "Tom" Murphy, our chief car distributor, I have never heard him swear. Nor do the boys in the office tell him obscene stories. At the same time, he is a regular fellow and appreciates a good clean joke, but somehow, some people, by their very presence seem to act as a damper against anything that leans toward vulgarity. Here's to you, "Tom."

Our miscellaneous car distributor, Harry Evans, has finally become a member of the settlement at Merridale, previously discovered and settled by Messrs. Wideman, Dienhart and McCaghey. The word "Merridale" brings to the writer's mind one of those beautiful dales of old England, so ably described by Sir Walter Scott, and if we can believe reports, the place is all that the name implies.

Boost the "Capitol Limited!"

John Latchford, one of Mr. Curren's able assistants, took a few days' vacation this time and the boys did so well during his absence that he may decide to take two weeks next summer. Mr. Latchford cer-

THEY HELPED CELEBRATE GALLOWAY-FRIES DAY

Left: Some of the "No-Name" beauties seen at Cincinnati. Right: Elmer S. Wright, John C. Bredehoeft and Frank B. Brady

Valuation Department Baltimore, Md.

Correspondent, J. A. RENEHAN

It is with regret that we announce the resignation of H. N. Richardson, F. E. Harmon and P. E. Sutherland, but we wish them success in their new undertakings.

R. H. Hartzell and R. F. Shafer have been promoted and we wish them success in their new positions. Here's hoping they continue to climb!

To the three "new additions" to the Valuation Department, T. H. Brattan, J. A. Radizeski and H. A. Maccubbin, we extend a hearty welcome.

During the last several months the Valuation Department has proved a lucrative field for Dan Cupid. Miss L. R. Ritter, on her return to duty after the Labor Day holiday, announced that she had taken into custody one Ray Young for "better or for worse." Our wishes are for "better." Congratulations to Mr. Young! C. H. Boberg, formerly of the Chicago office and now of Baltimore, on the twenty-fifth day of August, in the year Nineteen Hundred and Twenty-Three, in the City of Chicago, in the State of Illinois, consummated a marriage contract, and after a three-week honeymoon through the west the couple returned to Baltimore on September 16. They are now looking for a two-by-two furnished apartment. The correspondent will receive all suggestions for a suitable location for these two. Dan Cupid has also "drafted" Miss Gladys Waugh and she has decided to give up her office work for home work. Miss Waugh expects to leave on September 30, and will be married in the month of October. She will take with her the good wishes of the entire department.

E. P. Poeter has returned to duty after a two months' sick leave which he spent in sunny California. He states he is feeling fine and has gained six pounds. We are glad to have him with us and extend our best wishes to him.

The accompanying picture shows Harold W. McCrone, young son of J. Roy McCrone, assistant to cost engineer, holding his second catch on Labor Day, a 24 inch, 4¼ pound trout, which was hooked with a small hook and bamboo pole at Manhattan Beach on the Magothy River. His first catch was a 12 inch spot, said to be the largest spot caught in this vicinity. We have a number of experienced fishermen in the Valuation Department and we hear of the wonderful catches they make, but here is the proof.

FOLKS WHO HELP MAKE THE AUDITOR COAL AND COKE OFFICE FAMOUS

Left: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Heine "as was." He's still crowing about his pullets!
Right: "Mickey" Stansbury, looking pleasant on the beach at Atlantic City

A twenty-four inch, four-and-one-quarter-pound trout caught by Harold W., son of Roy C. McCrone, Valuation Department. He used a small hook and a bamboo pole tainly is no minute man. You are liable to find him on the job any time at all.

How are your "Average Miles" today?

"Brose" Hardwick and family are about to take up their winter residence in the city after enjoying the summer at Emory Grove.

SAFETY FIRST! When driving your car it may be necessary, in some instances, in order to avoid an accident, to give the other fellow the right of way even though it legally belongs to you. I heard a fellow say the other day that if someone hits you and you have the right of way, "IT DOESN'T COUNT."

Mr. Neessner, supervisor of mine ratings, and his boys have had a most strenuous summer, because of the entire revolution in the method of rating mines, but from all accounts the enormous job was handled with the usual efficiency of that department.

Vacations are all over—now let's get together!

It was with keen interest that I read Miss Steven's interview with General Manager Voorhees in the last issue of the MAGAZINE. I also deem it a privilege to have had the opportunity of working under such a man. The boys in the Transportation Office still affectionately refer to him as "The Prince." Indeed he has proven to be an aristocrat in the real sense of the word.

I recently heard a story that may prove interesting if not beneficial to some of our golf enthusiasts. A foursome consisting of two men and their better halves caught up to the preceding quartet at the sixth hole. One of the men of the first party approached a male member of the latter in quite an emotional manner. "Say, why don't you exercise a little more care. Do you know you hit my wife with the ball?" "Was that your wife," said the other, "well, I am very sorry," (handing him a driver), "here, take a crack at mine."

"The melancholy days have come." May they prove the gladdest instead of the "saddest of the year."

// Suggested habit for Valuation Department //
Draftsmen // Form 940 not required //

Office of Auditor Coal and Coke Receipts

Correspondent, JOHN LIMPET

The office bowling league gets under way on the Y. M. C. A. Alleys for the 1923-1924 season, night of October 3. Four teams of four men each will take the field this season and a close race is expected.

Thursday, September 13, was visiting day in the office, we being honored with the presence of such charming young ladies as Mabel Newell, Alice Ott, Nellie Pierpont and Florence Bennett. These former belles of the office have since been married, but we like to see their smiling countenance once in a while.

The members of the Glee Club should watch with interest the work of O. R. Lutz during the next several weeks. Mr. Lutz had a wisdom tooth extracted and the dentist told him he would be able to sing after the tooth was out.

One day as I chanced to pass,
A beaver was damming a river.
And a man who had run out of gas,
Was doing the same to his flivver.

—Chicago Phoenix

Office of Auditor Disbursements

Correspondent, LILIAN E. SCHUELER

The Interclub Baseball season closed September 8 and it is with pleasure that we can report the Baltimore and Ohio team finished in third place. We take this opportunity to congratulate the managers and players for their untiring efforts in making our team one of which we can be justly proud.

We are glad to have had Division Accountant Tutwiler as a visitor to the office during the month. "King Tut" says he has become an expert golf player during his stay in the "Tar Heel" state. He says he can go around in forty-six. Division Accountants had better take note and be prepared for him when he comes back.

Signs of Fall—Sheriff Frye of Laurel was seen down on Harrison Street Saturday afternoon buying badges for his two newly appointed deputies, to take care of the annual "Laurel Fair" during the month of October.

"It is better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all." Such is the case with our friend "Jimmy," who it seems, will never recover from the effects of the disappointment he received in his "First Love." We understand the reason was that he could not part his hair (?) the way "She" liked it, but we notice he has parted with it since then. How fortunate he would be if he could secure another "sweetie" to spend the rest of his days with for we are sure he can well afford to marry because even now he spends a great amount of money in candy, etc., for the "fair sex." Good luck, Old Top.

"It's all the fault of your Daylight Savings Time. How was I to know that I was to push my watch forward an hour instead of backward"—this from our own Miss Catherine Passagno when the ticket agent at the Merchants and Miners pier in Boston informed her that the Juanita had sailed an hour ago. "And to think how Mrs. Freeman made all my reservations so I wouldn't be p-put to a bit of tr-ouble when I reached here." By this time I imagine the tears were playing catchers down her cheeks for you know how women insist on wasting the salt water when things don't go right. But her fears were soon dispelled and her tears dried for she tells that in five minutes she was leaving Boston on the Gloucester for Philadelphia because of the wonderful courtesy and expeditious service on the part of the Merchants and Miners employees. They immediately telephoned the captain of the Gloucester that she was on her way to that boat, changed her ticket and reservations and saw her safely on board and happy once more. After she finished the story of her adventure she added, "I shall never forget their kindness to me. I think they too, very successfully practice our own Baltimore and Ohio slogan 'Our patrons are our guests'."

Folks, now listen! This may be news, then again it mayn't, but nevertheless, bend an ear to this. We have quite a celebrity in our midst. Friends, meet Henry, the "Wild Bull" of Northeast Baltimore. For the benefit of those who are not acquainted with this child, I'll elucidate quite freely. Henry has a disposition that seems to be a cross between those of Tarzan and Little Bo Peep. When riled our Henry will grit his teeth, roar, and set out to challenge the world to mortal combat—then again there are times when he's as meek as Mary's Littlest Lamb. Henry, be yourself.

The sporting fraternity of the office, composed of Messrs. G. A. Taylor and Charles Osborne, journeyed to New York to witness the Dempsey-Firpo boxing match.

From outward appearances it looks as if one of them had the old mazuma on the winner as he has been sporting a couple of rare dazzlers. No doubt the other one also had the winner, but he is very conservative and has quite a reputation for wearing shoes out going to the bank. You know these two gentlemen. Now which one do you think does the bank marathon?

The Motive Power Bureau is full of "cut-ups." "Jimmie" went to Atlantic City where he became an efficient "Boardwalk Vamp" and when he returned "Bessie" ran to him with the startling news that she can swim almost five feet. He gives her lots of encouragement, "All you need is a little confidence, 'Bessie.'"

The Payroll Bureau welcomes its new clerk, R. H. D. Willis, who was transferred from Mt. Clare to our fold. Don't you think we're a dandy crowd, Mr. Willis?

The A. R. A. Bureau feels fortunate in securing A. G. Meekins from the Payroll Bureau. After serving as per diem clerk for five months he has been promoted to first assistant to the Messrs. Brown and Truitt. It is our belief that his intimate association with these two gentlemen will materially aid his rapid advance toward the pinnacle of success.

Captain Wilt, in one of his famous jumps, met with an accident that confined him to his chair one whole afternoon. Dr. Hoffman's adhesive tape enabled him to reach home without further mishap. The new trousers are very stylish.

If some of our boys were as anxious to learn the "line of rail" as they are "the line of track" more money would go into the Christmas Fund.

Like a Bolt out of a clear sky comes a "Romeo" from New York to cause a certain "Juliet" in the Statistical Bureau great anxiety. It is hoped that the affair is not serious as a great many other girls seem to be interested in this "Cavalier" and many hearts would be affected should his attentions center on one. However, for the present we concede the honors to Elizabeth but we must warn her to be careful lest another take her place. The weather is ideal for romance, the melancholy days are coming, bringing with them the desire for pleasant companionship, so "Rudolph" had better watch his step.

Again our office has responded liberally to the call of suffering humanity by its contributions to the relief of stricken Japan through the channel of the American Red Cross.

We wish to express our deep sympathy to Miss Ethel Porter in the loss of her dear aunt, and also to Mrs. Tipton in the death of a sister.

In looking over the Souvenir Program of the Thirty-Fifth Annual Meeting of the Railway Accounting Officers Association held at Hotel Jefferson, Richmond, Virginia, June 12 to 15, 1923 there are two pages that are especially impressive. On the whole first page there are only these words, "Let's be friendly," and on the last this verse:

"Do you wish the world were happy?
Then remember day by day
Just to scatter seeds of kindness
As you pass along the way;
For the pleasure of the many
May be oft-times traced to one,
As the hand that plants the acorn
Shelters armies from the sun."

These quotations are good as mottos for any office.

Office of Auditor Passenger Receipts

Correspondent, CHARLES WARWICK

The Office of the Auditor of Passenger Receipts doubtless holds the record among the Departments of the Company for marriages which grow from romances having having their start at the Office, to wit:

Past

Most of us remember the marriage of Frances Barton and Leo Dunphy. September 12 was a double red letter day in their calendar. Defenders' Day and the birthday of little Leo Barton. Congratulations!

Present

When Raymond Madden resigned his position the other day, to enter the employ of the Company at Hagerstown, we had our suspicions aroused. They were confirmed a few days later when we learned of his marriage to Miss Cora Eschelman, of Hagerstown, who was a clerk in this office a few years ago.

Future

Helen Ernest was the centre of an admiring group of females, a few days ago. A new diamond ring was the cause of the commotion. Buck Lewin, the party of the second part, now employed in the Assistant Comptroller's Office, used to pound the keys over here. Who's next???

Speaking of weddings reminds us of shoes, and speaking of shoes reminds us that the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company has almost completed a new pair for "Joe" Peters.

Quite a few of our young ladies have gotten the wanderlust and are seeing "America First." Miss Leah Radcliffe and a party of friends spent some time touring the Pacific Coast and met quite a few movie celebrities at Hollywood. They were in San Francisco at the time of the death of the late President.

Misses Virginia Benson, Evelyn Hove and Mrs. Bessie Jeffery also visited California.

The Misses Emma Hammel, Fannie McCubbin, Lee Adele McNally and Clara Schuele took the trip to Niagara Falls and Toronto. They report a very enjoyable vacation. It is too bad that the ladies are able to take these Canadian trips, while the men must remain at home and "See America Thirst."

A banker with wide experience in pulling firms out of the difficulties into which the late deflation had brought them says that his best aid was a certain story. Whenever he said a thing must be done and the owners of the crippled business said they couldn't do it—which happened often—the banker would tell the following story:

A man was telling his son a bedtime story about an alligator. It was creeping up behind a turtle, with its mouth wide open. Finally it was within reach, but just as its great jaws were snapping shut, the turtle made a spring, ran up a tree and escaped.

"Why, Father," said the boy, "how could a turtle climb a tree?"

"By gosh," replied the father, "he had to."—Wall Street Journal.

Mrs. Newlywed—I want a shirt for my husband.

Clerk—Is he a big man?

No, he's just a bookkeeper now, but he's going to be.—Life.

New York Properties

Pier 22, North River

Correspondent, JOHN NEWMAN

Terminal Cashier "Fred" Nelson is a genius in mechanics and a master craftsman with most any kind of tools, blacksmiths, carpenters or gardeners. From his contemplation of the subway turnstile which he operates at his own expense daily, he has conceived an idea and evolved a scheme, which, he claims, will eliminate all possibility of errors in loading freight into cars. He explained to me the basic idea without going into details. It is a sort of a penny-in-the-slot contrivance operating some sort of a semaphore arm pointing the way to the right car. The idea is quite simple if one understands it. I don't. I have, myself, thought about this matter, not the turnstile but the erroneous loading, which with erroneous billing causes a lot of trouble and costs the Company a lot of money, but the best that I could think of was to have a traffic man with a thorough knowledge of routes and connections (the woods are full of them) lead the truckers by the nose to the proper car. Mr. Nelson's idea, being based on mechanics, is of course superior, for even a traffic shark has been known to err—a subway turnstile—never.

Our cartoons are the work of "Walt" Sands, formerly at Mount Clare in the Auditing Department at Baltimore, Md., whence he was transferred to Pier 22, N. R., New York. "Walt" threatens to make a monthly expose of all important events pertaining to Pier 22. Therefore, take heed, fair knights and ladies, as "Walt" is somewhat successful in extracting information from certain sorts of folks.

In the accompanying picture is shown the proboscis of our 26th Street Station yard engine with crew, and other friends of the Mogul. The good looking chap leaning his curly head against the muzzle of number "316" is Chief Clerk Longfellow, and the dark fellow in the shade, whose most prominent feature is the straw hat, is the agent, "Tom" Gorman; he is patting the steed on the neck and talking to it, to keep it smiling for the picture. The other figures are, from left to right, Car Inspector D. Duffy, Engineer T. Feeny, Car Inspector J. Durkin, Conductor W. K. Scott, Brakeman G. Wells and Fireman S. Pettis. I don't know the service record of No. 316, but the combined years of service of its crew exceed 110. Agent Gorman, by the way, also is a veteran employee. Twenty-odd years ago he was chief messenger boy and sergeant-at-arms in the old East-bound Department at Pier 22, then under the supervision of this correspondent.

PEEPING IN AT PIER 22 NORTH RIVER N.Y. BY —WALT SANDS 1923

Margaret Coleman, O. S. & D. Clerk and Catherine Carroll, Cash Clerk, 26th Street Station, New York

The two flower crowned young ladies in the picture on this page are employed at 26th St. Station, Miss Margaret Coleman, O. S. and D. and claim clerk, on the left, and Miss Catherine Carroll, cashier, on the right. Though they both work in the same office under like climatic and other pleasant conditions it is noted that while Miss Coleman, affectionately called "Roly-

Poly," is getting plumper and prettier day by day, Miss Carroll, on the other hand, is getting more slender, sinuous and graceful. As my co-correspondent points out, they are both growing, but in different directions. "These effects are not due to the invigorating atmosphere surrounding and enveloping this station," says the co-corr., "but might be due to the fact that Miss Carroll loves only one fellow and Miss Coleman loves them all, a little, but long. (Please, Mr. Art Editor, don't cut off Miss Carroll's left hand that carries the proof that she loves only one. You amputated the legs of all the people whose pictures I sent you last time, and you know what a conspicuous role these members play in this day and generation.)

Correspondent Mannix, East Dayton, O., in his August A. O. notes, speaks of pleasant moments enjoyed reading notes of other correspondents, of finding in them "something especially appealing in their efforts to establish good cheer and pleasant feeling" among the employees. I beg to concur. The notes abound with the good-fellowship that promotes goodwill and "esprit du corps." And they are the "voice of the people" that constitutes the Baltimore and Ohio family, a voice that carries a note of gladness and content, and seems to say: The Baltimore and Ohio is all right and we are part of it. Here in New York we are subsidiary and sub-jacent to the "System," sort of isolated and debarred from participation in the heart activities that unite the main line employees at happy gatherings, such as we read of in the MAGAZINE,—with a sense of loneliness such as Cinderella must have felt before the "presto-chango."

Nonsense

There was a young fellow named ———,
He could swim and play ball with great skill,

But, unversed in the art
Of "affairs of the heart,"
His knowledge of ladies was nil—
Until—

A plump little plum by name ———,
In passing, a smile threw his way,
Then ——— got a thrill . . . . .
(His "I do" and "I will")

Is ready—IF ——— sets the day)—
Anyway—

To her desk, where she sits, over there,
With the sun shining on her bobb'd hair,
His eye strays, and lingers
On her fair face and fingers,
And his sighs are consuming the air.

(Dear ———, through this ditty
I appeal to your pity
For ———, poor ———.)

AT TWENTY-SIXTH STREET, NEW YORK

Upper row: Assistant to Car Inspector D. Duffy, Chief Clerk M. R. Longfellow, Agent T. F. Gorman, Lower row: Engineer T. Feeny, Car Inspector J. Durkin, Conductor W. K. Scott, Brakeman G. Wells Fireman S. Pettis. See Note.

When You Drive the President's Special You've Got to Be Sure of Your Watch

ENGINEER J. H. Hughes, for twenty years with the Atlantic Coast Line, handles only the fast Limited New York-Florida trains. Both this year, and in 1922, he was selected to pilot the late President Harding's Special over his district.

It is a significant fact that when Engineer Hughes entered fast passenger service he purchased the Hamilton Watch that he carries today. Since 1904 his Hamilton has been keeping his trains to schedule—sometimes on high speed, non-stop runs of over a hundred and seventy-two miles.

Like hundreds of thousands of other railroad men, Engineer Hughes knows you can depend on your watch when you own a Hamilton. Wherever accurate time is needed in railroad service you'll find them on duty—doing their job day after day, demanding the minimum of attention and giving the maximum of service.

Go to your jeweler and ask to see the Hamilton Railroad grades. When you invest in one of these you will own a watch that is internationally known; one that is as accurate as a watch can be—and sturdy as well.

The above illustration shows the Hamilton 992, which is the Hamilton model most railroad men prefer. It will better than pass time inspection on any railroad and give dependable service for many years to come.

For other than time inspection service ask to see model No. 974, which gives you Hamilton quality at a lower price.

We will be glad to send you a copy of "The Timekeeper," a booklet describing the various Hamiltons. Write for it.

HAMILTON WATCH COMPANY
LANCASTER, PENNA., U. S. A.

"The Railroad Timekeeper of America"

For Reservations—See Notes

view. I recalled how, once, that same now famous "Kid Santoro" approached a reputable citizen of a state below the Mason-Dixon Line with a deathly-looking axe concealed behind his, I judge, one hundred twenty pounds. I recalled his efforts at a battle, started by a cartoon of a "cartoonist" who cartooned him. And, at last, he dares to desire to match his prowess against "anyone." Even now, I can see him acquire a new interest in the stars—large stars and brilliant universes—as he counts them, "Knocked out." "One, two." Truly, the age of reasonableness has past, for "Kid Santoro" knows not into what abysmal depths he shall be plunged by reason of a prize-fighting "photograph" of himself. So—I'll "poem" my edict.

I have given, above, the facts, If he leaves, at home, his axe, To a battle, in the "Village," I invite 'im. I'm a pacifist—and meek; But he'll find he's met "The Sheik Of the Village," on the fatal night I fight 'im!

Did You Ever Pretend You Were Your Own Boss?

DID you ever pretend that you were your own boss? It's a pretty good game. If you're a failure and don't seem to be getting ahead as fast as you would like, try it. It will do you good. It helped a failure I once knew. It changed him to a success. He'd tell you so if you knew him.

It's like solitaire; if you cheat you spoil the game for yourself.

You're Boss now. Here comes a fellow who was yourself a minute ago. "A likely looking chap," you say to yourself, being Boss.

"Good morning," you say to him.

"Good morning, Boss," says he. "I've been thinking a heap lately and I believe I've hit on a bright idea."

"Fine!" you say, much pleased that he's started thinking at last. "Shoot."

"I think I ought to get a raise," says he, coming quickly to what's on his mind.

"You do?" you say, ready to be convinced. "Why?"

"For several reasons," says he. "I need more money. I have a wife. I have two youngsters. I have a house with a mort-

NEW KIND OF HEAT!

Famous Oliver Oil-Gas Burner—Banishes coal and wood. Cheaper—Burns 95% air, 5% oil. For all-season cooking and heating, 3 times more heat in winter—yet no roasting kitchen in Summer—also ready heat for changeable Spring and Fall. Fits any heating or cook stove without change. Safe. Heats instantly—simply turn valve. No fires to make, no ashes nor dirt. 30 days trial. FREE BOOK: "New Kind of Heat," sent postpaid. Also Special Price Offer Write today. OLIVER OIL-GAS BURNER & MACHINE CO., 2039-J Oliver Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.*

AGENTS WANTED

Learn Photography at HOME

Make $75.00 a Week on the Side

Establish yourself as a Photographer. Expert quickly—during your spare time—under a leading photographer. I'll show you how to start your own business—or command a large salary. Send for my unusual offer—it's only temporary. Act at once. A postal will do. R. Dupont, INTERNATIONAL STUDIOS gage and a sick mother to support. It costs a lot." He's quite frank. He conceals nothing.

Dept. 4637 3601 Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

You feel sorry for him. You're getting more than he is and you, too, find it hard to get along as comfortably as you'd like. You've known him for a long time. You've often wished he'd show more ambition. He's inclined to take it pretty easy. Perhaps he's changed. So you ask him hopefully if he's been studying to fit himself for a new job, better than the one he's been able to take care of up to now.—Edward M. Very, in Forbes Magazine (N. Y.).

They helped set John Costello adrift on the sea of matrimony at his bachelor dinner on August 26

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Baltimore Terminal Division

Correspondent, H. R. LINCOLN

During August 27396 cars were handled at Bay View, more than 2000 more cars than in any other one month.

Another record was made in the Terminal in the number of cars loaded during August. 630 cars were loaded on the 18th. In digging back into the dusty records the best that could be found for any one day was 588.

We know another "Stenog" who refuses to wear high heels on her shoes. It makes her "sweetie" appear too small.

Because of the increased business on the Capitol Limited, necessitating more cars, it was found necessary to extend the loading platform, Camden Station. The work was done by Carpenters Hatfield, Hoerr, Blaine and Quick.

"Les" Higgs, the fat boy file clerk, has went and bought himself a "Lincoln Pup." Wonder how he is going to get up the goat hill where he lives in anything on wheels.

Mt. Clare

Correspondent, W. H. ZELL

Death of Former Fire Marshall J. P. Reinhardt

Mr. Reinhardt was born June 8, 1866 and died July 25, 1923. He began his railroad career as helper in the Blacksmith Shop at Mount Clare, on June 1, 1893. In 1909 he was assigned to special duty as a shop hand and on February 1, 1916 was made fire marshall, reporting to the superintendent of shops. On May 1, 1920, he was transferred to the Insurance Department, reporting to the superintendent of insurance, and held the position of fire marshall until his death.

Out of "DO" Dispatcher's Office, while visiting W. S. Eccleston at his shore at Manhattan Beach. Drawn by Dispatcher George K. Seibert. Reading left to right: W. S. Eccleston, H. Hambleton and L. B. Robinson

Signalman A. A. Jacobs and Foreman W. R. Wheats, Baltimore Terminal

Mr. Reinhardt's career as an employee of the Company was characterized by a keen interest in his work, never neglecting his duty, working night and day if the occasion required. The Company has lost an efficient employee and one who always had its interest at heart.

Mr. Reinhardt was stricken while on his vacation and died suddenly, before medical aid could be obtained. He was married and had three children. He was well liked by all his associates, being fair and square in his relationship with them. The sincere sympathy of his fellow workers is extended to his widow and children.

A Few Dont's

Don't be careless about your work, for in a flash you can be injured.

Don't let your boss find you loafing on the job, because a hard and steady worker will always be rewarded.

Don't be wasteful with material and other things. Always be saving and help to "stop that leak!"

Don't throw tools of any kind around, as they cost money, and should be well taken care of.

Don't throw material or rubbish around where you are working, as it makes it untidy and dangerous.

Don't lose too much time. The man on the job is the man who gets along.

Don't fail to report anything which is unsafe, also anything which you think is unsafe and which will help to make the shop you work in a Safety First Shop. Tell it to your boss.

Bill Sees Mount Clare Wallop Riverside

Mont Clair, September 2, 1923

Dear Charlee:

You no Charlee air basebawl sesion is nerely ober an so fer the Riversides Teem is leeding the legue bye half a gam. Mr. Serp, air Chef Clerk tells me we is goin ter play thet Riversides Teem Saturday fer the Championships of the Well Fare Legue, an i seys maybe if i go oudt Mont Clair mite win a bawl gam, cause ebery thyme i go oudt ter see them play, they sert of open up and play reglar big legue bawl. So i drivd oudt to Drewed Hill Perk wear the gam was serposed ter be plaid. Well, after Riversides argueed bout they wantin ter point the empires and wantin eberythin else there weigh we finly sterted the gam. Them their Riversides guys was as shure winnin as the Kaiser was gettin into Paris, but, sumthing got in their way and it was our picher by the name of Hanna-Boy, he's sum picher, made them their guys look foollish, well, they went up like lions to bat, and came down lik lams. They sertainly lost their eyesight cause he made nine of them hit the heir, and only one guy

ON THE OLD MAIN LINE

① A LITERARY MAN

②

④ PARLEY - VICTORY & WAR HOSS

⑤ SINGING - DARLING I AM GROWING OLD

③ KING TUT ABOUT TO THROW THE SACRED BULL

⑥ A WELL KNOWN EAST END DISPATCHER

⑦ 35 MILES ON A GALLON OF GAS IS NOT SO BAD - BUT THAT FISH STORY IS BEYOND US

⑦ HARD TO EXPLAIN?

⑧ A DELAY CLERK

Some of the force from Dispatchers Office, Baltimore, as seen and drawn by Dispatcher George K. Seibert. 1. T. F. Dent. 2. W. S. Eccleston. 3. I. S. Williams. 4. G. W. Tobin. 5. H. Hambleton. 6. W. E. Rowe. 7. M. T. La Mar. 8. C. V. Hubbard. 9. L. B. Robinson

The late Fire Marshall P. Reinhardt, Mt. Clare

Dolores, Mt. Clare baby, 3 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Buettner

"I'm as Good a Man as Jim!"

"They made him manager today, at a fine increase in salary. He's the fourth man in the office to be promoted in the last few months. And all were picked for the same reason—they had studied in spare time with the International Correspondence Schools and learned to do some one thing better than the rest of us.

"I've thought it all out, Grace. I'm as good a man as any of them. All I need is special training—and I'm going to get it. If the I. C. S. can raise other men's salaries it can raise mine. See this coupon? It means my start toward a better job and I'm going to mail it to Scranton tonight!"

Thousands of men now know the joy of happy, prosperous homes because they let the I. C. S. prepare them in spare hours for bigger work and better pay.

Why don't you study some one thing and get ready for a real job, at a salary that will give your wife and children the things you would like them to have?

You can do it! Pick the position you want in the work you like best and the I. C. S. will prepare you for it right in your own home, in your spare time.

Yes, you can do it! More than two million have done it in the last 31 years. More than 180,000 are doing it right now. Join them without another day's delay. Mark and mail this coupon.

INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS BOX 8476-C SCRANTON, PA.

Explain, without obligating me, how I can qualify for the position, or in the subject, before which I mark X.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> Pharmacy                  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Locomotive Fireman       | <input type="checkbox"/> TRAFFIC MANAGER           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Engineer       | <input type="checkbox"/> BOOKKEEPER                |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Fireman        | <input type="checkbox"/> Cost Accountant           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Inspector      | <input type="checkbox"/> BUSINESS MANAGEMENT       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Repairman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary         |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Round House Foreman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Business Correspondent    |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Trainmen and Carmen      | <input type="checkbox"/> Stenographer and Typist   |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Conductor        | <input type="checkbox"/> Good English              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> MECHANICAL ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> SALESMANSHIP              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Draftsman     | <input type="checkbox"/> ADVERTISING               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice    | <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Toolmaker                | <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL SERVICE             |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Boiler Maker or Designer | <input type="checkbox"/> ELECTRICAL ENGINEER       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating     | <input type="checkbox"/> Electrician               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL ENGINEER           | <input type="checkbox"/> Electric Wiring           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping    | <input type="checkbox"/> Elec. Lighting & Railways |
| <input type="checkbox"/> R. R. Constructing       | <input type="checkbox"/> Telegraph Engineer        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bridge Engineer          | <input type="checkbox"/> Telephone Work            |
| <input type="checkbox"/> ARCHITECT                | <input type="checkbox"/> Mining Engineer           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman  | <input type="checkbox"/> Stationary Engineer       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading       | <input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engines          |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder   | <input type="checkbox"/> AUTOMOBILES               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer      | <input type="checkbox"/> AGRICULTURE               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder         | <input type="checkbox"/> Poultry Raising           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CHEMIST                  | <input type="checkbox"/> RADIO                     |

Name _____
Present _____ Employed _____ 6-26-22
Occupation _____ By _____ Street _____
and No. _____
City _____ State _____

Canadians may send this coupon to International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Ltd., Montreal, Canada

A MT. CLARE FAMILY

Assistant Foreman B. W. Dixon and Mrs. Dixon with their three children and the doggies.
Upper right: Leslie, age 13; lower left: Harvey, age 18 months; right: Maurice, age 7

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

double brings in Williams. Well, anyways we kept on till we had fore runs that first innin. Then we let Riversides Bat, but no use, cause they could nut hit the bawl. Again we made two more runs in the fifth innin, our friends Anderson an Goose Eisenhooker doin the hittin, and we made air last two runs in the sixth innin. The final scere was eight too nothin. Air teen certainly did do some snappy feelding, thet guy punk Smith-made sum good stops an Moxley and Williams was there too wit their feelding but you ought ter see thet guy Shipley that plays rite feild he's sum feelder, he mad sum ketches, jumpin all ober the crowd to-get bawls an he got them too. Now thet we hev won this there gam we hev got the championships of the Legue and we will get a cup. We is all so goin ter play the Washinton Turmonial Teem in a couple a weeks an if you can mek it try to get ober an see sum of them their games. Mus now clothes regards.

BILL.

Baltimore Division

Correspondent, W. H. TARR

The Indoor Baseball Teams from the Freight Agent's Office, Camden, and Division Accountant's Office, continue their games during the noon hour and many a close game is played with great interest on both sides. The Division Accountant's Team have borrowed "Ed" Ham Hughes of the Superintendent's Office for a fielder. "Jack" Priel is their popular catcher. Charley Machin serves at first base and stops a few now and then. George Bobb is the star pitcher but occasionally goes to pieces, when Expert Harry Constantine comes in for a grand stand play. "Dick"

Richardson lines them out. For the team from the Agent's Office, Charley Griffith serves as pitcher and Carey lines them out. Myerly and Pritchard play good ball. "Schmidty" gets excited at first and lets a few go by, but when composed, plays good ball. These teams have been playing for over a year. Keep it up Boys!

East Side, Philadelphia

Correspondent, CHARLES H. MINNICK

The "Rebellious" Rebel, William G. Orrell, and former "King" of East Side Yard Office, has at last left us and now it appears that he is at the Piers in the capacity of posting and balancing clerk.

Little "Delbert" Stackhouse, better known as "Stacki of Maple Shade, N. J.," has also taken a position at Pier 22 as correction clerk.

On Saturday noon, September 8, when entering the Master Mechanic's Office, I was unable to determine whether I was looking at the boiler clerk's desk or at the kitchen table. The scene which met my eyes was that of a desk, literally covered with all kinds of kitchen utensils, everything from a paring knife to a rolling-pin. I didn't know what to make of it at first, but was told that the girls in the office had given Miss Loretta Jordan a kitchen shower in honor of her wedding on September 19. East Side has lost a good boiler clerk, but somebody has found a good wife. Details of the wedding will be announced later—providing I get an invitation. We all miss Loretta and assure her of our sincere wishes for much happiness.

Genevieve, two year old daughter of Chief Clerk H. G. Connor, East Side

Addressed to "Johnnie" Bogsche—"How's things John?" Meaning your new baby!

"Bob" Henry, brakeman with his close hair-cut.

Charles C. Harrison, East Side conductor and society man.

Anyone wishing to secure services of a first-class banjo player with vocal accompaniment can apply to Frank P. Brennan, leader of the Trilby String Band of West Philadelphia.

Murphy, night checker and East Side's best comedian.

"Herby" Held has just purchased a new Studebaker roadster and he and "Tommy" Barron are simply "running wild" with it. Watch the telegraph poles!

Since "Eddy" Reddington won those field glasses he is going to make for the nearest Beauty Pageant.

Clarence Orr is father of a bouncing boy, his third!

We extend to our new M. C. B. clerk, Chris Falkenstein, in the Master Mechanic's Office, our congratulations on his seventeenth birthday, September 20, 1923.

H. G. Martin, machinist at East Side Shops, was awarded the $10.00 cash prize for calling attention of his foreman, William Tisdale, to several defects of a nature which would cause serious delay, failure or breakdown. Martin is to be highly commended for his interest and intelligent observation.

Pier 22, Philadelphia, Pa.

Correspondent, MARY G. GUTHRIE

Mrs. A. E. Albrecht, formerly Helen Barouth, stenographer to the Cashier at Pier 22, recently returned to Philadelphia after a visit to Seattle, Washington, where she has been making her home. Fourteen girls from the Cashier's Office entertained her by giving a Theatre Party at Keith's in her honor, a dinner following. She left on her return trip via the Baltimore and Ohio.

SOME OF THE REASONS WHY WORKING IS PLEASANT AT BRUNSWICK

Above: Standing, left to right: H. M. Darlington, Dispatcher; A. W. Brown, Index Clerk; O. W. Kirk, Chief Index Clerk; L. Nelson, Chief Clerk. Sitting: J. D. Gletner, Clerk; Winifred E. Bond, Index Clerk; C. E. Orrison, Clerk. Below: B. F. Chambers, Caller; 42 years of service

EAST SIDE FOLK VISIT OCEAN CITY, N. J.

Left: "Bill" McMullen, East Side Round House, and Florence, daughter of Foreman Wilson Battersby. Right: Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Battersby

We are all glad to have back with us again "Little Helen Dean," formerly from the Division Accountant's Offices, Philadelphia and Baltimore.

"Johnny" McDevitt, our rate clerk, spent several days in Atlantic City while on his vacation, only to his sorrow to get a dose of sun poisoning. He had to be brought home where he was confined to his bed for several days.

Nothing exciting has happened in this office recently, no marriages to report, but we expect to have some in the near future. Here's hoping, anyway.

Timekeeping at Pier 22 has kept Isabelle stepping these days. Of course she does not get excited for we all know she is a good "Dancer."

With the winter months fast approaching interest is increasing in the Girls' Sewing Circle of the Cashier's Department, as they are showing great signs of activity.

Washington, D. C. Freight Station

Correspondent, W. L. WHITING

We have been tooting our horn at Washington lately about our good business prospects for the year 1923, and the following statement for the months of August, 1922 and 1923 will, for those months at least, amply justify our boasting:

	Aug., 1923	Aug 1922	Increase
Forwarded C.L.	$40,469.00	$28,889.00	$11,583.00
Forw'd L.C.L.	16,374.00	14,033.00	2,341.00
Received C.L.	290,537.00	214,486.00	76,071.00
Received L.C.L.	34,838.00	49,932.00	4,886.00
Coal	103,899.00	33,103.00	70,796.00

Total.....$306,137.00 $340,460.00 $165,677.00

This shows an increase without coal of $84,881.00 or 30.9 per cent., and an increase, with coal of $165,677.00 or 48.7 per cent.

Please note the total absence of "decrease" column!

This was such a good showing that it called for an appreciative letter from our traffic officials.

We hope to continue the good work.

Death has visited the families of two of our clerks lately. Stenographer Vincent Clark was called away to attend the funeral of his father. Mr. Clark, Sr., had been West for some time in the interest of his health, but was unable to combat his complaint successfully, and finally succumbed to it.

Miss Katherine Gerhardt recently lost a dear little niece, aged two. The little one had been ailing for some time, but when the end came it brought with it the usual sense of loss and sorrow.

Our sympathies are extended to our friends and their families in this, their time of sorrow.

Vacations have still been in order, and among those who have absented themselves from their accustomed posts is our good agent, D. M. Fisher. Mr. and Mrs. Fisher journeyed to Youngstown, Ohio, to visit relatives at that city. This is the first time that our agent has been away from his post of duty in over thirteen years, and we are all of the opinion that it was nearly time he had a change of scenery. Reports from him state that while we were sweltering in Washington with the thermometer approaching the ninety spot, he was obliged to put on winter clothes. Some difference in temperatures!

Many of the others have also been away seeking change and recreation, and have returned showing the good effects of their trips.

Only $2.00 Brings This Famous Special Bunn Railroad Watch

21 JEWEL

The Master Railroad Watch of America. Adjusted to 6 positions—Time-Tested, Rated and Cased at the Great Illinois Factory.

This Master Railroad Watch is guaranteed to pass the most rigid inspection on every railroad. Adjusted to 6 positions, extreme heat, cold and isochronism—21 jewel lever set movement, Montgomery or Arabic Dial, in a durable and handsome 20-year gold filled screw back and bezel case.

NO RED TAPE—NO RISK

$2.00 brings this famous 21 jewel Bunn Special to you prepaid—without delay. Wear it 10 days. Then, if you are not convinced it is the Greatest Railroad Watch in the Country, accurate, durable and dependable, send it back and your $2.00 will be refunded immediately. Otherwise, pay only $5.55 a month for 10 months until the spot cash price of $37.50 is paid. SEND TODAY

Only if you are convinced after 10 days' trial that it is the Master Railroad Watch, do you pay for it at the rate of only a few pennies a day. Your watch is here waiting for you. Order today—NOW.

Send for it to-day. Thousands of bargains at your disposal. Save 1-3 by writing to Dept. 4017

Million Dollar Bargain Book

J.M. LYON & CO. INC.

IN BUSINESS NEARLY 100 YRS.

2-4 Maiden Lane, New York

Cumberland Division

Correspondent, JOHN SELL

Our Maintenance of Way forces have been recently renewing switches and relining and widening yard track clearances, to take care of the new heavy type locomotives, which will soon be put in service on this division. With the track in perfect condition and heavier power, the record breaking fall business which is anticipated should be taken care of in good shape, and our operating employees are all keyed up to the point of tackling the job. We say to our Traffic Department, "you get the business and we will handle it."

Our old friend, Engineman "Billy" Williams, has recently taken a fancy to dogs and has asked "Jake" Miller and "Bill" Toomey when they are out making their daily survey to try and locate a "Good Dog." We thought "Jake" had all the good dogs corralled long ago but just how "Bill" comes in as a dog fancier we are at a loss to understand. Better look for better timber, "Billy."

Terminal Agent Sands and some of his happy clerks. Note A. E. Rhoads, Agent, Pier 22. At the right we have Miss Mae Mooney, Assistant Delivery Clerk

W. J., Junior, age 4, and John D., age 2, sons of First Trick Operator W. J. McDonald, Cumbo, W. Va.

Section Foreman J. N. Wagoner, for the last thirteen years foreman at Green Spring, has been granted a six months leave of absence account of ill health. Here's hoping the rest will do you good, Mr. Wagoner, and don't worry while you are off as T. W. Kaylor has been selected to take care of your section and will no doubt keep up the good work.

With all the records we have broken in the past few months we are still able to gain new laurels. During the month of August we averaged 1042 loads per day out of Grafton east over the West End of the Cumberland Division which is the best average daily movement for a month yet handled.

Our old friend Roy Nycum, leverman at Viaduct Tower, Cumberland, recently made an unusual non-stop record of service, having worked considerably over six hundred days, Sundays and holidays included, the continuous performance only coming to a close upon the death of Mr. Nycum's grandmother, which forced Roy to take a day off. We are always glad to hear of any records made by fellow employees.

Our well known claim agent, Kemper Price Kline, we understand, is making weekly visits to Piedmont but is still able to dodge old Dan Cupid.

W. J. Jr., age four, and John Donald, age two, are presented on their pony, a present from Dad, better known as W. J. McDonald, operator at East Cumbo, W. Va. Looks like the signals are all set clear.

Our friend "Nick" Weber, foreman on Section 27A, Cumberland, has been busy all summer cleaning up the East Yard and getting track in shape for the winter. "Nick" reports tie renewals about complete and all ready for Jack Frost.

While our average miles per car per day has not been as good as desired a gradual improvement is being made, and with everybody with their shoulders to the wheel we hope to equal our early spring record.

Recently we were pleased to hear favorable comments on the cleanly appearance of the station and surroundings at Duffields, W. Va. E. G. McDonald is agent at this point and enjoys an enviable reputation. It is a pleasure to our patrons to use our facilities at that point.

Fall season was ushered in by a moonlight picnic under the auspices of the Division Accountant's Night School and was largely attended by the clerks of the various offices and their friends. Lake Gordon, the source of Cumberland's water supply, which is one of the most beautiful spots in the vicinity of the Queen City, has a natural park and permission was secured from Mr. Fowler, the superintendent in charge, to hold the party. Transportation was arranged by a number of officials donating cars. On arrival at the dam the happy crowd spent the evening roasting corn, weiners and other delicacies, after which Miss Winifred King assumed the role of "Reader of the Future" and read the palms of the bashful. Singing and dancing wound up the entertainment and as usual all reported a fine time.

The Cumberland Fair Association has purchased a beautiful site along our right of way west of the city and contemplates the laying out of a race course and erecting suitable buildings for the holding of a county fair each fall. Sidetracks will be laid out connecting with our line and will give us a nice business, both passenger and freight. It is the idea of the directors to have the grounds in readiness for use next fall.

Another example of Baltimore and Ohio service was shown lately at North Mountain, W. Va., when seven box cars were set off along the siding, so situated as to enable the shippers to accumulate carloads of fruit and then load direct into refrigerator cars placed on the siding. The cars were numbered one to seven and assigned to the various shippers on request and can be used for grading and packing and will facilitate the loading and dispatching of fruit from that station, one of the heaviest apple shipping points on our division.

Agent C. R. Grimm, Cumberland, has promised us a picture of his efficient force and from the records made at the local station we know our fellow employees would be interested in seeing the folks who make these records possible. How about letting us have that picture for the next issue, C. R. G?

Misses Lillian Judy and Mable McClintock, two of our fair ones in the Queen City Building, recently returned from a vacation on the Pacific Coast, reporting a fine time. While the Western Roads are all fine both agree the Baltimore and Ohio is still the Best and Only.

F. A. Ernst, of the Assistant Division Engineering Corps, while working on the High Line recently, laid down tape and a few minutes later went to pick it up and found he inadvertently had hold of the tail of a six foot black snake. This would have discommoded most of us but Ernie has had all kind of experiences in handling these reptiles and to hear him talk you would think it was an everyday occurrence.

With our old "Jake" Miller patrolling the Branches and the M. & K. Sub Division, and his side partner, Hunter Castle, working the Cumberland and Keyser Terminals, we know that cars are going to be kept moving and the average cars miles per day increased.

The other day when we happened to pass Bedford Street Crossing, we thought Crossing Watchman Thornton Means was addressing one of the classes of the Street School, but found he was only instructing some of his family to hurry home. All right, Mr. Means, we have something of a crowd, too.

Frequently read in the magazines and daily papers of the plans for a celebration commemorating the Centennial of American Railroading, of which our line was the pioneer. A visit to the Martinsburg Shops, where a number of our old time engines and other relics are stored, recalled some of the stories related by our veterans of the early railroading when the old Link and Pin was in vogue. No doubt the Baltimore and Ohio will lead in the interesting exhibits.

Left: Sarah F. Pennington, in her 1923 graduation dress. Right: L. V. Pennington, U. S. Marine Corps, photograph taken in Pekin, China. Both are children of Crossing Watchman P. M. Pennington, Cumberland, Md.

We are all still interested in the Stop That Leak Campaign and almost daily we hear of some employe who has effected some economy and we are determined that the Cumberland Division will stay in the forefront in that drive.

Mechanical Department

Correspondent, VADA PEARL DRUMM,
Secretary to Master Mechanic

The many friends of W. D. Hardy, Jr., work checker, were given a surprise recently when he announced his marriage to Miss Anita Grimm, which took place at Hancock on July 6. Congratulations!

It can scarcely be said that without warning came the announcement of the marriage of Miss Mary Screen, stenographer in Office of Division Master Mechanic, which took place in Washington, D. C., on July 20. Frank Coit, Washington, is the happy man. We were beginning to notice that Mary's visits to Washington were becoming more numerous. She also met No. 16 on Saturday night more frequently, which, of course, prepared us somewhat for the shock. We wish the newlyweds much happiness.

Miss Katherine Moore has taken the position left vacant by Miss Screen. Welcome to our office, Katherine.

The girls of the Master Mechanic's Office have again directed their attention to bowling. The team consists of the following players: Misses Lucille Hanifin, Olive Liller, Blanche Clark, Everal Lapp and Mrs. Margaret Mewshaw. This is practically the same line up as last year, and they have assured us that we can look forward to some high scores.

Understand C. D. Shaffer, our electrical foreman, has turned his attentions from the Frankfort Road to Columbia Street. This is just a rumor, but we feel sure that Anna could tell us all about it.

A certain mystery seems to surround the accident in which the big Buick car belonging to "Bubbles" Baird was completely demolished. No one seems to be able to find out the cause; however, "Bubbles" has announced his intentions of getting a new Chandler, and we suggest that he let "Queenie" do the driving.

A certain Sunday night a short time ago John Donaldson was absent from the regular Bachelors' Meeting. Investigation developed he was up on Second Street. How about it, "Donnie?"

Timber Preserving Plant Green Spring, W. Va.

Correspondent, E. E. ALEXANDER

Time is a sacred thing and each day a little life—Sir John Lubbock.

Yes, we had a vacation too. It's over now, but during it it was our pleasure to: Bathe in the Atlantic.

Hear Wanamaker's wonderful pipe organ. Milk and do other chores on the farm.

Attend the Iowa State Fair.

See parade of $2,000,000 worth of prize live stock.

Visit Sears, Roebuck Chicago Plant (stayed for dinner.)

Travel via the Best Railroad in the World.

We were deeply grieved to learn of the death of our friend W. W. Picking, traveling passenger agent, Cumberland Division. Mr. Picking was a gentleman in every respect, with a personality that quickly won him the friendship and confidence of those he met. Would that we all might fill our various positions in as befitting a manner. We know something of his splendid work and greatly enjoyed his friendship.

Treating Engineer J. R. Myerly is supervising the treatment of a large piling order at the new treating plant of the Producers Wood Preserving Co., at Louisville, Ky.

Treating Engineer J. W. Twigg inspected treatment of an order for paving blocks for Grafton and Keyser at St. Louis during the forepart of September.

General Foreman E. M. Stottlemeyer has resumed his duties following an extended absence on account of serious injury to the muscles of his right leg.

Car Owners Wanted!

—to use and introduce the greatest improvement in Inner Tubes since autos were invented. Air Gauge in valve stem of every Tube shows pressure at a glance.

AIR-GAGE Inner Tubes

—sell on sight to almost every car owner. Save trouble, time and expense. Add one-third to tire life. Paul salesmen make big profits selling direct to car owners. Secure own tires and tubes at factory prices. We can use 2000 more men at once. Experience and capital not necessary. Big Free Book Explains All. WRITE TODAY. PAUL RUBBER CO. Dept. 72, Salisbury, N. C.

A number of railroad employes here enjoyed camping along the old South Branch this season and all are enthusiastic over the good times they had.

Miss Bessie Teeters, youngest daughter of Fireman Helper and Mrs. G. N. Teeters, and D. H. Talley, switchman, were married at Cumberland, Md., August 31, by Rev. B. Smith. Congratulations!

The M. E. Ladies Aid held one of their nice festivals on the commissary grounds on the evening of September 14.

Section Foreman J. N. Wagoner has secured a leave of absence and at present is benefitting by a much needed rest. Tom Kaylor, Okonoko, is handling Mr. Wagoner's section at present.

Contractors are busy on the plant enlargements authorized, but work is not progressing as rapidly as we would like to see it.

We submit a photograph of General Foreman E. M. Stottlemeyer's new home, a nice addition to Green Spring, to accompany our notes this month. Seated on the porch are E. M. S. himself, Mrs. Stottlemeyer, and their nephew Albert Wagoner. Also photograph of Master Robert Stanley Nixon, son of Hostler and Mrs. R. D. Nixon. (His dad's picture was in the August issue.)

Keyser, W. Va.

Correspondent, H. B. RIGHT

It is with regret that we again report the death of a Baltimore and Ohio wife and mother, Mrs. Joseph Shaffer. Mrs. Shaffer had been ill for some time and passed to her reward a few days ago. She leaves her devoted husband, J. H. Shaffer, car builder, Keyser, two sons, Dyche, a painter at the local shops, and Chester, timekeeper, Division Accountant's Office at Cumberland to mourn her loss. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

I was pleased to read the letter regarding the Washington Tours in the August MAGAZINE. Recently I accompanied a party of 16 tourists from this territory on one of these trips. At Washington, we joined the Pittsburgh and West Virginia delegation, making a total of 76 in the party. Employes need have no hesitancy in recommending these tours to their friends. They are wonderful.

Did you ever see the Capitol Limited pull out of a station or pass you on line? Doesn't it inspire you, and aren't you proud of OUR railroad? We don't have to apologize to any other railroad, we have the best there is.

Deer Park Hotel closed its fiftieth consecutive season on September 5. As usual it was a success.

Yardmaster and Mrs. W. H. Virts made their annual pilgrimage to Mt. Clemens

GOOD BABIES AND GOOD HOUSES ARE GREEN SPRING SPECIALTIES

The baby is the 7 months' old son of Hostler and Mrs. R. D. Nixon. He weighs 17½ pounds. The house was recently completed for the owner, General Foreman E. M. Stottlemeyer. The Relief Department Helped

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

One of Connellsville's Prides, Katherine Brinker

DEPOSITS $1,055,260.26

The First National Bank Keyser, W. Va.

SPECIAL SAVINGS DEPARTMENT
Interest paid every six months
from date of deposit

this summer. Mr. Virts is a real Baltimore and Ohio Booster. While on this trip he was the means of diverting some passenger business to our lines. Thanks, Mr. Virts!

Since becoming traveling passenger agent I have come in contact with many persons who travel all the time and it certainly makes a fellow feel good to hear them praise the Baltimore and Ohio. BEST and ONLY is right.

The Keyser and Piedmont stations have been given a coat of paint, which adds to their attractiveness.

We extend to the families of Engineman Smith, Fireman Bartow and Brakeman Merryman our heartfelt sympathy in the sudden death of these loyal employees.

CAR MILES BRING SMILES—that is, if there are enough of 'em.

WASHINGTON TOURS! Boost them fellows, they are great, and no American should miss visiting the Nations' Capitol—especially when the rates are so low.

START NOW TO STOP THAT LEAK! You can help in a hundred different ways. DO IT NOW!

Connellsville Division

Correspondent, C. E. REYNOLDS

Philip A. McMahon, congenial secretary to Superintendent Martin, left on his vacation September 1, to visit friends and relatives in Spokane, Washington. "Phil" reports a very pleasant trip and also that he met some of the "Higherups" of the C. M. & St. P. while on his way from St. Paul to Spokane, who assisted in making the trip an enjoyable one.

During the latter part of August, H. R. Gibson, division engineer, departed on his vacation to Pompton Lakes, N. J., spending several days there with his family. He returned to Connellsville, took his new Chandler "Chummy Sedan" and started to Columbus, Ohio, and about thirteen miles—it is reported—from Washington, Pa., the inevitable happened (?????) to the tune of 161 good bucks. What was the matter "Cibby," couldn't you get it in SECOND?

Here is a picture of little Miss Katherine Brinker, age two, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. "Ed" Brinker. The proud father is employed as C. T. timekeeper in Division Accountant's Office.

Division Accountant's Office

Things We Would Like to See

All of Brinker's Homing Pigeons come back.

"Mitch" married (again).

Two certain clerks who sit side by side in our office having a friendly conversation.

"Tommy" at work at 7.55.

Thelma when she didn't want "Dainties."

Eddie with his hair intact.

"Danny" bringing back the Rhode Island Red he goes to R. I. so often to see.

Some one prominent who wasn't born in Trotter.

B. Nabors keeping quiet.

Our signal supervisor Thomas W. Scott left several days ago on his vacation down in old Virginia. All right, old man, we are now signing off. This will conclude the broadcasting from station 8 B. J. V. Connellsville. Oh! just a minute, I will use the buzzer to sign off. Thomas M. Walker, assistant signal supervisor, is handling the job while T. W. S. is away.

Pittsburgh Division

Correspondents, EARL FAIRGRIEVE and MARY BREEN

Earl Tovey, clerk to Trainmaster Carroll, who represented the Baltimore and Ohio in various branches of sport, has severed connection with the Company to accept service with the Hillman Coal & Coke Company, with headquarters at Pittsburgh. Mr. Tovey was liked by all with whom he came in contact and we wish him the best of luck in his new field of labor.

Archie Gribbin, car accountant, has again returned to duty after a long and hard siege of poor health. We are glad to see him on the job again and feel the car mileage will climb with Archie at the wheel.

Recently Miss Mary Kenney, clerk in Superintendent's Office, made all the girls around envious with an immense "sparkler." She's all excited about the ring but won't tell where she got it, except that it belongs to her sister. This same Mary is driving around the country in a Ford coupe. A sparkler and Tin Lizzie are pretty good assets for a start these days.

Brother Paul McGrail, Car Distributor's Office, is the proud possessor of a Durant car and can be seen most any time when off duty dusting off the mileage about the hills of Pittsburgh and environs.

C. R. Radcliffe, formerly assistant road foreman of engines, Pittsburgh Division, has been transferred to a like position on the Wheeling Division and has been succeeded by J. T. Britton who comes from the Toledo Division. We wish the gentlemen success in their new undertakings.

Baltimore and Ohio employees of the general offices at Pittsburgh hope soon to inaugurate another season of the Bowling League. We understand the Superintendent's Office will have a team this year which will make them all sit up and take notice.

Norman E. Clark, former local counsel at Washington, Pa., was appointed Judge of Orphans Court of Washington County in place of Hon. H. B. Hughes, deceased.

Miss Mary Delahanty, for a number of years employed in the office of Superintendent and Terminal Superintendent, Pitts-

HILLTOP COLLIE KENNELS

Home of
BEAUTIFUL AND USEFUL COLLIES

607 High St., Versailles, Pa.

Puppies $20.00 and $30.00

Also a few Brood Matrons burgh Division, and later in General Superintendent Peck's Office, finally succumbed to the wiles of our old friend, Dan Cupid, and was married on August 28. Congratulations and best wishes, Mary!

Prominent minister of Pittsburgh recently wrote General Superintendent Peck commending flash light signal installed at Allison Park, Pa., in the interest of Safety First. This is a big help to motorists and speaks well for the interest shown by the Baltimore and Ohio in making the National and State Highways safe to travel.

Miss Teresa Kenney, formerly employed in the Car Distributor's Office at Pittsburgh, but now employed in the Register of Wills Office at Pittsburgh, is now dabbling in politics. We always said Teresa "had the line" and felt that sooner or later she would drift into something like this where she can display her oratorical powers. Some day we may see her running for "Mayoress" and, by golly, if she does, we'll slip her a vote.

The agency at Evans City, Pa., is now in charge of A. Capers. Friends of Mr. Capers will be pleased to hear of his appointment and we wish him success in his new position.

The accompanying photo is that of Ike Scanlon, stationmaster at Butler, Pa. Ike is one of the most conspicuous figures to be found anywhere on the various transportation systems of the country, and he is shown in the photo as consulting his "old reliable" watch for the correct time, which was recently presented to him by Pugh Brothers of Pittsburgh, Official Watch Inspectors of the Baltimore and Ohio and other railroads entering that city, who claim Ike as a personal friend.

Two porters were discussing some new general orders: One inquired what was meant by "courtesy with tact," something which was to be applied to patrons, and this was the answer Sam gave:

"Ah burst into a bathroom one day in a hurry and dere was a lady settin' in de tub. Ah bows an' sez: 'Excuse me, SIR,' and backs out. Now when Ah sed 'Excuse Me,' dat was courtesy, but when Ah sed 'Sir,' dat was tact."—N. Y. Central Magazine.

"Ike" Scanlon, Stationmaster, Butler, Pa., with his new watch

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

<sup>66</sup>6 UP<sup>99</sup> Observe your own watch and note how many times each day you will find it in approximately this position, particularly when you are lounging in any other than an upright position.

If your watch is adjusted in this position you can be assured that it will keep accurate time.

*The Bunn Special and
The Sangamo Special are*

ADJUSTED to 6 POSITIONS

AND WILL PASS THE INSPECTION ON ANY RAILROAD

Write for Circular

ILLINOIS WATCH CO.
SPRINGFIELD

Dial up

Dial down

12 up

3 up

9 up

6 up

Monongah Division

Correspondent, ANNA MARY UNKS

"Judy" Shroyer entertained ye Car Distributor's Office force at a corn and weiner roast at her home in Blueville. They had a big time. But we all have a big idea that "Mug" played a trick on the rest of us. No man was ever seen to drink three quarts of coffee before.

"Mug" has such lovely eyes—since he bought his new coupe.

Walter McFarling and Edna Mahaffey swapped jobs. We hope they will like each other's work.

We moved! You all know what that means—in case you don't I advise you to ask someone who has ventured on the Marriage Sea. However, as I said before—we moved. And we are all satisfied. Even Mr. Porterfield, who has so much avoirdupois, is satisfied. But, no kidding, we have the nicest office on the Baltimore and Ohio—the Master Mechanic's Office at Grafton.

Betty Jean is the name of a little girl born to J. E. Plum and wife, leading man at Grafton. Her name was to have been James Edward, Jr.

We have a new clerk in the Superintendent's Office, Miss Eva Maley of Weston. We hope she will like her work.

Engineer Rowland is dissatisfied with the notes I didn't put in the MAGAZINE last month. I think he's perfectly ridiculous, don't you?

I don't like to ask too many questions—but I do wish some one would inform me as to what makes the door step in the front of the station for some time after one p. m. every day. Marie and Lelia have just gone upstairs.

Wheeling Division

Correspondent, MARIE SLATERICK

On September 12, C. R. Radcliffe was appointed road foreman of engines, with headquarters at Benwood, W. Va., vice the late C. Crawford. W. H. Powell was appointed assistant road foreman of engines on the same date.

Autumnal Ads

The hills of fair September,
With flaming trees aglow,
Burn like a living ember
Along the B. & O.

Amid the woods reposeful
The air is sweet as wine;
Go out and get a noseful
Along the I. C. Line.

Where Autumn leaves run riot,
And streamlets leap and laugh;
The North Shore Line runs by it;
One dollar and a half.

The hilltops blaze with glory,
In gold and crimson clad;
According to the story
Of any railway ad.

—PHAIR in the Chicago Herald
and Examiner

Now that all important people like the correspondents, chief clerks and others, have had their vacations, the time has come when we must get to work. And work means getting notes for the Magazine. For the last couple of months the Wheeling Division has just been 'lying down on the job' as far as notes are concerned. But, we've made a good start for this month and here's hoping:

Miss Mary Burke, Roseby Rock, W. Va., daughter of Section Foreman T. Burke, has shown truly that she is a member of the Baltimore and Ohio family in spirit as well as in name. On July 29 Miss Burke found a broken rail near Milepost 362 and because she had the presence of mind to report it immediately probably saved the Company trouble and money. Miss Burke's picture is among those shown this month.

Larry Chaney, Telegraph Department, has become quite famous since Macy's Carnival hit Littleton, W. Va. (his place of abode). Larry boxed "Fightin' Sam" Macy's Great Negro Boxer. It was a good fight until the second round when our Kid Wonder, who weighs only 220 pounds, landed a hay-maker and put "Fightin' Sam" to sleep for about three minutes. Larry is trying to get Leo Crow, the agent at Denver, W. Va., to travel along as his manager but Crow does not like the idea of leaving Denver as he is afraid of street cars and the like. Just the same Wetzel County is proud of her boy and we expect to see Chaney fighting Dempsey or Firpo soon!

WHEELING DIVISION SNAPSHOTS

1 and 3. Checchina, age 19, and John, age 10, children of Section Foreman Antonio Cermala. 2. Jerry Rykoskey and friend. 4. J. O. Potts, Miss Marie Zoeller, a former employe, and "Watch," the guardian of Camp Welcome. 5. Mary Burke. 6. W. J. Gilbert. 7. Signal Maintainer at Fairpoint, Ohio, "Jimmie" Ehasz and "Jimmy," Jr., age 18 months

Some of the crew on No. 53, Wheeling Division. Left to right: Brakeman George H. Murphy, Dining Car Waiter Morris Jefferson, Steward J. H. Snyder, Chef Harvey L. Fisher

We are proud to print a likeness of Jerome Rykoskey, better known as "Jerry" of the Mechanical Department. This picture is a reminder of the Veteran's Picnic at Versailles, Pa., for it was taken there. The other good looking chap is a friend of Jerry's, who no doubt could furnish his address!

Edward Hager, operator at Denver, caught a fish that was three feet long but it got away from him before anyone saw it! Yes, we have no fish!

Signal Supervisor Penrod has been requested to lend Track Supervisor Wright a set of telephone pole climbers until Mr. Wright gets his automobile taught to climb trees. He's tried it without the climber but the climbin' wasn't very good. Why don't you coax it, Mr. Wright? You're not the only one who has a Dodge you know.

First Trick Operator Leo Burke, of Barrackville on September 12 was married to Miss Eleanor Brinkmeier, of Wheeling. The young couple went to Canada on their honeymoon and will reside in Fairmont on the return home. Congratulations!

We're wondering if Train Dispatcher Maze Rickey was injured much when he fell while picking plums at Littleton. Let's hope he didn't suffer as many injuries as did some very ripe plums he fell on!

Section Foreman Debolt is having much trouble along his section account of Bill Little, one of his men, stealing toys from the babies along the section. Shame on you Bill! When will you grow up?

Dining Car Stewart Bill Piper, he of the smiling visage, has left us for good. Bill entered the University at Morgantown this month. He's "gone but not forgotten" and we'll surely miss him. However, in his place we have another smiling person, E. Parker Beachum, from 'way down east. Looks like Bill bequeathed his grin to Mr. Beachum 'cause that's what he doesn't do nuthin' else but!

When your correspondent was on her vacation she had occasion to play butcher delivery wagon to a group of hungry campers on the Tygart Valley who hadn't seen real meat for a week. Thus, the correspondent on her trip down there chartered a chip basket and in this chip basket reposed dozens and dozens of beautiful, fresh, shiny, red and plump hot dogs. From Wheeling to Colfax, where the camp is (by the way you've all heard of the camp before—belongs to Master Carpenter Harry Potts—called Camp Welcome) it takes a good four hours ride and the afore-said hot dogs were in danger of losing their fresh charm as it was a hot summer's day, etc. But Oscar Winters, waiter on Dining

PUGH BROS. JEWELRY COMPANY

211 House Building
Pittsburgh, Pa.

5410 2nd Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pa.

14 Hipp Arcade
Youngstown, Ohio

OFFICIAL WATCH INSPECTORS—BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO.

Buy Your Railroad Watch from us Today and Pay Later

WATCHES, CHAINS and CHARMS sold on Convenient Terms at Established Factory Prices

227 South Bend

(21 Jewels)

$43.00

(Movement only.)

Illinois Bunn Special

(21 Jewels)

$47.00

(Movement only.)

Prices on Cases upon Request
from $1.00 up.

992 Hamilton

(21 Jewels)

$48.50

(Movement only.)

Elgin B. W. Raymond

(19 Jewels)

$40.00

(Movement only.)

Prices on Cases upon Request
from $1.00 up.

Name _____
Address _____
Do You work for Baltimore and Ohio? _____
Division _____ Capacity _____

CUT OUT AND MAIL
TO ANY OF OUR STORES

Car 1058, saved the day. He kindly offered to relieve the "Mag. Cor." of all responsibility and accordingly did so and when it came time to disembark the dogs were still beautiful, fresh, shiny, red and plump! The funny part of it is that the hereinbefore mentioned hot dogs didn't last very long when they finally reached the hungry mortals at Camp Welcome. Now we don't like to cast suspicion, but knowing Oscar's fondness for hot dogs—Many thanks, Oscar! The folks at camp couldn't understand it at all, why they were so nice and fresh I mean!

Wonder what made Mr. Detwiler, of the Dining Car Department, get so fussed the last rainy day we had? Was it because a young and pretty girl from upstairs asked him to loan her an umbrella? We heard him say yes he guessed he could if he could ever find his keys to get in where the umbrella was. After vainly hunting around for half an hour for the missing keys, imagine our surprise to see said keys in his right hand all the time. And then they call us the weaker sex! At's all right, as long as we can get a man so fussed he doesn't know what he's looking for, we're safe, aren't we girls?

We extend congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tribbett on the birth of a young daughter on July 27, Helen Marie. Mrs. Tribbett will be remembered as Miss Bernie Cooper, formerly of the Master Mechanic's Office at Benwood. Mr. Tribbett is Yard Brakeman at Benwood.

Assistant Claim Agent Albert Gatewood

YOUNG FOLKS FROM PARKERSBURG

1. Little Winona Duff, who draws pictures for our Children's Page, and her little sister, children of "Billy" Duff. 2. Seven months old Jack Fletcher Poe, weighing 26½ lbs., son of Handsome Conductor J. F. Poe, Ohio River Sub-Division. 3. Assistant Foreman Clyde Somerville, Parkersburg Freight House. 4. William Henry, age 2½ years, and Charles Lewis, age 13 months, children of Yard Clerk W. H. Bell has been sick for the past week or more, in fact ever since his wife went away. Where's the committee on investigation of conduct? Of course, it might only be his own cooking that's making him sick, but you never can tell. I'll telephone to Mars you can't, especially with married men!

On July 25, Car Inspector W. J. Gilbert discovered broken arch bar under VCCX car 65 by use of his inspector's mirror. This is a very difficult defect to detect and could not possibly have been seen if the mirror had not been used as break was on inside.

On August 20 this same man discovered a broken flange on wheel of B. & O. car 236933, on Hump 5. He was coming down Hump 1 on his way to work when he noticed this flange across the tracks.

It goes to show that this man is on the alert both on duty and off and is working for the best interest of his Company. The importance of the inspector's mirrors is also brought out by this man's use of same. A photograph of Mr. Gilbert is shown here.

Parkersburg, W. Va.

Correspondent, CHARLOTTE MARLOWE

J. P. Pierce, who recently came to us from Belleville, has bid in a position at the Main Line Baggage Room. He has our best wishes for success in his new work.

The position of O. S. & D. clerk vacated by Miss Mary Keenan has been bid in by Harry Creel.

See story of Edward Clark and his pet alligator—page 82, third column

Besides having the champion speech maker of Wood County, the Freight House also has the most popular girl in Parkersburg. In a recent contest featured by the Masons, Miss Janice Thorne, clerk, was awarded the first prize, a handsome diamond ring. There was much competition and we feel proud that the Baltimore and Ohio representative carried off first honors.

Most anything may happen at the Parkersburg Low Yard now, even if "Vic" Springer, alias "The Shriek of the Scale House," asked for a day off we wouldn't be a bit surprised. Since the appearance of the pencil sharpener and Peter McCabe's killing of the snake we thought all the impossible things had happened, but now—we are dealt the fatal blow—"Steve" Radford and "Brad" Southworth, trainmen on the O. R. Sub Division, have been away from work for three consecutive days.

Now we laugh! Ralph Orrahood, trainman, recently took a short vacation, and of course that learned gentleman went to Washington, D. C. (probably to confer with the Weather Bureau, trying to get them to predict some fair weather for Parkersburg and vicinity). Well, while he was there he of course wanted to pay a visit to his Brother Elks of the Washington Lodge, so he consulted the City Directory, called a taxi, and gave the driver the directory address. He was soon deposited at his destination, and after paying his taxi bill, he proceeded to the outer door and to the inner door. He rang the bell at the inner door and awaited admittance. Very promptly the door was opened by a gentleman of color who asked Mr. Orrahood his mission, whereupon Ralph produced his Membership card, but this was the answer from the dusky one: "Sorry, Boss, but dis heah is de colored Lodge." Poor Ralph.

The following conversation was heard at the Low Side Scale Office the other night:

Andrews: "Jerry, ask Socks what the number of that B. & O. 83222 is.

Jerry: "Socks, what's the number of that B. & O. 83222?"

Yes, we have no bananas!

A little ditty entitled "N-O-N-E"

Jerry went a fishing
To catch a fish you see
But when he got back, how many?
Well, that's what the title be.

What time do you call the engineer for train 78 now, Murphy?

"Handsome" Clyde Somerville, assistant foreman at the Freight House, has many accomplishments, and is a fellow of keen foresight, but when it comes to betting, well—"Handsome" really ought not to bet. For instance he bet "Skinny" Nolan $5.00 that "they" would never get his picture for the MAGAZINE. Thrilled with the thought of such easy money the ambitious "Skinny" wended his way home, dug up an old album, and lo! there was a picture Clyde had given him when the world was young. However, we all recognize you, Clyde. Collect your $5.00, "Skinny."

We are sending photos of three of the finest looking babies to be found on the O. R. Sub Division, or anywhere. Little Jack Fletcher Poe, shown as "September Morn," is just seven months old. He is the son of Conductor J. F. Poe. Father Poe is desperately in love with this boy, but do you blame him? As he does not have time to tell everybody about "Jack" as it would take up the whole 24 hours of the day for several months, we are publishing "Jack's" picture so that you will know what he looks like at least, and when Father Poe goes to running his tongue about his wonderful baby, you will know he has some cause. The other babies are William Henry, age two years, six months and Charles Lewis, age 13 months, sons of Yard Clerk W. H. Bell. This photo was shown around the Freight Office before being sent in, and some of the girls have decided to "gyp" their steadies, and wait for these two heavenly youngsters to grow up.

Verses for Courtesy

On July 19 Mr. Irvin Clay Lambert of Evanstown, Ill., wrote W. G. Brown, our general passenger agent at Chicago, and told him that on a recent trip on the Baltimore and Ohio he was so much impressed with the courtesy of our employes that he had written a few verses "of no particular merit but as an expression of the heart." It is remarkable that so many of our train service men are putting this winning heart quality into their work. Mr. Lambert's verses, for which we thank him, follow:

To the Baltimore and Ohio

You're called the "Road of Courtesy,"

You well deserve the name,
And this I know to my delight
You live up to your fame.

A wondrous thing is courtesy—
By no conditions bound—
It eases, cheers, encourages,
Wherever it is found.

I've travelled much the beaten trails,
O'er mountain, valley, plain;
On sea, by rail, and oft afoot,
In sunshine and in rain.
And this I've learned, if anything—
While traveling night or day—
That courtesy is one asset
That never fails to pay.

You must have learned this lesson, too,
Its value you must see—
At least whenever I'm your guest
It so occurs to me.
And this is why I speak your praise,
Aye, everywhere I go;
And this is why—whene'er I can
I take the B. & O.

Charleston Division

Correspondent, C. W. DIXON

Everyone still doing their best on CAR MILES. We had quite a set-back during the month of August on account of the terrific storm which took out bridges here and there on the Gauley Line, leaving quite a number of cars stranded on the different lumber and industrial connections. This condition existed for quite a while; in fact the last bridge was not replaced until September 13.

Agents and others are asked to make a special study of the conditions at their stations or in connection with their line of work that might interfere with a drive to still further reduce the number of claims account of LOSS AND DAMAGE to shipments, and to STOP THAT LEAK wherever and whenever possible. To STOP THAT LEAK always means a certain amount of money saved, and the most of them can be stopped without expense.

"Man was not made for the Sabbath, but the Sabbath was made for man." When the Master spoke that stinging rebuke He meant that the Sabbath was the one day out of seven set aside for man, the created being, to rest from his labor and to stop, look and listen to God, his creator. The foregoing is written in all sincerity, but sometimes when conditions are found that are contrary to the written order of things, they take on an aspect that causes us to wonder sometime if even God does not smile at the result. For instance, consider Big Walter Severns, division accountant, and what happened to him when he attempted to harvest his crop of weeds one Sunday in September. If you don't know the particulars, ask Walter, but should you not see him, just ask one of the yellow jackets.

Why is Major Brooke, division engineer, going to buy a runabout? Three persons have asked me that question during the past ten days, and I'm willing to bite; why is he?

S. W. Pickens, Superintendent's Force, was out hunting squirrels Labor Day and returned with two squirrels. He figures they cost him $5.87 each. If he only figured the cost of the shells, he's a darn poor shot. If he included the cost of his new gun, it's a darn cheap gun. We've got you either way you jump, "Pick."

Born unto Cashier and Mrs. "Tom" Fisher, Buckhannon Freight Office, one twelve-pound boy; he opened his eyes on the morning of September 7. Yes, we have no new train dispatchers!

B. C. Rullman is the present first trick operator at Weston, having replaced L. A. Teskey, who has been assigned to the agency at Gilmer.

Miss Beatrice McDermott, formerly of the Division Accountant's Office, and who is still considered as one of the family, was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas Feeny of Roanoke, W. Va., September 10. Congratulations!

Here is a snapshot of Dorothy, the three-and-one-half-year-old daughter of First Trick Operator B. C. Rullman of Weston. Dorothy is certainly a cute looking youngster, and her daddy will be glad when she comes to Weston. She is now with her mother in Englevalle, Kansas.

J. A. Minnich, Jr., and wife are at Minnehaha Springs, near Marlinton, W. Va.

Engineer H. O. Bailey has returned from his vacation spent touring the Valley of West Virginia.

Engineer N. H. Davidson was recently married. Until "Newt" comes across with name of the lucky girl we are unable to give particulars.

Ticket Clerk H. E. Brown spent his vacation with relatives at Salem, W. Va.

Road Foreman of Engines P. D. Marsh attended the Traveling Engineers' Association Annual Meeting at Chicago, Ill.

Fireman G. W. Firth recently purchased a home on West 4th Street and has moved his family from Shadybrook Addition.

Western Lines

Cincinnati Terminals

Correspondent, JOSEPH BEEL

The boys are wondering why George Otten, boilermaker, is so serious these days. There's a reason. On September 17, we were wishing him and HER lots of luck, happiness and prosperity. The matrimonial bee is buzzing around others also. C. McGee also took the plunge in the sea of matrimony September 12. Good luck, "Cliff!"

On September 6, the entire second trick at Ivorydale was overcome with joy, owing to the success of the second trick defeating the third trick baseball team. Manager Frank Zureick capably handled his team. The air-tight pitching of Ernest Price and the wonderful hitting of Frank Penny and the popular manager were the outstanding features. This team is now claiming the terminal championship.

Jacob Lang, a new electric welder, has filed an application at Ivorydale. Jacob Jr. arrived September 1. His father intends to use him on his third trick baseball team.

G. E. Resch, boiler foreman, and his wife recently went to New York to meet his rich uncle, who had just arrived from the old country. On reaching New York he discovered that the ship had landed at Boston and he hurried to Boston. While waiting for the customary red tape to untangle, the "Associated Charities" kindly took charge of him. The party then re-

Operator B. C. Rullman, Weston, is uncommonly proud of "his" Dorothy, age three and one-half

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

$31.50 All Wool Suit FREE

The Bell Tailors, Dept. 1442, Chicago, Ill., will make a fine tailored to measure suit or overcoat free for one man in each locality who will show and recommend their high grade made-to-measure clothes to a few friends. Simply send them your name and address and they will send you a large assortment of wool samples, style book, self-measuring chart and their free suit offer. -Adv.

PATENTS

BOOKLET FREE. HIGHEST REFERENCES. PROMPTNESS ASSURED. BEST RESULTS. Send drawing or model for examination and report as to patentability.

WATSON E. COLEMAN
PATENT LAWYER

624 F Street, N. W.

Washington, D. C.

turned home (they hired a taxi to carry the "marks") and found that, thanks to the neighbors, their little daughter and the supply of "Eagle Brand" were still safe and sound.

Now that nearly everyone who is going to take a vacation, has been away and returned, we are hoping to turn out a much larger output in the shop.

Things that Would Be Odd to See at Ivorydale

V. Knecht without his smile.

F. Zureick not spoofing someone.

N. Green not in a hurry.

T. H. Barker with just a medium size chew in his mouth.

Faking in the Magazine

Every now and then some practical joker tries to put one over on one of his railroad acquaintances, through the Magazine. As we understand a joke, it is only a good one when the fellow on whom it is played has a fair chance. The Magazine route does not give him any and it is also distinctly unfair to the Magazine.

Please don't use these columns for jokes of questionable merit. We enjoy the many really funny items sent in each month, but we cannot be expected to distinguish between pure fun and pure lies, especially when the latter are sent in under the guise of truth. False statements and questionable insinuations often lead to unpleasantness, even though started in good spirit.

These remarks are intended especially for the person who sent an anonymous note to the Magazine about a child "being presented" to a certain employe in Cincinnati. The announcement had every appearance of being the truth, because the person sending it assumed the position of the supposed father of the supposed boy. It happened that the supposed father is a good sport and that the deception was caught in time to prevent wasting space on its publication. Another time, however, such a report might have had unpleasant consequences.

R. Haggerty getting to work on time three days in succession.
 J. Phelon walking quietly downstairs like a dignified clerk should.
 C. Arnold getting excited.
 V. Truelove smiling.
 F. E. Liebetrau buying his own tobacco.

Familiar "Hearings" at Ivorydale

George Langdon (Crew Dispatcher)—
 "When can I have an engine?"
 John Burns—"The place is tied up again."
 E. McKenna—"How is the yard power?"
 George Holt—"Take her out."
 John Conrad—"I had Detroit tonight."
 Thos. Whitstead—"He was a fine fellow."
 Dan Wuest—"Red, how many washouts today?"
 John Schill—"Where is my ground?"
 Chas. Arnold—"If it's in the book, it must be done."
 Doc. Reardon—"She's on the rail, 'Doc.'"
 Engine House Clerks—"When do we get our vacation."
 Fitzpatrick—"Have you had your coffee yet?"
 Barker—"How's the crane?"
 Zureick—"Got any peanuts?"
 Paul Haaf—"Charlie, see the smart kopf?"

Tickets are now ready for distribution for the big fight. Heavyweight champion T. Mahoney will mix gloves with Jas.

Betty Jane, three months old, daughter of Assistant Chief Clerk W. H. Moorehouse, Cincinnati Motive Power Department met many of our officers on Galloway-Fries day. Miss Betty Jane's eldest sister is well over 21

Farrell; referee, W. H. Howe. They are fighting for the prize covering the best-looking tracks. Here's hoping they continue as they have in the past. We will all be proud of the Cincinnati Terminals before long.

There is a new sport among river men and boatmen of the Ohio—alligator hunting.

Edward Clark, popular pipe fitter at Storrs Round House, residing in Ludlow, Ky., caused all of the excitement by discovering a four foot 'Gator at the foot of Carneal Street, Ludlow, and battling with the creature for several hours, Thursday, September 6.

Clark left his home after dinner Thursday in his yawl with several fellow workers on his way to work. When near landing at Carneal Street one of the men shouted "Hey, there's Old Man Grump's Little Al," and pointed to the shallow water where Mr. 'Gator was sunning himself. Clark was too keen a sportsman to let the matter pass without a little investigation, and so he decided to capture the creature, if possible, telling his companions to go ahead. He returned to his home and procured a 32-caliber revolver, loaded with steel-jacket bullets. Approaching the place where the alligator had been seen, for 45 minutes he waited for the 'Gator to come on the bank. Nothing doing! Apparently the waters of the Ohio suited the animal perfectly. Clark then stepped from his hiding place and fired at the alligator. The 'gator wasn't bothered by the steel bullets which plunked against his grisly hide. The hunter then decided to get his prey alive. By quick maneuvering he grasped his tail, but the creature lashed back and forth, and escaped from his grasp. Once more he tried it and dodged away in time to escape a pair of jaws which snapped like a trap.

SIGHT SEEING PARTY OF CLEVELANDERS AND FRIENDS WHILE ATTENDING THE GALLOWAY-FRIES CELEBRATION AT CINCINNATI, OHIO, AUGUST 23

Standing, upper row, left to right: Mrs. Fleischeir, Clerk; T. O'Hara, General Foreman; Mrs. Kirby, Clerk; O. F. Murrey, Cashier; Miss Bayonnet, Clerk; S. C. Holcomb, Assistant Agent; Miss Carey, Clerk, Cleveland; W. Bacher, Assistant Cashier, Cincinnati; Herman Franz, Stenographer, Cincinnati. Seated, left to right: W. C. France, Agent, Tiffin, Ohio; Miss McKeon, Clerk; O. Brake, Clerk; Miss Miller, Clerk, Cleveland; E. J. Crampton, Agent, Canton, Ohio; Miss Dietrich, Clerk; Miss Farrell, Clerk; Miss Friedel, Clerk, Cleveland; Mr. Jelleff, Cashier, Cincinnati. Lower row, left to right: W. E. French, Assistant Agent; G. J. Beckman, Chief Clerk, Cincinnati; G. R. Littell, Terminal Agent, Cleveland; H. E. Martin, Rate Clerk; James Kummer, Rate Clerk, Cincinnati. Truck, with chauffeur donated by the Cincinnati Motor Terminals Co., through the kindness of Mr. J. J. Schultz, Manager

"He could take off a man's arm with those teeth and jaws," remarked Clark, describing the affair.

Accompanied by Captain Wilson of Ludlow, Clark made another attempt to capture or kill the alligator, using a shotgun this time. The charge of light shot, although aimed at the eye, had little more effect than the revolver shots. The alligator then swam away to more peaceful spots. Now our hunter wants to use a lasso or a high powered "rhinoceros gun" to get his 'gator.

It is rumored that Round House Foreman "Bob" Montgomery is about to take the "long step" of matrimony. A girl from Ludlow is the lucky party.

We are glad to report that Machinist "Billy Gerth" is again back at work after being sick for four months.

Oscar Fisher, machinist apprentice, Storrs, recently purchased a "Ford." It was not built to climb poles, Oscar.

Ivorydale, Ohio

Ask "Mack" Cracraft, electrical helper (with the prominent gold tooth), why he doesn't call on his sweetie on Sunday night.

M. Moran got his new teeth and his passes and he and Gilligan were all set for their vacation. But Gilligan didn't get to go.

For Sale—One perfectly good canoe—Apply to C. H. Everly, otherwise known as "Weary Willie." Would suggest that purchaser apply roller skates to canoe to assure its safe delivery. It got lost when Charles bought it.

Now that the Office of the Shop Superintendent is sporting a new floor, light and other improvements, the occupants may safely and comfortably survive the coming winter.

G. Kornhoff, J. H. Mullinix and Wm. Moser, who have been ill for some time are improving and we hope that by the time the MAGAZINE is issued they will be completely recovered and back on the job. Also glad to learn that our shop superintendent, who has been seriously ill for the past eight months, is much improved and we hope soon to see him at his desk.

C. Snell, blacksmith, is the proud father of twin boys recently presented to him. Good luck! But we are sorry to know that his wife is seriously ill and we are wishing her a speedy recovery.

Storekeeper Barker is wading around his office in sand these days, since the arrival of his new "Sheik" clerks.

E. Kennedy is the proud possessor of a medal recently won in a swimming meet.

Miss F. Bradford, stenographer to Storekeeper Barker, has in her possession a collection of photos of herself and her tree-top Daddy (with apologies to Smittie) taken while on their vacation trip to Cumberland Falls. The rest of the crowd seem to know something we don't and we are just waiting for "Flossie" to spring the news and give us the date the wedding bells are to ring.

J. R. Smith, Store Department artist, wore the cutest Charlie Chaplin mustache and we were so proud of him. It suddenly disappeared. Evidently his "gal" doesn't like 'em.

Akron Division

Cleveland Terminal

Correspondent, H. B. SMITH

G. J. Maisch was recently overheard lecturing two waitresses on the subject of "Cross Crossings Cautiously" after they had unfortunately met on the same track in the vicinity of the entrance to the kitchen in a Cleveland restaurant. His advice was taken kindly and they accepted his card with thanks, and this should be taken as an example by some of the younger fellows as advertising for the cause and our railroad.

George Trope is making a strenuous effort to get the Girls' Basketball Team of the Cashier's Office in shape before the season closes with the hope that they can move fast enough to win one game. Would be glad to hear from other cities having junior teams.

Not much to be seen of Foreman O'Hara these days since the new automobile dock has been completed. He is out and hustling for business as the present facilities will put our line ahead of any in the city.

The Veteran delivery clerk Charles Ball, found it necessary to take a leave of absence for 90 days account of ill health. We all hope for his speedy recovery and return to work.

To Harry Robison we extend our sympathy account of the recent injury to his wife and son, Mrs. Robison's injury proving fatal.

Culley Zimmerman, the local champion horse-shoe player, was disqualified in the International Contest because of his rolling the horse-shoes instead of pitching them the regulation distance above the ground. When the boy grows up he will be a wonder.

Inspection of fire equipment at Clarke Avenue shows the real efforts and trademark of Fire Marshall Callahan—everything found to be 100 per cent.

Delivery Clerk Thomas Brennan is the proud father of a future railroad agent for the Baltimore and Ohio. Best of wishes.

In the next issue of the MAGAZINE we expect to have a picture of Sarah Connelly sitting on the family milking stool doing her Saturday chores on their new "Hup." Surprising how farm implements can be adjusted to present city requirements.

"Duke" informs us that cranking our "Hup" is more laborious than making inspections for the weighing bureau—but all is fair in war and —?—.

Father Time McGinley has taken a change of heart and no longer objects to bobbed haired blondes.

Anna May Miller has returned after an extensive trip through the east—and single.

The most popular recent addition to the station force is "Alex" Kantshut, who has recently been promoted from the freight house platform to the Agent's Office. His previous newspaper experience should be helpful in keeping you advised on all current events of interest to the department. Following will be found his observations while making the trip from Cleveland to Cincinnati and return on the recent Galloway-Fries Celebration, including Pullman frolic and conduct at the park.

As Reported by Alex

On both ways of the journey all the young folks had a wonderful time, enjoyed the music, lunch and snappy stories of the party. Dr. Saylor and John Freeland had sleep permits attached to their Pullman tickets,

FORD runs 57 MILES on GALLON of GASOLINE

A new automatic and self regulating device has been invented by John A. Stransky, 286 Fourth St., Pukwana, South Dakota, with which automobiles have made from 40 to 57 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It removes all carbon and prevents spark plug trouble and overheating. It can be installed by anyone in five minutes. Mr. Stransky wants agents and is willing to send a sample at his own risk. Write him today.—Adv.

but failed to turn them over to the conductor, and as the result the permits were not used and they are now expecting a refund.

"Bill" Carpel was not annoyed by the responsibility of taking care of a life sized doll won upon his arrival at Chester Park. Louise Bayonette qualified very well as nurse and can be recommended. During the night the care of the baby annoyed some of the passengers.

Lower eight was used but little for sleep, the all night prowlers using it for headquarters. In the next issue of the MAGAZINE will be found many "Smoker" stories for your attention as they were issued periodically during the night, only however, after being censored.

To Mary Friedel was assigned the entertaining of the veterans and many compliments have since been received telling how well she succeeded.

J. P. Leingang is lucky in that a doctor was on the train. He attempted to shave with a corn razor and with not very cheerful results.

"Gertie" Totten and Thomas O'Hara apparently enjoyed the ride but could not be found among the many spectators at the park.

Among those who were notified several times to keep off the rear platform were Lydia Guhl and "Tomnie" Breha, and we all wonder why.

It was nice of "Bill" to come to the rescue when Agnes found that she had lost the key to her travelling bag.

Geraldine and Agnes enjoyed the privilege of a regulation berth but suggest that the new models should afford more space.

On the bulletin board at Chester Park appeared a notice of one Olivia Dietrick with two children having been lost in the park. Later bulletin will appear in the next issue.

Our girls sure do know how to dress for midnight promenades, the display was such as we usually only see in department store windows. We all hope another celebration will be scheduled soon.

Through the binoculars on the Caterpillar was seen "Our Elsie" and "Art," but not so bad for a windy day.

"Tom" O'Hara has not yet been able to explain how some unidentified wearing apparel was found in his berth.

Look for "Alex's" report of observations next month.

The Maiden Journey on Lake Erie of the Cruiser "Sadie B"

"Sadie B" is the name of the cute little gasoline launch recently acquired, owned, operated and piloted by General Foreman C. A. Burdge.

With much interest the entire shop force looked forward to the maiden journey. All

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

THE BUCK-EYE STATE PRODUCES PRETTY GIRLS, LOYAL EMPLOYES AND FINE STOCK

were invited and a licensed pilot engaged for the trip, however, the sea going pilot disappointed and Mr. Burdge assumed the role of pilot, unconsciously taking with him the crank of his Chevrolet. What he hoped to do with this crank, nobody has been able to learn. The entire squad hurried to the dock in anticipation of a journey to Canada. The register showed the following:

Storekeeper Grafton assumed the duties of first assistant in trouble as has been his practice in pleasure.

Boiler Foreman George Duffy was next in line with tow line in one hand and goggles in the other.

Electrician Julius Kish, a nice boy, busy every minute but nothing to do.

Machinist Helper "Mickey" Steiner, fully equipped with binoculars resembling head-lights, insisted on telling what the girls think of him when he is dressed up.

Hostler "Art" Long—was true to his name.

Locomotive Inspector C. A. Long—"Art's" brother but not so long.

Boilermaker J. R. Keely displayed his usual array of gold and again repeated his resolution never again to get in the way of a flying engine spring when dismantling.

Boilermaker E. Fish—just another one of the fish on board.

Pipe Fitter Malasky became seasick—and said less.

Machinist "Minnie" McBride did no promenading and was compelled to stay in the center of the boat to keep it balanced.

Shop Clerk Jindea was there but the rough sea would not permit of his entertaining the crew with his popular rag time numbers.

There were several more invited but due to family objections or their insurance payments being in the arrears, they did not have the courage to make the trip. In fact, everybody on board worked hard and did no loafing, trusting to the worthy Skipper Burdge to steer with safety.

Well friends, with the crew of eleven worthy sailors, we glided past the breakwater, only to notice that all hands had left their posts and grabbed life preservers, except the worthy skipper. All trust in him had for the minute been lost as the result of his sudden listing and turning. It was a pitiful sight, but McBride was ordered to another location and all was well. At about this time a quantity of dead fish was seen to arise in the vicinity of the boat and who knows but what they were suddenly killed by the shock of the actions of "Sadie B."

At last a quiet sea was found and on and on we sailed, relying on "Mickey's" binoculars for a range finder. Grafton displayed a feeling of desiring to return to the proximity of the landscape as the sun went down. When nightfall had come upon this faithful crew it was found that they had overlooked installing a compass and again "Mickey" saved the day with his powerful lenses and warned of all impending dangers. The full complement of equipment, including banners, lights, klaxon horn, steamboat whistle and fog horn were put to use on the return journey, but sufficient reason did not develop to use the "Distress Bell."

Charlie was heard to whisper, "never again," and the skipper acquired another wrinkle, and when the last man set foot on shore again, they all repeated the slogan "All for one and one for all," but mother earth we do love you. "Sadie B," with her bright colors and war paint, is enough to make any man fall for her and their should be no trouble to get a full crew of new applicants for her next journey.

On the following day there was noted on form 1150—"Sadie B condemned."

Officer H. A. Malone exemplified in an original manner his interest in preventing trespassing upon the railroad tracks in the vicinity of Columbia Heights, near Massillon, Ohio, by school children. The opening of school, Harry was seen at this point morning and evening warning school children of the dangers and insisting that they use the public overhead foot bridge a short distance away in preference to taking a short cut across railroad property. Fewer trespassers have been noticed at this place recently and it is evident that by educating the school children to start the season right, much constructive work was done in the interest of "Safety First." It is hoped that all employees along line of road display the same interest early in the school season.

Lorain, Ohio

Correspondent, F. W. HARMON

Demurrage Clerk Don Campbell, driving through the Village of Elyria, nine miles south of Lorain in the evening of September 3rd., was arrested for speeding. He called up John Drenan, but John answered he did not know him. Poor Don and his Ford coupe! Maybe they will remember to Cross Crossings Cautiously hereafter.

The Baltimore and Ohio Freight Office employees played indoor baseball against the Lake Terminal Railroad on September 5, our boys winning by a score of 17 to 1. The game was won by the good pitching of our genial chief clerk, J. L. McDaniel.

Cashier Jack Cooper is now taking his wife out every evening in Michigan.

Chicago Division

Correspondent, GERTRUDE G. CROW

On Thursday evening, September 13, the "selects" of the Baltimore and Ohio office, consisting of the Misses Theresa Schunk, Margaret Hammers, Meta Grischke, Alma Grischke, Vesta Marvin, Clarice Horn, Jane Ellen Hart and Messrs. U. O. Michaels, R. E. Miller, L. E. Grove, D. Haffner, Ernest Crow, George Dean, Coe Van Lear, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Babbitt, were out for a "hot dog" supper at Five Points, but the gentle fall of rain prevented. The girls, not to be daunted by the rain, led by Miss Horn, "gang foreman," went to the home of Mrs. L. Hart, where the sound of railroad whistles could not be heard, and the "hot dogs" and coffee were devoured.

The rest of the evening the "gang" entertained themselves with music, Bunco and Bridge.

There is a story of the dusky lady, narrated by Mac in the Rock Island "Argus," who went into a drug store and asked for a cent's worth of insect powder. "But that isn't enough to wrap up," objected the drug clerk.

"Man," exclaimed the dark lady, "I ain't asked you to wrap it up. Jes' blow it down my back."—Exchange.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

SENSATIONAL SALE

GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS
 Limited quantity fully guaranteed standard make typewriters. Five Days Free Trial. Lowest prices ever offered. Easy monthly payments. Send today for FREE booklet of Valuable Typewriter Information and Special Sale Bulletin.

SMITH TYPEWRITER SALES CO.
 291-260 E. Grand Ave. Chicago, Ill.

Sell Shirts

Sell Madison "Better-Made" Shirts, Pajamas, and Nightshirts direct from our factory to wearer. Nationally advertised. Easy to sell. Exclusive patterns. Exceptional values. No experience or capital required. Large steady income assured. Entirely new proposition. WRITE FOR FREE SAMPLES.

MADISON SHIRT CO., 603 B'way, N.Y. City

Newark Division

Correspondent, B. A. OATMAN

Newark Station

We are pleased to record the activity of Passenger Brakeman J. C. Woolford, who is one of those quiet fellows, never making much noise but on the job every minute just the same. Even with close observation it is some job to detect "J. C." doing any of his business solicitation, as he detests publicity, but we have the goods on him this time. He was commended by the division superintendent and of course we were right on hand to get the dope. Here is one of the jobs just completed by Mr. Woolford. On the morning of September 9, while he was conversing with a passenger on train en route from Barnesville to Cleveland, Ohio, he learned that the party had been ticketed via Columbus and competing line. Mr. Woolford advised the passenger that his trip could be shortened by purchasing tickets over the Baltimore and Ohio. The passenger, pleased with the suggestion, surrendered two tickets via competing line and bought two on our line. This little affair increased the Baltimore and Ohio revenue considerably. Mr. Woolford has been thanked by Superintendent Kruse for his personal interest and courtesy to the traveling public.

We are also pleased to mention the solicitation made by Welder Operator C. O. Compton, Newark, Ohio, who secured five passengers for the Washington, D. C. tour via the Baltimore and Ohio. Mr. Compton has been given a letter of appreciation by Superintendent Kruse.

CROSSINGS ARE STILL DANGEROUS PLACES. LOCOMOTIVES ARE SO MUCH LARGER THAN AUTOMOBILES THAT THERE IS NOT MUCH CHANCE FOR AN AUTOMOBILE TO MAKE MUCH OF AN IMPRESSION ON THE LOCOMOTIVE SPEEDING ACROSS THE ROADWAYS OF THE COUNTRY. USE COMMON SENSE AT THE CROSSINGS.

We are always glad to give credit for good deeds done by the employees of the Baltimore and Ohio. A few days ago we saw an article in one of the local daily papers, The American Tribune, who has the interests of the Baltimore and Ohio and its employees at heart always. It read as follows:

"The following tribute to the kindly thoughtfulness of a colored man was sent to The American Tribune. 'About eleven-fifty-five on the night of August 20 a freight train, in passing Shields Street, in some way picked up and threw a huge plank across the other track. A colored man in an auto, waiting for the train to pass, left his machine

In the picture on the opposite page are—

1. Round House Foreman Fleming with his prize stock.
2. "Our Mary" preferred to remain at the switch board rather than enter the National Beauty Contest.
3. Agnes McHugh, Stenographer to General Foreman, "The Titan Beauty."
4. Assistant Foreman L. K. Smith, Lake Warehouse, Cleveland. Why so serious? Well, he's just married.
5. Cleveland employees and families who attended the Galloway-Fries celebration.
6. Passenger Repairman C. R. Smith and J. M. Mench at Eagles Lake.
7. The Cleveland Hump Crew. Left to right: A. L. Greaves, J. M. Burgansky, Conductor W. L. Hennen, H. L. Thoman, Engineer Jos. Fisher, Fireman L. C. McCord; L. E. Wits and William Lambert.
8. T. L. Rowe with his family at their summer home on Lake Erie.
9. Pat Carnahan enjoys life with his friends and dragged the plank to one side. He then asked for the use of a phone nearby and reporting the matter to the dispatcher, then left. When told that his act was a kind one, as a passenger train might have struck the plank and caused an accident, he said that there was no danger as there were no more passenger trains until next morning."

Following this up we finally located the guilty party, who is on our pay rolls as Charles Jones, janitor at the Freight House at Newark, Ohio.

Mr. Jones entered service at Newark,

Ohio, Freight House, October 7, 1916 as truckman, transferred to Baggage Room Passenger Station, Newark, then returned to his former location at Freight House, and was later made janitor.

He has always had the Company's interest at heart, and a check of his actions in the past reveals the fact that he is always alert to conditions, which if not attended to at once might result in damage to Company's property and perhaps loss of life. Some of his acts of the past are recorded as follows: Crossing bridge, West End, Newark Yards, noticed front trucks of an engine climbing rail, signaled engineer to stop just in time to prevent tearing up the tracks and derailling the engine. Discovered broken rail in track A-6, reported at once. Removed timbers at crossing, east side, passenger station; same had been pulled up by passenger engine going out on train 49.

Mr. Jones is to be highly commended for his watchfulness. "Charlie," as the boys call him, is always on the job and seriously too, but he is just like a great many of our loyal employes who do such acts continuously and shun any publicity, thinking such acts are merely a part of their duty.

LIVE WIRES FROM A LIVE-WIRE DIVISION

1. The Freight House force, Mansfield, Ohio. 2. Evelyn, three-year-old daughter of Operator William Heimlich, Black Lick. 3. C. R. Stone, our Mansfield correspondent and his family. 4. Faithful Charles Jones, Newark Freight House. 5. Frank Cole and a friend, Accounting Department, Newark, in balmy Florida. 6. Mrs. John Donaldson and Miss Laverne Seymour. 7. Conductor S. Thomas and his little grand-child, Columbus, Ohio. 8. Mr. Thomas' daughter. 9. Two more grand-children of Conductor Thomas

A CAREFUL EMPLOYEE IS A VALUABLE ASSET. THE CAREFUL MAN NEVER GETS HURT ON ACCOUNT OF LACK OF KNOWLEDGE OF THE SAFETY RULES BUT THE CARELESS EMPLOYEE IS OFTEN THE MEANS OF CAUSING DISTRESS AND PERSONAL INJURY TO THE OTHER FELLOW. WHY NOT EDUCATE THE CARELESS EMPLOYEE BY CONVINCING HIM THAT HIS WAYS ARE DANGEROUS FOR THOSE AROUND HIM?

Our "Arthur" D. List is now lost among the tall trees, we know not where, but the squirrels do. Following his annual custom, "Art" has passed up the handling of locomotive failures and has traveled far to locate the cunning little squirrels.

"STOPPING THE LEAK" HAS BECOME SO DEEPLY IMBEDDED IN OUR MINDS THAT IT WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE TO EVER BE SO WASTEFUL AGAIN. THIS IS AS IT SHOULD BE. WHY SHOULD WE BE WASTEFUL WITH THE OTHER FELLOW'S PROPERTY? THE LOSS IS PAID OUT OF THE TREASURY FROM WHICH OUR PAY COMES. NOTHING LIKE KEEPING THE FINANCES IN GOOD SHAPE FOR THAT RAINY DAY!

We do not feel like taking space for comments on the Western Line Veterans' Picnic, for this was well taken care of by the MAGAZINE staff at the picnic, but we must say that it was SOME PICNIC and if you failed to attend, you missed a REAL GOOD TIME. It was a regular reunion, well handled by the Committee in charge.

It is gratifying to note the progress that is being made by both Eastern and Western Lines in the way of increasing Car Miles. If you will refer to tabulated statement in August issue of the MAGAZINE you will find that the Eastern and Western Lines are running about neck and neck, the Eastern Lines having a shade the best of the race. The result of co-operation in all departments stands out prominently in the tabulated statement. Without a doubt the Management is pleased with the progress that has been made and all employees who had to do with the making of this record should feel proud that they were instrumental in helping make this campaign a success. Our goal is not yet reached, our figure was set at "40," but with the benefit of past experience and the results obtained by all pulling together we should all enter into this campaign with renewed vigor and we will be able to say, in the near future, that we have by team work put another big campaign across.

DO NOT FORGET WE HAVE SET OUR MARK AT 40. WE INTEND TO MAKE IT!

You no doubt have noticed that each copy of the MAGAZINE carries a Prospective Business Post Card. Have you stopped to read the card or have you just carelessly tossed it away? If you will be kind enough to take a good look at this little card, you will find that putting it into use will be the means of adding to the revenue of the Baltimore and Ohio, and since you are one of the essential parts of this great organization, don't you think that it would be sensible for you to get this little card into circulation instead of throwing it away? Think this over! Your help will be appreciated.

Accounting Department

Correspondent, R. T. GEORGE

Ralph Cook took up a correspondence course in Higher Accounting, and recently a representative of the school called on Ralph to find out the cause of his not turning in the answers to his lessons. It developed that Ralph had become interested in Radio and had bought himself a first class outfit!

One of the accompanying photographs is of Mrs. John Donaldson, formerly Miss Mary Gainey of the Division Accountant's force, and Miss Laverne Seymour of the Division Superintendent's Office.

Edward Ryan and Robert Fulton have resigned their positions. "Ed" is taking up a course in Electrical Engineering at Cincinnati and "Rob" has returned to Denison University to complete his studies in music.

"Heinie" Reichert, the "Triple-jointed feller," whose photograph appeared in the last issue, is the official Scout Master of Troop 1, Boy Scouts of America. "Heinie" now spends his evenings, coaching the boys' football team, in preparation for the coming game with the Granville High School. "Heinie" would like to play a position on the team, but he is just a wee bit too light.

The Ohio convention of the American Legion, was held in Springfield, Ohio, from September 8 to September 11, inclusive, with an attendance of 5000, which included visitors. The American Legion was represented by 715 delegates and about 30 members while the auxiliary was represented by 300 delegates and about 100 members.

The Baltimore and Ohio was represented at the Convention, and the Legion and Auxiliary was presented with the program of the Legion's Ohio Special to the National Convention at San Francisco, via Baltimore and Ohio. This matter was taken up and met with the approval of those present. The outlook for a special car from Newark looks very favorable, but at the present writing, it is not completely filled.

At the Springfield Convention, Thomas Snyder, of this office, was selected as a National Delegate to San Francisco. It is estimated that there will be between 500 and 700 go to Frisco, using the Baltimore and Ohio to Chicago. Mr. E. W. Gettrost, Chairman of the State Transportation Committee of the Legion for the Ohio Special, says that it's going to be a huge success. The following is the itinerary of the Ohio Special from Chicago. Leaving Chicago, October 9, at 11.00 p. m., the Ohio Special will transfer to the Chicago and North Western to Omaha, then via Union Pacific to Denver. Here the Special will remain for half a day, allowing the visitors a sightseeing trip over the city, then leave Denver over the Denver and Rio Grande to Colorado Springs, affording a trip to Pike's Peak, then through the Royal Gorge to Salt Lake City. The train will remain here for a seven hour sight seeing trip, then taking the Western Pacific to San Francisco, where the Pullmans will be parked for five days. After the Convention, the Ohio Special will leave over the Southern Pacific coast route to Los Angeles, where cars will be parked for two days, allowing the visitors to go to Hollywood, the home of the movies, the Beaches, Mountains and other points of interest. The Special will return East via Santa Fe, stopping at Williams, Ariz., and from there a trip will be made to the Grand Canyon, staying there one day and then return to Kansas City, Chicago and home.

There will also be a special car for the Ladies Auxiliary to the American Legion,

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

$1.00 BRINGS YOU This Famous Illinois BUNN SPECIAL

Most remarkable watch offer ever made! Simply send me $1.00 with your name and address—that's all.

No Red Tape No Delay

We'll send this famous six position—21 Jewel Illinois Bunn Special, guaranteed to pass railroad inspection—for 30 days Free Trial. Take four full weeks to test this remarkable timekeeper under any and all conditions. If satisfied, pay only $5.65 a month until you have paid only $57.50—Regular cash selling price. Otherwise return it and we will refund your dollar. Only a limited number sold on this plan—Rush your dollar TODAY.

FREE Send today for a copy of our introductory catalog. America's Best Values in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry—PAY-AS-YOU-PLEASE. Your own terms within reason. Address Dept. M3000

O.F. Bale & Co. EST. 1888
21-23 Maiden Lane New York

leaving Ohio to Chicago, via Baltimore and Ohio.

The accompanying photograph of Frank Cole and a friend, was taken in California this summer, where Frank spent his vacation. Frank, being the custodian of the records, says that he knows the exact number of ties used by the Santa Fe between Chicago and Los Angeles.

Columbus, Ohio

Correspondents, R. KENNETT and EDITH ROACH

With regret we announce the death of Donald Fralinger, age five, son of Jessie Fralinger, our car record clerk, who was struck and instantly killed by an automobile near his home on August 23. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved mother.

Operator O. A. Finley, East Columbus, has secured a 90 day leave of absence and has gone to Colorado for his health. We hope the trip will be of much benefit to him.

Born to Chief Yard Clerk Harry Bordon and wife, on August 28, a 10 pound son. Mother and baby are both doing well. Congratulations!

We extend our sympathy to Engineer Thomas Hannigan and family in the recent loss of his mother.

Operator Aumiller Heath, has resumed duty after being absent some time because of injuries received in a fall while on duty, breaking his wrist.

Operator Mick has resumed duty after being absent about 30 days account of sickness.

Engineer Herbert S. Brown has resumed duty after a three months absence because of injuries received while on duty. Glad to see him among us again.

Owing to considerable sickness on the division quite a few of the operators have been doubling here of late. No doubt Trainmaster Broughton would like to hear that old familiar song—"Yes, we have no overtime today."

The accompanying pictures are of Conductor S. Thomas, his daughter and grandchildren of Columbus, also of Evelyn, daughter of Operator William Heimlich, Black Lick.

"Joe" Bassoni has left the local office to join the ranks of the Division Freight Office as secretary to Division Freight Agent Kendall at Newark.

Thirty-six employees, some with their families, attended Galloway-Fries Day at Cincinnati, August 23.

Walter Abrogast and wife were called to Springfield, by the sudden death of Mr. Abrogast's father on August 20.

We are sorry to announce the death of the mother of J. R. Jones on August 15.

Glad to see Marie Brink back on the Rate Desk after a much needed rest.

Mary Connell received the position of utility clerk, vice "Joe" Bassani. For the past five years she has been in the Billing Department. We know she has left us in name only.

We welcome Miss Martina Folley into the Baltimore and Ohio Family as stenographer.

At this writing "Tim" Payne is still on the sick list. Hope for his speedy recovery.

Jessie Fralinger desires to thank those who so willingly contributed to a purse given her by employees during her recent sorrow.

Mansfield, Ohio

Correspondent, C. R. STONE

C. F. Parks, supervising agent, recently spent the day with us in inspecting the work and routine. Fred is a fine fellow and we are always glad to see him.

C. D. Douglas, district freight agent, Cincinnati, was in the city today to call on old and new friends. "Doug." is popular at Mansfield and we certainly enjoyed seeing him. We well remember the time when this office was stricken with influenza, and how Douglas came in and helped us out. Good luck to you, Douglas, old man.

C. D. Smoots, car demurrage man from Mr. Malone's Office, recently spent a few

ON THE OHIO DIVISION

1 and 2. Engine 2617 ready for exhibition at the Kentucky State Fair. 3. Daisy Ramona, age 3, niece of Electrical Foreman H. A. Dixon and granddaughter of Operator Thomas Dixon, Blanchester. 4. The main line, near Hamden, Ohio. 5. Train No. 3 arriving at Hamden, Ohio days with us checking the car situation. Smoots is a good scout.

A. R. Bird, the popular yard conductor, first trick, is the proud father of a nice baby girl. Amsey says she looks just like him. Congratulations, Amsey, old boy.

The second part of the half million dollar improvement being made by the Baltimore and Ohio was recently completed by George B. Herring and Son, Contractors. The tracks placed in use by the Railroad today consist of additional trackage and extension of the yards on North Walnut Street. The previous capacity of the team tracks was for the accommodation of 18 cars a day while the increased capacity will allow 36 cars to be unloaded during a single day. There are a number of coal dealers in this city who will take advantage of this additional privilege, not having tracks or yards of their own. We all trust in the Office that business conditions in the near future will warrant the building of the proposed new freight house and office. While plans are on file no definite date has been set for this part of the improvement program.

Do not forget the Careful Crossing Campaign and Cross Crossings Cautiously. A good many tourists have signs on their machines saying "Half Of the Road is Yours." Another appropriate sign would be "Remember, Half of the Road is Yours but the Crossings Belong to the Railroads." A person speeding to beat a locomotive to a crossing is not so daring as he looks. He is simply crazy and should have his license taken away from him when he shows such little respect for himself and particularly for his loved ones. Obey the signs: STOP, LOOK AND LISTEN and then CROSS CROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY and you will feel better in mind and spirit.

Marietta, Ohio

Correspondent, G. R. STEEN

We would like our "FAIR" waybill clerk to explain some of her actions with a certain conductor on No. 11. Looks pretty serious.

"Joey, Joey, where have you been?" "I've been to London (Ohio) to visit my queen." "Joey, Joey, what did you there?" "I kissed her lips, and she said that she did not care."

Speaking of car lengths, "Mud" says "Yes sir, she's a 38 ft. car outside and 40 ft. inside," and he repeated it three times.

Ohio Division

Correspondent, A. E. ERICH

Haphazard, intermittent effort seldom brings success, but a definite plan persistently pursued almost always wins out. Keep at it persistently. SAVE Fuell INCREASE Car Miles!

Travis Whorton, yard clerk, has signed the life contract "for better, for worse." Best wishes!

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Frederick, brakeman and wife, announce the arrival of a baby boy, Dilmore Roy. Congratulations!

We are glad to report that Dan O'Leary, yard conductor, who had one of his fingers badly contused, making amputation necessary, is able to be on the job again.

We have been wondering when a certain clerk of the division accountant's force, is going to line up before the parson and say "I do," "yes," etc. Our advice to him is that he had better do it now, and apply the car fare to Columbus and special delivery postage on a little love nest.

Willard Valentine, who has been employed as clerk in the local freight office, has resigned to enter on his third year in Ohio Wesleyan University.

LeRoy Jackson, section foreman, had a ten and one-half pound boy left at his home. We know at some later time this young man will be just as good a section foreman as his father. He has been named LeRoy, Jr.

The following letter was received by Superintendent Carothers:

Columbus, Ohio
September 4, 1923

Mr. J. B. Carothers, Superintendent
Baltimore and Ohio Railroad
Chillicothe, Ohio

Dear Sir:

"On September third I took my two boys to Midland City, en route to Fayetteville, to school. One of my boys left a package on the station truck. No one missed it, and when we returned to take the 3.44 train to Columbus, a Mr. Plumly, your agent at Midland City, had taken charge of this package, and in some way figured out to whom it belonged. He returned the package, and also gave us paper and string, that we might mail it.

"It is everyone's duty to be honest, but this young man exerted himself in every way to find and return this package to the owner, and I feel it my duty to let you know.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Dr. F. L. GRUBER."

Agent Plumly always treats patrons in a courteous way and does everything possible to assist them. He always keeps a clean station, and is trying to put Midland City on the map as a station. The above mentioned letter speaks for itself, and further inquiry developed that this man was well pleased toward the Baltimore and Ohio in general by this act on the part of Mr. Plumly. The package returned were some gifts to these boys that they were to enjoy during their school year.

John Kuhn, machinist helper, and Miss Bessie Roush were recently married. Congratulations!

J. M. Fettes, who has just recently been employed as fireman, decided to take another step, laid off and "got married." Good wishes and congratulations!

Miss Bertha Streitenberger, stenographer to chief clerk in Superintendent's Office, while enjoying her vacation, also enjoyed the privilege of becoming "Aunt Bertha" to a young man born to her sister Mrs. Otto Ringwald. Congratulations!

The accompanying photographs show engine 2617, all ready to start on its trip for exhibition at the Kentucky State Fair at Louisville, Ky., where the old and new in the way of Baltimore and Ohio Engines will be exhibited side by side. This engine was prepared, with black, gold and silver paint, and given a thorough "going over" at Chillicothe Shops. Engineer E. O. Brown is seen standing beside this engine, he being the engineer at the throttle out of Chillicothe. The famous "Atlantic" will be shown in comparison with engine 2617, showing the 100 years difference between the two engines. Photographs taken by H. A. Dixon, electrical foreman.

Safety Secretary Says:

Stop a minute before undertaking a dangerous task or before you step on a track and then listen for another second and you'll not get hurt.

Watch your step. Falls cause a good many accidents.

Don't work with a man you've asked again and again to stop an unsafe practice.

Kicking couplers has caused many a kicker to be lost forever.

Toledo Division

Correspondent, C. E. THRASHER

Notice has been given that Cupid is on the alert again. This time it was Robert A. J. Morrison, assistant trainmaster, who was pierced with the dart. The lucky lady is Dorothy Pierce. Cupid didn't tell us much this time but we are expecting later developments as to the date, eats, what the bride wore, etc., in another issue. Congratulations, "Bob!"

Born to Assistant Division Engineer and Mrs. Elmore an eight pound baby girl, Martha Ann, August 29. Congratulations, Mr. Elmore! This was one grand surprise. We have been wondering what we would do to meet the demand for stenographers. Now we are hopeful of one from Mr. Elmore's family in the next twenty years.

We notice a new face in Agent Hockett's office. Her name is Miss Wise. Be careful boys, don't crowd, she may know more than you do. But what we started to say is did you ever notice the grin on "Doc" Snyder's face about 4.30 in the afternoon when he has a stack of them to rate?

Our old friend, "Lou" Colbert, agent, Lima, "blew into" town a few days ago, for the Freight Claim prevention meeting. "Lou" should respect the right's of a seven ton truck and not try and shove it off the street. There goes the price of another suit of clothes.

We are told that our popular depot foreman, E. A. Hamilton, and our prima donna claim clerk, Mary Connell, spent Galloway-Fries Day at Chester Park. They went on all of the amusement devices, ate lots of peanuts and popcorn and went over to the Zoo in the evening and had dinner with their friends. Better look out, "Eddie," someone is going to get you yet!

Harry Heilman, chief clerk to trainmaster, has purchased a beautiful five room bungalow. They are as happy as two turtle doves!

If you want to know who is champion bowler of Ohio ask Harry Schoenberger. O. T. Duellner is giving him a run for his money. In about another month we will be able to hold a match between these two stars.

Dayton, Ohio

William Ireland, depot foreman, Dayton, has passed the twenty-fifth milestone in his career with our Company. The following tribute has been prepared by our local poet, who has been a co-worker of Mr. Ireland's for many years.

A Good Man Won't Stay Down

One morning many years ago,
When a tall and rugged youth
Told the boss he wanted work,
He surely told the truth.

His name is William Ireland,
(But better known as "Bill"),
He started in that morning,
And he's with the Company still.

He commenced down at the bottom,
But there he would not stop,
He climbed the ladder step by step
A-climbing toward the top.

To the Company he's been faithful,
And will be to the end,
He's loyal to the public,
He's everybody's friend.

That youth who started with a truck,
So many years ago,
Is now a general foreman,
For the mighty B. and O.

WILLIAM IRELAND, DAYTON
See note, preceding page

Bodkins—"And such beautiful eyes! Why, man, her eyes shine as clear as crystal."

Radio Fan—"I don't care so much for those crystal sets."

—Judge

East Dayton, Ohio

Correspondent, EDWARD M. MANNIX

In behalf of the Dayton branch of the Baltimore and Ohio Family, we desire to express our appreciation to the committee having in charge the "Galloway-Fries Celebration" at Cincinnati, August 23. It was surely a big day, and the occasion will be long remembered by those in attendance.

Our old friend, Charles Lough, until recently a machinist at the East Dayton shops, has taken up quarters at Fairmont, W. Va., with the Railroad in the capacity of roundhouse foreman. Good luck, "Charlie," old boy, we predict success for you!

Our young hustling storekeeper, C. Appenzellar, second trick, came in the other day running rings around himself. Cause? A big Boy arrived at his home on September 1. Just then "Johnnie" Parker, machinist,

Miss Maude Veidt, former Secretary to Mr. Warburton. We know George Aring will be glad to see this picture

Fred'k W. Nellis,
DRY GOODS, NOTIONS AND FURNISHINGS
Bell Telephone East 291J.
1943 E. 3rd Street, Opp. Linden Avenue

BALLMAN BROS.
COMMUNITY STORE
Have always welcomed Baltimore and Ohio Families
THIRD AND FINDLAY STREETS

sprang the same story to his wife. After investigation we found both stories true, smoked a couple of good cigars on each, wished them bundles of luck. Two more Baltimore and Ohio prospects!

The biggest boob I ever knew, and I suppose you know him too,
Is he who never counts the loss of trying to beat the train across.

Dayton employees will enjoy this

At this writing there flashes over the wire the glad news that our master mechanic, Alfred E. McMillan, is promoted to general master mechanic, Wheeling, W. Va. His selection proves the wisdom of our Executives, as Mr. McMillan possesses the qualifications so essential in such an important position. Our hearts go with him, and may he write "SUCCESS" in big letters.

Engineer Harry Franks has promised some more "news" for the MAGAZINE.

How about Traffic Tips, as suggested by Superintendent A. A. Iams? Done anything yet? Just get that word "can't" out of your system. Jump right in and do something. Remember the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad ships from most anywhere to everywhere. Ask your merchants to request their next shipment over the Baltimore and Ohio—that helps the Company and helps you.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Cut by courtesy of Toledo, Ohio, "News-Bee"

FRANK SWINEART

A homecoming celebration was held at North Baltimore, Ohio, October 9, 10 and 11, at which Mr. Swineart was guest of honor. He was conductor of the first train running into North Baltimore, fifty years ago.

Lima, Ohio

Correspondent, O. L. WALLBURG

Our photograph this month shows what the Relief Department will help you to do. It is the home of Agent L. B. Colberts, purchased with the help of the Loan Feature. Doesn't this pretty home make you want to own one yourself? The Relief Department will show you how you can do it if you will write them.

Lima at Galloway-Fries Day

Yes, we were all at the picnic at Chester Park, Cincinnati, Ohio, and so were thousands of others from all over the System, from Baltimore, St. Louis, Chicago and all the divisions between these points. Twenty special trains into Chester Park, about 200 coaches and 25,000 people.

It was reported that the Toledo Division was the only one that had a baggage car filled with refreshments attached to their special train coming and going, the addition of the baggage car being due to the forethought and diligence of Trainmaster C. W. Havens, Lima, Ohio. I doubt very much if any one from any other Division enjoyed the trip as much as those on the Toledo Division did that day. That day will stand out on the calendar for days, months and years as the one big day of 1923 on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. Was that not a wonderful demonstration of good fellowship when nearly all the officers and employes of this railroad spent a day forgetting everything and thoroughly enjoying themselves together.

Home of Agent L. B. Colbert, Lima, Ohio, purchased through Relief Department

We on the Toledo Division have not experienced anything like it before—when the enjoyment of its employes was placed ahead of the operation of the railroad for one entire day by its Management. Further east they have gone through that experience and have come to look forward with interest to the next big time. In spite of that, do you know there were lots and lots of folks, who were skeptical about having special cars, much less special trains for their enjoyment. But we had them!

Did the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad get a boost from its employes and also from other people along the line? I'll say it did! When Deisel-Wemmer Company found out what a big time there was going to be, nothing would do but they had to give the men 500 cigars. Altschul Bros. gave the ladies oranges and F. J. Banta and Son Co. gave the children 600 sticks of candy. Lima has the reputation of being the best town in the state of Ohio, no matter where you go and why—just because of such thoughtful acts on the part of its merchants. More power to them to help make the city grow better and better! In addition to that the Veterans' Association, Toledo Division, through its officers at Lima, supplied the picnickers with pop and ice cream on the train going and coming.

While the kids were spending their time and dimes on the dinky train, the aeroplane, the caterpillar, the thriller and the dozen other amusements, the young people danced and flirted and the older folks were busy meeting someone they knew and had not seen for years. And how the time did fly. When you are busy, either working or playing, time goes fast. So it was at the picnic. The day was too short. What if some of us did not get home until after midnight. We'll brag about it in time as we'll boast about the Big Baltimore and Ohio Picnic at Chester Park, Cincinnati, on August 23, 1923.

As we have our joys, so also we have our sorrows. Brother William Overholtz, employed for many years in the shops at Lima and a member of the Veterans' Association, passed to his eternal rest on August 30. Our sympathy goes to his family and friends.

Brother Merl Evans left the hospital and has been at home for several weeks. He is able to be about with the aid of a crutch and cane. Mighty glad he won out.

Before I forget it, William Van Horn, president, John Sweeney, vice-president, F. E. Snyder, treasurer, John Schnabel, sergeant-at-arms and their secretary want to express their sincere appreciation of the invaluable services rendered by the Baltimore and Ohio twins (Koch Bros.), Albert W. Morton, Vincent Day and the young man from the stationery boiler room together with the many others who helped get the pop and ice cream through the train to and from the picnic. They helped splendidly and it surely was fine.

By the way, The Veterans' Association at Lima are giving a Card Party in Odd Fellows' Hall, Lima, Ohio on the 3rd

Wednesday evening in October. Refreshments and prizes! Everybody come! Remember October 17, 1923.

Wellston, Ohio

Correspondent, L. M. MASON

The little city of Wellston, located on the Baltimore and Ohio down in the hills of Jackson County, is staging a grand come back. Since being in the rut for the past few years, it is now expected that the mines will soon be shipping coal. Jackson County has as good coal as you can find any place, all that is needed is to get it on the market once again and the demand will be the biggest ever. During the World War more coal was shipped from this place than any other mining district of its size in the state of Ohio.

The revenue from the coal shipments from Wellston alone netted the Company in 1920 close to a million dollars, something few towns the size of Wellston can boast of. Wellston has three railroads, The Baltimore and Ohio, the Hocking Valley and the Detroit, Toledo and Ironton. Our Railroad gets most of the business, the coal operators like to do business with us, we treat them right and should boost their coal. Now if we employes ask the coal operator for his business, might he not say in return "boost our coal and we will give you our business!" Let's boost the Wellston Sub-division, we have the business to go after and to keep when we land it. Make our customers think there is no other Railroad! That is our policy!

Brakeman W. C. Endicott's children enjoy the sports at Mt. Gretna, Pa.

Our old friend "Johnnie" Walker, who hasn't missed drawing his pay check for 26 years, has decided that a vacation will do him good and with his family left October 1, to visit his brother in South Carolina.

J. C. Clarke, our popular bill clerk, is back on the job after spending three weeks in the hospital at Columbus, Ohio, for a minor operation. Glad you are back, "Jack," we need you!

We suggest that spanking machines be placed at all railroad crossings to induce some of the motorists who never get any better than second money, to slow down or stop.

Conductor Sweeney—"That child looks older than six years."

Mother (Confidentially)—"Sh-h-h, I know it. He's had an awful lot of trouble."

Many employes from here attended the Baltimore and Ohio picnic at Chester Park, all reporting a grand time.

A. E. McMillen, master mechanic, recently paid us a visit. W. B. Kilgore, trainmaster, was also here looking after business.

When corn is offered now-a-days as a piece-de-resistance, one of Wellston's best-known immediately inquires if it is on the cob or on the hip.

Motorist—"When I bought my car you agreed to supply broken parts for ninety days."

Dealer—"Sure, what do you want?"

Motorist—"One right hand shoulderblade, a left ear and five front teeth."

St. Louis Division

Correspondent, ALTO SMITH

Clarence Biel, bill clerk in Agent's Office at Louisville, Ky., decided that two could live as cheaply as one and has taken unto himself a wife—Miss Sylvia Schardein of Louisville. Congratulations!

In conjunction with the Purdue Extension University the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad operated a "Better Dairy Sire Special" over that part of the St. Louis Division between Cincinnati and Vincennes and North Vernon and Louisville. The train was operated from September 17 to 28 and made stops at stations between the points named. Talks were made on dairy farming and moving pictures were the program for the evening.

Elbert Berry, rate clerk in the Revision Bureau, Louisville, is the father of a boy, christened James Elbert. Were we to describe in detail just how Elbert Sr. feels it would take a whole issue of the MAGAZINE. H. H. Bonney, agent at Springer, is also a member of the Proud Parent Club, stork having left him a fine eight pound boy, named James Edwin.

We extend our sympathy to Lawrence Higgins, tally clerk in Agent's Office, Louisville, and his family, on the tragic death by drowning of his eldest son, James, age 12, in the Ohio River when taking a morning swim with three of his playmates.

When Engine 5101 on Train No. 23 broke guide yoke and bent piston and main rod at Sandoval on August 21, Engineer Kellams and Machinist J. O. Canary who were riding in the train, gave the engine crew valuable assistance in making repairs and saving a great deal of the delay to No. 23 that might have ensued.

Vacations in the Louisville Offices

Cashier and Mrs. T. W. Jocelyn, spent theirs in Chicago.

Lauren Owen, correction clerk, watched the water trickle over Niagara Falls.

Mrs. Leah McCoy, cash clerk, and daughter Carolyn, spent their two weeks vacation sightseeing in New England.

Martin Daugherty, utility clerk, spent his vacation visiting in Philadelphia and other eastern cities.

Casualties in the Storekeeper's Office, Shops, Indiana, are increasing rapidly. R. A. Isenogle (TUFF), accountant, and Mary Miller quietly slip away and become Mister and Missus, and now Mary has the office force respectfully call "TUFF", "Alva" and Alva admits he wasn't as "TUFF" as he thought. Right on their heels was Clyde R. Brown, stock clerk and Margaret Wallace, "Brownie" laying off on the plea of going to Olney and having his tonsils removed but getting off at Lawrenceville and having the marriage ceremony performed.

Louisville

The Dispatcher's Office, not to be outdone by the Storekeeper's Office, begs to announce the marriage of B. A. Phillips, chief dispatcher's clerk, which was kept secret until latter part of September, the wedding occurring in June. The other Benedict was T. R. Cox, dispatcher on the west end of the Illinois Sub-Division. Congratulations to all!

Martin Sergesketter, accountant, Louisville, is back on the job after a few days spent at home as result of a sprained ankle received in a game of volley ball.

Rumor has it that Nettie Berry and Mayme Zinkan, clerks in Storekeeper's Office, cast many a wistful glance at the movie magnates in Hollywood while spending their vacation in California. Could it be possible the ladies were going to shake us and be cinema actresses?

Guy Priestly, revision clerk, Louisville, has been granted a sixty day leave of absence on account of ill health and has motored to California. Miss Frances Rice has assumed the duties of revision clerk during his absence.

Miss Helen Patterson has accepted the position as general stenographer in Agent's Office, Louisville.

The accompanying picture shows the children of Brakeman W. C. Endicott having the time of their young lives on a vacation at Mt. Gretna, Penn., with their mother. "Bill" had the time of his young life trying to keep the dirty dishes down to a minimum while his family was gone.

On Rival Towns

Harry Hohmeyer, being from Pittsburgh, he doesn't like our city of Philadelphia at all. The other day he was over here and I asked him:

"Hohmeyer, what looks the best to you in Philadelphia?"

And he replied:

"The Baltimore and Ohio to Pittsburgh."

—Glass Blowers' Journal

Early Days in the Stationer's Office in Baltimore

By OSCAR F. FLIPPO, Signal Maintainer, Newark Division

I FIRST entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as a packer in the packing room of the stationery department at the old Camden Station. Thos. L. Wilcox was stationer; B. Dunham was general manager; A. Gordon Jones, assistant general manager, and J. C. (Jack) Broadus, who was so well known at Newark afterwards, was private secretary to Mr. Jones.

In the Stationer's Office were Invoice Clerk Theodore (Kid) Steeger and Edward Merrill, stenographer to Mr. Wilcox. The packers were "Daddy" Wharton, "Dutch" (forget his name), and myself.

I started to work on July 3, 1886. We did not receive much money but we certainly had lots of fun. Once Mr. Dunham came in and told Mr. Wilcox the Baltimore and Ohio had taken over the O. & M. R. R., with one hundred and twenty-five offices and that those stations had to be furnished with blank forms, these to leave Camden Station the next morning by nine o'clock. There were several blue flames in the office for a few minutes. Mr. Wilcox came into the packing room and told us what he was expected to do and called for volunteers to work all night, without extra pay. I was the only packer that was unfortunate enough not to have a skirt, so I was elected to work. We cleared off our wrapping tables and while "Kid" Steeger and "Ed" Merrill assembled the different blank forms, pencils, ink, pens, etc., "Tom" Wilcox and "Flip" did the wrapping, one to three bundles to the smaller stations and from ten to fifteen bundles to the larger stations. At twelve o'clock Mr. Wilcox said: "Flip, go over to Deatley's and have four dozen fried oysters with trimmings sent over." We took thirty minutes for lunch. At 4.30 a. m., the last bundle was thrown down the chute to the elevator.

I was promoted to assistant invoice clerk at a salary of thirty dollars per month. At that time the Baltimore and Ohio operated its own express, sleeping and dining cars. Shortly afterwards Mr. Wilcox was promoted to general baggage agent, and "Fred" Blizzard was made acting stationer. About September, 1887, if I am not mistaken, the Stationery Department was moved from Camden Station to the Baltimore and Ohio building, corner of Calvert and Baltimore Streets, under the supervision of Mr. Sullivan and we were all furloughed except the "Kid," Theodore

Steeger. I have often wondered if "Theo" ever married Caroline.*

I then went to Washington, D. C., and worked as a lumber clerk for Barber & Ross. I wrote to my old friend Jack Broadus, who was private secretary to R. T. Defries, superintendent, Newark Division. He sent me a pass to come at once. I arrived in Newark, Sunday, February 17, 1889. "Jack" informed me I was to work twelve hours per day weighing coal before dumping into the chutes and coaling engines at Schick's Mine just west of Bellaire, Ohio, under John W. Franklin, fuel agent.

Schick's Mine was operated at that time by "Gus" Schick and Richard Heslop. I was always treated as a son by both gentlemen. While coaling engines I became acquainted with a great many mighty fine gentlemen. Since then a good many have "gone west." I started work on February 19, 1889—"Payday"—as the pay car ran over the C. O. Division that day. I worked under Mr. Franklin 'til December 31, 1894, when I was again furloughed, account of a reduction of force. Was again called back into service as night leverman at Mt. Vernon Interlocker, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, on October 8, 1895. I worked at night 'til August, 1897, when I was advanced to day leverman as a result of the death of A. D. Flood.

J. A. Stierhoff was foreman of signals. His territory was all west of the Ohio River to Chicago. I was transferred to the Signal

The author, Oscar F. Flippo, and his grandson

Department on March 17, 1903. The signal gang then consisted of C. S. Stone, foreman; F. M. Willson, blacksmith and headman; W. A. Stump, carpenter, and myself as general helper. Our territory was the Newark Division and all its branches. We had a camp car; two-thirds of it was used for material and tools, the other third was our kitchen and bedroom. In the winter on extremely cold nights, one would stay up to keep the fire going, while the others would try to get some sleep on our grain door cots. What a difference in the camp cars for signalmen now!

I have served under the following signal supervisors: C. S. Stone, foreman; M. Fortney, A. B. Hines, who is now in the Baltimore office; W. D. Carroll, E. W. Dorsey, who is one of the successful real estate men in Newark, Ohio, and our present supervisor, H. H. Harding, who, one and all, are fine gentlemen.

I was made signal maintainer on April 1, 1907, on the Lake Erie Sub-Division. So, not counting the time I worked in Baltimore in the Stationery Department, I had served 34 years continuously on February 19, 1923.

The accompanying picture is of "Old and Young Flip." The latter is my grandson, "Jack" of whom I am proud.

I am a member of the Veteran Employees' Association, Newark Division, Newark, Ohio, and hold card No. 545, good until December 31, 1923.

*(Mr. Flippo: "Kid" Steeger is very much alive and kicking—as chief clerk to Ticket Supply Clerk J. E. Beatty, Baltimore and Ohio Building. He admits having had the inside track with Caroline—over you fellows—but finally decided he liked the name of "Clara" better.—Editor.)

Six Men

A WISE old student of human nature once laid down a good rule, which everyone should know.

"Never forget," he said, "that when you and another man get together the circle includes six people." The six he meant are:

The man you imagine you are.
The man the other fellow imagines you are.
The man you really are.
The man the other fellow imagines he is.
The man you imagine the other fellow is.
The man the other fellow really is.

A great amount of unnecessary friction between men can be avoided if we will give a little more thought to these three sides of each man and particularly to self.

THE MAN YOU IMAGINE YOU ARE is relatively unimportant—

THE MAN THE OTHER FELLOW IMAGINES YOU ARE has an immense bearing on the Cooperation he will extend to you but—

THE MAN YOU REALLY ARE is far more important to you and likewise to the other fellow than the other two.

THE MAN THE OTHER FELLOW IMAGINES HE IS is relatively unimportant.

THE MAN YOU IMAGINE THE OTHER FELLOW IS determines the cooperation you are likely to extend to him.

THE MAN THE OTHER FELLOW REALLY IS is of first importance both to him and to you.

Every human undertaking or association has a better chance for success when it is based on reality instead of imagination.

For this reason is it not always in the interest of each and all to be to the other fellow the man we really are?—American Educational Association.

Former Agent Tells of Small Town Agent's Work

By HARRY B. KIGHT, in Keyser, W. Va., "Tribune"

THE readers of the American Magazine read in the June issue of the experiences of the Station Master in the big Pennsylvania Station in New York and were thrilled by the incidents related in that article. When one considers that there are millions of people who pass in and out of the big Pennsylvania Station each year he can readily realize that those in charge are daily meeting with experiences both humorous and pathetic.

When the Company is "Out of Cheese"

But consider the small town agent who is generally the "whole cheese" and in lots of instances the company which employs him is "about out of cheese." While he does not meet the enormous number of people who are daily seen about the city stations, yet his experiences are just about as varied.

In the first place, the small town agent is generally in charge of both passenger and freight. He is express agent, baggageman, bureau of information, train caller, handler of United States mails and many other things.

As Information Bureau

In fact, he fits in most anywhere when it becomes necessary, whether it be assistant to the village undertaker or to the drayman delivering trunks to the Op'ry house for the three night's stand of vaudeville. He receives requests by mail and phone from the people about town and outlying rural districts for information regarding trains, fares, reservations, etc., for points all over the country, and in the office where the writer is employed he takes a personal interest in each one, the same interest he would want taken in him or his family, were they the passenger.

In dealing with people of all nationalities and classes he too runs into some peculiar experiences. For instance, an Italian or Swede or some other person of foreign birth gets off the Fast Mail and with his family, consisting of his wife and half a dozen children, makes straight for the station waiting room.

Coming to the ticket window he tries in his broken English to tell the agent that he is at the wrong place. He says that when he bought a ticket he requested it to *-)-$o&* and that the Ticket Clerk who sold it thought it sounded like -:($*)$o&æ and sold him a ticket there. But this is not the place he wanted to go and tries to say so, and after much questioning it is determined what his destination is. Then perhaps he can be made to understand, without the aid of an interpreter, that it will cost him an additional amount of money to continue to his destination and that he must wait several hours for a train. Naturally he becomes peeved and confused. However by humane treatment he is made to understand and to see that he is getting the best service possible under the existing conditions and finally when he and his family are aboard and the train pulls out he waves a farewell salute and smiles, showing that he has appreciated what has been done for him.

In the case of those who do not speak the English language every care should be taken to understand just what they want and then comply with their wants.

Handling Baggage

It is important that the small town station agent exercise the same care in the checking and forwarding of baggage that is exercised where regular baggagemen are employed, for it is important to the owner of baggage that when he reaches his destination, his baggage is there and not some other fellow's under his check number. But occasionally checks get crossed and the newlyweds find that they have some one's sample trunk, and there is "wailing and gnashing of teeth" because of some baggage smasher's carelessness.

After much explaining and exchanging of telegrams they are fixed up and go on their way rejoicing.

Bureau of Lost Persons

And to the small town station comes the child looking for someone to meet him, who because of some reason is not there. He tells his troubles to the agent, who, nine times out of ten, knows for whom he is looking and sends him to the correct address or calls on the phone and has the person being sought, come to the station.

It Will Pay Agents to Read This

The importance of the agent as the representative of the Railroad in his community has long been recognized, but it is being emphasized more today than ever before. The author of this article, Harry B. Kight, was formerly ticket clerk at Keyser and was recently promoted to traveling passenger agent with headquarters at Cumberland, and he knows from experience what tremendous value the agent in the small town can be to the railroad he represents. Mr. Kight speaks from experience. He does not attempt to tell the other fellow how to do it, but that his observations are worth careful attention is suggested by the fact that he has recently been given a more responsible position.

In the big cities where thousands of passengers are handled each day they go their way, in and out of the station, not knowing and caring less where the other fellow is going.

A funeral or wedding party attracts very little if any attention in the big city but in the small town, where the agent meets all the trains and unloads the baggage and mail and now and then a dear one cold in death, he handles the casket as if it were some of his own, for he knows that the bereaved are watching him and realizing their sorrow he soon learns to sympathize.

If it be a wedding party he laughs with them and helps them share their joys, and sweeps up the rice and old shoes when the train has departed.

He is generally known as a good fellow and everytime there is a church supper or social or a special collection being taken for this or that or the other, the station agent is not overlooked, but he, being an employe of the railroad and not its owner, finds it necessary to turn most of them down.

Agent Often Public Official

Sometimes he is the mayor of the town, or an elder or a deacon in the church, or perhaps he is a newspaper reporter, in addition to his regular duties, but if he is interested in his work and the Company which employs him he is ever thinking and doing the best he knows how for the patrons of the road who pass through the station gates.

Sometimes when the train has departed from the station a passenger will come breathlessly to the window and tell me that he or she has left a valuable package in the train. "I sat in the ladies car, on the right side about middle ways of the car, and the package was in the rack right above my head," they say. "It had a brand new sweater in it" or a hat or something equally as valuable to them and they request you to try and locate it, and have it returned to them.

As soon as you can get them to stop talking you start the wheels rolling, and in a little while you receive a message in answer to the one you have sent saying that the forgotten article has been recovered and has been handed to the agent a P—who will return it on the next train. You have thereby perhaps helped to avoid a family argument and have made a friend for the Company which employs you, and for yourself.

Or perhaps when the train has gone, you will receive a telephone call asking you to look in the middle row of seats in the waiting room and see if you can locate a pocket-book. They explain that it had so much money in bills, a receipt for last year's income tax, two tickets to the show, or whatever it may be, and you ask them to just hold the line for a minute while you look. You go to the seat named and there perhaps, lays the pocketbook, alone, forgotten by a passenger who was careless; or perhaps you do not find it and then you are blamed for not having found it before the party even called.

Passengers as a rule, when desiring information, will stop and ask the first person with whom they come in contact. They are sometimes given the correct information, while many times they are misguided and misinformed. Therefore, if the small station agent would take time to tell the travelers that when they desire information they should not ask the first fellow they see but ask the man in uniform or station employe, there would be no fear of going wrong.

A short time ago the head of a large manufacturing establishment was visiting one of their smaller factories at K—. He had arranged to take a fast train at the first junction point for Chicago, where he had an appointment the next morning, and which appointment if not kept meant a loss to him of several thousand dollars. He came to the station 15 minutes before the arrival of his train that would take him to the junction to make his connection for Chicago. Upon his arrival at the station he found the train marked an hour late. At once he was all excited. "I must make the train," he said. "Can't we get there any other way?" When informed that he might be able to get a taxi he fairly yelled "Get it—a big car. I have only one hour and fifteen minutes before the train pulls out for Chicago." Well, by personal service the station agent soon had a taxi at the station and the manufacturer made his train. After things such as this, calling taxis, looking after the collection and delivery of baggage, answering questions of every kind for eight or ten hours, the agent goes home and calls it a day.

About the time that he gets his daily paper and gets comfortably seated and thinks he will spend a quiet evening at home, the phone rings and Mr. Smith wants to know if you won't get him a berth on the midnight train for New York, or Miss Jones wants to know if she can take her pet poodle in the car when she goes or some other question sounding perhaps foolish to the agent, but meaning much to the inquirer.

As a country station agent I realize that those who travel pay for what they get at the rates laid down in the different tariffs and I find that to give them the best possible service I know how, while it does not pay me more than the rate in dollars and cents, pays me, nevertheless, in a greater measure because when night has come I can feel that the day has been worth while by reason of my having done the best I knew how and left 'em smiling when they went away.

You are not dressed for work until you put on a smile.

—The Great Western Magazine

Charleston Division Train Employees Praised for Emergency Service

A REPORT sent by Superintendent Trapnell, Charleston Division, to General Superintendent Scott, tells of especially meritorious service performed by train service employes in a case of emergency. These men have all had commendatory entries placed upon their service records. The report read as follows:

Weston, W. Va.

August 29, 1923

Mr. J. M. Scott
General Superintendent

During the washout on August 12, and for a period following until track was opened up for service on the Gauley Line, several of our train service employes rendered meritorious service.

Richwood switch engines in charge of Conductor J. M. Claypool, Brakemen O. C. Watson and H. W. Groves, Engineer H. O. Bailey and Fireman J. M. McQueen, reported for duty at 8.00 a. m., at Richwood, but account of high water were unable to leave their terminal. After water had subsided this crew worked their way westward, clearing the main track of landslides and debris, August 12, 13, 14, 15 and 16, to Camden-on-Gauley.

Local freight crew, Conductor J. D. Fury, Brakeman C. Marsh and G. W. Fury, Engineer G. C. Smith and Fireman H. A. Curtis, were returning to Weston on train No. 765, Sunday morning, August 12. This train proceeded westward to mile post 90, but could not advance further. The above crew walked to Arcola, found 16 land slides, returning to train No. 765 at mile post 90, reporting this condition to Conductor Sumpter and Engineer Lawson, in charge of train No. 765. They flagged back to Cowen, getting Operator Woolford out, but were unable to communicate with Weston, account no wire service. They were finally successful in getting through to Weston on long distance telephone. They all returned to Camden-on-Gauley where train No. 765 was laid up.

Before leaving Camden-on-Gauley, the local crew named above placed a carload of horses, destined Richwood, at the stock pens; unloaded them, taking their engines, a car of cinders and a car of ties, picked up section men, going to Arcola. Because of the lack of a sufficient number of men, they borrowed a road scraper, block and tackle from the Smoot Lumber Company and they worked all day on Sunday until dark, laying up at Cowen, being unable to return to Camden-on-Gauley account of another washout at mile post 96. Conductor G. B. Green joined this crew and they continued to work in this territory until track was cleared on August 16.

Double header crew, in charge of Conductor W. B. Peterson, Engineer A. W. Pickens, Engineer C. E. Stalnaker, Fireman L. H. Fitzgerald, Fireman G. E. Carrothers, Brakeman P. O. Snyder and Brakeman W. A. Perkins, were laid up at Camden-on-Gauley, Sunday morning, August 12. On Monday, August 13, they took one of their engines and worked Eastward, opening up the track to Richwood, continuing at this work until August 16.

Yours truly,
(Signed) W. TRAPNELL,
Superintendent

Reprinted by courtesy of the Saturday Evening Post

THE SUMMONS

Reminiscences of Our Oldest Lorain Dock Employe

By F. W. HARMON, Correspondent

WILLIAM KLINGBEIL commenced work on May 11, 1876 for the C. L. & W. R. R., his first duties being loading coal with wheelbarrows from cars. He next loaded vessels with mast and gaff, used as derrick, swinging a half ton bucket to vessel and lowering to hold carefully, dumping each so as not to break the coal. The boats were small, the largest being not over 1100 ton.

The two we loaded most were the C. C. Barnes and the Ohio, and nearly all used sails. On June 2, 1877, we loaded the Ohio, which drew so much water, nearly 14 feet, that she could not pass the sand bar and was lightened of 30 ton, or about two carloads, as carloads went then. Afterwards the coal was taken out on the lake and put on board again. The water was shallow at the mouth of the river. Nearly every winter it filled up with sand.

We commenced receiving ore in May, 1879. Work was all paid for by the ton.

We unloaded ore at present docks with half barrel buckets, using horses and cables made fast to masts on the vessels. These devices were called "whips." Following this, cranes and small steam engines were used in place of horses. Soon afterwards we got revolving derricks, which we called "whirleys." These improved the work of unloading ore so that a one thousand ton boat unloaded mostly for direct shipment took one day to discharge, using three machines. Soon we had two ore docks, one with seven machines and one with six machines, all using one ton buckets which had to be loaded from vessel by hand. We then unloaded a 3000 ton boat in 12 hours.

The new boats grew larger and in 1911 we had three new fast plants, or B. H. Unloaders. These have electric power and each takes 10 tons at a grab, so that it is possible to unload a 10,000 ton boat in 9 hours. We now have two car dumps which dump eight hundred 70 ton coal cars per day of 24 hours and load a 10,000 ton vessel in 8 hours.

Our friend Mr. Klingbeil is still going strong and working every day, having charge of one gang of trimmers at Car Dump No. 2. Although 74 years of age, he is hale and hearty, and stronger than many of his younger companions. We think him one of the most faithful of our Baltimore and Ohio employes. The accompanying picture shows him as he was in 1876 with wheelbarrow and shovel, in contrast with one of the modern ore buckets.

Diving Six Times into Delaware to Save Sunken Barge— Engineer Rule is Rewarded

By CHARLES H. MINNICH, Magazine Correspondent, East Side, Philadelphia, Pa.

ON Sunday, July 29, a barge containing four loaded freight cars sank in 25 feet of water at Pier 62, Philadelphia. In order to raise this barge, it was necessary for somebody to dive to the bottom of the river and fasten the couplers. Freight Engineer Stewart S. Rule, who was working at Pier 62 at the time, volunteered to do the job. Divesting himself of his regular cloth-

1. One of the "clam shell" buckets whose capacity is measured in tons. 2. The contrasting wheelbarrow with which boats were loaded forty years ago, and Mr. Klingbeil. 3. Ore handling machine in operation.

Engineer Stewart S. Rule

ing, and donning an old suit of overalls, without hesitation he dived into the water at the point where the barge was sunk. He dived six times before he was finally able to make fast the couplers successfully. The barge was then raised to the surface and the four cars were saved. The prompt and heroic action of Engineer Rule thus saved the Company considerable money.

The matter was brought to the attention of General Manager Scheer, who, knowing how highly such services are appreciated by the Management, and feeling that Engineer Rule should be rewarded in a concrete manner, had a check for $25.00 presented to him by J. D. Gallery, terminal train-master, East Side, Philadelphia.

Passenger Promptly Rewards Conductor G. W. Taylor for His Kindness

ON JULY 9 while in Philadelphia, Mr. John H. Baker, of John H. Baker and Company, Accountants, Denver, Col., received a hurried call to Washington and did not have time to purchase a ticket. After boarding Train 7 he found he did not have sufficient funds to pay his fare in full. He explained his predicament to Conductor G. W. Taylor who advanced a loan of five dollars, giving Mr. Baker a cash fare receipt for the amount. Upon arrival in Washington Mr. Baker obtained funds and immediately repaid Conductor Taylor.

The manner in which Conductor Taylor handled the situation, in relieving a passenger from an embarrassing position and enabling him to keep a business appointment, made such a favorable impression on Mr. Baker that he called the attention of the vice-president in charge of operation to the courtesy he had received.

A commendatory notation has been placed on Conductor Taylor's record for the good judgement displayed.

Typical Honesty

To the Editor New York Times:

I tendered a bill to the ticket seller at Tompkinsville, S. I. (Mr. Dennis Lynch), for a ticket to Perth Amboy. He gave me change for $5.00. I left the window. He called me back. "What did you give me?" he asked. "A five-dollar bill," I replied. "You gave me a twenty," he declared, and I had. I have heard it said you should count your change in purchasing a railroad ticket. It is not necessary with that gentleman.

J. E. HALTON

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 23, 1923.

Engine 2629 Has Fine Record

By FRANK RUSH, Assistant Shop Clerk, Glenwood, Pa.

THE accompanying photograph is of engine 2629 and crew. This engine averaged only forty minutes per day out of service for a period of 14 days.

This is a good illustration of what team work will do. The care the men took of their engine resulted in its doing a good days work every day, without the necessity of its being shopped for repairs during the period. The following employees appear in the picture: Fireman W. S. Medoyn, Engineer C. McFall, Engineer C. Caven, Fireman Chisco, Brakeman Wadding, Brakeman C. Flegle, Brakeman F. Groves, Conductor P. Dermott.

Let's hear from other divisions on the System. Can any other crew compete with this record?

Car Inspector F. G. Deems

Meals Don't Count with Car Inspector Deems

CAR INSPECTOR F. G. DEEMS was instructed to ride President Coolidge's Special, which was dispatched from Washington, Thursday, August 9, at 10.00 p. m. His special job was to look after hot boxes. While he was with this train he did not take time to eat either his breakfast or luncheon for fear that he would not be up ahead where he could get off immediately for inspection when the special stopped, and consequently the first meal that he had after leaving Washington, was supper on the night of August 10.

Deems was called into the office by Master Car Builder Calder, who commended him for his performance. Deems states that the only reason he did this was because he had the most important train in the United States to look after, and the most prominent man in the United States was on this train, and hence that he felt he was not making any sacrifice in doing without his meals to look after it.

Commendatory entry covering his interest in the movement of this train, has been placed upon his service record.

All Made Clear

"Your honor, I was not intoxicated."

"But this officer says you were trying to climb a lamp-post."

"I was, your honor. A couple of cerise crocodiles had been following me around all day, and I don't mind telling you that they were getting on my nerves."

—Arkansas Utility News

Engine 2629 and crew. They've been making some records!

ADVANCE OF THE GRAND ARMY

NAPOLEON'S name fills more pages in the world's solemn history than that of any other mortal.

The advance of his Grand Army into Russia is the turning point of his career and marks the beginning of his downfall. During the World War mighty armies marched over the battlefields where Napoleon fought over a century ago. All the causes of this mighty struggle may be learned from the pages of history. The one complete, accurate, authoritative and reliable history, depicting the rise and fall of every empire, kingdom, principality and power, is the world-famed publication,

Ridpath's History of the World

Including a full authentic account of the World War

Dr. John Clark Ridpath is universally recognized as America's greatest historian.

Other men have written histories of one nation or period—Gibbon of Rome, Macaulay of England, Guizot of France; but it remained for Dr. Ridpath to write a history of the entire World from the earliest civilization down to the present day.

A Very Low Price and Easy Terms

We will name our special low price and easy terms of payment only in direct letters. A coupon for your convenience is printed on the lower corner of this advertisement. Tear off the coupon, write your name and address plainly and mail now before you forget it. We will mail you 46 free sample pages without any obligation on your part to buy. These will give you some idea of the splendid illustrations and the wonderfully beautiful style in which the work is written. We employ no agents, nor do we sell through bookstores, so there are no agents' commissions or book dealers' profits to pay. Our plan of sale enables us to ship direct from factory to customer and guarantee satisfaction.

Six Thousand Years of History

RIDPATH takes you back to the dawn of History, long before the Pyramids of Egypt were built; down through the romantic troubled times of Chaldea's grandeur and Assyria's magnificence; of Babylonia's wealth and luxury; of Greek and Roman splendor; of Mohammedan culture and refinement to the dawn of yesterday, including a full authentic account of the World War. He covers every race, every nation, every time, and holds you spellbound by his wonderful eloquence.

Endorsed by Thousands

RIDPATH is endorsed by Presidents of the United States, practically all university and college presidents, and by a quarter of a million Americans who own and love it. Don't you think it would be worth while to mail us the coupon and receive the 46 sample pages from the History? They are free.

Ridpath's Graphic Style

RIDPATH pictures the great historical events as though they were happening before your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman Senate; to march against Saladin and his dark-skinned followers; to sail the southern seas with Drake; to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan. He combines absorbing interest with supreme reliability.

THE RIDPATH HISTORICAL SOCIETY
CINCINNATI, O.

FREE COUPON

THE RIDPATH
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Cincinnati, O.

Please mail, without cost to me, sample pages of Ridpath's History of the World, containing photographs of The Surrender at Sedan, Napoleon, and other great characters in history. Also write me full particulars of your special offer to Baltimore & Ohio Magazine readers.

FOLD HERE, TEAR OUT, SIGN AND MAIL

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

Wonderful 32-Piece Aluminum Set consists of 2 Bread Pans; Doughnut Cutter; 2 Loose Bottom Jelly Cake Pans; Combination Teakettle and Rice Boiler with lid; Saucepan Set with lid; Dipper; Colander; Measuring Cup; Percolator; 2 Pie Pans; Complete Castor Set; Tea or Coffee Strainer; Fry Pan; also cooker set of 5 pieces—makes 11 separate utensil combinations: Preserving Kettle; Convex Kettle; Combination Cooker; Casserole; Pudding Pan; Tubed Cake Pan; Colander; Roaster; Corn Popper; Steamer Set; Double Boiler.

No Money Down

Not a penny now. Just mail the coupon and Hartman will send you this splendid complete 32-piece Aluminum Cooking Set, and also the Free 10-piece Combination Kitchen Set. When the goods arrive make first payment of only $2.00 on the Aluminum Set. Pay nothing for the Kitchen Set—it is FREE. Use both sets 30 days on Free Trial, and if not more than satisfied, send them back and we will refund your money and pay transportation both ways. If you keep them, pay for the Aluminum Set, a little every month. Keep the Kitchen Set as a gift from Hartman.

FREE

10-Piece Kitchen Set

Not a penny to pay for this set. You get it absolutely free with Aluminum Set.

Potato Masher
Mixing Spoon
Measuring Spoon
Ice Pick
Egg and Cream
Beater
Can Opener
Vegetable and Pan
Brush
Fork
Egg and Cake Turner
Wall Rack

All have white enameled handles and hang on wall rack—keeping them conveniently at hand.

Complete 32-Pc. Aluminum Set and FREE Kitchen Set

This is Hartman's famous special, selected set of heavy gauge Aluminum Ware—a complete cooking outfit, light to handle, easy to clean, always bright as silver. Will never chip, crack or rust. So durable that we guarantee it for life. 32 utensils—everything you need for baking, boiling, roasting, frying. Just read the list above. You want and need everything there. Your kitchen is not complete without them. You really can't appreciate this splendid set until you see and use it. Then you will realize what a wonderful bargain it is. And without a penny's cost—absolutely free—you get a Combination Kitchen Set which gives you 10 utensils with white handles—all hung in a row—where you can reach them easily.

Nearly a Year to Pay

Hartman gives the world's most liberal terms and the world's greatest values in dependable merchandise, and this offer proves it. You pay only $2.00 and postage on arrival (this on the Aluminum Set—not a penny to pay at any time on the Kitchen Set). Then, if after 30 days' trial you decide to keep it, pay a little every month. Take nearly a year to pay.

Order by No. 417EEM7. Price for Aluminum Set, $18.95. No money down. $2.00 and postage on arrival. Balance $2.00 monthly. 10-Piece Kitchen Set is FREE.

Mail the Coupon

Don't hesitate. Send at once, while this offer holds good. Not a penny's risk. Order NOW, while you can get the Kitchen Set Free.

HARTMAN

Furniture & Carpet Co.
Dept. 5714 CHICAGO
Copyright, 1923, by Hartman's, Chicago

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

FREE BARGAIN CATALOG and FREE GIFTS

This great 316-page book offers the world's greatest bargains in home furnishings, jewelry and farm machinery—all sold on easy monthly payment terms and 30 days' free trial on everything.

Wonderful Gifts

Catalog explains how you can get Glassware, Silverware, Tablecloths, Napkins, etc., free with purchases. Send for it today. "Let Hartman Feather YOUR Nest"

HARTMAN FURNITURE & CARPET CO. Dept. 5714 Chicago, Ill.

Send the 32-Piece Aluminum Cooking Set No. 417EEM7, Price $18.95, and 10-Piece Kitchen Set. Will pay $2 and postage on the Aluminum Set on arrival. Kitchen Set is FREE. I am to have 30 days' free trial. If not satisfied, I will ship both sets back. If I keep them, I will pay you $2 monthly until the price of the Aluminum Set, $18.95, is paid. Title remains with you until final payment is made.

Name.....

Occupation.....
R. F. D., Box No.,
or Street and No. ....

Post Office..... State.....
(If shipping point is different from your post office, fill in line below.)

Send shipment to .....

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine

November 1923

Trail Blazers
 All over the Great West is written the record of the pioneers who blazed the first trails that guided civilization in its westward march.
 As settlers followed, Montgomery Ward and George R. Thorne blazed a new trail to them, being first to fill their wants direct by mail and in the complete spirit of the Golden Rule.
 Trail Blazers—Business Pioneers we were, and are. Fifty-one years have but given us experience. We stand today out new methods in manufacture, searching trade to secure for you better goods and bigger values and greater savings.
 Trail Blazers of over fifty years ago, Montgomery Ward & Co. still cling to this spirit of leadership—we are the Oldest Mail Order House and Today the Most Progressive.

LEWIS and CLARK
 Blazing the Oregon Trail
 1804 - 1805

Fall & Winter 1923-24
MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.
 Catalogue No. 99

NOVEMBER
 SUN MON TUE WED THU FRI SAT
 - - - 1 2 3 4
 5 6 7 8 9 10 11
 12 13 14 15 16 17 18
 19 20 21 22 23 24 25
 26 27 28 29 30 -
Only 8 weeks till X'mas

DECEMBER
 SUN MON TUE WED THU FRI SAT
 - - - 1 2 3 4
 5 6 7 8 9 10 11
 12 13 14 15 16 17 18
 19 20 21 22 23 24 25
 26 27 28 29 30 31
Only 4 weeks till X'mas

Christmas Is Just Around the Corner. So start today choosing your Christmas Gifts

20 Complete Christmas Stores in Your Montgomery Ward Catalogue

Twenty complete Christmas stores, hundreds and hundreds of gifts, everything suitable for Christmas is pictured in your Montgomery Ward Catalogue.

Toys, games, books, jewelry, all the season's novelties, all kinds of practical presents—everything to please Man, Woman, Child or Infant is offered in this complete catalogue.

If you do not know what to give, your catalogue will make you a hundred suggestions. It will be your best aid to choosing the right gift for every friend and relative.

And in this great Christmas Catalogue everything is ready now. You do not need to wait until Christmas is at hand to make your selections. You have before you now in your Ward Catalogue everything you will want to buy for Christmas.

Start Today Selecting Your Gifts for Christmas

The weeks before Christmas pass by quickly. So start today looking through your Catalogue and select your gifts carefully. There is an increased pleasure both in giving and receiving a carefully selected and appropriate gift.

There are no "Christmas Profits" in Montgomery Ward Prices

There are no Holiday prices, no "Christmas profits." You pay the lowest price of the year for every Christmas gift. You buy from Ward's Catalogue at the normal, everyday price.

Your saving in buying from Ward's is, therefore, greatly increased at Christmas time. So study your Catalogue. See for yourself the saving. See for yourself how much farther your money goes, how many more presents you can buy. No one need to be omitted from your Christmas list if you let Ward's Catalogue be your Christmas guide, your Christmas store.

Order Your Christmas Gifts Early. Christmas is just Around the Corner

We are ready now to handle all Christmas orders. Our stocks of Christmas goods are now complete. Everything is ready. So order now.

Get out your Ward Catalogue today. Don't put it off till Christmas time. Don't wait till some things are gone.

Start today making up your Christmas list. Order early.

Montgomery Ward & Co.

Chicago Kansas City
 St. Paul Portland, Ore. Ft. Worth

Established 1872

Montgomery Ward & Co.

The Oldest Mail Order House is Today the Most Progressive

Special Offer

$6<sup>95</sup>

Regular Value
$10.00

All-Wool Heavy Jumbo Sweater Coat

Only

$1<sup>00</sup>
DOWN

Send only $1.00 with the coupon. This heavy, pure virgin wool jumbo sweater comes on approval. Money back instantly if you ask for it. Don't be too late—order now.

Heavy Pure Wool

This is a splendid big sweater at a bargain price. Every fibre pure wool. Heavy rope stitch. Large fashioned shawl collar. Two large lined pockets. Close knitted wristlets. Ivory buttons to match. Made in big full size in rich fast colors. Nothing so practical for fall and winter wear. Sold by most stores for $10.00, all spot cash.

Sizes 34 to 46. Colors: Dark Maroon or Navy Blue. Order by No. F-12. Send $1.00 with coupon, $1.00 monthly. Total price, $6.95.

6 Months to Pay

Buy the Elmer Richards way, on credit, as thousands of well satisfied men are doing. Everything you need in clothing or shoes and you pay in monthly sums so small you will never miss them. Open a charge account with us. No charge for credit. One price only. Strictly dependable qualities. See this big sweater bargain on approval. Send coupon now.

Write for our Free Bargain Catalog of men's, women's and children's clothing and shoes. Everything on small monthly payments.

Elmer Richards Co.
Dept. 4018 West 35th Street, Chicago, Ill.

I enclose $1.00.
Send Heavy Wool Sweater F-12. Size.....Color.....
If I am not satisfied when I receive the sweater, I can return it and get my payment back with charges. Otherwise, I will pay the advertised terms, $1.00 with coupon, $1.00 monthly. Total price, $6.95.

Name.....

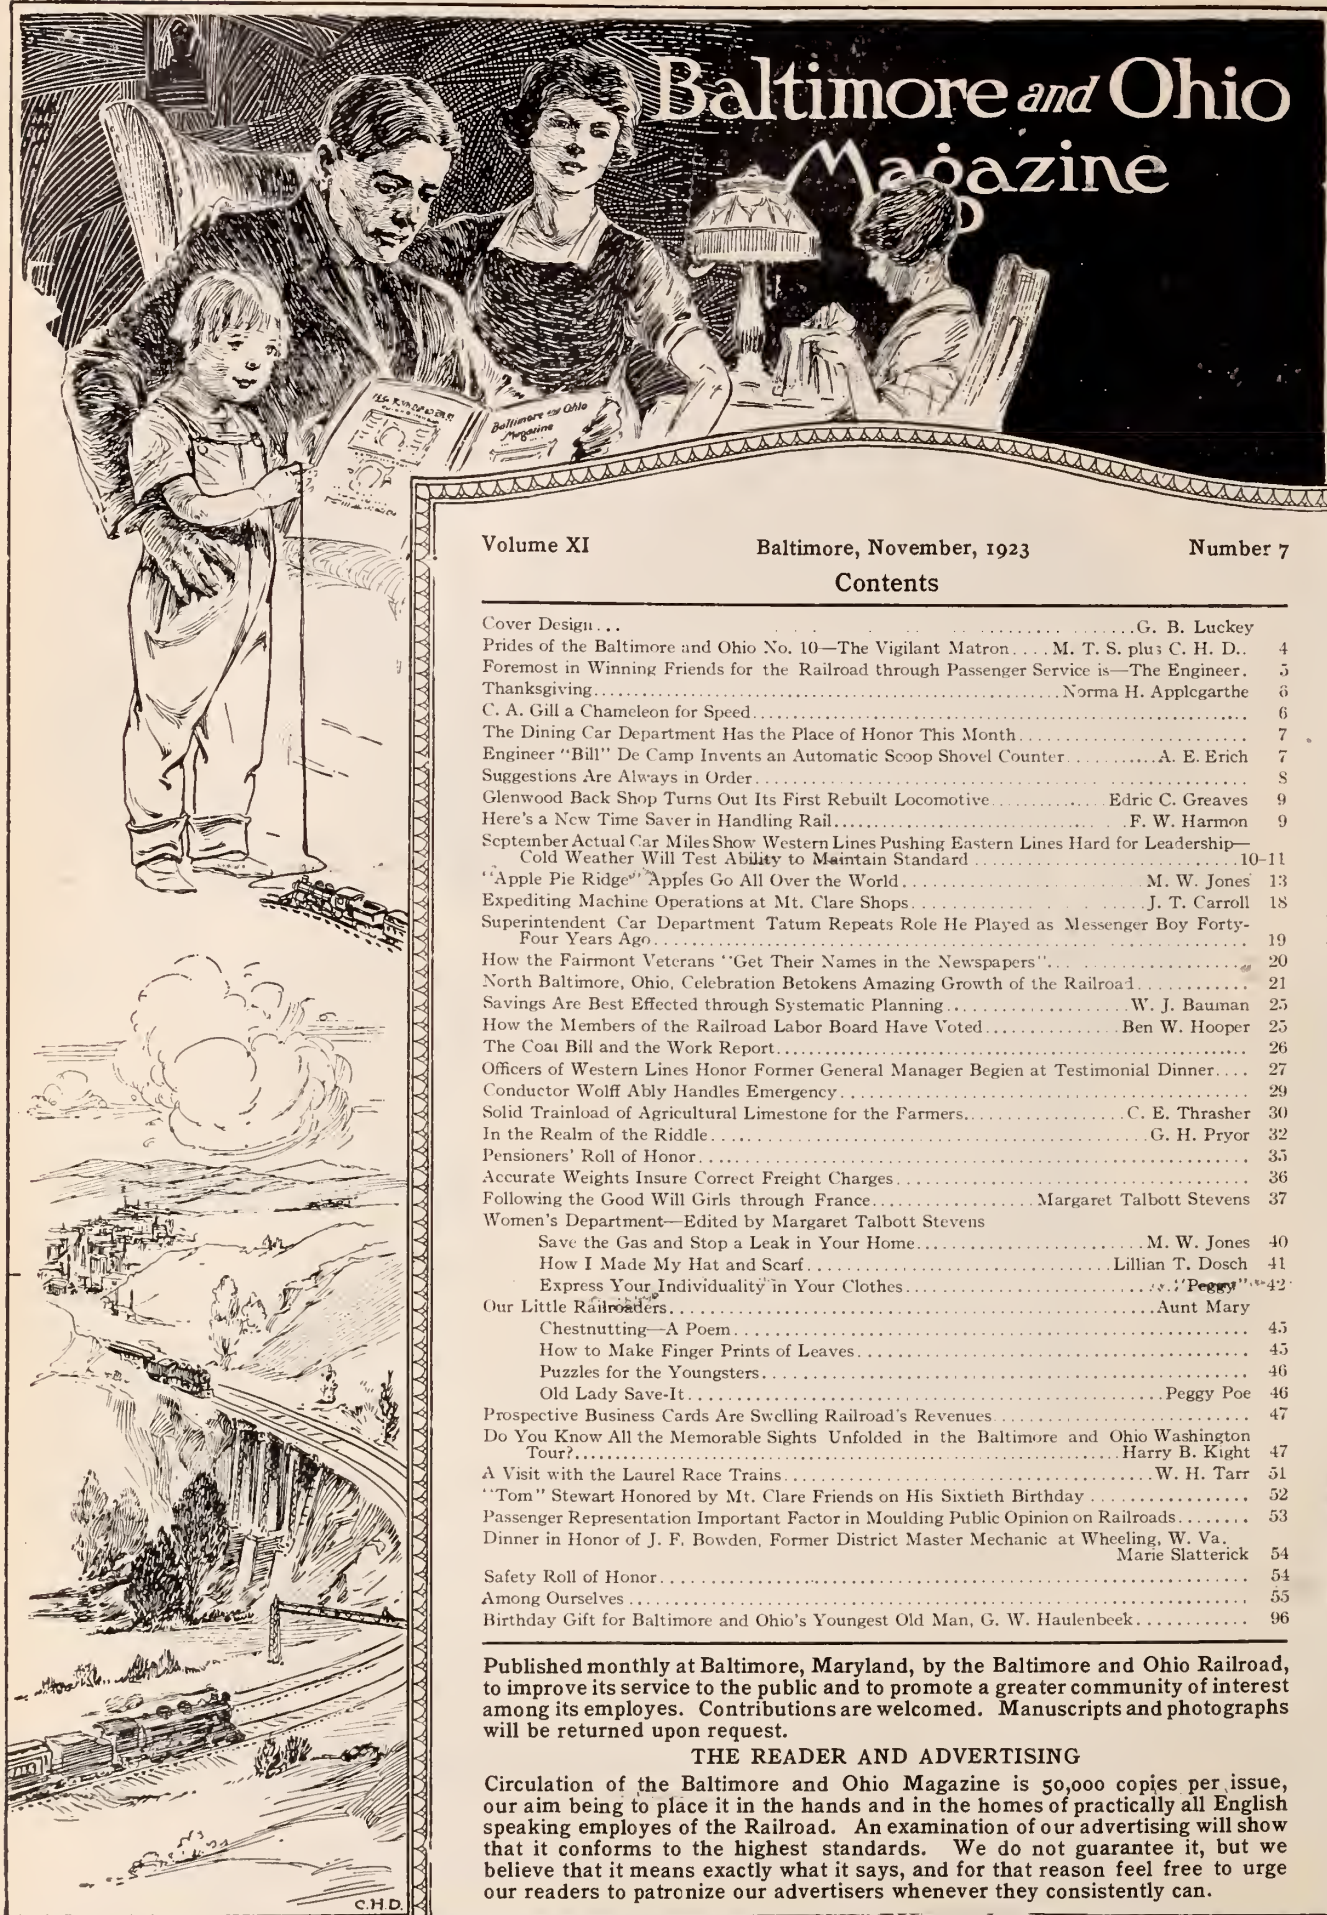

Address.....State.....

← Send Coupon

Don't miss this. The supply is limited. You take no risk. We stand back of this sweater. Compare our prices with cash prices in retail stores. Money back if you say so. Send coupon now with $1. Don't be too late; send coupon.

Elmer Richards Co.
Dept. 4018 West 35th Street, Chicago, Ill.

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine

Volume XI

Baltimore, November, 1923

Number 7

Contents

Cover Design . . . . .	G. B. Luckey
Prides of the Baltimore and Ohio No. 10—The Vigilant Matron . . . . .	M. T. S. plus C. H. D.	4
Foremost in Winning Friends for the Railroad through Passenger Service is—The Engineer . . . . .		5
Thanksgiving . . . . .	Norma H. Applagarthe	6
C. A. Gill a Chameleon for Speed . . . . .		6
The Dining Car Department Has the Place of Honor This Month . . . . .		7
Engineer "Bill" De Camp Invents an Automatic Scoop Shovel Counter . . . . .	A. E. Erich	7
Suggestions Are Always in Order . . . . .		8
Glenwood Back Shop Turns Out Its First Rebuilt Locomotive . . . . .	Edric C. Greaves	9
Here's a New Time Saver in Handling Rail . . . . .	F. W. Harmon	9
September Actual Car Miles Show Western Lines Pushing Eastern Lines Hard for Leadership— Cold Weather Will Test Ability to Maintain Standard . . . . .		10-11
"Apple Pie Ridge" Apples Go All Over the World . . . . .	M. W. Jones	13
Expediting Machine Operations at Mt. Clare Shops . . . . .	J. T. Carroll	18
Superintendent Car Department Tatum Repeats Role He Played as Messenger Boy Forty- Four Years Ago . . . . .		19
How the Fairmont Veterans "Get Their Names in the Newspapers" . . . . .		20
North Baltimore, Ohio, Celebration Betokens Amazing Growth of the Railroad . . . . .		21
Savings Are Best Effectuated through Systematic Planning . . . . .	W. J. Bauman	25
How the Members of the Railroad Labor Board Have Voted . . . . .	Ben W. Hooper	25
The Coal Bill and the Work Report . . . . .		26
Officers of Western Lines Honor Former General Manager Begien at Testimonial Dinner . . . . .		27
Conductor Wolff Ably Handles Emergency . . . . .		29
Solid Trainload of Agricultural Limestone for the Farmers . . . . .	C. E. Thrasher	30
In the Realm of the Riddle . . . . .	G. H. Pryor	32
Pensioners' Roll of Honor . . . . .		35
Accurate Weights Insure Correct Freight Charges . . . . .		36
Following the Good Will Girls through France . . . . .	Margaret Talbott Stevens	37
Women's Department—Edited by Margaret Talbott Stevens
Save the Gas and Stop a Leak in Your Home . . . . .	M. W. Jones	40
How I Made My Hat and Scarf . . . . .	Lillian T. Dosch	41
Express Your Individuality in Your Clothes . . . . .	Peggy	42
Our Little Railroaders . . . . .	Aunt Mary
Chestnutting—A Poem . . . . .		45
How to Make Finger Prints of Leaves . . . . .		45
Puzzles for the Youngsters . . . . .		46
Old Lady Save-It . . . . .	Peggy Poe	46
Prospective Business Cards Are Swelling Railroad's Revenues . . . . .		47
Do You Know All the Memorable Sightings Unfolded in the Baltimore and Ohio Washington Tour? . . . . .	Harry B. Kight	47
A Visit with the Laurel Race Trains . . . . .	W. H. Tarr	51
"Tom" Stewart Honored by Mt. Clare Friends on His Sixtieth Birthday . . . . .		52
Passenger Representation Important Factor in Moulding Public Opinion on Railroads . . . . .		53
Dinner in Honor of J. F. Bowden, Former District Master Mechanic at Wheeling, W. Va. . . . .	Marie Slatterick	54
Safety Roll of Honor . . . . .		54
Among Ourselves . . . . .		55
Birthday Gift for Baltimore and Ohio's Youngest Old Man, G. W. Haulenbeek . . . . .		96

Published monthly at Baltimore, Maryland, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to improve its service to the public and to promote a greater community of interest among its employees. Contributions are welcomed. Manuscripts and photographs will be returned upon request.

THE READER AND ADVERTISING

Circulation of the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine is 50,000 copies per issue, our aim being to place it in the hands and in the homes of practically all English speaking employees of the Railroad. An examination of our advertising will show that it conforms to the highest standards. We do not guarantee it, but we believe that it means exactly what it says, and for that reason feel free to urge our readers to patronize our advertisers whenever they consistently can.

Here's $200 a Week

for any Man or Woman and a Special Offer for Quick Action-Grab it

I know that there are thousands of men and women who are interested right now in making more money. They want immediate action—without red tape, and without delay. Now I am going to make a personal, special offer that will enable any man or woman to make from $100 to $200 a week, depending upon how much time is devoted to my proposition.

How Much Can You Make?

I want a man or woman in each community to act as my representative—to call on my customers and take their orders for raincoats. That's all there is to it. If you take four average orders a day I will pay you $96 a week. If you only take one average order a day you will make about $24 a week, and that is easy. Hundreds of my representatives are earning that much just in their spare time. For instance, George Garon made $40 clear profit his first day. And there is J. R. Head of Kansas, who earned $69.50 for himself in one day. And W. S. Cooper, who has averaged over $5,000 a year for six years, working only four hours a day. Just read the records of a few of my representatives—on the right hand side of this page—and you will realize that it is amazingly easy for a man to make from $100 to $200 a week at this proposition.

No Experience is Needed

It is not necessary for you to have been a salesman. You do not need any previous knowledge about raincoats. I will give you all the information you will ever need. There is no trick to taking orders for Comer All-Weather Coats and the reason is simply this—they are such big bargains that they sell themselves. People like to buy direct from the factory for the money saved by this method of selling is passed on to the customer.

We manufacture our own coats and sell them direct to our customers by parcel post. Our representatives simply take orders. The values speak for themselves—and with such values, such styles, such materials as we offer, our representatives often take from 2 to 4 orders at a single call.

And because Comer Coats are such big values and sell so easily, E. A. Sweet of Michigan made $1,200 in a single month—Spencer earned $625 in one month's spare time—McCrary increased his earnings from $2 a day to $9,000 a year.

This is All You Have To Do

All that my representatives do is take orders—and they get their money immediately. If your profit for one day is $10, you will have that $10 in cash the same day. You don't carry a stock of coats. You don't put up any money. You don't deliver anything, and I do my own collecting through the mail.

Accept My Special Offer

Now—the important thing is to get started. I know that you can make at least $100 within one week of today and have that $100 in cash. I know that within a short time you can be making $200 a week—every week. The important thing is to get started, and get started quick. If you will fill out the coupon with your name and address, I will send you, without any preliminary correspondence, and with absolutely no deposit whatever on your part, a complete selling outfit with full instructions, samples of raincoat material, style book, order blanks, and everything that you will need to make money. I will write you a letter that is so complete, clear and concise that after you read it you will know absolutely where to go, what to say, and how to make money.

Within the past few weeks I have paid my representatives hundreds of thousands of dollars. And I am willing to make this concession to you—send you the complete outfit, confidential information and instructions at once. So if you are one of those men or women who want a real opportunity to establish a big, permanent, substantial and profitable business—if you are sincere and earnest in your desire to make more money, sign and mail the coupon at once. In less than a week you will be making more money than you ever thought possible.

C. E. COMER, The Comer Manufacturing Co.,
Dept SBX-610 Dayton, Ohio.

J. R. HEAD

of Kansas, who lives in a small town of 631 people. He has made as high as $69.50 in one day selling Comer All-Weather Coats.

W. S. COOPER

of Ohio, finds it easy to earn over $500 a month selling Comer All-Weather Coats.

E. A. SWEET

an electrical engineer, is making $600 to $1,200 a month and works only about four hours a day.

Important Notice

The Comer Manufacturing Company is the largest business of its kind in the world. Any man who becomes a representative is assured of fair, square, honest treatment, and will have reason to be proud of his connection with the company.

THE COMER MFG. CO.,
Dept. SBX-610 Dayton, Ohio.

Please send me, without expense or obligation, your special proposition, together with complete outfit and instructions, so I can begin at once to earn money.

Name _____

Address _____

Print or write plainly

This Auto Free!

In addition to your big earnings I offer you a Buick Touring Car, without a cent of cost, that you can use to help you in developing this great business. Mail the coupon NOW.

Prides of The Baltimore and Ohio—No. 10

The Vigilant Matron

They come from every town and state, from Egypt and from Spain,
From every land and every clime, and travel back again;
We railroad folk must do our share to move the world along,
And e'en the matron has a chance to serve this moving throng.
Our waiting rooms must be well kept, all rules must be obeyed,
And we must keep a watchful eye on this, the great parade.
I'm on my job with vigilance from morning until night,
It sometimes takes some effort but I always am polite.
Although I'm strict about the rules, I'm never rude to others—
My special care?—the aged folk, the babies and their mothers.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO MAGAZINE

Published monthly at Baltimore, Maryland, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to improve its service to the public and to promote efficiency and community of interest among its employes

VOLUME XI

BALTIMORE, NOVEMBER, 1923

NUMBER 7

Foremost in Winning Friends for the Railroad through Passenger Service is—The Engineer

ROLLING 'round the wide sweep as it passes the station at Relay and crosses the old Thomas Viaduct over the Patapsco—comes the Capitol Limited, most distinguished train of the Baltimore and Ohio. Spotless, from top to running gear, are her cars, the particular pride of the Car Cleaning and Pullman forces of the Baltimore Terminal. Her engine, majestic in its power and beauty, and fresh from last minute touches of the Riverside Roundhouse forces, gleams in the rays of the afternoon sun.

In the cab is my friend, Engineer E. B. Owens, looking as if he was sitting on the top of the world. Erect and alert in position—clean collar, trim cap and fresh jumper making his appearance worthy the pilot of so immaculate a steed—he flashes a smile of recognition as he passes, then peers earnestly ahead. There is a block signal just beyond the curve!

They tell me that Engineer Owens is a bachelor and that his only "baby" is the Capitol Limited. They say also that he is noted all over the division for his neat appearance, whether at the beginning or the end of his run. They even add with a smile that, bachelor like, he favors a certain striking plaid for the pattern of his shirt, and a particular stripe for his overalls. These are some of the reported things that mark the individuality of Engineer Owens, and the marks of a man's individuality are always interesting.

But I am not vitally interested in the comparatively superficial evidences of Mr. Owens' character that we see on the outside—in the cut of his clothes, the tilt of his hat, etc.* I am, on the other hand, tremendously interested in the fine moral and mental qualities which have won him the honor of running the most important train on the Baltimore and Ohio. And when I speak of him I mean also that small army of veteran engineers whose experienced hands control throttle and brake on all our fine passenger and freight trains, the Driscolls and Fauvers and Leeks, the Murphys and Martins and Smiths—to suggest but a few—that we have all over the Railroad.

When the normal passenger steps aboard a train, he does so, I think, without much thought of the man in charge in the cab. But as they pick up speed, and the rail clicks begin to sound three and more to the second, and a passing freight races by in a whirl of noisy clatter, it is the unusual person who does not pause in his reverie or reading to say "I wonder." Instantly and subconsciously he thinks of the engineer. He asks himself what kind of a man he is and, of course, he thinks of character first.

Is he a straight and sober fellow? Did he get necessary rest before he started his run? Is his eye clear to see the signals right and his hand steady on throttle and brake? Is his mind free of the worry which carelessness living so often visits on a man, so that he can concentrate on the all important job of running his train safely?

These are the questions which must be answered in the affirmative through long years of experience and selective processes before an engineer on the Baltimore and Ohio is singled out to handle our best trains. And answering them in the affirmative is good proof that he has that mark of character which distinguishes him as a man of thorough dependability and trustworthiness.

But there are many other qualities which distinguish the superior engineer. The ordinary passenger never associates them with his own satisfaction as he sits in a comfortable car, but the Railroad emphasizes them constantly because it knows that they are the most important assets it has in building up passenger business.

If a passenger gets bumped and jolted every time the train stops and starts, he thinks that the brakes are defective and he tries another road for his return trip. If the train races around curves, and reading or sleep is made impossible because of the constant swaying and jarring, he concludes that it is due to poor track and equipment, and he buys his next ticket from a competitor. If he finishes his ride begrimed with soot that has seeped in through ventilators, doors and window sashes, he says "My, what a dirty railroad!" and as he makes for the nearest place to clean up, he resolves about that particular road, "Never again." If he gets to his destination late—well, you know how he feels and what he says then.

Now the Baltimore and Ohio runs its train service so that none of the inconveniences mentioned needs befall our passengers. Engines of ample power are supplied—and kept in splendid condition—for the very purpose of permitting the engineer to start and stop smoothly. The skilful engineer, interested in his work, is almost never obliged to "jerk" his train in or out of a station. The same type of engineer can negotiate the curves on a road with almost the same smoothness that he can attain on a straight piece of track, because our Management has made a special point of fixing speed limits which permit of such operation. And of course, it is admitted by every candid engineman and fireman that nice cooperation between them will give proper combustion in the firebox and will prevent the black smoke so distasteful to passengers and injurious to the interior fittings of coaches and Pullmans.

The passenger has the right to expect that his train will arrive at destination on time, and Baltimore and Ohio schedules are arranged with this in mind. Not only is ample margin allowed for safety but also so that, barring unforeseen contingencies, the skilled engineer can make time-table time at all stations.

The engineers who handle our best trains are men who have proved their skill in these respects. They study to make themselves perfect in engine running. They try to accommodate their actions to the requests of the Management. They are interested in their work. They like their officers. They are proud of their jobs and the Baltimore and Ohio. They want to lift their tasks from the level of the commonplace and make a real contribution to the everyday work of the world.

These are Baltimore and Ohio engineers. Their responsibilities are large, their work honorable. They have gone through the process of selection with great credit to themselves. The Management is doing its part in giving them unsurpassed equipment and frankly asks them in return to make the most of their opportunities to build up our passenger business.

Thanksgiving

By NORMA H. APPLGARTHE
Correspondent, Office General Freight Claim Agent

WE learn from history that the Pilgrim Fathers were a stern, stiff necked, narrow minded set of men, who would not be tolerated in these days of liberty, but that they were not unmindful of the many benefits they had received in successfully establishing themselves in a new country, and that to them we are indebted for our "THANKSGIVING."

This festival was first established by the Pilgrims in Plymouth, Mass., in 1621, and gradually spread to all parts of the country. It was later adopted by Congress as a National holiday, the President announcing by proclamation the last Thursday in November as the day set for this celebration.

The problem of life was a serious one to the Pilgrims, and it must have been with hearts full of gratefulness that they returned thanks to God for having made a successful voyage, escaped massacre by the Indians and for the liberal returns they got from tilling the soil and planting the seed. We, too, have serious problems, which

The November Cover

The central figure in our cover picture this month is George Nelson, cook on business car of Vice-President Galloway. His helper in the background is Second Cook William Sye, of the Capitol Limited.

Helpful in securing the picture were Superintendent Shriver, Baltimore Terminal Division, and General Foreman Burnham, Electrical Department. The arrangements were made by Assistant Superintendent Phillips and Inspector Sherman of the Dining Car Department. The picture was made by Photographer Luckey.

we successfully negotiate, and for which we should be grateful and return thanks. We should not lose sight of the fact that we live in a wonderful country, with the best form of government, and that our working and living conditions are far superior to those of any other nation.

We should return thanks to the Great Master of us all for our health, for our country and its prosperity, and for the friendly, considerate and successful men who manage the affairs of our Railroad. These are important facts in which we are vitally interested, and in their firmer establishment lies our success. It therefore behooves us to be honest with God, honest with our neighbor, with our employer and with ourselves, and return thanks to Him for the many benefits we have received and hope to receive in the years to come.

One Hundred Dollars for Best Paper on Traffic Solicitation

5 We are now well entered upon the season of the year when under normal conditions business declines in volume. Every effort should be made to attract business to our lines and thus avert reduction in forces.

There are many employees, not alone in the Traffic Department but also otherwise engaged in work for the Railroad, who have definite ideas on how to secure business for our lines, and it is to give these ideas the widest publicity and effectiveness among our readers that the Management has offered a prize of $100.00 for the best paper submitted by any employee on the subject of Traffic Solicitation.

The papers submitted should be limited to 1,000 words, and less than this number, when possible. They must be in the hands of the editor of the Magazine, Mount Royal Station, Baltimore, not later than December 10. No name is to be placed on the papers submitted, but with each entry there should be enclosed a blank envelope containing a slip of paper showing name, department and location of the author.

A copy of each paper received will be sent by the editor to Archibald Fries, Vice-President Traffic and Commercial Development; E. W. Scheer, General Manager, Eastern Lines, and J. J. Ekin, Comptroller, who have kindly consented to act as judges in this contest.

Do not hesitate to enter this contest just because you are not an employee of the Traffic Department. The ideas of the men and women outside of our business-getting department are often very valuable, and the Traffic Department will welcome all suggestions from no matter whom they come. The contest is open to all employees.

The results of the contest and the prize winning article will be published in the January issue.

C. A. Gill a Chameleon for Speed

NOT so long ago President Willard was making an inspection on line. When near Cumberland he noticed a caboose on a neighboring railroad painted in rather an unusual shade of red. He called it to the attention of some of the officers with him and said that he would like to see a Baltimore and Ohio caboose painted in the same color, just to see how it would look.

The next stop of the party was at Keyser, the visit taking about fifteen minutes, but as the President returned to his business car to proceed to the next point, there was a Baltimore and Ohio caboose on an adjacent track, one side and the end of which were painted in the new color.

C. A. Gill, superintendent motive power, Eastern Lines, had been busy with some of his Keyser go-getters in the Paint Department during the brief visit.

The Dining Car Department Has the Place of Honor This Month

AND why should it not have the place of honor! November, of all the months, envisions, with its great feast of Thanksgiving, tables loaded with the choicest foods the markets afford. So the Dining Car Department moves into the centre of the Railroad picture.

For years our dining cars have been the best advertisement of our passenger service. There is no other place on the Railroad where the slogan "Our Passengers Are Our Guests" can be so well exemplified. Passengers like good food, fair prices, clean linen and courteous service, and when they get these things they experience the winning satisfaction of true hospitality. The opportunity of our stewards and cooks and waiters is, indeed, a great one.

Perhaps the chief reason why railroad men do not give service which completely satisfies passengers, is because they sometimes fail to put themselves in the passenger's place. We should never forget, whether we be ticket sellers, or stationmasters, or train callers, or conductors, or brakemen, or stewards, or waiters, or what not—that the ordinary person is often in a "strange country" when in a station or on a train, and that extraordinary care should be taken to make him feel completely at home.

In this respect the dining car man has a particularly hard job. Folks are fussy about their eating. They are used to special ways of having their meals cooked and served. The fat man likes his toast thin, and the thin man likes his, fat.

Jack Spratt could eat no fat,
His wife could eat no lean;
But on Dining Cars nice pairs like this
Are seldom ever seen!

So when Jack asks for lean meat and Mrs. Jack for fat, the only way to have clean platters is to give each one what is wanted.

A single fly hovering over my plate or flitting from dish to dish on the table, will spoil a meal for me. The other fellow may not mind the fly's company, but he just can't stand for butter sprinkled with coal soot or for oatmeal that is lumpy or for prunes that aren't cooked completely to the pit. There is scarcely a person who does not have a little different slant from the next fellow on what constitutes perfect food and service. It makes the dining car man's job hard—but it affords him a great opportunity to give satisfaction.

Our Dining Car Department buys the best foods that the markets offer.

The cars themselves are models of good taste, comfort and convenience, and schedules are so arranged as to give sufficient time for serving without undue haste or crowding. Special care is taken to have ample supplies of clean linen and attractive table ware, and there are little "niceties" included in the service such as, for instance, the morning demi tasse and the after dinner mints, which lend an attractive touch of individuality.

But all of these things fade into the background when a passenger is seated at a mussy table, or is served a poorly cooked dish, or meets an indifferent steward or an inattentive waiter. The Management has tried to provide a "personality" in the dining car service, but it is the "persons" in charge which count most.

With the holiday season approaching and visions of the Thanksgiving or Christmas or New Year's dinner at home in the minds of most people, let us try to put that individual touch of true hospitality into our dining car service so that this season may be especially memorable to all who break bread with us, just because they have been guests of our Dining Car Department.

Engineer "Bill" De Camp Invents an Automatic Counter Scoop Shovel

By A. E. ERICH, Secretary to Superintendent
Chillicothe, Ohio

THE accompanying photograph is of Engineer W. S. "Bill" De Camp, Chillicothe, Ohio, and his automatic counter scoop shovel. "Bill" is employed as a yard engineer in the Chillicothe yard, having entered the service in 1884. He is a firm believer in SAVING COAL, and this is one of his reasons for inventing this kind of scoop. It is all metal, and when the scoop part wears out, it can very easily be replaced, the handle and counter part being placed on the new scoop. Each time a scoop of coal is placed in the fire box, it is counted and registered automatically, showing the figures in the handle.

Mr. De Camp had this invention patented on October 29, 1920, and since then a sample shovel has been thoroughly tested and found satisfactory. Passenger Fireman Frank Myers, this division, tested it for a period of ten days, and then wrote Mr. De Camp highly praising the scoop. It can also be used like any other shovel, such as for cleaning up the deck of engine, etc., without affecting its usefulness as a "counter," since it is impossible to make it register in any way except by having coal or material of like weight in the scoop. Therefore the figures shown in the handle at the end of each trip are absolutely correct as to the amount of fuel consumed.

The idea of the counter is that if a fireman knows just how many scoops of coal he is shoveling into the fire box, he will naturally do all that is possible to keep them to the lowest possible number, thereby saving himself UNNECESSARY LABOR and SAVING FUEL. Figures are constantly being given in the MAGAZINE as to just what it would mean if a scoop of coal a mile were saved, and "Bill" believes this is one way to help bring this about. He has several letters commenting on the scoop, and also a good many of inquiry, and will be glad to receive others from all interested in the device.

Engineer "Bill" De Camp and his counter scoop shovel

"Suggestions Are Always in Order"

IN the April, 1920 issue of our MAGAZINE the first paragraph of the leading editorial read as follows:

"In the office of President Willard, so displayed that you cannot but see it as you open the door, there is a sign about six inches wide by three deep. On it these words are clearly printed:

SUGGESTIONS ARE ALWAYS IN ORDER

This sign has been in Mr. Willard's Baltimore office for ten years. In fact, for over thirty years a sign of this kind has been in his office, wherever located. Furthermore, it means just what it says."

Since then it has been called to the writer's attention that similar signs are displayed in the offices of quite a number of the officers of the Railroad, indicating that the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio is at all times receptive to the suggestions of employes for the betterment of the service.

It is related that a number of years ago a minor official in the Patent Office in Washington served notice on his associates that he had planned to seek other fields of endeavor within the next few years. And when they asked him the reason he naively said that he was sure that all patents that men could think of would be submitted to the Patent Office by the time of his proposed retirement and the office would, therefore, suspend operations. Since then, of course, the work of the Patent Office has been multiplied many times over by the new devices and methods developed by man's fertile mind.

Whether the story is authentic or not, it illustrates the attitude of mind possessed by many. We think that we have reached perfection in the methods of doing our work because we have become so used to them; because they have been given to us as the right methods; and we complacently assume that they cannot be improved upon. Yet each issue of the technical magazines unfolds the stories of new devices which are being adopted each day to make the great machine of business run more smoothly. It is safe to say that each day some man evolves an idea or a plan for a machine which revolutionizes or greatly improves the methods it was designed to supplant and, incidentally, marks that man as a genius. Some philosopher said:

"Let a man preach a better sermon, write a better book, make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor; so he builds his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."

The Baltimore and Ohio wishes the active and thoughtful cooperation of all its employes in the improvement of its methods of operations to the end that it may become a more efficient organization and of greater service to the public. The Management therefore suggests to the heads of all departments, to superintendents, master mechanics and all other supervising officials, that the greatest encouragement and active support be given to the stimulation of new ideas by employes. It also urges all employes to cooperate actively along these lines and to endeavor to give the Railroad their best thought for the improvement of our operations, our methods and our service.

Those of us who are daddies remember the great vogue of the poem "Darius Green and His Flying Machine" during our boyhood years. Yet the ill-fated and comical figure of Darius trying to fly from the roof of the barn to the ground below on his improvised wings, has within the short period of a generation been transformed into the many designs of practical and comparatively safe flying machines which now are common evidences in all civilized countries of man's genius. Don't worry about being a Darius Green. Better take a chance with some new idea as he did, than to remain in oblivion for a lifetime. If your first idea does not get over, perhaps the second, third or thirtieth will. And even if your idea is not immediately practicable, it will show the men who are watching your work that you are trying to do something out of the ordinary routine.

A Good Connection

Suggestion Boxes have been placed in convenient locations all over the Railroad. They are there for your use. If you can't find one send your suggestions to the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, where they will be referred promptly to the proper officers

First locomotive rebuilt at Glenwood

Glenwood Back Shop Turns Out Its First Rebuilt Locomotive

By EDRIC C. GREAVES, Magazine Correspondent

ENGINE 1003, a photograph of which is shown on this page, has the distinction of being the first locomotive to be built in the Glenwood Back Shop. This engine formerly belonged to the family of Class E-24 consolidated type freight locomotive, but the mechanical forces at Glenwood have converted it into an L-1-A type eight wheel modern switch locomotive.

In order to convert this engine into the switch class mentioned, the boiler of the old engine, which was No. 2292, had to be lengthened approximately fourteen inches. The frames were likewise lengthened, and an entirely new design of the front section was applied. The engine is also equipped with a superheater, the most improved and economical device for locomotive operation. The design of the main rods was changed, necessitating the manufacture of new rods. The pilloid valve motion, power reverse gear, new cylinders and other necessary parts, such as pistons, valves, heads, etc., were applied and the brake rigging redesigned.

Cab of engine 1003, designed at Glenwood Back Shop

The building of this engine was accomplished under the supervision of the superintendent of shops and with the concerted efforts of the entire shop organization. Everyone who had a part in its construction is justly proud of the finished product.

An outstanding feature of the new engine is the accessibility of the parts in the cab which are operated by the engineer and which are very conveniently located, as will be noted by the photograph of the interior of the cab.

Engine 1003 has been assigned to switching service in the Pittsburgh passenger yard, and the engineers operating it consider it to be one of the best switch engines they have ever handled.

Here's a New Time Saver in Handling Rail

By F. W. HARMON, Correspondent Lorain, Ohio

THE accompanying photographs show a time saving device for handling frogs and rails. It was built for General Foreman J. D. Drennan, Lorain Yard. Two men can easily operate the device and lift any size frog or double frog. In the photograph, two men are picking up a double frog, constructed of 85 pound rail. They took the frog from stock pile to Car Dump No. 2 to replace a worn-out frog. The work was accomplished with two men, the old frog being carried from the car dump to stock pile, a distance of 2000 feet, in one hour and thirty minutes. The work was done under the supervision of Mr. Drennan.

Without the labor saving device it would have required more men and time to handle this job. Maintenance officers in Baltimore who have seen these pictures say that the new device looks mighty good. It is simple enough, as the pictures show, and can probably be made from them at other points where needed.

Here is a practical illustration of good headwork applied to STOP THAT LEAK! The new way is easier, cheaper, quicker—generally more efficient. Congratulations, Mr. Drennan!

Labor saving device for lifting frogs and rails, the invention of General Foreman J. D. Drennan, Lorain Yard

September Actual Car Miles Show Hard for Leadership. Cold Weather

Actual Record, September, Excluding Bad Order Cars

Eastern Lines	- - - - -	30.8 Miles per Car per Day
Western Lines	- - - - -	30.6 Miles per Car per Day
System	- - - - -	30.7 Miles per Car per Day

WESTERN LINE DIVISIONS	Best Previous Weekly Average	Week Best Average Made	ESTIMATED—WEEKS OF
			October, 1923
			1-7	8-14	15-21	22-31
New Castle	46.8	4-21-23	31.1	30.7	31.6	32.3
Cleveland	35.1	10-14-20	26.7	26.2	23.7	23.7
Newark	47.0	4-30-12	25.4	24.2	24.7	24.8
Chicago	51.4	4-14-23	42.9	46.5	43.1	45.2
N. W. District	39.0	4-14-23	32.0	32.0	30.9	31.4
Ohio	81.2	4-21-16	56.6	61.8	65.3	68.6
Indiana	33.6	2-21-20	27.3	26.1	27.7	26.1
Illinois	34.0	9-7-16	25.5	25.6	22.5	25.2
Toledo	31.9	12-7-20	27.9	29.4	26.4	23.7
S. W. District	33.0	10-21-20	30.3	31.1	29.5	28.3
Western Lines	35.3	5-7-23	31.2	31.6	30.3	30.0
System	34.7	4-21-23	30.8	31.1	30.2	30.4

Western Lines Pushing Eastern Will Test Ability to Maintain Standard

EASTERN LINE DIVISIONS

Best Previous Weekly
Average

Week Best
Average
Made

ESTIMATED WEEKS OF

October, 1923

1-7 | 8-14 | 15-21 | 22-31

Philadelphia.....	80.2	6-30-15	62.5	65.2	61.8	68.6
Baltimore.....	19.3	10-21-23	17.4	19.0	19.3	17.5
Shenandoah.....	29.8	1-21-14	15.4	15.7	16.9	14.5
Cumberland—East.....	103.3	5-14-23	83.7	76.3	82.1	86.6
Cumberland—West.....	94.3	6-21-23	74.0	76.3	75.0	69.6
M. & K. Branch.....	18.7	11-7-22	12.8	16.2	9.4	10.2
Cumberland—Total.....	91.4	5-14-23	76.3	73.7	75.0	76.0
Maryland District.....	45.7	7-21-23	43.0	44.5	44.6	43.2
Monongah.....	21.5	5-7-23	15.4	15.2	15.4	15.3
Wheeling.....	20.3	8-7-20	12.2	13.2	11.8	13.3
Ohio River.....	44.7	6-7-16	29.2	35.7	29.2	32.4
Charleston.....	21.7	6-7-23	13.8	11.9	13.3	14.5
West Virginia District.....	21.0	6-7-23	14.6	15.1	14.4	15.4
Connellsville.....	44.4	4-7-23	28.7	28.4	29.6	32.4
Pittsburgh.....	48.5	4-7-23	40.3	37.4	34.9	35.2
Pennsylvania District.....	46.3	4-7-23	34.6	32.9	32.3	34.0
Eastern Lines.....	34.9	5-14-23	30.3	30.7	30.1	30.8

The Success or Failure of the Apple Crop Means Success or Failure for the People in the District

Photos by Barr, Winchester, Va.

1. The young apple trees. 2. Apple tree in full bloom. 3. The owner looks over his crop. 4. Where the empty barrels come from

"Apple Pie Ridge" Apples Go All Over the World

And the Baltimore and Ohio Helps Get Them There

By M. W. JONES, Assistant Editor

WHERE is Apple Pie Ridge? We have asked many people this question and the usual answer is "Never heard of it." And what is more remarkable, it is located right on our own Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, less than two hundred miles from Baltimore. It extends from Martinsburg, W. Va., to Winchester, Va. The story is told by local people that in the old days, when farmers were driving cows, etc., through this territory, they could always be sure of having apple pie for lunch, and so the ridge developed its present name. It is in the heart of the apple territory of the Cumberland and Shenandoah Valley Divisions.

The past two or three years have been poor ones in the apple industry, but this year, the crop is excellent, being almost equal to the banner production, and so it will be of interest to our readers to learn something of the industry which brings so much revenue to our Company and—in good years—prosperity to the producers.

A trip to the thriving town of Winchester, Virginia, on the Shenandoah Division, is well worth while. New cold storage plants have been constructed, with a capacity of approximately 450,000 barrels. Last year a large quantity of apples was brought from the Hood River district of Oregon and the Wenatchie district of Washington State. After having been stored in transit at Winchester, they moved to the markets of the Atlantic Seaboard. There are also large bi-product plants where cider vinegar is made, canning plants where apples are canned and other similar industries.

In talking with one of the largest apple producers in Winchester, we asked him, "What does the apple industry mean to your town?" He replied, "It is the life or death of the town. Probably 10,000 people depend on it, directly or indirectly. In good years, Winchester is prosperous. When the apple crop is poor, Winchester is also poor, and as you know, it seriously affects the revenue of your Company when the apple crop is damaged by frost, or for other reason." It is expected that this year, the Shenandoah Valley Division will give 1,200 cars of apples to the Baltimore and Ohio.

The apple pickers in Shenandoah District, which includes such towns as Winchester, Charles Town, etc., are secured from the mountains nearby. There is about two month's work, and a trip through an orchard will often show you father, mother, big brother and little sister all at work picking apples. Practically nothing is done to the trees during the winter. Some farmers spray their trees in the fall, others do not. But in the spring the real activity commences. Trees are pruned, sprayed and ground cultivated and preparations made for the crop.

This year, the apples have an exceptionally fine red color. Upon being asked why this was, our informant replied "The cold nights have done it."

Frederick County, Virginia, in which Winchester is located, is the heaviest apple producing county in the State of Virginia; Augusta County, in which Staunton is located, is the second heaviest. The Baltimore and Ohio Shenandoah Division traverses both counties.

At Winchester, there is an association known as the Frederick County Fruit Growers Association, composed of practically all the apple orchard owners in the county. They fix rates for labor, order spraying material and do anything necessary to promote the interest of the members. Practically all the apples in this county are disposed of through brokers and exporters. The apples go all over the world, the export figures being from 25 to 35 per cent. of the total crop. Four to five million gallons of cider vinegar are manufactured and the orchards range from 50 to 250 acres. The principal apples grown are York Imperial, Jonathan, Grimes Golden, Ben Davis, Delicious and Stayman Winesap.

One of the most delightful experiences a lover of nature could have is a trip through the apple orchards in the vicinity of North Mountain, near Martinsburg. One of the largest orchards there is owned by The Back Creek Valley Orchard Company, and through the courtesy of Mr. Cecil Wood, vice-president, the writer was taken on a trip through mile after mile of apple trees, all loaded down heavily with the luscious fruit. Many trees are so heavily loaded that the branches have split under the weight, and in some cases the trees themselves have split near the ground. This naturally made us ask our guide what was done to repair the damage in such cases. "Tree surgery," he replied. "If the break is at a small branch, we cut it off. If it is down in the stump of the tree, we bore a hole through, put in a bolt, with a piece of wood at each end to avoid damaging the tree, and then tighten it up." The Back Creek Orchard is 500 acres in extent and has about 20,000 trees producing, and a good average production is one barrel per tree.

The first apple trees are said to have been planted in Berkeley County in 1873, but only during the last fifteen years have they been grown intensively for commercial purposes. W. S. Miller of Gerrardstown was the first man to plant apple trees intensively.

An interesting operation is that of grading the apples. On the orchard is a small plant, with machinery for this purpose. It is a long belt, in which are holes of various sizes. The apples are fed to the grader and the first ones to drop through the perforated holes are the culls, which go off in a chute into a container. Similarly the sizes to follow are two inches, two and one quarter inches, two and one half inches and larger, each of which find a way automatically to a compartment from which they are packed directly into the barrels. Anything under two inches is discarded and sent to the vinegar mill, which is located at Martinsburg. Export apples are packed very tightly in order that they will not be bruised on their long rail and water trip.

The Cumberland Division crop is disposed of principally through a selling agency, although a few of the producers handle their product direct. The Martinsburg storage capacity is 50,000 barrels and the principal agencies located there are the American Fruit Growers, Eastern Fruit Growers, Associated Orchards, Martinsburg Fruit Exchange and Cumberland Fruit Exchange.

The crop this year from the Cumberland Division alone will give 3,000 cars to the Baltimore and Ohio, while the entire production from what is known as the Eastern Pan Handle of West Virginia will be in the

Find Apple Tree That is 150 Years Old

What is believed to be the oldest apple tree in this section, perhaps in the entire Cumberland Valley-Shenandoah Valley apple belt, has been discovered in Berkeley county. Furthermore it is still bearing fruit despite its age, and the fruit is of good size and richly colored. It is an old-time Hemp apple tree at the home of D. N. Kees, Jones Spring, and several specimens of the fruit are on display in the Journal office window. When a boy, Mr. Kees, now in the eighty-seventh year of his age, ate of the fruit of this tree and even at that time it was regarded as being very old. Within the past few years he made it his purpose to look up old documents and records and found sufficient evidence to lead him to believe the tree was planted at least 150 years ago. There are very few trees of this variety in existence in this locality. J. E. Kees, of Philadelphia, the well known apple buyer, brought the specimens of fruit to the Journal office.

—Martinsburg Journal

The Harvest on Apple Pie Ridge

Photos by Barr, Winchester, Va.

5. A fine branch of Winesaps. 6. Apples everywhere! These are culls at the bi-product plant. 7. Picking, grading and packing. 8. A typical bi-product plant

From Orchard to Pie

Photos 9 and 10 by Barr, Winchester, Va.

9. On the way to market. Until recently, barrels of apples were brought to Baltimore and Ohio stations in "trains," such as shown here, by tractors. Now, however, these heavy tractors are not permitted to use the roads and the apples are brought in on motor trucks. 10. Agent Canter, Winchester, Va., helping to load the cars. 11. A typical fruit stand in Lexington Market, Baltimore. 12. The final destination. From Apple Pie Ridge to Baltimore and Ohio Apple Pie, baked on the dining cars

FINAL COMMITTEE REPORTS ON GALLOWAY-FRIES DAY WERE GIVEN AT DINNER IN CINCINNATI ON OCTOBER 18

Head table, left to right: H. B. Voorhees, G. W. Sturmer, J. J. O'Donnell, J. H. Meyers, T. J. Murphy, J. H. Hughes, M. R. Waite, Opposite: W. Malthaner, C. R. Elkins. Left table, back to front, left side: G. D. Brooke, R. L. Galleher, L. A. Cordie, H. E. Duncan, W. T. Darling, J. M. Burke, R. I. Higgins, W. S. Morton, E. G. Sweeney, Right side: C. D. Douglass, R. B. Fitzpatrick, G. J. Beckman, W. J. Allison, W. A. Eggers, Right table, back to front, left side: E. L. Williams, G. W. Arnold, H. A. Iuler, D. A. Galinari, W. E. French, J. S. Jelleff, T. J. West, Frank Nock, Right side: E. B. Russell, G. R. Galloway, C. E. Fish, C. J. Cleary, W. B. Brice, W. C. Owens, J. L. Flanagan, J. J. Flanagan, W. P. Cahill, H. S. Stansbury

neighborhood of one million barrels. The Cumberland Division crop will be gathered between Harper's Ferry and Keyser, including the Berkeley Springs and Romney Branches, and the stations shipping, and estimated number of cars are: Kearneysville, 400; Martinsburg, 300; North Mountain, 800; Berkeley Springs, 200; Paw Paw, 250; Romney, 400; and Keyser, 300.

Apple trees are grown from seeds. The crab apple seed is most generally used. After the seedling is one year old, it is grafted or budded with whatever kind of apple is desired. The trees bear at from four to eight years and the maximum bearing is reached at from 18 to 23 years. However, our informant says that with proper care and cultivation, the trees should bear indefinitely.

That the life of the apple farmer is not all roses will be understood from the following story told by Mr. Wood. He said: "Last spring, when the trees were commencing to blossom, as you know we had some rather cold weather. One evening, when I arrived home, the thermometer registered 33. I called up my man at the orchard and asked him how it looked. He replied that the outlook was not encouraging, that the temperature was only one degree above freezing, and that the indications were it might get colder. Naturally, I was considerably worried. Later in the evening, I called him again, and was relieved to hear that the thermometer had moved up one degree and that a light rain was falling. However, you may imagine that I spent several what you would call 'thrilling' hours waiting to see if my entire year's income was going to disappear in a night."

In Martinsburg and vicinity, labor for picking the apples is secured locally as far as possible, and in some cases through agencies in Baltimore. The latter is not so satisfactory, for the reason that the men do not stay. The apple pickers are paid usually by the day, with board and lodgings furnished by the farmer. In some cases they are paid by the barrel, when a nominal charge is made for board.

To assist in the movement of the apple crop and to render proper service to our patrons, seven box cars have been set off and properly fitted up at North Mountain station, for the storage of apples. One man cannot load a car of apples in a day, that is, the small shipper. Therefore he stores his apples in one of the cars assigned to his use until he has a full carload, and thereby saves cars, loads quicker when he is ready to do so and in case of a car shortage the shipper can bring his apples to the station and have them stored until the cars arrive. To date, there has been practically no shortage of cars, all demands of our patrons being promptly filled. A new siding of 15 cars' capacity has just been completed at North Mountain, which gives a siding capacity of 45 cars at that point and takes good care of the needs of the shippers. Other improvements being considered by the local people at North Mountain are a cold storage plant and a bi-product plant.

Appreciative acknowledgement is made of the assistance rendered in gathering the data for this article by Mr. Boyd R. Richards, Winchester, Va., Mr. Cecil Wood, North Mountain, W. Va., Mr. John W. Stewart, Martinsburg, and Division Freight Agents J. L. Hayes and R. J. Beggs. The latter two gentlemen, with their travelling freight agents, are spending all the time necessary in the apple districts in order that prompt service may be given and the wishes of our patrons promptly filled. At North Mountain, also, Assistant Trainmaster Gearhart, of Cumberland, is making his headquarters while the apple shipments continue, so that he may personally take care of the requirements of all our patrons.

Navy Day Celebrated on October 27

WHAT does the Navy mean to you? How much did it mean to you, personally, before the World War? What did it mean to you during the War? And what will it mean to you and your children in the future?

These are the questions that were brought to our attention on October 27 when the United States celebrated Navy Day.

For the prosperity of our country, for the future of its citizens, for the maintenance of the rights and the ideals of the United States in her relationships with foreign nations, it is necessary that we, her citizens, shall be aware of the Navy's activities, its principles and its functions. To this end the Navy League has been conducting an educational campaign, that the people, to whom the president of the Navy

The son of General Foreman of Elevators C. E. Wood, Baltimore, who always flies his Capitol Limited kite above all others - where it should be League, Robert W. Kelley, has ascribed the title, "the Navy's stockholders," shall know what the Navy is doing.

On October 27, Navy Day, the service of the Navy was particularly recognized, the day when the heroes of the Navy, past and present, were honored. Those who know the horrors of war and who seek, through strength, to maintain the nation's peace, are more than entitled to recognition.

On August 23, Theodore Roosevelt, acting secretary of the Navy, wrote:

"It is the right of our people to be fully informed on the vital problem of national defense. The Navy is our bulwark. Behind its protection our people are able to carry on their lives, develop their ideals, and live in the righteous peace which we so earnestly desire * * * *"

"Every man and woman of the United States, especially those with children, should make it their business to see that our treaty Navy is adequately and properly maintained."

The "Treaty Navy" to which Mr. Roosevelt refers, is the naval strength agreed to by the United States in conference with the other powers in the epoch-making Naval Limitation Conference in Washington in 1922.

Camden Employees Will Dance Together on November 26

OUR employees located at Camden Station will hold their Second "Get Together" Dance on Monday, November 26, at the Automobile Club, Mt. Royal Avenue and Cathedral Street. All Baltimore and Ohio employees and their friends are invited to attend. The prices of tickets are: Single Admission, $.75; Couple, $1.25.

Refreshments, including ice cream, cake and soft drinks will be served without additional charge. Novelties will be distributed.

Tickets can be procured from J. B. Higden, Room 15, Camden Station.

Engineer E. H. Brown Gets Tip on Capitol Limited

E. H. Brown, a Baltimore and Ohio engineer, was in a large store in the shopping district, Washington, D. C., recently. While waiting for his purchase to be wrapped up, his attention was attracted to a meeting between two business men, near him. After shaking hands and discussing the weather, etc., they started a discussion of railroads and their service. One of them said: "The Capitol Limited of the Baltimore and Ohio is the finest train I have ever ridden on. It is strictly up to date and has every comfort." The other gentleman replied, "Yes, it has surely put Washington on the map. I wish we had more trains like that."

Delegates of the Baltimore Club, National Paint, Oil and Varnish Association, leaving Mount Royal Station on special car attached to The Capitol Limited, October 13, to attend convention in Chicago

Expediting Machine Operations at Mt. Clare Shops

Easier Work and Larger Production Are the Result of Better Coordination

By J. T. CARROLL, General Superintendent, Motive Power

THE unusual influx of work occasioned by the recent heavy repairs to cars and remodeling of locomotives presented a very difficult problem to the authorities at Mt. Clare.

The department heads were confronted with the apparently impossible task of performing the variety of machine operations necessary during the completion of the additional work on machines that seemingly were already operating to full capacity.

With the work coming in rapidly and with no immediate prospect of getting additional machine facilities, the need for a speedy solution was obvious. A study of the machines on which the new work must necessarily be performed, developed some rather interesting facts concerning the manner in which time was spent on the different operations. It was discovered that while the workmen were operating the machines as efficiently as could be expected, the actual cutting time on the work constituted a surprisingly small percentage of the time required for the entire operation. This was caused by the fact that a great deal of time was necessarily spent setting up work, clamping work, grinding tools, and operating but one part of the machine—the operator being limited in this latter connection by having but two arms and two hands.

To shorten these preliminary operations and to reduce the time between cuts, it was decided to place an experienced apprentice on some of the machines in question, to assist in their operation and to help generally. This was put into effect on four machines in No. 1 Machine Shop, viz.: boring mill, and planer used for cylinder manufacturing, and slotter and planer used in connection with machining frames and other heavy locomotive parts.

The advantage of this move was apparent immediately. On the cylinder boring mill and cylinder planer, with the assistance of the experienced apprentice, the operator saves from two to three hours on a pair of cylinders. On the boring mill the boy assists in handling the cylinder from the floor with the use of crane, to locate it

SETTING UP, CLAMPING AND MACHINING LOCOMOTIVE FRAMES AT MT. CLARE SHOPS

Upper left: Note the length of the frames to be set up and the number of clamps used, also the necessity of walking around the machine when setting up with one machinist. It requires about 8 hours to set and clamp one pair of frames. Upper right: The same operation with a machinist and an advanced apprentice. The necessity for walking around table is eliminated, as two men are available for clamping. It requires about 5 hours to set and clamp one pair of frames with the two men. The result is an increased output of the planer. Lower: A frame slotter with two heads operated by a machinist while the advanced apprentice is engaged in setting up another job on a different part of the table. This operation results in an increased output of the machine by keeping the machine in constant operation on the machine, and helps to set up and clamp after it is located. On the cylinder planer the operator, by reason of having the additional help, is able to arrange a different set up, with himself operating one cutting head and the apprentice boy the other.

On the frame slotter the help was particularly valuable on account of the design of the machine. This machine has two heads and unless work with long straight cutting is available, it is not practicable to require simultaneous operation of both heads by the one man. Previously, on account of the nature of the work at hand, one of the heads was often idle, but with the aid of the apprentice boy, the two heads are in continuous operation, regardless of the class of work. Further, when the work permits of the operation of the two heads by one man, the other man can be setting another job on a different part of the table.

The help of the apprentice boy probably shows the greatest return on the frame planer, resulting in a saving of approximately three hours in setting up time on table load, this set up previously requiring an average of eight hours per table load. The assistance he renders the operator in setting up and clamping is of greater value here than on the other three machines mentioned, because of the size of the machine and the fact that in most instances a number of parts are machined at one time. This, of course, requires a great deal of setting up and clamping and the length of time between cuts is greater here than elsewhere. In addition to this, the massiveness of the machine and its different units does not permit a speedy movement of hand, which at best is limited by the strength of the operator. The additional help is most keenly appreciated by the workman and the moral effect on him is invaluable.

The results attained so speedily on the four machines mentioned were so gratifying

Superintendent Car Department Tatum entering the Arlington Ave. gate, Mt. Clare, on September 17. Forty-four years ago to the very day, he entered the same gate to begin his service as messenger boy.

from the standpoint of efficiency that the advisability of applying the idea generally is being considered and studies are now under way to determine where the size and class of work performed warrants its introduction.

On March 1, 1920 Mr. Tatum returned to his work as superintendent of the Car Department of the Baltimore and Ohio.

During his long railroad career, Mr. Tatum has invented many useful safety devices now largely used in railroad equipment.

Superintendent Car Department Tatum Repeats Role He Played as Messenger Boy Forty-Four Years Ago

ON September 17, 1879, John J. Tatum, now superintendent of the Car Department of the Baltimore and Ohio, entered the service as a messenger boy at Mt. Clare. Forty-four years later to the day, as he was passing through the very same gate at Arlington Avenue which he went through on the first day of his service, his friend, T. R. Stewart, superintendent of shops, Mount Clare, took the accompanying excellent and significant photograph of him.

Shortly after beginning his service at Mt. Clare, Mr. Tatum took up apprentice work and in 1885 was made a car builder. He was promoted successively, in 1886 to inspector at Baltimore and Philadelphia; 1887, gang foreman, Baltimore; 1888, steam heat inspector, line of Road; 1889, assistant foreman, Mount Clare; 1898, general foreman, Camden and Baileys; 1900, chief car inspector, Pullman, Illinois; 1902 and 1907, general car foreman, respectively at Baltimore Terminals and Mount Clare; 1907, superintendent, Car Department of the System.

On April 1, 1918, he was appointed manager of the car repair section of the United States Railroad Administration and served in this capacity during the entire war period, being in charge of the building, conditioning and repairing of all passenger and freight cars in all railway shops under Federal control. His handling of this important work during so critical a period gave splendid satisfaction to the Administration.

Steel Rail for 1924

ANNOUNCEMENT was made on October 2 that the Baltimore and Ohio had placed orders for 50,000 tons of steel rails, to be delivered during 1924, as follows:

Carnegie Steel Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.	25,000 tons.
Illinois Steel Co., Gary, Indiana	4,000 tons.
Cambria Steel Co., Johnstown, Pa.	10,000 tons.
Inland Steel Co., Indiana Harbor, Ind.	3,000 tons.
Be'lehem Steel Co., Steelton, Pa.	8,000 tons.

Total . . . . . 50,000 tons.

All of this is 100 pound rail except 5,000 tons of 130 pound. It is expected that delivery will commence early in the year and be completed during the first six months.

Including track fastenings, etc., the cost of this material will approximate $4,300,000.

Orders were also placed with the Inland Steel Company, Indiana Harbor, Ind., for 2,000 tons of rail for the Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad, at Chicago.

How the Fairmont Veterans "Get Their Names in the Newspapers"

THOSE of you who pick up the newspapers of Fairmont and read all about the happenings of the folks in the Veteran's Association are, perhaps, totally unaware of the manner in which these happy folk manage to get so much publicity. There is a secret connected therewith. Do I dare to reveal it? Perhaps I'd better see Mrs. Harry Fleming, or Mrs. Bartlett, or Mrs. Swisher, or one of the others of the many Baltimore and Ohio woman who do so much to make the meeting evenings pleasant for their husbands of the Veteran's Association. Read on.

On the evening of September 21, the Veterans held their usual monthly meeting. Seven-thirty to eight o'clock found the womenfolk coming down the hills to the hall in which the meetings are held. Each carried a mysterious looking package. If one had wanted to be actually "nosey," he would have lifted the paper covers of these mysterious-looking packages. What would he have found therein? Well, one was a basket of sandwiches, another a kettle of fruit salad, and still another a package of cake and a pound or two of coffee. And why? The curious person asked one of them after the party had arrived at the K. of P. Hall.

"We've got to feed the Veterans if we want to bring them out to meetin'," the lady declared, spreading on the butter and filling up the coffee pot.

"And see our new dishes," proclaimed another. "These are the dishes and this is the cabinet that Mr. J. M. Scott gave us. Ours is the J. M. Scott Auxiliary, you know. And he comes down here sometimes to enjoy the evening with us and to help eat out of the dishes."

The meeting was called to order by Mrs. Wittman, for the ladies. President Fletcher being absent because of having to make an extra run, Mr. Shafferman took charge in behalf of the men.

After the opening hymn, "America," Brother Shafferman made an interesting report on the trip to Cincinnati on Galloway-Fries Day. He then advised that the meetings hereafter will be held on the fourth Friday of each month. The Veterans and the Ladies then went into their respective sessions. The business of the evening was soon disposed of and the evening's entertainment program was begun. The announcements were made by Mrs. Wittman.

Miss Lucille Staley gave a group of songs. Miss Staley had just returned from a visit to the West and her welcome home was a cordial one. The assembly missed the songs of Douglas Fleming, who, because of the absence of his accompanist, was unable to entertain. A talk on her trip to France was given by "Aunt Mary," associate editor of the MAGAZINE, and the Veterans amused themselves afterward by asking all sorts of funny questions concerning the French people, particularly in connection with their habits outside of the three-mile limit. "Aunt Mary" also made an appeal to the women of the Baltimore and Ohio to help her in her efforts to make our Women's Department one of the finest of any magazine in the country. Our women have a big opportunity here that women in other businesses do not. The making of a happy railroad man depends in a great measure upon his wife. Household worries and indigestion are the two things that will probably do more to make a poor railroader of a good man than any other two elements combined. The Fairmont women promised their hearty co-operation.

Miss Donna Adams then gave several delightful piano solos. Brother Shafferman made an interesting little address in which he urged the members of the Association to attend regularly. He also spoke of the value of these get-together meetings, of friendship among our members, and of

Chartered by Congress
To Relieve and Prevent Suffering
In Peace and In War
At Home & Abroad

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

The American Red Cross holds its Seventh Annual Roll Call from Armistice Day to Thanksgiving, November 11 to 29.

Activities of the Red Cross, for which it is asking the support of the American people, include work for disabled ex-service men and their families, service to the regular Army and Navy, Disaster Relief, First Aid, Life Saving, Enrollment of Nurses, Public Health Nursing, Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick, Nutrition Service and the Junior Red Cross.

This is the one appeal which the Red Cross makes during the year. It needs your support. Won't you give it?

THESE MEN HELP TO MOVE THE APPLE CROP FROM WINCHESTER, VA.

Left to right: Operator-Ticket Agent M. B. Murman, thirty-two years service. Still single, but—watch him jump when the Buick sedan toots three times! H. C. Miller, H. R. Shaver, Agent J. H. Canter, L. B. Grimm and R. E. Johnson the mutual service that we can be to each other to the end of making better, happier, and more efficient railroad men and women.

Brother Downey then announced that there had been presented to the local chapter a record of all injured employes during the service of Dr. Broomfield. This book is particularly interesting from the standpoint of Safety.

Then came the "eats," which were well worth the attendance of any Veteran.

And now, shall I tell you the secret? After the fun was over and everybody was ready to say good night, Sister Fleming and an accomplice in the dark deed slipped away into the darkness of the night and over to the office of one of Fairmont's leading newspapers, carrying in her arms a big package. Eats for the editor! Ah, so that was it.

Next morning the Fairmont Times carried a half-column story of the Veteran's meeting.

The motto of this story is: They all fall for something to eat.

Employes' Seventh Annual Ball, Wheeling Division

THE Seventh Annual Ball of the Wheeling Division, Baltimore and Ohio Employes, will be held at Convention Hall, Market Auditorium, Wheeling, W. Va., on Thursday, December 28, 1923. Heinie Kutsch and His Band of Ten Men and entertainers will furnish the music for the dance program. Novelties will be introduced at this event and the decorations will be elaborate, being carried out in Baltimore and Ohio effects to the fullest extent. Special trains will be provided. It is hoped to make this the largest of any annual ball and no expense will be spared to entertain all employes, families and their friends. Everybody is cordially invited.

Now is a good time to play Santa Claus to some of your friends by asking them to use the Baltimore and Ohio for holiday travel!

North Baltimore, Ohio, Celebration Betokens Amazing Growth of the Railroad

IDEAL weather favored the Golden Anniversary celebration of the arrival of the first Baltimore and Ohio train at North Baltimore, Ohio, on October 9, 10 and 11.

The first train entered North Baltimore in charge of Conductor Frank Swinehart, who was an honored guest at the celebration. The first depot was in B. L. Peters' store, and the first platform was constructed of logs and located where the handsome Beacon Block now stands. The first engine was the Thomas Riley, weighing 20 tons.

Today, the Baltimore and Ohio has over 5000 miles of main line, and its equipment consists of approximately 2600 locomotives, 97,000 freight cars, 1300 passenger cars, 2300 work and other cars. The engines today weigh as much as 300 tons. Twelve passenger, two express and 36 freight trains pass through North Baltimore each 24 hours.

Fifty years ago, October 7, the citizens of a hamlet then known as New Baltimore, a hamlet composed of two stores, a school house and a few dwellings, with plenty of mud and surrounded by forest, celebrated the arrival of the first Baltimore and Ohio train. Today, the 3000 inhabitants of North Baltimore, proud of its well lighted and paved streets, its two fine schools and five churches, celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the important event.

October 9 was Pioneer Day. The notable feature of the program was the parade of scores of floats, decorated automobiles, school children and teachers, etc. A band led the parade, followed by automobiles conveying some of the pioneers. In the afternoon the opening address was made by Mayor Fulton, A. H. McMillen acting as chairman of the meeting. Vice-President Charles W. Galloway stopped at North Baltimore to speak to the assemblage. He outlined the policies and needs of the railroad and the importance, both from the standpoint of the public and the railroads, that the Roads be allowed to grow and develop without hostile legislation. Addresses were also made by former residents of North Baltimore.

October 10 was Baltimore and Ohio Day. The Railroad was represented by General Superintendent D. F. Stevens, General Passenger Agent G. W. Squiggins, Division Passenger Agent G. F. Scheer, Division Freight Agent D. E. Sullivan, E. L. Bangs, who had charge of the railroad exhibit, and many local employes. Agent F. W. Paden, who is president of the Commercial Club, under whose auspices the celebration was held, was on many of the committees. W. H. McMillen, North Baltimore, was in charge of the entertainment committee on Baltimore and Ohio Day. The success of this day was due, in a large measure, to the hard work of Mr. McMillen. He met all trains and cars, took personal care of strangers and in every way made the day enjoyable to the visitors, a number of whom were entertained by him at lunch in his beautiful home in North Baltimore.

Agent F. W. Paden, North Baltimore, Ohio, and Chairman of the Commercial Club, which had charge of the celebration, standing in "vestibule" of the old coach "Nova Scotia"

The Baltimore and Ohio exhibit consisted of the old engine "Atlantic," one of the latest type freight engines of the 4400 class, and the old coach "Pioneer." The North Baltimore Times says:

"The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad has the thanks of the business men and the citizens generally for the cooperation in the celebration. The bringing of the 1832 engine here and the ancient coaches with their history and stories of the early days of transportation, made a very valuable contribution to the celebration. The placing of the big freight engine in contrast afforded an example of the advance in transportation. The display was not only sent here, but men were in charge to show off the display. The withdrawing of the big engine from use for three or more days entailed a loss of service in the neighborhood of a hundred dollars a day. The services of the

SOME OF THE PEOPLE WHO HELPED NORTH BALTIMORE CELEBRATE ITS "GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY"

1. Left to right: Road Foreman Del Hartle, George Smith, E. L. Bangs in charge of exhibit, Machinist William Mahel, who acted as fireman for the "Atlantic."
2. Night Clerk Harry Blecker.
3. Frank Swinehart, who came with the first train to North Baltimore.
4. Frank, son of Agent Paden. "A chip off the old block."
5. Chairman W. H. McMillen and the Mayor of North Baltimore.
6. Milt Urie, Chairman in the Engineering Gang, who helped to survey the right-of-way through North Baltimore, and T. J. Frazier, of Tax Department, Tiffin, Ohio.
7. Division Passenger Agent Scheer, General Passenger Agent George W. Squiggins.
8. Mrs. Elsie Melroy Chief Clerk to Agent.
9. W. E. Borin, in charge of exhibition engine 4328. Garrett, Ind.

railroaders who were sent here at a cost to the Railroad of hundreds of dollars. Also, the visits of the Railroad officials to this place tends to make the town favorably known along the entire system."

One of the visitors at the celebration was T. J. Frazier, who was a transitman in charge of the survey of the Baltimore and Ohio between Tiffin and Defiance. Mr. Frazier is now in the service of the Tax Department. Mr. G. W. Urie, who is no longer connected with the Railroad, was with Mr. Frazier on the survey, and was also a visitor on Baltimore and Ohio Day. Speeches were made on October 10 by General Superintendent Stevens, General Passenger Agent Squiggins, Division Freight Agent Sullivan, Mr. Bangs and other officers present.

Frank Swinehart, now 72 years of age, who brought the first train to North Baltimore, who was the guest of honor, has many interesting stories to tell of the early days in railroading. He said:

"North Baltimore was quite a pleasant place those days. I think there were six houses. Maybe one of them was a general store. I remember that when we brought our train to the end of the track, we asked someone where the town was. He pointed to the little group of houses and grinned.

"The locomotive which pulled the train to North Baltimore was the 'Thomas Riley,' a 20-ton engine of the Rogers type. The tracks did not run through what is now the central part of North Baltimore, but ended abruptly near the site of Rockwell's flour mill. The end of the line was blocked by a wooden fence.

"Besides the locomotive and tender, there were only three cars on the Willard-Deshler train. Of course, the trains weren't usually speedy then. They had no set schedule, and we jogged along much like a horse and buggy going through the countryside.

"There was little ballast on the tracks and we had a bumpy time of it. We bobbed up and down and swerved around like the roller-coaster at Walbridge Park."

Mr. Swinehart first worked for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad on the Straitsville Division. He later became a brakeman on the Northern Division and remained with the Railroad for several years after the tracks were laid to North Baltimore, then called New Baltimore.

He has now retired and lives at 713 Chestnut Street, Toledo, Ohio.

Confetti, whistles, whips, balloons, red fire, laughter and noise made up the story for the final day of the celebration. Great throngs arrived all day on the Baltimore and Ohio, by train and by street car, automobile and on foot. The home comers were many, and former acquaintances met and retold stories of the days of the oil boom and many other things which have made history for their home town.

The North Baltimore Commercial Club is to be heartily congratulated on the great work they did in putting across their celebration, its officers, to whom special credit is due, being President J. F. W. Paden, Secretary A. L. French, Assistant Secretary O. E. Sponsler and Treasurer J. W. Borough.

W. L. Etchison, Retired Supervisor, Old Main Line, Baltimore Division

TO have completed 49 years active service, the larger part of which has been in a responsible position, would seem a life's undertaking. To have done this, and, at the age of 70 years, to retire and carry with him the love and respect of those working under him, is a beautiful accomplishment. To have carried the load of keeping the Old Main Line from Relay to Frederick Junction always ready to handle the heaviest traffic in its history, to the admiration of his superiors, is ample proof of business success. Supervisor W. L. Etchison, Old Main Line, who retired from active service on April 19, 1923, is the man who did this.

To honor him his foremen and section men gave a dinner at Mt. Airy on August 12, and as a token of their appreciation of his kindly and just stewardship, presented him with a beautiful ring.

Those officials most closely associated with Mr. Etchison during the past few years, also gave a dinner in his honor at Ridgeville, on August 18. All his old foremen were present. After the dinner Mr. Etchison was presented with a beautiful fowling piece by the officials. It is anticipated and hoped by all that for many years Mr. Etchison's undimmed sight may permit him pleasurably to increase his larder by the accurate use of this gift.

W. L. Etchison, Retired Supervisor

General Office Baseball League Closes Season with Field Day

THE Baltimore and Ohio General Office Baseball League closed its 1923 season on Saturday, September 29, with a Field Day at Druid Hill Park for members of the various teams. Six events were scheduled and competition was keen among the contestants. The final results, with prizes indicated, were as follows:

Fungo Batting for Distance

- 1st—J. E. Boland—337 feet—Mt. Clare—One pair baseball shoes.
- 2nd—C. A. Eisenacker—319 feet—Mt. Clare—One fielder's glove.

Beating Out Bunt Hit—Home plate to first base

- 1st—C. E. Leatherbury—3½ seconds—Treasury—One first baseman's glove.
- 2nd—W. A. Hanna—3½ seconds—Mt. Clare—One fielder's glove.

Circling Bases Against Time

- H. E. Eyerly—16 seconds—Mt. Clare—One fielder's glove.
- L. A. Dunphy—16 seconds—Treasury—One fielder's glove.
- E. R. Williams—16 seconds—Mt. Clare—One fielder's glove.

Throwing Baseball for Accuracy

- 1st—N. Summers—5 inches—Treasury—Catcher's glove.
- 2nd—G. A. MacMillen—1 foot, seven inches—Mt. Clare—One first baseman's glove.

Throwing Baseball for Long Distance

- 1st—C. E. Leatherbury—321 feet—Treasury—One pair baseball shoes.

- 2nd—C. A. Eisenacker—291 feet—Mt. Clare—Three bats.

Throwing Baseball for Long Distance (Managers Only)

- 1st—R. E. Ward—279 feet—Treasury—Sweater.
- 2nd—Ray Poole—260 feet—Transportation—One fielder's glove.
- 3rd—G. T. MacMillen—212 feet—River-side—One fielder's glove.

At the conclusion of these events the award of the cup was made to the Mt. Clare team as champions of the Baltimore and Ohio General Office Baseball League for the year 1923.

A post season series of three games was arranged for between the strong Washington Terminal team and the champions of the League—Mt. Clare. The first game was played at Washington on Wednesday, September 26. This was won by Washington with a score of 4 to 3.

The second game of the series was played at Druid Hill Park after the award of the championship cup, and was also won by Washington, score 5 to 2.

WELFARE DEPARTMENT

Issued October 2, 1923.

The Man at the Top

is the man who has acquired the habit of going to the bottom of things!

—J. C. WILKINS, Inspector Fuel Service

SYSTEMATIC PLANNING OF WORK SAVES MONEY AT MOUNT CLARE SHOP

1 and 3, Reclaimed parts of Turbine Headlight Generators. 2. Heads for 4 spindle drill press. 5. Gears cut on automatic gear cutter. 6. Automatic gear cutter

Savings Are Best Effected through Systematic Planning

By W. J. BAUMAN, Assistant Foreman, No. 3 Machine Shop, Mt. Clare

ONE of the greatest losses to any corporation is the large material waste occurring when ends are cut from lengthy material. So as to reduce this loss to a minimum we have designed and installed the material rack, illustrated. Here these ends, together with bar stock, can be properly piled according to size. These ends can be utilized to good advantage, creating savings far in excess of the cost of erecting the rack. This is systematic saving. (See opposite page for pictures.)

The scope of work in our shops covers particularly the repairing, installation and maintenance of machinery at Mount Clare, together with the manufacturing of parts for line of road equipment.

The four heads in the accompanying illustrations are four spindle drills in our Smith Shop. This machine is operated twenty-four hours daily and one can readily appreciate the necessity of expediting the completion of its repairs so as not to retard the output in this particular shop.

We have allotted a portion of our shop to gear cutting so as to meet any emergency that may arise in this line of work. Gears of various sizes are carried in our stock, as shown in picture. Gear cutter on which they are completed is also shown.

The following recapitulation shows that $14,000.00 was saved within a period of five months, April to August, 1923, inclusive, on the reclamation of turbine generators, also pictured:

RECAPITULATION
Total Purchased Cost.....	$16,369.28
EXPENSES
Labor.....	$1,087.63
Supervision.....	163.90
Miscellaneous Expenses.....	208.29
Material.....	658.22
Storehouse Expense.....	20.41
	$2,138.45
Amount Saved by Reclaiming....	14,230.83
	$16,369.28	$16,369.28

In reclaiming it is necessary for us to weld the shaft, bore the frames, re-bush with new style bushing, and turn shaft to micrometer fit. This will explain the high material and labor cost in the table given above.

We feel that there is no limit to the amount that can be saved by our competent staff of efficient mechanics, who are constantly trying to "STOP THAT LEAK."

How the Members of the Railroad Labor Board Have Voted

By BEN W. HOOPER, Chairman

THE tables given below are a consolidation of those heretofore prepared by H. H. Reed, supervisor of dockets, and cover all votes of the Board from April 15, 1921, to April 15, 1923, both preliminary and final, on all questions except wage increases and decrees, which are omitted because of the obvious impracticability of making such a tabulation reflect the facts without voluminous explanation. The matter of wage decisions may be concisely and accurately covered, however, by the general statement that all wage increases during the period have been voted by the public and labor groups and all wage decreases by the public and railroad groups.

The roll calls were not tabulated where the Board was unanimous or where only one member voted in the minority, such questions being so devoid of controversy as to serve no purpose in reflecting the shades of opinion on the Board. There have been several hundred unanimous decisions during the period in question. Where the identical matter had been previously voted on, or where the vote was not on the merits of the question, but merely on the jurisdiction of the Board, the vote was not tabulated.

The making of this tabulation was occasioned by the known fact that the officials of certain labor organizations were

The accompanying article was sent to our Magazine by Ben W. Hooper, chairman of the United States Railroad Labor Board. It has been our policy not to publish anything of a controversial nature in our pages, but in view of the wide interest taken among Railroad employees in the decisions of the Labor Board, we feel that, without further comment, this statement by Mr. Hooper should be placed before our readers.

Editor

making a similar tabulation affecting some of the members of the Board. The statement that the minutes of the Board have been so checked for this purpose has since been published in Labor, the official organ of the employees, accompanied by broad conclusions alleged to be based thereon. The immediate purpose of such check seemed to be to create the impression that the interests of the employees had not received fair consideration by reason of the bias of certain members of the Board. This was a legitimate use of a public record, provided the facts and figures were fairly given. It therefore seemed that it was due to the Board, to the parties who appear before it, and to the public that the facts should be correctly and fully stated. It may also be noted that many inquiries are made from time to time by citizens as to the manner in which this three-party Board functions.

As a matter of course, the naked votes of the Board can not show with exact accuracy where justice has lain in all these cases. It can not be presumed that the majority has always been right and the minority always wrong. The figures can only be taken as showing in a general way the various trends of opinion and shades of judgment among the three groups on the Board. No deductions are drawn and the bare tabulation of the roll calls neither commends nor criticizes anybody. Doubtless each member of the Board would readily undertake to demonstrate the justice of each of his votes.

GROUP AND MEMBER	VOTE FAVORABLE TO		TOTAL VOTES
	CARRIER	EMPLOYEE
PUBLIC—
Hooper.....	301	594	825
Hanger.....	205	687	892
Barton.....	413	283	696
EMPLOYEE—
Phillips.....	7	586	593
Wharton.....	14	910	924
McMenimen.....	51	822	873
RAILROAD—
Higgins.....	685	206	891
Elliott.....	830	95	926
Baker.....	884	17	901

Included in the above statement are 111 five-to-four votes, and upon those roll calls the members of the groups voted as shown in the following table:

GROUP AND MEMBER	VOTE FAVORABLE TO		TOTAL VOTES
	CARRIER	EMPLOYEE
PUBLIC—
Hooper.....	57	54	111
Hanger.....	9	102	111
Barton.....	105	6	111
EMPLOYEE—
Phillips.....	0	111	111
Wharton.....	2	109	111
McMenimen.....	3	108	111
RAILROAD—
Higgins.....	108	3	111
Elliott.....	107	4	111
Baker.....	106	5	111

Just Like That

First Flapper—"That conductor glared at me as if I hadn't paid my fare."

Second Flapper—"What did you do?"

First Flapper—"I glared back at him as though I had."—Railway Agent.

The Coal Bill and the Work Report

Archie and Greasy at the Inspection Pit

ARCHIE took a walk down toward "the shop" to see what kind of a leak his friend Grease Plug was trying to stop. Meeting at the Inspection Pit, Archie took advantage of the occasion to ease his mind of its burden on the subject of the Work Report—

"I see that you are starting at the right place to get them fixed. If you see that the Work Report shows the actual conditions and get your boss to have the defects corrected RIGHT NOW, you will stop SOME LEAK."

"As a rule, poor running time, defective conditions on the locomotive and excessive fuel consumption go hand-in-hand; so you can see that it is up to the enginemen and locomotive inspectors to report everything that tends to reduce the efficiency of the locomotive, as the inefficient machine always means more work and harder work for the engine crew and the shop forces. And the practice of neglecting needed repairs until 'next trip' because 'she will run' makes double trouble for the shop official."

Stop That Leak !

Officers of Western Lines Honor Former General Manager Begien at Testimonial Dinner

ON October 3 the officers of the Western Lines gathered for dinner at the Hotel Gibson, Cincinnati, to honor Ralph N. Begien, formerly general manager of the Western Lines, and now operating vice-president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway. A number of the executive officers of the Railroad and departmental chiefs and officers of the Eastern Lines were seated at Mr. Begien's table as guests of the occasion.

Good fellowship was the pass word of the evening, the dinner was an excellent one, and the leader of the orchestra knew how to tickle the musical palate of the guests when he led them in chorus in such popular songs of a generation or more ago as "Little Annie Rooney," "The Sidewalks of New York" and "Comrades." Morrison R. Waite, general solicitor of the Western Lines, knows that at least one strong point in the role of a toastmaster is brevity. The first toast, "Operation and Maintenance," was responded to by Vice-President C. W. Galloway. After opening with his usual well chosen story, he said in part:

Mr. Galloway

"It is a pleasure for me to bring my tribute of respect and esteem to our honored guest, Mr. Begien, tonight. The Baltimore and Ohio did not want to lose him, but knowing that the offer made Mr. Begien was a most attractive one, it was glad to see him make the change. He is eminently fitted for his new position and it is gratifying to his friends to know that he has been thus honored. Mr. Begien is not alone among Baltimore and Ohio men who have gone to positions of greater responsibility with other railroads, and to the credit of the Baltimore and Ohio and these men be it said that all have won distinction in their new fields. Mr. Begien's name will add additional luster to this honor; roll.

"It is interesting to know that only twelve years ago Mr. Begien was a division engineer on our Road. His rapid advancement should be an inspiration to us because, although we may not all attain a position comparable to the one he has just assumed, we may nevertheless better ourselves measurably by practicing the fine qualities of application, diligent study and sacrifice which largely account for his success. It is disappointing how often we find men on the Railroad who are satisfied, men who have not the insistent determination to make themselves more valuable and thus to rise higher.

"Most of you recall that some of Mr. Begien's outstanding characteristics are restlessness, curiosity and imagination. He was into everything and he put into effect many good things on our Railroad."

Mr. Galloway then remarked that he did not think it a fitting occasion to talk in a technical sense on the subject of his address, "Operation and Maintenance," but that he felt it appropriate to call attention to the great record already made and being added to during 1923 by the railroads of the United States. He said that the facility with which the record movement of freight and passengers had been handled was adequate proof of the ability of the railroads to work out a satisfactory solution of the so-called railroad problem, and he urged that the best antidote for the agitation against the railroads and the predicted tampering with the Transportation Act, is to carry on in the same way in which operations are now being conducted, increasing efficiency, improving service and adding to facilities wherever and whenever possible. He said:

"We of the Operating Department feel that we have handled quite a job this year on the Baltimore and Ohio, but we could have done more, and we want the Traffic Department to push us so hard with a greater and greater volume of business that we will be able to keep on making even more creditable operating records.

"When I spoke of the big job we have done I did not, of course, refer only to the operating staff all the way down the line through the division officers. I wish to give special credit to the rank and file in the Operating Department—they have certainly done their work like men. I have never known so fine a spirit of cooperation as exists on the Baltimore and Ohio today. In the words of President Willard, our men certainly seem to be handling their jobs well 'not because they feel obliged to do so, but because they want to do so.'

"In again congratulating Mr. Begien on his new honor on behalf of the entire operating staff, and wishing him the greatest success, we also pledge him our hearty co-operation in whatever concerns the mutual interests of the Chesapeake and Ohio and the Baltimore and Ohio."

Mr. Mitchell

The toastmaster next called upon F. B. Mitchell, general superintendent, Southwest District, to respond in behalf of "The Staff."

Mr. Mitchell confessed that he had been to his dictionary and there had found several definitions of the subject of his talk. The first meaning was given as a "rod," but he assured his hearers that the only way in which Mr. Begien had used the staff in this sense was to "poke out facts" and never to point it at an individual or leave a wound.

Referring to the derived definition of the word, "a body of men in charge of a large organization," Mr. Mitchell emphasized the pleasant candor and friendliness which always characterized staff associations under the leadership of Mr. Begien.

"We were always glad to have him with us," he said, "always happy to have his counsel and guidance and association in our staff councils.

"When he came out here years ago to increase the tonnage of our trains, we did not receive him, perhaps, with all the acclaim and friendliness which we might have, because we felt that our tonnage was about as good as it could be under existing conditions. It was not long, however, before, under his leadership and planning, the tonnage had gone up materially and without interfering in any way with other standards of operation.

"Speaking for the staff, Mr. Begien, I say most sincerely that we were all sorry to see you go. We have enjoyed working for and with you. We know that further success will be yours and we hope to see you often."

Mr. Campbell

George H. Campbell, assistant to President Willard, was next called upon to respond to the toast "Our Neighbors." He said that the understanding of what a neighborly attitude means on the part of the Railroad should not be difficult since it is only an application of the "good neighbor spirit" as it exists among householders in a community, to the larger field of the Railroad and the hundreds of communities which it serves.

"It is not news to you that the attitude of the railroads towards the public," he said, "has changed materially in the last twenty years. The necessity for a better understanding was apparent and it can be fairly stated that the railroads as a whole have done well their part to bring about this better understanding.

"Our business, through the reports made to the Interstate Commerce Commission, is open to public inspection, and we have public relations committees not only in the home office, but also on the divisions, to give the public such information as they may desire about our Road, and to keep them apprised of the progress we are making.

"It has been a part of my work to handle complaints which come to the president from all kinds of people. I have visited in this connection the French ambassador to the United States, Mr. Jusserand, to help him help some of his compatriots who were in trouble in this country. I have visited a modest little woman down in Virginia to try to make her see a little more clearly one of the necessary problems which we have to face. And it is interesting to know that with all the conferences I have had with people of this sort, people who wanted the Railroad to do this, that or the other thing for them, I have never failed to get a respectful hearing and nice courtesy.

"Going to see such people is in itself a courtesy which I take it is one illustration of what President Willard means when he asks us to be 'good neighbors.' Inquiries and complaints can be answered in one way by short, to the point, strictly business letters. Frequently it is better to write the longer, courteous letter, and, better still, to pay the little visit and to give that touch of human understanding which cannot be so well given in correspondence. Certainly this is the more neighborly way.

IT WAS A JOLLY CROWD WHICH GATHERED ON THE NIGHT OF OCTOBER 3 IN CINCINNATI TO EID "GOD SPEED" TO FORMER GENERAL MANAGER R. N. BEGIE

"We are all greatly pleased with the present prosperity of our Railroad. I hear of it on all sides. People talk about our good service, the standard of our equipment, the smooth riding of our trains, the courtesy of our employes, and they infer that they are favoring the Baltimore and Ohio with their business on account of these things. Only a short time ago we got a letter from the French ambassador to the United States, congratulating us on what seemed to him to be a very marked increase in our passenger business. He gave as his reason for noticing this, with typical French diplomacy and courtesy, the fact that he and Mrs. Jusserand were obliged to stand in a day coach all the way from Washington to Laurel during the racing season, because of the number of passengers we were carrying. If this was a delicate suggestion that we increase our accommodations, it was made with that fine touch of friendliness for which Mr. Jusserand is noted and probably as the result, in part at least, of previous courtesies extended to him by the Baltimore and Ohio.

"Business men nowadays regard the railroads as a part of their organizations and realize that ample railroad facilities are essential to prosperous industry. I believe that they appreciate the 'good neighbor' spirit which is so evident in all the activities of the Baltimore and Ohio. Certainly the business which they are giving us indicates their confidence in our Railroad and their recognition of the open and honorable attitude which we maintain in our relations with them.

"It is a great pleasure for me to be here to pay tribute to Mr. Begien tonight. I am confident that he will be a good neighbor to us."

Mr. Voorhees

H. B. Voorhees, Mr. Begien's successor as general manager of the Western Lines, then responded to the toast, "The Future."

He referred to the guest of honor as his very dear friend and said:

"I do not feel any embarrassment this evening because I know that I am among friends. It is a real honor to be able to talk on such a happy occasion and to add my tribute to our former general manager. To him I say that we wish him all success, not alone because we are very fond of him, but also because we know that his success will redound to the honor of the Baltimore and Ohio.

"I am happy to follow in his footsteps, happy to be a part of an organization which he has led so successfully, happy to feel that with the same splendid cooperation which was given him, we may look forward to further success in the operation of the Western Lines.

"Mr. Begien, we wish you all success, happiness and prosperity."

In introducing Mr. Fries, vice president, Traffic and Commercial Development, as the next speaker, to respond to the toast, "Traffic," Mr. Waite said:

"We will now hear from the man who promotes the ascending curve."

Mr. Fries

Mr. Fries said in part:

"Having been a member of the Traffic Department for so many years, it has always been a matter of interest to me to watch our business grow. I wonder how many of you realize that our gross has increased from about $116,000,000 in 1916 to where we believe, if business holds up as we expect it to, we will this year do a gross of $250,000,000. This makes the Baltimore and Ohio the third largest revenue producing railroad in the world, a fact that we should not miss the significance of.

"This ought to make us proud—not alone those connected with the Traffic Department—but especially those in the Operating Department whose able handling of our trains has made it possible for us to increase our business very considerably. The Operating Department has certainly been delivering the goods.

"We are all interested especially in the Capitol Limited. We did a splendid business on this train during the latter part of the month of May, the first Capitol Limited being operated on May 13. And you will be much gratified to learn that there has been a most substantial increase in the number of revenue passengers carried both eastbound and westbound since that time."

Mr. Fries gave the actual figures for May and September and they were received with acclaim by those present, all of whom realized just how much this train means to the reputation and prosperity of the Baltimore and Ohio. Continuing, Mr. Fries said:

"I am hoping that the success of this train may make it possible for us to increase deluxe service of the type which reaches its highest development in the Capitol Limited. Certainly the performance of this train, both from the operating and traffic standpoint, should encourage us to think of even bigger things.

"It has been my pleasure to be closely associated with our guest of honor for many years and to appreciate the large part that he has had in the upbuilding of the Railroad. The Traffic Department has always received his cordial help and it is with a feeling of sincere friendship that I add my tribute to him and predict that he will do for the Chesapeake and Ohio the same type of sterling work that he has done for us. I wish him every success."

At this point in the program the toastmaster read the following letter from our President, Mr. Willard:

Mr. Willard's Letter

At New York, September 18, 1923

Mr. M. R. Waite
Chairman, Committee on Arrangements
Cincinnati, Ohio

My Dear Mr. Waite:

I have just received invitation to attend a complimentary dinner to be tendered to Mr. Ralph N. Begien on Wednesday, evening, October 3, by the officers of the Western Lines, Baltimore & Ohio Company.

I regret very much that because of other engagements I shall be unable to accept your invitation. My relations with Mr. Begien, both official and personal, have been of a very intimate and most satisfactory character for nearly fourteen years. During the period of our association in the Baltimore & Ohio service I not only had ample and constant opportunity to appreciate his unusual ability and efficiency as an officer, but I also developed during that same period a warm friendship for him, based upon his fine character and pleasing personality. Mr. Begien was not only a most able and efficient officer, but in addition to that he was, as all who know him can testify, a man of sterling character and upstanding manhood. His integrity was always beyond question.

It was a source of deep regret to the Baltimore and Ohio management when Mr. Begien decided to leave the service of that Company in order that he might accept a position of even greater responsibility which had been offered to him by another Company; but while I greatly regret his loss to the Baltimore and Ohio service, I earnestly join with all his friends in wishing for him the greatest possible success in his new position. No one has better deserved success than Mr. Begien, and no one is or can be more certain of continued success in his new field of effort. I feel confident that his future career will reflect honor upon the Baltimore & Ohio Company with which he has spent the greater part of his active manhood. I wish to join with his associates on the Western Lines in extending to him congratulations because of what he has already achieved, and best wishes for his continued good health and success in the future.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) D. WILLARD

The Presentation

Continuing, and addressing the guest of honor, Mr. Waite said:

"I am glad that the Chesapeake and Ohio has Cincinnati on its line so that you can come to see your old friends in this city often. I want to express my own tribute of affection and also to present to you on behalf of the officers of the Western Lines a tool which I think will be of great use to you."

At this moment the curtains back of Mr. Begien were drawn and there, on a raised platform, was an exquisite desk intended for use in Mr. Begien's home. In Italian walnut, beautifully grained and carved and furnished with necessary accessories in the shape of a brass and cut glass desk set and an artistic lamp, it certainly represented excellent taste on the part of the donors.

Mr. Begien

It was now Mr. Begien's turn and perhaps for the first time in his life he was hardly equal to the occasion. But no one failed to understand in his few, quiet words the emotions that he felt and the sincerity of his appreciation for the many nice things that had transpired in his honor during the evening.

The Committee

The committee in charge consisted of Chairman Morrison R. Waite, general solicitor, Western Lines; H. B. Voorhees, general manager, Western Lines; F. B. Mitchell, general superintendent, Southwest District; D. F. Stevens, general superintendent, Northwest District; G. D. Brooke, superintendent transportation, Western Lines; S. A. Jordan, engineer, Maintenance of Way, Western Lines; W. Malthaner, superintendent Motive Power, Western Lines; H. R. Lewis, freight traffic manager, Cincinnati; George W. Squiggins, general passenger agent, Cincinnati; Secretary E. B. Russell, assistant to general manager, Western Lines.

Conductor Wolff, Chicago Division

Conductor Wolff Ably Handles Emergency

THE accompanying photograph is of Conductor Wolff, Chicago Division, who recently was able to be of assistance to a gentleman and his wife travelling on The Capitol Limited, with a sick girl. That his efforts were appreciated is shown by the following letter written from Colorado Springs by Mr. Charles L. Parsons to City Passenger Agent J. Lewis, Jr., Washington.

"Your Capitol Limited was delayed Monday morning on account of a cloud-burst and washout just out of Chicago. I thought my wife, sick daughter and self were doomed to at least a day's delay in Chicago. Your Conductor Wolff, however, proved equal to the emergency. He found (on the detour we were obliged to make) that at Blue Island we could make connections. He stopped there and arranged to have the Rock Island stop also. And so, by a short taxi ride we made our train. This is the kind of service that makes friends for the Baltimore and Ohio and Mr. Wolff deserves commendation. Thanks also for your own many kindnesses."

Solid Train Load of Agricultural Limestone for the Farmers

By C. E. THRASHER, Supervising Agent, Toledo Division

MR. HARRY BRANDON, general agstone sales agent for The Ohio Marble Co. of Piqua, Ohio, and Mr. W. E. Stone, Hamilton County agricultural agent, deserve much credit for operating the first solid train load of Agricultural Limestone on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

Mr. Brandon and Mr. Stone conceived the idea of obtaining and pooling a sufficient number of orders from farmers in Hamilton County, to run a special train over the Toledo Division. Arrangements were made to hold a big farmers' meeting at the farm of Mrs. C. C. Richardson, Glendale, Ohio, upon arrival of the special train. The Hamilton County Farm Bureau through its officers, Mr. W. B. Ferris, president; Mr. C. C. Rinehart, vice-president, and Mr. B. F. Riese, secretary and treasurer, extended an invitation to officers of the Railroad, The Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, Ohio State University soil experts, reporters of Cincinnati Newspapers, Agricultural Press, and the Public, to be present.

WITH THE TOLEDO DIVISION AGRICULTURAL LIMESTONE SPECIAL

1. Left to right: Mr. Harry Brandon, General Sales Agent, Ohio Marble Co.; A. A. Iams, Superintendent, Toledo Division; Mr. W. E. Stone, Hamilton County Agricultural Agent. 2. Plant of the Ohio Marble Co., Piqua, Ohio. 3. Car showing load of agricultural limestone. 4. Farmer using agricultural limestone on his land. 5. Special train of Agstone en route to Hamilton County farmers

The special train consisted of 35 cars loaded to capacity, 1355 tons, net, consigned and distributed to 124 farmers in Hamilton County. The cost of the limestone, including freight, was approximately $5,000. The value of this product to Hamilton County farmers through increased production will aggregate $50,000. The increased production will be distributed over a period of eight years, according to statement of Prof. R. M. Salter, Ohio State University.

The Ohio Marble Co. is located on the Baltimore and Ohio at Piqua, Ohio. The plant has an annual capacity of 150,000 tons and at present they are shipping about 50,000 tons per year, 85 per cent. being destined to points on the Baltimore and Ohio.

This special train was run on schedule, arriving at Glendale at 1.15 p. m., September 10. Several hundred people were on hand to greet it on arrival, and addresses were delivered by R. L. Galleher, assistant general freight agent; A. P. Sandles, secretary, National Agstone Association; W. C. Culkins, Secretary, Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce; Prof. R. M. Salter of Ohio State University, and County Agent W. E. Stone.

Mr. Galleher said the Baltimore and Ohio was glad to help farm and farmer, and that this train of Agstone would write a new chapter in Hamilton County Agricultural history.

Mr. Culkins said the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce was ready at all times to assist every sane movement to increase the prosperity of the farmer, and since experiments had demonstrated, beyond a doubt, that agricultural limestone is a crop booster, he was glad to be present at this history-making meeting.

Prof. Salter said the College of Agriculture and experiment stations had thoroughly satisfied themselves that the use of liming materials was necessary on most soils. He said the gospel of Agstone was preached and practiced in nearly every state.

Mr. Sandles said: "Agriculture is the oldest and the safest business in the world. It has periods of gloom and depression, but it always comes back. Farmers are leaving the farm. This will mean more profit for those who continue to farm. Somebody must grow a meal ticket for the world. Some day the farmer will not only be trained in organized marketing, but he will also be trained in organized production so that dangerous surplus crops will not hit him below the belt."

The following letter from Mr. Brandon shows the cordial relations between shipper and carrier. When the shipper, farmer and carrier can get together at a meeting of this nature and learn to trust and help one another there will be plenty of prosperity for all:

THE OHIO MARBLE COMPANY

Piqua, Ohio
October 9, 1923

A. A. Iams, Supt.
Baltimore and Ohio
Dayton, Ohio
Dear Sir:

Since our train load of MIAMI Agricultural Limestone was delivered in Hamilton County, the writer has been so busy that he has not had the opportunity to express our appreciation to you and the Baltimore and Ohio, for the excellent manner in which this project was handled.

The railroad service was up to the Baltimore and Ohio standard of perfection. Every detail was perfect and without such a perfect organization and such a high standard of service as maintained by your system, it would not have been possible to put on this train load shipment in such a creditable way.

Please accept our most sincere appreciation to yourself personally and to the entire Baltimore and Ohio for the excellent co-operation on this train load of Agricultural Limestone, the first of its kind in history.

Yours very truly,
The Ohio Marble Co., Dept. H.
(Signed) HARRY H. BRANDON

What Maryland Limestone "Special" Meant to Farmers

THE following letter concerning the results of the Maryland Soil Improvement "Special" has an interesting bearing on the preceding article by Mr. Thrasher:

NATIONAL LIME ASSOCIATION
Eastern Division

Colorado Building, Washington, D. C.
September 20, 1923

Mr. O. K. Quivey, Gen'l Agricultural Agent
Baltimore and Ohio Railroad
Baltimore, Maryland

Dear Mr. Quivey:

I trust you will pardon this delay in writing you on my personal observations of the practicability and serviceability, in the public interest, of the operation of the Baltimore and Ohio Soil Improvement Special over the lines of your Company, during the week of August 20, with the Maryland University and the Eastern Lime producers, co-operating. Absence from the office on some important field work and a slight illness requiring a rest for a while, have prevented earlier attention to this matter.

First, I want to say that from the standpoint of educational and promotional value, the project, in my judgment, was a decided success, and worthy of every bit of the energy and expense to which the Eastern Lime Industry, which I represent, was subject, in its co-operation in the movement for better efficiency in the practice of soil liming. I sincerely hope that the other two agencies participating in the project feel the same way about it.

If I am right in my understanding, this agricultural service to the farming interests of Northern Maryland, as well as to the lime industry of the State, is the first of its kind to be instituted and financed by the Industrial Department of a Railroad. We thank the enterprising management of the Baltimore and Ohio for its liberal consideration and devotion to the development of these important industries covered by its lines—Agriculture and Lime.

The farming interest in the educational and demonstrational work of the train was indeed inspiring. Personally, I did not count on the amount of attendance at the stations, nor the true manifestation of real concern in the talks and other work of the scientists of the Maryland University. The farmers did not appear to come to the train for the mere purpose of obtaining some free lime; on the other hand, their desire was to know more about the fertility of their soil for the better productivity, and how to treat the soil with lime so as to derive the benefits from its use as claimed by the specialists in soil improvement.

Our producers are of one accord, from the commercial standpoint, on the genuine value of this kind of trade extensional work. They regard it highly and I am mighty glad that I was fortunate to be present on the entire trip, so as to gain first-hand knowledge of the valuable reaction from the service which the Agricultural Department of the Baltimore and Ohio is engaged in for the industries of its various lines.

In summing up, we feel sure that our tonnage of lime as used in agriculture, will show increase from the work throughout the farming territory that was covered by the train. For every three tons of burned lime produced, we consume one ton of bituminous coal. This means tonnage to your Company. We know by actual field demonstration that lime in the soil increases the production of crops, resulting in more Agricultural tonnage. These returns, jointly to the business interests involved in the trip, are, we feel, conservatively estimated. And, we must not overlook the value to our interests of the splendid work of the Maryland University, co-ordinating as it does, in a very liberal way, its educational service with that of the industrial organizations, in behalf of a legitimate and progressive development of the commerce of the country.

I hope that our constructive and beneficial relations will continue, as I know they will, and whenever you may feel we can again tie into any line of extensional work, which you may have in mind to undertake, we assure you it will be our pleasure and ambition to do this.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) HENRY M. CAMP
Manager, Eastern Division

About Old Engine No. 13

IN a recent issue of the MAGAZINE there appeared a picture of an old engine.

It was sent us by John Sell, Cumberland Division Correspondent, but we did not know the name of the engineer appearing on it. Peter Cosgrove, a former employe of the old Rolling Mill, supplies us with this interesting bit of information concerning it.

"The engineer of the old No. 13," says Mr. Cosgrove, "was Jacob Myers. No. 13 was a yard engine in the old Baltimore and Ohio Rolling Mill yard. She took the place of No. 40, which went to scrap about 40 years ago."

We appreciate this information from Mr. Cosgrove. There will be many Cumberland Division folk who will be glad to read it.

Note:

All puzzles published in this department will be defined, as far as possible, from the New Standard Dictionary, edition of 1920. It is permissible to use both geographical and biographical words in the construction of puzzles, but when such words are taken from any authority other than the New Standard Dictionary, the name of such authority must be stated at the end of the definition, in parenthesis. Obsolete words will be marked at the end of the definition thus—"obs". Variant spellings of a word must be marked at the end of the definition thus—"car". Address all communications concerning this department to G. H. Pryor, Room 800, Baltimore and Ohio Building, Baltimore, Maryland, and mark the envelope "Puzzles."

THE answers to the puzzles published in the August issue are:

1. Bough, jough, tough, rough, dough

2. I C E B I R D
C E L E R E R
E L A T I V E
B E T I D E S
I R I D I N S
R E V E N G E
D R E S S E R

3. Epitaph

4. Z
D A P
N A M U R
D A Z Z L E R
Z A M Z U M M I M
P U L M O N E A
R E M N A N T
R I E N Z I
M A T I N

5. Illinois

6. Lithographer

7. H
N I P
N A C R E
H I C K O R Y
P R O S E
E R E
Y

8. Lark—Ark

9. Z Y T H U M
U R A N U S
O K E M A H
A I M F U L
S E F O U L
R O N D E L

10. Tired, Diet, Die

11. B A S T A D
T A P I A U
C A S I N G
H O P I N G
V I K I N G
W A T E R S

12. Never, nerve

13. V A C A T E S
A B A L O N E
C A D E N C E
A L E T T E S
T O N T I N E
E N C E N S E
S E E S E E S

14. Theda—Hated—Death

15. ANTIQUATED

16. THE PULLMAN SLEEPING-CARS

17. A MINISTER

CORRECT solutions were received from the following:

S. T. Udent, Ben Franklin, N. Jineer, D. Lemma, Primrose, Pearlle Glen, Atlas, L. M. N. Terry, J. F. Donovan, G. Hartman Pryor, The Major, Martelia, L. E. Phant, Comrade, Baltimore, Md.; Winkie, Charleston, W. Va.; Kee Pon, Malden, Mass.; Alec Sander, Philadelphia, Pa.; Gem, Wick-o-cincy, Cincinnati, Ohio; P. M. Pennington, Cumberland, Md.; Reel, Zanesville, Ohio; Spica, Whitney Crossing, N. Y.; Gemini, Poly, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Joaquin, C. Saw New York City; Arty Ess, Scranton, Pa.; Gee, Asheboro, N. C.; T. Hinker, Jack O'Lantern, Bangor, Pa.; Arcanus, Eloise, Iowa City, Iowa; Eureka, Charleston, S. C.; Phil., Pittsburgh, Pa.; P. A. B., Telford, Pa.; Petite, Dee, Gi Gantic, Molemi, St. Louis, Mo.; Jemand, Wilmington, N. C.; Towhead, Lafayette, Ind.; Ralph, E. Stroudsburg, Pa.; Margaret Smurdon, Menter, Chicago, Ill.; Dan D. Lyon, New

Florence, Pa.; Emeline, Fairbury, Neb.; Jo Mullins, Miami, Mo.; Osaple, El Paso, Tex.; Amor, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Sherlock Holmes, Worthing, S. D.; Spud, Yazoo City, Miss.; K. T. Did, Nypho, E. R. Woodson, Aluminus, Washington, D. C., Delmonte, Richmond, Va.; Fred Domino, Corinth, Miss.; Tom Crestmore, Johnstown Pa.; Lateo, Hoboken, N. J.; Kappa Kappa, Fargo, N. Dakota.

The prize offered in the August issue for a copy of one of the best sellers was won by Gem (Miss E. M. Graveson, Cincinnati, Ohio).

New Puzzles

1. NUMERICAL

'Neath 7-2-1 spreading yew
She gave her promise to be true.

She placed her trembling lips above
A TOTAL—token of her love.

Long 6 to 3 away have sped;
My lady love is dead, is dead.

They bring me only fond regrets;
But still—I keep those violets.

St. Louis, Mo.

Molemi

2. DIAMOND

1—A letter.

2—Moistened earth.

3—Largest of the Philippine Islands.

4—A public crier in Mohammedan countries, who summons the faithful to prayer.

5—Puzzlement.

6—(Prov. Eng.) Spiritless.

7—Nests,

8—To be drowsy,

9—A letter.

Baltimore, Md.

N. Jineer

3. ANAGRAM

ALTHO I BE NOT FAST—TO DO IT
MORE SAFE TRY HIM

I'm as much like a poet, as a pig's like a
"goet,"

This I must admit to be so,
Now all I can do, is to just advise you,

For safe transportation, try B. & O.

Baltimore, Md.

S. T. Udent

4. DELETION (4)

The morning glory climbs up the side of the house

And peeps in at my window gaily:

"Good morning!" it says, "Have you thanked ONE today
For the ALL things He gives you daily?
Then thank Him for work, for health, for love,
For the pretty green earth and the blue sky above."

Fargo, N. D. Kappa Kappa

5. SQUARE

(New International)

1—Clang tint,
2—Accustomed,
3—(Arch.) A flat block projecting under the corona of the Doric cornice, in the same situation as the modillion of other orders,
4—Beasts,
5—(Obs.) Relics,
6—A city of Mesopotamia from which Nestorianism was widely spread over Asia.
Baltimore, Md. D. Lemma

6. CHARADE (10)

ONE

A freak in whim, also, deceit,
Quite oft in life, this sort we meet.

TWO

In games, in schools, and on the street,
A TWO is there, with nimble feet.

THREE

This insect small can run quite fleet,
And is a pest to housewife's neat.

TOTAL

In architecture, a florid,
Showy, style. (I think it "horrid.")
Fairbury, Neb. Emeline

7. OCTAGON

(New International)

1—A hawk,
2—The papaya,
3—Matrimonial,
4—(Cryst.) Foreign,
5—Supplied with water,
6—Declined,
7—Brought forward.
El Paso, Tex. Csaple

8. TRANSPOSITION (5)

I know a great magnate named Ford,
Whose time hung so heavy it bored;
So one FIRST to keep busy,
He devised a "tin Lizzie"—
Oh, Gee! What a hit the TWO scored!
Iowa City, Iowa. Arcanus

9. INVERTED PYRAMID

Across:

1—The cedar bird,
2—Medleys,
3—Yttrium sesquioxides,
4—Pledges,
5—The chiru,
6—A letter.

Down:

1—A letter,
2—First person singular, pres., indic. of the verb be,
3—No,

4—Deeds,
5—Date palms,
6—Large turtles of the group Pleurodira
7—Disturbs,
8—Indians of a group of tribes of Tierra
Del Fuego,
9—Twice,
10—3rd person, sing. pres., indie. of the verb be,
11—A letter.

Yazoo City, Miss. Spud

10. ANAGRAM

From Greenland's icy mountains,
From India's torrid strand,
They seek for Freedom's fountains,
The modern promised land.
From every clime and nation,
From every land and state,
They seek regeneration
As here they emigrate.
A welcome, too, awaits them,
If loyal they shall prove;
Sight of this land elates them,
Their hopes in life improve.
'Tis night in New York's harbor—
Their longing gaze is centering—
Awaking as from torpor,
THRILLED BY THE GLOW IN ENTERING.

Baltimore, Md. Atlas

11. LINKADE (6)

Young Billy Bunn, the little ONE,
In mischief surely likes to be,
But FINALS as one who ne'er has Done wrong to any great degree.
If you let him, in manner trim,
His innocence on you COMPLETE
It truly will of glee him fill
And you will have of tricks surfeit.

Bangor, Pa. Jack O'Lantern

12. HALF SQUARE

1—The march back to the sea of the Greek mercenaries who followed Cyrus against Artaxerxes,
2—A light-brown, amorphous glucosid from the root of Adonis vernalis,
3—Same as topman,
4—An apostle to the Danes and Swedes,
5—Same as Bhima,
6—A hebrew month,
7—Wickedness,
8—Enclosed or included in a place or state,
9—A letter.
Johnstown, Pa. Tom Crestmore

13. BEHEADMENT (4)

Jack and Jim were running a race,
In a wet boggy place,
Jack happened to ONE and down with a thud
Into the soft and sticky mud.
He cut his TWO on a sharp snaggy rock
And rose up partly dazed by the shock,
A sorry sight, all covered with mud
Mingled with his warm red blood.

Cumberland, Md. P. M. P.

14. REBUS (10)

10

—

L

Now solve this, please, Miss N. Jineer,
The answer means "to overhear."
St. Louis, Mo. Gi Gantie

ANAGRAMS

15.—C? RIDING I CAN SERVE

Cincinnati, Ohio Wick-o-cincy

16.—O IN THEM YE MEN GET PLACES

Cincinnati, Ohio Wick-o-cincy

17.—SPEND IT

Baltimore, Md. L. M. N. Terry

18.—O SECRET, I.

Sioux Falls, S. D. Amor

The solver sending in the first complete list of answers to the puzzles in this issue
will be awarded a copy of one of the six best sellers, the selection to be made by the winner from a list that will be submitted.

To receive proper credit all list of solutions must be in my hands by January 5, 1924, the answers and solvers lists will be published in the February, 1924 issue.

* * * * *

Just between You and Me

No. 11, the Linkade, is a new puzzle to this department and needs perhaps a little explanation. The "Key to Puzzledom" says a Linkade is "a form of charade in which the last letter of the first part forms the first letter of the next part, etc." To illustrate, take the word "cantrip" and in forming a Linkade from it we would divide it into, First word, "Cant" and the second word "Trip." That is the way the answer to No. 11 works out.

P. M. P. wishes to publicly thank N.
Jineer and Wick-o-cincy for giving him his big chance to win the New Standard Dictionary, offered as a prize by Senior Vice-President Shriver. It isn't everybody who would pass up the chance of getting a brand new dictionary for nothing, even if he or she owned an old copy, but that is just the sort of thing puzzlers are in the habit of doing for each other and that, perhaps, is why friendships formed in puzzledom usually last through life.

The "Krewe" should not find a great deal of difficulty in solving the puzzles in this issue. They are all clean cut and to the point and just about hard enough to give a pleasant tang to their solution. If you have never tried your hand at solving, these long winter evenings are just the time to make the experiment and if you once make the plunge I am sure you will find the sport not only interesting but very fascinating as thousands of others have before you.

The No. 5 square by D. Lemma is a very neat piece of work and is a credit to this beginner. He has submitted other clever contributions which will appear in future numbers.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY

Relief Department—Advisory Committee

Conducting Transportation Department

L. W. GRAHAM.....	Operator.....	Kanawha Station, W. Va.
CHARLES H. CRAWFORD.....	Yard Brakeman.....	Glenwood, Pa.
GEORGE G. JAMES.....	Conductor.....	Baltimore, Md.
JOHN F. WUNNER.....	Clerk.....	New York, N. Y.

Motive Power Department

K. W. GEIDENBERGER.....	Pipefitter.....	Newark, Ohio.
WILLIAM E. HODEL.....	Material Man.....	Grafton, W. Va.
P. J. HARRIGAN.....	Mechanical Examiner.....	Connellsville, Pa.
J. W. ALBERTS.....	Machinist.....	Chicago, Ill.

Maintenance of Way Department

W. A. EVANS.....	Section Foreman.....	Louis, Ill.
M. D. CAROTHERS.....	Asst. Engineer Maintenance.....	Chicago, Ill.
F. A. TAYLOR.....	Master Carpenter.....	Cumberland, Md.
F. M. NOLDER.....	Section Foreman.....	Westboro, Ohio.

Statement of Pension Feature

Employees who have been honorably retired during the month of September, 1923, and to whom pensions have been granted:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	YEARS OF SERVICE
Barringer, Jacob I.....	Electrician.....	Motive Power.....	Toledo.....	32
Booth, Arthur W.....	Switchman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	B. & O. C. T.....	25
Cahill, Maurice.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Ohio.....	45
Donovan, Richard B.....	Tool Room Attendant.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	32
Edmonds, Thomas H.....	Painter Foreman.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Connellsville.....	41
Fink, Francis J.....	Laborer.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	22
Fox, John W.....	Agent.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Chicago.....	16
Franklin, Eldon G.....	Agent.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Wheeling.....	24
Hall, Henry C.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	St. Louis.....	44
Hite, Thomas R.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Wheeling.....	47
Keefe, John W.....	Machinist.....	Motive Power.....	Monongah.....	23
Kight, Charles A.....	Janitor.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Cumberland.....	28
Morrison, James M.....	Laborer.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Wheeling.....	28
Peirce, Samuel J.....	Carpenter.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Baltimore.....	25
Richter, Louis.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	B. & O. C. T.....	35
Stricker, John W.....	Tallyman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	St. Louis.....	22
Wallace, Robert H.....	Engineer.....	Conducting Transportation.....	St. Louis.....	51

The payments to pensioned employes constitute a special roll contributed by the Company.

During the calendar year 1922, $400,008.10 was paid out through the Pension Feature to those who have been honorably retired.

The total payments since the inauguration of the Pension Feature, October 1, 1884, to July 31, 1923, amount to $5,276,725.05.

The following pensioned employes, after serving the Company faithfully for a number of years, have died:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	DATE OF DEATH	YEARS OF SERVICE
Bee, Charles H.....	Helper.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	Sept. 15, 1923.....	25
Byanskie, Jacob.....	Laborer.....	Motive Power.....	Chicago.....	Sept. 22, 1923.....	38
Gebel, Henry.....	Porter.....	Conducting Transportation.....	B. & O. C. T.....	Sept. 20, 1923.....	27
McKewin, Hugh W.....	Ticket Agent.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Chicago.....	Sept. 9, 1923.....	49
Meade, James A.....	Stationary Fireman.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore.....	Sept. 22, 1923.....	27
Miller, Charles.....	Switchman.....	Conducting Transportation.....	Baltimore.....	Sept. 11, 1923.....	40

Pensioners' Roll of Honor

*Oh, blest retirement! friend of life's decline—
Retreat from care that ever must be thine:
How blest is he who crowns, in shades like these,
A youth of labor with an age of ease.*

OLIVER GOLDSMITH—"The Deserted Village"

Robert H. Wallace

Robert H. Wallace was born in Philadelphia, Pa., on July 13, 1854. His parents were Simon and Elizabeth McAuly Wallace. He was the oldest engineer in point of service on the St. Louis Division, and was known as "Faithful Bob."

At the age of three years, Mr. Wallace moved with his parents to Cincinnati, Ohio, and later to Osgood, Ind. He entered the Baltimore and Ohio service as engine cleaner and helper in 1872 and was promoted to fireman in 1874. In 1880 he was promoted to engineer and in 1895 to road foreman of engines. He held this position until 1911, when he was appointed supervisor of locomotive operation. When this position was abolished in 1913, Mr. Wallace went back to his engine and held the position of passenger engineer at the time of his recent retirement.

In June, 1881 he married Miss Laura F. Roberts. He had two children; Clyde, who was killed in an automobile accident in June, 1922 and a daughter, Mrs. Aikman, who resides in Vincennes.

Richard B. Donovan

Richard B. Donovan was born on November 29, 1856 at Sandy Hook, Md. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service in 1873 in the shops at Sandy Hook as a helper, under Master Mechanic John R.

Smith. In 1877 he was promoted to fireman and two years later to brakeman. In 1886 he was promoted to conductor. In 1902 he was promoted to be an engineer and continued in this position until 1916. On account of his age he was then placed in the shops on lighter work, where he remained until September 12, 1923, when he was retired.

Baggageman Armon Knows that Time Means Money

24th and Chestnut Sts. Philadelphia, Pa.,
September 25, 1923

The Editor
Baltimore and Ohio Magazine
Baltimore, Maryland
Dear Sir:

Having had rather an unusual experience last night, I shall pass it along to you as a new way of getting passengers and friends for Our Road.

Coming to work on Trolley Route 42 last night, a gentleman boarded the car at 7th and Walnut Streets. He asked the conductor the time, and as he was directly behind me, I told him, remarking that it was railroad time.

He then advised me that he was on his way to West Philadelphia Station, en route to Pittsburgh. On learning that he had not purchased his ticket, I advised him of our Train No. 17, leaving at 8.50 p. m. As a result, he got off at 24th and Chestnut Streets with me, and I escorted him to the ticket window and saw him purchase a ticket and an upper berth to Pittsburgh.

MORAL: Always be ready to give the correct time as railroad time and tell them that you are employed by the Baltimore and Ohio.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) A. H. ARMON,
Baggagemaster, 508-511,
Philadelphia and New York

What Have You Seen?

At Fairmont

Engineer Heffner "telling the world" that General Superintendent Scott is a real man.

Captain Fletcher polishing up his brass buttons.

Trainmaster Bartlett waiting patiently for a call, which proved to be a false alarm, then hanging up the receiver philosophically, saying, "Well, that does happen sometimes, doesn't it?"

Dining Car Conductor Fisher asking his "guests" if everything is all right, and getting the usual response, "Fine!"

"Dad," at Fairmont Freight House, looking for a wife.

Clarksburg Ticket Office employees on the job with ready information about any point on the globe without having to refer to timetables or notebooks.

"Old Man Keane" down at Grafton, with his hat in his hand, waiting for a call at any minute after hearing the distress signal.

"Cap'n" Fansler telling the Veterans that he's proud to be on Mr. Denton's staff.

At Mt. Royal Station

A big black man having his necktie tied by a big black woman, who also kissed him goodbye and called him "Honey Darlin'!"

The More You Do

Did you ever notice, the more you do
The more you are fit to try?
And the harder a fellow climbs a hill,
The easier he goes high?
The harder the job, the firmer the jaw
That's set to the task; there grows
A confidence backing the man who tries,
And the farther ahead he goes.
When a job is easy, one falls asleep—
Is asleep when the game is called;
And the man who could run can hardly creep,
When his engine of luck has stalled.
But the keener the fight when a man runs right,
The easier things come through . . .
And the easiest job when it's finished is that
Which at first was hardest to do.
The more you do, the harder you hit,
The faster you run, old friend,
Just that much easier is your bit
With a victory at its end.
The world is looking for square-jawed men
And not for the fools that shirk . . .
We've played long enough with painted toys,
For this is The Age of Work!

—Richmond Times-Dispatch

RETIRED TO A WELL EARNED REST

Left: R. B. Donovan

Right: Robert H. Wallace

STOP THAT LEAK!

STOP THAT LEAK!

STOP THAT LEAK!

Accurate Weights Insure Correct Freight Charges

Gains in Revenue from Check-Weighing and Revising Classification of Inbound and Transfer L. C. L Freight, September, 1923

Note:—Each month there will be published in the Magazine, statement of increases, shown by stations, made in revenue of the Company by revising classification and check-weighing inbound L. C. L. shipments and L. C. L. freight in transfer

EASTERN LINES.		PITTSBURGH TERMINAL DIVISION		ST. LOUIS DIVISION
NEW YORK TERMINAL LINES		Allegheny, Pa. ....		Aurora, Ind. ....
Pier 22, N. R., N. Y. ....	$1.50	McKeesport, Pa. ....	1.80	East St. Louis, Ill. ....	217.83
West 26th Street. ....	10.91	Pittsburgh, Pa. ....	129.81	Louisville, Ky. ....	78.47
TOTAL. ....	$12.41	TOTAL. ....	$216.02	New Albany, Ind. ....	17.62
BALTIMORE DIVISION		MONONGAH DIVISION		North Vernon, Ind. ....	14.96
Brunswick, Md. ....	$9.30	Arden, W. Va. ....	$1.20	Osgood, Ind. ....	1.34
Brunswick Transfer, Md. ....	859.63	Belington, W. Va. ....	16.60	Springfield, Ill. ....	1.54
Childs, Md. ....	25.83	Bridgeport, W. Va. ....	21.09	Vincennes, Ind. ....	34.33
Chester, Pa. ....	1.82	Byron, W. Va. ....	2.28	Washington, Ind. ....	3.35
Frederick, Md. ....	6.98	Clarksburg, W. Va. ....	108.18	Miscellaneous. ....	.56
Georgetown, D. C. ....	2.92	Ellenboro, W. Va. ....	3.04	TOTAL. ....	$371.56
Hagerstown, Md. ....	7.11	Fairmont, W. Va. ....	17.90	CINCINNATI TERMINAL DIVISION
Harrisonburg, Va. ....	10.77	Grafton, W. Va. ....	17.36	Brighton, Ohio. ....	$51.61
Hyattsville, Md. ....	5.92	Jane Lew, W. Va. ....	1.93	Kenyon Avenue, Ohio. ....	401.03
Hockessin, Del. ....	1.86	Lost Creek, W. Va. ....	2.88	Norwood, Ohio. ....	27.75
Laurel, Md. ....	2.96	Moatsville, W. Va. ....	6.55	Smith Street, Ohio. ....	240.51
Lexington, Va. ....	1.28	Wallace, W. Va. ....	4.36	TOTAL. ....	$720.90
Mt. Airy, Md. ....	6.63	West Union, W. Va. ....	3.62	TOLEDO DIVISION
Raphine, Va. ....	1.87	Wilsonburg, W. Va. ....	1.75	Bowling Green, Ohio. ....	$2.37
Uniontown, D. C. ....	4.09	Miscellaneous. ....	.80	Dayton, Ohio. ....	104.75
Washington, D. C. ....	99.10	TOTAL. ....	$209.54	Deshler, Ohio. ....	13.88
Wilmington, Del. ....	1.23	CHARLESTON DIVISION		Hamilton, Ohio. ....	32.73
Miscellaneous. ....	5.53	Blue Creek, W. Va. ....	$1.06	Lima, Ohio. ....	1.28
TOTAL. ....	$1054.83	Buckhannon, W. Va. ....	16.46	Middletown, Ohio. ....	1.48
BALTIMORE TERMINAL DIVISION		Clay Court House, W. Va. ....	9.32	Toledo, Ohio. ....	121.95
Camden Station, Md. ....	$103.49	Clendennin, W. Va. ....	11.58	TOTAL. ....	$278.44
CUMBERLAND DIVISION		Copen, W. Va. ....	3.67	AKRON DIVISION
Cherry Run, W. Va. ....	$1.94	Cowen, W. Va. ....	1.16	Akron, Ohio. ....	$82.78
Cumberland, Md. ....	143.62	Elkins, W. Va. ....	19.86	Canton, Ohio. ....	15.70
Great Cacapon, W. Va. ....	1.77	Falling Rock, W. Va. ....	2.01	Cleveland, Ohio. ....	334.64
Green Spring, W. Va. ....	1.24	Flatwood, W. Va. ....	2.85	Elyria, Ohio. ....	3.29
Independence, W. Va. ....	5.09	Frametown, W. Va. ....	5.02	Lorain, Ohio. ....	4.35
Martinsburg, W. Va. ....	3.75	Gilmer, W. Va. ....	13.98	New Castle, Pa. ....	36.53
Moorefield, W. Va. ....	7.30	Heaters, W. Va. ....	12.35	Uhrichsville, Ohio. ....	1.20
Paw Paw, W. Va. ....	1.94	Holly Junction, W. Va. ....	6.75	Warren, Ohio. ....	12.45
Piedmont, W. Va. ....	3.78	Villa Nova, W. Va. ....	1.49	Youngstown, Ohio. ....	45.34
Terra Alta, W. Va. ....	1.67	Walkersville, W. Va. ....	1.91	TOTAL. ....	$536.28
Tunnelton, W. Va. ....	2.50	Weston, W. Va. ....	75.23	NEWARK DIVISION
Miscellaneous. ....	.72	West Sutton, W. Va. ....	3.70	Barnesville, Ohio. ....	$12.29
TOTAL. ....	$175.32	Miscellaneous. ....	3.82	Columbus, Ohio. ....	186.66
CONNELLSVILLE DIVISION		TOTAL. ....	$191.22	Marietta, Ohio. ....	10.04
Boswell, Pa. ....	$30.65	WHEELING DIVISION		Mt. Vernon, Ohio. ....	3.28
Cheat Haven, Pa. ....	10.30	Apple Grove, W. Va. ....	$1.13	Somerset, Ohio. ....	1.28
Confluence, Pa. ....	1.12	Bellaire, Ohio. ....	45.51	Zanesville, Ohio. ....	5.62
Connellsville, Pa. ....	87.69	Belleville, W. Va. ....	9.44	TOTAL. ....	$219.17
Fairchance, Pa. ....	6.17	Huntington, W. Va. ....	116.36	CHICAGO DIVISION
Friendsville, Md. ....	5.03	Letart, W. Va. ....	1.15	Chicago, Ill. ....	$382.38
Johnstown, Pa. ....	41.57	Littleton, W. Va. ....	4.10	Sherwood, Ohio. ....	1.87
Morgantown, W. Va. ....	5.44	Mason City, W. Va. ....	17.83	Willard Transfer, Ohio. ....	383.52
Mt. Pleasant, Pa. ....	2.92	Maynard, Ohio. ....	1.32	Miscellaneous. ....	1.98
Ohio Pyle, Pa. ....	4.50	Millwood, W. Va. ....	3.96	TOTAL. ....	$769.75
Smithfield, Pa. ....	4.80	Moundsville, W. Va. ....	47.83	EASTERN LINES. ....
Somerfield, Pa. ....	1.45	Paden City, W. Va. ....	1.26	WESTERN LINES. ....
Somerset, Pa. ....	15.75	Parkersburg, W. Va. ....	275.36	GRAND TOTAL. ....
Stoyestown, Pa. ....	1.88	Ravenswood, W. Va. ....	6.83	TOTAL TO DATE. ....
Uniontown, Pa. ....	6.33	Sistersville, Ohio. ....	34.51
Ursina, Pa. ....	2.57	Wheeling, W. Va. ....	101.24
West Salisbury, Pa. ....	2.21	Miscellaneous. ....	2.57
Miscellaneous. ....	4.58	TOTAL. ....	$670.40
TOTAL. ....	$234.96	WESTERN LINES
PITTSBURGH DIVISION		OHIO DIVISION
Butler, Pa. ....	$16.33	Athens, Ohio. ....	$1.13
Ellwood City, Pa. ....	3.42	Blanchester, Ohio. ....	3.58
Miscellaneous. ....	1.18	Chillicothe, Ohio. ....	11.95
TOTAL. ....	$20.93	Greenfield, Ohio. ....	4.13
		Portsmouth, Ohio. ....	13.18
		Washington C. H., Ohio. ....	1.00
		Miscellaneous. ....	1.23
		TOTAL. ....	$36.20

"Miscellaneous" includes stations showing gains in revenue amounting to less than one dollar.

Following the Good Will Girls through France

By MARGARET TALBOTT STEVENS

(Continued from the October issue)

Good-by to France—XXVIII

THAT night they put up a radio receiving outfit in the room occupied by Miss Webster and me. Then all of the girls came in except two who were to broadcast a message of farewell to France from the Good Will Delegation. Mrs. Kennedy, of Grand Rapids, and Miss Delta Harris, of Indianapolis, were the girls chosen to send the message, which was to be broadcasted from Eifel Tower. Click-clickety-click-et-y-click, sounded from the big horn. Vainly we stretched our ears. Nothing happened save the noise. Then somebody suggested turning the "button" (I don't know the technical name for it), so we turned the "button" and the deed was done. Loud and clear came the messages, and each of us who listened felt as though the two girls were voicing our sentiments exactly. And when there came the words, "Good-by, France," we all felt a little funny choking in our throats.

We Leave Paris—XXIX

IN the morning, Grace Thompson, of Indianapolis, who was staying for two weeks longer in order to visit London, asked me to go with her down to the Rue de Rivoli. The Rue de Rivoli, as you must know, is a street where one can buy anything from Ivory soap (yes, real P. & G.) to gowns and jewelry, toys and books. We made a few last minute purchases and took a taxi back. I shall never forget the picture of ourselves riding through the streets of Paris, vainly trying to say good-by to each other and consoling ourselves with delicious strawberry tarts which we had purchased on the Rue de Rivoli.

At last we were ready to go. We were off in our buses for the station. There were many good-bys to be said to our Paris friends and acquaintances who had come to the station to see us off. We boarded the train and leaned out of the windows of our compartments. Once a man went by who looked a great deal like our former general manager at Cincinnati, Mr. Begien. But we dismissed the matter from our minds, for this, we were sure, was impossible.

Normandy and Olive Trees—XXX

SOON we were off again across the lovely fields of Normandy. The spires of Rouen seemed to say good-by to us; the old women who gathered mustard waved good-by to us; even the goats and the cows seemed to be saying "good-by, good-by." The apple blossoms and lilacs were gone. Now everything was green.

I cannot recall whether or not there were olive trees in Normandy, but certainly there were further south. Do you know the olive tree? When I was a little girl my mother used to tell me about the olive trees that grew in far off countries. She told me that these trees were very old before they began to bear, but that they lived for years and years. I listened to her story with all the childish wonder that children always have when their mothers tell them stories, but little did I dream that I should ever see the olive trees of France.

And now that I have seen them, in the gray, green orchards, their branches gnarled and crooked, I think I know their meaning—the reason why old, crooked, homely trees like these should be set within the loveliness of a French landscape. They are like people, old and wrinkled, who have toiled for so long, trying to find a foothold, a place in the plan of the universe, but not having discovered it they rest by the earth's firesides. Without knowing it they become the background of some worth while thing. And so, the world must have its olive trees, which, besides their work of bearing fruit, must form a neutral background for the more beautiful trees of the warm countries; else these other trees would not seem half so lovely.

I wish that I could really picture some of these lovely sections of France; if I were only an artist I might do it, but since I am not, the only thing that I can do is to show you the pictures that I brought with me and to beg you that you will, if the opportunity presents itself, go to this land and feast your very soul on its loveliness.

Bouquets at Havre—XXXI

AT Havre we were met by a delegation of little school children, who brought us dainty little bouquets. It seemed natural to have someone give us bouquets when leaving our own homes, but to be presented with flowers by the little children of a foreign country as we were leaving for our homeland seemed but to draw us nearer to them.

True to his word, Mr. Montagnani was there to tell us good-by, and with him was Mr. Williams, the American Consul at Havre. Several newspaper correspondents and photographers had come from Paris and there were others at the station. The station is located at the dock in Havre, so that all that we had to do was to go up the gangplank. Captain Berdanneau, Mr. Francis, Mrs. Rackerman, and Countess Lausanne, besides a number of other members of the Committee in France were there to see us off. All these lined up on shore as we pulled out. We waved our little silk flags that we had carried through France, we called our good-bys as the gangplank was lifted, and the "Paris" moved away from the wharf. We were on our homeward journey.

Good-by, Baltimore and Ohio!—XXXII

THEN it was that we heard a call from the shore—"GOOD-BY, BALTIMORE AND OHIO! GOOD-BY, BALTIMORE AND OHIO!" It was begun by Mr. Heis, the photographer, who had made the journey with us all through France; then Mr. Montagnani took it up; several French reporters joined in, and soon there was a general cheer that went up from the shore:

"HIP—HIP—HOORAY for the BALTIMORE AND OHIO!"

We could yell no more. There was a lump—no, I think it must have been a mountain—in my throat. Magdalene and Nina felt the same way.

"Hey, what's all this noise going on about the Baltimore and Ohio?" came a man's voice from behind us.

It was Mr. Begien. It was he, then, that we had seen at Paris. Were we glad to see him? That would be putting it mildly indeed. Then he told us that he was leaving the Baltimore and Ohio to become vice-president of the Chesapeake and Ohio, and that he had come to Europe on a little vacation. He was now on his way home.

On Board The "Paris"—XXXIII

I SHALL not go into detail about our journey homeward, save to mention a few things that may be of interest. As on the S. S. FRANCE, there were many things to amuse us. There were the movies every afternoon, the guignol, or Punch and Judy show, a splendidly equipped gymnasium, a play room for the children, a fine library, and everything to make for a delightful journey. There was also the concert in which we again took part with a chorus which we adapted to the occasion and which brought forth great applause.

Decoration Day—XXXIV

ON the morning of May 30 we began to get together to plan some kind of celebration. At home they would be decorating the graves of our soldiers; in France many would be doing the same thing. Certainly we could not do this.

"But remember," said Florence Schulz, of Kenosha, Wis., "there were those who died at sea; we can remember them."

True, we had not thought of this. There were our bouquets which the schoolchildren had given us at Havre; there were the roses given us by the marquis; there were other flowers which we had received on our departure. We would use these. A little girl and a little boy, children of one of the passengers, offered to lead the parade. We got out our flags and our flowers, and at ten o'clock in the morning we marched three times around the ship, the children walking ahead, carrying the American and French flags; then we came to a halt and dropped our flowers overboard as we sang "America."

New York Once Again—XXXV

THE PARIS was not quite so elaborate as the France, but we found it rather restful after all of the gilded walls and brass buttons that our eyes had been filled with for the past week. The journey was most pleasant and there was but one day that might be called rough. The days went

IN AND AROUND PARIS

1. The Hotel Moderne, where the Good Willers made their headquarters when in Paris. 2. A typical little foreigner, who travelled in the steerage aboard the "Paris," on her way to America. 3. The cupid water fountain at Chateau Thierry, in all of his regalia as a Good Will Delegate (see story in last month's issue). 4. The famous Pont du Gard in southern France, which brought the water from the mountains for the baths of the old Romans. 5. One of the tanks left on the battlefield. 6. The gun emplacement of the "Big Bertha" not far from Coucy le Chateau. 7. A Sunday morning scene in Paris; goats are no respecters of persons but take a stroll up the Champs Elysees with as much unconcern as do the count and countess on the right by swiftly. We spent a great part of the mornings in playing shuffleboard. Quoits, ring games, deck tennis and deck golf were also interesting, but shuffleboard was by far the most popular game.

Arriving at Quarantine, we took aboard the inspectors. We had no trouble in going through with them, and very little with the Customs. We were getting into New York Harbor. It was Saturday afternoon. Busy little tugs were plying up and down the waters.

"Look!" cried someone, "isn't that one of your Baltimore and Ohio tugs?" It was, and, as the saying goes, it "looked good to us." We wondered if there might happen to be someone aboard her who knew that we were on the PARIS. We waved. The answer came back. We ran to the outside deck. Then, across the water came the shrill, sweet voice of a little child.

"Aunt Ma—ry," she called, "did you bring my Paris baby doll?"

It was Esther Jane Van Sant. The tug "GEORGE M. SHRIVER" drew nearer and we could see the little girl, her mama and her daddy, who had come to meet us. Then there was Mr. E. A. English, marine supervisor, New York, with Captain Burtis and his crew.

"We've seen lots of French women," called Magdalene to Esther Jane's mother, "but you look better to us than any of them."

"Did you bring any Frenchmen home with you?" they asked.

"No, but we brought a perfectly good American," we replied pointing to Mr. Begien, who stood beside us on the deck.

Then a whoop went up from the tug and she sped along so as to arrive at the dock in time to get the pictures of us coming down the gangplank which you saw in the July issue of the MAGAZINE. Through the assistance of Mr. Horton, our steamship representative, our baggage was handled quickly and before we knew it we had said goodbye to those who had taken such good care of us on the journey, and found ourselves on the streets of New York, bag and baggage, and we looked for all the world like a group of emigrants just in from Ellis Island.

"This is the Place de la Concorde," declared Nina as we turned a corner.

"And there is Eifel Tower," remarked Magdalene, indicating one of New York's skyscrapers.

"And where do we eat?" I asked.

"At Asbury Park," declared Mr. English, pointing the nose of his car Asburyward.

That night we had dinner at Asbury and motored back to New York. Next morning found us on the way back to Baltimore on Number 5. At 12.20 p. m. the train came to a smooth stop.

"Mt. Royal Station," called the brakeman, "the first stop in Baltimore!"

We were home at last!

THE END.

Carcassonne

By MARGARET TALBOTT STEVENS

The citadel of Carcassonne, built in the 5th century by the Visigoths is one of the most interesting places in southern France. Built of stone, one tower after another, connected by stone steps and stone pathways, it stands a monument to the days of cruel warfare. On a hill that overlooks miles and miles of surrounding country, even giving the traveler a peep into the heights of the Pyrenees, Carcassonne is a remarkably well preserved example of the walled city of the middle ages. On the right of the great stone gateway in the picture may be seen the Hotel de la Cite, where many of the Good Will delegates spent the night.

No longer used for warfare the citadel has become the home of many peasants, and the streets now, instead of running with blood, have become the playground of little black-aproned peasant children.

To Carcassonne they brought us yesterday
That we might see the ancient citadel
All made of cold, gray stone and lying there,
Within the shadow of the Pyrenees,
Like some old peasant by the chimney place
Garbed in ancient frock, and in his pipe
Seeking solace from the days that are no more—
A monument to the times of long ago.

Within the towers that 'gainst the sunset made
An outline grim, though beautiful withal—
For gray stones ever bring us dreary thoughts
Of prison walls—the echo of the voice
That told us of the days of Visigoths
Told also how the battles here were fought,
And bade us gaze into those frightful pits
Of torture, where brave souls had suffered death.

These great stone steps that mark the passageways
From tower to tower, steep, without balustrades,
Tell a story: These were built for men—
Strong, hairy men, whose hearts then as these stones
Were steeped in warfare and in sole desire
To kill and to possess. These turrets speak
Of wars—those fearful, hard and cruel wars
That seek destruction, blast a nation's soul.

But ah, today indeed the scenes are changed,
For down within the quaint and narrow streets,
Like little fireflies in the twilight hours,
Are happy children of the villagers.
They skip and dance and laugh about the towers
And have no fear of enemies without—
Sly little rogues who beg us for our sous—
But is not Carcassonne more lovely now?

Women's Department

Edited by Margaret Talbott Stevens.

Save the Gas and Stop a Leak in Your Home

By M. W. JONES, Assistant Editor of the Magazine

RECENTLY Aunt Mary and the writer were discussing various matters of interest to women, and also the Stop That Leak campaign. In a moment of ill-advised enthusiasm we suggested that it might be a good plan to write a little story on the subject of Stopping Leaks in the home, particularly in gas bills, etc. It turned out to be a boomerang for today we find on our desk a note saying that we are commissioned to interview our wife—or someone else's—and write the story. With this explanation, armed with note book, pencils, etc., we proceeded to lay the facts before our better half and the following interview ensued:

"My dear, I have been commissioned by the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Women's Page Editor to ascertain your views on the question of reducing gas bills. What have you to say?"

"Go away with you. You don't want to interview me. You do that 365 days a year. Why put it on paper?"

"Well, Aunt Mary wants it, and so you'll have to tell us."

"You know my views very well; write it yourself."

"Nay, nay, Pauline, it must be in your very own words."

And thus persuaded, our "boss" proceeded to expound the following views.

"Gas is one of the items in the household budget which, if not closely watched, will run into a large sum of money each month. One of the most important things is to have a good stove and to have it carefully inspected by some competent man to see that it does not leak anywhere and that the plumbing is in first class condition. The gas company will send a man to look at it if you think it's leaking. Always turn out the gas when you don't need it. Don't leave it burning. That wastes gas and costs money. Be careful to have your burners regulated so that the flame burns blue. The gas man will do that also.

"In doing your cooking, don't use large burners for small utensils and always turn off the gas before removing vessels from the stove. Keep your stove clean, don't allow burners to become clogged with grease. Cleanliness is always important.

"When baking or cooking a meal, several things can be cooked at one time. A whole dinner may be prepared in the oven by having a roast, baked potatoes, vegetables en casserole and a baked dessert.

"Don't light the gas of the outside burners before you are ready to put on the pot or skillet. This wastes gas unnecessarily.

"Although it is necessary to turn heat on under the oven, generally one burner may be turned off or both burners lowered after food is placed inside it.

"Thank you Madam," we remarked, "your explanation is very clear and easily understandable. Have you any other ideas to expound on the subject of Stopping That Leak in the home, or in other words, making your hubby's hard earned salary stretch out so that one dollar will take the place of two?"

"Yes, I have," said the lady of our heart, "and I have one remark to make which you will do well to think about yourself."

"And pray wherein have we sinned?" we asked, all a-tremble.

"The electric light bill is a prolific source of waste. When you go into the kitchen at night and turn on the light, don't leave it burning when you come out. Turn it off. When you go to the cellar before retiring, to see that there is no one there, to see that the cat is put out and the door looked, you turn on the electric light. Turn it off before you go to bed. Don't do as you did the other night, leave it lighted 'till next morning. That costs money, and I had to pay the bill."

"We stand corrected and offer our sincere apologies. Now that we are forgiven, what next have you in mind?"

"Food is another place where money can be saved or wasted. Don't cook enough for five or six people if you have only three to the meal. Have enough, of course, but don't have a lot left over. Of course, in the case of potatoes and things of that kind, if you have any left over, you can always cook them in tasty ways for the next meal.

Bread gets stale. If you have, as I have, a husband who only eats one slice, don't cut half a dozen. If he eats one and then asks for more, you can always cut another slice."

"And what are your ideas about ice?"

"In the summer time, fill your ice box up. Don't order just 25 pounds a day. The larger the lump the longer it lasts."

"And might we ask your views on the subject of the care of the furnace?"

"Most decidedly not. That's your end of the job and I don't care to discuss it. One of the important requisites of a good housekeeper is that she shall mind her own business and let her husband mind his!"

"Thank you very much, my dear. We will submit the result of our interview to Aunt Mary, and we hope that it will be satisfactory to her and that we may not be placed in the embarrassing position of being compelled to interview 'some one else's wife,' as she requested. "By the way, Aunt Mary suggested a good illustration for this little story would be your picture standing by your stove, 'stopping gas leaks.' What do you think?"

"Certainly not. When the MAGAZINE gets my photograph it will not be dressed as a kitchen canary, but in my best—that is if you ever buy me a new dress."

This seemed an opportune time to conclude the interview, having apparently started something we did not want to finish! And so, in our best reportorial style, and with many expressions of appreciation, we bowed ourselves out.

And She Said That She Only Did Her Duty

THE accompanying picture is of Mrs. G. W. Stewart, wife of Trackwalker G. W. Stewart, Indian Creek, Pa. Mrs. Stewart, by her quickness of thought and action, averted a possible serious accident.

On the afternoon of August 12 the Connelville Division was visited by a violent rain and wind storm in the vicinity of Indian Creek. A number of poles were blown down, two of which fell on our tracks not far from the Stewart home.

Mrs. G. W. Stewart—another honor woman

Mrs. Stewart was at home with her children, and, realizing the danger to our No. 23, a through passenger train, she secured a red flag which her husband uses in his line of duties, and flagged the train. The engineer caught the signal in time and brought the train to a stop without accident.

When questioned about it, Mrs. Stewart modestly said that in flagging the train she had only done her duty in attempting to save lives and property.

We are proud of Mrs. Stewart and it gives us pleasure to place her picture here and her name on the record of thoughtful Baltimore and Ohio women.

Can The Modern Girl Sew— I'll Say So

By EDITH COPLAN, Transportation Department, Baltimore

GIRLS, do you want a hearty laugh? Then read this:

"About all the modern girl knows about a needle is that you can use it only once on a Victrola."—Cabinet Woodworker.

The modern girl, indeed! I wonder if the writer knows a truly modern girl. If he would spend his evenings getting acquainted with one (or more) instead of reading all the pessimist reformers have to say, he would soon find out that the modern girl can sew, likewise knit, likewise cook, and likewise keep house, despite the fact that she may be also a capable business woman.

The modern girl, Mr. Mourner, makes many of her own clothes—especially in the summertime. How else do you think she can manage to have so many? Or haven't you noticed that? Well, to be sure, you haven't learned the price of them yet.

I move that we send this doubter a copy of our Women's Section of the MAGAZINE each month; he will learn that the modern girl can sew, and do lots of other things besides.

"There can be no thrift, nor economy, nor comfort at home, unless the wife helps; and a working man's wife, more than any other man's, for she is wife, housekeeper, nurse, and servant, all in one. If she be thrifless, putting money into her hands is like pouring water through a sieve. Let her be frugal and she will make her home a place of comfort, and she will also make her husband's life happy, if she do not lay the foundation of his prosperity and fortune."

Samuel Smiles, in "Thrift"

Announcement of the Prize-Winners in the Women's Contest will be made in the December issue

How I Made My Hat and Scarf

By Miss L. T. DOSCH, Washington, Indiana, Correspondent, St. Louis Division

(Note: Several months ago Miss Dosch wrote the editor of the Women's department about a pattern for a hat and scarf which she had seen in a recent issue of the "Women's World." Later came the letter, in which Miss Dosch tells just how she made these attractive articles which are worn by her in the accompanying picture. We are delighted to have articles like this one, and we shall be glad to hear from others of our women and girls who have done similar work. This article is one of the entries in our Women's Department contest.)

THE hat and scarf to match are of soft taffeta in dark blue. A piece of silk 1 yard wide and 2 yards long will make the hat and scarf.

The ribbon trimming of raisins for the hat and scarf uses seven clusters each in the following colors: two shades of green, orchard, salmon, orange and two shades of blue. Each cluster is made up of from 12 to 14 raisins made of ribbon  $\frac{3}{4}$  inches wide and  $2\frac{1}{2}$  inches long. Fold ribbon in the middle, lap left over right and sew in a small pleat. (Sew the raisins on a piece of crinoline or any piece of stiff material about 4 by  $1\frac{1}{2}$  inches, beginning at the top and working down to the bottom.) When the cluster is finished trim the crinoline close to the stitches so it does not show. Arrange the clusters so the colors of the clusters blend prettily and sew in place neatly. Preference may be used in colors of ribbon for raisins.

(Continued on page 44)

Miss Lottie T. Dosch, Washington, Indiana, tells how she made this pretty hat and scarf

Express Your Individuality in Your Clothes

By PEGGY

THE girl who does not make her own clothes, or at least some of them, does not realize what a lot of pleasure she is missing.

"I never sewed a stitch for myself, beyond darning stockings," said one of our girls recently. "and I think that darning stockings is what gave me the idea that sewing is boresome. However, after looking over some of these easy patterns shown in the MAGAZINE's new Fall and Winter Fashion Book, they looked so easy that I decided to try one.

"Would you think that I was crazy if I told you that I chose Pattern No. 4522 to begin with? And still sillier when I invested in blue duvetyn for my first trial dress? Well, that's just what I did. I am a little bit overweight, you know, and this pattern just appealed to me. I measured myself to find out the amount of braid that I needed, and I found a remnant of braid on the bargain counter, of just the length that I needed.

"I cut the material, did all of the necessary basting, and sewed up the straight seams on a Saturday afternoon. On Monday evening after dinner I sewed on it again, and on Tuesday evening I finished it all but the snaps. I had hoped to get it finished by Saturday at the latest. I was going with a group of girls on Saturday afternoon to the matinee and I wanted something nice. You may be sure that I was delighted with my accomplishment, particularly because the girls in the office wanted to know where I had bought it. Instead of the fancy collar, I had made one of the same material and used one of those darling little lace collars which are to be found in the department stores now.

And the sleeves are so pretty, too. Really, I feel all dressed up when I wear it.

"I liked this one so well that I secured several other patterns from the MAGAZINE Pattern Bureau and I am planning to make my whole winter outfit, including a cape. Your MAGAZINE patterns are so simple, so easy, that one has a great opportunity to express her individuality in minor changes in the patterns and retain, at the same time, the lines of the prevailing styles. Besides, goodness me, see what you're saving!

"What I do in the line of sewing is only what any other girl can do, particularly with the easy patterns that you can find on the pages of the MAGAZINE."

So there's the story. Simple patterns plus a little ingenuity, and you have a dress which, although it follows the lines of the prevailing fashion, is as individual as a creation of a Parisian designer.

4539. This pattern is cut in sizes 2, 6, 8 and 10 years. A six-year size requires  $2\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 32-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4518. Chintz and unbleached muslin would make a pretty morning dress in this pattern, which comes in the following sizes: small (34 to 36 inches); medium (38 to 40 inches); large (42 to 44 inches) and extra large (46-48 inches, bust measure). Medium size requires  $4\frac{5}{8}$  yards of one material, 32 inches wide, or, to make as illustrated requires  $1\frac{1}{2}$  yards of plain material and  $2\frac{7}{8}$  yards of figured material, 40 inches wide. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4537. Velours, bolivia, chinchilla, plush and other pile fabrics are attractive for this model. The fronts may be closed in double breasted style, or in revers effect as illustrated. Braid trimming and fur form a smart finish for this desirable model.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 10-year size requires  $2\frac{3}{8}$  yards of 54-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4534. Checked gingham in brown tones was used for this model. It is good for wool jersey, twill and serge, also for taffeta and velveteen.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 10-year size requires  $2\frac{1}{8}$  yards of 54-inch material. Collar and cuffs of contrasting material will require  $\frac{3}{8}$  yard 36 inches wide. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

No. 4522, the pattern used by this Baltimore and Ohio girl, is shown on this page. It is cut in seven sizes, 36 to 48 inches bust. Size 38 requires  $3\frac{1}{4}$  yards of 54-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

Pattern 4516 is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $5\frac{1}{8}$  yards of 40-inch material. To trim as illustrated requires  $1\frac{1}{8}$  yard of material 40 inches wide. The width of the dress at the foot with plaits extended is  $2\frac{3}{8}$  yards. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4503. Broad cloth, polo cloth, heather mixtures, tweed or velvet as well as other pile fabrics are good for this model. Fur, braid or braiding will be suitable for decoration.

4534

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6 year size requires  $2\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 40-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4519. Here is a youthful girlish design, that will lend itself readily to a development in satin, taffeta, crepe or kasha. The panel may be omitted.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires  $4\frac{1}{4}$  yards of 40-inch material. The width at the foot is  $2\frac{1}{4}$  yards. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4515. Checked percale and linene are here combined. Crepe in two colors or gingham and chambray together would be pleasing. This is also a good model for saten and ehintz in combination or alone. If made of one material, piping or binding of figured or material in a contrasting color would be attractive.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires  $4\frac{1}{8}$  yards of 36-inch material. For waist portions, pockets and belt of contrasting material  $1\frac{3}{8}$  yard is required. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4514. Camels hair, velours and all pile fabrics may be used for this style. It is also good for satin, taffeta and crepe weaves. The flounce is the new feature in fashions of this season.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $3\frac{7}{8}$  yards of 54-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4498. Dotted percale in blue and white is here portrayed. It is piped with blue bias binding. This is a good model for suiting, kasha, and jersey, also for linen and crepe. The sleeve may be in wrist-length or short.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. It requires  $3\frac{1}{8}$  yards of 27-inch material for an 8-year size. For vest, and facings of contrasting material  $\frac{1}{2}$  yard 32 inches wide is required. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4536. Figured and plain foulard is here combined. This is a pretty style for crepe de chine, with trimming of plaited frills on the panels and waist. The sleeve may be in short, or wrist length.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 12-year size requires  $3\frac{5}{8}$  yards of 40-inch material. To make as illustrated will require  $2\frac{1}{8}$  yards of plain and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  yard of contrasting material. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

PATTERN ORDER COUPON

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Pattern Bureau
1188-1190 Fulton Street
Brooklyn, New York

Please send to the following address the patterns listed below. I enclose 10 cents (stamps, check or money order) for each pattern.

Name.....

Street.....

City..... State.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Up-to-Date Book of Fashions

Send 12c. in stamps, check, or money order for our UP-TO-DATE BOOK OF FASHIONS

4523. This pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $4\frac{1}{4}$  yards of 40-inch material. The width at the foot is 2 yards. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4392. This style has slenderizing lines and is becoming to youthful and to mature figures. Gingham with linen would be fine for this, or ratine with binding in a contrasting color. Taffeta too will be attractive for this style.

The pattern is cut in 8 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $6\frac{1}{8}$  yards of 32-inch material. The width at the foot of the dress is  $2\frac{1}{2}$  yards. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4522

4539. White wool challie with figured challie is here portrayed. Figured and plain voile would also be attractive as well as plaid suiting and plain woolen. The sleeve may be finished without the peasant portion.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6-year size requires  $2\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 32-inch material. To make sleeves and front of contrasting material requires  $\frac{7}{8}$  yard 40 inches wide. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

4196. The little doll mother may not only make dolly's clothes but also the doll, from the models supplied herewith. The body may be of drill, unbleached muslin, oil cloth or senitzes, with a stuffing of bran, kopak, or cotton. Eyes of shoe buttons, nose and lips of yarn, or, the features may be embroidered or painted.

Dressed as a clown this doll will be very attractive. The suit may be of calico, cretonne or scraps of silk or satin. One or two colors of materials may be used. For the rompers, cretonne or gingham is pleasing. Dolly will be so glad of the dear little pockets in her rompers, and "Pierrot" the clown will do all sorts of tricks in his comfortable costume, if his arms and legs are fastened so as to be moveable.

The pattern comprising the doll and the garments, is cut in 3 sizes: Small, 12 inches; medium, 16 inches; large, 20 inches in length. The doll requires for a medium size  $\frac{1}{2}$  yard. The rompers  $\frac{3}{8}$  yard. The suit and hat,  $1\frac{1}{4}$  yard of 27-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Use coupon, please.

How I Made My Hat and Scarf

(Continued from page 41)

The Scarf

The scarf is 20 inches wide the full length of the material, then folded double, when finished it is 10 inches wide, with a 5 inch point on one end. Sew up scarf being careful to keep a neat point and sew clusters of raisins on this end of scarf. For the other end of the scarf gather the silk in three rows and insert dark blue tassel.

The Hat

Select a small brim hat frame and have your milliner cover same with the piece of dark blue taffeta cut from scarf, which will be sufficient to cover, and also make a small wing bow across the back of hat. Sew the clusters of ribbon in place across the front, tacking them to crown and brim.

"Ill-cooked meals are a source of discomfort in many families. Bad cooking is waste—waste of money and loss of comfort. Whom God has joined in matrimony, ill-cooked joints and ill-boiled potatoes have very often put asunder."

Samuel Smiles, in "Thrift"

These Embroidery and Applique Designs Will Help You With Your Christmas Gift Making

THE girl who sews will want to use some of these pretty designs in making Christmas gifts for her friends.

What could be prettier for the new bride than a set of tea towels done in the simple outline stitch in the pretty designs used in transfer pattern No. 12258? In the shops one may now purchase many lovely kinds of suitable materials, of which the most attractive are the new Czecho-Slovakian linens. These come in generous widths and may be had at a cost of about 30 cents per towel. A set for glass, silver, and china could be done in chain or outline stitch in blue, yellow, green, or in scarlet. The pattern, which comes in blue, furnishes two each of the four motifs shown—eight in all. This pattern may be had for 20 cents in stamps.

The woman who takes pride in the appearance of her table will be pleased with a set of napkins embroidered with her initial in the long, narrow block letters as shown here. The style as it appears is easy to embroider because of its simplicity. It may be had in sizes  $\frac{1}{2}$ , 1, 2, and 3 inches high, 12 initials of each size, so that you will be sure to have patterns enough for several sets. The smaller designs are suitable for doilies, handkerchiefs, and napkins. They also lend a particular dignity to men's handkerchiefs. The larger letters may be used to good advantage on larger articles, such as pillow cases, laundry bags, collar cases, towels, etc. This pattern is number

Transfer pattern No. 12684 shown herewith, may be had in blue or yellow. This pattern provides two of each of the designs shown. What a delightful occupation to make a pair of curtains for little Dorothy's room with a row of these little figures embroidered or appliqued on them! For, you see, the extra patch pieces for cutting the applique also are furnished with the pattern. And how about a little pair of gingham rompers on which the little boy and his toy elephant are used as decorations? The big rabbit's head with its long ears is just the right size for pockets for Helen's play dress or for Junior's rompers. Even the decorations for the little room may be enhanced by these designs. Think of going to sleep with a kiddie car baby design on our little spread and a bunny pocket in our nightie, where we may find our "handkie" if we should need it in the middle of the night.

In chambray, gingham or linen, these designs make fascinating appliques, stitched down with blanket, chain, or outline stitches. The price of this group of designs is 25 cents in stamps. Send your name and address, written plainly, and the pattern number, together with the required number of stamps to: Editor Women's Department, Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md.

12031. Please order by number, giving the initial desired. For 35 cents in stamps you may secure any one initial in 27 different sizes, 12 duplicates of each size, in seven different styles, (324 initials in all), all in one transfer pattern.

Now for the kiddies and their dresses!

Our Little Railroaders

Dear Little Railroaders
Just one thing we'll do—
We wish a fine, happy
Thanksgiving to you!

May you have many pies,
And turkeys so fat,
And puddings with raisins
As big as your hat!

Chestnutting

Oh, bring along some baskets, a tin pail and a bag,
We're going to hunt for chestnuts in the wood
Grandpa's hitching Dapple Ned
To the old cart in the shed,
And he says he'll take us all, if we'll be good.

Across the hills we ride to the rough old road that goes
Deep down into the woods for miles and miles,
Hear the squirrel's noisy chatter,
And the chipmunk's clatter, clatter,
As the Autumn winds bring rosy cheeks and smiles.

"Much farther is it, Grandpa?" asks little brother Jim,
But grandpa flaps the reins and chuckles low,
"You youngsters make me feel
"Like a young, fresh-water eel,
"Great Caesars, Dapple Ned, but you are slow!"

Oh, the forest rings with laughter as we gaily ride along,
For Grandpa knows just where the chestnuts grow,
He knows the nicest trees,
And he takes us right to these—
Just where he took his children years ago.

And sometimes there are bushels of sweet chestnuts on the ground,
And sometimes it's a job to find a quart,
But, just like Grandpa, we Are as happy as can be
When we go a-hunting chestnuts in the cart.

How to Make "Finger Prints" of Leaves

Ernest Thompson Seton tells the boys and girls process by which they can get remarkable results

IT seems to me that children nowadays have none of the resourcefulness that was usual among the young folks of my day, writes Ernest Thompson Seton in Nature Magazine of Washington. When I wanted a baseball, I made it out of cork, lead, yarn, and a cover of cord. The modern boy asks Dad for the money to buy one. So also of the bat, the bob-sleigh, the fish pole, and a hundred other things.

Which is not what I set out to tell you at all, but rather how we made beautiful pictures of leaves, even though we were not artists.

This is a simple art that our grandmothers taught us, and one that I wish every child would take up today; for even the little ones seven and eight years old, with reasonable care, can make permanent black portraits of leaves that will rival the finest steel engraving in delicacy, and far outdo them in their absolute truth.

These are the materials of the craft: a thimbleful of unsalted butter or lard, a common candle or else an oil lamp with the chimney off, some sheets of cheap, common soft paper, and last, a selection of ordinary leaves. If possible, get strawberry, raspberry, and elm, for these have such hard and prominent veins that you will be sure to have wonderful success in one or two tries, and thus get mightily encouraged and help all who see to become interested.

Begin by greasing or buttering a sheet of soft paper, rubbing the grease on evenly, so that the paper is faintly oily all over one surface. Now, light your candle or lamp, and, turning your paper greasy side down, hold it low over the light, so that it is just in the top of the flame. Keep the paper moving rapidly round and round or back and forth, until the greasy side is smoked over evenly and jet black. If you allow the paper to rest one moment, or hold the edge over the flame, it will take fire.

The smoking should be done by a grown-up; the little ones should not be trusted with the handling of fire.

When this, your smoke sheet, is ready, lay it down, smoky side up, on top of one or two thicknesses of cloth to make a smooth, soft pad. On the smoke sheet lay the leaf that is to be printed, the under side of the leaf to the paper. Now, on top of the leaf, place a sheet of soft paper. Hold it down tight with one hand, and with the finger tips of the other, rub the upper sheet all over, so as to press the leaf well into the black of the smoke.

Then lift off the top sheet—that is, the pressing sheet—take the leaf by the stalk, and lay it on a sheet of clean, white paper. Lay another clean sheet on this, holding it steady, for neither leaf nor paper must slip. Rub all over the top sheet, so as to press the leaf at all points.

Now, lift the pressing sheet and the leaf, and lo! a perfect portrait of the leaf, life-size, in imperishable carbon ink.

One leaf will make as many prints as you desire.

(Continued on next page)

Drawn by Doris Forney, Baltimore, Md.

Dear Girls and Boys:

We did not get so many answers to the September puzzles as we did for those in the August number, all of which goes to prove that the last one was the harder. The answer is the word "P-U-Z-Z-L-E." It takes Christina to make up the hard puzzles, doesn't it?

Those who sent in correct answers are: Lula Grace Ireland, 1802 N. Monroe Street, Baltimore, Md.; Edward Henry, 230 Bedford Street, and Sarah Pennington, 163 Polk Street, Cumberland, Md.; Lorraine Tharpe, Box 289, West Newton, Pa.; Jean Albers, 1805 Delaware Avenue, Wilmington, Del.; Richard Fritz, 5904 Pennsylvania Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Harry Neal, 520 Virginia Avenue, Cumberland, Md.; Mildred Rockwell, Green Spring, W. Va.; Edna Mitchell, 911 Vincent Street, Philadelphia, Pa.; William Haak, Chicago, Ill.; Mary Magdalene Appel, Breese, Ill.

And now, here is the surprise! Mrs. Frank M. Howard, grand president of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Veterans Association, offers one dollar for the first correct answer to the following puzzle. Isn't that splendid of Mrs. Howard? Here's the puzzle. Fill in each blank with the name of a tree. In the second space we have added the letter "d" to the name of the tree, and in the 11th the letter "y."

THE STORY OF JACK AND JILL

JACK WAS A VERY .....YOUNG MAN AND HE.....D FOR JILL, WHO WAS THE.....OF HIS EYE. IN HER BRIGHT.....RIBBON AND HER.....TRIMMED COAT, HE OFTEN.....AND FINALLY GOT HIS COURAGE UP TO POP THE QUESTION. HE FEARED THAT SHE DID NOT CARE A.....FOR HIM; HOWEVER, SHE ACCEPTED HIM, ALTHOUGH SHE REGRETTED THAT HE WAS NOT VERY..... THEY TOOK THEIR WEDDING TRIP IN A ..... CANOE. THEY WERE A FINE .....JILL LOOKED QUITE.....Y AS SHE SERVED JACK'S CAKES AT BREAKFAST WITH.....SYRUP. BUT FEELING THAT THIS STORY IS NOW A....., I SHALL END THE NARRATIVE.

Remember now, the first correct answer gets the dollar. Each of the others will receive a pretty post card from Aunt Mary. Next time we have a dandy puzzle which was sent us by The Major. Be sure to watch for it.

Send all answers to: Aunt Mary, Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Maryland.

How to Make "Finger Prints" of Leaves

(Continued from preceding page)

The chief mistakes you must avoid are putting too much grease on the smoky paper, and letting the leaf slip while printing.

If the black looks uneven, rub it even with the finger tips. Sometimes the sheet will need re-smoking.

If you cannot get a candle or a lamp, a substitute is found in a little torch of fat pine stick, a curl of birch bark, or even a rag of tar paper.

Always label your print with date, place, and name of the plant, if possible. If you do not know the name, some friend will surely tell you.

This is such a delightful combination of outdoor expedition and indoor art that the Woodcraft League allows honors for it. Fifty good prints of different leaves, properly labeled, counts for low honor, one hundred for high honor.

While one naturally puts these in an album as plant pictures—finger prints of the trees—they can also be used for decoration. They may be applied as a border, in a passepartout, on the cover of a book, as lining paper, or for personal touch on the head of notepaper.

Old Lady Save-it

By PEGGY POE, in "Getting On"

ONCE there was a very rich king who made it known in his kingdom that he was looking for a wife. Soon there came many pretty ladies to his court. Wise men told the king to choose a lady and give her charge of his castle for a year, and then if she proved worthy to be a royal wife he should marry her. The king picked out the most beautiful lady and gave her the keys to all his money chests and store houses.

This lady did very well for a while, being careful to keep accounts and to see that no grain or flour was wasted. But soon she grew tired of being so thrifty and spent her time making herself beautiful. Quickly all the grain was wasted and the money spent and the king found himself poor. His robes were tattered, his servants gone. Then one day an old woman came to his court. She begged to take care of the castle.

"Who are you?" asked the king crossly, because he thought the old woman so hideous.

"OLD LADY SAVE-IT is my name, sir, and I can help you get back all your riches." But the king drove her away saying he could not bear to have such an ugly person around. So things became worse until the king was so dreadfully poor that folks laughed at him.

And because he kept on trusting the beautiful lady, he was forced to beg before the year was up. When the old lady came again, the king was glad to chase the careless, lazy beauty away and give the castle keys to the thrifty, ugly old woman.

Before another year was up the king was rich once more. His cellar was full of grain and his chests were full of gold. And then he had to marry the old woman because she had proved worthy, but he didn't like the thought of having such an ugly bride. So one day instead of helping her to the throne, he roughly pulled her over and behold! Off came her straggly hair and with it a false-face! And there stood before him a most beautiful princess. And so, after all, OLD LADY SAVE-IT is a beautiful princess in disguise, and she can make us rich and happy just like she made the king if we will give her half a chance!

Prospective Business Cards Are Swelling Railroad's Revenues

THE "Traffic Tips" postcards which were sent in by employees during the month of August resulted in securing a gratifying amount of business for the Baltimore and Ohio. On the other hand, a number of them came in too late to be of value. In several cases the business would have come to our lines had the tip been received by the Traffic Department in time to take action and to "beat the other fellow to it."

The Baltimore and Ohio is not the only railroad that is using the "Traffic Tips" postcards. Other railroad magazines that come to the office indicate good organization of the prospective business proposition, and it is necessary that we Baltimore and Ohio folk get on our toes to secure all business possible for our lines before somebody else gets it. Therefore, when you know of someone who is contemplating a journey, or of some big shipment that is about to be made, fill out your card and send it in immediately, or someone else may get ahead of you.

The greatest number of tips sent in by any one person during the month of August came from G. M. Campbell, rate clerk, General Freight Office. Mr. Campbell reported movement of 5 carloads of brick; an industry seeking a new location; 10 dump cars from New York; 4000 tons of rail from Bethlehem; a railroad that was in the market for 40,000 tons of rail, and another for 2400 tons of structural steel, and the proposed construction of an 8-story office building. Not all of these tips were productive of results, but they suggest the large possibilities of placing prospective business before our traffic officers, when we keep our eyes open.

G. C. Ott, Employment and Record Bureau, Baltimore, and Travelling Passenger Agent E. J. Gleason, Chicago, were next in line. Mr. Ott reported various shipments of logs and other timber, building materials and several miscellaneous shipments. Mr. Gleason reported 70 cars of glass polishing machinery, all of which will be moved via the Baltimore and Ohio; 70 carloads of other machinery and 15 cars of gears.

Agent J. D. Parker, Raphine, Va., secured one car of oats, Toledo, Ohio, to Lexington, Va. Dining Car Steward Carroll L. Garner sent information concerning movement of feed, Chicago to West Virginia territory, resulting in 75 carloads per month being shipped via the Baltimore and Ohio. W. J. Swanson, ear clerk, Canton, Ohio, advised of a movement of sand from Massillon to Canton, Ohio, resulting in Baltimore and Ohio routing for 35 cars on which our revenue will approximate $1000. Train Dispatcher D. E. Neister, Washington, Indiana, gave information concerning a shipment of household goods, Seymour, Indiana to Los Angeles. The shipment will be routed via Baltimore and Ohio; revenue, $80.

Other employees who sent in important information concerning shipments during the month of August are: W. B. Hollas, Transportation Department, Pittsburgh; M. D. Bailey, Freight Office, Columbus, Ohio; A. H. Barton, Mail and Express Traffic Department, Baltimore; John L. Bowes, machinist, Mt. Clare. (Most of the foregoing were under investigation at the time the report was sent to the Magazine Office.)

In soliciting passenger traffic, the following have been instrumental in securing passengers for the Baltimore and Ohio: C. E. Wood, Engineering Department, Baltimore, Md.; P. P. Purgitt, power clerk, Camden Station; J. J. Conen, Motive Power Department, Mt. Clare; J. T. Morgan, Erecting Shop, Mt. Clare; P. L. Cook, Printing Department, Mt. Clare; J. L. Norris (no address given); Agent W. W. Brown, Apple Grove, W. Va.; Agent T. M. Gillum, Shinnston, W. Va.; I. C. White, Relief Department, Baltimore, Md.; D. E. Neister, Transportation Department, Pittsburgh.

One other employee sent in a card and forgot to sign his name; the tip resulted in two round trip tickets, Baltimore to California. L. Van Sandt, Freight Department, Pittsburgh, and G. G. Connelly, Freight Department, Junction Transfer, Pa., each reported prospective passengers, but the information arrived too late; in one instance the passenger had already purchased a ticket via a competing line; in the other, the passengers had departed.

Have you sent in your "Traffic Tips" card? Do it now!

Do You Know All the Memorable Sights Unfolded in the Baltimore and Ohio Washington Tour?

By HARRY B. KIGHT, Traveling Passenger Agent

THE August issue of the MAGAZINE had an interesting article entitled: "Washington Tour Is Greatest Bargain in Educational Sight-seeing," and quoted a letter from a young lady who had made this trip to prove it.

I wish that every person in this good old U. S. A. who has not already done so, would visit Washington on one of these tours and see the wonders of our capitol city.

It has been my pleasure to accompany some of these parties to Washington and frequently I hear the visitor say at the end of the first day only, "I have had my money's worth already. I wonder how they do it!"

And it is truly wonderful when you think of it—purchasing your ticket right at home, getting on the train and leaving the rest to the Baltimore and Ohio. On your arrival at Washington you are met at Union Station by the Royal Blue bus, ready to take you to the hotel of your preference. At the hotel you are made to feel quite at home. Simply give the hotel man the hotel coupon and you are assigned to a room. A call has already been left for you so that you may be up in time for the 8.00 or 8.15 a. m. bus which will take you on your first sight-seeing trip in the morning.

Our first journey is to the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, where a courteous guide shows us the processes of making our stamps and our money. Millions of dollars and of stamps are turned out from this great workshop every day.

At the Pan American Building, a masterpiece of architecture with tropical plants and many lovely things to delight the eye, there is a guide who tells us the purpose of the building, and he wins our hearts in the telling.

Then to the Nation's Capitol we go. Here everything is clearly explained. This is a journey in itself. And what a wonderful tribute to an illustrious statesman is the magnificent Lincoln Memorial! How proud we are when we think that our Country has produced a man well worthy of this magnificent temple.

A visit in the House of Representatives and in the chambers of the Supreme Court, then we return to the hotel for lunch. Historic old Alexandria is a little trip on a trolley car line. A special car has been provided to take us to this old city of George Washington's. Here we find the old Christ Church, where he worshipped. The power of the Lee family is also here. We visit the old Masonic Lodge which Washington also presided over at one time, and see the picture of Washington. Martha Washington is said to have remarked that this was the truest likeness of her husband.

On to Mt. Vernon we go, through the house once occupied by the Father of His Country. We visit the old tomb, then the new tomb—the one in which he now sleeps.

The steamer, Charles Macalester, sounds her whistle, calling us aboard for a delightful water trip up the Potomac to Washington. Dinner at the hotel, then to the Congressional Library, where we lose ourselves in its beauty. We visit also the Fish Commission and the old and the new museums. The ladies of the party are always interested in the ten thousand dollar frock, for, nine chances out of ten, they will go home and have one like it—though, perhaps, not quite so expensive.

The Red Cross Building, Continental Hall, Washington Monument, White House, National Zoological Gardens, old Central Market House, Georgetown, Fort Meyer and Arlington National Cemetery, where the tomb of the Unknown Soldier may be seen, are among the other places of interest included in the tour.

There are two evenings and one afternoon which may be spent in any manner that the tourist desires. Most members of the party attend some show during these free evenings, and the afternoon is frequently spent in a trip to Annapolis. A special car is chartered and the journey is pleasant over the W. B. & A. Electric Line. At Annapolis we visit the United States Naval Academy and other points of interest in this quaint old town.

As the MAGAZINE has said, these tours are the "greatest bargain in educational sightseeing," and when you have returned home on our comfortable Baltimore and Ohio, after having enjoyed a fine dinner en route, you cannot be anything but a booster.

Employes, talk Washington Tours to your friends! Tell them to ask the ticket agent or to write the travelling passenger agent in your district and let him arrange for a trip. The cost is small, the trip is great. To see Washington like this is to become a better citizen.

This happy group made up the first Florida tour party of the current season.

First Florida Tour of Season

You would smile, too, if you had visions of spending the cold winter months amid sunshine and flowers

THE accompanying illustration represents the Autumn tour party from various points on the Baltimore and Ohio Western Lines to Jacksonville, Florida, October 1. En route, they stopped over in Washington several days for sight-seeing purposes and were photographed in front of the Lincoln Memorial.

From Washington the party journeyed to Baltimore and thence sailed on the Merchants & Miners Transportation Company's new steamer "Alleghany" from Baltimore to Jacksonville.

Traveling Passenger Agent Geo. H. Sinks, Cincinnati, accompanied them from Cincinnati to Baltimore.

This is the first of a series of "All Expense" Jacksonville tours to be operated from western line territory during the winter season. General Passenger Agent Squiggins at Cincinnati, who enjoys the distinction of being the "Father" of these

This happy group of West Virginians and Pennsylvanians went back home with a new vision of the beauties of the National Capital.

They spent several enjoyable days en route at the Nation's Capital winter tours, announces they will be operated every Monday from October 29 to November 26, and every Monday and Thursday, December 3, to February 14.

Baltimore and Ohio Men Stepping Up

R. N. BEGIEN, vice-president operation, Chesapeake and Ohio Railway, announces the appointment of J. E. Teal as engineer, operation, effective August 1.

Mr. Teal was born at Arcadia, Ind., in 1884. He received his B. S. and C. E. degrees from Purdue University. He entered the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio in May, 1905 and was successively axeman, draftsman, transitman on field topographical surveys, railway location, etc., including work on the Magnolia Cutoff in 1913-1914. He was employed by the Missouri-Pacific Railway from June, 1909 to August, 1911 in various capacities in the Engineering Department. In September, 1911 he returned to the Baltimore and Ohio, remaining with them until his recent appointment. He was on the General Manager's staff as assistant engineer, general inspection of maintenance, reports, etc.

R. O. Robertson has been appointed Secretary to Vice-President G. B. Wall. For the past year he has been chief clerk to Assistant to President J. C. Dice. His first railroad experience was as yard and general utility clerk in the joint agency of the Baltimore and Ohio and Southern Railways at Harrisburg, Va. In 1917 he was employed by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway.

—The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Employees Magazine

Walter V. Shipley Made Assistant General Passenger Agent

ON OCTOBER 1 Walter V. Shipley was appointed assistant general passenger agent, Washington, D. C., with headquarters Room 323, Homer Building.

On the same date C. E. Thorney was appointed division passenger agent at Washington, same headquarters.

Boosters—All!

An employee of the C. & P. Telephone Co. in Baltimore was transferred to Richmond. He told his friends about it, among them several Baltimore and Ohio employees. Without exception each of them asked him to use "his" Road.

That's the spirit, men! It just can't be beat!

apital. Traveling Passenger Agent Harry B. Kight, who was in charge of the party, is in the extreme right back ground

Present at Laying of Baltimore and Ohio Cornerstone

THE accompanying photograph is of Joseph T. West, who was born near Mt. Airy, Md. in 1820. Mr. West was an engineer. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service on November 19, 1847 and died on July 12, 1903. He ran the second engine constructed for the Baltimore and Ohio, the "Atlantic," when it was used as a switching engine in Frederick, Md.

Miss Alice G. West, granddaughter of Joseph T. West, and daughter of a retired Baltimore and Ohio engineer—Charles T. West, is employed as timekeeper at Martinsburg, W. Va. Shop.

Joseph T. West was present at the laying of the cornerstone of the Baltimore and Ohio by Charles Carroll of Carrollton on July 4, 1828.

Agent J. D. Kennedy, Clendennin, W. Va., Works Hard to "Stop That Leak"

THE accompanying photograph is of Agent J. D. Kennedy, Clendennin, W. Va. Clendennin is a small town of under 2500 people on the Coal and Coke District, Charleston Division.

During the first six months of this year Mr. Kennedy has increased the revenue at his station to the amount of $41.47 by check weighing L. C. L. freight, which is a good showing, when the size of the town and amount of freight handled is considered.

Before the Coal and Coke was purchased by the Baltimore and Ohio, Mr. Kennedy was employed by the former company as operator, agent, car distributor and traveling auditor. When the road was consolidated with the Charleston Division, he bid in Clendennin station and has remained there since that time. Mr. Kennedy says "We endeavor to watch this source of revenue closely, and when you see our figures for the whole year, I believe you will agree that we have done well."

Agent J. D. Kennedy, Clendennin, W. Va.

Champion Baltimore and Ohio Commuter

THE Akron Sunday Times of July 15 contained a story of Mr. William Palmer, who probably holds the record for long time commuting on the Baltimore and Ohio.

Mr. Palmer is 73 years of age and is employed by the Goodyear Rubber Company as carpenter and repair man. He has spent $1,171.45 on railroad fare, riding between his home in Krumroy and Akron in the past 35 years. Rain or shine he has been on hand to catch Baltimore and Ohio No. 41, six days a week, at 6.58 a. m. He leaves Akron at 7.20 p. m. for home. In the course of his travels he has covered a total of 109,550 miles.

Another noteworthy record held by Mr. Palmer is that he has not missed a train more than four times and in such cases it was due to his watch being slow rather than late rising.

The Akron Sunday Times says: "Mr. Palmer, asked why he did not get an auto-

Joseph T. West, an engineer who ran the "Atlantic," second Baltimore and Ohio locomotive mobile, replied, 'Why should I drive an automobile and make gasoline just so much scarcer and dearer for the folks with cars? No sir, I am strong for the old Baltimore and Ohio. I couldn't travel on anything else on wheels half as cheap.'

In the course of all his rides on the Baltimore and Ohio, Mr. Palmer says he has never been in a wreck, the nearest to it being on one occasion when the car jumped the track, but no one was injured.

"I only had to stand up once or twice in all the 35 years. Yes sir, the Baltimore and Ohio is good enough for me," he reiterated.

News From George M. Shriver Auxiliary, Martinsburg, W. Va.

By MRS. CLARA McDONALD TAYLOR
Correspondent

WELL, well, North Queen Street looks as though we had had an earthquake since the buildings have been torn down in order to get ready for our sub-way, which the public will surely appreciate when finished. The work is expected to start in the next week or ten days, and will be a help to traffic in the north end.

Photo by courtesy Akron Sunday Times

A Veteran Commuter, William Palmer

October 7 was a happy day in the life of our sister, Mrs. Mary Johnson, of N. Second Street, when her children tendered her a surprise birthday dinner in honor of her sixty-seventh birthday. Mrs. Johnson responded very courteously to her many friends with her gracious smiles. Her children presented her with a substantial purse and many useful remembrances. Guests included friends from Washington and Pittsburgh.

Another enjoyable event was the dance given in Crandalls Hall, chaperoned by Mesdames Robertson, Rhodes, Crequeux and Welty. Everybody had a fine time.

It seems too bad that the following young men at Cumbo, just when their wives were getting ready for fall house cleaning, have hurt their hands.

C. L. Fisher, of Virginia Avenue, car man at Cumbo, mashed his thumb and was treated at City Hospital. P. H. Welsham, North Queen Street, fractured his thumb. J. H. Sirbaugh, Eulalia Street, also had a mashed finger. All are getting along nicely.

We regret to hear of Veteran Conductor Edward Rhodes having the misfortune to lose his foot. Mr. Rhodes is getting along fine. His is a sunny disposition. We hope to see him out soon.

Brakeman Fred Travel recently met an untimely death here in the railroad yard. He leaves a wife and a small child to mourn the loss. Much sympathy is felt for the bereaved ones.

A wedding of much interest was that of Mr. Noval Nicholson Shansler, of Baltimore, and Miss May Blanche Mock, attractive young sister of Yardmaster C. H. Mock, Cumbo. Mr. Shansler is a well known young business man of the city. We wish them the best that life affords.

A Visit with the Laurel Race Trains

By W. H. TARR, Correspondent, Baltimore Division

WE ate our noon-day lunch and hurried back to the station. "Here are your Jacks!" "Here are your scratch sheets!" We passed these by. Our object was a trip with the men in the train service, who are engaged in handling the patrons to and from the race track at Laurel, Maryland, the racing season for this park being the month of October of each year.

We halted for a few minutes at Camden Street for the traffic to pass so that we could safely cross. On arrival in the station, we heard the sonorous voice of Brakeman Tom Joyce announcing the trains: "All aboard for Laurel Race Track." After all our hurry, we missed the 12.21 Special and had time to saunter around for the next Special at 12.45. Gatemen R. J. Chew and W. A. Sayres were at their posts letting the crowd through the gates; and upon presentation of our pass we passed to the coaches.

Here we stop long enough to note the excellent organization of Stationmaster J. T. Schley. There were other trains being announced and dispatched at the same time and no confusion. "All aboard." While we were not there, Gateman Chew or Sayres must have closed the gates and given the starting signal.

Operator Harry Richter, down at Lee Street Tower, had the switches and signal set and we proceeded out of the station. Up in the Dispatcher's Office, "Ed" Kelly, on the Washington Branch wire, must have stepped on the gas of his "Chevrolet," or sent the word, as it was not long before we arrived at the race track. The day was fine and en route we heard the clear and distinct — — (two long and two short blasts), the regulation crossing warning signal sounded by Engineer A. J. Ross. Brakeman A. B. Carter was taking care of the rear, where Conductors W. E. Clarke and E. L. Littleton arrived in taking up the transportation and gave us the "once over."

At the Race Track station the specials from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington continued to arrive as the patrons hurried through the gates. Through the instrumentality of Passenger Trainmaster C. A. Mewshaw I was introduced by Brakeman L. V. Moxley to Superintendent of Gates J. E. Humphries, Laurel Race Track Association. Mr. Humphries preferred us to call him "Jack"—everyone knew him by that name. He was busy watching the gatemen in their duties, but took time to give us much interesting information and spoke of how efficiently the patrons were being handled. The foresight of the Management in providing the necessary facilities to handle the race goers can be seen. Mr.

Humphries states that when the course was first opened the attendance was about 5,000 persons. Now it is running between twelve and fifteen thousand and the people are being handled with the least difficulty. After thanking Mr. Humphries for his courtesy, we returned to the station.

We spent some time with Operator H. E. Harper, who was busily engaged compiling data on the number of patrons handled on this particular day. Others engaged in handling the movement were Engineers Burns and Cavey; Conductors Timanus and Hendricks; Brakemen Torncy, Ford, Basford, Fisher and Wayne; Firemen Reirholdt and Rudy. Signal Maintainer F. D. Powell was looking after signals. W. P. Cox was handling the tickets for the Passenger Department. We boarded the 3.59 Local for return to Baltimore, on which we met the genial Conductor J. C. Conaway, who—we were going to say "credentials" again—but we presented our automobile operator's card instead of our 1923 pass and the joke was on us.

We almost forgot to pay our compliments to C. A. Mewshaw, passenger trainmaster. We are handling the usual number to and from the race course and the Race Course Management praises the handling of both horses and patrons. An example of efficiency is the fact that all patrons are handled within thirty minutes after leaving the grounds via our gates.

Izzie and Lizzie

An issue of Tips and Topics recently contained the following verse:

Where Is He?

There was a young fellow named Izzie,
Who took a drive in his Lizzie,
His view of a train
Was hidden by rain,
Alas for poor Izzie, where is he?

Which Barry Fenton, file clerk, Office of Senior Vice President cleverly answers, viz.:

Anent that young fellow named Izzie,
Who took a ride in his Lizzie,
Had Izzie got out
And looked round about
We wouldn't be asking—"Where is he?"

A FEW OF THOSE WHO HELPED IN THE BIG JOB OF HANDLING THE RACING TRAINS
Upper row, left to right, F. B. Crouch, Passenger Car Foreman; W. H. Tarr, Superintendent's Office, Camden Station, writing the accompanying story of how the crowds were handled; John Faukand, Inspector Carman, Laurel Racetrack. Second row, left, H. F. Hunt, Car Inspector, busy with his report; right, M. L. Ford, Passenger Brakeman. Bottom row, left, W. T. Barton, Passenger Brakeman; center, J. J. Ames and W. F. Hendricks, Passenger Conductors, with their trains loaded and ready to go; right, H. W. Daygen, Car Foreman in charge at Laurel

"Tom" Stewart Honored by Mt. Clare Friends on His Sixtieth Birthday

AT 11.40 a. m., September 29, when the whistle blew for the lunch period at Mount Clare, the men gathered round the platform below the offices, and the Mount Clare band played "Yes, We Have No Bananas," to call every one to that spot.

On the platform were Chief of Welfare Bureau, W. W. Wood, Grand President Veterans' George W. Sturmer, supervising officers and the boys and girls from the offices. The occasion was the birthday of Superintendent of Shops Thomas R. Stewart.

In addressing the men, Mr. Stewart said the band had asked permission to play for a few minutes and that he had gladly given it. He admitted that it was his birthday, but declined to state how old he was. However, he did say that he was born on September 29, 1863, so you can figure it out yourself. He expressed his appreciation of the cooperation given him by his men and said that Mount Clare had made an excellent record in cleaning up in the past few months, but that he hoped for even better results in the future. Mr. Stewart was heartily applauded.

The next speaker was "Senator Dick," a friend of 30 years' standing of Mr.

Stewart. In a stirring address, which was frequently interrupted by applause, he told of the firm friendship extended to him by Mr. Stewart in his dark days. He said that the superintendent's door was always open for any one with a grievance and that a satisfactory conclusion was always reached before the man left. In concluding he quoted these lines of the poem, "Do It Now," which are particularly appropriate in the case of Mr. Stewart:

"More than fame and more than money is the comment kind and sunny

And the hearty warm approval of a friend;

For it gives to life a savor, and it makes you stronger, braver,

And it gives you heart and spirit to the end;

MOUNT CLARE CELEBRATES SIXTIETH BIRTHDAY OF SHOP SUPERINTENDENT T. R. STEWART

Above, left to right: Grand President of Veterans George W. Sturmer; Jane Bell, granddaughter of Mr. Stewart; Superintendent T. R. Stewart; "Senator" Dick. Below: Mount Clare employees see presentation of Veterans' button to Mr. Stewart.

Passenger Representation Important Factor in Moulding Public Opinion on Railroads

Ticket Agent F. J. Eddy, Grand Central Station, Chicago

If he earns your praise, bestow it; if you like him, let him know it;
Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over and he's underneath the clover,
For he cannot read his tombstone when he's dead."

Mr. Wood was the next speaker. He referred to the splendid standing of the Baltimore and Ohio in the railroad world, and dwelt particularly on the part the shop men have played in bringing our equipment up to its present standard of efficiency. In closing he presented Mr. Stewart with a Veteran's button and expressed the hope that he might live to wear it many years.

On behalf of the shop foremen, Senator Dick presented Mr. Stewart with a beautiful basket of sixty pink roses. One of the young ladies present also presented him with a bunch of pretty flowers with the good wishes of the Car Department.

The final speaker was Grand President of Veterans Sturmer. He recalled the days when he used to bring "Annie Rooney" to Riverside, when Mr. Stewart was in charge of the shops there, and stressed the fact that Mr. Stewart was always a man whose word could be depended upon. Mr. Sturmer said the old "Annie Rooney" was always good for one more trip when "Tom" Stewart had finished with her. He also stressed the importance of cooperation.

Between the various addresses the Mount Clare Band played selections and acquitted itself in its usual creditable manner. At noon, with three hearty cheers for their good friend and superior, the men disbanded and resumed their various duties.

The Engineer

who runs his train smoothly and with a minimum of smoke, who starts and stops without jar, is a big asset in securing Passenger Business.

AT the meeting of the American Association of Railway Ticket Agents, held in Portland, Ore., this year, a paper was read by F. J. Eddy, ticket agent, Baltimore and Ohio, Grand Central Station, Chicago, Ill., on the subject of "Lessons of our 1922 Convention." In commenting on the paper, General Passenger Agent W. G. Brown says:

"Mr. Eddy has been a member of the Executive Committee of this organization for the past four years. The organization has attained the respect of passenger traffic officers, by reason of the calibre of the men on this committee. They are working to promote a greater incentive on the part of the ticket agent to appreciate his position and to handle his patrons in a tactful and intelligent manner. In this way it is hoped that the Passenger Department man will receive his proper recognition, as the representative of the railroads who comes into contact with the public more than any other employe. His action produces a good or bad effect on the patron and is the basis of the judgment formed of the employer."

In concluding his discussion Mr. Eddy says:

"There are many other lessons to be gained from our convention, a very important one being the thought of the community of interest which obtains between the railroads and the different cities we visit. Our association as a whole is primarily interested in cultivating the habit of travel. In a broader sense we may be indifferent as to where people go on their initial trip. After they are inoculated with the travel germ we can trust them to desire to include the entire country in time. We are justified in our efforts in this direction, knowing that in broadening their vision, we are making better citizens of them."

Mr. Eddy, whose photograph accompanies this article, entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal on August 1, 1887, as a ticket agent. His service with this Company has been continuous since that date.

Here's an Agent's Kerosene Lantern Used in the Eighteen-Fifties

AN interesting relic of the olden days of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is that now in the possession of Mr. F. B. Hooft, Charles Town, W. Va. It is a kerosene lantern, used by his grandfather, Fontaine Beckham, formerly agent at Harper's Ferry, W. Va. It still carries the original globe, which has on it Mr. Hooft's grandfather's initials, "F. B." The lantern is in good condition and is highly prized by its owner.

"My grandfather's name was Fontaine Beckham," said Mr. Hooft to the MAGAZINE representative. "He was agent for the Baltimore and Ohio at Harper's Ferry for many years. He was killed in the John Brown raid in 1859. He was working in his office and hearing the noise of shooting came outside to see what was the trouble. A shot struck him and he was instantly killed.

"The lantern was not found at the time by a member of our family, but a few years ago an old friend, into whose possession it had come, sent for me and gave it to me. My grandfather is buried here in Charles Town. Here also is the court, which you can see opposite us, where John Brown and his men were tried, and on the opposite corner was the old jail where they were confined. This jail, however, has been removed now to make room for a new Government building."

Here are the men who made a record in handling the "Goodfellow Special" on the Charleston Division. Left to right: Fireman, H. Carpenter, Engineer N. H. Davidson, Engineer S. L. Rodebaugh, Fireman D. E. Rohrbough, Road Foreman P. D. Marsh (See story on page 95)

Mr. F. B. Hooff and his grandfather's old lantern

Mr. Hooff also courteously secured his car and showed our representative the spot where John Brown and his men were hanged. This property is now occupied by a fine residence.

The only photograph in existence of the late Mr. Beckham is an old oil painting which Mr. Hooff recently discovered in an old print shop in Shepherdstown, W. Va.

Dinner in Honor of J. F. Bowden, Former District Master Mechanic at Wheeling, W. Va.

By MARIE SLATTERICK, Correspondent

J. F. BOWDEN, district master mechanic, was transferred from Wheeling, W. Va. on September 16. As an expression of their high regard and respect for him the employes of the West Virginia District gave a dinner in his honor at the Windsor Hotel in Wheeling at 8.30 p. m., September 26. The affair was "stag," of course, and with seventy-five men present.

It was a very enjoyable and delightful affair. T. B. Burgess, supervisor of locomotive operation, was toastmaster and gave an interesting talk, while a number of the others present made speeches, speaking of Mr. Bowden with highest regard, of their association with him in railroad life, and expressing regret at his leaving us. Among those who gave talks were: W. J. Duffey, mechanical examiner; John Cummins, engineer; E. L. Wayman, engineer; H. J. Burkley, master mechanic; F. A. Baldinger, master mechanic; U. B. Williams, general agent; C. Poe, chief clerk to general superintendent; F. M. Garber, car foreman; H. S. Bickel, secretary Y. M. C. A.

During the dinner some very beautiful as well as useful gifts were presented to Mr. Bowden—a 151-piece solid silver table set, a six piece solid silver tea set, a traveling bag fully equipped and a pipe. A ladies traveling bag was also presented for Mrs. Bowden. The "Sun Set Six" Orchestra furnished a good musical program with some special numbers.

The outstanding feature of the affair was the expression of genuine good fellowship that exists among the employes of the Baltimore and Ohio. Everyone wishes Mr. Bowden success as he leaves to assume his new duties on the New York Terminal Lines, Staten Island, N. Y.

Worry: "Don't worry. It is not the revolutions that destroy the machinery, but friction."

World: The earth is a wheel and it will come round right.—Disraeli.

J. A. Scheuerman, recently promoted to Coal Freight Agent in Baltimore

Safety Roll of Honor

Date	Name	Occupation	Location	Condition Reported
BALTIMORE AND BALTIMORE TERMINAL DIVISIONS
Aug. 27	W. F. Matthews	Agent	Kensington	Defective car
NEW YORK DIVISION
June 20	F. J. Maloney	Flagman	Livingston	Track
CONNELLSVILLE DIVISION
Sept. 4	R. E. Boyer	Brakeman	Yoder	Defective car
Aug. 12	Mrs. G. W. Stewart		Indian Creek	Reported obstruction on track
WHEELING DIVISION
May 11	John Utzler	Crossing Watchman	Bridgeport	Defective car
	Stitt	Yardmaster	Bridgeport	Defective car
	Shivlin	Operator	Bridgeport	Defective car
	W. D. Lucas	Supervisor	Bridgeport	Defective car
	Cotton	Lineman	Bridgeport	Defective car
CHARLESTOWN DIVISION
Oct. 9	A. J. Lawson	Engineer	Weston	Assisted handling express
Oct. 5	R. A. Hamrick	Surgeon	Clay	Reported obstruction on track
OHIO DIVISION
Sept. 29	G. G. Doherty	Operator	Columbus	Defective car
Sept. 26	G. G. Doherty	Operator	Columbus	Defective car
CHICAGO DIVISION
Oct. 1	H. A. Crowe	Brakeman	Garrett	Track
Sept. 22	F. Brown	Operator	Whiting	Defective car
ST. LOUIS DIVISION
Sept. 8	J. W. LaFara	Brakeman	Brownstown	Defective car
	J. V. Huffington	Agent	Holton	Defective car
TOLEDO DIVISION
Sept. 28	W. L. Nungester	Baggage man	Lima	Defective car

Among Ourselves

Baltimore and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio Annex Buildings

Law Department

Correspondent, GEORGE W. HAULENBEEK

Edward Everett Hurdle is the name of one of our Baltimore and Ohio telegraphers. He came into our service in September, 1877. I met him in the Central Building recently, and he awakened my interest by reminding me of how he delivered dispatches in his messenger days to the Law Department when it was located in the old Reverdy Johnson residence opposite the Battle Monument and Barnum's Hotel. This was before the erection of the Baltimore and Ohio Building where the Emerson Hotel now stands, away back in 1881.

It did me good to grasp the hand of this faithful Baltimore and Ohio employee. He is stationed at the Waverly Tower giving the proper signals to our electric motors as they are detached from the trains.

As I am a passenger on No. 524 every Saturday to spend my week end, it will be proper to give thought to my friend, feeling and knowing that the right signals have been set. Forty-six years in the service!

Birthdays in the Law Department

In October we had a feast of birthdays. My young friend, Rowland Gosnell, and William Ainsworth Parker celebrated on the first of that month. Duncan Kenner Brent and the Law Department correspondent were full of smiles on the ninth, and Charles Seip Stout, who is now with Vice-President Fries, commemorated on the thirtieth. Mr. Brent is trying his best to catch up with the Law Department correspondent, but when a fellow reaches his eightieth milestone and skips about the building like a lad in his teens, it is a pretty tough proposition to overtake him.

Mrs. Esther Bernstein, secretary to George Dobbin Penniman, returned from her vacation at the end of September, her features wreathed in smiles. Mr. Penniman's desk and his file shelves never knew what it was to revel in order and neatness, until Mrs. Bernstein made her advent into the Law Department. Her work is as free from errors, as mine is full of them. Now there!

I wish the ladies in the Law Department would lift the ban against publicity in the MAGAZINE, for every now and then I note an event that would make a very readable paragraph, but I am estopped; maintaining that the ladies should be appealingly treated, I become compassionate and yield.

Take, for instance, the topic of residing in Washington and taking the fast trains of the Baltimore and Ohio, frequently coming into Camden Station ahead of time, and reaching Washington in the same speedy way, as one of our young ladies does, but no, I am admonished to observe silence, and there you are.

We had a call recently from J. R. Plummer of our Tax Office. To improve his health, Mr. Plummer has been residing in Phoenix, Arizona. He and Mrs. Plummer merely came to Baltimore to say "How do you do," and then to return. Mr. Plummer is full of enthusiasm over his future home; says the climate is ideal; slippery sidewalks and icy conditions are unknown. These things can be obtained however, by going to the town of Flagstaff, Arizona, where wintry conditions prevail at the proper season, but the bright sunny days in Phoenix are supremely excellent, and he and his wife, who was a Baltimore girl, endorse it to the fullest extent.

After I reach my ninetieth milestone, I may go to Phoenix and take up my residence; all this is possible in another decade.

Agur's Prayer

Agur's prayer is my favorite verse in the Bible. If you care to look it up, you will find it in the 8th verse of the 30th chapter of Proverbs. In my early days in the Law Department, Agur's prayer was referred to in dictation, and I was obliged to ask as to the spelling. I felt so mortified that I decided to read up a little bit and become posted. I have been reading up ever since.

Mrs. Gertrude L. Kelly, secretary to R. Marsden Smith, retired from the Law Department on October 6. I told Mrs. Kelly on the eve of her departure that her successor would have to measure up to 100 per cent. to be in her class.

Miss Marion Dushane Penniman, daughter of our George Dobbin Penniman, was married to Mr. Francis Meserve Barker on October 11. The throng of admirers at Old St. Paul's Church can testify that the wedding was lovely in every respect.

Engineering Department

Correspondent, O. K. EDEN

Cross Crossings Cautiously! If people would only educate themselves, or allow themselves to be educated, to escape the dangers of crossing a street at the wrong place, less lives would be sacrificed. And automobilists and drivers of other kinds of vehicles should be especially careful when crossing a railroad track. Many a man has lost his life by not stopping to think over what he was about to do. But don't just Stop. Look about you and Listen! And don't wait until your machine is straddling the rails. While there is no set distance in which to bring a machine to a stop from the railroad track, the intelligent driver approaches a railroad crossing with his machine under control, and comes to a stop about fifteen feet away from the track. Cross Crossings Cautiously!

Mrs. Ward, mother of Miss Margraet Ward, Engineering Department, Pittsburgh. Miss Ward is a great business getter for the Baltimore and Ohio

Through neglect on my part I failed to compliment two men connected with this department, and one indirectly connected, for receiving honorable mention in the Baltimore and Ohio Trade Mark contest, which was won by Miss Leanora P. Lansdowne, also of this department. The first two are C. L. Allard, our efficient photostatter, and Wm. C. ("Bill") Pinschmidt, a draftsman in Office Engineer Milburn's office, and one of my able reporters. The other gentleman is R. F. ("Bob") Klebe, who is connected with Cost Engineer Bennett. Congratulations, and apologies for my negligence, gentlemen!

Alabama Alf! One of our secretaries journeyed to, and returned from, Alabama, where he spent his vacation; hence the appellation. It might be added that since his return his countenance has been lightened up with a huge grin. Oh, you southern moonlight nights!

Mr. "Know-it-all(?)," Jerry M. Fitzgibbons waited until the time of the World Series in order to enjoy his two weeks' vacation from the office. While he was away his work was efficiently handled by Miss George P. Simpson.

After many hard fought debates G. M. Benson, Bridge Division, was finally given two weeks' vacation. Then Milton had to spoil it all by taking the fatal plunge into matrimony. On September 27 he and Miss Mildred E. Selory, of Canton, Ohio, were married. After the ceremony the bride and groom motored to various points of interest (National Bank—6%) at Halethorpe. The event means a big victory for the married men of the Bridge Division, and brings their percentage almost up to par. The bride will reside at Halethorpe and the groom at Desk No. 23, 13th floor, Baltimore and Ohio Building. Congratulations and best wishes are in order, Mr. Benson!

Your attention is respectfully called to our unobtrusive, but highly efficient office boy, Everett Kennedy. Here's the kind of chap who will succeed. Comes to work early and stays late (not, as one of our noble wits remarked some months ago, "to loaf longer," but to finish his day's work and keep his slate clean). Aside from his duties in the office Everett is attending night school with the idea of furthering his education and bettering himself financially, taking a course in stenography at Baltimore Business College. Good work, Everett; keep it up!

After much talking and waiting, it finally came to pass—the matrimonial ceremony in which E. H. Baumann, of this office, played the role of leading man. The leading lady was Miss Barbara K. Schraudner, of Fullerton, Md. The premiere of the "show" was October 3. After the ceremony the couple journeyed to Miami, Florida, and other southern points of interest. Upon his return to the office, Harry was presented with some Stieff silver by the department. Good luck and best wishes, Harry.

It is with regret that I report the severance of relations with the Company by Wm. C. Pinschmidt, draftsman under Office Engineer Milburn, who has accepted a more lucrative position with the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway in Richmond. Aside from the Railroad losing a capable draftsman, our department has lost a booster and an able reporter. We wish him success in his new enterprise.

If ever the occasion arises, don't forget to make use of the "Prospective Business" card, furnished with each issue of the MAGAZINE. There may be a friend, or friends, who contemplate taking a trip via a competitive line, who, with a little persuasion on your part, can be converted to "at least" try the Baltimore and Ohio. One of my friends has a saying on his desk "I'll try a thing once, and if I like it, I'll try it again." Induce your friends to "try" the Baltimore and Ohio once for service, not only in passenger or eating, but also in the freight line, and if once tried you can rest assured they will try it again. A little energy expended by you to set forth the good points of the Road for which you work, costs you nothing, and might mean dollars and cents to the Company. See if it doesn't.

There is a saying "Haste makes waste," which applies in nearly every case. Particularly does it apply to mailing out letters, etc. (which was brought home to me in a personal experience sometime ago.) If in doubt about a person's address, or title, take the trouble to look it up or ask about it, and if you can't write legibly, print it on the envelope, or wrapper, as the ease may be.

Office of District Engineer, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Correspondent, J. M. WHEALAN
Accountant

The possibilities of the MAGAZINE as a clearing house for opinions and ideas, tending to improve ourselves in relation to our employment, have been scarcely touched. With the interest of all it ought to be easily possible for us to achieve the aim of making the MAGAZINE the best of its kind in the United States.

FOR RENT

RELAY: 8 room house, bath, porches, garage, electric lights, hot water heat, fruit, shade.

Phone: Elkridge 22-J.

That was a very fortunate accident, so to speak, which happened to our "Bill" out on the "Pike." Fortunate, indeed, that it was no worse. We understand that "Bill" stood not on the manner of his going, but went away from there in a hurry. It was a case of "Feet, do your stuff," and the creek bed being somewhat harder than the feather kind, offered considerable resistance to the impact caused by "Bill's" arrival. The total casualties were a badly sprained leg and the loss of considerable peace of mind. "Bill," upon being interviewed, modestly stated that he was considerably scared. We are glad to say, by way of closing, however, that "Bill" is now back at work, but a lookout is now being kept both ways.

We feel that our friend the Editor waxed somewhat facetious, in the September number, but we think he got our point, don't you?

Elsewhere in this issue is a story about Miss Margaret M. Ward, this Department, an efficient business getter for the Road. Miss Ward's mother, like her daughter, is a strong booster of the Baltimore and Ohio.

General Freight Claim Agent's Department

Correspondent, NORMA H. APPEGARTE

Harry Frank, who was a sufferer, as he supposed, from a nervous breakdown, was advised to take a six weeks' furlough, which he did. Then he returned to his usual place in the office, and after working a couple of days, decided he was not just feeling right, so went for a day's vacation on September 12. On second thought he found he was not a sufferer from nerves, but was love sick, so he decided to take a trip to Westminster, Md., accompanied by his bride to be, Miss Rhoda Dingle, and returned an all married man. Nothing wrong with your nerves, young man. We wish you luck and happiness in your adventure.

On September 26 we had a terrible scare but it's all over now. Mrs. Lena Lozen appeared with a diamond on her left hand, but she says it's not "that kind of a diamond" so guess we'll try to believe her as she is usually a truthful person. But we have our eye on her and her perfect 48 silver button man.

We trust by the time these items go to press, Miss Bethelda Williams and Miss Margaret Wagner, who have just undergone operations at the Woman's Hospital, will be with us again feeling fine. They both had our sympathy in the time of trouble.

The stork is working overtime for the employees of this office. Left R. F. Benfer a baby boy, September 18, G. A. MacDonald, a girl, September 26, and F. A. Neville, a boy, October 9. Congratulations!

A maid so fair of face and form, powdered and perfumed and perfectly shod, did venture forth one cloudy September morn with never a thought of what might happen to a roshanara crepe dress she had planned to display at a dinner party that very day. So the wise young lady with no thought of an umbrella arrived O. K. on the J. G. Brill at Fayette and Eutaw, but the truth to tell is hard to spill, for when she stepped from the car it was raining, and Oh, my! you should have seen poor Del all shaking and dripping and shrinking. Yes, she shrunk and shrunk until there was nothing to shrink, a terrible calamity with three blocks to walk, and she, just shrinking and shrunk, just how far she would shrink is what worried our Del, about a roshanara crepe one never can tell, at last she reached the office door, thanking her stars she had no farther to go, so then, oh then, she started drying the shrink, and she dried all shrunk and shrunk. When five o'clock came her co-workers felt sorry, and ordered a taxi for our shrunken up Del. That's about all to tell of the roshanara crepe and Del.

Office of General Superintendent Transportation

Correspondent, PAUL L. FAUSTMAN

We were glad indeed to see our old friend, C. J. Fellows, who recently paid us a visit. Mr. Fellows' experience in railroading has been varied and extensive. He has been associated with the C. C. C. & I. Railroad as car accountant; with the Big Four as superintendent, car service; the Burton Stock Car Company as assistant general manager; C. & A. Railroad as superintendent, Car Service; C. G. W. Railroad as car service agent and the C. H. & D. Railroad as superintendent, Car Service until the operation of that line was taken over by the Baltimore and Ohio, when he became associated with our Transportation Department as supervisor of transportation.

After several years of faithful service he was granted an indefinite leave of absence

GENERAL FREIGHT CLAIM AGENT'S OFFICE ENTRIES IN THE "BEAUTY AND FASHION SHOW"

Left to right: Miss Agnes Sullivan, Miss Margaret Shanaman, Miss Ella Evans, Miss Della Wingate (before she shrunk), Miss Madeline Kistner and Miss Alice Marshall

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

The General Superintendent Transportation's Office sends us—left to right: Miss Eberly and R. C. Brooks; Miss Barrett, Miss Russell and Miss Albrecht

June 17, 1923, in order that he might have an opportunity to enjoy the fruits of a well spent life. Mr. Fellows is an indefatigable tourist and a lover of the natural wonders of our great country. He seems to have an insatiable curiosity for glacial formations; in fact, it has been said that during a recent visit to one of our national parks he placed his very foot upon a glacier. We trust that he may enjoy many years of good health and happiness and that his visits to the office will be frequent.

I recently had occasion to read the biography of one of our greatest financiers and manufacturers, and after admiring his great foresight, his power of organization, his humanity toward mankind, and his wonderful ability to finance, the thing that stood out above all was a short paragraph concerning his devotion to his aged mother; his trips of four and five days on the railroad during times of most pressing business in order to be with her for a few short hours; his constant concern and inquiry as to her health and comfort and his many visits with her to the theatre and other forms of entertainment. And the thought occurred to me that when we look deeply enough into the real life of these big people (whom so many of us misjudge), they prove to be really and truly human after all.

We are glad to report that Charles Bruchey, who has been confined to his home by a serious illness, is recovering and expects to be back with us within a short time.

We have been trying for some time to get a photograph of our efficient file clerk, Miss Elsie Russell, and have finally succeeded. In the accompanying picture from left to right are Miss M. A. Barrett, of the Car Service Department; Miss M. E. Russell, our file clerk, and Miss H. E. Albrecht, their mutual friend. The picture was taken on the "Nantucket," staunch steamship of the Merchants and Miners line, on the vacation trip to Boston.

We are back at our old tricks again. Baltimore and Ohio has declared a dividend on its common stock. The "Average Miles" and "Stop That Leak" campaigns had a share in that.

We have pictures this month of Miss Marie V. Eberly and R. Clifton Brooks, assistant chief auditor, Mine Rating Bureau. Clifton has been a member of our department for five years. Miss Eberly is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Eberly, formerly of Moorefield, W. Va. She is a graduate of Western High School and is now teaching one of the primary grades at School No. 63, Walbrook. We understand on the best authority that they are to be married next June, but as in the accompanying photograph, they are literally "on the fence;" they don't know whether to wait until next June or just go ahead right now.

Do your Christmas shopping early!

Most of us know Mr. Syze and "Ed" Hartley, but perhaps some have never met Jerry Neumann and Harry Hatton. The "night men" in an office such as ours are likely to be overlooked and they are, therefore, being mentioned here in order that you may look them over and get acquainted next pay day when they come in to get their checks. For the benefit of the girls, I might add that Harry is already enjoying martial bliss, but Jerry is still on the market.

Were you on time this morning?

This is the age of the specialist. When boys enter high school now they are expected to have some idea as to what their future course will be and special studies are mapped out for them with their one ultimate goal in view. And so it is with the business of railroading. Every day something new turns up and it is by constant study of these new problems from day to day that our experience in due time makes us specialists in our own particular branch. And the more expert the specialist, the more likely we are to be "called in for consultation." There isn't much "Pull" in evidence any more. It is "Push," now-a-days, that causes men to get ahead.

"He worked by day
And toiled by night,
He gave up play
And all delight.
Dry books he read,
New things to learn,
And forged ahead,
Success to earn.
He plodded on
With faith and pluck,
And when he won,
Men called it luck."

Although Henry Persinger has been an auto owner for a comparatively short time, he has experienced practically all of the difficulties of the full-fledged driver. A few weeks ago he drove his Studebaker sedan down town and parked it very correctly on the north side of Baltimore Street facing west. Imagine his surprise, therefore, when he came out of the office and saw a tag dangling from the side of his car. For a few minutes he stood at Baltimore and Charles Streets and looked the situation over very carefully, trying to decide just what the offense was this time. He could see no fire-plug and knew very well that the car was behind the line (he had had considerable experience in that direction before). After deliberating over the matter for quite a while he came to the conclusion that the transgression must certainly be a new one. Imagine his relief, therefore, when he came a little closer and observed that the attachment to his car was a Baltimore and Ohio shipping tag which read "Report to the Transportation Office at 8.30 tomorrow morning." Boys will be boys!

Valuation Department

Correspondent, J. A. RENEHAN

C. C. Dougherty, immediately upon his return from a visit to his father, who was seriously ill, received a telegram announcing his father's death on October 8. We offer our heartfelt sympathy.

A. B. Scheve and H. K. Faust, both renowned horticulturists of the Valuation Department, are having a contest to see which of them can grow the best chrysanthemum.

The correspondent has always held the belief that shrimps live in the ocean, but of late there has been one found in the Valuation Department. This species is very rare and was probably washed in with the tide in the recent storm which swept the seas between Washington and Baltimore.

"Lion Tamer" Hannum is attending the American Legion Convention in San Francisco, Cal. While absent from the office he has placed his duties in the hands of his very able assistant of the Bridge Branch, who, we feel sure, can uphold the good name.

On September 19 Robert Edwin Taylor, weighing eight and one-half pounds, came into this world bringing glad tidings to his daddy and mother, Pilot Engineer and Mrs. A. M. Taylor. Congratulations!

We are happy to know that L. C. Turner, who has been seriously ill at the University Hospital, is now recovering and expects to return to duty about October 16. We wish him a speedy recovery and are looking forward to his return to the office.

Miss G. M. Waugh, who recently resigned, will be married on October 24.

For rent—One or several apartments in Towson. E. P. Poeter has purchased a saxophone. Tenants must be appreciative of the noise made at practice by a beginner in music. Apply to E. P. Poeter, Saxophone 0901.

C. J. Fellows

On October 6 J. E. McCann journeyed to Love Point to catch fish. Yes, he caught no fish but he did catch a cold. McCann disputes this however, and says he did bring home a four and one-half-foot fish but just overlooked the evidence.

Let's all get ready for the "At Home" to be held shortly by one of the young ladies of this department who has rented an apartment. She rubbed some blisters on her hands from waxing the floors, which she finally worked so smooth that she slipped and fell herself. This is a warning to those who attend, to take with them their roller skates.

Office of Assistant Comptroller Deverell

Correspondent, JOHN RUPP

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of Mrs. Annie R. Deverell, on October 6. The funeral took place on October 8 from the residence of her son, our assistant comptroller, F. A. Deverell, Highfield Street, Guilford. Our sympathy is extended and may the Divine Master sustain Mr. Deverell in his sorrow.

Appropriate thoughts for Armistice Day are expressed by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt in an article in the October, 1923 "Columbia." Mr. Roosevelt says that he has seen an invaded country and never wishes to run the slightest risk of seeing this country invaded. He has seen the crumbled ruins and blasted fields that were once happy and prosperous northern France, and never wants to see our people streaming inland—old men, women, children in arms, while the sky towards the coast is lit red by the flames from the devastated towns. Peace is his belief and the ideals of peace, because having known war he desires us to be so protected that the children may run as little chance of a disaster as possible, in order that if fate decrees we must fight, we may fight not only with right but might on our side. These are some of the principles our Navy stands for.

A well-known member of our office force, John F. Hentz, was married October 10. We all join in wishes for a happy future.

Office of Auditor Coal and Coke Receipts

Correspondent, JOHN LIMPET

Our sympathy is extended to J. P. Landarkin and his wife in the loss of their baby daughter Eileen, aged seventeen months, who died October 2.

CORRECTION: In order to set at rest a question of great moment that has been causing considerable comment in the office, we wish to state that the picture appearing in September MAGAZINE, carried note to the effect that Mr. Lutz was sunning himself on the beach at Bay Shore.

This note should have been to the effect that the object of picture was to show the beauty and striking qualities of foot appearing in the foreground which we are reliably told was attached to the person of Miss E. E. H. A sort of "foot note," as it were. Wow!

There was quite a lot of talk by G. W. Ritterbusch (captain of the Pull Men team) as to his ability at the noble game of Duck Pins, the talk suggesting that he could "lick" Mr. Burns. These two gentlemen met, we are told, and Mr. Burns trimmed Mr. Ritterbusch five out of seven games. The silence, lately, as to the first mentioned party's ability, has been eloquent.

Miss E. M. Ritter gave a party to a few friends of the office, night of September 26. Quite a nice time was had by those present.

Office of Auditor Disbursements

Correspondent, LILLIAN E. SCHUELER

Sir Arthur Shanahan, erstwhile manager of Chink Dempsey, alias One Punch Chink, Ex-Star of the Royal Blues, Scholar, Pugilist and Champion "Pussy Wants a Corner" Player of the world, has again dragged himself into the limelight and incidentally annexed fifty big fat simoleans, by lifting the loveliest, limping limerick and taking down the shekels, honor, glory and other emoluments thereto appertaining. His fame must have been broadcasted by our Radiographer Cornelius Riddlemosher Livingsworth Scott and was evidently picked up by our distinguished United States Senator, Onthejob Eveready Wellerby, who sent his most fervent congratulations to the Honorable Sir Arthur. However Arthur is never satisfied unless he is at the top and he is now engaged in writing a poem entitled

Dr. Enoch Barton Garey

The New President Of St. John's College, Annapolis, Md.

St. John's College goes back 227 years, first as King William's School, the first free school in Maryland, and second under its present name for nearly a century and a half.

Francis Scott Key, author of "The Star Spangled Banner," entered St. John's November 11, 1789, and was graduated in 1796. George Washington was a patron of the college in its early days, and his two nephews, Fairfax and Lawrence Washington, and stepgrandson, George Washington Park Custis, were students there.

Dr. Garey, who comes to St. John's from Johns Hopkins University, is a graduate of the college, and also of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point. He succeeds Dr. Thomas Fell, who retires after a period of 37 years of service.

The college authorities are planning an expenditure of more than $1,250,000 for additional buildings and other equipment. A fund raising campaign is being organized to provide the college a minimum endowment of $300,000.

"Whither are we drifting and if so, why?"
The first stanza begins;

The sweetest words of tongue, pen or typist
Are "come get your fifty—your limerick was brightest."
So you may expect some classy work from Arthur shortly.

We are pleased to announce a visit of the stork to the home of our inspector of accounts, Edwin M. Talbott, on October 3, leaving a fine boy, an eight pounder. If there is any truth in the assertion that acquired abilities are transmitted to posterity, look out for Edwin, Jr., for father certainly learned how to raise the devil in the Navy. Since Edwin, Sr. has joined the Ancient Order of Night Walking Tack Dodgers he arrives at the office wearing a weary look. We understand he has discovered the necessity of checking a lot of 906's at various points on the System. That will be his only rest from domestic duties now.

The A. O. of N. W. T. D. held its initiation service for William J. Bohli, A. R. A. Bureau, at the same time as for Mr. Talbott, for at his home there is a fine bouncing girl. Proud dads, both.

We regret the loss of our co-worker, A. S. Sherry, Transportation Bureau, who has been promoted to the Commercial Freight Office. We wish him every success in his new line of endeavor.

James R. Brown was promoted from the Motive Power Bureau to the Transportation Bureau to fill the position vacated by Mr. Sherry. Because of his past good work we are all counting on "Jimmy."

One of the prettiest church weddings that have taken place among our Baltimore and Ohio girls was that of Miss Marie Virgin Mitchell and Mr. Robert P. Leland, of Baltimore, on November 3, at two-thirty o'clock, in St. Edward's Catholic Church, Poplar Grove Street, Walbrook.

The bride was becomingly gowned in cocoa satin with hat and slippers of the same material and shade and she carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums tied with white chiffon. Miss Edna Mitchell, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and she was stunningly dressed in golden brown satin with hat and slippers to match. Her bouquet was of yellow chrysanthemums, tied with yellow chiffon.

The best man was Mr. John Leland, brother of the groom and the ushers were Messrs. Joseph Kelly and James Sullivan, cousins of the bride and groom respectively.

At two-thirty the bridal party entered the church to the strains of the Wedding March from "Lohengrin" and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Michael J. Cuddy, of St. John's Church.

Immediately after, the happy pair left for New York where they will spend their honeymoon. Upon their return they will be at home to their many friends at 1824 W. Grace Street, Richmond, Virginia. (I heard her say that Baltimore and Ohio people are especially invited.)

The best wishes for a long and safe journey upon the sea of matrimony go with them from their many friends in the office and abroad.

The night school catalogues must have had a particular attraction for our office this year for it seems as if everybody is in the swim for knowledge. Or maybe it's the effect of some of the splendid articles in the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE that advise self improvement. Even the discussion of the newest fall styles has been forgotten in the heat of the argument as to the best course to take, and "number of credits received" is fast taking the place of the "number of gallons of gas per hundred miles."

We extend our sincere sympathy to Mrs. Lottie Fuller, Fuel Bureau, who has had the misfortune of losing her beloved father, Mr. Edward Lohman, on September 19. Mr. Lohman had just returned from a six months visit with a brother in Germany when he was taken sick and died.

Our sympathies also go out to Miss Julia Rhodes in the death of her sister on September 29, after a long illness.

Office of Auditor Merchandise Receipts

Correspondent, P. H. STARKLAUF

Yes, we have a real live general in our organization, as evidenced by the big doings at Lansdowne some time since in the person of a General Chairman. Eh "Andy?"

Presiding over the same group "C" where the said "Andy" is seen busily engaged, we find just what "C" stands for. That is "Cheerful" and that's Big "Irv" himself.

The other Sunday a bunch of us set out to "Brunsik" (as the porter—extra fine—announces that transfer classification yard) and all in the outfit enjoyed themselves, even to watching cars go over the hump at something like a hundred a minute, more or less. One of the boys almost stuck to the roof of a box car in his infatuation for the efficient methods of classification employed at that point. I am greatly indebted to my friend and fellow employee, Trainmaster John McCabe, for the courtesies accorded us. Arriving at the west end of the yard to take the tow path to Harpers Ferry to conclude the hike from Knoxville, a duet slyly "struck" and got a lift from a passing auto. "Sore feet," we guess, but wait until the next one, there won't be any pike nearby and you'll have to take Shank's Mare.

Marriages

J. E. A. Hudgins, Interline Settlement Bureau, to Miss Mabel Causey, July 14, at the parsonage of the Temple Baptist Church by the Rev. Paul B. Watlington.

Fred. W. Lotz, Revision Department, to Miss Nadine C. Waltz, August 15, by the Rev. H. H. Beidelman of the Calvary Lutheran Church.

W. H. Storck, Revision Department, to Miss E. M. Butterhoff, August 15, by the Rev. Paul Holz, C. S. S. R. of St. James Church.

Miss Nina Lacey Spengler, Agent's Settlement Bureau (our Good Will Girl), to Mr. J. D. Womack, at the New Willard Hotel, Washington, D. C., September 29, by the Rev. Willey of Mt. Vernon Place Christian Church. They will reside in Suffolk, Va.

Best wishes for bright and happy futures!

The glad tidings of the arrival of another son in the home of Howard P. Skinner reach us and we extend congratulations.

The grim reaper visited the families of fellow employes R. E. Mitchell, W. E. Logue, F. E. Benzinger and Miss Hilda Silbereisen, and we offer sincere condolences.

Office Auditor Passenger Receipts

Correspondent, CHARLES C. WARWICK

The "Little World Series" between the "Orioles" and the Kansas City "Blues," of the American Association, will have become baseball history before the publication of these notes. The result will be interesting, in view of Morrison Dickey's assertion that "the Orioles can't be beaten." He talked lots of "aluminum" money.

We are pleased to note the return to the office of Miss Lola Arnold, after an extended sick-leave.

The following extract from a letter written by E. W. Barnhart, Chief of Commercial Education Service, Federal Board for Vocational Education, to City Passenger Agent J. P. M. Duvall, at Washington, D. C., and received in this office a few days ago, is very gratifying. Such testimonials make us proud of our connection with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

"I was en route from Washington to Albany on Government request transportation when the train pulled out from Camden Station in Baltimore before I could finish sending a telegram.

"Following the instructions from the station master I purchased a one-way ticket to Philadelphia as my ticket was with my baggage in the train which had left without me.

"At Philadelphia I recovered my baggage and presented to the conductor in charge of the train between Philadelphia and New York, the ticket on which I had started my trip. He noted on the back of that ticket the fact that the coupon between Baltimore and Philadelphia had not been presented and assured me that I would have no difficulty in obtaining a refund for the ticket I had purchased out of my personal funds.

"I may add in passing that the station master at Camden acted promptly in closing the gate and in wiring the conductor of the train I had missed, so that on my arrival in Philadelphia I found all of my baggage in charge of the station master there. This part of the train service was absolutely perfect. In fact, I was treated with great courtesy and consideration by all with whom I came in contact, so that I am really glad that I had the experience as it has shown me what good treatment one can get in an emergency."

Office of Superintendent of Car Service

Correspondents, HENRY V. OPERENDER and CHARLES BAYN

On September 22 our Baseball Team, with about seventy rooters, journeyed to Philadelphia to play the Philadelphia and Reading Team. Although our team was beaten by a score of 12-0, we had a great time.

The Reading team and its backers treated our players and rooters royally. After the game we were taken to the High Twelve Club, where a fine dinner was served. Toasts were given by Messrs. Koch, Gaither, Roy Brown, Tom Carroll, Jack Dunn and several others.

After dinner we all returned to 24th and Chestnut Streets Station where we boarded a train for Baltimore.

Chris Grieb, Lester St. Clair and two young ladies of our office enjoyed the baseball game, especially the one they saw in the movies on Market Street. Alex. Donald caused a little excitement when he lost his wife on one of the crowded streets of Philadelphia. They finally found each other at the station. We understand his wife made use of the famous rolling pin when they reached home!

The Car Service girls have a bowling team which meets every Friday night at the Recreation Center. Come and see our girls, Misses Rae Cook, Minnie Gross, May Hoffman and Mildred Hussman roll the balls. All Star Team!

Miss Elsie Slingerland, one of our faithful clerks, has been granted two months leave of absence because of ill health. Miss Elsie spent the month of September at Mountain Lake Park where her many friends have kept in close communication with her. We hope, after another month of rest, she will return with new vigor and better health to resume her place among us.

We missed the gold of a head of hair in a corner near the window, even though "Day" was there. We are glad to have you with us again, Florence, and hope you will continue in good health.

DING! DONG! Wedding Bells rang on October 2, when Miss Pearl Ring was married to Louis Reinsnyder at the parsonage of Dr. Zimmerman. Again on October 6 we heard them, when Miss Margaret Windsor became the bride of Delancy Scribner at Harlem Avenue Church. Miss Hazel Shafer was also married on September 19. Our best wishes to these friends who have ventured a trip on the matrimonial sea. May it always be good sailing!

We regret to hear of the death of Miss Mussetter's mother and express our deepest sympathy.

Tariff Bureau

Correspondent, C. A. WAGNER

We express to our fellow-co-worker, James R. Brown, division freight agent, Grafton, W. Va., our heartfelt sympathy in the sudden death of his wife, on October 11.

Mr. Brown was associated with this department for 22 years, having been its chief clerk for 18 years, before transfer to Grafton, W. Va., as division freight agent.

The Tariff Bureau expressed its sympathy by sending a floral design.

In the Purchasing Department—left: Dan Diehlman; right: "Bill" Sewell

New York Properties

Pier 22, North River

Correspondent, JOHN NEWMAN

"Chuck" Connors went on a vacation to "feed up" and put on forty pounds. He says he devoured eight eggs and drank two quarts of milk, still warm from the cow, for breakfast every morning. The quantity seems sufficient to break not only a fast but a stomach. Capacious fellow, "Chuck," or a capable one at fibbing.

"Jimmy" Lynch, whose ambitions in a certain direction caused him to move to Montclair, N. J., is disappointed; "nothing to report," as yet. But—nil desperandum. "Jim" works hard in the office and when he gets home he is tired.

Miss Ida Hartwig, one of Terminal Cashier Nelson's clerks, a girl with six years service at this Pier to her credit, has left us to get married. The best reason in the world for leaving any kind of employment is to engage in the service of the world at large by marrying. Miss Hartwig's constancy and regularity in attending to her duties here augur well for her future. Constancy is a fine quality, particularly as applied to marriage, and I prophesy that Miss Hartwig marries for "keeps," and will live happily ever after. The office force wishes her "bon voyage."

Alice Smith, another of A. H. B.'s hand-picked stenographers, had the most beautiful hair in this office and now she has had it cropped—chopped off to the level of the ears, or to where the ears are supposed to be. Vandalism, nothing less; maybe sacrilege, for is it not written that "it is to the glory of woman that she hath long hair." (It is also written that man's glory is whiskers, but we will let that pass as not pertinent.)

This crazy desecration began in the notorious Quartier Latin in Paris, and was for a time the distinguishing mark of "art students," a sexless class of sloppy, untidy bohemians, too lazy to wash and do up the hair. Thence it spread to other Latin quarters—the Greenwich Village in New York—and now it has caught, like measles, until even otherwise nice girls are afflicted by the craze. I asked one of them why and she gave as her reason that "it saved a lot of time in the morning." There is another reason—imitativeness, a trait inherited through the ages from early, hairy ancestors. "Monkey see, monkey do."

Frieda Murray announces that she will be "next" in the barber's chair. She will look "cute" with that perfect sixteen neck shaved to show its full fullness. (I hope that my interest in beautiful hair will not cause me eye-trouble as did Mr. Haulenbeck's interest in short skirts; but even so, I cannot help it. Freud might be able to explain it.)

THE NEW YORK DIVISION CHAMPION BASEBALL TEAM (SEE STATEN ISLAND NOTES)

"The McClure Jct Four"

Staten Island Lines

Correspondent, G. J. GOOLIC

The accompanying picture is the New York Division baseball team, which won the championship of the Industrial League on Staten Island this year:

From left to right they are, seated on ground: J. Larkin, manager and 1st base; F. Rebhan, Jr., mascot; J. V. Ryan, booking manager and infielder.

Second row, seated: R. Hanlon, r. f.; T. Hurley, 2nd base; A. Schoefer, 3rd base; R. McCullough, c. f.; E. Birmingham, p.; F. Martin, s. s. and captain.

Standing: H. Stratz, p.; H. Vidler, secretary; F. Rebhan, l. f.; E. Finley, treasurer; G. Decker, c. f.; R. Larkin, trainer; W. Raburn, outfielder.

Along the Road

We have a mystery car on the North Shore. It's No. 82. It's a very contagious car. Every one who works in it seems to come around with a marriage license and a broad smile. Next month we will tell you something about it.

Congratulations are extended to J. V. Costello, assistant chief clerk to the superintendent, and Mrs. Costello, who were married on September 26 at St. John de La Salle Church, Stapleton. They are spending their honeymoon traveling to Los Angeles and New Orleans. They will return by boat to New York. Mrs. Costello was formerly Miss Frances Connine, who some years ago worked as ticket agent on this division.

The Staten Island Railroad Club held its regular semi-monthly social and dance on Tuesday evening, October 2 and a good time was had by all. As usual, the Royal Blues Novelty Orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

If you doubt my word as to good time and good music, ask the Misses Scott, Sherman, Deppish, Gallagher and the others that came up from Baltimore on September 15.

The Club is arranging for a Minstrel Show and Dance, to be held at the Stapleton Club Rooms, Friday evening, December 14. Do not miss this affair. The cast has already had a few rehearsals under the able coaching of the "little man with the big voice," Dan Carney, who is working hard to make the show a success.

Frank Rebhan, corresponding secretary of the Staten Island Railroad Club, has received a letter from Frank Martin, who was entered in the contest for the most popular baseball player on Staten Island. Mr. Martin was the candidate representing the Baltimore and Ohio Baseball Team. The letter follows:

My Dear Friend Frank:

Now that the Baseball Popularity Contest on Staten Island is ended, it is only proper for me to take this opportunity of expressing to the members of the Staten Island Railroad Club, the employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and also the others who supported me as their candidate to represent the Baltimore and Ohio Baseball Team, my sincere thanks and deep appreciation for this honor.

There is no doubt in my mind but that any member on the baseball team would have received the same splendid support accorded me, as they were all equally helpful and deserving of the highest credit in placing the team on top.

I only regret that your efforts to place me in the lead could not be realized, but regardless of the final results, you may rest assured that the honor of representing the Baltimore and Ohio Team in this contest will forever remain a pleasant memory.

Again thanking all who supported me, particularly Mr. John Larkin and yourself, and looking forward to the season of 1924 with greater success for the Baseball Team, I remain

Very respectfully,

(Signed) Frank V. Martin

John J. Rice, freight agent, New Brighton, is on a leave of absence and is taking a trip to Los Angeles, California.

Joseph Langford, our car distributor, has an able assistant in Isaac Housman, and is now taking things easy. Has anyone a Morris Chair that they would like to give him?

John Goodski, who was clerk and stenographer in the Marine Department, has left the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio and is now working in a bank. The only bad feature of his new position is he can't take home samples.

Eastern Lines

Office of General Manager—Eastern Lines

Correspondent, H. E. WEIFENBACH

November brings to mind thoughts of our National holiday, Thanksgiving, and it is indeed a wonderful thing to think that such a great country as ours should cease activities for one day each year to give thanks to God for the many ways in which we are favored. Surely cannot help but refresh us to begin taking inventory of our many individual, as well as National, blessings.

We hear so much from the pessimist that we sometimes forget the many good things we have. Compared with other nations, we are indeed favored. We are all busily and profitably engaged, and yet we are not too busy to help our brother nations in their times of need. Thus, by sharing with others less favored, we can most consistently express our gratitude for what we have, and the Baltimore and Ohio family have more than once demonstrated that they are firm believers in this doctrine. For this reason, if there were no others, we all consider it a privilege and pleasure to be members of this family, a family also, where justice and cooperation are so manifest.

The beautiful Fall weather has attracted the golf fans, and many are the consultations held regarding a certain game recently played at Sherwood Forest, among the contestants being our chief clerk, Mr. Herman, and our "professional," Clarence Staines.

A TRICK PICTURE TAKEN ON THE PATAPSCO—Turn it upside down

Recently, much interest was aroused over a bowling contest between George Seeds and Clarence Staines on the one side, and Mr. Hamilton and his son, Nova, on the other. The game was played on October 6, with the following result:

Name	Total	Avg. per Game
Nova Hamilton . . .	279	93.0
J. W. Hamilton . . .	280	93.3
C. W. Staines . . . . .	252	84.0
Geo. Seeds . . . . .	348	116.0

The victors were naturally much elated and the vanquished proved good sports and candidly admitted the greater skill of their opponents.

Here are some of our favorite lunch period time wasters:

Mr. Hamilton—Smoking a very strong pipe.

Mrs. Craig—Reading "Desert Love."

George Zimmerman—Reading the baseball scores.

George Seeds—Figuring up his bowling averages.

Clarence Staines—Talking golf.

Hillary Johnson—Smoking a cigar.

Leon Utter—Talking radio.

What are some of yours?

Baltimore Terminal Division

Correspondent, H. R. LINCOLN

Rapid progress is being made in the construction of the new grain elevators at Locust Point, and it is now expected that the new facilities, which include track changes, offices and welfare buildings, dust and screening houses and grain door plant, will be entirely completed and ready for operation early in the Spring of 1924.

To appreciate the immensity of this building operation one must take into consideration that the M. A. Long Co. have forty sub-contractors, with forces at work, in addition to their own force, of 600 men per day.

Some of the girls at Willow Grove, August 8, Veterans' Picnic: Misses Ruth and Leah Covell, Charlotte La Motte, Katherine, Coreen and Jean Miller

To handle the 60,000 yards of concrete going into the structure efficiently and to permit completion in the time specified, the Long Co. have erected an electrically operated sand, gravel and cement conveyor plant at a cost of $75,000. The first floor, basement and work house are completed and by the middle of October it is expected that the storage tanks to hold grain will have been started.

We wonder why "Bill" (William) Donnelly, Riverside force, is so quiet now that he is running in double harness. Perhaps his "wif" does all the talking.

For sale—Two pieces of junk, one time automobiles belonging to Miss Comra and D. W. Dean. We understand they are getting new cars. Here's hoping they won't turn out to be "Flivvers," as we hate to ride in those small cars.

Shop clerk Howard T. King is also TALKING about buying a car. Well we'll believe it when we see it.

A. W. Zimmerman, Road Foreman's Office, appeared recently all "dolled" up in a new overcoat. Wonder who started a new charitable institution.

We have an idea that quite an improvement in the office force could be effected if:

Clark—Worked occasionally.

Evelyn—Ever answered the 'phone.

Dean—Quit loafing.

Donnelly—Quit talking occasionally.

Lois—Stopped chewing Wrigley's.

Florence—Was serious now and then.

Eleanor—Was quiet.

Gibson—Talked to the fellows instead of the "gals."

Faid—Was not always looking for information.

Jones—Attended to his own affairs.

Schmincke—Quit growling.

Mt. Clare Yard

Correspondent, J. F. TEARNEY

To Yard Clerk E. L. Brennan belongs the distinction of being commended for his prompt action in averting property damage and possible loss of life on the Western Maryland.

On the morning of August 19, at 12.04 a. m., after being notified by phone to stop the trains, Brennan jumped from a high retaining wall to the Western Maryland tracks below, and waved the signals which brought the trains to a stop. Efficiency means great savings, and Eugene is doing his bit.

We are all glad to see our old friend Henry George, veteran track foreman, back on the job again. A recent sickness gave him quite a seige. He claims, nevertheless, to have lost none of his prestige as a pinochle player, and cheerfully invites all comers at anytime.

Mt. Clare Yard is still at the top in cars handled per month in the Baltimore Terminal; for September, 29675 being the high mark, an increase of 594 cars over August, those figures also a record, being 29081. Mt. Clare believes in, and keeps cars moving.

Left: Standard method of protecting highway crossing by the use of flashlight signals, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Lansdowne, Md. Upper right: No. 6 passing Lansdowne. Lower right: Engine of No. 506. Note the absence of smoke

AT MOUNT CLARE SHOPS

Above, left: William, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Pinkerton. Right: Misses Dolores and Fora, daughters of Flue Expander J. E. Kuhl. Below, left: Howard Vernon, grandson of Passenger Car Painter A. F. Becker. Right: James Cowman

General Yardmaster H. E. Hopkins and family recently spent a week's vacation in Atlantic City, stopping at "The Somerset." He even donned a suit of rompers and, with his little boy, took in the Steeplechase Pier. It was hard to distinguish between father and son. "Hop" is always in for showing the youngsters a good time. He brought back the usual suit of tan.

Mt. Clare

Correspondent, W. H. ZELL

Freight Track

We regret very much to learn of the death of our beloved fellow workman, Clement C. Carson, carman, who was instantly killed in an automobile accident at Curtis Bay on September 30. Mr. Carson had been employed in this department for the past fifteen years, was a good and steady worker, and was well thought of by his fellow workers. He is survived by a wife and eleven children. We all extend to Mrs. Carson and her children our heartfelt sympathy.

J. E. Darnell, earman, who recently returned from one of our contract shops in which he was doing inspection work, has been transferred to our Glenwood Shops, as assistant foreman. We all wish him the best of luck and success.

They are worth something—E. A. Hundertmark and L. E. Halfpenny, carmen apprentices.

Test Bureau

Should you desire any information regarding the construction of a radio, call on any of the Test Bureau force, as they are all experts in that line. Our Howard gets Seattle and Los Angeles regularly, and so loud, well, it keeps the neighbors awake at night.

Yes, Judge Harmon is well and getting fat, thank you.

Our camera is temporarily out of commission; otherwise we would have sent a photograph to show "Arty" Gilson, our tennis hound, who was presented with a loving cup.

The new building which is to replace the old one destroyed by the fire at Mt. Clare last December is progressing nicely. In fact, we all hope to be able to occupy it by December 1, or at least by Christmas. We hope that we can start the new year with a new building.

Here is a photograph of one of the old timers from the Blacksmith Shop, who passed away on August 30. Mr. James Cowman was born on June 3, 1844, entered the service of the Railroad on July 1, 1868 and continued in the service in the Blacksmith Shop until he was pensioned on June 6, 1908.

Locust Point

Correspondent, J. ROSS GOULD

Both import and export business is showing improvement at this station. Quite a trade between Porto Rico and this port is being built up by The Porto Rican American Steamship Company.

They have four steamships, carrying both freight and passengers, with weekly sailings between Baltimore and San Juan, Porto Rico, viz., S.S. Governor John Lind, S.S. Major Wheeler, S.S. Delisle, S.S. Delfina.

The Delisle, sailed from Pier 9, Locust Point, Sept. 22, with 2500 tons of assorted cargo, consisting of fertilizer, coal, cement, etc.

The Major Wheeler sailed from this port on Sept. 28, fully loaded with 1960 tons, consisting of cement, iron plates, steel rails and 43 automobiles. The cargoes of these two steamers are considered a record from this port.

The Governor John Lind is now loading. It also has on board 46 automobiles, thus giving evidence that the automobile industry is not asleep.

The writer was fortunate in being present at a dinner given by the Foreign Trade Club last winter and was agreeably surprised at the possibilities of the Porto Rican trade with the States, through this port. Quite a roseate future was predicted for this line, and from the present conditions of business it appears that the prediction is being fulfilled.

It certainly looks as if the promoters showed considerable business acumen in selecting Pier 9 at Locust Point as a landing place for their steamers, with the BALTIMORE AND OHIO as a feeder and with unprecedented advantages.

Our Road, therefore, from its close connection, will accordingly share in their prosperity. I feel that I echo the wish of all our readers that this business may continue, and that the trade with Porto Rico be fully exploited, and thus add another laurel to the business fame of Baltimore.

Dan Cupid has once again invaded our domain and taken from our ranks our fellow clerk and official cartoonist, R. W. Moran.

It came as a shock to our happy family, as no one suspected that one carrying the angelic face and form that he had, would ever have the courage to take the fatal steps. His sentence reads as follows: On September 22, at Alexandria, Va., there was united in the bonds of Holy Matrimony, R. W. Moran to Miss Mabel Michelman.

While we realize clearly that our loss is his gain (we hesitate to say it would be the lady's) we nevertheless wish him a long and happy married life and that all his troubles may be little ones.

Misses Martha Fox and Dorothy Gosnell were recently "obligated" as members of the "GANG." Welcome to our menagerie, Girls!

Miss Fox is off duty on a sick leave. We all wish her a speedy recovery.

"Joe" Lubinski, our Timekiller (Timekeeper), spent his vacation scaplaning around Virginia Beach and he has been up in the air ever since.

Doris, Warren and Furman, aged 7, 5 and 3 respectively, children of Chief Clerk Leo. E. S. Schulz, Locust Point Yard

Girls: Our Charles Street Drug Store Cow-boy's name is Paul Flynn. He can be seen between the hours of 9 a. m. and 6 p. m. on his ranch, which is located in the Agent's Office at Locust Point.

Since the above mention, we have added another member to our "GANG." She is Miss Rubina Poe, daughter of Jack Poe, electrician, Locust Point.

As time wears on, we all at some period become retrospective. It was in one of these moods that our mind reverted to our friend and fellow-clerk, Joseph Monaghan, and the business he was engaged in years ago.

We imparted our thoughts to our cartoonist, Mr. Moran (clerk in our office), with the result as depicted in cartoon. We regret, however, the absence of the town pump, which was one of "Joe's" principal assets.

Camden Station

Correspondent, W. H. BULL

Picked up 'round Camden Station by The Tatler

Wunst again th' time worn sayin', "yuh can't keep a good man down," hez been fore'bly brung home t' us.

'Spect, by this time, most o' yu hev become f'miliar with th' "Matrimonial Handicap;" if yuh aint as yit begin now an' jest keep yer lamp peeled on this col-yum th' Ed' hez donated us fer th' express purpos' o' keepin' yu posted on th' doins' 'round here.

Thought las' month when friend Kruemmel 'lowed Fiege t' share th' leadership o' said race, he had somethin' up his sleeve. Sprung it th' other day an' is again showin' his heels t' th' other boys.

Yuh guessed it; this time it's a bouncin', baby boy that will look in hims eyes an' call him "boppa," th' other two having been an' allus will be girls. Variety we calls it. Says 'twuz big' as eight-month old when born. (Wouldn't have t' be much bigger t' be bigger'n his pop.) Sounds like fish story t' us; all th' same yu should see th' grin he wears on his map now'days. Congratulations to the mom an' pop an' (tee hee) many happy returns o' th' day.

Jes' becaus' a traffic cop raises his hand an' toots a lil' whistle when lookin' t' th' safty o' th' traffic an' th' jay walkers, yu wouldn't call him a safty razor; now would-ja? Tho we do have a close shave sometimes crossin' th' street.

Wuz s'prised th' other day; certain young lady returned from her vacation with her hair bobbed. Nobody recognized her as bein' one o' us an' we all s'pected she had mistook th' ol' office fer th' fourth grade o' some grammer school. We had t' get acquainted all over again. 'Sall right now tho.

For the benefit of those as might be interested, the reason the conductors of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad are allus enjoyin' good health is becaus' they have trained a long time.

Please omit flowers.

Lulu M., daughter of Conductor Huffman, one of our old time loyal employees, who runs the Capitol Limited between Mount Royal and Cumberland

Baltimore Division

Correspondent, W. H. TARR

Brakeman J. F. Countess is back on his run between Baltimore and Potomac Yard after a period of disablement.

J. C. B. (Buck) Davis Jr. recently arrived at the home of his parents. Mr. Davis Sr. is inspector of accounts, Division Accountant's Office, Camden Station. Congratulations!

The Royal Five of the Division Accountant's Office are now engaged in dredging oysters at Wobaville on the Magothy River and later will engage in shooting ducks when the season arrives.

We regret to learn of the continued illness of Mrs. J. S. Basford, wife of Passenger Brakeman J. S. Basford. Mr. Basford is an old and loyal employee and conscientious in his duties both as an employee and as a husband and father. His oldest son is a graduate of Johns Hopkins University and is Professor of English and Latin at Tomc's Garland and Nancye, children of Agent J. H. Canter, Winchester, Va.

"Chips that pass in the night"

Institute. He is educating his second son at the Polytechnic Institute, Baltimore. The third son is attending primary school.

From a Divisional Point of View

Teacher—Where is Beeler's Summit?
Little Boy Hughes—On The Washington County Branch.
Teacher—You are wrong. It is the tip of a Beehler umbrella.

A new steel underframe caboose car is being built at Mt. Clare. A Committee of trainmen inspected it and made several suggestions as to the interior finish. We are not saying who will be the lucky conductor to get the car for his use.

East Side, Philadelphia

Correspondent, CHARLES H. MINNICH

We have a new, one-horse, amateur, would-be musician who claims to broadcast on the radio. His name is Christopher Columbus Barthelomus Falkenstein, the left-handed M. C. B. clerk in the Master Mechanic's Office at East Side.

"Max" Kaigh, world's champion heavy-

HAVE YOUR EYES EXAMINED

by specialists of long experience. Honest, conscientious eye service at moderate cost

CURVED LENSES

Toric, with fingerpiece $2.50 mountings, as low as Invisible Bifocals - - $5.00

SPEARE OPTICAL COMPANY

10th and Arch Sts., Philadelphia, Pa.

Kilmon's Restaurant

Newark's Model Dining Room

Opposite Baltimore and Ohio Station

NEWARK, DELAWARE.

weight booker-out at last admits that he has our black cat in his home.

A few well known nicknames at East Side Yard Office—"Hairy" Neilson, "the Non-Producer," "East Side Car Records," "Frogs," "Guffie," "Meat for the Cats," "Jakee," "Jew Baby," "Edward the 7th,"

EAST SIDE, PA.

Section Foreman and Labor Boss Felix Cori, and his son Dominic, age 12. Mr. Cori has been in the service 23 years

"Apy," "Little Toby," "Kid Miller," "Murphy" and "Woodrow Wilson," "the Hicki," "Wilshmere."

Familiar Sayings

"Come on, Bennie, double-head me on the Passing Report."

"Write the envelopes up 'Jakee.'"

"By the Beard of the Prophet."

"Happy as a clam."

"Where from and 'who to.'"

"Laughing like a board."

The picture is of Felix Cori and his son, aged 12. Cori has been labor foreman in the Maintenance of Way Department for 23 years and is therefore a Veteran. He is a quiet man but always on the job and always has a cheerful manner and greeting for everyone.

Pier 22, South Philadelphia, Pa.

Correspondent, MARY G. CUTHRIE

Cupid has again been busy in our midst. This time the victim is Hugh Collins, delivery clerk, Pier 24, who on September 12 was wedded to Miss Ella Quigley of Philadelphia. Congratulations.

There have been several changes in the personnel of this office because of promotions, resignations, etc., which have resulted in several of our former employees being added to our force: Fred Held, from the Division Accountants Office, Baltimore; William Orrell and James Stackhouse from East Side Freight Office.

Rawson R., son of the late Dr. F. H. Weidemann, examining physician of Chillicothe, Ohio is recovering from a serious operation, having been operated on in the National Stomach Hospital, Philadelphia, on September 28.

We extend our sympathy to Ernest F. Wells, revision clerk, Pier 22, in the death of his father and mother. The father died September 25, and the mother, June 13.

We are glad to give credit to C. J. Butler, porter 12, who secured 100 over the Baltimore and Ohio to Uniontown, Pa., attending the Colored Baptist State Convention. The net revenue was $2568.00.

Our business in Philadelphia is developing high efficiency under the supervision of a genuinely capable management. It is pleasing to note the immense business being carried through Piers 22 and 24, both showing considerable increase over the previous year.

Up-to-date facilities of the Baltimore and Ohio at Pier 22, Philadelphia. Above: View from the street. Center: Inside view. Below: Water facilities, showing car float

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

The accompanying photographs are of Pier 22 Freight Station, showing the way freight travels to our Piers by barge to be unloaded and loaded for delivery.

Washington, D. C., Freight Station

Correspondent, W. L. WHITING

Our notes this month will be just sufficient to let the readers of the MAGAZINE know that we are still here, this being about the middle of the proverbially busiest railroad month in the year, October; and it has jumped on us with both feet and is very busy tramping it in. It is "WORK-WORK-WORK" with us just now, and plenty of it.

It is pleasing to note that a number of large business firms have recently built warehouses and factories right in the immediate vicinity of this Freight Station, amongst others the Western Electric Company, the Sanitary Grocery Company, Capper's Weekly, Rudolph and West Company, and the Peerless Furniture Company. All of these firms have given us, and will very naturally continue to do so, a great amount of both in and outbound freight, which of course increases tonnage, revenue and not the least item in the matter, the good feeling that now exists between the business houses of Washington, D. C., and the Baltimore and Ohio. This last item is in itself a great asset to any organization.

Our Fire Department recently had a small opportunity to distinguish itself. A truck loaded with bales of paper stock was on its way to our yard for loading, and in some unforeseen manner burst into flames right in front of our office. This naturally caused some excitement in the neighborhood. Some one immediately sent in an alarm which brought out a large number of the city fire engines, etc. In the meantime, however, our ever ready fire marshall, John T. Mathews, had mustered his forces and had a line of hose playing on the fire before the city folks were on deck. The fire was soon extinguished, and what might have resulted seriously (the truck was stalled right underneath some fine trees which were in danger of catching fire), became an episode that was soon forgotten.

Nothing like having people on the job and on the spot when they are needed!

Probably owing to the wonderful October weather that we are now enjoying we are again able to report a clean bill of health, not having any one on the sick list. Rap on wood and hope for a continuance of this happy condition!

Cumberland Division

Correspondent, JOHN SELL

A—is for Apples. Yes, we have some apples! The crop in the Cumberland Division fruit belt has broken all records, almost every station between Harpers Ferry and Keyser is loading 'em, with North Mountain leading, and Martinsburg, Kearneysville, Paw Paw, Romney and Keyser following close. It is estimated that the crop will reach three thousand carloads. They are being shipped to all parts of the country, and some to England and other foreign countries. The car supply has been adequate, and shippers pleased with the service rendered, and with the cooperation of all concerned there is reason to be proud of the splendid manner in which this highly perishable commodity has been taken care of.

C. M. Gearhart has been located at North Mountain looking after the apple movement from that station, as well as Martinsburg, Sleepy Creek and Kearneys-

FORCE AT PIER 40, PHILADELPHIA

Front row, left to right: Trucker J. F. Lane, Watchman H. O. Ogden, Brakeman E. P. Kenney, Fireman O. O. Forsythe, Conductor E. H. Tomlinson. Back row: Agent John M. Greave, Brakeman T. J. Brennan, Engineer W. Zolt. Brakeman Kenney has been in the service 15 years, all others over 30 years. The total Baltimore and Ohio service represented in this photograph is 268 years ville, while Assistant Trainmaster J. A. Miller has been cooperating in the handling of shipments off the Romney-Petersburg branch. It was necessary to extend the loading track at North Mountain several car lengths in order to take care of the heavy shipments from that point. The new icing station at Cumberland has been doing good work in the icing and re-icing of refrigerator cars, while a number of cars have been prepared at Brunswick in fine shape.

The ballast cleaning machines have been working over the East and West Ends of the Division this summer and fall, and have the tracks in fine shape for the heavy winter traffic. One of our collaborators recently handed in some scrap which was unearthed by the clam shell. It appears to have been buried under the dirt and ballast for a number of years. We have not yet been able to determine just what part of a car or engine it constituted, but have our local antiquarians working on it.

The Capitol Limited, the pride of every employe, has been maintaining its fine record, and is bringing forth much favorable comment. It is suggested that the monthly performance be printed in the MAGAZINE each month for the benefit of our employes.

The strong Evitts Creek "Hump" Duck-pin Team of Cumberland East Yards have reorganized for the fall and winter season, and have issued a challenge to any team in Cumberland, or on the System. The team consists of H. Kraus, C. E. House, J. H. Fike, J. H. Penrod and C. (Mossy) Campbell, with W. S. Beggs, coal billing agent, as business manager and captain. It is rumored that J. J. Carney's West Yard team will take up the challenge, and also that several other teams are now forming.

We have been trying for some time to get a line on our old friend, W. C. Donnelly, supervisor of Time Service, but have just recently been able to get the dope. The Cumberland Daily News, which carries a column of items clipped from their issues of forty years ago, each day, carried on October 9 the following: "Willie Donnelly, son of James W. Donnelly, fell from a turning bar while performing gymnastic feats in a yard in the rear of Dr. W. J. Weller's house on Baltimore Street and broke his arm." W. C. D., why did you not let us know you were an acrobat?

Every once in a while we hear of one of our oldtimers coming into the limelight. On September 27, our old veteran friend M. J. Fleming, claim clerk in the Freight Agent's Office at Cumberland, celebrated his sixty-sixth birthday, and was tendered a party by fellow employe members of the "Diabolt Club" and presented with a handsome gold band pipe. Mr. Fleming has completed fifty-two years' service with the Railroad, and is one of the oldest clerks in active service on the Cumberland Division.

The Cumberland Division has been gradually coming to the front as a producing division. In addition to the coal mines and stone quarries which are producing heavily, and the big fruit shipments from this territory, a number of plants along the division are constantly increasing their output. A recent example of this increased output was the record breaking output of the Alpha Portland Cement Company's plant, located on the M. & K. Sub-Division, which averaged upward of thirty cars of cement per day for the month of September.

Relief Clerk W. S. Snyder has gone and done it. Congratulations, W. S.! Oh, yes, the details? The happy bride is Miss Elizabeth Lucy Brown and they were married at Oakland on September 7 and their many friends all join in wishing them a lifetime honeymoon.

The picture of the smiling couple shows our popular coal billing clerk, Mae Beck, and J. C. Schrantz. Don't know how serious this case is but we were requested to touch lightly on the writeup.

The coming cold weather has the force of the Coal Billing Agent's Office feeling pretty blue account of the beautiful flower garden which surrounds the office losing its color. Much favorable comment on the beauty of the flowers and also on the fact that the employes take such interest in the yard to make the surroundings attractive. A large proportion of the credit is due "Mossy" Campbell and W. S. Snyder, as well as the entire force of the Coal Billing Office.

Here's a picture for some old timers. Of course, everyone remembers the old "52," and we are glad to present the crew in charge of this engine in 1911 when this

Why Railroad Men Prefer the HAMILTON

PRACTICALLY every railroad man knows something about watches; and the men under time inspection know a lot about them. They know their watches must be accurate—so accurate that they may not miss more than 150 beats in every 3,024,000—a maximum error of approximately  $1/200$  of 1%!

Any watch that will keep time within these requirements is a good watch—that goes without saying. But the best watch is the one that better these requirements and continues, with proper care, to do so year after year for a score of years and more.

That is what the Hamilton does—and that is why the Hamilton is the favorite watch of American railroad men. Wherever accuracy plus sturdiness is needed, there you'll find Hamiltons predominating.

If you want a watch you can depend upon, a watch that is built for service, go to your jeweler and ask for a Hamilton No. 992. This is the 16-size "Railroad Time-keeper of America," and is the favorite of railroad men all over the American continent.

Write for a copy of the "Timekeeper," our booklet that tells the story of the Hamilton Watch.

HAMILTON WATCH COMPANY
LANCASTER, PENNA., U. S. A.

Hamilton Watch

"The Railroad Timekeeper of America"

picture was taken. Reading, left to right, are Engineer Hovatter, Fireman "Jim" Moore, Brakeman Mansberry, Conductor J. E. Welsh and Brakeman W. H. Nolan.

In the September issue of our MAGAZINE we presented a photograph of old engine 13 and asked for further information should anyone recognize the gentleman shown beside the engine. Somehow a copy of the MAGAZINE fell into the hands of Mrs. W. H. Hildebrandt and she sent word to the correspondent that the picture of engine 13 was a highly prized family treasure account of a relative who died about a month ago, the late Jacob Myers. He was a veteran engineer on the Cumberland Division who had both fired and run this engine for several years and was always very proud of it because it was in a class of its own in its day.

At this time of the year when we see vendors selling chestnuts on the street corners of our larger cities, we wonder where they all come from. It might be interesting to many of our readers to know that some of the largest crops in the country are gathered along our line in the mountains adjacent to Oakland and Terra Alta on the Cumberland Division and are shipped to all points of the country.

It is with regret and yet with pride that we learn of the promotion of Assistant Superintendent T. K. Faherty to the position of Assistant Superintendent of the Monongah Division, with headquarters at Grafton. "Tom," as he is familiarly known to host of friends on the Cumberland Division, first started his railroad career on the east end of this division as a fireman and has successfully advanced to the positions of engineer, assistant road foreman, road foreman and assistant superintendent. Mr. Faherty has seen service on several divisions of the System, last returning to the Cumberland Division in 1918. He is a born railroad man and a prince among men and while all the employees on our division are sorry to lose "Tom," they join in wishing him every success in his new position.

W. H. McKinley, who acted as agent at Deer Park Hotel Station, succeeding H. B. Kight, has returned to his position as clerk to the agent at Hancock, the Deer Park Hotel having closed in September after a most successful season.

Roy T. Tabler, one of the most popular yard clerks in Cumberland Yard, was recently promoted to yardmaster in the East Yard. "Hick," we know you'll make good so keep them moving.

In these days of modern railroading, when every man in the railroad game has his part to play in keeping the great arteries of transportation moving, it is a pleasure to know that we have in our employ a man who not only knows and does his job, but does it exceptionally well. This man is W. R. Householder, conductor on our division. On August 26 an accident occurred to train of Extra West, Engine 7210, which obstructed all tracks and caused death of two of the crew. Conductor Householder was located in the caboose on the rear of the train, which consisted of fifty-two cars. Noting the stop was not very severe he assumed an air hose had burst. He immediately got off the caboose and went forward along the train and as he advanced toward the front end he realized that something more serious had happened. Upon reaching the front end he discovered the trouble and immediately proceeded west and flagged an Extra East which was approaching. The accident occurred one and one-half miles west of Bond, Md., at 4.55 a. m., and the Extra East was stopped at 5.02 a. m., there being less than seven minutes intervening between the time Conductor Householder left the rear of his train until he had stopped the approaching train west of the accident. By his vigilance and alertness he prevented a far greater disaster. Conductor Householder has been in the service twenty years, having first entered as a freight brakeman on the Cumberland Division, May 2, 1903. Perusal of his record indicates that he always practices the principals of Safety First, having been commended three times previously for his watchfulness and prompt actions in emergency. Superintendent R. W. Brown has written Mr. Householder a letter congratulating and commending him for his watchfulness and prompt action in this case. This action was also given cognizance by the I. C. C. inspectors who investigated this accident, they having stated that this was one of the best pieces of railroading that had come to their attention.

Among the attractions of special interest at the Cumberland Fair, held October 2, 3, 4 and 5, was a booth of the Baltimore and Ohio dealing largely with safety matters.

The display consisted mainly of illuminated pictures in handsome cases provided by Mr. Scoville as well as attractive posters furnished by the Safety Department.

In addition to the above display circulars describing the Capitol Limited, Washington Tours, and other literature of the Passenger Department was distributed. Persons who contemplated winter tours and other trips who applied to the booth were put in touch with Traveling Passenger Agent Kight for details and in that way the Passenger Department was benefited.

VIEWS FROM THE QUEEN CITY

Above, taken in 1911: Engineer Hovatter, Fireman Jim Moore, Brakeman Mansberry, Conductor J. E. Welsh, Brakeman W. H. Nolan. Below: Safety First booth at Cumberland Exhibition, arranged by and in charge of Mrs. E. C. Drawbaugh. In the oval: Mrs. Mae Beck and J. C. Schrantz

$1.00
Down
Brings This

Gas or Electric The Lamp—

Comes equipped for choice of gas or electricity. Has 2-light Benjamin socket for electricity only, with 8-foot silk cord ready for use; or comes with 6-foot rubber hose, burner, mantle and chimney for gas.

Mahogany Finish

Standard is 60 in. high, 3 in. in diameter. Highly polished French mahogany finish.

The Shade—

Made in Fifth Avenue design, 24 in. in diameter, of delft blue silk, shirred top, alternating plain and fancy art silk panels. Twelve panels in all, tinsel braid border, with four inch Chenille fringe. American beauty shirred lining. The harmonious color scheme gives effect of red light shining through a blue haze—a rich warm light. Shipping weight, 27 pounds.

Marshall Silky Fringe Pull-Cords

Also pair of Marshall silky fringe cords with 3½ in. silky fringed tassels, giving an added luxurious effect.

For gas use, order by No. G6332NA.

For electricity, order by No. G6333NA.

Send only $1 with the coupon, $2 monthly. Total Bargain Price for lamp and shade, $19.85.

Free Bargain Catalog

Shows thousands of bargains in home furnishings: furniture, jewelry, rugs, curtains, phonographs, stoves, dishes, aluminum ware, etc. All sold on easy terms. Catalog sent free, with or without order. See the coupon.

Floor Lamp With 5th Ave. Silk Shade

Here is something you have always wanted—a beautiful floor lamp with handsome and elegant Fifth Avenue silk shade—to add an extra tone of elegance and luxury to your home. On this generous offer you can see just how this floor lamp and silk shade will look in your home, without risking anything. Send only $1.00 with the coupon below, and we will send it complete to your home on approval, equipped for use with either gas or electricity. We take all the risk.

30 Days Trial

When the lamp outfit comes, use it freely for 30 days. See how beautifully the colorings of the handsome silk shade blend and harmonize with everything in the home. How useful it is, too—so handy for reading, can be moved around with ease to furnish a beautiful light and rich warmth and coziness to any room in the house. If after 30 days trial you decide not to keep the lamp, just return it at our expense and we will refund your $1.00 deposit, plus any freight or express you paid. You cannot lose a single penny.

$2.00 a Month

If you discover that this lamp is a tremendous bargain at the price we ask and you decide to keep it, send only $2.00 a month until you have paid the total bargain price of $19.85. Yes, only $19.85 for this luxurious lamp and silk shade complete. Compare this value with anything you could buy locally at anywhere near the same price—even for spot cash! Straus & Schram gives you this bargain price and almost a year to pay. We trust honest people anywhere in U. S. No discount for cash; nothing extra for credit. No C. O. D.

Price Slashed!

Decide now to see this beautiful floor lamp and silk shade in your home on approval on this price smashing offer. Think how the nickels and dimes slip away for useless things; save them for something worth while that will give satisfaction for years. Send coupon with only $1.00 now! Satisfaction guaranteed.

STRAUS & SCHRAM, Dept. 4018 Chicago, Ill.

MAIL THIS COUPON NOW! STRAUS & SCHRAM Dept. 4018 CHICAGO

Enclosed find $1.00. Ship special advertised Floor Lamp and Silk Shade as checked below. I am to have 30 days free trial. If I keep the lamp, I will send $2.00 a month. If not satisfied, I am to return the lamp and shade within 30 days and you are to refund my $1.00 plus any transportation charges I paid.

- ☐ Gas Floor Lamp No. G 6332NA, $19.85.
☐ Electric Floor Lamp No. G 6333NA, $19.85

Name .....
Street, F. F. D. or Box No. ....
Shipping Point .....
Post Office ..... State .....
If you want ONLY our free catalog of home furnishings, mark X here ☐

Approximately 11,000 visited the booth during the four days of the fair and a number were furnished circulars on subjects in which they were interested.

It was surprising to find how many persons were interested in the Capitol Limited and how well posted they were on its performance.

When the schools brought the children to see the Baltimore and Ohio display, some of the boys would stop before the poster showing boys engaged in various games and in the picture a little chap on crutches who had lost a leg hopping trains. They would invariably remark, after looking at the picture a while "Gee, I am never going to hep any more trains."

When the idea of having a booth took shape the necessity of putting it in charge of some one became necessary, Mrs. E. C. Drawbaugh, wife of the division operator, consented to handle it and was given much credit by the press for the manner in which it was conducted.

Green Spring, W. Va.

Timber Preserving Plant

Correspondent, E. E. ALEXANDER

Treating Engineer and Mrs. J. C. Alexander announce the birth of a son, September 18. Mother and baby are doing fine. Dr. Daily, of Romney, was the attending physician.

Harl Cosner and Wilbur Shanholtz have greatly beautified their respective properties on the Romney Road by painting. A nicely painted property is an improvement to the community.

Yard Foreman H. W. Gross intends to keep up with the procession with a brand new Overland. Twenty-five miles to the gallon is going some, we say. Laborer E. S. Robison follows him with a new Ford.

Carpenter gang under Foreman G. R. Clark has been assigned to Plant to frame bridge ties to be used over the entire system.

J. H. Robison has been appointed engine watchman, vice Carl Schaidt, assigned to other duties.

Chemical Engineer and Mrs. R. N. Angier attended the wedding of the latter's sister in Baltimore.

Treating Engineer and Mrs. J. C. Alexander entertained at their home on October 10 in honor of the 29th birthday of Switchman W. F. Kesler. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Whitlock, Mrs. E. E. Alexander, Mrs. E. M. Parker, Miss Edna Foley, Messrs. W. F. Kesler, Henry Smith, J. G. Myerly and E. S. Robison, Miss Mildred Parker, Master Paul Whitlock, and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Alexander.

Our photograph this month is of Tieman and Mrs. E. A. Kline and their daughter Florence Allen, seventeen months old. Mr. Kline is very proud of his little daughter. She favors her papa, don't you think?

Keyser, W. Va.

Correspondent, H. B. KIGHT

Some of the things the Magazine saw last month

Harry Atkins reciting "Casey at the Bat" to a pleased audience.

Foreman Stanley going up New Creek in his new car.

Louis Long looking for the ticket rate to Podunk, Conn.

Frank Graney reading the "Florida Booster."

Agent Robertson, Austen, helping Kight get up a Washington Tour party. (They are great tours, Mr. Editor. Everyone should boost them.)

Assistant Trainmaster Fallon keeping cars moving, increasing the miles.

School children going back and forth on our accommodation trains, under the watchful eyes of our conductors.

Martin Sayre and Louie Batie strolling up Main Street, Deer Park, with their market baskets.

Cap. Edwards producing his transportation.

We have not heard anyone answer our challenge to produce a better looking bunch, with a longer service record, than those shown in The September MAGAZINE. Speak up if you can better that record.

Since the writer is doing new work, and gets out more, there are things he cannot refrain from commenting on. It seems that day by day, as Dr. Coue says, our railroad is getting better and better. Passengers speak of the comfortable trains, of the excellent dining car service, of the personal attention each passenger receives from our employees and of the friendship existing between Management and men. It is fine! It makes us proud to belong to the big family that helps to keep the Best and Only in a class by itself.

Boost the Baltimore and Ohio, boys! Here is where you make your living and, as Edward Guest recently said, "There is more to it than what you get in the pay envelope."

Wonder if Harry Hutson received that map yet?

Tieman and Mrs. E. A. Kline and their daughter, Green Spring

Lou Lang, who drives one of the big Mallet engines and does it right, recently decided to take a motor cycle ride. It bucked and threw him off and he has not been working for some time. Stick to the Mallet, Lou, it's safer!

Yard Conductor Charles Davis, who has given the Baltimore and Ohio more than fifty years service, has been ill for some time. We hope for his speedy recovery.

We are pleased to know that West End Brakeman Sweitzer, who has been off duty for seven years, has resumed work. He had been ill for a long time and thought that his days of active duty with his Railroad were over. Recently, he submitted to a slight operation, which has restored him to his usual health and he has received his "Return to Duty" card.

Operator Charles Hodges is busy getting in his large crop of apples from his farm near Keyser. This means business for us. He is shipping in carload lots.

What did you do with the prospective business card you found in the MAGAZINE? Use it, that is what it is for and it is a good thing. It brings to the attention of the division passenger or freight agent business they might not secure. Give them the tip, then see the result of your efforts as the trains go by. The passenger will be on board, or the freight will be moving by the Baltimore and Ohio. And the credit is yours!

We are indebted to Car Foreman Stanley and Foreman Gosnell for the following Keyser Shop notes. Thanks, come again! We appreciate your assistance.

Dusty—"Say, Spark Plug, why is a clothes pin better than a Baltimore and Ohio System pass?"

Spark Plug—"Can't say, Dusty. Why?"

Dusty—"Why, it is good on all lines."

It is with sadness that we report the death of Mrs. George W. Cheshire at her late home in Cumberland. Mr. Cheshire, "Uncle George" as he was generally known, was a former car shop foreman at Keyser. He died about two months ago. To their sons, Shannon and William, we extend sincere sympathy.

Shop Safety Inspector E. G. Sirbaugh, read an interesting paper before the C. T. safety meeting, entitled, "What I Have Accomplished as a Safety Committeeman." This paper covered the various items of safety handled by Mr. Sirbaugh during his ten years experience as safety inspector.

One of our public school teachers who, during the Careful Crossing Campaign, was explaining to her class the meaning of the slogan "Stop, Look and Listen," was interrupted by one of her small pupils who resides on the opposite side of the railroad tracks at this station, who said that her mamma had added more words to this slogan and had taught her to "Stop, Look, Listen and then Hustle."

Apprentice Instructor A. L. Miller has moved his family from Baltimore and is now residing in Potomac Addition.

Dodger Murphy advised the pass clerk that it would not be necessary to order an annual pass for his wife for the year 1924.

Our esteemed Locomotive Department material distributor says that his phonograph and wireless are in perfect working condition and with the addition of a new ten pound baby boy, his home orchestra is now complete.

The Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association has been unable to hold their regular monthly meetings because of inability to secure a hall. They now have up with the Management the question of using one of the rest rooms at this station.

Several of the Master Mechanic's force have been granted a leave of absence to attend school during the present term. Those leaving were P. Mayola, for West Virginia University at Morgantown, H. C. McFarland attending Potomac State, J. Sanders attending Keyser High and R. S. Davis, former ticket agent, taking a special course at Potomac State.

The Keyser Checker Club is now having secret practices behind closed doors. The Old Guard is still in good shape, a little stiff in the fingers but practice is taking out the kinks. They are positive the "Nickle-plated Umbrella," now in possession of "Abe," will be located at Keyser before Old Santa makes his next annual visit. Look out for a challenge, John, in the near future.

Mill Foreman Naughton is proud of his title of Champion Wrestler after defeating

DEPOSITS $1,055,260.26 The First National Bank Keyser, W. Va.

SPECIAL SAVINGS DEPARTMENT
Interest paid every six months
from date of deposit

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Wonderful 32-Piece Aluminum Set consists of 2 Bread Pans; Doughnut Cutter; 2 Loose Bottom Jelly Cake Pans; Combination Teakettle and Rice Boiler with lid; Saucepan Set with lid; Dipper; Colander; Measuring Cup; Percolator; 2 Pie Pans; Complete Castor Set; Tea or Coffee Strainer; Fry Pan; also cooker set of 5 pieces—makes 11 separate utensil combinations: Pressing Kettle; Convex Kettle; Combination Cooker; Casserole; Pudding Pan; Tuber Cake Pan; Colander; Roaster; Corn Popper; Steamer Set; Double Boiler.

FREE 10-Piece White Enamel Kitchen Set

$1 Brings this Complete 32-Pc. Aluminum Set

Another sensational bargain from the House of Hartman—a value so altogether amazing that you must see it to fully appreciate your saving. Send only $1 and we will ship you this splendid complete 32-Piece Aluminum Cooking Set, and with it the Free 10-Piece Combination Kitchen Set. Use both sets as your own for 30 days on Free Trial. Then, if not convinced that Hartman has saved you big money, send it back and we will return your $1 and pay transportation charges both ways. If you keep it, take nearly a year to pay—a little every month. Nothing to pay now or later for the Kitchen Set. It is Free.

Includes Everything Needed In the Modern Kitchen

This is Hartman's famous special, selected set of heavy gauge Aluminum Ware—a complete cooking outfit, light to handle, easy to clean, always bright as silver. Will never chip, crack or rust. So durable that we guarantee it for life. 32 utensils—everything you need for baking, boiling, roasting, frying. Just read the list above. You want and need everything there. Your kitchen is not complete without them. You really can't appreciate this splendid set until you see and use it. Then you will realize what a wonderful bargain it is. And without a penny's cost—absolutely free—you get a Combination Kitchen Set which gives you 10 utensils with pretty white handles—all hung in a row—where you can reach them conveniently.

Nearly a Year to Pay Hartman gives the world's most liberal terms and the world's greatest values in dependable merchandise, and this offer proves it. You send only $1 with coupon. Nothing to pay when shipment arrives. Then, if after 30 days' trial you decide to keep it, pay a little every month on the Aluminum Set—not a penny to pay at any time for the Kitchen Set. Take nearly a year to pay.

Order No. 417EEMAS. Bargain Price for Aluminum Set, $18.95. Pay $1.00 Now. Balance $2.00 Monthly. 10-Piece Kitchen Set is FREE.

FREE 10-PIECE KITCHEN SET

Not a penny to pay for this set. You get it absolutely free with the Aluminum Set.

- |                     |                                |
|---------------------|--------------------------------|
| Fork         | Potato Masher           |
| Can Opener   | Egg and Cake Turner     |
| Ice Pick     | Measuring Spoon         |
| Mixing Spoon | Egg and Cream Beater    |
| Wall Rack    | Vegetable and Pan Brush |

All have white enameled handles and hang on wall rack, keeping them conveniently at hand.

Mail the Coupon Now!

HARTMAN FURNITURE & CARPET CO.
Dept. 5872 Chicago, Ill.

Enclosed find $1.00. Send the 32-Piece Aluminum Cooking Set No. 417EEMAS, Price $18.95, as described, and with it the 10 Piece Kitchen Set absolutely Free. I am to have 30 days' free trial. If not satisfied, I will ship both sets back and you will refund my $1 and pay transportation charges both ways. If I keep them, I will pay you $2 monthly until the price of the Aluminum Set, $18.95, is paid. Title remains with you until final payment is made.

Name.....

Occupation of Head of Household.....
R. F. D., Box No. ....
or Street and No. ....

Post Office..... State.....

If shipping point is different from your post office, fill in line below

Send shipment to.....

How long have you lived at present address?.....

FREE Bargain Catalog and FREE GIFTS

This great 316-page book offers the world's greatest bargains in home furnishings, jewelry and farm machinery—all sold on easy monthly payment terms and 30 days' free trial on everything. WONDERFUL GIFTS Catalog explains how you can get Glassware, Silverware, Tablecloths, Napkins, etc., free with purchases. Send for it today. "Let Hartman Feather YOUR Nest"

HARTMAN FURNITURE & CARPET CO.
Dept. 5872 Copyright, 1923, by Hartman's, Chicago CHICAGO

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

DAVID W.,
Son of Car Clerk D. W. Fockler, Cumbo

"Ginnie" Ravenscraft in three straight falls.

"Pat" says it is better exercise than hiving bees but a little more strenuous.

"Dusty" now has his mail up, reports all made out and ready to leave the office at 5.00 p. m. each evening, due to a severe attack of "Ethelism."

Nina Lee says, "Please don't write me up in the MAGAZINE this month." All right, Nina, we won't.

"Do Do" was very much embarrassed a few days ago, after having had her hair dressed in a new style, when Marshall called her attention to a tip of her ear being exposed to public view.

Our congratulations are extended to H. B. Kight on his appointment as travelling passenger agent, Cumberland. While we regret to lose Harry from our midst, we know that he will make good in his new position and wish him the best of luck.

Air Brake Foreman Ravenscraft, Shop Clerk Dietz and others participated in a "Coon Hunt" recently. After climbing five or six mountains ("Bill" says they were straight up too but that it was good sliding coming down) they failed to tree any game. The dogs, however, were even more unlucky, as they fell foul of an animal of the cat species, which has a bushy tail and white stripe down the middle of its back, necessitating bringing the dogs home, tied between two automobiles, sixty-five feet from each other.

In August, when some of our foremen were spending a vacation along the peaceful waters of Patterson's Creek, one evening they were surprised by a band of people resembling Indians, at least in their yells. They proved to be a band of foreman and checkers who had come to pay their fellow workers a visit. Instead of being after scalps, they were after something to eat. They got it. "Spark Plug," the shop comedian, entertained the party with some of his clever tricks, which added much to the enjoyment of the party.

What became of the photograph of Captain Edwards, taken in front of Car Foreman Stanley's new car recently. Was the shock too much for the camera?

What is all the talk about the boys at the Steel Car Plant? Oh, yes. The W-1 coke racks. Look 'em over. The Car Barn also issues a challenge to the Steel Car plant. They are all working to Stop That Leak—and doing it, too.

The clerical forces are doing their bit, as well as the Operating Department. They always meet us with a smile, especially the ladies. And now, let me say that the drug stores would go out of business if they depended upon our ladies who use cosmetics. They don't need any!

After several false alarms and unavoidable delays, the meeting of the Shop Band finally got under way. The practice meeting took place behind the car barn. When the first notes were wafted on the air, it was easy to see that some of those interested had once been musicians. There was plenty of chord and discord, and yet the experts found it easy to tell that the number being played was "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." Practice makes perfect and before long we will have the best band on the system.

The Kevser shop has been dormant for sometime but through the columns of the MAGAZINE we now want to state that with the united efforts of the master mechanic and general car foreman and their corps of assistants, we have a shop to be proud of.

The "spot" system was inaugurated some time ago and is now in operation. Our highest aim is "Perfection" and our motto "Keep cars moving with good workmanship, endeavoring at all times to STOP THAT LEAK."

It is with deepest regret that we report the death of one of our fellow workmen, A. V. Duckworth. We extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt sympathy.

Of special interest, showing that employees of other roads are trying to secure business for their company, is the following letter I have received from Engineer W. D. McClintock, who is employed on the Missouri Pacific and lives in Osawatimie, Kansas.

"I met you in August, on my return trip from Washington, and thought I would write to express my appreciation of the excellent service rendered by the employees we came in contact with.

"We certainly enjoyed our trip from St. Louis to Washington and return via the Baltimore and Ohio. I also appreciated your personal services in pointing out the places of interest at Harper's Ferry.

"I know railroad companies receive letters of criticism, and so thought I would write of my appreciation.

"I have been in the service of the Missouri Pacific for fifteen years, on the Central Kansas Division, nine years as fireman and six as engineer.

"I am in the same business as you are, and anything you can send via the Missouri Pacific will be appreciated."

Martinsburg, W. Va.

Correspondent, W. L. STEPHENS

All employees and friends of Engineer James Orem desire to extend their sympathy to him in the loss of his son, James R. The boy was ill only a few days. He was a student in the sophomore class at the local High School and was highly esteemed by the teachers and members of his class.

The bright youngster in our photograph is the 15 months' old son of Car Clerk D. W. Fockler, Cumbo and the grandson of Yard Conductor Lewis W. Harmon. The little fellow looks like his father. His grandfather says he is the greatest boy he ever knew!

Sabraton, W. Va.

Correspondent, L. M. GUMP

On September 10, Robert W. Kennedy, clerk to Supervisor Fretwell, commonly known as "Bob," passed quietly away at his home in Morgantown, after an illness of only twelve hours. His sudden death, because of pneumonia, came as a shock to his family and friends. He had been on duty the previous Saturday and was apparently in good health, but he was stricken in the early morning hours on Monday. Born in Morgantown on January 27, 1902, he lived all his life in that place, entering the service of the Baltimore and Ohio early in 1920. He served in the capacity of clerk to supervisor during his entire period of service.

The accompanying photograph was taken one week before his death. His disposition and character were such that he was highly respected and all with whom he was associated feel a sense of personal loss in his death.

Electrician James E. Ware has been transferred to Bailey's Station, Baltimore. "Jim" had been with us two years and leaves many friends here. We wish him good luck in his new position.

Storekeeper Farrell bids fair to compete with Boilermaker Johns as chief dog fancier, while "Slim" Lantz, not to be outdone, has also purchased a "pup" and threatens to buy a Russian wolf hound if he can find anywhere to park it without paying a storage bill.

A number of the shop and road men have recently bought, built or now have new homes under construction. Considering the cost of real estate, labor and material in and about the community, these men are to be congratulated.

Pittsburgh Division

Correspondent, EARL FAIRGRIEVE

O, Mr. Gallagher, O, Mr. Gallagher, We hear that you are now a happy Dad, You can smile and smile and smile, You have done something worth while, For a daughter for the first is not so bad; Now "Jimmie" dear, lend me your ear, And listen to the words I have to say,

If you would have some joy, Let the next one be a boy, Congratulations, Mr. Gallagher, that is all from us today.

The above is respectfully dedicated to James Gallagher, who pinch hits for Brother "Nemo" Burtoft in Pittsburgh Yard. The Stork recently paid a visit to the Gallagher home and left a fine little daughter for James and the wife to rave over and the smile on "Jimmie's" countenance simply won't come off.

The late Clerk R. W. Kennedy

On Being Timely—

WITH Christmas in the offing, thoughts run to gift ideas. You probably know many a "Jim" or "John" among the railroad men. Or maybe you belong to that great fraternity yourself! And who doesn't know how necessary it is that a railroad man's watch be always up-to-the-minute? Surprise your buddy, or treat yourself, to one of our dependable time-pieces. Let it be a famous Waltham, Elgin, Illinois or Hamilton, from S. and N. Katz, and our Liberal Credit Plan makes the paying for it easy.

Green Gold
ELGIN "DICTATOR" WATCH
$27.50

Pay on the Katz Liberal Credit Plan
Another 25-year guaranteed case watch with the famed Elgin "Dictator" movement. The dial is of green gold to match the distinctively designed case. Monograms Engraved Free.

HAMILTON No. 992
21 Jewels, 20-year case
$58.50

Pay on the Katz Liberal Credit Plan
Who hasn't heard of the famous "Hamilton?" Railroad men have been depending on it for the right time for years and years.

S. and N. Katz

"Official Railroad Watch Inspectors"

Jewelers and Silversmiths—105-107 N. Charles Street

Roland Ave. and 36th St. Eastern Ave. and Third St. Light and Cross Sts.
Baltimore, Md.

Send for our illustrated watch booklet "A Matter of Time"

THE DAY STAFF AT SOMERSET, PA.

Left to right: General Yardmaster G. E. Dice, Supervisor A. E. Dwire, General Foreman C. A. Cage, Assistant General Foreman L. L. Robinson

This same bird has made some other visitations that we know of and so Harry Sherry, traveling car agent, whose activity centers in this vicinity, doesn't need to think he's the only papa around the diggin's. Forget whether it's a girl or boy, but we congratulate you anyway, old top.

Friends of Wade Bryant, employed for a number of years in the Timekeeper's Office and later in the Superintendent's Office, will be grieved to learn of his sudden and untimely death September 29. Mr. Bryant, at the time of his death, was employed on the P. & L. E., but he was well known for his activities with the Baltimore and Ohio where he got his start many years ago, in the railroad game.

Some time during the latter part of September, when the chilly mornings sense the approach of Autumn, some lover of the equine decided to ship his noble steed to Morgantown, but in some manner his "Spark Plug" missed his booking on train 16 out of Pittsburgh and had to be "Barney Googled" by Stationmaster Drake. "Sparky" evidently wasn't very efficient in the hurdling line, hey "Tommy?" He should practise the aeroplane stunt.

John H. Meredith, agent, Rankin, Pa., and his sister Gertrude, of Braddock, spent the summer with their brother, Lewis, at San Diego, California. While there, Mr. Meredith took several trips up into the mountains of California, to Coronado Beach, Tia Jauna, Mexico, Los Angeles, Pasadena and Long Beach. The return trip was made via Salt Lake City and the Grand Canyon of Arizona, Denver, Chicago and Youngstown, stopping at each place.

"Jack," as he is called, said that he had the time of his life in California and that it will take him a long time to get rested.

Northern District

Correspondent, D. H. KIRKWOOD

Fireman R. E. Anchors, who had an operation for appendicitis, is getting along nicely.

Supervisor P. J. Lally, who has been on the sick list for some time, has resumed duty.

Acting Supervisor J. W. Kimmins has returned to the W. & P. district to take charge of a work train on that territory.

Agent Operator L. E. Richardson has resigned and accepted a position with the Knox Glass Bottle Co. at Knox, Pa.

Married—Brakeman W. D. Shultz and Miss Carrie Horam, daughter of Hostler H. W. Horam, Mt. Jewett.

Mrs. L. J. Spengler, agent operator, Clarion Junction, recently purchased a nearby farm.

To assist employees subject to requirements of the watch inspection rules, it has been arranged for a representative of Pugh Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., to visit Foxburg twice each month for the purpose of making inspection and comparisons. It has been arranged that these inspections will be held on the 10th and 11th and 25th and 26th of each month, beginning with October. Should the 10th or 25th fall on Sunday, the two succeeding days will be used. Headquarters, Foxburg Station.

While in Kane, Pa., recently, the writer had the pleasure of meeting Conductor W. T. Bogart, an interesting old time employee of the Baltimore and Ohio.

Mr. Bogart has a passenger run between Kane and James City, the latter being a small town where some large glass works are located. Between times Mr. Bogart runs a mixed train between Kane and Mount Jewett.

Mr. Bogart was born in Moscow, N. Y., a number of years ago, but he is hale and hearty and able to do as good a days work as many young men. His first railroad experience was with the New York, Lake Erie and Western, and he still has in his possession an old time table which he used on that road. In 1881 Mr. Bogart came to work for the old narrow gauge railroad known as the B. B. & K., running between Bradford, Mount Jewett and Kane. Later this narrow gauge road was taken over by the Baltimore and Ohio. That part of it between Bradford and Mount Jewett has been abandoned, while the portion between Mount Jewett and Kane was made standard gauge and is now part of the Baltimore and Ohio, trains running between this station

ON THE NORTHERN DISTRICT PITTSBURGH DIVISION

Above: The railroad track, near Greenville, between Kane and Mount Jewett, in winter. Below, left: Snow plow clearing the line for traffic at Ka nesholm; right: Conductor W. T. Bogart

ADVANCE OF THE GRAND ARMY

NAPOLEON'S name fills more pages in the world's solemn history than that of any other mortal.

The advance of his Grand Army into Russia is the turning point of his career and marks the beginning of his downfall. During the World War mighty armies marched over the battlefields where Napoleon fought over a century ago. All the causes of this mighty struggle may be learned from the pages of history. The one complete, accurate, authoritative and reliable history, depicting the rise and fall of every empire, kingdom, principality and power, is the world-famed publication,

Ridpath's History of the World

Including a full authentic account of the World War

Dr. John Clark Ridpath is universally recognized as America's greatest historian. Other men have written histories of one nation or period—Gibbon of Rome, Macaulay of England, Guizot of France; but it remained for Dr. Ridpath to write a history of the entire World from the earliest civilization down to the present day.

A Very Low Price and Easy Terms

We will name our special low price and easy terms of payment only in direct letters. A coupon for your convenience is printed on the lower corner of this advertisement. Tear off the coupon, write your name and address plainly and mail now before you forget it. We will mail you 46 free sample pages without any obligation on your part to buy. These will give you some idea of the splendid illustrations and the wonderfully beautiful style in which the work is written. We employ no agents, nor do we sell through bookstores, so there are no agents' commissions or book dealers' profits to pay. Our plan of sale enables us to ship direct from factory to customer and guarantee satisfaction.

Six Thousand Years of History

RIDPATH takes you back to the dawn of History, long before the Pyramids of Egypt were built; down through the romantic troubled times of Chaldea's grandeur and Assyria's magnificence; of Babylonia's wealth and luxury; of Greek and Roman splendor; of Mohammedan culture and refinement to the dawn of yesterday, including a full authentic account of the World War. He covers every race, every nation, every time, and holds you spellbound by his wonderful eloquence.

Endorsed by Thousands

RIDPATH is endorsed by Presidents of the United States, practically all university and college presidents, and by a quarter of a million Americans who own and love it. Don't you think it would be worth while to mail us the coupon and receive the 46 sample pages from the History? They are free.

Ridpath's Graphic Style

RIDPATH pictures the great historical events as though they were happening before your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman Senate; to march against Saladin and his dark-skinned followers; to sail the southern seas with Drake; to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan. He combines absorbing interest with supreme reliability.

THE RIDPATH HISTORICAL SOCIETY
CINCINNATI, O.

FOLD HERE. TEAR OUT, SIGN AND MAIL

FREE COUPON
THE
RIDPATH
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Cincinnati, O.

Please mail, without cost to me, sample pages of Ridpath's History of the World, containing photogravures of The Surrender at Sedan, Napoleon, and other great characters in history. Also write me full particulars of your special offer to Baltimore & Ohio Magazine readers.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

HIGH SPOTS IN THE ALLEGHENIES

Above, right: Mrs. Kirkwood, wife of conductor who runs passenger train between Mount Jewett and Foxburg. Left: two of Mrs. Kirkwood's friends, also wives of employees. Below: the efficient staff of the Kane station—the highest inhabited town in the Alleghenies, about 2000 feet above sea level. Carman Elmer Youngquist, Agent George Edmonds, Clerk Elizabeth Anderson. Relief Operator T. H. Lawrence and Butler, where connection is made for Pittsburgh.

Mr. Bogart is married and has one son, who is a doctor. He has a nice home on Pine Avenue, a few minutes walk from the Baltimore and Ohio station. His photograph accompanies this article. He has many interesting photographs in his possession, showing views of the old B. B. & K., of which road he was trainmaster for some years. He also has a number of photographs showing the effects of the heavy snow storms between Kane and Mount Jewett, on railroad traffic, some of which appear on this page.

Of a friendly and courteous disposition, Mr. Bogart has many friends among the Baltimore and Ohio patrons, as well as in the town of Kane.

Glenwood Roundhouse

Correspondent, JANE P. PASSMORE

Talk about smiling faces in Glenwood Roundhouse! Some of the men in the shops just can't help but smile—especially Machinist Helper Vandergrift—yes, it is a girl! Also Labor Foreman Holeman with a future "Stenog" and L. W. Robbins with another girl.

Miss Lanoa Sample, stenographer to Car Foreman Bonifield at Pittsburgh, has been absent from duty for the past two weeks because of illness. Hurry back, Lanoa, we need you. Here's best wishes for a speedy recovery.

Lacey Newberry, one of our efficient waiters on Dining Car 1000, certainly deserves a word of praise. The other day Mr. Newberry found card case of one of the conductor's with pass and other valuable papers and immediately returned it to the owner. This is not the only case where Mr. Newberry has come to the front in cases of this kind and it is certainly to be admired in him.

We are glad to learn of the improvement of the little son of Roundhouse Foreman Jenkins. He has scarlet fever and we hope for continued improvement.

The accompanying picture is of the Fire Brigade from Glenwood Roundhouse and we don't feel a bit backward when we say they are 100 per cent. At a recent turnout, these men answered a call for drill at Box 225, pulled out 150 feet of hose and took it up on the roof of saw mill, put water through hose in the space of 1 minute and 52 seconds. As Box 225 is quite a distance from the roundhouse, in which these men work, we feel proud of this performance. Keep it up, fellows, why should we have any damage by fire with a brigade like this? Reading, left to right, men shown are as follows—Standing, G. C. Williams, Fire Marshall; sitting, W. G. Glaseman, A. E. Miller, "Captain" (and believe me, some "Captain"); standing; R. Irwin, I. P. Tafel, C. I. Haggerty (Better known as "Chuck" and a real "Shiek" with the girls), A. R. Frazee and E. A. Fisher.

We certainly are glad to know of improvement in the condition of Machinist L. V. Krepps, who has been absent from duty for the past four months from illness. Here's all our wishes for a speedy and complete recovery, "Louie."

Glenwood Back Shop

Correspondent, EDRIC C. GREAVES

The Baltimore and Ohio Glenwood Social Club, composed of officials and other employees of the Company, elected new officers at a meeting held on October 2, in the Glenwood offices. Plans were made for a number of entertainments to be held during the winter. The first was a dance on October 12.

The following officers were elected: C. M. Newman, president; C. E. McGann,

The Glenwood Roundhouse Fire Brigade, which is making new records. Their names appear in the Glenwood Roundhouse notes

$1<sup>00</sup> Brings You Any <sup>of these</sup> Beautiful Xmas Gifts

Biggest Xmas offer ever made! Send a Dollar—mention gift desired. That's all! We ship at once!
If satisfied pay 10% monthly. Otherwise return and we refund deposit. Rush your Dollar TO-DAY!

X13—Ladies solitaire Engagement ring fine blue white diamond $45.

X5—Solid gold Jap ring one fine diamond $29.

X6—Genuine hand carved cameo solid gold ring $16.

X9—Ladies fancy white gold diamond cluster platinum set $48.50.

X2—14 Kt solid gold rectangular wristwatch 15 jewel guaranteed movement $24.

X11—Gents ring hand engraved reconstructed ruby $16.

X10—Fancy white gold ladies ring 2 fine diamonds one blue sapphire $57.50.

XX—21 inch Bale Pearls Diamond set white gold clasp $18.50.

X14—14kt. solid white gold wrist watch. 15 jewel guaranteed movement $21.00

X12—Fancy pierced ladies white gold ring fine blue white diamond $48.

X4—Onyx Ring solid gold fine blue white diamond $24.50.

X7—7 diamond cluster platinum set solid gold becher mounting $52.50.

X1—Birthstone ring, white gold, any month $12.

X8—Solid gold pendant seed pearls one fine diamond $23.

X10 — 14 kt. solid gold Cuff Links white gold border $11.50

X15—Big Elgin Value Jeweled Elgin Octagon warranted gold filled case. Chain and knife free $21.75

BUY NOW!

FREE CATALOG

These wonderful values are only a few of the thousands offered in the Big Beautiful Bale Blue Book! 72 pages of America's Best Values in Diamonds, Watches, Jewelry, Pearls, Ivoryware, Silverware, Cameras and Thousands of other Gift Suggestions. Buy NOW! PAY AS YOU PLEASE! Cash or YOUR OWN TERMS (within reason) most liberal credit offer ever made. Send for FREE copy TO DAY! Dept.

O. F. Bale & Co. EST. 1888
21-23 Maiden Lane New York

vice-president; W. A. Whalen, vice-president; J. R. Orndorff, vice-president; E. C. Greaves, secretary-treasurer; Miss Kathryn E. Farrell, assistant secretary-treasurer; C. L. Tucker, chairman entertainment committee; J. W. Tucker, chairman publicity committee; H. T. Cromwell, J. M. Applebe, M. R. Powell, H. F. Schwab, W. W. McPherron, Miss Jane Passmore, Miss Edna Moxley, E. J. Weible and Frank Guy, membership committee; Miss Bess Friday, Miss Claire Farrell, Miss Ethel Andrews, Miss Olga Morris, Miss Elizabeth Flynn, Miss Frances Leeper and Miss Mary Walsh, reception committee.

Miss Anna M. Gallagher and Miss Mildred T. Kramer have been appointed to clerical positions in the Office of the Superintendent of Shops.

Chief Clerk W. A. Whalen and family are now located in the Dormont section of Pittsburgh, having moved from Philadelphia.

We have nothing but praise and commendation for the very efficient service of the telephone operators at the Hazelwood Exchange. However, we were exceedingly glad to again hear the voice of Miss May Ward, who has been away on her vacation.

Our redoubtable storekeeper, J. R. Orndorff has been solving many difficulties in connection with his arduous duties.

We understand that our stalwart boiler-maker foreman, T. J. Stapleton, is not satisfied with the publicity granted the Back Shop in the MAGAZINE. Well, "Tim," step up and furnish us with some news.

We believe in cooperation and good-will—in fact that is our slogan. The Back Shop, the Roundhouse, the Car and Stores Departments forces are all eligible for membership in the Baltimore and Ohio Glenwood Social Club. Applications are always in order. Step up and help the good cause along.

W. H. Battenhouse, general car foreman, is in some town in good old Ohio, very quietly recuperating. Do not envy him, for with the worries of an automobile, bad order cars, "aggravated" force statement, etc., he certainly needs a rest.

N. A. Stinger has departed for New York with the firm conviction of witnessing the

Miss Claire Farrell, Stores Department, Glenwood

"Yanks" administer a severe drubbing to the "Giants." We hope N. A. is not disappointed.

We are strongly of the opinion that courtesy is a dominant factor in business as well as in the drawing-room, and that it is entirely unnecessary to resort to blasphemy in order to achieve results.

The officers of the Baltimore and Ohio Glenwood Social Club in the accompanying picture are, reading left to right:

Back row: C. L. Tucker, chairman entertainment committee; C. E. McGann, first vice-president; J. R. Orndorff, third vice-president; H. F. Schwab, membership committee; H. T. Cromwell, chairman membership committee.

Second row: E. C. Greaves, secretary-treasurer; Miss Edna Moxley, membership committee; C. M. Newman, president; Miss Claire Farrell, entertainment committee; W. A. Whalen, second vice-president.

Front row: J. W. Tucker, chairman publicity committee; M. A. Powell, membership committee.

Glenwood Back Shop

Correspondent, FRANCES E. LEEPER

The accompanying photograph is Miss Claire Farrell of the Stores Department. Miss Farrell has been in the service of the Baltimore and Ohio for the past five years and is well liked by all her fellow employees.

R. F. Peters, formerly employed at Fairmont, has been appointed car foreman at Glenwood. Best wishes, Mr. Peters!

John A. Kocerhan, shop order clerk, handed his friends a surprise when he was quietly married to a certain young lady from Duquesne. Congratulations, John!

We have with us J. R. Orndorff, recently appointed division storekeeper with headquarters at Glenwood.

Miss Anne Gallagher, formerly employed at Pittsburgh, has become car clerk, Shops. We have had Anne with us before and are all glad to see her back.

Monongah Division

Correspondent, ANNA MARY UNKS

The following from the Clarksburg Telegram should prove of interest to the friends of the Baltimore and Ohio:

"Pennsboro, W. Va., August 25, 1923—The old theory that corporations have no souls was disproved here Tuesday evening when Oval Collins, of Near Oxford, was kicked by a horse and his skull badly fractured. Arrangements were made to bring him here, have train No. 1 stop and take him to Parkersburg. But a freight wreck just east of Pennsboro delayed the train several hours and Collin's condition was very serious. Assistant Superintendent James McClung, who chanced to be here, ordered a special train consisting of a locomotive and a caboose to be made up, without any financial arrangements, and hurried the young man to the hospital."

This not only shows the good will of the Railroad but it also displays the fine qualities and characteristics of a personality we all admire, namely that of James McClung.

Herewith is probably the first photograph of Mary Jo, the little daughter of the hap-

Newly elected officers of the Baltimore and Ohio Glenwood Social Club. For names, see notes

THE superior spring tempered, compensating balance used in all high-grade Illinois watches makes it possible to accurately adjust these movements to extreme temperatures

REGARDLESS OF EXTREME SUMMER WEATHER OR THE INTENSE HEAT FROM THE FIRE-BOX — ILLINOIS WATCHES CAN BE DEPENDED UPON TO KEEP ACCURATE TIME

Every Bunn Special

IS RUN FOR HOURS IN A SPECIALLY DESIGNED OVEN AT HIGH TEMPERATURES, AND TESTS REPEATED UNTIL EFFECT OF SUCH CHANGES ON THE BALANCE IS NEGLIGIBLE

ILLINOIS WATCH COMPANY
SPRINGFIELD

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Above: If Boilermaker J. P. Mahaffey had not been a firm believer in Safety First, he would have lost an eye instead of only a pair of goggles. The glass was struck by a chip of steel. Below: Mary Jo, twenty-two-months-old daughter of Yard Clerk Claude Reger picst man on the railroad, Claude Reger, yard clerk.

The accompanying photograph is of the goggles worn by J. B. Mahaffey, boilermaker at Grafton, while chipping engine flues preparatory to electric welding when a chip from flue struck goggles. You have shown, here, the damage done to the goggles, while Mr. Mahaffey's eyes are still two eyes today—all due to the fact that Safety First is always best. This goes to show that the Monongah Division employees listen to and believe in the advice and instructions issued by those who are interested in the welfare of mankind. We take no chances—Safety First for Us—always.

We have two new men in the round house office, "Ed" Ford and Lee Emery. These two are promising railroad men. "Ed" doesn't smoke and "Lee" is a great reader.

I know you will all be surprised to learn a little interesting news concerning the prosperity of our friend, Charles "Shot" Malone. His intended wife, he tells me, is little Nellie McGrady, our time clerk.

Clarksburg

Correspondent, V. A. Lvov

The wedding of Miss Jennie Mowrey and Mr. Guy Cecil Wilson was solemnized at the First Methodist Church on September 2, Rev. J. W. Engle officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Mowrey of this city. She had been in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio as bill clerk for seven years and is well known to employees here. An interesting feature about the wedding is that it took place on the forty-eighth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents.

Mr. Wilson has been a teacher of History and Economics in the Washington Irving High School for the last six years and will retain this position this year. The happy newlyweds spent their honeymoon at Niagara Falls. They have our heartiest congratulations and best wishes for the future.

Wheeling Division

Correspondent, MARIE SLATTERICK

Miss Carolyn Nolte, formerly stenographer in the Division Freight Agent's Office at Wheeling, was wedded on October 10 to Mr. Raymond Whelan, also of Wheeling. The wedding was one of much interest as both young people are well known in Wheeling and vicinity. The Baltimore and Ohio wishes them the best of success in their wedded life.

The date of the marriage of John R. Padden, secretary to the superintendent at Wheeling, to Miss Catherine Cartwright, also of Wheeling and a daughter of M. E. Cartwright, was October 31. Contrary to the cynics that are already married and their advice to would-be's, John takes a wonderfully bright outlook of the future. For instance, when we told him he had only a few more days of grace, John's reply was "Yes, and then I'll be floating in sublime happiness!!!"

Miss Mary Cunningham, Terminal Trainmaster's Office, has announced her engagement to Mr. Raymond Morningstar, also of Benwood. Congratulations, Mary!

Baggagemaster G. E. Glover on the Hoodie Bug, recently married a young lady from Maynard, Ohio. They say he's a regular heart-smasher!! As a matter of fact we know of several young ladies in Holloway, Ohio, whose hearts he nearly broke!

We're glad to print a picture of Mrs. Charles McElroy, wife of our general crossing foreman, holding her thoroughbred Pekinese, Winnie, at the McElroy Farm at Roseby Rock, W. Va. Thoroughbreds are Mrs. McElroy's greatest hobby and she has everything from a pet alligator to a parrot, including seven kinds of dogs and a Persian kitten.

The other picture is of Crossing Watchman Minter Shrader, who is employed at 43d Street, Wheeling, W. Va. Mr. Shrader has been in the service for about five years and the type of employee he is can easily be determined by a glance at the clean and neat conditions around his watchbox.

We regret to report the illness of John L. Cusack, correspondent at Benwood Shops. He has been confined to the Reynolds Memorial Hospital at Glendale, W. Va., for the past two weeks and his situation was very serious for a time. We hope for his speedy recovery as we miss his notes in the MAGAZINE and his cheery voice on the 'phone.

Lost, Strayed or Stolen

(1) Monica Peel's glasses. Which disappeared and no one knows where. Were left on Monica's desk in the Car Record Office at Wheeling and an hour later were missing. Anyone knowing of their whereabouts kindly get in touch with Miss Peel and receive her undying gratitude and appreciation.

(2) A notebook containing notes for the MAGAZINE. It disappeared out of your correspondent's desk and while we suspicion no one, at the same time we'd like to have the book returned and will promise not to print some of the things mentioned in the scribbles meant for notes. (As a matter of information this accounts for the shortage in news this month.)

On September 16, Alfred E. McMillan was promoted from master mechanic at Dayton, Ohio, to district master mechanic at Wheeling, West Virginia District.

Mr. McMillan is well known in the Wheeling District, his former home being at Benwood. He was born December 22, 1882 at Benwood and first entered the service on September 1, 1898 as crew caller but later entered his apprenticeship and became a machinist. He worked at Benwood for a number of years and was made

TWO GOOD HOUSEKEEPERS

Left. Mrs. Charles McElroy, wife of General Crossing Foreman, with her thoroughbred Pekinese "Winnie." Right: A clean crossing and its Watchman, Minter Shrader, Wheeling

This superb 110-piece Set, with initial in 2 places on every piece; decorated in blue and gold with gold covered handles, consists of:

- 12 Dinner Plates, 9 inches
- 12 Breakfast Plates, 7 in.
- 12 Soup Plates, 7 1/2 inches
- 12 Cups
- 12 Saucers
- 12 Cereal Dishes, 6 inches
- 12 Fruit Dishes, 6 1/2 inches
- 12 Individual Bread and Butter Plates, 6 1/2 in.
- 1 Platter, 13 1/2 inches
- 1 Platter, 11 1/2 inches

- 1 Celery Dish, 8 1/2 inches
- 1 Sauce Boat Tray, 7 1/2 inches
- 1 Butter Plate, 6 inches
- 1 Vegetable Dish, 10 1/2 inches, with lid (2 pieces)
- 1 Deep Bowl, 8 1/2 inches
- 1 Oval Baker, 9 inches
- 1 Small Deep Bowl, 6 inches
- 1 Gravy Boat, 7 1/2 inches
- 1 Creamer
- 1 Sugar Bowl with cover (2 pieces)

FREE

Brings 110-Pc. Martha Washington Blue and Gold Decorated Dinner Set

Send only $1.00 and Hartman will ship the complete set. Use it for 30 days on Free Trial. Then if not satisfied, send it back and Hartman will return your $1.00 and pay transportation charges both ways. If you keep it, TAKE NEARLY A YEAR TO PAY—a little every month.

Your Initial in Gold, Surrounded by Wreath of Gold, in 2 Places on Every Piece (Gold Covered Handles)

Beautiful Colonial Martha Washington shape. All handles are of solid design and are covered with gold. Every piece decorated with a rich gold band edge, a mazarine blue follow band and gold band edge, a mazarine blue follow band and gold band edge, a mazarine blue follow band and gold band edge.

2 pure gold initials in Old English design with gold wreaths. Beautiful white lustrous body. Guaranteed first quality; no "seconds."

FREE Beautiful Centerpiece, Six Dainty Doilies to Match and 6 Silver Plate Knives and Forks

We want to prove to 50,000 more customers that Hartman gives the best merchandise, biggest values and most liberal terms ever known. And to get these 50,000 new customers at once we send FREE a 36-inch "Indian Head" linene centerpiece; 6 dainty doilies, 12 inches in diameter, to match; 6 extra silver plated knives and 6 extra silver plated forks, fleur-de-lis pattern. Only 50,000 will be given FREE with the Dinner Sets—so act quick. Send the coupon—now!

Order No. 320EEMA21. Bargain Price, $32.85. Pay $1.00 Now. Balance $3.75 Monthly.

The Centerpiece, 6 Dainty Doilies to Match and 6 Silver Plate Knives and 6 Forks are FREE

FREE BARGAIN CATALOG FREE GIFTS

316 pages of the most astounding bargains in furniture, rugs, carpets, sewing machines, silverware—everything for the home; also farm machinery, etc.—all sold on our easy monthly payment terms and 30 days' free trial. Also explains Hartman's gift plan by which you receive many splendid articles such as glassware, dishes, silverware, tablecloths, napkins, etc., absolutely FREE with your purchases. Send a postal for this big free bargain catalog today.

"Let Hartman Feather YOUR Nest"

Hartman Furniture & Carpet Co. Dept. 5826 Chicago, Illinois

Enclosed find $1. Send me the 110-Piece Dinner Set No. 320EEMA21, Price $32.85, as described, and with it the centerpiece and 6 doilies; also 6 silver plate knives and 6 forks absolutely FREE. It is understood that if I am satisfied, I will send you $3.75 monthly until full price of Dinner Set, $32.85, is paid. Title remains with you until paid in full. If not satisfied, after 30 days' free trial, I will ship all goods back and you will refund my $1 and pay transportation charges both ways.

Name..... Occupation.....

R. F. D., Box No. or Street and No.....

Post Office..... State.....

If your shipping point is different from your post office, fill in line below

Send shipment to.....

Print Initial You Want Here

HARTMAN Furniture & Carpet Co. Dept. 5826 Copyright, 1923, by Hartman's, Chicago, Ill.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

enginehouse foreman on October 27, 1907. On March 1, 1913 he was transferred to Washington, Ind., and on September 16, 1913 was again transferred to Cincinnati, Ohio. On February 1, 1915, he was promoted to master mechanic at Washington, Ind., later was master mechanic at Newark, Ohio, and finally at Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. McMillan has many friends over the entire System and they all wish him success in his new position. The employees of the Mechanical Department on the Toledo Division presented Mr. McMillan with a fine gold watch and chain on the eve of his departure from Dayton as a token of their regard.

Basketball Challenge

The Wheeling Division Basketball Team would like to hear from other division teams. Wheeling has a good line-up, as follows:

NAME	POSITION	FROM
Steve Burke...	Forward	American Legion.
H. G. Schafer...	Center	American Legion.
Wm. Haythorne...	Guard	American Legion.
B. S. Lyons...	Guard	Cathedral High School.
A. J. Heimiller...	Forward	Cathedral High School.
A. V. Coxon...	Center	Union High School.
F. J. Slaterrick...	Guard	Cathedral High School.

The team has arranged to join the Industrial League in Wheeling and basketball fans will have a bright outlook this winter when some of our games are staged.

We wish to extend our sincerest sympathy to District Storekeeper W. C. Ware, whose mother died on October 11 at Covington, Ky., whence Mr. Ware was called on account of her illness.

Ohio River Sub-Division

Parkersburg, W. Va.

Correspondent, CHARLOTTE MARLOWE

In the passing of Charles E. McDougale, his wife has lost a devoted husband, his daughter a loving father, the Baltimore and Ohio a trusted and loyal employe, and Parkersburg a splendid citizen.

He had not been in the best of health for some time but was able to work every day, and his sudden demise came as a great shock to his family and friends. On the afternoon of September 17, while working at the old 5th Street Freight House, Mr. McDougale complained of not feeling well. He took a drink of ice water, which seemed to make him feel worse. He took a few steps away from his companions when he suddenly fell to the floor, expiring instantly. His death was due to cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. McDougale was born January 18, 1862, in Meigs County, Ohio. He lived at Long Bottom, Ohio, until a young man when he came to Parkersburg and was employed at the Baltimore and Ohio shops for several years. He later engaged in the restaurant business in Ashland, Ky. On October 16, 1892, he was married to Miss Mattie E. Layne of that city. In August, 1909, he returned to Parkersburg, and for the past eight years was again in the employ of the Railroad. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Clara Belle, and to them we tender our deepest sympathy.

Mr. McDougale was a devout member of the First Baptist Church, taking an active part in its affairs. A quartette from the choir of this church sang the favorite hymns of the departed at the funeral service, which was conducted at the family residence by the Rev. J. C. Killian. He was laid to rest in Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

Without ostentation, he lived the life of a Christian gentleman and those of us who came into daily contact with him, are better for having known him.

"Fellow-worker, friend,

Farewell

Soon our task will be completed,
Soon your footsteps we shall follow,
To the Islands of the Blessed,
To the Land of the Hereafter."

"Sam" Aptacker, one of the popular boys at the Freight House, was one of the spectators at the Dempsey-Firpo scrap, reserving a front seat, which we understand set him back a few days. "Sam" is a clever lightweight boxer himself, having appeared in some fast fights in the East and Canada, before coming to this city. He boxed at Shattuck Park, July 4, when the big Kiwanis celebration was staged. He now has some new punches up his sleeve, which he is anxious to try on somebody. He has been trying to get a match with "Dog" Jones ever since his return, but "Dog" says if he ever turns himself loose on "Sam" he will surely ruin him. We await further developments.

C. C. Phillips, the boy wonder, is some little old hunter. On October 11, after arranging for some time off, he bedecked himself in the regulation khaki, bid his wife and children goodbye, and started out to find big game. He was quite a noble figure as he trudged down into Lubeck, sling over his shoulder and canteen at his side, in the most approved fashion. Just as he was climbing the rail fence to a wooded dell, a little black animal dashed out at him. Did he run? You couldn't see him for dust. The pretty little animal gave chase, but fleet-foot out-distanced it, having to run, however, a distance of five miles to the South Side. Entering a store he purchased half a dozen rabbits, called it a day, and returned to the bosom of his family.

Will Conductor Reed explain why the 2537 is too much for the crew?

S. S. Johnson is busier now than the proverbial little busy bee, spotting high joints and low centers for ballasting for winter weather. Somebody page Dr. Lawler before he works himself to death.

Harry Creel, assigned to position of assistant O. S. & D. clerk, Freight House. Go to it, Harry, good luck!

"Sunshine" Harrison is nursing a nice, friendly boil on his knee. He says he would much rather it would be something else.

E. W. Miller, the hero of many a hard-fought battle when association football was in vogue, is now content to work at his claim papers in the Agent's Office, and bask in the glory of his up and coming son, Warren, a local pigskin warrior. On October 6, in the game between Parkersburg High and St. Mary's High at the High School Stadium, Miller made a drop kick for 30 yards square between the uprights for a field goal, which added three points to the Big Reds' score.

The plaudits he received for his really remarkable play were enough to satisfy even his insatiable "Dad."

"The Old Home Town!" Yes, nearly all of us see it daily in the Sentinel, but how many of us have compared some of our own fellow workers with the characters portrayed in Mr. Stanley's interesting comic? Well, here are a few characters in the Low Yards that we think make a great contrast—The boy who is continually having trouble with his bicycle—"Joe" Murphy. John Twiddle, the inventor—"Ted" Penner—and Marshall Otey Walker reminds us of Swartz the 2nd trick caller; also the two gentlemen who are hard of hearing—Frank Taylor and "Joe" Ross. Oh, yes, we almost forgot Mr. Williams' "Out our Way." Wouldn't we like to see a certain day yardmaster try to get inside the old crossing watchman's shanty?

"Whitie" Reeves evidently doesn't think much of "Tom" Swain's hair tonic, as the other day when "pop" was coming along "Whitie" asked him how the tonic was working, and "Tom" immediately replied that it was making his hair grow, whereupon "Whitie" asked him "which one?"

The Low Side scale men are wearing broad smiles lately, the reason being that the scales in that yard are being rebuilt under the supervision of Mr. Cushman. They know the ability of this gentleman when it comes to railroad scales. They also know that when the scales are ready for service they will have one of the best on the System.

B. L. Wagoner is now working the Relief Scale position. Welcome to our ranks, "Bernie."

Following his usual custom, Conductor Ira Burd armed himself with his trusty gat and scared all the rabbits out of Wood County the first day the season opened.

George Moore, Huntington, has been granted a 30 days' leave of absence, and we understand will include Parkersburg in his itinerary. They all come this way. Step around to the offices, George, and shake hands.

WANTED: A good, strong boy to keep up a coal fire for Operator C. C. South at Sistersville. Coal is piled within ten feet of the stove. Apply at once.

AT PARKERSBURG, W. VA.

Left: Mrs. Donald Blue. Center: the late Charles E. McDougale. Right: Warren, son of Claim Clerk E. W. Miller

Announcement

Elgin establishes still higher authority in Professional Timekeeping for the Railroad Man.

The New "B.W. Raymond" —21 Jewels

IMPORTANT refinements in watchmaking have taken shape in the Elgin laboratories.

These make for finer construction—closer rating—higher professional standards in timekeeping. You will find them all in the new "B. W. Raymond."

Furthermore, it has the great advantage of each watch being cased and carefully timed in its individual case—specially constructed for railroad use.

Ask your jeweler to show you this new complete Elgin Professional timekeeper for railroad men.

ELGIN

The Professional Timekeeper

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH COMPANY, ELGIN, U. S. A.

WANTED: F. R. Suter, agent at Paden City, either to pass the cigars, or stop the report that he is married.

A sweet young maid was Beatrice Dye
With ever a laugh, but never a sigh,
Until she became Don's little wife.
Now Trix will be "Blue" for the rest of her life.

On October 17, at the home of the bride, occurred the wedding of Miss Beatrice Lohr Dye and Mr. Donald Blue. Just before the ceremony Miss Ruth Clark sang "At Dawn-ing." The bride attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Dye, entered the living room as Miss Cornelia Schauwecker played the Lohengrin Wedding March, where they were met by the groom and his best man, Mr. Walter Meagle, of Marietta. The bride was attired in a silver gray brocaded crepe dress, grey suede slippers and hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of Aaron Ward roses and valley lillies. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. A. Dye, the bride's uncle. After an informal reception, the couple left on an extended motor trip, and upon their return will reside in Marietta, where the groom holds a position with the Citizens National Bank. The bride entered the service December 12, 1917, and at the time of her resignation was a valued clerk in the office of Car Foreman Prince, Low Side. She was a graduate of P. H. S., Class '17, and accomplished along various lines. We are not acquainted with Mr. Blue, but know that he must be a man of discriminating taste, and take this opportunity to congratulate him.

In a recent communication from the correspondent at Marietta he intimated that that town was so very far ahead of Parkersburg that we couldn't see them for dust, and invited your correspondent to come up and watch their smoke. It would appear that he has some grounds for his remarks when the Parkersburg boys lay back on their oars, so to speak, and let a Marietta boy walk away with a girl like Beatrice. A public apology to you, Mr. Steen for calling Marietta a "sleepy old town." At any rate the inhabitants are certainly wide awake!

Twice a month George Tidd sings this refrain
"When, oh when, is payday again?"

Cashier Cooper, Sistersville, has set up his semi-annual howl about the weather. According to Weather Man Cooper, we're going to have a very hard winter. Ain't that tough?

Yard Conductor J. T. Ferrell, who has been on the sick list, is now able to be out, and we hope will be able to resume duty soon.

Our old friend "Joe" Ruth, 2nd trick operator, has just completed remodeling his home on Murdoch Avenue, including an electric light on his back porch to discourage the bold bad burglars who are infesting our village.

George Drechsler, whose headquarters were formerly in Parkersburg, now located in Sandusky, Ohio, was seen by some of our brighteyed ones loitering about the main streets of the city a few weeks ago. They report he was handsome and well groomed as ever. We can't imagine what brought him back to patrol Market Street unless it was that he couldn't keep away from his old side-kick H. H. Reum. Homesick, was you George?

This has almost slipped by without being mentioned. Some time ago W. W. Taylor and "Joe" Kelly decided to take a little "spin" and they headed for historic Marietta. "Winnie" was driving and being rather sleepy decided to take a little nap. Of course, Brother "Joe" didn't know "Winnie" was taking a "cat nap" until the Paige started for the ditch. When "Winnie" finally awoke they were out in a field. On coming to himself, "Winnie" expressed himself thusly—"Well "Joe," are we there?"

No, "Jack," the flagman doesn't need a box of matches to light his fuses with.

Charleston Division

Correspondent, C. W. Dixon

"Study to show thyself approved."

The Apostle Paul said that to the early Christians, and he referred to the study of the Holy Scriptures, that they might by the study of them learn the things that would enable them to meet the approval of Almighty God. However, the phrase can be taken out of this original setting and applied to the individual in his or her everyday life. Nothing amounts to much if it does not require a certain amount of study, and if the thing does amount to something in your opinion, give it a little study, and if you find it then worth while, why give it more study that by and by you may be in position to use that thing in such a way that you will truly

HIGH LIGHTS OF THE CHARLESTON DIVISION

The famous Essex Coach acquired by Chief Clerk W. H. Schide, in which he recently started (?) for Baltimore. His failure to take his friends in Baltimore for a ride indicates that perhaps the rumor that he left his car in Cumberland and continued his trip via the only reliable route—Baltimore and Ohio—is true. His nephew and niece appear in the photograph. In the oval: Lady Van Mar, pedigree and registered, offspring of "Hard Cash" (Good name—this is what it cost its owner, Mr. Schide)

THE CHARLESTON DIVISION CORRESPONDENT SAYS:

In the cab of engine you will find John, son of General Car Foreman Garber. In one of the tents on the White River, near Seymour, Ind., is Chief Clerk to Division Accountant Cash McOsker enjoying his vacation, while his wife sits at home and sings "Hubby's gone to the country." Our friend in the lower left photograph is Assistant Shop Clerk I. T. Gross, Gassaway and the happy family are Mrs. J. R. Hudkins, her baby daughter and Miss Ulderich stand approved in the eyes of those who observe your work.

On September 29 there was broadcast over the division the remarks made by Mr. Cole, chief clerk to assistant comptroller, before the Baltimore Division Freight Claim Prevention Committee at their August meeting. In his remarks he states that in many ways the agent is the most important man in railroad service, and who would deny his statement. The agent who acknowledges the truth of this statement and who deals with the public in that light, actually demonstrates that it is so. Agents will do well to consider carefully all that Mr. Cole has said and as each agent comes to a full realization of all that is expected of him, he will find that he has a man's job ahead of him to measure up fully to the standard that has been set. If any of our agents have passed lightly over Superintendent's Circular No. 241 of September 29, they are earnestly requested to dig it up and read over carefully the second paragraph, mentally filming themselves as they do so. How do you see yourself? Do you measure up favorably? Are you satisfied with yourself?

At last we have some Gassaway Notes

W. M. Longwell, round house clerk at Gassaway, who has been employed at that point for a number of years, was recently taken to a hospital for treatment. We are glad to say that at the present writing he is back home and doing nicely.

I. T. Gross, whose picture appears in this issue, is our new assistant shop clerk at Gassaway, having been recently transferred to that point to fill vacancy made by the resignation of Arthur Longwell, who is enrolled at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va.

Quite a number of the shop men from Gassaway attended the banquet at Wheeling, September 26, which was given in honor of J. F. Bowden, former district master mechanic.

Miss Mary Helen Thompson, Charleston, has accepted the position as secretary to the assistant superintendent at Gassaway. The Gassaway people say they are glad to have Miss Thompson with them.

Some weeks ago Secretary H. S. Bickel, of the Y. M. C. A. at Gassaway, inaugurated a new feature in connection with that popular institution. A restaurant and eating room was opened and from all we hear it is satisfactory in every way. When in Gassaway stop at the "Y", for you are always welcome.

We are glad to show in these columns, picture of Mrs. J. R. Hudkins, her little daughter, and Miss Ulderich, all of Gassaway.

Also glad to show picture of John, small son of General Car Foreman F. M. Garber of Gassaway.

AT GALLOWAY-FRIES CELEBRATION

Left to right: District Freight Agent J. E. Garbesi, Jr., Huntington; Division Freight Agent R. E. Barnhart, Parkersburg; Division Freight Agent F. H. Fowler, Charleston

"I have never seen one of them wear out"

That is what a railroad man said recently who had carried a Naugahyde bag for many years. And his testimony is borne out by many others.

Men who demand real wear from their luggage—men who carry a bag not just once in a while, but year in, year out, regularly—these are the men who use Naugahydes.

Dampness can't affect them, heat can't harm them. And there are no stitches to tear, no rivets to come loose. Seams, corners and reinforcements are vulcanized into a single piece. Unexcelled in appearance, they hold their good looks in spite of the hardest treatment. No wonder Naugahyde outlasts all ordinary bags!

Naugahyde bags are made with a handsome black grain finish, English check lining and solid brass fittings of the finest quality. Ask your dealer about them. If he cannot supply you immediately, write directly to us. Made in three sizes—16 inch, 18 inch, and 20 inch.

United States Rubber Company

1790 Broadway, New York City

TRADE MARK

NAUGAHYDE BAGS

Last Words of Famous and Infamous Men

General Wolfe: "Now God be praised, I die happy."

General Montcalm: "So much the better, I shall not live to see the surrender of Quebec."

Nathan Hale: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Dwight L. Moody: "This is my coronation day."

Careless Motorist: "I thought I could beat that train over the crossing."

We are showing a camping scene on the White River near Seymour, Indiana. This is where Chief Clerk McOsker, Division Accountant's force, spent his vacation.

Frank Filosofy

Don't compliment yourself too much on your own efforts; the efforts are only the blossoms; the results obtained are the fruits. How can one eat apples from the tree when he has used the blossoms to make bouquets.

Don't try to be what you are not. There is no one in the world just like your own natural self, and if you are not yourself no such person as you will ever be known.

To say of a man "He is worth thousands of dollars," is not to mean that he has spent thousands of dollars. It means he has kept them.

The Epitaph of a Man Who Was But is Not

"Here lies the body of the father of eight
He saw the passenger train but not the freight."

Mary, Mary, Not So Contrary

Mary is a little girl
Who works for the B. & O.,
And when one sees her smiling face
One has to say "Hello."

She always stops at Hughie's store
Each evening going home,
To get herself a chocolate bar
And her daily ice cream cone.

—Anonymous

Yes, We Have No Vacancy Yet

Why does everyone seem sad
In the Weston offices today?
Because there is a vacancy
Why, Sylvia is away.

To see that vacant desk
And to wonder, is to fear
If she will ever, ever return
To fill her place so dear.

CLEVELANDERS IN THE FAR WEST

Left: Eddie Ackerman taking things easy (as usual) in Denver. Right: Luther King, joy riding near Colorado Springs

We can only hope for the best
And pray she will come back,
But we know not what the future holds
When she sees this Mr. Platt.

We almost hope he will not like
Bobbed hair, or May Dover cheeks,
And then our Sylvia will be back
At the end of a couple weeks.

—Anonymous

Western Lines

Cincinnati Terminals

Ivorydale, Ohio

Our popular locomotive inspector, Fred Nolte, has been called for jury duty in Cincinnati. Fred is a handy lad at most anything he's needed for.

Lewis Henneberry, Back Shop forces, is making quite a mark in local pugilistic circles among the 135 pounders, having won quite a few nice decisions this past summer.

John Mullinix is looking mighty fit since his surgical operation of last summer. These Kentucky boys have lots of reserve pep in them.

Our Own Seven Wonders

Mike Cavanaugh's watch
Charles Arnold's Maxwell
John Conrad's wireless outfit
John Zureick's figure
Charlie Everly's new job
Norb Green's LACKOFAT
Charlie Listerman himself

Our cheery time clerk, "Bob" Gabriel, was glad he didn't own a Rolls-Royce when the tax collector found out about his Ford coupe.

It is with great pleasure that we announce the marriage of Edward McGinnis, short record clerk at 5th and Baymiller, to Miss Edith Muethler, September 12, 1923. After the wedding the happy couple left for a short stay at Niagara Falls. All wish the bride and groom a pleasant and prosperous married life.

Traffic Department—Cleveland

Correspondent, A. R. STROME

The First Aid Instruction Car of the American Red Cross, visited Cleveland on September 21 and 22. Lectures on "First Aid" were given by lecturers traveling with the car.

On September 19, the Akron Railroads Superintendents' Association made a "Gondola Inspection Tour" of the Akron Terminals, following which a banquet was served by the Akron Transportation Club.

D. F. Stevens, general superintendent; J. C. Kimes, assistant general freight agent and J. W. Freeland, freight representative, together with a number of off line officials from Cleveland, were in attendance.

Dona'd and Ruth, children of Chief Clerk Robert Robinson, Hazelton

Paul Louis, age 4 months, son of Yard master and Mrs. O. L. Murphy, Newcastle, Pa. He was given honorable mention recently at the baby show held at Cascade Park, under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus

C. H. Groninger, chief clerk in Division Freight Office, Akron, and Miss Florence Stahlnecker, formerly in Terminal Agent's Office, Cleveland, were the principal participants in a pretty wedding at the Church of Our Savior in Akron on Saturday, September 22.

Immediately after the ceremony, C. M. Groninger, brother of the groom, gave a reception to the guests at the Troubadour Club. Following the reception the bride and groom left on No. 10 for Philadelphia and New York, the guests accompanying them to the train and giving them a send-off befitting to the occasion.

The balance of the evening was spent in dancing at the Burns Club.

Akron Division

Correspondent, A. C. HARRIS

A romance of school days finally ended in the marriage of Rhe Bradshaw and L. E. Martin, assistant engineer on the Akron Division. Mrs. Martin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bradshaw of Lafayette, Ind., and Mr. Martin will be remembered through his connection with the Cost Engineer's Office force at Baltimore, in the Office of the Engineer Maintenance of Way at Cincinnati and now employed as assistant engineer on the Akron Division Corps. The event was planned to take place during the vacation period of Mr. Martin and this also made the trip to Denver and points in the east fit in nicely with the vacation plan. The young couple are now located in their new home at Akron.

Miss Tess Heller has returned to duty after a serious illness that kept her off the job for about two months. Tess is just as "sassy" as ever, if not quite so fat.

George E. Farr, former secretary to superintendent at Akron, and previously employed in Mr. Robinson's Office at Baltimore and with general superintendent at Pittsburgh, is now "back on the farm." He reports that he is making good and likes his little farm on Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Track Foreman V. I. Motter, employed at Nova, Ohio, was struck and killed by passenger train while on duty. Mr. Motter had been in service many years and was widely known throughout the west end. The fact that the accident occurred through failure of Mr. Motter to step clear of east-bound track while train was passing west-bound makes the accident all the more regrettable.

The sympathy of friends and fellow employees is extended to Train Dispatcher George Sarff and Mrs. Sarff in their sorrow due to death of their infant son Kenneth.

Lest we forget. Increased car miles is a matter of prime importance, in fact a necessity, if we are to make a good showing.

We all know the essentials—prompt unloading of cars—prompt movement through yards—disposing of reconsigned cars without delay, and all the other items to keep cars moving, but are we doing our part of the job?

Haselton, Ohio

Correspondent, LEE RICHARDS

The yard force enjoyed the chocolates passed out by Miss May Kelly, but not the mystery that surrounds the case. Captain of Police Johnson may be called upon to unravel this case.

Fireman B. F. Garlich, injured sometime ago, is progressing nicely and will probably be back in the harness soon.

The sick list has increased enormously among the employees in the Youngstown District and unless conditions improve, it may be necessary to petition the Board of Health to close the race track near Youngstown.

Engineer C. A. Biddle has surprised himself and friends by purchasing or finding a sedan of a popular make produced in Detroit. Biddle can drop from an engine seat and look at the water or fire, but has not yet learned the trick of checking up gas while making 40 miles per.

It is understood that motor car salesmen for some time have been endeavoring to interest General Yard Master Updegraph in the purchase of a car for the family enjoyment, etc., but "Red" is a hard man to get started. The case is not hopeless and evidently his interest has been aroused to a very slight degree—at any rate he got a Star.

Pictures are of Ruth and Donald, children of Second Trick Chief Clerk Robert Robinson.

Your correspondent expects to spend October 26 and 27 in Baltimore at the Conference of all the correspondents of the Magazine. Full report later!

PUGH BROS. JEWELRY COMPANY

211 House Building
Pittsburgh, Pa.

5410 2nd Avenue
Glenwood, Pa.

14½ Hipp Arcade
Youngstown, Ohio

OFFICIAL RAILROAD WATCH INSPECTORS

Buy Your Christmas Gifts Early and Pay Next Year

WE have the largest selection of gentlemen's fancy dress watches that can be found anywhere; also ladies' bracelet watches in White and Green Gold. In all the new shapes and design of cases.

Our stock consists of American-made watches only. Just send us your name and address and we will explain our dignified partial payment plan.

Gentlemen's
Watches
from $18.00 up

Ladies'
Bracelet
Watches
from $20.00 up

Name .....

Address .....

Cut out and mail to any of our stores

Cleveland Terminal

Correspondent, H. B. SMITH

To Miss Laetitia Singleton, Cashier's Office, we wish to express our sincere sympathy in her hour of bereavement in the loss of her sister, Angela.

Miss Mary Joyce, Cashier's Office, leaves us with best wishes for as few troubles as possible, recently having announced her marriage to E. L. Kimes, a former employee of the same department and a very likeable boy. It is rumored that the announcement was kept secret for several months to prove that a woman can keep a secret.

Miss Hattie Potter has recently been telling barber shop yarns, and it looks like another delayed announcement. How about it, Hattie? Of course, the silence of "Jose" Maroney doesn't mean that her announcement would be a surprise.

"Art" Krogg and "Pat" Carnahan recently organized the "High Stepper's Orchestra," but to date we haven't heard of any offers for a road tour except their being required to walk home on their opening night, no funds being available. Professional critics say this should mean encouragement, as artists frequently miss meals and get used to it.

Among a few happy events of "Tom" O'Hara's life, after years of railroading, was the recent arrival of an eight pound boy and you can't blame him for that happy smile from morning to night.

Frank Krammer's 35 years' railroad seniority counted for nothing when entertaining a party of guests at the Bamboo Gardens recently. Modern culture and society entertaining did not meet with his approval and the management refused to change the order of the environment. "Joe" says that Frank has decided on a farm house for the next entertainment.

"Joe" Bailey hasn't increased his crop of hair any since moving from Medina to Cleveland, but in Alice he admits having found a wonderful pal.

Adjoining these notes will be found a picture of the inside circle and turn table at the Cleveland Round House. By enforcing the rule, "A place for everything and everything in its place," you can readily see that house cleaning days are not necessary at this place.

The local welfare association has been ably directed by the Misses Louis Bayonett and Gene Carey, and R. B. McGinley, since their election to office. At this time they are working hard on a play for the coming season "Dead but not buried, or walking through sleepy hollow." With the present cast it promises to be a huge success.

Check-weighing by the Cleveland station force, as shown by the results for the month of September, has come back so strong that the station is again on the map and introduces Tallyman R. G. Wolfe with high honors, having $111.35 to his credit for one month, and Tallyman J. J. Reese second with $53.92. With 18 employees participating, including substations and all warehousemen, receiving clerks, delivery clerks and tallymen, the station shows a credit for the month of $420.68 as the result of check weighing and $154.24 account of reclassification.

We are all glad to hear that Mrs. W. G. Dee, wife of the foreman at Lake Warehouse, is again in good health.

Little is known or heard from Foreman A. D. Thompson, Fruit Yard at Cleveland, but his attentive ear and desire for action, as well as his purpose to promote the interests of our railroad, have resulted in a tenant being obtained for our former Seneca Street freight house building, and business of 25 carloads weekly is in sight from Chicago to be handled there. New business surely is more attractive than a building closed and boarded up and full of cob-webs.

Messrs. Duncan, Gensley and Littell represented Cleveland at the Begien Dinner recently held at Cincinnati. It was reported as a very enjoyable event and it is unfortunate that the day was partly spoiled for Duncan and Littell account of Gensley being reported missing. We wonder what could be the attraction—he is not a traveling salesman.

Next month there will appear a paper in the MAGAZINE, subject "How Well the Girls Like Davidson."

Newark Division

Correspondent, B. A. OATMAN

We are sorry to hear that Miss Edith Roach, correspondent at Freight House, Columbus, Ohio, is very ill at this time. We will miss her contribution to the MAGAZINE for November; this will be the first time Miss Roach has failed to contribute. We wish her a speedy recovery.

In the group of photographs this month you will find OUR TOM (on the pay rolls as Thomas W. Johnson) whose title is clerk, but whose duties have to do with service cards for the shops, Relief Department matters, service records, etc.

One picture shows "Tom" looking over his recently acquired tract of land which he is having drilled for oil and gas, the other showing "Tom" at the boiler just installed at one of his wells. You will note his smile,

ON THE NEWARK DIVISION

Above, left: Clerk T. W. Johnson. Center: Hostler Curt C. Mason and his friend Otto Bryan. Clerk T. W. Johnson. Below: Newark Division Accounting Department. For names see Newark Division notes

SMILES AROUND THE CLEVELAND TERMINAL

1. Art Becker and his gang at his cottage on Lake Erie. 2. Of course they were happy when our Mary and Agnes were there. 3. A full house at Cleveland. 4. Ready to start a busy day at Lake Avenue Shop: Road Foreman W. G. Smith, Boiler Foreman G. Duffy, Clerk E. J. Jindra and Round House Foreman H. L. Fleming. 5. Pat Carnahan, Bud Mathews and Catherine Krogg due to the progress being made in drilling and the belief that his oil will soon be on the market.

SAY! DID YOU NOTICE THAT THE WESTERN LINES CAPTURED FIRST PLACE AGAIN IN THE CAMPAIGN FOR CAR MILES? STAYING QUALITIES COUNT. THAT IS SURE.

In our group of photographs, you will note a good likeness of Hostler "Curt" C. Mason, Newark Shops, together with his friend "Otto" Bryan.

These two men were brought together through an operation on Mr. Bryan which necessitated the transfusion of blood. Mr. Mason volunteered and was gladly accepted by the physician. Brotherly love predominates in a case of this kind and Mr. Bryan certainly is grateful for the help that Mr. Mason has been to him in regaining his health.

WE CONTINUE READING DAILY REPORTS OF ACCIDENTS AT ROAD CROSSINGS. PERHAPS IT IS DUE TO SOME EXTENT TO THE PARTIES INVOLVED NOT HAVING RECEIVED

GOOD ADVICE FROM THE PROPER PERSON. WHEREVER YOU HAVE A CHANCE, DO NOT FAIL TO DO YOUR PART IN KEEPING THE OTHER FELLOW OUT OF TROUBLE.

Accounting Department
Correspondent, R. T. GEORGE

Things we would like to see! Willard Mayer with a pencil, eraser and a cigarette. "Mose" Floyd with a "chew." Frank Cole without his vest. "Bill" Dowden without his camera. "Tom" Snyder without an argument. "Tommie" Faulds without a mustache.

Ralph Cook's wife wonders why Ralph does not go out in the evenings any more, but Ralph is too busy with his Radio trying to pick up "Here's how" from Havana.

The accompanying photograph is of the Newark Division Accounting force, taken at Newark, October 5. This is the only "all male" accounting force on the entire System.

Reading from left to right: First row; C. A. Budd, R. T. George, M. F. Floyd,

I. A. Richmer, H. L. Kent, L. W. Lucas, A. R. Francis, W. Mayer. Back row, standing; T. M. Brooks, E. Merchland, "Don" Jordon, John Hiskey, O. H. Reichert, J. H. Dickerson, Oscar Hunt, Evan Lloyd, Jas. Johnston (division accountant), B. N. Wells, E. S. Rupp (chief clerk), Chas. Wallace, G. W. Rickrick, O. J. Payne, L. J. Savey, W. R. Totten, F. E. Cole, Ralph Cook, F. R. Varner, Wm. Dowden and O. C. Reel. This is the entire force, with the exception of Thos. Faulds, "Tom" Snyder and J. A. Johns, who were out of town.

This Man is Sure of His Job

HE saw the handwriting on the wall. Men in his department were being dropped right and left. He might have been the next to go but for a familiar coupon which he saw one day in a magazine. He marked it, and mailed it to Scranton.

Then one day his employer called him in.

"Young man," he said, "I have just received a letter from the International Correspondence Schools telling me you have enrolled and have received a mark of 93 for your first lesson.

"I don't mind saying that this letter has saved your job. I had you on the list of men to be dropped. But I'm going to keep you now. The man who thinks enough of his future to study his job is the kind of a man we want around here."

HOW about you? Are you sitting on the anxious bench wondering if you will be the next to go? Or are you training yourself so that you will not only be sure of your present job but will be ready for the job ahead?

No matter where you live, the I. C. S. will come to you. No matter how limited your previous education, the simply-written, wonderfully-illustrated I. C. S. textbooks make it easy to learn. No matter what career you may choose, some one of the 300 I. C. S. Courses will surely suit your needs.

This is all we ask: Without cost or obligation, put it up to us to prove how we can help you. Just mark and mail this coupon. Today is best.

TEAR OUT HERE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS BOX 8477-C SCRANTON, PA.

Explain, without obligating me, how I can qualify for the position, or in the subject, before which I mark X.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> Pharmacy                  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Locomotive Fireman       | <input type="checkbox"/> TRAFFICMANAGER            |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Engineer       | <input type="checkbox"/> BOOKKEEPER                |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Fireman        | <input type="checkbox"/> Cost Accountant           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Inspector      | <input type="checkbox"/> BUSINESS MANAGEMENT       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Repairman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary         |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Round House Foreman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Business Correspondent    |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Trainmen and Carmen      | <input type="checkbox"/> Stenographer and Typist   |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Conductor        | <input type="checkbox"/> Good English              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> MECHANICAL ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> SALESMANSHIP              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping    | <input type="checkbox"/> ADVERTISING               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice    | <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Toolmaker                | <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL SERVICE             |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Boiler Maker or Designer | <input type="checkbox"/> ELECTRICAL ENGINEER       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating     | <input type="checkbox"/> Electrician               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL ENGINEER           | <input type="checkbox"/> Electric Wiring           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> R. R. Constructing       | <input type="checkbox"/> Elec. Lighting & Railways |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bridge Engineer          | <input type="checkbox"/> Telegraph Engineer        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> ARCHITECT                | <input type="checkbox"/> Telephone Work            |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman  | <input type="checkbox"/> Mining Engineer           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading       | <input type="checkbox"/> Stationary Engineer       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder   | <input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engines          |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer      | <input type="checkbox"/> AUTOMOBILES               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder         | <input type="checkbox"/> AGRICULTURE               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CHEMIST                  | <input type="checkbox"/> Railwayaling              |
|   | <input type="checkbox"/> RADIO                     |

Name _____
Present Occupation _____ Employed By _____ 6-26-22
Street and No. _____
City _____ State _____
Canadians may send this coupon to International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Ltd., Montreal, Canada

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Mansfield, Ohio

Correspondent, C. R. STONE

W. O. Stockwell, formerly agent at Mansfield, is now yard master, vice L. L. Kerr, who was promoted to Columbus, Ohio.

We were all sorry to see "Lou" go and wish him success in his new line of duties. We are glad "Good Old Stock" is still to be with us, and that he will make good in his new vocation goes without saying. Switch 'em around, "Stock!" We are with you!

F. A. Hanneman, acting agent, vice W. Stockwell, is a good fellow and a hard worker. We trust that he will remain with us and wish him all success possible.

Superintendent H. G. Kruse was in the city recently calling on the Manufacturer's Club in relation to our various new improvements to be completed in Mansfield in the near future. We wish someone would invent a light that we can use to work with that does not burn gas. The lights in the winter time go up and down according to the pressure of gas and we don't know whether we are on a Roller Coaster at the Point or trying to bill out sheet bar after some one has taken billing with a number six H. venus pencil. May the time soon come when we will say "light" and there will be "LIGHT."

The work on the team tracks south of the Freight House is now completed and we are spotting an average of eighteen cars for our various patrons that are entitled to team track delivery. This extra team track makes a great difference to the Baltimore and Ohio service at Mansfield and enables us to place cars to be unloaded at once thereby relieving the cars and helping keep the car situation in hand.

The stork paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bird—a nice baby girl whose name is Mary Elizabeth. Mr. Bird is the popular yard conductor at Mansfield. Congratulations, Amsey. Thanks for the treat!

The CROSSCROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY Campaign is still on and we trust that it will not be in vain. We often wonder why the cities and villages do not pass an ordinance compelling all vehicles to stop before crossing over any railroad crossing, just the same as street cars. That would eliminate a great many accidents. With the ever increasing number of automobiles it becomes a serious problem and is one that cannot be treated lightly. Let's obey those rules ourselves and protect our loved ones.

Well, summer is gone and fall is now playing the leading role and with Jack Frost in sight the idea of gathering Chesnuts, Walnuts and Hickory nuts, etc., we plan to visit the various woods and explore. There is nothing like the fall for fine motoring and we are glad to be out to see the great change in nature from green fields and leaves to golden brown and red. Some scenes along the right of way are very beautiful and one misses a great enjoyment not to see them.

We all have read the great time that was had at the Galloway-Fries Day held at Cincinnati, Ohio on August 23, and the writer regrets that he was unable to attend. But I am sure that those of us who were fortunate enough to arrange our plans to attend and see these two gentlemen honored will understand the phrase "Is the game worth the candle."

Mr. Galloway and Mr. Fries both having started at the bottom of the ladder, working their way up to Vice-Presidents have again demonstrated that "As Ye Sow That shall Ye Also Reap." After sowing 40 and 42 years, respectively, of hard work and helpful teaching to their associates, they are reaping the harvest of work well done and appreciated by all.

They have shown us the way is hard and sometimes very rough, but the reward is there if we but fight for it.

May these gentlemen remain with us and we will enjoy their great experience and they will lead us on to victory.

Columbus, Ohio

Correspondent, R. KENNETT

Assistant Correspondent, EDITH ROACH

Glad to see Operator Aumiller back on the job after a month's absence because of injuries.

Glad to hear that Operator Miller, B. R. Tower, is improving in health. We understand that he will soon be able to resume duty.

L. L. Kerr, former yard master at Mansfield, has been appointed general yard master at Columbus, vice acting general yard master Hukill, who has returned to the train service. Sorry to see "Bill That's-what-I-like-about-you" go, but we welcome our new general yard master and wish him success in his new position.

Trainmaster Broughton recently moved into the new residence which has just been completed.

We understand Conductor C. E. Cowan is slowly improving in health after several weeks' illness, and we hope to see him back among us in the near future.

The Railroad Bowling League has opened its season at the Front Street Alleys. The league consists of eight teams representing the different railroads in the city, the Baltimore and Ohio team being captained by Operator Kennett. To date they have made a flying start, having won 10 out of 12 games bowled and holding first place in the league.

The following employees report a splendid time at the opening of the hunting season—Jenkins, Savely, Hauck, Hare, Duffy and myself.

Marietta, Ohio.

Correspondent, G. R. STEEN

Car Inspector G. A. Edwards has purchased a new Star roadster. Want to watch 'er George, as some stars shoot.

Tallyman A. J. Bonzell has purchased a new Chevrolet touring car. "Jack" says she is some car, and that the only trouble he has had so far is a punctured tire. He accuses Trucker Charles Mathews of driving a 60 penny spike into it, for nearly running over him the other day.

Ohio Division

Correspondent, A. E. ERICH

An autoist is always trying to get "MORE MILES" out of tires, "gas" and oil. Why not try "MORE MILES PER CAR PER DAY" for railroad cars. INCREASE CAR MILES.

W. E. Stanton has been placed as first trick operator at Hamden, and R. T. Watkins in Mr. Stanton's old trick at Dundas.

On September 14 Charles E. Botkin, clerk to car foreman, asked permission to lay off for the day. At 1:32 p. m. he called up the office and announced the arrival of a son, eight and one-half pounds. They named him John James, after his two grandfathers. "Grandpa Jim" Botkin, foreman, Local Freight House, says, "He will make the Baltimore and Ohio a good man some day." "Jim" should know; he has been at the freight house since 1892, and has seen many new men start work. Of course "Papa Botkin" is too busy smiling to say much of anything. Congratulations!

Another new railroader. Born to Brake-man and Mrs. Homer Smith a seven and one-half pound son. He has been named Homer Smith, Jr.

SAVE FUEL. A fireman can save his salary each trip by strict economy in firing. Black smoke and pop valve open show fuel wasted. SAVE FUEL!

A baby boy arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Young during the middle of September. Mr. Young is a triple valve repairer in the Chillicothe shops. Congratulations!

Left: seated, Foreman F. M. Nolder, Section 42, Westboro, Ohio; standing, Foreman W. W. Nolder, Section 44, Hillsboro, Ohio. Right: On Section 42, near Westboro

Ticket Clerk C. L. Baker, Dover, Ohio, and two friends

Machinist Frank Minch, while riding on train No. 1 recently, had as his seat companion a clergyman, who had been on the train for some distance before it reached Chillicothe, and was going through. During the conversation the minister made special mention of the exceptionally smooth handling of Baltimore and Ohio trains, and called particular attention to this train, stating that on the entire trip he had not felt a jerk or jar. He spoke highly of the engineers. Engineers W. Williams and P. Rhulman handled train No. 1, on the Parkersburg and Chillicothe sub-divisions respectively.

Carlisle L. Miller has accepted a position as helper in the Stores Department.

John J. Black, supply car storekeeper, took unto himself a wife. This happened on September 26. They spent a few days honeymoon in Cincinnati. Although we did not see any, information was given that he passed some excellent "Wizard" smokes around on his return. Best wishes for a happy married life!

We are glad to announce that H. H. Brown, foreman, Stores Department, who has been off duty some time on account of stomach trouble, is improved. We hope to see "Brownie" on the job again soon, as we usually rely on him for news from the Stores Department for the MAGAZINE.

Indirect information reached us that Assistant Storekeeper Baum had quite a cider (sweet, of course) party recently. How about it "Baumie?"

The local Odd Fellows band attended the convention of that order at Cincinnati on September 19. O. L. Sarg, assistant on Engineer Corps, accompanied them, "piping" the flute. The story comes back that they stopped near a large factory building in Cincinnati to entertain the workers. After playing several selections, "Sarg" reverted to type, grabbed his cap and started passing it around. The windows of the factory building were all filled with workers, and they immediately fell in with the play, started dropping peanuts into his cap, one at a time, with an occasional penny, until the cap was almost full. Now, we understand, he has serious intentions of resigning his position with the Baltimore and Ohio, and hiring out to an Italian organ grinder.

H. H. Hughes, section stockman, Stores Department, is the proud daddy of a new nine pound daughter, who has been given the name of Bertha May. Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Hughes.

S. Gray, machinist helper, is all smiles over the arrival of a baby daughter.

ATTENTION! Railroad Men

Including all

Baltimore & Ohio Employees

Do you know that we have the privilege of taking your orders for Watches, Chains and Charms, on the payment plan?

Your Christmas Purchases can be taken care of in this manner.

HENN & HAYNES

Baltimore and Ohio Watch Inspectors

38 N. Paint St., Chillicothe, Ohio

We are sorry to hear that A. Griesheimer, boiler maker, was injured while on his way to work recently. He was in the side car of Machinist C. Turner's motorcycle, just turning into the shop entrance, when an automobile running at high speed struck them, breaking up the side car, and breaking both legs of Mr. Griesheimer. Mr. Turner was fortunate in not being injured.

Wm. Nolan, round house foreman, and B. Evans, tender repairman, who were recently admitted to the hospital for operations, are getting along nicely, and we expect to see them back on the job soon.

We extend to W. G. "Button" Betz, operator, "DE" office, our sincerest sympathy in the loss of his mother, who was the wife of the late Lewis Betz, painter foreman.

Our heartfelt sympathy is also extended to J. C. Wilkins, instructor of fuel service, in the death of his mother, at her home in Baltimore.

Sayings of the Safety Secretary:

Hammer the slogan "SAFETY FIRST" home to each indifferent employee.

Stop and think before undertaking an unsafe practice and it will not be necessary to think about it (with regret) afterwards.

You will always lose if you gamble with old men I. M. Careless and I. L. Neglect. If you must gamble, do it with Will B. Careful and I. M. Watchful.

Don't forget to use goggles (the "eyes of the wise") in doing work requiring them.

Westboro, Ohio

The accompanying photograph shows F. M. Nolder (seated), section foreman, section 42, Westboro, and his son, W. W. Nolder, foreman, section 44, Hillsboro, bass player and director of the Lake Deniston Band, Westboro.

The father has been in the Baltimore and Ohio service 43 years, having commenced work with the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad on April 5, 1881. He has been a foreman since 1885. His son commenced work on the Baltimore and Ohio in June, 1906.

Our other photograph shows a piece of track under the supervision and care of Foreman F. M. Nolder, near Westboro.

Dover, Ohio

R. W. Wertman is learning how to make out tax papers.

Bruce Wilcox and Harold Carpenter have returned to school.

Car Inspector C. H. Miller has quit dealing in second hand automobiles.

"Buck" Carpenter and "Gust" Byer thought the Round House was on fire. Upon investigation they found it was smoke coming from C. M. Powell's new type-writer. Powell is some typist.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Let DIAMONDS say Merry Xmas

642 AD—18" Pearls, Diamond Clasp. $14.50

643 AD—Premier diamond Ring. $95.00

645 AD—Hexagon diamond Ring. $55.00

644 AD—Engraved, Diamond $37.50

649 AD—Premier Cluster, 7 dia., $73.50

650 AD—7 dia. Clus., $87.50

651 AD—Platinum Dia. Ring. $118.50

653 AD—W. G. Cluster. Dia., $59.50

647 AD—Belcher Dia. Ring $80.00

654 AD—Blue-white Dia. Rg., $110.00

652 AD—14 kt. Wh. Gold 15-jwl. Wrist Watch $33.65

NO MONEY DOWN

Any of the startling diamond values pictured here can be yours without risking a single penny. Each item is ideally suited for Christmas and will make a charming gift. No matter what you select, you pay only a few cents a day. Your selection sent on your simple request without a single penny down. If you don't agree that it is the biggest bargain you have ever seen, return it at our expense. If you keep it, pay at the rate of only a few cents a day.

Yearly Dividends

You are guaranteed 8% yearly increase in value on all diamond exchanges. Also, 5% bonus privilege.

MILLION DOLLAR BARGAIN BOOK FREE

Send for your copy today to Dept. 1018. See the greatest display of diamond and jewelry bargains in America for yourself, sold under the Lyon Charge Account Plan.

SEND FOR MILLION DOLLAR
BARGAIN BOOK
FREE

J.M. LYON & CO.
2-4 MAIDEN LANE, NEW YORK
In Business Nearly 100 years

Ray McPeak has made a deal with Henry Ford.

Brakeman H. Jordan found a defective wheel in the yard. He called Car Inspector Miller's attention to it. Mr. Miller thanked him and told the rest of the crew what a good fellow "Monke" was.

Toledo Division

Dayton, Ohio

Correspondent, C. E. THRASHER

On September 15 Miss Lena L. Gibson, Chillicothe, and George A. Rozell, agent operator at Richmondale, Ohio, were united in marriage. Rev. A. P. Cherring-ton was the officiating minister. After the ceremony the couple left for a wedding trip to Nebraska. We wish the couple much happiness.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. Vesely, a fine ten pound baby girl on October 10, another stenographer for the Baltimore and Ohio. But we have not seen any cigars around the office, all decorated up with a sign, "TAKE ONE," in honor of the new arrival.

LOST—One A. E. McMillan, transferred to Wheeling, W. Va., as district master mechanic, Wheeling Division. Sorry to see you leave "Ted," but wish you good luck.

FOUND—One T. C. O'Brien, formerly foreman at Lima Shops. Promoted to master mechanic, Toledo Division, headquarters Dayton, Ohio. Glad to have you with us "Tim," and wish you success.

"Bill" Rusche says there are more fish in Michigan than there are in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans. From the fish stories we hear about you, "Bill," we are beginning to believe it ourselves.

The Friendly Road

"When you see a man in woe,
Walk straight up and say 'Hello.'
Say 'Hello' and 'How-de-do'
And 'how's the world been using you.'
Slap the fellow on his back,
Bring your hand down with a whack,
Don't wait for the crowd to go,
Walk straight up and say 'Hello.' "

Lima, Ohio

Correspondent, O. L. WALLBURG

Yard Clerk Heffern "P. J." spent his vacation visiting Washington, D. C., and other eastern points. Yard Conductor John Sweeney and his wife also took a flyer to Washington, D. C. The beauty and magnificence of this city and its historic associations make it the outstanding place to visit for every American citizen.

To travel its beautiful streets, visit its magnificent buildings, stand in the East Room at the White House, go through the Capitol, stand by the Tomb of the "Unknown Soldier" in Arlington, enjoy the beauty of splendid Congressional Library, see the Lincoln Memorial from the banks of the Potomac—these indeed are wonderful and inspiring sights—and there are hundreds of others equally interesting.

Former Crew Dispatcher John Brown, now on pension because of ill health, is taking advantage of this beautiful autumn weather by getting lots of oxygen into his system. John has not been enjoying the best of health and we all hope that this weather will do him lots of good and restore it.

Yard Conductor Joe Shelley continues to improve and should soon be able to take his turn on the crew again. We sincerely hope so.

M. CUMMINGS The Grocery of Quality

Our Motto—A SQUARE DEAL TO ALL
We appreciate the patronage of the Baltimore
and Ohio R. R. Employees
98 Springfield Street DAYTON, OHIO

Merlin Evans is getting better every day and if the present rate of improvement is maintained will soon be on the job again. Good luck to you, Merlin.

Philip Goebel is laying off account trouble with his tonsils and also dislocated arm. He is employed as machinist at Lima Shop. Fellow employees extend their sympathy.

General Foreman T. C. O'Brien and his wife were the recipients of a very handsome testimonial by the employees at Lima Shops.

At an informal gathering Mr. O'Brien was presented with a handsome diamond ring and his wife with a beautiful silk umbrella. The presentation was made by Blacksmith Foreman Woodward. Mr. O'Brien was recently appointed Master Mechanic of the Division. Mr. Miller of Washington, Ind., succeeds him here while Mr. O'Brien goes to Dayton, Ohio.

East Dayton, Ohio

Correspondent, EDWARD M. MANNIX

With the approach of the Holiday season, Thanksgiving calls to our mind the bountiful gifts that have been bestowed upon us by the Great Giver of All. In looking back let us, with grateful hearts, acknowledge the gifts and give thanks to Almighty God for his wonderful beneficence to all.

Our new master mechanic, T. C. O'Brien, has established himself firmly with the Toledo Division family by asking the full cooperation of each employee to maintain the high standard characteristic of our division. To this end all are pledged to give Mr. O'Brien their undivided efforts and the confidence reposed in him by our executives will be fully merited.

Reports from the various committees, from the staff meetings down to our local Welfare, Sanitary, Fuel and Safety First meetings, show that they are on the job with conservation and economy as their watchword.

Rendering service because you want to is an incentive to all employees. While these words are quoted from President Daniel Willard's letter, they carry with them an inspiration of confidence in and loyalty to our employers.

Wish some of you would spring something on somebody around the shop. I know there are lots of doings but somehow or other, you seem to be afraid of getting your name in our MAGAZINE. Come on fellows, cut loose, and I'll spring it gently. "Among Ourselves" is your department. Use it!

The last words he uttered:
"I'll beat 'er across."

Incidental to the leaving of our master mechanic, A. E. McMillan, for the eastern territory, T. C. O'Brien, of Lima, Ohio, was appointed his successor. A good man gone, a good man come! Mr. O'Brien is surely a Baltimore and Ohio product, having served his apprenticeship and learned his trade at Lima, Ohio. Through strict adherence to business, he advanced to foreman, general foreman and now master mechanic. "You are surely welcome, "Tim," old boy, and your appointment is glad news to the whole division. Congratulations!

John Glynn, veteran engineer, Dayton, after forty-three years service on our road is taking a little vacation visiting relatives in New York and other points.

Wellston, Ohio

Correspondent, L. M. MASON

Mrs. P. T. Harkins, a most estimable lady, and mother of our chief clerk, Ray Harkins, died in a hospital at Columbus where she went a brief time ago for treatment. Her death caused much sorrow to all who knew her, especially because of the fact that her husband, so well and popularly known in this city, where he has served the Baltimore and Ohio as the efficient car repairer and wreck man for the past thirty-five years, was recently stricken while on duty and fell in the depot from apoplexy, from which he has shown some decided recovery. Our sympathy goes out for this grief stricken family, and our prayer is for the speedy recovery of our friend and brother workman.

Cartoon by A. Bauernschub, Agent's Office, Camden Station, Baltimore
DID IT EVER HAPPEN TO YOU?

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Sol Scott has been placed in charge of the repair track in place of Mr. Harkins.

We see by the September issue of our MAGAZINE that the Toledo Division is somewhat short on notes. It is hard for one man to find out everything that is going on on the Wellston Sub-Division, so give us a lift and lets see if we can't fill up our space with something interesting for the big December issue.

I. E. Clayton, C. E. Thrasher, W. B. Kilgore and J. E. Hubbard composed the party with the Operators Examining Special of Dr. Potter, who acted as the official eye tester, to see how many "Ops" had lost their eyesight.

Walter Ray, formerly of Wellston, but now operator at Leipsic, Ohio, has been spending his vacation in Wellston.

"If all that we say
In a single day,
With never a word left out,
Were printed each night
In clear black and white,
"Twould prove queer reading, no doubt.

"And then just suppose
Ere one's eyes he could close,

He must read the day's record thru;
Say, wouldn't he sigh
And the next day try

A great deal less talking to do?
"And I more than half think
That many a Kink

Would be smoother in life's tangled thread;

If one-half that we say
In a single day,

Were left forever unsaid."

Our tongues are too quick on the trigger. Even those of us who have reputations for being mild and careful in the shops and offices, blurt out too many offensive things in our homes. Home is a blessed place even at its worst. But it would be heaven in comparison, if "one-half that we say in a single day were left forever unsaid."

C. D. McCarty, the man who is full of funny stories and hearty laughs, recently gave an entertainment in Wellston, the audience being Mr. Kilgore, Mason and a stranger who was waiting for a train at the depot.

Chicago Division

Office of Storekeeper, South Chicago

Correspondent, E. J. MOBERG

South Chicago has added to its list of champions the names of Capt. "Tom" Hunter, W. R. Smith, "Ed" Bendykowski, Frank Mazzidlo and C. N. McCrary, on the Motive Power Department team; and Capt. Van Panka, Louis Stack, Oscar Anderson, Adolph Wegryzn, and "Jack" Pubins, on the Car Department team of bowlers.

A series of matches are being staged between these two teams to decide which will be called upon to bring the Chicago Championship to the Baltimore and Ohio at South Chicago. To date, the Motive Power Department has kept in the lead—having won seven out of nine games played.

These teams are willing to meet all comers. Arrangements can be made by communicating with Capt. "Tom" Hunter, at South Chicago.

Fireman Manley has again resumed his duties as editor of the "Sandhouse Blade" and promises some startling news in his first edition. It is to be regretted that our employees along the line cannot read and appreciate this remarkable issue, for much credit is due Mr. Manley for his unceasing efforts.

St. Louis Division

Correspondent, ALTO SMITH

Fred Artman, brakeman on the through runs between St. Louis and Cincinnati, is becoming more popular with the traveling public. Recently on No. 1 a middle aged lady fainted twice. Dr. Artman immediately procured a Cincinnati Enquirer and some ice water and revived the lady who was profuse in her thanks to the doctor. On No. 1 on September 27, a lady en route from Winchester, Kentucky to Kansas City was suddenly seized with severe pains in her "tummy." Dr. Artman was a little undecided as to whether it was appendicitis or cholera morbus. In any event he proceeded to the dining car and together with Chef Neeley concocted a dose of ordinary baking soda and water and prevailed on the lady to take the medicine. Within thirty minutes after the treatment, the lady was in perfect health and informed Dr. Artman that it was seldom she found a railroad company that carried a doctor on passenger trains. She explained to him she would return from Kansas City within a week and would endeavor to catch his train out of St. Louis.

Fireman George Prader, Cone Yard, has enrolled in the ranks of the Benedicts, coming in for a round of good wishes from everyone.

A visitor to Cone Yard during the St. Louis Air Races, thought the Cone Yard force was a "stuck-up" bunch until he found that their necks had become fixed in that position from watching the antics of the flyers.

Switchman J. A. Easton and Yard Clerk Jos. A. Whalen, Cone Yard, have returned to work after being ill for some time.

Elmer Sheetz is a new employe in Cone Yard. He has had previous service in the Flora and Keyser Yards.

Radio Bugs—Attention!

Engineer F. R. Dollens has signed a contract with Broadcasting Station WHAS, Louisville, Ky., to sing November 22. Engineer Dollens recently graduated from the Conservatory of Music, Louisville and is an accomplished singer. We are sure he will be pleased to receive a line from any Baltimore and Ohio employes hearing him on this occasion.

J. R. Minter, supervisor of shop schedules, Washington Shops, and Miss Anna Robinson, formerly employed in the Office of Master Mechanic, Eastside, Philadelphia, were married on September 10 and will make their home in Washington, Ind. Accept our best wishes. Thanks for the candy and cigars!

E. J. C. Fleetwood, inspector of fuel economy, has been transferred to Wheeling Division. The boys on the St. Louis Division wish his success.

We would suggest that Merel W. (Lop Ear) Luke, boiler inspector, Washington Shops, purchase a portable radio outfit, tuned to catch signals from Vincennes. This method would reduce his bills for long distance calls.

The following Old Timers on the section east of Washington, Ind., have returned to duty after being absent because of illness:

Road Engineer Henry Schroder; Yard Engineer F. H. "Doc" Green, North Vernon, Ind.; Road Engineer J. L. Williams; Yard Conductor Cliff Long, North Vernon, Ind.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

$3
DOWN

BRINGS YOU GENUINE
UNDERWOOD TYPEWRITER

10 DAYS FREE TRIAL. Try it, test it yourself, then decide.

EASY MONTHLY PAYMENTS. So small you will not notice them.

5 YEAR GUARANTEE with every Shipman-Ward factory rebuilt Underwood, a late model, perfect machine that will give you years of service.

FREE BOOK OF FACTS. Write today, inside story about typewriter business, typewriter rebuilding, how we do it, our wonderful offer. Act now.

SHIPMAN WARD MFG. CO.
2268 Shipman Bldg.
Montross and Ravenswood Aves.
CHICAGO, ILL.

Novelty

Musical Instruments

Not toys—but high-grade practical instruments for Symphony or Jazz orchestras. Great for solo work at Club, Lodge or Legion gatherings or home entertainments. Anyone can play with a few simple lessons, furnished with each instrument.

Musical Pitch Fork Glassophone Jazz-O-Nette
Mando-Zi Harp Musical Saw Hohner Sax

Free Trial Try any of these instruments for 15 days. If not satisfied, if you can't learn to play it quickly and easily, return at our expense. Remarkably low prices. Easy Time Payments. Send today for new, illustrated catalog describing complete line.

MUSSEHL & WESTPHAL
400 S. Water Street Ft. Atkinson, Wis.

Car Owners Wanted!

—to use and introduce the greatest improvement in Inner Tubes since autos were invented. Air Gauge in valve stem of every Tubes shows pressure at a glance.

AIR-GAGE
Inner Tubes

—sell on sight to almost every car owner. Save trouble, time and expense. Add one-third to tire life. Paul salesmen make big profits selling direct to car owners. Secure own tires and tubes at factory prices. We can use 200 more men at once. Experience and capital not necessary. Big Free Book Explains All. WRITE TODAY. PAUL RUBBER CO. Dept. 72, Salisbury, N. C.

BALTIMORE

THE SOUTHERN BALTIMORE'S NEWEST AND MOST MODERN HOTEL
BALTIMORE

Mr. A. C. Drynan, railroad representative, Railway Service Division, International Correspondence Schools, recently paid us a visit and enrolled a number of employes for various courses. Mr. Drynan reports that our employes, who are students, are making good progress, and the majority are sending in lessons regularly.

Fireman O. L. F. Gates and Miss Rose McManaman, daughter of Retired Engineer James McManaman, were married on October 10 and are spending their honeymoon touring the west. They will be at home after November 1 in their newly furnished house on South State Street, North Vernon, Ind. Congratulations!

There still seems to be some mystery attached to a certain clerk at Flora, Ill., who used to be an alderman. He has not yet explained just what he had been doing when he emerged from an alley at midnight with an empty chip basket on his left arm. Cannot someone at Flora clear up the mystery?

Boiler Shop Foreman M. J. Dugan, North Vernon, Ind., has purchased a new Dodge roadster and is showing the North Vernon girls a good time. Anybody desiring the route to Pauley's Camp, just ask "Mike!"

Conductor W. O. Poole was married recently. No one knows just when. You all know how quiet Wallace can be, even about such an important event. However, congratulations are extended.

Opportunity knocks but once—people are not so considerate.

Conductor Charles Ireland is back on the job after a slight rest in Chicago.

Machinist James Smelser, Flora, Ill., accompanied by J. H. Throgmorton, a local druggist, participated in Illinois State Tennis Tournament at Centralia, Ill., on August 10, 11 and 12 and reached the semi-finals before being beaten.

An inspection trip was made over the St. Louis Division, October 5 and 6 by Vice-President Galloway and other officials.

On October 7 Head Brakeman W. F. Bruce quit the bachelors and joined the ranks of the newly weds.

Used Baltimore and Ohio in 1831

Ninety-two Years Between Trains!

Thomas Finch, 104 years old, who went to California during the first gold rush, saw his second railroad train at Truckee, Cal., last August. Finch saw his first railroad train in 1831. He said:

"I remember travelin' over the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in 1831, when I was about twelve years old."—Exchange.

Special Apprentice Alfred H. Burnham, Jr.

Honorable Mention for Apprentice Alfred H. Burnham, Jr.

THE Railway Mechanical Engineer has recently conducted competitions offering prizes for the best articles received. One competition was for regular apprentices and the other for special apprentices, or college graduates. A large number of papers were received, and among them one from Alfred H. Burnham, Jr., special apprentice, Mount Clare Shops, Baltimore, which received honorable mention.

Mr. Burnham's subject is "Opportunities for College Graduates, also Suggestions as to How Railroads Can Make the Best Use of These Men." He stresses the importance of the opportunity to study human nature, and also the opportunity of becoming familiar with industrial organizations, and says; "After knowing the existing methods, he (the apprentice) will be able to see and make good suggestions for improvements. His study is made much easier under an organized apprentice system, due to the fact that he moves in regular sequence through all the shops and departments."

Answering the question as to what the railroads can do with the college boy apprentice, Mr. Burnham gives this illustration; "The Test Department of a certain railroad was running tests on a number of rebuilt consolidation locomotives. The department was very busy and had no men to work up the data accumulating from the dynamometer car. Two special apprentices were called and the method of submitting reports and data explained to them. The result was that the men were pleased and contented with their work. In addition, they acquired considerable information as to the respective merits of the old and new class of locomotives. They also felt **** that they were a part of the organization.

"Mr. Burnham concludes by saying: "***** give him a job that is a little different and requires a touch of his own personality. He will try hard, he will give his best and will be a most loyal employee."

One Can't Quarrel

IT takes two to make a quarrel. Therefore, if one declines to participate, there is no quarrel. It is a case of merely one person opening and closing his mouth quite rapidly.

When a quarrel between a passenger and a trainman occurs on a car, it is apparent that one or the other is carrying a chip on his shoulder. Perhaps it is both. If either one keeps cool and smiles, there is no quarrel and the other appears ridiculous in the eyes of the passengers.

If a passenger starts talking in a loud, unreasonable way, the trainman may do one of two things. He may keep cool and smile courteously and explain quietly, if any explanation is necessary, or he may jump into a hot-headed and foolish quarrel with the passenger.

If the trainman jumps into the argument, there is an exchange of words, then after a while the passenger leaves the car. The trainman probably will never see him again. The trainman cannot have gained anything. He has lost the respect which the majority of fair-minded people hold for one who serves the public. He has lost his own dignity. He has made an enemy for himself and the company. He has no chance to win anything. He loses two ways—for himself and for the company.

The man worth while is big enough to rise above such small tactics and keep his smile and his temper.—Exchange.

The example cited above is of a trainman, but it applies to an agent in his public relationship as well. It is well to remember whenever there is an irritated, loud talking caustic patron—"it takes two to make a quarrel." Gasoline will not explode unless the spark is applied.—Railway Agent.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO EXHIBITS AT THE KENTUCKY STATE FAIR, LOUISVILLE, KY., SEPTEMBER 10 TO 15

Left: Baltimore and Ohio coach, drawn by horses, used between Baltimore and Ellicott City in 1829. Center: Baltimore and Ohio engine "Atlantic" used first in 1832. Photo. shows Elijah Bangs, who keeps a watchful eye over all our historical exhibits, firing the boiler. Right: Nova Scotia coach "Pioneer," built in 1838 in England for use in Nova Scotia. In addition to these old-time exhibits, a modern Baltimore and Ohio locomotive and one of the new K. & T. Company's switch engines were shown, making an interesting contrast between transportation facilities of nearly one hundred years ago and today

Clarksburg Chamber of Commerce Enjoyed Trip

THE Clarksburg Exponent of September 22 describes a recent trip of the "Goodfellow Special" consisting of members of the Chamber of Commerce, from Clarksburg, W. Va., to Richwood, W. Va., and return. The trip consumed two days, and the Exponent says:

"The train arrived on time to the minute * * * * During a stop for luncheon at Burnsville, the subject of the excellent manner in which the Baltimore and Ohio had taken care of the train came up for praise. After three cheers the Baltimore and Ohio men present were asked to stand up. These included General Freight Agent H. H. Marsh, Division Freight Agent J. R. Brown, Division Freight Agent F. H. Fowler and District Passenger Agent C. J. Proudfoot, the latter being in charge of the train. * * * * This special, which was the heaviest ever sent over the line to Richwood, was handled smoothly in every way. Throughout the entire journey of 244 miles the schedules were maintained and the trip to Richwood, during which the members were in their berths, was made comfortably."

Stops were made at Sutton, Burnsville, Orlando, Roanville and Weston, on the return trip.

Superintendent Trapnell has written a letter of commendation to the following employes who handled the special Clarksburg to Richwood and return. Engineers T. J. Wilson and A. J. Lunsford, Firemen J. T. Hershman and H. A. Curtis, Conductor J. R. Cox, Engineers N. H. Davidson and S. L. Rodebaugh, Firemen H. Carpenter and D. E. Rohrbough and Brakeman F. Simons.

Miss Spengler a Bride

ON Saturday, September 29, Miss Nina Lacey Spengler, popular Strasburg girl, clerk in the Auditor Merchandise Receipts Office, Baltimore, and the first Baltimore and Ohio girl chosen to go to France with the Good Will Delegation, became the bride of Mr. Jacob Daniel Womack.

To most of her friends of the railroad, Miss Spengler's wedding came as a complete surprise, although it was the culmination of a romance that began in her school days when both she and Mr. Womack attended Lynchburg College.

The ceremony took place in Washington,

D. C., and was witnessed by members of the bride's immediate family. For the benefit of the girls who knew her well, we might add that Nina was married in a suit of blue velvet and gray squirrel, with a hat of blue velvet and silver flowers, gray gloves and hose, and black patent leather pumps. She wore a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses. Enough said. It was just as well that none of the boys of the A. M. R. office were witnesses of the ceremony, or some Lochinvar would have led the groom a merry chase.

We all remember hearing Nina say, on her return from France, that no French counts had appealed to her, but little did we dream that the reason was—Jake—. At least that's what she calls him, without the adjectives.

Her friends all over the Baltimore and Ohio join in wishing Nina and her new manager a life of happiness in their little home in Suffolk, Va.

Glee Club Officers Elected

ON the night of October 8, following the regular Monday night rehearsal in the Assembly Room of the Baltimore and Ohio Building, the members of the Baltimore and Ohio Glee Club elected the following officers for the 1923-1924 season: President.....Ambrose S. Hardwick Vice-President.....Henry O. Fankhanel Secretary.....Robert M. Van Sant Asst. Secretary....R. H. Dienhart Treasurer.....Roland Clymer Asst. Treasurer....T. M. Bohanan Librarian.....Stanley Biscoe Asst. Librarian....Benjamin H. Andersen

The Club is starting its tenth year auspiciously, still under the leadership of Mr. Hobart Smock, who has been its director since it was organized. One of the interesting new numbers is "Ships in Harbor," a prize song by Franz Bornschein, the Baltimore composer and violinist, especially interesting to the Glee Club because of the interest taken several years ago in a previous prize number of Mr. Bornschein's "The Four Winds."

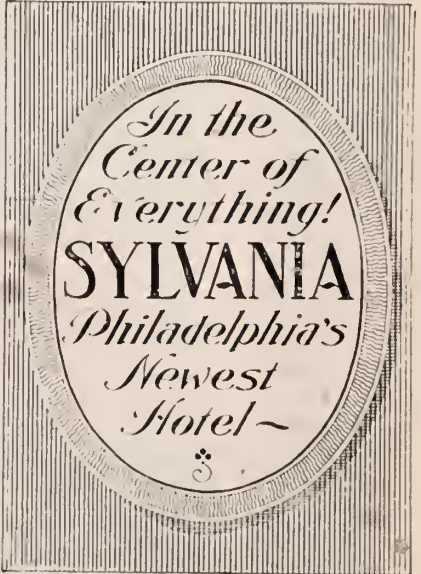

A number of new faces are seen at the Monday night rehearsals. Any male Baltimore and Ohio employe with a love for music, a fair voice and a willingness to be faithful at rehearsals, is urged to come out and join. A ready welcome awaits new members on the Fifth floor of the Baltimore and Ohio Building, Baltimore, any Monday night.

SENSATIONAL SALE
GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS
Limited quantity fully guaranteed standard make typewriters. Five Days Free Trial. Lowest prices ever offered. Last monthly payments paid today for FREE booklet of Valuable Typewriter Information and Special Sale Bulletin.
SMITH TYPEWRITER SALES CO.
291-360 E. Grand Ave. Chicago, Ill.

Car Owners Wanted
—To show and sell the greatest improvement in Spark Plugs since Gasoline Engines were invented. Unbreakable, translucent core shows at a glance just which cylinders are firing.
Beacon Life Spark Plugs
You Can See Them Fire
Just lift the hood and look. See instantly which cylinders are "dead." No guessing. No testing. Cost no more than ordinary plugs. Sure fire. Extra durable. Sold only by "Paul Men". Agents smashing all earning records. Exclusive territory. Write quick.
THE PAUL RUBBER CO. (INC)
72 Paul Park Salisbury, Nc. Cas

PATENTS
BOOKLET FREE. HIGHEST REFERENCES. PROMPTNESS ASSURED. BEST RESULTS.
Send drawing or model for examination and report as to patentability.
WATSON E. COLEMAN
PATENT LAWYER
624 F Street, N. W. Washington, D. C.

Learn Photography at HOME
Make $75.00 a Week on the Side
Establish yourself as a Photographer. Expert quickly—during your spare time—under a leading photographer. I'll show you how to start your own business—or command a large salary. Send for my unusual offer—it's only temporary. Act at once. A postal will do. R. Dupont, Pre.
INTERNATIONAL STUDIOS
Dept. 4675 3601 Michigan Ave. Chicago, Ill.

Yes! We Have No Car Shortage
By H. F. L.
Yes, we have no car shortage; we have no car shortage today.
We have loadings by millions, and ton miles by billions,
And all kinds of freight, and, say,
We have no old-fashioned embargoes; as soon as you load it the car goes.
But—yes, we have no car shortage; we have no car shortage today.
—Railway Age

NOW IS THE TIME TO DO YOUR CHRISTMAS SHOPPING

Birthday Gift For Baltimore and Ohio's Youngest Old Man, G. W. Haulenbeek

October 8, 1923

"MAY you live to be 180 years old, Grandpa," was the greeting that was sent on a card by the grandchildren of George W. Haulenbeek, of the Law Department, on the occasion of his 80th birthday, October 9. And this was the general sentiment that prevailed when a number of Mr. Haulenbeek's Baltimore and Ohio friends, both officers and employes, gathered about his desk to congratulate him on that day and to present him with a lovely gift of silver.

The presentation speech was made by Judge Irvine Cross, who said:

"Those of us who have travelled a part of the way with you, wish to give expression of admiration for your many admirable qualities, and more especially for your staying power. They have decided that this expression should take the form of these pieces of silver, given with many good wishes for the longer part of your life, which, we are sure, is still to come."

Gracefully Mr. Haulenbeek accepted the gift, remarking that it is the customary thing to pretend to be surprised on occasions of this kind, but that in his case it was not necessary to pretend; his surprise was genuine indeed, for he had not dreamed of such a thing.

Then Mr. Haulenbeek launched forth into one of his characteristic declarations concerning his youth, which reigns despite his age, telling in detail of the "hits" he made with the young ladies in Milwaukee on the occasion of his recent visit in connection with the Grand Army encampment there. He declared that while Baltimore girls are lovely, he is willing to go back to Milwaukee, "for," he said, "the girls want me to come back."

Senior Vice-President Shriver, who was a fellow clerk with Mr. Haulenbeek in the old Baltimore and Ohio Building in Baltimore, years ago, wrote him as follows:

New York, October 9, 1923

My Dear Mr. Haulenbeek:

I regret that my absence from the city prevents me from being present with others of your associates at the presentation in celebration of your 80th anniversary.

I recall very distinctly the day when you celebrated your 50th anniversary, and it seemed to me then that you were a much older man than you are now. The intervening years, which have sped so rapidly, have been marked by many interesting as well as exacting periods, but all of which have been made the more pleasurable because of the occasions when we had the benefit of your cheery and ever-ready cooperation and assistance.

With best wishes for your continued good health and comfort, I am,

Yours very truly,

(Signed) GEO. M. SHRIVER

There were several handsome bouquets on Mr. Haulenbeek's desk and a pile of birthday cards, among which was the following letter of congratulation from Counsel George Dobbin Penniman, who was unable to be present.

My Dear Mr. Haulenbeek:

I had looked forward with great pleasure to an active participation in the festivities connected with your eightieth birthday, but unfortunately I have been called out of town.

You, Silkman, Irvine Cross, Herbert Preston and I, are the Old Guard, the survivors of the fine old office under Mr. Cowen and Judge Cross. I wish to express to you my thanks for the numerous acts of kindness I have received from you during the many years we have worked together. I have had occasion lately to mention your name to many of the officials of the Company, and to use a school girl saying, "your ears should have burned at the many kind and complimentary things which were said about you."

We all respect and admire you, not only on account of your efficiency and pleasant manners but because in all the walks of life you have measured up to the standard and have quietly done your duty. I wish you many happy returns of the day and I hope that for many more years while we all grow older we may be helped by your faith in the life to come and your cheerful acceptance of fortune, good or bad.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) GEO. DOBBIN PENNIMAN

The inscriptions on the silver pitcher, the goblet and the tray were, respectively:

TO GEORGE W. HAULENBECK
FROM HIS BALTIMORE AND OHIO
FRIENDS

OCTOBER 9, 1923
HIS EIGHTIETH BIRTHDAY

"He Becometh Poor Who Dealeth with a Slack Hand."—Prov. xv-4

"Justum et Tenacem, Propositi Virum" (A man upright and tenacious of his purpose).

—Horace, Lib. III, Ode 3

"Much have I travelled in the realms of Gold,
And many goodly states and kingdoms seen."

—Keats

Mr. Haulenbeek has been in the Law Department of the Baltimore and Ohio since 1881.

President Coolidge's Money-Saving Habit

President Calvin Coolidge says he has never failed to save at least 10 per cent. of each salary installment received. He is not a rich man and is not of the type that becomes rich, but with such a policy he will never be poor. There may be difficulty in carrying out the 10 per cent. plan while occupying the White House, and yet by simple living it should be possible. If so, the end of his first term alone should find him in a position well above any fear for his financial future.

The great gain of saving 10 per cent., or any reasonable percentage of each salary installment, is not entirely in the total of money accumulated as it is also a great strengthener of character. Economy is twice blessed, for it adds to both mental and material possessions. Self-control is more than riches, and by nothing else is self-control as much developed as by saving.

—San Francisco Bulletin

George W. Haulenbeek, Law Department, has a birthday for the 80th time and his Baltimore and Ohio friends celebrate it in his office by presenting him with the handsome silver service at his right. The flowers are also from his office friends, but the pleasant expression on his face is Mr. Haulenbeek's own—from his heart

Stifel's Indigo Cloth

Standard for over 75 years

The white won't weaken

REGISTERED U.S. PATENT OFFICE
CANADA AND OTHER COUNTRIES.

MADE IN

U. S. A.

"Boy! you're right! Work clothes made of Stifel's Indigo cloth have more wear in them than any you ever sold me before. Hereafter I'm looking for the Stifel Boot-shaped Trade Mark whenever I buy work clothes."

Railroad men in cab, caboose, yard and shop wear work clothes made of Stifel's Indigo Cloth because they are stronger, wear everlastingly and keep their looks. All leading Overalls, Shirts, One-piece Garments and Women's Dresses are made out of it. Look for the boot-shaped trade mark on the work clothes you buy. Then you'll be satisfied.

GARMENTS SOLD BY DEALERS EVERYWHERE
WE ARE MAKERS OF THE CLOTH ONLY

J. L. STIFEL & SONS, Indigo Dyers and Printers
WHEELING, W. VA.

Baltimore & Ohio Capitol Limited

New York, Philadelphia,
Baltimore, Washington,
Chicago

ANNOUNCEMENT

THE Management believes that a more intimate knowledge of the work of the Traffic Department by all employes of the Baltimore and Ohio will stimulate interest to the end so much desired of securing more business for our Railroad.

The Traffic Department is the sales department of the Railroad. Its representatives sell transportation—passenger and freight—and, subject to the regulations of the Interstate Commerce Commission and similar state bodies, they fix the prices at which this transportation must be sold.

In the selling end of our work every employe from the President to the messenger boy can be useful. Much has already been accomplished by the sympathetic cooperation of the employes of this Railroad. Much more can be accomplished. With this end in view it will be the purpose of the Traffic Department, on this page, each month, to tell our fellow employes something of the work that is being done in the various branches of our Department, how this work affects the communities which we serve, and of our efforts to stimulate a more kindly and better understanding between our Railroad and its patrons. By so doing, we hope to increase our business.

Vice-President Traffic and Commercial Development

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine

*The End
of
The Run*

DECEMBER

1 9 2 3

CASH
1.00

THE superior spring tempered, compensating balance used in all high-grade Illinois watches makes it possible to accurately adjust these movements to extreme temperatures

REGARDLESS OF EXTREME SUMMER WEATHER OR THE INTENSE HEAT FROM THE FIRE-BOX—ILLINOIS WATCHES CAN BE DEPENDED UPON TO KEEP ACCURATE TIME

Every Bunn Special

IS RUN FOR HOURS IN A SPECIALLY DESIGNED OVEN AT HIGH TEMPERATURES, AND TESTS REPEATED UNTIL EFFECT OF SUCH CHANGES ON THE BALANCE IS NEGLIGIBLE

ILLINOIS WATCH COMPANY
SPRINGFIELD

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

J. R. HEAD,
of Kansas, who lives
in a small town of 631 people. He has made as high as $69.50 in one day, selling Comer
All-Weather Coats.

E. A. SWEET,
an electrical engineer, is making from $600 to $1,200 a month and works only about four hours a day.

W. S. COOPER,
of Ohio, who finds
it easy to earn over $500 a month selling Comer All-
Weather Coats.

Will You Give Me a Chance to Pay You $100 a Week?

I want to make an offer whereby you can earn from $100 to $1,000 a month, cash. You can be your own boss. You can work just as many hours a day as you please. You can start when you want to and quit when you want to. You don't need experience and you get your money in cash every day when you earn it.

These Are Facts

Does that sound too good to be true? If it does, then let me tell you what J. R. Head did in a small town in Kansas. Head lives in a town of 631 people. He was sick, broke, out of a job. He accepted my offer. I gave him the same chance I am now offering you. At this new work he has made as high as $69.50 for one day's work.

If that isn't enough, then let me tell you about E. A. Sweet of Michigan. He was an electrical engineer and didn't know anything about selling. In his first month's spare time he earned $243. Inside of six months he was making between $600 and $1,200 a month.

W. J. McCrary is another man I want to tell you about. His regular job paid him $2.00 a day, but this wonderful new work has enabled him to make $9,000 a year.

Yes, and right this very minute you are being offered the same proposition that has made these men so successful. Do you want it? Do you want to earn $40.00 a day?

A Clean, High-Grade Dignified Business

Have you ever heard of Comer All-Weather Coats? They are advertised in all the leading magazines. Think of a single coat that can be worn all year round. A good-looking, stylish coat that's good for summer or winter—that keeps out wind, rain or snow, a coat that everybody should have, made of fine materials for men, women and children, and sells for less than the price of an ordinary coat.

Now, Comer Coats are not sold in stores. All our orders come through our own representatives. Within the next few months we will pay representatives more than three hundred thousand dollars for sending us orders.

And now I am offering you the chance to become our representative in your territory and get your share of that three hundred thousand dollars. All you do is to take orders. We do the rest. We deliver. We collect and you get your money the same day you take the order. You can see how simple it is. We furnish you with a complete outfit and tell you how to get the business in your territory. We help you to get started. If you send us only three average orders a day, which you can get in an hour or so in the evening you will make $100 a week.

Maybe You Are Worth $1,000 a Month

Well, here is your chance to find out, for this is the same proposition that enabled George Garon to make a clear profit of $40.00 in his first day's work—the same proposition that gave R. W. Krieger $20.00 net profit in a half hour. It is the same opportunity that gave A. B. Spencer $625 cash for one month's spare time.

I need 500 men and women and I need them right away. If you mail the coupon at the bottom of this ad I will show you the easiest, quickest, simplest plan for making money that you ever heard of. I will send you a complete outfit. I will send you a beautiful style book and samples of cloth. I will tell you where to go, what to say, and how to succeed. Inside of thirty days you can have hundreds of dollars in cash. All you need to do today is write your name down below, cut out the coupon and mail it to me at once. You take no risk, you invest no money, and this may be the one outstanding opportunity of your life to earn more money than you ever thought possible.

Find Out NOW!

Remember, it doesn't cost you a penny. You don't agree to anything, and you will have a chance without waiting—without delay and without investment—to go right out and make big money. Do it. Don't wait. Mail the coupon now.

C. E. COMER

THE COMER MFG. CO.

Dept. SX-611

Dayton, Ohio

My Special Offer to Railroad Men

Mail
This Special Coupon Now

THE COMER MFG. CO.
Dept. SX-611 Dayton, Ohio.

Please send me without expense or obligation, your special proposition, together with complete outfit and instructions, so I can begin at once to earn money.

Name .....

Address .....

Write plainly.

Volume XI

Baltimore, December, 1923

Number 8

Contents

Prides of the Baltimore and Ohio No. 11—Our Smiling Passengers.....	M. T. S. plus C. H. D.	4
Christmas—1923 .....		5
How Will Your 1924 Record Read in 1925? .....	J. C. Wilkins	7
How the Great Guest Came—A Poem .....	Edwin Markham	8
Foremen at Keyser Shops Organize for Greater Efficiency and Invite Officers to Hear Their Plans.....		10
Painter Foreman J. J. McNamara "Makes Hay" While the Sun Shines .....		10
Miss Ward Makes Their Reservations First—Then She Routes Them "Best and Only" .....	J. M. Whealan	11
Why Don't the "Car Mile" Pictures of General Manager Scheer and General Manager Voorhees Appear on These Pages This Month?.....		12
Trains 97 and 94 Are the "Capitol Limited" of Our Freight Service .....		15
A Page from the Traveling Car Agent's Diary .....	E. L. Allnutt	16
Editorial .....		18
Homilies of the Hudson .....	John Newman	19
Annual Meeting of Stockholders .....		20
The Tapestry Weaver—A Poem .....	Margaret Talbott Stevens	22
Women's Department—Edited by Margaret Talbott Stevens
Women's Prize Contest Brings Entries from All Over the System .....		23
These Winter Fashions Make Us Want to Sew in the Long Winter Evenings .....		24
Cornish Riviera Limited Has Longest Non-Stop Run .....	L. E. Scarborough	26
Our Little Railroaders .....	Aunt Mary	27
The Stories That Grandpa Jones Told Me .....		29
Puzzles for the Youngsters .....		29
The Fifty-Ton Santa Claus .....	Frank Kavanaugh	30
Pensioners' Roll of Honor .....		32
Eyes to the Blind .....	H. B. Kight	34
New Class S-1 Locomotive Has 33½ Per Cent. Greater Tractive Power than 4400 and 4600 Series .....	A. G. Sandman	35
The Baltimore and Ohio Better Dairy Sire Special .....	O. K. Quivey	36
Death Ends Long and Honorable Service of George W. Andrews .....	J. E. Barnhart	39
Our Veterans—
When the Baltimore and Ohio Issued "Stock Orders" That Were Used as Currency		40
Garrett "Archaeologist" Finds Freight Rates Today Not Excessive When Compared to Forty Years Ago .....	D. E. Sullivan	41
Safety Department—
Sympathetic Interest in Safety Brings Cordial Response from Employees .....	E. C. Drawbaugh	42
Carry Your Own Load .....	R. H. Patterson	43
What I Have Accomplished as a Safety Committeeman .....	Edward Pennell	43
Safety Roll of Honor .....		45
Cooperation is of Large Benefit to Black Diamond Steamship Corporation and Baltimore and Ohio .....	J. Ross Gould	46
Why Telegraph? .....	C. A. Plumly	48
Little Beatrice Dollinger's Loneliness Made Everybody a Friend on the Capitol Limited .....		48
Among Ourselves .....		51
In the Realm of the Riddle .....	G. H. Pryor	52
Correspondents of Magazine Enjoy Conference in Baltimore on October 26-27, as Guests of Management, and go Home with New Enthusiasm for Their Magazine Work .....		55
Trainmen's Gun Club Host to Baltimore Officers at Wild Duck Feast .....		60

Published monthly at Baltimore, Maryland, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to improve its service to the public and to promote a greater community of interest among its employees. Contributions are welcomed. Manuscripts and photographs will be returned upon request.

THE READER AND ADVERTISING

Circulation of the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine is 50,000 copies per issue, our aim being to place it in the hands and in the homes of practically all English speaking employees of the Railroad. An examination of our advertising will show that it conforms to the highest standards. We do not guarantee it, but we believe that it means exactly what it says, and for that reason feel free to urge our readers to patronize our advertisers whenever they consistently can.

Nothing finer in all Elgin achievement than
The New "B.W. Raymond"
-21 Jewels

THE new "B. W. Raymond" model contains all of the finest and most perfected mechanical principles in watch making.

It may be had with the new "Invar" Balance Wheel if you request your jeweler to get it for you.

The "Invar" Balance Wheel gives a remarkably close rating at all temperatures.

Important—Each movement is carefully timed and regulated in its individual case.

The case has all of the important things a railroad man wants—a new dust proof feature—positive non-pull-out solid gold bow, extra-heavy; and other entirely new desirable features.

If you are in immediate need of this watch speak to your jeweler about it. Elgin Service will take care of him and of you.

ELGIN
The Professional Timekeeper

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH COMPANY, ELGIN, U. S. A.

Prides of The Baltimore and Ohio—No. 11

Gosh, Boss! You eber watch 'em gettin' on an' off our trains?

Dey's smilin' an' dey's happy as kin be—

An' Ah reckon Ah's don' figgered out what's runnin' round deir brains—

Now lissen, an' Ah's shore dat you'll agree:

Dis gent'man's jes' got finished our Commercial Trabbler's Lunch,

An dat one's mouf is set fo' apple pie;

Dat lady's had a pleasant ride, or Ah's done missed ma' hunch—

She's sho' smilin' at de "Cap'n," 'taint no lie.

It seems dey's all like homefolks when dey trabbles on our line,

'Cause dis is wheah Miss Courtesy wuz born,

So dey thinks ob "Best an' Only" when dey thinks ob service fine—

An' dey smile like eb'ry day wuz Chris'mas morn.

M. T. S.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO MAGAZINE

Published monthly at Baltimore, Maryland, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to improve its service to the public and to promote efficiency and community of interest among its employes

VOLUME XI

BALTIMORE, DECEMBER, 1923

NUMBER 8

Christmas-1923

CHRISTMAS, 1923, will be celebrated by the Baltimore and Ohio Family with the deepest consciousness of the blessings bestowed by Peace and Good Will. We may certainly fairly say that an effort has been made during the past twelve months by both Management and men to put into effect the Message of Brotherliness which the Christ Child brought into the world, and it is with a finer appreciation of the real meaning of Christmas that we hail its coming this year.

The Christmas season is preeminently one of happiness. This is its religious significance and this the significance which custom has given it in every age and clime in which it has been celebrated during the last nineteen hundred and twenty-two years.

We pause most fittingly, therefore, to consider some of the more important things that have contributed to our happiness as a great business organization this year, and that have put us so largely in tune with the spirit of our greatest holiday.

A Good Name

It should first be gratifying to all of us to know that we are members of an organization whose name is being increasingly respected and well thought of. Observing people have said, and discerning writers have written, many pleasing things about our old Railroad that have been impressed upon them during the past twelve months. We think that there is something about the typical Baltimore and Ohio man that distinguishes him. He is proud of his Company and he keeps in step with it. He talks about it with pride, too, and what he has said and done has helped bring to it that cherished thing that men call "good reputation."

A Strong Railroad—Physically

Again we should be glad because we are part and parcel of the strongest physical organization that has ever been called "Baltimore and Ohio."

Look at our tracks, locomotives, cars and buildings and tell me if it isn't a fine thing to see in their well kept, neat and durable appearance, the evidence of a healthy and efficient machine.

A Record for Service

This physical well being helps explain another accomplishment which pleases us—that of the service we have been able to give this year—by far the largest and best service that has been given in our ninety-five years' history.

A Year of Prosperity

Coincident with that record of service, of course, though not wholly explained by it, is the measure of prosperity which 1923 has brought to us. This, in itself, explains many pleasing things, among which is the fact that we have been able to resume dividends on the common stock which had been suspended since 1919.

A Growing Railroad Family

Coincident also with that record of service rendered in the handling of the largest volume of business in our history, is the growth we have made as a Railroad family, more employes having been on the payroll, and with a greater steadiness of employment than during any other normal year.

A Year of Steady Work

It is most interesting to know in this connection that, speaking generally, our "labor turnover," a factor in industry most destructive to economical and efficient management, has this year been very low, despite the large demand for men from outside sources.

This is especially noticeable in our Maintenance of Equipment Department, whose normal force is about 20,000 men, but in which, during the spring of this year, about 28,000 were employed to speed up the repair of cars and locomotives.

During June, the improvement in the condition of equipment was so noticeable that the Management felt it necessary to consider the furloughing of a part of this abnormally large force. After careful deliberation, however, it was decided to continue uninterrupted employment as long as possible for the entire Maintenance of Equipment force, but not to employ any new men. This decision was made in the expectation that by the late autumn, when a seasonal decline in business usually comes, enough men would have left the service through natural causes such as change of residence, etc., to reduce the force to the normal figure of about 20,000.

On November 15, however, the volume of business had already shown its seasonal decline, but owing to the unusually small turnover, about 26,000 men were still on the Maintenance of Equipment payroll, the expected decrease to nearer the normal force of 20,000 not having materialized. This shows how few men left the service voluntarily, and certainly indicates a most gratifying degree of contentment in our ranks. It also explains in conjunction with the decrease in business the necessity for the closing of all heavy repair shops for the week of November 26 to December 3, as but recently announced at this writing.

We doubt if during any recent years (except, perhaps, in war times), there has been a steadiness of employment comparable to that of 1923, and this has been possible largely because of our prosperity.

Strengthening Our Resources

Most important of all, however, our prosperity explains the very much stronger financial position of our Company, a fact which is of tremendous significance to every person connected with it. The employe who is far sighted enough to know the value to himself and his family of having something in the bank against a rainy day, will readily see how truly the same situation applies to him as a part of the Railroad.

A Year of Good Will

But the greatest reason why we should be a happy Railroad family this year—and the reason that explains in large part those already mentioned—is that 1923 has been preeminently a year of Good Will among us. The pages of the MAGAZINE have been full of evidences of the friendliness and helpfulness existing between Management and men. Wherever you go on the Railroad—and often at places remote from it—you hear expressed the high esteem in which the rank and file hold the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio for their fairness, consideration and interest in all things affecting employe welfare. And you also hear of the cordial response made by our employes in more efficient work and a more generous measure of service.

The Management is deeply sensible of this and has been equally outspoken in its appreciation of the cooperation of the employes. They recognize it as the underlying reason why we are closing the most prosperous year in our history.

The practical value of Good Will has been amply demonstrated on the Baltimore and Ohio during 1923. What a sensible and desirable thing it is for us all now to resolve that it shall have an even deeper significance during the approaching year, so that when the Christmas paean of Peace and Good Will is sounded in 1924, it may find a sincere response in our lives and hearts.

Real Leak Stopped by Conductor J. Todhunter and Brakeman P. Cool

CONDUCTOR TODHUNTER, Deshler, Ohio, in charge of train No. 88, June 29, advises us that when leaving Bascom, Brakeman Philip Cool observed a car of grain leaking badly. The train was stopped and it was found that grain was running out of the east end of the car. Messrs. Todhunter and Cool secured some waste, stuffed it into the hole and then nailed a board over it, thereby "Stopping a Leak."

Many thousands of dollars are paid each year by the railroads for grain lost in this manner and the close observation of Mr. Cool is commendable, while the interest taken by Mr. Todhunter in stopping the train and assisting in making repairs to the car shows that he is interested in assisting our claim prevention work.

Engine 5203 Rises to Remark—

THE question of long locomotive runs has been given considerable consideration for some time past and experiments of various kinds have been made by many railroads, both in freight and passenger service. Reductions in the number of locomotive changes on a long trip result in economy in many ways and also mean locomotives released for other service.

Important Change in Distributing Magazines on Divisions

An experiment is being made in the interests of economy in the distribution of the MAGAZINE on certain divisions. Heretofore the Magazines have been packed in wooden boxes, which are expensive, easily broken and hard to reclaim. Now we are using heavy canvas bags instead of the wooden boxes. As units the bags are more expensive than the boxes, but it is hoped that they will be returned promptly to the address clearly given on them and that they can be used fifty or more times instead of, as in the case of the boxes, only a few times.

Please help save in the cost of distributing the MAGAZINE by returning these canvas bags promptly. The cooperation of employes will be greatly appreciated in this respect.

An instance of a successful long run on the Baltimore and Ohio occurred during the month of August. Engine 5203, with twelve heavy cars, carrying Veterans and their families returning from the Galloway-Fries celebration, Cincinnati, left Parkersburg, W. Va., at 8.12 a. m. August 24, arriving at Camden Station, Baltimore, at 9.00 p. m. This engine took coal at Clarksburg, W. Va., made the trip to Baltimore and thence returned to Washington. On arrival at Washington there was sufficient coal in the tank to make a run from Washington to Philadelphia.

The ash pans were not cleaned on the trip from Parkersburg to Baltimore and thence to Washington, a distance of approximately 440 miles, and the engine was running cool after approximately thirteen hours continuous service.

Railroad Men

By ELBERT HUBBARD

A RAILROAD man, above all other individuals, should be proud of his occupation. Great responsibilities are resting on him. When he forgets, dire distress may follow. The lives and the treasure and the happiness of a vast number of people are in his keeping.

No matter how menial his occupation, he has an opportunity for serving the public which few people have, and within a few years the consciousness has come to humanity that the highest ideal of every good man is to be a public servant.

TO MY FELLOW WORKERS OF THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO:

It gives me very great pleasure to again greet my fellow workers on the Baltimore and Ohio with Christmas cheer and goodwill.

I take this occasion to express appreciation for your good work and support and to wish you all a happy Christmas and a New Year with the fullest measure of health, happiness and prosperity.

Vice-President Operation and Maintenance

How Will Your 1924 Record Read in 1925?

By J. C. WILKINS, Inspector Fuel Service, Chillicothe, Ohio

(Though Addressed to Superintendents This Incisive Article Applies in Principle to All Officers—Ed.)

SOMETIME in the early part of 1924 the Management will be analyzing operating expenses for the year 1923. This analysis, no doubt, will reveal a few surprises. Superintendent Browman's division will show that he handled the same ton miles with a lesser operating cost than Superintendent Jonley's division—thereby getting "MORE MILES PER DOLLAR." The statistician is going to be asked to explain, and by digesting the different statements is going to find that with the operating conditions, average train load, average time on the road and wages paid being equal, there was LESS COAL and SUPPLIES used on Browman's division than on Jonley's.

If this statistician would then visit the division and make inquiries, as to why Superintendent Browman managed his division more efficiently than Jonley, he would probably find that—

Browman has been taking his division accountant into his confidence—asking questions—getting his opinion.

Browman has been studying his statements intelligently, locating specific wastes or uneconomical operation and correcting the conditions at once.

Browman has his tonnage clerk, chief dispatcher and trainmaster in his office checking train operation; he has his fuel clerk and the road foremen when his fuel performance is not what he thinks it should be. He checks his GS-1 and his passenger performance the same as other superintendents, but he goes just a little farther. He insists on knowing whether the cars moved were handled economically.

He appreciates that COAL and SUPPLIES are the first elements in the cost of OPERATING EXPENSES. He knows the wage cost for a freight train remains the same whether the engine handles 10 cars or 50. He gives every engine, when practical, a full rating, and then watches the coal and supplies consumption, keeping them to the minimum.

When the statistician's report reaches the Management, who will be the superintendent promoted? Of course, the one who got "MORE MILES PER DOLLAR." If you are a member of his staff or in the ranks and have been watching the little leaks for him which helped him get a low operating cost, is he going to take care of you? It is being done every day. You are all familiar with the old saying "It is the little leaks that sink the ship"—Don't let it sink your ship—WATCH THE LEAKS!

A well known manufacturer in advertising his wares used the following argument in presenting his goods: "Open-minded, progressive railroad men are those who think in terms of changing events. They are open-minded. They welcome every opportunity to better present methods and existing equipment."

Our open-minded progressive employees know that the COAL PILE is the one place through which a decreased operating cost can be had. They know there are a hundred comparatively little things that can be done which would tend to create a CHEAPER FUEL COST PER TON MILE, which would mean LESS OPERATING COST and increased net revenue. I am not going to suggest the hundred little things. If I did, it would merely be repeating admonitions voiced over and over.

Everyone knows what a saving can be made in engine and train supplies. Only a few days since I rode with a fireman who had been using the same shovel for four months. If we had more "four months' men" we could make a saving in many things.

Operating statistics show the extent to which your division is efficiently managed and if you will analyze the reports at your command each morning—taking the necessary action—YOUR 1924 RECORD will be a record upon which the Management cannot but pass favorable comment.

Engineer Eberwein a Good Neighbor

WHEN advised of trouble a watchman was having in handling a stationary boiler of an outside concern at 24th and Race Streets, Philadelphia, Engineer W. Eberwein with Engine 77, on arrival at that point, 5.45 p. m., September 22, went to the assistance of the watchman, instructed him in the operation, and corrected a condition which might have resulted in serious damage. Engineer Eberwein has been commended for this action.

MAKE WAY FOR OUR CHRISTMAS GREETINGS!

THIS is the largest issue of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE ever published. We feel, however, that the necessary increased cost is warranted by the fact that the extra space has given us the opportunity of publishing the holiday greetings which practically every department and division head is sending to the employees under his supervision.

This issue is also devoted in large part to the impressions which the correspondents of the MAGAZINE received at the Conference of Correspondents held in Baltimore on October 26 and 27 and at which important questions of policy were discussed by President Willard and other officers.

The MAGAZINE is the one and only medium of expression reaching all officers and employees of the Road each month. It is used freely by the Management to keep us all promptly informed concerning important activities, and we feel that no officer or employee can be fully informed about what is going on unless he reads the MAGAZINE. Therefore we urge a more careful study of its pages from month to month in the belief that it can be made an even more potent instrument on the Railroad toward a common understanding of our activities and problems and, with this accomplished, toward a realization of Baltimore and Ohio ideals of service, contentment and prosperity.

THE EDITOR

How The Great Guest Came

By Edwin Markham.

Before the Cathedral in grandeur rose,
At Ingelburg where the Danube goes;
Before its forest of silver spires
Went airily up to the clouds and fires;
Before the oak had ready a beam,
While yet the arch was stone and dream—
There where the altar was later laid,
Conrad the cobbler plied his trade.

* * *

It happened one day at the year's white end,
Two neighbors called on their old-time friend;
And they found the shop so meagre and mean,
Made gay with a hundred boughs of green.
Conrad was stitching with face ashine,
But suddenly stopped as he twitched a twine:
"Old friends, good news! At dawn today,
As the cocks were scaring the night away,

The Lord appeared in a dream to me,
And said, 'I am coming your Guest to be.'
So I've been busy with feet astir,
Strewing the floor with branches of fir.
The wall is washed and the shelf is shined,
And over the rafter the holly twined.
He comes today and the table is spread
With milk and honey and wheaten bread."

* * *

His friends went home and his face grew still
As he watched for the shadow across the sill.
He lived all the moments o'er and o'er,
When the Lord should enter the lowly door —

The knock, the call, the latch pulled up.
 The lighted face, the offered cup.
 He would wash the feet where the spikes had been;
 He would kiss the hands where the nails went
 in;
 And then at the last would sit with Him
 And break the bread as the day grows dim.

* * *

While the cobbler mused, there passed his pane
 A beggar drenched by the driving rain.
 He called him in from the stony street
 And gave him shoes for his bruised feet.
 The beggar went and there came a crone,
 Her face with wrinkles of sorrow sown.
 A bundle of fagots bowed her back,
 And she was spent with the wrench and rack.

He gave her his loaf and steadied her load
 As she took her way on the weary road.
 Then to his door came a little child,
 Lost and afraid in the world so wild,
 In the big, dark world. Catching it up,
 He gave it the milk in the waiting cup,
 And led it home to its mother's arms,
 Out of the reach of the world's alarms.

* * *

The day went down in the crimson west
 And with it the hope of the blessed Guest,
 And Conrad sighed as the world turned gray:
 "Why is it, Lord, that your feet delay?
 Did You forget that this was the day?"
 Then soft in the silence a Voice he heard:
 "Lift up your heart, for I kept my word.
 Three times I came to your friendly door;
 Three times my shadow was on your floor.
 I was the beggar with bruised feet;
 I was the woman you gave to eat;
 I was the child on the homeless street."

Foremen at Keyser Shops Organize for Greater Efficiency and Invite Officers to Hear Their Plans

DURING the latter part of October the foremen at our shops at Keyser started their Efficiency and Cooperation Organization. Its purpose, in brief, is to get a clearer understanding of the work, to compare data so that the activities of the respective departments can be better coordinated, to meet periodically with the supervision of the Keyser shops, to suggest new and improved methods, and to keep the rank and file promptly informed concerning the planning of work, schedules, output, etc.

For their meeting of November 20, this organization invited a number of Motive Power Department officers from Baltimore, including Chief of Motive Power Emerson, General Superintendent Motive Power Carroll, Superintendent Motive Power Gill, Superintendent of Car Shops Tatum, District Superintendent Motive Power Galloway and District Master Car Builder Calder.

When this party arrived at Keyser at 5.00 o'clock, they were ushered into automobiles and taken on a beautiful ride through the West Virginia mountains to the quiet little village of Burlington, where, after being introduced all around, they sat down, forty-seven in all, to a delicious turkey dinner.

Agent K. H. Stover was the toastmaster and after briefly setting forth the purposes of the organization, he introduced Mr. Emerson as the first speaker.

Mr. Emerson expressed his pleasure in being at the meeting and also in knowing the very commendable purpose it embodied, and said that he was sure that by their action the foremen of the Keyser shops had begun a movement which would be of lasting benefit not only locally, but also over the entire System as the idea grew.

He said that it was the wish of the Baltimore and Ohio to be able to produce such efficient work in the Motive Power Department that, as time went along, more and more work would be given to our own employes—work which heretofore has been done by outside shops. In this way, he stated the Railroad wished to make a direct contribution toward a greater stability of employment among our forces and he promised that the plan would be extended and intensified as the results of the work in the shops warranted.

He explained that it was of just as much interest to the Company to maintain normal forces and to eliminate furloughs as it was to the men, because it is well recognized by all trained observers in shop work that furloughing inevitably means certain losses in skilled workers and the breaking up of that homogeneous organization so essential to the greatest efficiency; therefore, that the Management would welcome any movement made among officers and employes to develop an efficiency which would make it possible for more work to be put into our shops during dull seasons and hence to stabilize employment.

Other helpful addresses were given by Mr. Carroll, Mr. Tatum, Mr. Gill, Mr. Galloway and Mr. Calder for the visitors and by Foreman A. K. Bazzle, chairman of the organization, Superintendent of Shops Stanley, Assistant Master Mechanic Dixon and Attorney Tyler.

At Mr. Emerson's suggestion a unanimous vote of thanks was tendered the foremen for the pleasant evening, and at Mr. Stover's suggestion, to Mr. Harrison, the proprietor of the hotel, for his hospitality.

The committee in charge of the affair consisted of A. K. Bazzle, C. W. Farley, E. C. Kight, J. H. Shaffer, W. D. Wright, and R. H. Spotts.

The foremen present were A. K. Bazzle, C. Inskeep, J. H. Shaffer, H. C. Cook, P. Naughton, J. B. Gillum, W. E. Wageley, L. E. Kolkhorst, C. E. Hixenbaugh, E. T. Kessel, W. V. Kimble, T. R. Brown, C. W. Farley, W. G. Gordon, J. L. Heishman, T. C. Thompson, W. D. Wright, R. H. Spotts, E. M. Clevenger, W. B. Kesner, R. A. Stoutamyer, G. R. Litten, W. H. Kolkhorst, W. J. Kolkhorst, W. J. Constable, M. L. Shomo, J. H. Riley, C. B. Gosnell, J. C. Smith, Sr., O. T. Hilburn, E. C. Kight, W. H. Ravenscroft, L. O. Kesner, W. H. Longsdorf, E. T. Kessel and A. L. Miller.

The secretary of the foremen's organization is C. B. Gosnell, to whom we are indebted for this interesting account of the meeting.

Painter Foreman J. J. McNamara "Makes Hay" while the Sun Shines

Painter Foreman J. J. McNamara attended the Mechanical Department section of the meeting of the Master Car and Locomotive Painters of the A. R. A. in Cleveland on September 4, 5 and 6. There he met the sales manager of one of the largest paint companies in the United States. McNamara is nothing if not a Baltimore and Ohio booster and what he told the sales manager about on time trains, fast service, and the desire of all employes of the Baltimore and Ohio to give shippers the utmost satisfaction, proved to be seed in fertile soil.

The sales manager said that most of his paint was shipped via another railroad and intimated that the service could be better. Mr. McNamara just kept on talking Baltimore and Ohio! And the result was that he received a letter dated September 7 from his new friend reading as follows:

"We have today instructed our Traffic Manager at Philadelphia to route the next two cars of material from Blank, New Jersey, to Chicago via Baltimore and Ohio.

"A little later I will be able to give you more definite information as to the amount of this tonnage you may expect.

"With all good wishes, I am,

Yours very truly, Etc."

Naturally, we do not quote the exact location of this plant nor the names of the principals. Mr. McNamara suggests a new field for business getting. When meeting the representatives of large shippers at railway conventions why not tell them that you believe Baltimore and Ohio service is the best service and thus show them the right way?

Record from first trip, May 13, to December 1, 1923

Miss Ward Makes Their Reservations First—Then She Routes Them “Best and Only”

By J. M. WHEALAN, Accountant, Engineering Department, Pittsburgh

SPEAKING of gathering business for the Railroad, just focus your attention on the record which has been made by Miss Margaret Ward, of our Department. All this business was secured by her unaided. She is at all times ready to boost the “Best and Only.”

January, 1923. The Misses Deltombe, Pittsburgh to Los Angeles.

June, 1923. Mrs. Sloss and Miss Freil, Pittsburgh to Los Angeles and return.

July, 1923. Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Murrin and Miss Olive Keck, Pittsburgh to Los Angeles and return, via the Capitol Limited, with an additional fare on the return trip.

And here is the idea of Miss Ward's which is worthy of emulation by all of us. For instance, Mr. and Mrs. Murrin and Miss Keck had definitely decided to travel via a rival line, and you know in this district, at least, there is a lot of that done through force of habit. Miss Ward, however, before approaching Mr. Murrin on the question of using the line, had thoughtfully provided herself with Pullman reservations for the entire party.

Now I ask you, could anyone resist that kind of service? Naturally Mr. Murrin decided to try our line, and the result is that he and his party came back strong boosters for the Railroad and the service it offers.

Get them acquainted with the Road and then you won't have to worry about which road they are going to use.

“The Road of Might and Right”

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Third Assistant Postmaster General

Washington, July 19, 1923

Mr. J. C. McCahan

Mgr., Mail and Express Traffic Dept.
Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co.
Baltimore, Maryland

My Dear Mr. McCahan:—

Have just returned to my desk after a five weeks' trip as far west as the coast. Mrs. Glover also returned with me, and, from Washington to Chicago and return, we traveled on the Baltimore and Ohio. It is the road of might and the road of right, and everything connected with it is all right and that is why so many people use it.

Thank you for sending me additional advertising features. They are very good.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) W. IRVING GLOVER

Grain Prices and Railroad Rates

CRUCIFYING the railroads or shooting them at sunrise or turning them over to government operation will not alter the fact that wheat went DOWN 10 to 15 cents a bushel in a year and corn went UP approximately 20 to 25 cents in the same time and under precisely the same transportation conditions.

To explain this circumstance you will have to drag in some element other than transportation rates and malevolent Wall Street conspiracies...

There is a villain at large oppressing the farmer, but at present Wall Street and the railroads have an unimpeachable alibi.

—Editorial, Urbana (Ill.) Courier

Why Don't the "Car Mile" Pictures of Manager Voorhees Appear on

Well—it's for just this reason!

The new pictures had been drawn (we had to have new ones because the Western Lines jumped into the lead for Actual Car Miles for October, having 31.3 Miles per Car per Day, as against the Eastern Lines' record of 30.3) and they showed Mr. Voorhees with the smile of leadership, and Mr. Scheer with the——

(On second thought we'd better not attempt to describe him except to say that his whole demeanor was in keeping with his attire, which was collarless, tieless and vestless, and with spikes sticking out about two inches from the soles of his shoes. He was certainly getting set for a mighty wallop with the sledge hammer on Car Miles.)

But when President Willard saw the pictures, he said:

"We can use these pages to better advantage this month than by running the hammer design. Increasing Average Miles per Car per Day is always important as a means of bettering operations, but just now the supply of cars is ample to meet all demands. In fact, there is a small surplus because of the seasonal decline in business that we are experiencing and which has made it necessary for us to reduce car and locomotive maintenance expenditures by putting our heavy repair forces on part time.

"That is the situation we are most interested in now, and I wish we could use these two pages to show clearly how by filling those surplus cars, we could put the shop maintenance forces back on full time, or prevent the necessity of further curtailment.

"I suppose there isn't an employe of the Baltimore and Ohio, who, if shown how, by the exercise of a little effort on his own part, he could create enough business to keep a fellow employe—even of another department or at another point on the Railroad—on full time instead of part time, but would be glad to do so.

"Yet that is exactly what can be done if we all try hard enough.

"At all times, whether during a heavy or just a normal movement of business, a certain amount of traffic is routed Baltimore and Ohio. That is the part of the total business offered at points which we serve which may properly be called 'our share.' Obviously, all rail business at non-competitive points on the Baltimore and Ohio has to be routed over our line. Then there is business which may be expected to move our way because of the better local facilities, such as sidings, yards, etc., that we have, as compared with those of competing roads.

"But there is a vast amount of business moved from competitive points where the facilities of the several railroads are equally or nearly equally adequate. At such places, the controlling factors in the routing of the business are, first, the kind of service given, and second, just how strongly the advantages of the competing services are presented to the shippers. We can, I am sure, offer a service at most places like these, as careful, courteous and generally dependable as any other, and, of course, the rates are the same. The amount of business that we actually get at such places therefore largely depends on how we present the service of the Baltimore and Ohio to shippers.

General Manager Scheer and General These Pages This Month?

"The same general principles apply in an even more marked degree in the case of our passenger business, because, although some of us may not be in a position to secure competitive freight for our line, there are few of us who cannot point out to friends and acquaintances the courtesy, cleanliness and dependability which they will, I am sure, find on our passenger trains.

"It would be a fine proof of our ability to help each other on the Baltimore and Ohio if, during the period of decreased business now fairly general throughout the country, all of us would use our personal influence with shippers and passengers to such an extent that surplus cars would be turned into loaded cars, and these into moving trains that would mean steady work for normal forces in all departments.

"The Veterans, I am told, have already been advised of the condition of business and asked to help in the same splendid way they did in 1921. I believe that what they and other employees did then is simply an earnest of what can be done now if we all try."

This message of President Willard hardly needs amplifying—and yet we venture to give one or two suggestions.

First, please remember that in each copy of the MAGAZINE you will find a "Traffic Solicitation" postcard. You can send a tip on any freight or passenger business you know of by simply filling in one of these cards and dropping into the Railroad mail.

Perhaps you would rather secure the business yourself—like some of the employees whose accomplishments in this respect are described on nearby pages in this issue. These reports are suggestive and well worth reading.

Another interesting story of the way a certain employe gets business has just come in: He lives in a small town in West Virginia and was asked to buy a kitchen cabinet by the agent of a Chicago firm. He did so—then asked how it would be shipped.

"By the Blank R. R.," said the agent, mentioning a competing line.

"Don't want it then," said the employe. "Send it by MY Road and I'll take it."

He paid for the kitchen cabinet only when he saw the freight bill for it—and made out by HIS OWN Road.

What cannot be done by the effort of a single employe may often be accomplished easily by a group. A half-dozen Baltimore and Ohio men who trade at the same store can in most cases persuade the owner that it will pay him to specify our dependable service for the long haul when ordering his goods.

There are plenty of reasons why a shipper will prefer Baltimore and Ohio service once he tries it—Dependability, Courtesy, Promptness and Personal Interest. Our Operating Department will "deliver the goods" if we get the business on our line.

The Magazine hopes during the next few months to have a large number of stories to publish about the "Business Go-Getters" of the Baltimore and Ohio. LET'S GO!

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY

Relief Department—Advisory Committee

Conducting Transportation Department

L. W. GRAHAM.....	Operator.....	Kanawha Station, W. Va.
CHARLES H. CRAWFORD.....	Yard Brakeman.....	Glenwood, Pa.
GEORGE G. JAMES.....	Conductor.....	Baltimore, Md.
JOHN F. WUNNER.....	Clerk.....	New York, N. Y.

Motive Power Department

K. W. GEIDENBERGER.....	Pipefitter.....	Newark, Ohio.
WILLIAM E. HODEL.....	Material Man.....	Grafton, W. Va.
P. J. HARRIGAN.....	Mechanical Examiner.....	Connellsville, Pa.
J. W. ALBERTS.....	Machinist.....	Chicago, Ill.

Maintenance of Way Department

W. A. EVANS.....	Section Foreman.....	Louis, Ill.
M. D. CAROTHERS.....	Asst. Engineer Maintenance.....	Chicago, Ill.
F. A. TAYLOR.....	Master Carpenter.....	Cumberland, Md.
F. M. NOLDER.....	Section Foreman.....	Westboro, Ohio.

Statement of Pension Feature

Employees who have been honorably retired during the month of October, 1923, and to whom pensions have been granted:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	YEARS OF SERVICE
Baker, Willard R.....	Telegraph Operator.....	Conducting Transportation...	Ohio.....	17
Breece, Henry C.....	Foreman.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Chicago.....	23
Davis, Robert S.....	Lumber Handler.....	Stores.....	Baltimore.....	37
Drake, Thomas F.....	Trackman.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Chicago.....	30
McBrayer, John P.....	Crossing Watchman.....	Conducting Transportation...	Toledo.....	17
Walsh, Martin J.....	Carpenter.....	Maintenance of Way.....	Baltimore, E. E..	26
Wiley, James T.....	Operator and Clerk.....	Conducting Transportation...	Toledo.....	47

The payments to pensioned employees constitute a special roll contributed by the Company.

During the calendar year 1922, $400,008.10 was paid out through the Pension Feature to those who have been honorably retired.

The total payments since the inauguration of the Pension Feature, October 1, 1884 to August 31, 1923 amount to $5,314,030.20.

The following pensioned employees, after serving the Company faithfully for a number of years, have died:

NAME	LAST OCCUPATION	DEPARTMENT	DIVISION	DATE OF DEATH	YEARS OF SERVICE
Brendel, Charles.....	Telegraph Operator..	Conducting Transportation	Monongah...	October 20, 1923..	43
Hall, William C.....	Car Repairman.....	Motive Power.....	Newark.....	September 25, 1923	23
McCaffrey, Hugh I...	Engineman.....	Conducting Transportation	Baltimore...	October 1, 1923...	23
Monroe, William C...	Stevedore.....	Conducting Transportation	Baltimore...	October 2, 1923...	28
O'Neil, Bernard J...	Watchman.....	Conducting Transportation	Pittsburgh...	October 6, 1923...	28
Pedrick, Franklin...	Engineman.....	Conducting Transportation	Baltimore...	October 4, 1923...	42
Paul, Lyman G.....	Special Agent.....	Passenger.....	St. Louis.....	September 29, 1923	20
Pettet, Taylor J.....	Cabinet Maker.....	Motive Power.....	Cumberland..	October 11, 1923..	38
Rowland, William H..	Laborer.....	Motive Power.....	Monongah...	October 23, 1923..	45
Woodson, Andrew J...	Tinner.....	Motive Power.....	Baltimore...	October 12, 1923..	37

Trains 97 and 94 Are the "Capitol Limited" of Our Freight Service

And Their Record Performances Make Them as Unconditionally Worthy of Our Recommendation

WHEN you go into a large store to purchase a dress or suit of clothes, do you ever think of the extent to which Freight Transportation enters into the make up of these articles?

When you buy a suit of clothes, do you know where the buttons come from? Do you know that on the west coast of South America in a country called Ecuador, there grows a substance known as vegetable ivory?

Vegetable ivory grows on short, stumpy trees, in the form of a hard, solid nut, about the size of a plum or a little larger. It is shipped from there by steamer; its home is in the interior of the country. The natives pick it, and as they have no rail transportation, they fill small sacks with nuts, and either carry them, or load them on burros or mules for movement to the coast. Arriving at the coast, the nuts are placed in strong bags for the steamer transportation to Italy, France, Spain and other countries.

Steamers touching at South American coast ports cannot get to the shore; there are no docks, therefore they anchor some distance out and small sailing vessels are loaded with sacks of "tagua" as it is called, perhaps 40 to 60 sacks in each one, then they are taken out to the vessel and loaded. Imagine loading 2000 tons of vegetable ivory this way. Sometimes ocean going steamers will be detained at small coast ports, between Guayaquil, Ecuador and Panama, two days and three nights loading cargo in this manner for Europe. On arrival at its destination, the vegetable ivory is made into buttons and other articles and shipped again all over the world in the manufactured article. The natives also use it for making small ornaments for sale to tourists and others.

Your silk dress perhaps came from Japan, or perhaps from the silk worms of France; your cotton goods from the looms of Manchester, or other English industrial centers. Your English cloth suit is made from wool grown on sheep in the Scottish Hills, Australia or New Zealand. Perhaps you are desirous of securing a special set of silverware for your table, made only in Sheffield, and so on.

Transportation is needed to bring all these things to you. First you have, in the more backward countries, the movement on the backs of natives or mules, then a rail journey to the coast, then perhaps a short distance in a sail boat or canoe to the steamer, then the ocean voyage, and then when the shipment arrives—perhaps in New York—you need the Baltimore and Ohio or other railroad to bring the finished article or material to your city, town or village.

Passenger service is important. It is SEEN, and the courteous and efficient service given by our passenger employes often results in patrons routing freight our way. But freight service is equally important. Our patron ships a car of freight, or a small shipment. If it is delayed in transit what he considers an unreasonable length of time; the natural result is that he feels that if we cannot handle his freight promptly, he does not want to use our passenger service. Therefore, one service is not more important than the other.

The Baltimore and Ohio fast freight service is well known to our patrons in the territory over which we operate, but perhaps is not so well known to the general run of our employes and a little description may be of interest. Trains known as Nos. 97 and 94 are operated between New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Columbus, Toledo and Pittsburgh and vice versa, in as many sections as may be required.

Train 97 is operated in as many sections as are required from St. George, our New York terminal, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Potomac Yard, Washington. These sections all go to Brunswick where they are switched and classified into solid sections for Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland, Toledo and Pittsburgh. The various sections are operated so as to make fourth morning delivery at Chicago, Toledo and St. Louis from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, and third morning delivery at Cincinnati, Columbus, Cleveland and Pittsburgh. The same schedules are maintained throughout the year.

During the month of July, cars handled on Train 97 reached their destinations in time for 7.00 a. m. delivery as follows: Chicago, 29; St. Louis, 29; Columbus, 29; Cleveland, 21; Pittsburgh, 31.

Train 94 operates eastbound and during the period from April 1 to December 1 it is handled so as to make third morning delivery of perishable freight at eastern destinations such as New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington. There is one section of this train operated from St. Louis to Cumberland, where it consolidates with train 94 from Chicago. As many sections as necessary are run daily from Chicago and Toledo to Willard, where they are classified and consolidated according to destinations, into sections for various destinations. Leaving Willard, Train 94-A is made up of perishable freight destined to points east of Cumberland; Pittsburgh train 94 is made up of both perishable and quick dispatch freight and is operated for second morning delivery from Chicago to Pittsburgh; while Train 94-B consists of merchandise and quick dispatch freight, other than perishable, and is operated for fourth morning delivery in eastern cities.

During the month of July, freight on Train 94 was delivered in time for 7.00 a. m. delivery: at Cumbo (for freight via P. & R. and its connections beyond) 31; Baltimore, 31; Philadelphia, 30; New York, 28.

The foregoing short description of the operation of Baltimore and Ohio fast freight service will doubtless be of interest to all employes and of use in discussing with patrons the merits of our service.

Only An Immigrant

But Our Policemen Searched a Division's Right of Way and Found Her Lost Purse

A YOUNG lady, lately arrived in America, has recently been introduced to Baltimore and Ohio service. That it has her recommendation can be best judged by the citing of the following incident:

While a passenger in immigrant coach attached to Train No. 15 on April 4, and in the vicinity of Alpsville, Pa., she unfortunately dropped from the window her purse containing U. S. and English currency, which represented the greater part of her worldly possessions.

The conductor reported the loss to one of our Railroad police officers who was aboard the train. He requested Company police of the Pittsburgh Division to make a thorough search along the right-of-way, with result that the lost purse was soon recovered. It was at once forwarded to Chicago, her chosen home, and it was delivered to her by a police representative shortly after her arrival in that city.

The appreciation shown by her warrants us in stating that the Baltimore and Ohio has made yet another friend.

A Page from the Traveling Car Agent's Diary

By

E. L. ALLNUTT, Trainmaster
Pittsburgh, Pa.

HAVING secured several pages of a friendly car agent's diary and having in mind the numerous appeals made to the staff by our officers to increase car mileage, decrease engine hours and damage to equipment and raise the standard of efficiency in general on our System, it seemed to me that to quote a few lines may be of interest. It goes without saying that the irregularities referred to in this article did not occur on the Baltimore and Ohio.

The lines I shall quote read as follows:

Arrived at "B" on May 1, 1915, gave the General Yardmaster's force and office the "once over." Train from

"C" pulled into yard. Yard clerk looked over bills prior to going out to chalk train. He called across room to chief clerk, "This baby has five foreigners without home route." The chief clerk replied, "I'll be—, that bunch at 'C' does not know what a home route card looks like. I'll write those birds up strong one of these days." The chief clerk then displays considerable feeling and calls to yard clerk, "Don't go to sleep over 'em, get busy and chalk the train. I'll look after the home routes if I ever get to it."

Before we quote more of the diary, let us see just what happened. The train was chalked, bills placed in box ready for delivery to Agent's Office and home routes for the five cars were lost sight of entirely. This must inevitably result in delay to cars waiting for home routes when they are returned from the industries to the yard. This, of course, did not happen on the Baltimore and Ohio. Our general officers have spent so much time coaching our men and getting out literature on this subject, that all our people know how to handle such matters to avoid delay and confusion. I quote again from the diary:

Messenger brings in a number of bills from Agent's Office, together with switch list covering cars at Freight House. Yard clerk receipts for bills without checking; messenger returns to Agent's Office. Yardmaster comes in two hours later in a hurry for switch list; engine and crew are waiting; they are delayed twenty minutes while yard clerk checks bills against switch list—which should have been done when bills were placed upon his desk. He discovers three cars of merchandise on switch list for which bills were not furnished and tells the yardmaster who says, "Well, your switch list shows destinations." It is Saturday evening, the Agent's Office is closed. They call agent at home and find he is out. They call bill clerk and find he is out, too. The yardmaster meantime has been using some language which, for obvious reasons, we will omit. However, he gives instructions to bill cars per switch list and so they go forward on memo billing.

About this time, the yard clerk returns after checking hold track and tells the chief clerk that he has nine empty foreign cars there and no home route for any of them. The chief clerk refers to record and finds that the cars came to him early in the week from "C" without home routes, were placed at industries, unloaded and returned to yard empty yesterday morning—no home route having been requested yet. He casually remarks, "Well, can't do anything now, Saturday night. They will have to ride over 'till Monday."

Seven p. m. to dinner and then to the movies. After the movies took a walk to the Yard Office, 10.30 p. m., when a bright looking live wire conductor came in and said to the yardmaster, "Bill, I have 49 for the interchange. I can make that before twelve o'clock. Shop track is pulled and classified. I can fill the shop track after I deliver the forty-nine to the interchange. The yardmaster replied, "Never mind the interchanges, they are not in the way. Spot the shop track. So long as I get those cars to the interchange before the 'Old Man' comes round in the morning, that is all I care for." (Forty nine perfectly good dollars lost to his company.)

Sunday morning to church: afternoon and evening out on pleasure trip. Monday morning at 9.00 a. m. paid a visit to the car distributor. As I entered his office, he appeared to be on the war path. After he had cooled down, I asked him why the rage? "Oh," he replied, "the people at 'B' send three cars of merchandise out on No. 99 Saturday night on memo bills. The cars have not been worked at the Freight House and through some error they were listed on a switch list as merchandise for 'G' and the yardmaster, thinking that bills had been overlooked, took a chance, ordered memo bills made for them and now they are four hundred miles from here and still going. The air will be blue when the 'Old Man' gets hold of it."

During the afternoon I took a trip with the yardmaster over a part of his industrial district with a switch crew that was serving the industries. Our first stop was at Jones' Coal Yard. The conductor said to the yardmaster, "There's an empty coaler on the rear of Jones' track. I'll just pass that baby up today. Saves me a switch, and probably tomorrow or next day the one ahead of it will be empty." "Well," said the yardmaster, "you know the 'Old Man' raises Ned about coal cars, but let 'er go, no one will see it back there."

So we placed the two cars of coal for Mr. Jones, leaving the empty that many a mine operator would be glad to get.

The next industry was Jim Snyder's Lumber Yard. As we had nothing for Friend Snyder and there were only three empties on his track—two foreign and one good system merchandise car—they were passed up, to be gotten out at some more convenient time in the future. This was done in the face of the fact that the Freight House was ten cars short for merchandise loading this morning. This fact I casually mentioned to the yardmaster, who replied, "Well, we ought to be able to fix them tomorrow probably."

Our next stop was at John Smith's Feed Store. Friend Smith proved to be a pleasant individual, right there with the glad hand and a big cigar for the yardmaster, and the crew, also one for me when I was introduced. While Mr. Smith was passing the cigar to me with one hand, he was gracefully holding a burning match to the cigar held by the conductor, with the other. As soon as he thought the aroma of the two for twenty five was producing a soothing effect upon the yardmaster, he gave him a friendly slap on the back and said, "You have four cars of bran for me, I guess. Now I have five good empty box cars and there is just room for the nine on the switch. I need five box cars for loading Thursday and those five now on the switch will fit in fine for that shipment. Of course, I don't want any demurrage, but you can fix that and I know you will. How about it, old sport?" The yardmaster hesitated a moment and finally said, "Let's see, this is Monday. Are you sure you will load them Thursday?" "You know me, Bill," replied the affable Mr. Smith. "Alright,"

"hurry for switch list"

"Called across room"

"They'll have to ride over"

"Never mind those"

"You can fix that"

replied the yardmaster, and the five empty cars were left idle from Monday until Thursday—two of them until Saturday, as I afterwards learned by telephone. No questions were asked as to whether Mr. Smith could unload the four cars that we placed, and reload them, nor did the yardmaster make any inquiries as to the destination of the five prospective loads, in order that he might furnish five cars routing to suit the shipments and save back haul in returning empties.

At this point the yardmaster and I left the switching crew and returned to the yard, arriving at the coal tipple just as one of the crews was about to place six cars of company coal on the tipple. On the storage track where company coal is held, there were four foreign cars in the first six, three of the foreigners eight days old. Just as this crew was about to place the six cars on the tipple, another crew came from the lower yard with five system cars, all recently arrived. The yardmaster halted operations for a few moments and instead of placing the six old cars, four of which were foreign, he ordered the five system new arrivals placed, leaving the four foreigners for a few days longer. Investigation developed that thirty-two system new arrivals had been run around the four foreigners.

As the switch engine was about to leave the tipple with six good coalers, the yardmaster asked the conductor what about cars for the cinder pit. The conductor replied that he had seven non-revenue cinder cars on track 62 which he was going to take down with him to place. The yardmaster then told his conductor to place the six cars he had taken from the tipple at the cinder pit. The conductor protested, saying that the "Old Man" had told him only a short time ago that he wanted no more good coal cars placed for loading at the cinder pit as long as there were non-revenue cars available. The yardmaster replied, "That's alright, the 'Old Man' is on his vacation now, he's not worrying about us." And so the five perfectly good coalers were placed for cinder loading and the seven non-revenue cars continued to take up room in a crowded yard. This in the face of a coal car shortage.

Walked to lower end of yard with yardmaster. Assistant yardmaster called to him, "I have a south bound called for 4.00 p. m. and yard clerk tells me there is a light wooden flat near the middle of train. Conductor 'Pete' Alexander is called for the run. He is a swell 'guy' and never kicks about anything. Believe I'll take a chance and let her ride, saves me a long switch." The yardmaster replied, "Guess she'll ride there, let her go if you think he won't make a stand and tie the works up," and the light wood, poorly constructed flat was allowed to go out near the center of a tonnage train.

4.30 p. m. to dinner, then to the movies.

Dropped in at the Chief Dispatcher's Office at 10.45 p. m. and found the chief excited, making arrangements to detour Nos. 6, 10, 27 and 49 over a foreign line from "B" to a point beyond "C" and cancelling several freight crews that had been called both at "B" and "C." After the chief came down to earth, I asked him what the trouble was, and he replied, "Oh, those people at 'B' let a wood flat go out near the middle of a drag. Guess the engineer was practicing with his E. T. brake in making a stop at block near Jeffersonville. The flat car buckled and raised the mischief. Twelve cars piled up, both tracks blocked, broke the flagman's arm, injured the conductor. Just got No. 6 stopped in time to avert piling into the wreckage."

Now, after reading our friend's diary, it would be interesting to know how many trainmasters, assistant trainmasters, general yardmasters and assistants on the Baltimore and Ohio have been guilty of any of the irregularities mentioned.

Arthur Brisbane, one of the best known editorial writers of the day, said recently that no man was ever known to do his full duty for one whole day. Brisbane is a brilliant man but let us hope he is not well acquainted with Baltimore and Ohio employees.

The writer heard one of our general officers say at a meeting recently that every man on his territory appeared to put forth a little less effort than his boss. There were present a number of local officers and we have frequently wondered since that time how many of them have put forth their best efforts to the end that our general officer may wish to retract the statement. I am positive that the officer mentioned would not only be glad to retract it, but that nothing would give him more pleasure than to feel justified in doing so. I am just as positive that the statement will never be retracted until those to whom it was addressed make up their minds to deliver the goods better than ever before. All who heard the statement know it is correct. Personally, I will never feel satisfied until all our officers who feel this way have been compelled by the class of service rendered by their subordinates, to change their minds. With that in view, I suggest this:

Let every employe who reads these lines work just fifteen minutes longer each day for thirty days. It is not necessary to remain at his office, or on his train, or other place of duty.

This extra time can best be applied in your room after your "tour of duty" has been completed. Take out your note book and pencil and devote the fifteen minutes to thought and study. Review your day's work entirely, ask yourself what irregularities you have permitted or committed, what little things you have failed to attend to that needed attention; make a note of all such items and start the next day with them in your mind and with grim determination that at the end of the day there will be no notes to make. Do this for thirty days. Do it conscientiously and at the end of thirty days I predict that not only will our general and executive officers take their hats off to you, but that you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you are working for the most efficiently operated railroad on the continent.

A disturber of the peace

The Editor's Turn Table

BALTIMORE AND OHIO MAGAZINE

OFFICE: Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md.

ROBERT M. VAN SANT, Editor

MARGARET TALBOTT STEVENS, Associate Editor

M. W. JONES, Assistant Editor

CHARLES H. DICKSON, Art Editor

HERBERT D. STITT, Staff Artist

GEORGE B. LUCKEY, Staff Photographer

This Sounds Almost Too Good to be True

A. E. Erich, secretary to the superintendent, Ohio Division, stated in his notes of a recent issue that each pound of coal burned on engines on his division makes enough steam to haul one ton of freight six miles. And he is right.

Wonder if some of those who accuse the railroads of great inefficiency should read and understand the import of this statement, they would not change their tune.

"A pound of coal burned converts water into enough steam to move a ton of freight six miles." That is putting the same statement somewhat differently. Read it again!

Put the easiest moving vehicle you can think of on a good, level railroad track and load it with a ton of any kind of freight you want—then pull or push it yourself six miles, and you'll have a better idea of what that pound of coal does on the Ohio Division.

The explanation of so remarkable a performance lies in railroad efficiency, in scientific economy devices on engines, in large capacity cars, in heavy train loads, and in keeping cars moving. It lies in the intensive and unremitting study being given by railroad officers and men to produce transportation at the lowest possible cost.

An Embarrassing Situation Saved by Tact

Insisting that the letter of the law be obeyed is sometimes embarrassing. For instance, in certain states the law demands that signs be posted in railroad coaches prohibiting spitting on the floor. Most railroad coaches display these signs, yet how frequently is the law disobeyed and how infrequently is any attempt made to enforce it. It is a good law, because every intelligent person knows that promiscuous spitting in public places and particularly in enclosures which are frequently crowded, is insanitary and fraught with possibilities of spreading disease. It would unquestionably be a good thing if this common sense rule were more generally observed, but before strict enforcement is practicable a lot of people will have to be taught the menace of the practice.

There is a certain building on our Road which contains a club room in which large numbers of men congregate. It is maintained by the Railroad for the comfort of employes. Naturally the comfort of most people is not promoted by promiscuous expectorating on the floor of the room which they use for social purposes. A "No-Spitting" sign suggests this fact in big black letters, but some of the frequenters of the place do not seem to "get it," for promiscuous spitting has been a plague at that place for years, or rather was a plague until a couple of months ago when a man with some real, constructive ideas, with a determination to better the condition of the place, and with a knowledge of human nature, took hold of the job.

From opening until closing time he stationed a man in the room with a wet mop. Whenever anybody spit on the floor this man moved right over to the spot, cleaned it up with the mop and then waited for the next offender. In three days the nuisance had been abated and that without a cross word spoken by anybody.

When confronted with an embarrassing situation like the one described it is worth while to study the various angles before endeavoring to effect a remedy. The man who did this particular job is a diplomat. He seldom lets an opportunity to improve conditions get by him. He has climbed pretty high in his department already, but he has not stopped climbing by a long shot.

Beware of Pessimists

When we meet the chap who insists that everything is all wrong and there is no possible way of making anything right, we want to be very sure not to let him influence us.

Sometimes that kind of a chap is gifted with eloquence, very persuasive, and full up with figures that seem to bear evidence in favor of his contention.

He almost makes us believe that everything worth while is impossible and wrong.

The out-and-out pessimist, however, lacks three qualities that You and I have and should use.

He lacks knowledge. And no man who lacks knowledge of what the race of man has done is able to give any kind of worth-while opinion as to what men can or will do.

He lacks imagination. And imagination is needed to lay out the plan in advance of the work that has produced everything man has accomplished for his own benefit.

He lacks courage. And Nature hates a coward, because it is not in the nature of things for any man to be afraid. The man who has knowledge and imagination, and still does not possess confidence to go forward and help his fellow men go forward, is a poorer specimen than he who is merely ignorant or dull.

The Pessimist never gets anywhere himself. And if we heed his foolish and cowardly nonsense, we very likely will not get anywhere ourselves.

We who are on our way to success need inspiration, and not discouragement.

We are too wise to let ourselves be led by Pessimists.

—American Educational Association.

Homilies of the Hudson

Four Sailors In Search of Christmas Eve

Once upon a time a party of young, irresponsible sailors in an English seaport were given shore-leave and two pounds sterling each to celebrate the night before Christmas in town. They left the ship in boisterous anticipation of the "time" they were going to have. It was a murky evening, with sleet mingling with the coal dust at the docks to make a nasty slush, but all the wet in the world could not have dampened the spirits of the four adventurers, bent on a "good time."

The walk from the coal docks to the town, Newcastle on Tyne, led through a dismal, deserted and dirty district, sparsely lighted with street lamps. The houses bordering the street, too, were dirty, dismal and mostly in darkness. In the doorway of one of these, huddled against the closed door, level with the street, crouched a bundle of rags, which one of the fellows espied and stopped to investigate. The others joined him. They found a young, half-grown, half-fed, half-clothed girl. Her hair was loose and streaming with the melting sleet, her feet were bare and unprotected by the skirt with which she was trying to cover them.

In answer to questions she sobbed out that her father was drunk and that he had beaten her and thrown her out. This gave the boys "something to think about," entirely different from what they had been thinking about a few moments earlier. One "red-head" suggested at once that they break in the door, first, and the father's neck, next, and put the ragged princess in possession of the castle, but upon further deliberation it was decided to forego this pleasure, particularly as the castle apparently was not worth possessing; some other ways and means would, perhaps, be better.

The final outcome of the consultation was that one of the fellows was dispatched to the white light district for a cab, while the others stood guard, and when it arrived the outcast was lifted into it and the boys drove with her to the Salvation Army barracks, where the bundle of rag, bone and hank of hair was deposited in care of the good people there, with eight pounds sterling for her immediate needs.

The four celebrants pooled their remaining capital to purchase a package of cigarettes and walked the two or three miles back to the ship, wet and sober, but happy. Not any of them referred to the adventure; it was so entirely out of order and at variance with a shore-leave schedule that they were, if not ashamed, shamefaced about it. However this small act of kindness no doubt in after days was remembered by the participants with a secret thrill of pleasure and a satisfaction that no other kind of expenditure of the eight sovereigns could have afforded them. And maybe also these eight pounds were placed at compound interest on the credit side of the final balance sheet to meet a long list of debits. Who knows?

Virtue is its own reward—always. That often it also is its only reward does not detract from its value. It is its own reward in as much as it gives one a gratified consciousness of having done the right thing. To refrain from doing evil is a negative or passive quality of virtue that counts for little. To do something of which our sense of right approves, and our "conscience" commends, is the kind of virtue that is its own reward. It is positive and active, and reacts with a spiritual "kick," more exalting and satisfying than the kicks from highballs and "shots."

If there is anyone that hasn't at some time experienced this, there is something wrong with him and he should take stock of himself. Likewise will deeds that we have done, that by the same consciousness we know to have been wrong, linger with us somehow, and on occasions break out of their concealment to "make faces" at us.

Applied Socialism

Theory and practice should prove each other. Huxley says that if a theory is not workable it is a "bum" theory. He does not say it in just that way, but that is what he means. This aphorism as applied to socialism is illustrated by the following story, which not only throws light on the subject in a general way but also shows what the mass conception of socialism is:—One Irishman was explaining the theory to another, saying:—"You see, now, if I had a million dollars I would have to give you one-half."—"That seems fair and reasonable enough; tell me more about it," conceded the prospective convert.—"And if you had two pigs you would have to give me one of them," continued the first. "G'wan with ye," retorted Mick, "ye know I have two pigs."

The "Why" of It

A prattling child can ask a hundred sincere questions that we petulantly dismiss as "foolish" because we don't know the answers. It is particularly the "why's" that stump us, the same why's that we have been asking ourselves, that philosophers have been seeking answers to, that theologians and theorists have been guessing about and that only "religion" pretends to answer.

But, alas, there are many religions and each one has a different answer. Then—what's the answer? It is easy to tell the child-inquirer that "God made it so," but it is not so easy to explain why.

The Height That Counts

Referring to one of the male clerks in the office, a disgruntled truckman remarked that he "looked too auld for a bhoy, but was too shmall for a man." This description fits Lloyd George too. It is not the height from the floor to the ears that counts, but the inches above the ears.

Annual Meeting of Stockholders

President Willard Believes Prosperity of Country Will be Best Served by Continuation of Transportation Act

AT the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company held on November 19 in the General Office Building, Baltimore, Md., there were 15,007 stockholders represented in person or by proxies. About 40 persons were actually in attendance, among them representatives of the larger individual interests in the stock of the Company. President Daniel Willard presided at the meeting. The Board of Directors was elected as follows: Newton D. Baker, John J. Cornwell, Robert Garrett, R. Brent Keyser, John R. Morron, Charles A. Peabody, Frederick H. Rawson, Henry Ruhlender, George M. Shriver, John F. Stevens, Paul M. Warburg and Joseph E. Widener.

The new directors elected were Hon. Newton D. Baker and Mr. John F. Stevens, who take the places made vacant by the deaths of Mr. F. H. Goff, of Cleveland, and Mr. Richard H. Williams, of New York.

C. W. Woolford, secretary of the Company, had charge of the meeting. He was assisted by George F. May, assistant secretary.

President Willard's Report

In formally presenting the annual report of the Company for the year ended December 31, 1922, Mr. Willard gave a summary of the Company's condition from the first of the current year up to the present time and the prospects for the future.

Gratifying Record for 1923

Mr. Willard said in part: "During the first ten months of the present calendar and fiscal year (October, 1923 partly estimated) the Gross Earnings of the Company amounted to $218,420,000, and the Operating Expenses and charges in that connection amounted to $167,660,000 or 76.76%, leaving a Net Revenue from operations for the period of $50,760,000. Other Income during the same period resulting from investments, etc., amounted to $5,065,000. The Net Corporate Surplus of the Company for the period referred to, after the payment of taxes, rentals and interest, was $22,100,000, a sum sufficient to pay 4% dividend for the year upon the $60,000,000 Preferred Stock outstanding, with a balance remaining of $19,700,000. It was with this situation in mind that your Board of Directors at the September meeting decided to resume dividends upon the Common Stock at the rate of 5% per annum, the first payment of 1¼% to be paid on December 1 to stockholders of record on October 13.

"While it is, of course, not possible to forecast at this time what the earnings of the remaining months will be, it is reasonable to expect that the present year will realize a net surplus, after payment of fixed charges and preferred dividends for the year, in an amount equal to about 14% upon the common stock outstanding.

"During the first ten months of the present year the freight traffic handled by the Company was 51.65% in excess of the amount handled during the same ten months of the previous year, yielding $53,015,000 increased freight revenue, and during the same period the passengers carried one mile by the Company were 18.41% greater in number than during the same ten months of the previous year, yielding $3,417,000 increased passenger revenue.

"While the Baltimore and Ohio Company has been able to secure and was in position to handle satisfactorily a large volume of business during the last ten months, its facilities were at no time used to full capacity, and an even greater volume of business could have been handled had it been available.

"Partly due to the season of the year and partly to other causes there has been a slight slowing down in business during recent weeks, and it is not unlikely that the volume of business which the Company will handle during the next few months will be somewhat less than was handled during the same months a year ago, during which time the Company handled an exceptionally large traffic for that season.

"I have been asked to say something concerning the future dividend outlook for the common shareholders of this Company. You will, of course, appreciate that no one can speak with definiteness concerning the future, but there is now reason to believe that in the absence of abnormal conditions, dividends on Baltimore and Ohio Common Stock will be maintained. Of course, the ability of the Baltimore and Ohio Company to earn and pay reasonable dividends upon its common stock will depend not only upon business conditions generally, but also to a very considerable extent upon the system of regulation under which we operate. At the annual meeting two years ago I ventured to make the following statement:

"I feel confident that if the Transportation Act of 1920 is left in its present shape until the railroads have had time and opportunity to give the law a fair trial, we will be able, slowly perhaps, but certainly be able, to work out our present difficulties, and I hope under the terms of the present Transportation Act to see railroad securities once more restored to the confidence of the investing public. While the Transportation Act of 1920 does not afford a perfect or final solution of the railroad problem, it is in my opinion distinctly in advance of anything which we have heretofore had in that direction, and to my mind the Act even in its present shape, is susceptible of being so applied as to measurably if not fully meet the requirements of the situation. In any event, I think it ought to be given a fair trial before any attempt is made to materially amend it."

"I see no reason now for changing the views which I then expressed, and I think the operating results of your Company for the present year confirm my former statement. I still look upon the Transportation Act of 1920 as a very constructive piece of railroad legislation, and while undoubtedly it may have defects, I am confident that the real interests not only of the railroads, but of the country as a whole, will be best promoted at this time by leaving the Act as it is until it can be given a more thorough trial under conditions of a more stable character. If the Act is left in its present form, and if business continues on the basis we now have a right to expect, it seems to me that the outlook for Baltimore and Ohio stockholders is distinctly encouraging, and I say this not unmindful of the fact that in 1925 the Company will have to arrange for the refinancing of a large amount of outstanding bonds which mature at that time and which now bear a very low rate of interest.

Transportation Act Should Stand

"As owners of the Baltimore and Ohio property and as citizens interested in the welfare not only of the property but of the country as a whole, I think you should urge your representatives in Congress to resist the demands which will probably be made in certain quarters for radical changes in the Transportation Act. As investors you are certainly entitled to the very modest return upon your property which the Transportation Act contemplates, and unless the railroads as a whole are permitted to earn the rate of return which has been fixed by the Commission, it is certain that they will not be able to provide the additional facilities which the growing commerce of this country will require. It is with this in mind that I urge that the Act be given a further trial in its present form, not only in your own interests but in the interests of all who depend upon the railroads for transportation.

"I do not expect that we will have so-called boom conditions in business in the immediate future, nor do I think such conditions desirable, but I do believe we are gradually coming to a more stable condition which will enable the railroads to operate their properties more efficiently and more economically, and in such circumstances they will perhaps be able to realize as large a net return as could be expected, even if business were more active but with operations less efficient, as is always the case in times of unusual activity."

Elected Members of Board of Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio on October 31

MR. JOHN F. STEVENS

HONORABLE NEWTON D. BAKER

MR. JOHN F. STEVENS was in the service of the Great Northern Railroad for a number of years and, as chief engineer, located and built that line over the Rocky and Cascade Ranges, subsequently becoming Vice-President in charge of operations of the railroad, and for many years a member of the Board of Directors of that Company. He enjoyed to an unusual degree the respect and friendship of the late James J. Hill. Afterwards, Mr. Stevens was vice-president in charge of operations of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, and in 1905 became chief engineer of the Isthmian Canal Commission and had much to do with the inauguration of the construction of the Panama Canal.

From 1907 to 1909 Mr. Stevens was vice-president in charge of operations of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, and subsequently president of the Spokane, Portland and Seattle Railway, the Oregon Electric Railway and the United Railways of Oregon, with headquarters at Portland, Oregon.

In 1917 Mr. Stevens was requested by President Wilson to go to Russia as Chairman of a Committee of experts to advise concerning the Russian Railroads. While all the other original members of the Committee returned to this country within a year, Mr. Stevens remained in Russia as head of the Committee, and afterwards as President of the Allied Committee in charge of railways of Eastern Siberia. In recognition of the work which he did in that position he was given the distinguished service medal by President Wilson, and also received decorations from the Chinese and Japanese governments.

He is now retired from active business but has an office in New York and acts as an expert consultant in engineering matters. Mr. Stevens will bring to the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad a large and ripened experience, which should be of great value in connection with the future development of the property.

HON. NEWTON D. BAKER, Secretary of War during the last five years of President Wilson's administration, is a resident of Cleveland, Ohio, and a member of the law firm of Messrs. Baker, Hostetler and Sidlo, of that city, with offices in the Union National Bank Building. As Secretary of War Mr. Baker was Chairman of the Council of National Defense. At the same time President Willard was Chairman of the Advisory Board of the Council and in that capacity was in close contact with Mr. Baker during the War. The intimate personal relationship then established between them has since been continued.

For a number of years Mr. Baker's father was one of the Baltimore and Ohio's surgeons at Martinsburg, W. Va., where the former cabinet member was born, reared and first practised law. Mr. Baker has always manifested great interest in the railroad of his boyhood.

Mr. Baker was private secretary to Postmaster-General Wilson from 1896 to 1897, and in the latter year began the practice of law in Martinsburg, later going to Cleveland to follow his profession. In 1902 he became City Solicitor of the City of Cleveland and continued in that capacity until 1912 when he was elected Mayor of Cleveland, serving for two terms, 1912-14 and 1914-16.

On March 7, 1916 Mr. Baker was appointed Secretary of War by President Wilson and remained in the Cabinet until March 4, 1921. He then resumed the practice of law in Cleveland as a member of the present firm. Mr. Baker received the degree of A. B. from Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md., in 1892, and two years later the degree of LL. B. from Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Va. Mr. Baker will bring to the councils of the Board a point of view that should be distinctly helpful.

C.H.D.

Before his loom, with many a golden thread
At his command, sat Kor, with bowed down head—

He, the master, known throughout the land
As king of weavers; he of skillful hand
And smiling countenance, who loved his art,
Now sat with strange forebodings in his heart.

'Twas by command, by Herod's own decree
That Kor should weave a wondrous tapestry,
Some new design that eye had never seen,
That ne'er had graced the halls of king and queen.
And Kor had toiled for many days to gain
Some weave of new design—but all in vain.

Night came, and still he sat, his thread in hand,
In silent dread. Tomorrow through the land
Would come the messengers for the tapestry
That Kor had failed to make. Then all would see.

And woe to him whose work had been in vain—
Tomorrow's eve would find the worker slain.

When lo, came through the darkness loud and clear

The sound of shouting voices to his ear!
Kor listened for a moment, then arose,
Quick seized his sword, prepared to meet his foes.
Then to his door three shepherds from the field
Came running. Kor put back his sword and shield.

"Come with us, Kor," they cried, who knew him well,

"Come with us! We've a wondrous tale to tell!"

"Ah, but I may not," said Kor, with shaking head,

"For yet I have no pattern for my thread."

The Shepherds cried, "But here's a greater thing—
Yon star, they say, leads to a new born King!"

"Lead on," commanded Kor, "perhaps there'll be
Some inspiration for my tapestry.
What matter though tomorrow's close may bring
My death, if I but see the Infant King?"
Then followed Kor and ran with them until
The Star burned brightly o'er a single hill.

Here stood the stable of an ancient inn
With open doors to welcome strangers in.
There, filled with Spirit heretofore unknown,
Kor knelt and worshipped at the Manger Throne.
And as he knelt there came a vision clear—
To weave his pattern from the picture here.

Quick home he hastened, seized his golden skeins,
Began to weave, and lo, appeared the stains
Of unknown dyes! Designs he'd never seen
Grew 'neath his fingers; pictures of a Queen,
Her First Born, Shepherds, Wise Men, each a part
Of wondrous weaving, done with joyful heart.

The next day went the heralds through the land,
Proclaimed the skill and magic of the hand
Of Kor, the weaver; while for his success
The weaver prayed a prayer of thankfulness.
And Kor was blessed, and nevermore ceased he
To tell how was designed the tapestry.

And thus we find the noblest works of art

Are done through Christ's own spirit in the heart
Of him who works. Be it in mansion high
Or lowly hut where travelers pass by,

Inspired will be the work
of him who sees

The vision Kor wove in his tapestries.

Women's Department

Edited by Margaret Talbott Stevens.

Women's Prize Contest Brings Entries From All Over the System

Quality of Papers Submitted of Unusually High Standard

Dear Women Readers:

Last January when we announced that the women who contributed the most helpful articles to the MAGAZINE during the year would be awarded prizes, I had no idea that by November 1 there would be so many really fine articles sent in. True, I had expected a great number, but to think of receiving the kind of stories that I did never occurred to me. Not that our Baltimore and Ohio women have not always sent in fine recipes, household hints, etc., but simply because it was a contest, and contests always bring a large number of entries, good and bad.

I have just finished deleting the names from each article, numbering them all and preparing them for the judges, and in looking them over I can say boastfully that I am proud of you. I dared not hope for the splendid lot of really helpful, interesting, valuable copy that you have sent. If I were editing the Women's Column of a newspaper instead of that of our MAGAZINE, I should feel that the circulation of the newspaper had no further worries—that the women readers had sold it to themselves. Yes, heads and hearts combined to write these articles which you have written for our MAGAZINE. I have many, beside those we have already published, to use in the Women's Department for next year. But please do not stop contributing because of this. There is always a hole or corner in the MAGAZINE for something good.

No woman would have been inspired to write these articles for the mere sake of a prize. And for that reason I am sure that the decision of the judges, whatever they may be, will be accepted in true Baltimore and Ohio spirit. We cannot all win prizes, but we can all do something which will help the other folks along. This each one of you has done and I sincerely hope that you will feel that, whether you win a prize or not, you have carried out the Baltimore and Ohio policy of Good Neighborliness. To help other women is to be a good neighbor to them. We profit by our own experiences, and we want to share the results of our learning with others whom we can help. This is the compensation for life's little blunders.

I thank you, collectively and individually, for all that you have done to help the MAGAZINE. You may look for your articles from time to time. Some have already appeared, but we have some fine things to come for 1924.

Please do not forget that suggestions are always in order. If you can find some way in which our Women's Department may be benefitted, some way in which we can serve Baltimore and Ohio women better than we are now doing, please write me. The magazine that serves its readers is the only magazine which accomplishes its purpose. If you have a problem that we can solve, send it in.

Last, but not least, let me wish to all Baltimore and Ohio women the happiest Christmas that you ever knew. And, if the old saying goes that our own happiness comes from making others happy, please be assured that you have made me happy because of your help, and I am proud to be numbered among the women of the Baltimore and Ohio.

Yours with every good wish,

Margaret Talbott Stevens

Prize Winners—

1. Mrs. F. E. Cooper, Wife of Master Mechanic, Newark, Ohio.
2. Lillian Betony, Daughter of Section Foreman, Caddell, W. Va.
3. Mrs. Josephine Ausbrook, Clay City, Ill.
4. Mrs. J. V. Klier, Wife of Chief Clerk, Valuation Department, Baltimore, Md.
4. Miss Marie Slatterick, Secretary to Division Engineer, Wheeling, W. Va.

NOTE: Mrs. Klier and Miss Slatterick had the same number of credits and were, therefore, tied for fourth place.

Detailed announcements of prize winners will be made next month.

I Saw the Star of Bethlehem

By EVA GASPERICH

The shivering moon hung low among the trees
While deep in the frozen pines the winter wind moaned,
And the snow came sifting softly through the air,
Weaving the bare earth a blanket fair.
And the dim, white night closed down.
Through the brooding world stole strange voices and chords,
Weaving weird music above and below
And through the drifting snow.
And I heard great harmonies,
And dreamed dreams of wondrous tone;
I saw the Star of Bethlehem fling far its streaming light,
I heard the bursting chant of angels through the night,
And all the ringing paeans of all the singing spheres
Above the sordid passions, the evil and the fears
The hatred and the tears,
And the strife of all the years
Rejoicing in the Birth of Christ that first Christmas night.

Girls, Do You Belong to the "Y?"

GOOD health and good looks—for all of us—is the keynote of a number of classes for business girls and busy women that the Y. W. C. A. has put on this winter. For instance, there is a class that will give you instructions in the proper care of your own hair, how it should be treated that it may be thicker and more beautiful, how it may be more becomingly arranged. Then there is one in manicuring that will teach us how to care for our nails and hands that they may always be well groomed.

Even more important than these are the classes in corrective gymnastics—correcting backaches, and flat feet, and faulty posture, that make for so much weariness at the close of the day. There is a reducing class for those who would lose a few pounds; there is a class in rhythmic expression to give poise and grace, and there are gymnasium and swimming classes for those of us who would feel ten years younger with a little stretching of the muscles and a little exercise.

All the classes are well within the reach of the business girl's pocketbook and you can get full particulars as to hours and fees, by phoning the Educational Office of the Y. W. C. A. or stopping in the next time you are near.

The courses outlined here are given at the Baltimore Y. W. C. A. However, other cities are well in line with the Baltimore "Y" and our girls ought to find many classes of interest in their respective cities. The Baltimore "Y" offers an unusually interesting program this season.

Christmas Recipes will be found on page 26

These Winter Fashions Make Us Want to Sew in the Long Winter Evenings

4579. This is a very desirable model and one that will please the little "doll mother," for not only the garments but the doll as well may be made from this pattern here given. The doll may be of drill or unbleached muslin, and stuffed with floss, hair or cotton batting. The dress could be of gingham, cretonne, chambrey, silk or crepe and the cap, to match, or of lace or embroidery.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes for dolls: 12, 16 and 20 inches in length. To make the doll in a 16-inch size size requires  $\frac{1}{2}$  yard of 36-inch material. The dress and cap require  $\frac{3}{8}$  yard. The cap alone requires  $\frac{1}{4}$  yard. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4550. This model portrays the much favored straight line dress, with flare plaits at the sides. The close fitting sleeve is a new style feature. One could develop this in the new crepe weaves, in wool rep or twill. It is also good for velveteen or broadcloth.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 16, 18 and 20 years. An 18-year size requires  $5\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 40-inch material. For collar and cuffs of contrasting material  $\frac{5}{8}$  yard is required. Price 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4553. This model is very smart in satin or velvet. It will also develop well in broad cloth or kasha. The sleeve may be in wrist length, or cut in elbow length, and finished with the flare cuff. The square neck line is new, and may be finished with or without the collar.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $3\frac{1}{2}$  yards of 54-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4557. Wool rep, kasha cloth or crepe could be used for this model. It may be trimmed with stitchery or bands of braid.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 12-year size requires  $3\frac{5}{8}$  yards of 40-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4545. Kasha cloth in a new shade of brown is here depicted, with a decoration of fancy braid. One could have this in moire, or satin. It is also good for twill or serge.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $5\frac{5}{8}$  yards of 40-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4548. Percale with bias binding in white or in a contrasting color would be good for this design. Gingham, linen, cambric and sateen are also desirable.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: small, medium, large and extra large. A medium size requires 3 yards of 27-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4403. Figured percale and linene are here combined. This is a good style for gingham, voile or chambrey. The closing is under the tucks at the centre front.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires 5 yards of 32-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4562. Printed and plain voile are here combined. This will be a pretty style for wool crepe and with pipings at the seam joinings in a contrasting color. The sleeve may be finished in wrist length, with a band cuff, or in elbow length with a shaped cuff.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. A 6-year size requires  $2\frac{1}{4}$  yards of 36-inch material. For waist, sleeve and yoke-band portions of figured material  $1\frac{1}{4}$  yard is required. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

Pattern 3676 is here illustrated. It is cut in 5 sizes: 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. A 12-year size requires  $3\frac{3}{4}$  yards of 27-inch material.

Madras, soisette, cambric, silk, flannel, percale, and khaki could be used for this design. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4568. Here is a style that will appeal to the busy mother of little children, especially those of the "creeper" age. This design provides a convenient closing at the inner seam, which is very practical for children below 2 years of age. The garment may also be made with this seam closed, for the back is in drop style.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 6 months, 1 and 2 years. A 6-months size requires  $1\frac{3}{8}$  yards of 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

2970. Here is a comfortable roly poly doll and a cunning cat. Toweling stuffed with cork would make these models floating toys. Plush, felt, flannel, outing flannel, velvet, drill and crash could also be used. The doll could be made of different material below the arms.

The pattern is cut in one size. Either style requires  $\frac{3}{4}$  yard of 27-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4578. Dolls of all kinds are now in vogue, but none quite takes the place of a soft rag doll. The model here depicted features "Bunny Rabbit," so dear to the heart of little boy or girl. "Bunny" is especially attractive in his new rompers. The pattern provides the doll as well as the garment style. The Doll may be made of drill, unbleached muslin, terry cloth or toweling, or of flannel or flannellette. It may be stuffed with rags, or floss, kopak, or wool wadding. One could make the doll washable as well as "floating" by stuffing with cork and making the outside of rubberized cloth, or sanitas. The rompers could be of percale or gingham or to be real dressy of satin or crepe.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: small, 12 inches; medium, 16 inches; and large, 20 inches in length. To make the doll for a medium size requires  $\frac{5}{8}$  yard of material, for the rompers  $\frac{7}{8}$  yard is required, 36 inches wide. For collar of contrasting material  $\frac{1}{8}$  yard is required. The features may be painted on the head or worked in with yarn or worsted. Buttons may be used for the eyes. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4566. Wool jersey, serge, velveteen or corduroy could be used for this model. It is also suitable for wash materials.

The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: 2, 4, and 6 years. A 4-year size requires  $2\frac{3}{8}$  yards of 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4547. This style of "combination" comprises circular drawers portions, joined to a long vest. The top may be finished with the shaped shoulder, or in camisole style.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: small, 34-36; medium, 38-40; large, 42-44; extra large, 46-48 inches bust measure. A medium size requires  $2\frac{5}{8}$  yards of 36-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4554. Here is a good style for the slender or stout figure. A good model for a maid's or nurse's uniform, and one that is suitable for any of the materials now in vogue for morning dresses.

The pattern is cut in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. A 38-inch size requires  $7\frac{3}{8}$  yards of 27-inch material. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

4555. Jersey, wool crepe or kasha cloth could be used for this style. It has the new flare fulness in plait effect at the sides, and smart useful pockets topping the plaits.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A 16-year size requires  $3\frac{1}{2}$  yards of 40-inch material. For vest of contrasting material  $\frac{1}{8}$  yard 24 inches wide is required. Price, 10 cents. Please use coupon.

A Real Service to Baltimore and Ohio Women

MRS. JOSEPHINE AUSBROOK, Clay City, Illinois, has sent to the office of the MAGAZINE a splendid apron pattern with the suggestion that it would be a nice thing to let each Baltimore and Ohio woman have it if she wishes. This pattern looks well in cretonne or gingham and it really makes an apron which any woman would be proud to wear. The bib ends in a collar that slips over the head. The neck and outside of apron are finished in rick-rack braid. The pockets

PATTERN ORDER COUPON

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Pattern Bureau
1188-1190 Fulton Street
Brooklyn, New York

Please send to the following address the patterns listed below. I enclose 10 cents (stamps, check or money order) for each pattern.

Name .....

Street .....

City..... State.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Pattern No..... Size.....

Up-to-Date Book of Fashions

Send 12c in stamps, check, or money order for our UP-TO-DATE BOOK OF FASHIONS

All patterns are sent direct to customer by first class mail are shaped like flower baskets. If made of plain material, a bias fold of cretonne may be used instead of the rick-rack.

We have arranged to send, without charge, the pattern to any Baltimore and Ohio woman who requests it. Simply write to Women's Department, Baltimore and Ohio Magazine, Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md., and say: "Send me Mrs. Ausbrook's apron pattern," and you will receive it by return mail.

The particularly nice thing about this pattern is that when the wearer bends over the apron will not sag in the front as so many of them do.

Thank you, Mrs. Ausbrook!

Old English Recipes

By MRS. H. W. JONES

Old English Plum Pudding

$\frac{3}{4}$  pound finely chopped beef suet.
1 Cup brown sugar.
1 Cup white granulated sugar.
1 Cup seeded raisins.
1 Cup currants.
 $\frac{1}{4}$  pound citron, orange and lemon peel, cut very thin.
4 Dates.
1 Small carrot, grated.
8 Eggs well beaten.
From  $\frac{1}{2}$  to 1 pound of flour to make the fruit bind.
 $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon of nutmeg.

If you like it, add 1 teaspoon of either almond or vanilla flavoring. Mix very stiff and mix in the ingredients well. If the eggs are not quite enough to moisten, put in a few teaspoons of milk, but as little as possible. Have ready your pan of boiling water and place a plate at the bottom. Take a clean strong cloth (unbleached muslin is the best), dip the middle into the boiling water, then flour the cloth and place your mixture in it and draw the ends and sides together and tie as tightly and as near the pudding as you possibly can. Place it then in the boiling water, cover with a lid and let it boil from 6 to 10 hours, the longer the better. You will have to keep raising the bag with a fork and have ready a kettle of boiling water to replenish supply with as the water boils down. Then the pudding can be taken out, plunged in its cloth, in cold water, then carefully untied and taken out of the cloth on to a platter, and a piece of holly stuck in the top. In the old days a cup of brandy was poured over it and lighted. The housewife proudly carried it lighted to the table in the old days (see Mrs. Cratchett in Dickens' Christmas Carol).

When the pudding is being mixed, each one in the house at the time should wish three wishes and stir up the mixture as he wishes. This pudding is successful if properly made. In an airtight jar it will keep from one Christmas to the next when it is tied up again in a cloth and boiled again for an hour or two. Boiling doesn't hurt it, but mellows it.

The pudding, in England, is made about Thanksgiving time, then hung in a cool place until Christmas. It is better for being kept a while before eaten.

Mock Mince Meat

1 peck green tomatoes, chopped fine; 1 peck apples, chopped fine; 5 pounds brown sugar; 2 cups molasses, 2 cups vinegar, 2 cups suet (chopped fine); 2 pounds raisins, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, 1 tablespoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon cloves, 1 quart boiled cider.

Pour boiling water over the tomatoes and boil for 15 minutes. Add the other ingredients, boil slowly for two hours and seal in glass jars.

Cornish Riviera Limited Has Longest Non-Stop Run

And "Slips" Coaches at High Speed for Non-Stop Stations

By L. E. SCARBOROUGH, Clerk, Freight Office, Hamilton, Ohio

THE Cornish Riviera Limited of The Great Western Railway performs the longest non-stop run in the world. This run is made between London and Plymouth, a distance of two hundred and twenty-five and three-fourths miles, in four hours and seven minutes, an average speed of fifty-four and eight-tenths miles per hour.

The locomotives used for this train are the 4-6-0 type of express locomotive, having four cylinders 16in. x 26in., coupled wheels 6 ft. 8 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches in diameter, with a boiler pressure of 225 pounds per square inch. The engines weigh about seventy-five tons, with tender about one-hundred and fifteen tons. The average amount of coal burned is forty pounds per mile.

This train is made up of ten coaches and are the Great Western's standard type of seventy foot corridor coaches. The outstanding feature of this train is that the majority of the coaches are fitted with Buckeye automatic couplings instead of the regular screw couplings. The composite coaches have four first class and five third class compartments seating twenty-four first and forty third class passengers, a door in the corridor dividing first and third. The third class coaches have ten compartments seating eighty passengers. To obtain steady riding the dining cars have been designed with the kitchen in the center, with the first class salon in one end and the third class in the other. The dining cars will accommodate fifty diners.

As this train slips coaches at Westbury, Taunton and Exeter, the slip coaches are placed in the rear of the train. These coaches are equipped with a special slipping apparatus whereby they can be detached from the train while running at high speed. These slip coaches provide a one way express service to places which are not quite large enough to warrant the stopping of the train.

For the benefit of the operating forces I subjoin timetable showing the passing times en route.

MILES	STATIONS	SCHEDULE
0.0	London.....	10.30 a.m.
9.1	Southall.....	10.41
18.5	Slough.....	10.50
24.2	Maidenhead.....	10.55 $\frac{1}{2}$
31.0	Twyford.....	11.01 $\frac{1}{2}$
36.0	Reading.....	11.07
53.1	Newbury.....	11.26
70.0	Saversnake.....	11.43 $\frac{1}{2}$
95.6	Westbury.....	12.07 $\frac{1}{2}$ p.m.
115.3	Castle Cary.....	12.30
137.7	Cogload Junction...	12.54
142.9	Taunton.....	12.59
173.7	Exeter.....	1.30
193.9	Newton Abbott....	1.53
202.5	Totnes.....	2.06
209.4	Brent.....	2.15
219.0	Hemerdon.....	2.27
225.7	Plymouth.....	2.37 p.m.

Note x. Coaches slipped at this station.

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT:

Another year has been added to the splendid record of the First Railroad in this country—OUR RAILROAD—THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO.

It has been an active year for the Engineering Department. Our total authority for new work has been the largest of any year in the history of our road and, with the exception of the Magnolia Cut-off, the Grain Elevator at Locust Point is the largest single improvement ever undertaken.

I appreciate the loyalty, energy and efficiency which all of you have displayed in bringing about successful results and in carrying on your part of the teamwork among all departments essential to the larger success of the Company as a whole.

I extend to each and every one hearty and sincere greetings of the Christmas Season and earnest wishes for your personal health and satisfaction during the coming year, and I feel sure of your continued enthusiastic cooperation in helping to attain in 1924 the standards desired by our executive officers.

E. G. Lane

Chief Engineer

Our Little Railroaders

*To railroad children everywhere:
A Christmas Day of Joy!
A freight carload of Happiness
For every girl and boy!*

*A smokestack full of all my Love,
A tank car full of pleasure,
With coaches full of friends so true—
All these in double measure!*

—AUNT MARY

The Stories That Grandpa Jones Told Me

ONE night in October, when the red and yellow leaves played at catchers across the lawn and heaped themselves in great piles on the pavements, I set out for a visit with Grandpa Jones.

Now Grandpa and Grandma Jones live in a little house on a little street of the little town of East Aurora, New York. I plowed my way through heaps of the leaves. The wind has just begun to tell me to button my jacket close around my neck and the lights from many windows told me that they came from open hearth fires. Here was a chilly night and here was a warm house, friends and a welcome.

A tap on the door and a lifted latch—Grandpa Jones in his easy chair and Grandma Jones with her knitting—what a lovely time for a story! Grandpa tells stories to lots of people, old and young, for he and Grandma are wonderful people. Grandpa has travelled through the most wonderful countries; he has climbed up into the bell towers of the Belgian cathedrals; he has listened to those lovely songs of the boatmen on the Volga River of Russia; he has tramped through the low country of the Netherlands, where the little children wear wooden shoes; he knows the legends of Scandanavia, of Turkey, of Italy, of Spain, of France, and of old England, for he has heard these tales from the people themselves. And, best of all, he told many of them to me and said that I might tell some of them to you.

I seated myself on a hassock just between Grandpa's and Grandma's chairs and the and the stories began. I cannot tell them to you just as he told them, but if you like this one, I shall tell you more.

"Seventy-seven hundred years ago, on the other side of seventy-seven seas, beyond seventy-seven mountains, lived an old woman a hundred and seventy-seven years old. And she wore seventy-seven petticoats with seventy-seven ruffles, and 'way down in the bottom of the seventy-seventh ruffle I found this story," began Grandpa Jones, teasingly.

Then he laughed with his eyes and went on.

The Lazy Swedish Girl

Once upon a time there was a girl who lived up in Sweden, 'way up in the north of the continent of Europe. She was not a very industrious little girl, so that when she grew older she became quite lazy.

One day there came a young farmer to her house. The girl fell in love with him and he with her. So they were married, and they began to live quite happily.

Now the young farmer husband had to go a long distance from the house every day to his work, so that every day there was a lunch to be packed. Then there were other meals to be cooked, and lots and lots of sweeping and scrubbing and dusting to be done. The young wife began her work well, but after a few weeks she became quite lazy again. "Lunches to be packed all of the time," she said, "Will I never get through packing lunches! I am truly disgusted!" And she sat herself down before a high wooden bureau.

She sat quietly for a long time, so long that she almost fell asleep. Then suddenly someone called her name. She jumped up quickly. Who do you think it was? Her husband? No. Her father? No. Her brother or her sister? No. Guess again. It was none other than the little gnome who lived in the house. Oh, yes, there is always a gnome or brownie in a Swedish home to bring good luck to those who live there.

"And pray, what is the matter with you?" asked the gnome.

"Oh, I am disgusted. There is so much work to be done always, and I do not feel like doing it," wailed the girl.

"Oh, ho," laughed the gnome, "is that all?"

"All!" exclaimed the girl, "Isn't that enough?"

"Humph," said the gnome, "that's nothing at all. Let me see your hand." The girl stretched out her hand.

"Tommy-tot, sticky-pot——" said the gnome, touching one of her fingers after the other. And as he did so the girl felt a great tingling in each finger that he touched, a tingling that just made her feel like working as hard as she could. Hardly had he finished touching all ten of her fingers when she jumped down from the stool before the high bureau and began to shout.

"Goodness!" she exclaimed, "Here is all of this work to be done and I am idle!"

Then she seized the broom and began to work so fast that he old clock on the mantle put his hands over his face; he thought that he must be dreaming. And ever after that the young wife worked and worked whenever she had work to do. And when she had none she looked for some, for the gnome had given her a gift that was worth more than money. And ever after that she and her husband lived happily up in Sweden, 'way up in the north of the continent of Europe.

(To be continued)

Christmas

By ELSIE ELIZABETH GLANZER,
Jessup, Md.

You can hear the bells a-ringing when Santa's on his way,
And the children are a-singing on Merry Christmas Day.
When the children are sleeping, then old Santa comes,
He brings us toys and gloves and sleds, and noisy little drums.

MERRY CHRISTMAS!

Boys and girls can make this "Merry Christmas" wreath from crepe paper

CHRISTMAS DRAWINGS BY LITTLE RAILROADERS

Nos. 1 and 3 were drawn by George Chillcoat; 2—by A. J. Janushek, Jr.; 4—Millard Traband, Jr.; 5—Estelle Barnes; 6—by a little Railroader whose name we lost. If he or she will send Aunt Mary his or her name, we will give the proper credit in the next Magazine; 7—Evelyn Luh; 8—Lillian Reay; 9—Somerset Waters; 10—John Gianfagna; 11—Claude Palm; 12—William Robinson; 13—Fannie Keith; 14—Elsie Elizabeth Glanzer; 15—Mildred Luh; 16—Lula Grace Ireland; 17—Octavia Getz; 18—Ruth Troxell; 19—Lena Hoppe

Here is that lovely puzzle from The Major, which I promised you last month. This is really and truly a hard one. The little people who send in the answers will receive three post cards this month, for this one is harder than usual. You will be glad to know that The Major has also sent to Aunt Mary a number of new post cards for our little puzzlers. Now, who will be the first to win the three.

First of all, I think that I'd better explain the puzzle. It is called a deletion. If we look in our dictionaries we find that the word deletion means the act of erasing or of blotting out. That is what we do with the word which the Major has selected below. For example, take the word BEAD and one. Take out the letter a. This leaves word number two, or BED. From this take out the letter d, leaving word number four, or BE. Number 4 will be the letter e, with the b deleted or taken out.

Another good example is the word LADY, which we can, by deleting one letter at a time, change to LAD, then AD, then A. And so it is in this puzzle, which has four letters to start with. We take away one letter each time.

Jack and Jill went up the hill,
To get four one of water
Jack fell down and broke his crown,
And his two came tumbling after.
His two rushed home and soon told three,
And away they went after Jack;
They got a stretcher, and loaded him in,
And then they carried him back.
Now Jack got well, and he loved his two,
And she promised to be his wife.
So married they were, and in a dear little home,
They started out into life.
Where Jill with her one, her soap and her mop,
Kept all so neat and clean,
That when three came over to visit them,
She was happy as could be.

—The Major

A Christmas Surprise

By BEULAH HOAR, Brunswick, Md.

ONCE upon a time there was a little girl named Bess. She lived in the country with her parents in a little log cabin. They were all very poor.

Bess' father was a wood cutter. They lived four miles from the woods where he worked. There were a few houses in that part of the country, but they were far apart. It took her father a long time to get to and from the woods so that there was not much time left to do the cutting.

One day in December the little girl came to her mother and asked, "Mother, will I get any toys or clothes for Christmas this year?"

Her mother answered, "Bess, we haven't any money except just what we need to get our food with, so I'm afraid that you will get nothing this year." And the mother turned sadly away.

Soon Christmas Eve came, and little Bess went sorrowfully to bed. She left her window open a bit so as to get fresh air in her room. Soon her little eyes were tightly closed.

In the morning she awoke. She looked down by her bed and there she saw a package sticking out from underneath. She pulled it out and it was big and heavy. She called her parents and they both came running to see the package and to open it. What do you think there was in it? Clothing, money, and food for them all. And there were some toys for little Bess.

All these things had been sent to them by some relatives in another part of the country. They made good use of them, and ever after that they always had plenty to eat and to wear.

Waiting

By ARLINE TYSINGER, Cumberland, Md.

Here sits a little girl
Close by the fireplace bright,
It isn't in the daytime either,
It's in the darkest night.

Here sits a little girl,
And Doggy, too, sits by,
I'd like to ask a question—
What is there, and why?

I guess you'd have to think,
I guess you'd have to pause,
But if I were in your place,
I'd think of Santa Claus.

A Little French Girl's Christmas

(From a letter written by one of them to Aunt Mary)

IT is almost Christmas time! Before we go to bed on Christmas Eve we place our shoes in front of the fireplace. Your children in America hang up their stockings, don't they? But we get the biggest shoes that we can find in the house so that old Santa Claus can put many nice things into them.

Christmas time! It sounds so happy. I know a little girl—I am not going to tell you her name—who made faces at her mother behind her back. Mother did not see it, but this little girl was oh, so sorry. She went to her teacher and asked her if she thought that Santa Claus could have seen a little girl who made faces, even though her mother did not see her. And the little girl's teacher assured her that since Santa Claus sees and hears everything that children do, he surely must have seen her. So, ever since that this little girl has asked Santa's pardon every night when she says her prayers.

The little French children are certainly little darlings, and their mothers dress them like little dolls.

I am sending you a Merry Christmas wish. And oh, how I wish that I could come down your chimney with Santa Claus and surprise you on Christmas morning!

The Baltimore & Ohio Way

5904 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa.
September 30, 1923

Dear Aunt Mary:

While on my way to Cincinnati a man on the train who knew the conductor asked him if the train was on time. The conductor replied. "Why, yes, this is the Baltimore and Ohio." I have nothing more to say.

My father is chief clerk in the Traffic Department at Pittsburgh.

Your true nephew,
RICHARD FRITZ

Beatrice, Helen Lee and James Mantz, Grafton, W. Va. Since this picture was taken, little Beatrice died of diphtheria. Beatrice was one of the first of Our Little Railroaders that Aunt Mary knew. Her father, Mr. James Mantz, and her grandfather, Mr. Frank Keane, both work in Grafton Shops

The Fifty-Ton Santa Claus

By FRANK KAVANAUGH

THE switchlights of Douglas Junction came into view as the train swung around a curve, and the engineer, after he had whistled for the station, half turned back to Dorgan, the superintendent, who was riding in the seat behind him, and observed:

"Two-thirty-six. Just half an hour and I'll be hittin' the hay. Sounds good to me."

Dorgan, who had been nodding, came to with a jerk and consoled the man at the throttle:

"You'll be all right, Dick. Tomorrow's Christmas day and you'll not be called."

"I'm glad of that. Right now, all I want Santa to bring me is about eighteen hours good, soft, solid sleep. If the old man who drives the horned animals will keep the road out of the dumps and see to it that I'm not called for twenty-four hours, I'll appreciate it as much as I used to appreciate a new gun and a pair of red-topped boots. Buckin' snow may suit some people, but when one has slept in a cold caboose clad in wet overalls for as long as I have he wants to feel the feathers and the soft cling of a pair of speckled pajamas."

The three huge locomotives, with a rotary snow plow in tow, to which were coupled two cabooses, rolled down into the yards and came to a stop on a siding to which they had been switched. For four days and nights the rotary crews had been bucking snow; wet, heavy snow that had fallen and filled every cut on the division. Early the day before the snow had stopped falling and the crews saw their work ended as the through trains, loaded with holiday travelers, rushed by to their destinations, with very little delay. And probably not one of the thousands who traveled those trains realized that their passage was made possible by men who had slaved, slept and ate for days and nights in clothing that was wet, cold and sticky.

Dorgan, the superintendent, who had stayed with the rotary crews until the battle was won over the elements, dropped off the engine where he had been riding and went to his office. At the door he met a passenger conductor, dry, clean and debonair, who followed him into the dispatcher's office.

"You cleaned up pretty well, Mr. Dorgan," he said. "We came through in fine shape. By the way, I had a couple of passengers for Coal Camp. Their tickets read to this place, but they expected to go up on an empty coal car drag or the bus. They're miners who have been working somewhere else since the mines up there closed. They're marooned here now, though. I advised the use of a pair of snow shoes and a walk over the mountains."

"A goat couldn't get over the mountains in this snow," Dorgan said. "The snow is soft and wet and a man would sink into the first gulley and never come out again." Dorgan stopped as he was about to enter his private office, and turned to one of the dispatching operators.

"Sonny, there's no way to get to Coal Camp, from here, is there?"

"No, sir," the operator replied. "Since those mines closed there's been no travel between here and there and the old bus that used to carry passengers quit."

"The miners can wait a few days, I suppose," the conductor said. "No one's suffering up there, with coal and food and—"

"That's about all," Dorgan interrupted. "But there's about a hundred kids up there expecting something extra for Christmas—toys and candy and such things."

"It may go hard with them for a few days," the conductor remarked as he turned to go, "but they'll forget it soon."

"I'm not sure about that," Dorgan persisted. "When I was about five years old I had been looking forward to the joys of Christmas, just like the rest of the neighborhood children. Christmas eve the stork visited us and left a baby sister, and in the excitement attending the event, Santa Claus failed to materialize. He passed up our house that night. That was fifty years ago. I have never forgotten it."

"There's a dozen cuts up that spur and they're solidly filled with snow," the operator volunteered. "If there was some easier way, you might get up there."

"There isn't, and I don't know what the company would say about the expense of running the rotary through those cuts just for the sake of bringing Christmas to a lot of children, but we'll see," Dorgan muttered as he entered his private office.

For more than a month the Coal Creek spur had not been operated, owing to a cessation of work in the mines that gave it its traffic. Passenger service never had been maintained on the spur, that being attended to more or less efficiently by a motor bus that made a trip over the mountain daily. When the snow came and even before that, the bus had ceased operation because of lack of patronage. Little thought was given by the outer world to the families of the miners, as they were well supplied with food, and fuel was to be had for the carrying from the immense piles of dumped coal. There was but one poor store in the camp, and for anything beyond the usual bacon, beans and other staple necessities, the inhabitants were compelled to seek the larger town of Douglas Junction.

Fully a hundred children called Coal

Camp home. For a month before the eventful date the school teacher had read them the tales associated with the birthday of the Man of Peace. The teacher herself was going to decorate the school-room and she had interested many of the parents of the camp in the question of a community Christmas tree and attending festivities, to be staged in the class-room. Besides the tree there were to be gifts for all the children and the other things so dear to the hearts of those too small yet to look under the tinsel of a cheap gift for a flaw.

But a week before Christmas the snowfall began. Steadily it fell until the roads through the mountains were impassable. The deep cuts in the spur filled and walking the tracks was impossible. The young teacher was in tears. The story of the reindeers effectually blocked any postponement of the visit of Santa Claus, for the children had supreme faith in the ability of the steeds to travel from the North Pole to anywhere and everywhere in the one night. As she heard the children speculating, joyfully, of the presents they would get, she turned and looked out of the window to where the snow fell ceaselessly, and, it appeared to her, relentlessly.

The day before Christmas eve the snow ceased and the children of Coal Camp looked out upon a white world. The sun appeared, but there was no heat in its rays, it seemed, and the snow did not melt. This was a good omen to the children, and as they shouted their joy at the close proximity of the visit from Santa Claus their teacher speculated as to how they would take the fact that Santa and his reindeer had failed them.

Dorgan entered his office. He was sleepy, and had all the feelings of a man who had caught naps in his working clothes for nearly a week. Down in the yards there was a strange silence. The rotary crews had been relieved, the passenger train had changed crews and gone on, and nothing was due for several hours. Dorgan caught up the telephone and called up the yard office and the round house.

"Billy," he said, when the night round house foreman answered, "how many crews could we muster this morning?"

"Not one," the foreman replied. "The snow has tied up most of the freight crews on the other end. I've just one crew to take Number Six out in the morning, besides, of course, the rotary crews, and they must have their eight hours' rest. Is it an emergency call?"

"No, Billy," Dorgan answered wearily. "Let it go. However, keep the rotary crews' engines ready to go within a few minutes' notice."

"Yes, sir," the foreman replied.

Even if he had expected to clear the Coal Creek spur, he had no help. He hated to disappoint the hopes of a hundred children, but there seemed no way out. He sat down to think it out, and happened to sit at his stenographer's desk. There was paper, carbon sheets and a real good typewriter. After all, he thought, he might be just an old fool, one of those moron people, who were good at just one thing, but imbeciles, after all. He had managed, somehow, to come up from the ranks, but perhaps that wasn't his fault, they just pushed him, and—

The despatcher in the outer office heard the click of the typewriter, and Dorgan was using one finger of each hand. He was pounding hard because he was making carbon copies. He was conserving work. An hour later he came out.

"Where's the call boy?" he asked.

"Down at the switch shanty," the operator replied. "Want him?"

"Tell him to come up here," Dorgan said.

"I've got eighteen notes here," the superintendent said when the call boy appeared. "I want them delivered right away. It isn't railroad business, and as it's extra work for you you'd better take this," and he passed two silver dollars to the boy. The outer door slammed and the boy rode the banister down instead of using the steps.

"I'm going to get a shave and bath," Dorgan told the operator. "You'll hear from those notes within an hour. Here is a list of the men they were sent to. Check them off as they promise to come or not. If we get enough for a small crew, call the rotary engines—those that just came in on the rotary. There's a couple of letters extra if anyone comes in that can go with us and do his bit." With that he left the building.

The operator read a copy of the letter:

"A hundred or more children at Coal Camp will not know there is any Santa Claus this year unless you fellows help me run the rotary up there, starting this morning. These are not orders and technically you will be disobeying the hog-law if you go, and you will get no pay for it, so you can do as you please about reporting for the work.

"DORGAN"

It was nearly five o'clock when Dorgan returned. Appearances showed he had taken a bath, but not a shave. The barbers were still sleeping. "What luck?" he asked.

"I've heard more swear words the last sixty minutes over the phone than I've ever thought of," the operator said. "Scrugg's wife was sarcastic. She wanted to know what good it would be to clear the track if there were no presents taken up there. The kids, she explained, wouldn't give two cents for a rotary and a gang of engines, much less a lot of dirty, sleepy-eyed men if there were no Christmas presents."

"How many will go?" Dorgan asked.

The operator looked down the list where a check mark appeared against each name. "Eighteen," he said.

"That's all the notes I sent out."

"Certainly," the operator said, as if it was any every-day calling of a crew.

"Now, about those presents," the superintendent mused. "We'll have to wait until the stores open at nine, and I'm afraid that'll be too late for us to get them up there tonight."

"Not when you know Mrs. Scruggs. She said she'd get the Woman's Auxiliary, and the B. Y. P. U. and the Eastern Star and what not up and they'll raise those store owners."

"Might not be able to get them up this early," Dorgan said, doubtfully.

"You don't know those women. If a merchant went against them the whole gang would put him out of business. When you get a lot of women interested in anything they don't care for the law or evidence or the time of day. Just watch their smoke—or rather their talk. If Adam had not connected with a woman, you know, snakes'd still be talking."

It was rather a hushed crowd that assembled that Christmas eve at the Coal Camp school house. Even the littlest child seemed to sense that something was wrong. The tree was there, but instead of being trimmed in tinsel and gold cord, rows and rows of white pop-corn strung on thread decorated it. There was an entire absence of boxes and bundles, such as usually accompany a tree. The little candy the local store contained was placed in little stockings, pieced together by the teacher and the mothers from bits of old cloth. The candles, too, were not what the children would call really, truly Christmas candles, for they were the plain white ones used in their homes, to eat and read and go to sleep by.

But all the children were there and expectant. A child-mind cannot understand the physical difficulties that beset the older ones, and looks for miracles as if they were everyday affairs. It meant nothing to them that the worst snow in years had fallen. Santa Claus had always been pictured to them as travelling over ice and snow and no child doubted that he could.

The teacher purposely delayed the ceremonies as long as possible, as a sleepy child does not worry much or long about anything. She dreaded the time when it came to giving out presents, for there would be none. But after a time she called the first little performer to the stage:

"I'm just a little boy—
I can't speak very well—
So I'll let the mis-tle-toe
Ring its little bell."

The five-year-old tot had just finished his speech, when the interruption came. The Coal Creek spur, in coming into camp, curved sharply around the edge of the mountain, through a deep cut and came out on the level ground not fifty feet from the school house. The little speech about the Christmas bell had barely left the speaker's lips and he was making a stiff bow to his audience when the school house began to tremble, as if rocked by an earthquake. Someone threw open the door and those who craned their necks in the direction of the noise saw a sight that astonished them. Three funnels, half hidden by the barrier of snow, were shooting a volcano of sparks high into the air. Just in front of these came a black monster that waded slowly through the snow. As it did so, it spit a constant stream of white to one side high above the sides of the cut.

"Dorgan was first; his beard was not long enough for an orthodox Santa Claus, but nobody seemed to notice that"

The program of Christmas exercises was forgotten. Windows were raised and heads poked out. The harrassed teacher welcomed the interruption.

Through the cut and out by the side of the school house the three inverted pyramids of sparks disappeared as the enginemen shut off steam. Before the children had time to realize it, the strange train had stopped, with the last car just opposite the door of the school house. Strange figures, covered with great coats and the great coats encrusted with ice and snow, came to the car, shoved open the door and from it took bundle after bundle, which they shouldered and carried into the house, the people making way for them. Dorgan was first. His beard was not long enough for an orthodox Santa Claus, but no one seemed to notice that. As he laid his bundle down by the tree, he said to the teacher:

"I hope you'll see that the children get these, with the compliments of Santa Claus."

He stood aside until at least ten other big boxes and bundles were brought in. By this time the house was in an uproar. Every child was talking at the same time and no one knew what the other said. Even the babies stared in wonder at the sight. It seemed that Santa Claus had come, all right, for there were the boxes and bundles. True, the reindeer were not in evidence and the chief Santa Claus wore a week's beard, heavily impregnated with cinders and coal dust. But there were the boxes of toys!

The teacher raised her hand and quiet reigned. It was the usual quiet of a room full of children; a quiet that would really have been quiet if some of them had not moved their feet just a little or uttered "ohs" or "ahs." It was a quiet in which one could have heard a pin drop if the pin was a large one and the pin dropped from a great distance. But the teacher made herself heard, at last:

"Children," she said, with a little sob, "Santa Claus discovered he could not come over the mountains because of the soft snow, and these good men offered to help him, and now they are here. To show our appreciation, let's sing them our Christmas song," and a hundred childish voices rang out in—"The snow lay on the ground, the stars shown bright,

When Christ, our Lord, was born on Christmas night."

The song ended and one of the engineers nudged Dorgan. "We'd better coast down to the Junction now, and get in ahead of number eight, eh?" And Dorgan gave the signal and left the children to their enjoyment. Only the teacher and a few of the older people shook hands with the assistants of Santa Claus. For that is the way with childhood. Santa Claus was to have come that evening and he came, as per schedule. And the children saw nothing great in it.

* * * * *

In a hotel a thousand miles from Coal Camp a great coal operator and a great railroad manager were dining together. They had been friends for years and it was their custom to eat Christmas dinner together. As they came to cigars the mining man thought of something:

"By the way, Carlton, you've got a good man out on that mountain division. We're going to open those Coal Camp mines and we shipped twelve carloads of machinery out there yesterday. I wired your man at Douglas Junction to see that the spur was opened as soon as possible, and just as I came away from the office we got a wire saying the spur was open for traffic. And that was a bad snow out there—the worst in years. That's quick work."

"Oh, yes," the railroad man replied. "That's Dorgan. He's got the worst division on the whole system, but he does things. That's why he's there."

Pensioners' Roll of Honor

*Oh, blest retirement! friend of life's decline—
Retreat from care that ever must be thine:
How blest is he who crowns, in shades like these,
A youth of labor with an age of ease.*

OLIVER GOLDSMITH—"The Deserted Village"

John P. McBrayer

John P. McBrayer was born in Anderson County, Kentucky on September 7, 1854. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service on September 17, 1906 as car repairer at Storrs and in 1908 was transferred to position of trackman. In 1922, because of failing health, he was given position as crossing watchman, which he retained until his recent retirement.

Maurice Cahill

Maurice Cahill was born at Zaleski, Ohio on December 25, 1857. He entered Baltimore and Ohio service as boilermaker's apprentice on November 1, 1877. In 1880 he was transferred to position of freight fireman and in 1887 was promoted to freight engineer. On December 1, 1908 he was promoted to passenger engineer, which position he held at the time of his retirement on September 17, 1923.

ENJOYING A WELL EARNED REST

Left: John P. McBrayer

Right: Maurice Cahill

Concerning the Story of France

Dear Readers of the Magazine:

I want to express to you my thanks for the nice things which so many of you have written to me concerning my little story of the journey of the Good Will girls to France. It has been a great pleasure for me to tell you about the little incidents that happened and the many wonderful places which we visited.

The other day I received a letter from one of our boys who had been with the 117th Trench Mortar Battery in the region of Chateau Thierry. He reminds me that I failed to give credit to the 117th Trench Mortar Battery, Forty-Second (Rainbow) Division—"Maryland's First to Fight." He also mentions the fact that there were no round cannon balls used, despite the fact that in a recent issue I called attention to a certain building in Chateau Thierry where there are round cannon balls lodged in its walls.

Of course, our readers will realize that we had to rely on what was told us in the story of the round cannon balls. It is true that there are round cannon balls lodged in the walls of the building at the southwest end of the bridge at Chateau Thierry, and it is true that we were told that these were from cannon used during the war. Naturally I understood this to mean the World War. However, it may be that the reference was made to some other war. Nevertheless, the round balls are there, as the other girls will also tell you.

I did not intentionally omit the reference to Maryland's First to Fight. I had this and perhaps a thousand other things in mind when I wrote the story, and some of them simply slipped by.

Our soldier boy tells us the following interesting facts:

"After the battle of Chateau Thierry and Belleau Wood, the 117th T. M. B. was partly quartered in the Palais de Justice and in other houses facing the open plaza. Our field kitchen was set up in the hotel gardens you speak of strolling through.

"At the time that the 117th T. M. B. advanced through Chateau Thierry, there were only three civilians in the town, one of these dying shortly after the Germans vacated it. If I recall rightly, one was a baker. In the house back of the Palais de Justice on the rue de Soissons, there was a plate of hot beans on the table, left there by the German officers when the T. M. B. entered."

I remember well the house of which our soldier boy speaks. A one-eyed French colonel escorted us through. He talked solely in French, so it might have been this fact that also got me mixed up on the cannon ball story, together with my lack of vocabulaire française.

I thank Mr. Soldier Boy, and if any of you find other errors in the story I shall appreciate your telling me about them, as naturally I do not wish to convey any false impressions. Yours very truly,

(Signed) MARGARET T. STEVENS

Payment Deferred

Alice, five years old, entered the general store of Mr. Smith, with whom she was a great favorite, and announced that to make her dolly a dress she needed "some red, blue and yellow."

When Mr. Smith had brought out the required amount of material she asked how much it was.

"That will cost you just one kiss," replied the storekeeper.

Whereupon Alice answered, "Mamma said she would come in and pay you tomorrow."—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph

Protect the children!

The sturdy youngsters and tiny toddlers whose trusting fingers are twined about your very heartstrings play always under the threatening shadow of tuberculosis.

The dread disease is everywhere. Wealth is no bar and position no barrier to consumption. The only way to make the world safe for children is to stamp out tuberculosis entirely.

It can be stamped out. Today only one person dies of tuberculosis where two died before. Christmas Seals have helped to save the other life.

Help in this life-saving campaign. Save the children. Buy Christmas Seals.

Stamp out Tuberculosis with Christmas Seals

THE NATIONAL, STATE AND LOCAL TUBERCULOSIS ASSOCIATIONS OF THE UNITED STATES

Eyes to the Blind

A little narrative of some of the heart-thrills that fall to the lot of the Traveling Passenger Agent, as told by our own

—H. B. Kight—

Traveling Passenger Agent . . . Cumberland.

with plenty of drinking water aboard! Everything was done for their comfort by the train crew, NOT because they felt OBLIGED to do so but just because they WANTED to do so.

ON September 11, I left Kenova, W. Va., with a special coach full of deaf and blind students, starting on their journey to Romney, W. Va., where the West Virginia School for the Deaf and Blind is located. Some of my little passengers were leaving their homes for the first time, while the older ones were returning to the school to resume their studies.

At Huntington we took aboard many more and as I stood beside the car steps and helped them on, I found a something in my throat that would not go down. I couldn't talk as I turned to the brakeman—and he was just as bad off. His heart had been touched, too—it was almost impossible to keep back the tears.

At Pt. Pleasant we picked up another car of the children, and another at Parkersburg, where we made up a special train for the long run to Romney. Grafton had still another car waiting for us.

Often as I have stood at the station at Keyser, I have watched the "Romney Special" pass, and I have thought of it as "just another train." I never realized just what it all meant. But now, after I have ridden with these boys and girls from early morning until late into the night, I have learned to know what that sort of affliction means.

The little deaf boys and girls at first thought that I was a member of the school faculty and would talk to me on their hands, by means of signs, and by spelling the words. Of course I did not understand. But soon they found out that I was with the Baltimore and Ohio and that I was with them to assist them in any way that I could. And how they appreciated the fine equipment—the clean, vestibuled cars, well lighted and

They were of all sizes and ages and it was nothing unusual for the blind to pass from one car to another looking for friends and finding them, too. When six of the larger boys—sturdy, whole-hearted fellows, got together, they sang beautifully. At one point as we stopped it was the old hymn, "Jesus Saviour, Pilot Me." How poignantly sincere the appeal sounded as the melody floated out upon the air and touched the hearts of those who heard.

One little blind girl was starting to school for the first time. A pretty little thing she was, with broad beaver hat and coat to match, and she carried her doll baby. The doll when tilted would say "Mamma" and oh, how those blind children loved it. Most all of them took turns caring for the "baby" and as they ran their hands over its face, and dress and shoes and stockings, and felt its hair, they talked of what a beautiful thing it was. Seeing through their fingers the beauty of that doll!

The deaf boys and girls seemed to be enjoying their trip as they made new friends and renewed the friendships of old.

After having traveled all day the younger children began to get sleepy, so I told them to lie down and take a nap, that Romney was a long way off and that I would awaken them in time. Several of the boys wanted a drink of water, which I got for them, then saw them curl up in their seats and doze off.

Mike Smith was sitting opposite Griffith Dillion. A couple of years ago Mike was playing with a dynamite cap and blew his eyes out—and now he was on his way to school to learn to see with his fingers. Poor, dear little Mike, his first year away from home and loved ones! Griffith, 13 years of age, had been blind since he was four, as he put it, "ever since I had the whooping cough." They were both sound asleep as we neared Romney and I was helping the attendants to get them aroused to be ready to get off.

I awakened Mike first and took him to the front of the car, telling him not to "go back in the hay." Mike thought that was funny. Then I went to Griffith. He arose, stretched himself, rubbed his little blind eyes and reached for his shoes. Just like any kid, he wanted to lie still and it was with much coaxing that I finally got him awake. I said to him:

"Griffith, as this is Mike's first year he will have to have someone show him around over at school, won't he?"

"Yes, but he wants to run around with Boston (another boy) and Boston is blind as a bat," answered Griffith.

How quickly they make light of their affliction!

We reached Romney safely and were met by Superintendent DeBerry and his staff, and the children were taken to their school home, tired out and sleepy, but happy.

When they had gotten washed up and in bed, Mrs. DeBerry, knowing my love for them, took me to the boys' sleeping quarters. As we peeked at them, snug in their little white beds, I saw an arm raised over in the corner, to wave to me. Another arm went up, and another and another, and that night before those tired little fellows had gone to sleep I went to each of their beds and patted each one on the head, thankful that an all-merciful Father had brought them safely to so comfortable a home.

Superintendent DeBerry wrote me a long letter telling me how much he appreciated every phase of the service that was given by the Baltimore and Ohio, the attentive train crew, the nice equipment, and, especially, the handling of several hundred pieces of baggage without a single mistake. I wish we had space to reprint the entire letter.

It is, however, typical of other letters we get, commending the service of our big organization, where each employe is doing the best he knows how, NOT BECAUSE HE FEELS OBLIGED TO DO SO, BUT JUST BECAUSE HE WANTS TO DO SO.

New Class S-1 Locomotive Has 33<sup>1</sup>/<sub>3</sub> Per Cent. Greater Tractive Power than 4400 and 4600 Series

By A. G. SANDMAN, Mechanical Engineer

SEVENTY-FIVE of the new Class S-1 locomotives are now being built, 50 at the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, and 25 at the Lima Locomotive Works, Lima, Ohio. This design is in line with the modern trend toward single unit locomotives of greater hauling capacity than the Mikados, the tractive power of this new Class being 33<sup>1</sup>/<sub>3</sub>% greater than our last Mikados, Class Q-4b in the 4400 and 4600 series. The principal dimensions and weights are as follows:

Tractive force.....84,260 pounds
Service.....Heavy freight
Gauge.....4' 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>"
Cylinders.....30" x 32"
Valves.....Piston, 14" dia.

Boiler

Type.....Straight top
Diameter.....90"
Working press.....220 pounds
Fuel.....Soft coal

Firebox

Material.....Steel
Staying.....Radial
Length.....132<sup>1</sup>/<sub>8</sub>"
Width.....96"
Depth, front.....91<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>"
Depth, back.....77<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>"

Tubes

Diameter.....5<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>"      2<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>"
Number.....53      232
Length.....23'      23'

Heating Surface

Firebox.....262 square feet
Combustion chamber....85 square feet
Tubes.....4881 square feet
Firebrick tubes.....42 square feet
Total.....5270 square feet
Superheater.....1512 square feet
Grate area.....88 square feet

Driving Wheels

Diameter, outside.....64"
Diameter, center.....56"
Journals, main.....13<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>" x 15"
Journals, others.....11" x 13"

Engine Truck Wheels

Diameter, front.....33"
Journals.....6" x 10"
Diameter, back.....46"
Journals.....9" x 14"

Wheel Base

Driving.....22' 4"
Rigid.....22' 4"
Total engine.....42' 11"
Total engine and tender 89' 10<sup>7</sup>/<sub>8</sub>"

Weight in Working Order

On driving wheels.....347,230 pounds
On truck, front.....31,570 pounds
On truck, back.....57,710 pounds
Total engine.....436,510 pounds
Total engine and tender 735,000 pounds

Tender

Wheels, number.....12
Wheels, diameter.....33"
Journals.....6" x 11"
Tank capacity.....15,800 U. S. gals.
Fuel capacity.....23 tons

The following list comprises some of the parts on the locomotive, showing names of the various devices or material used in construction:

Ash Pan—Commonwealth cast steel.
Driving and Truck Axles—Hammered open hearth steel.
Bell Ringer—Osche improved pneumatic.
Staybolts—Complete installation, flexible.
Driver Brake—American Brake Company's outside equalized.
Air Brake Schedule—No. 6 E. T.
Driver Brake Cylinders—Two 14" x 12", two 12" x 10".
Air Compressors—Two 8<sup>1</sup>/<sub>2</sub>"—120' cross compound.
Air Reservoir Capacity—75,600 cu. in.
Air Connection between Engine and Tender—McLaughlin flexible.
Cab—Sheet steel, wood lined.
Blow Off Cocks—Two 2" Okadec.
Blower Valve—Okadec 1<sup>1</sup>/<sub>4</sub>" quick opening.
Crosshead—Rogatchoff adjustable.
Drifting Valve—Sellers.
Radial Buffer—Franklin spring type "D."
Draft Gear, Tender—National type H-la.

Coupler, Tender—6" x 8" shank, type "D" head, A. R. A. Standard.
Coupler Release Rigging—X. L. T.
Fire Door—Franklin Automatic No. 8.
Frame Cradle—Commonwealth cast steel.
Headlight—Aluminum case with 14" reflector.
Turbo Generator—Pyle National type E-2.
Classification Lamp—Armspear unified pressed steel electric.
Injectors—Hancock H. N. L., 6000 gallon capacity.
Main Lubricator—Detroit No. 2, five feed, five pint capacity.
Driving Box Lubricator—Elvin.
Flexible Joints between Main Air Reservoirs—Franklin.
Piston Rods—Normalized carbon vanadium steel.
Reverse Gear—Hand screw type.
Main and Side Rods—Normalized carbon vanadium steel.
Main Rod—Markel type.
Safety Valves—Three 4" Coale.
Sander—Hanlon double pneumatic.
Air Gauge—Ashton quadruplex.
Steam Gauge—Ashton iron case.
Stoker—Duplex mechanical.
Superheater—Type "A" double loop, 53 units.
Tank—Vanderbilt type (cylindrical).
Tender Frame—Commonwealth cast steel.
Throttle—Chambers single seat.
Car Replacer—Fewing heavy design.
Trailer Truck—Delta type, Commonwealth cast steel.
Tender Truck—Commonwealth cast steel.
Tender Side Bearings—Stuecki anti-friction type.
Valve Gear—Baker.
Water Glass—Wiltbonco reflex.

Green

Don't feel hurt if some one says you are green. For remember, if you are green you are growing. It's the fellow that is dead ripe that is apt to become rotten.

—The Railway Agent

The Greek Slave's Wisdom

The old Greek slave who was told to serve the best meat he could one day and the worst the next, served tongue both times.

He explained that words spoken by the tongue caused most of the happiness in the world, but also most of the misery.

—Exchange

Seventy-five of the New Class S-1 Locomotives have been ordered and a few have already been placed in operation

The Baltimore and Ohio Better Dairy Sire Special

By O. K. QUIVEY, General Agricultural Agent

"IF you haven't the money to buy a pure bred bull to head your herd, then my advice is to go out and steal one. I mean what I say. You may get caught. You may even have to serve a year or two in jail, but at that you will be ahead of the game, for you will be in jail the balance of your life if you continue to milk scrub cows."

The speaker was Mr. Hugh G. Van Pelt, internationally famous for his knowledge of the dairy industry and particularly for his experience with Jersey cattle. Mr. Van Pelt was on the program of the Baltimore and Ohio Better Dairy Sire Special, which was operated over our lines in Southern Indiana between September 17 and 29, in cooperation with Purdue University Dairy Extension Service, the American Jersey Cattle Club, the Indiana Jersey Cattle Club, the National Dairy Council, local county agricultural agents, banks, clubs, chambers of commerce, etc.

It was our idea that this project be devoted to all breeds of dairy cattle alike, and the invitation to cooperate with the Railroad and Purdue University was extended to the four major dairy breeds. However, for one reason or another the invitation was finally accepted by only the Jersey breed, and the project was then carried out in cooperation with the Indiana Jersey Cattle Club and the American Jersey Cattle Club.

Never before has a dairy demonstration train been operated with such high standards, for in planning this project, the following requirements were laid down:

FIRST: That each bull on the Baltimore and Ohio Better Dairy Sire Special be a pure bred, and registered or eligible for registry, and that he be of serviceable age, at least for limited service.

SECOND: That to be taken on the Baltimore and Ohio Better Dairy Sire Special each bull be out of a dam with a 400 pound butter fat record or better.

THIRD: That the Breed Association inspect each bull in order to determine that it is individually all that the breeding and production back of it indicated it should be.

FOURTH: That each bull taken on the Better Dairy Sire Special be of the type which the officers of the Breed Association are perfectly willing and glad to have go out as truly representative of the breed.

FIFTH: That several weeks preliminary work be conducted in those towns and counties to be later traversed by the Better Dairy Sire Special for the purpose of interviewing County Agricultural Agents, owners of scrub and grade bulls, bankers, chambers of commerce and creamery interests.

SIXTH: That each farmer owning a scrub or grade bull be allowed beef prices for it when purchasing a pure bred from the train, and that the Better Dairy Sire Special spend an entire day at each stop visited by the train to permit farmers to look carefully over all the sires and select the ones best suited to their needs.

While the foregoing marked the main requirements, there were many less important details, all of which were carefully planned in advance, and those who visited the train report that it was the last word in efficiency, both as to quality of cattle, equipment and operation.

From an educational standpoint the effect of this train cannot be overestimated, this feature of the work being in the hands of Professor R. D. Canon of Purdue University and Mr. Hugh G. Van Pelt, representing the American Jersey Cattle Club. The work of Miss Anne Lamb, an authority on the value of milk as human food, and representing the National Dairy Council, also cannot be overestimated. The records show that she received and talked to 27,000 school children in charge of their teachers during the two weeks in which the train was enroute. The moving picture films entitled "Hearts and Jerseys," "The Tale of Two Bulls," "Highland Lassie," "The Turn of the Road," and "The Romance of the White Bottle" completed an educational program of unusual merit and appeal.

ON THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO BETTER DAIRY SIRE SPECIAL

The flat car for lecture and demonstration purposes, showing the "scrub" versus the "purebred"

"It can be seen, therefore, that the Baltimore and Ohio Better Dairy Sire Special accomplished all that any former dairy development train has accomplished in an educational way. In addition, it placed 46 pure bred bulls in service and took out of service almost an equal number of scrub bulls which were sent to the stock yards for slaughter. The evidence that bulls are still being sold as a direct result of the operation of this train is indicated in reports still being received from Professor Canon of Purdue University and others.

Desiring to back up its confidence in the future of the dairy industry, General Agricultural Agent Quivey purchased on behalf of the Baltimore and Ohio one of the finest bulls on the train and out of "Sweet Rose of Meadowbrook," a dam with five Register of Merit records and the dam of two Registry of Merit cows, she herself being again on test, and in 183 days producing 7,333 pounds of milk and 410.69 pounds of butter fat, at seven years and four months. The grandsire of this young bull is "You'll Do's Handsome Raleigh" which sire was recently purchased for $6,300.00 by Mr. Frederick Underwood, President of the Erie Railroad. The bull purchased by the Baltimore and Ohio has been registered under the name of "Bando's Handsome Meadowbrook," the word "Bando" being a combination of the letters "B" and "O," "Handsome" giving recognition to the grandsire of this bull, and "Meadowbrook" giving recognition to his dam, "Sweet Rose of Meadowbrook" and owned by Mrs. M. A. Cavode of Westfield, Ind., President of the Indiana Jersey Cattle Club and one of the most constructive breeders of Jerseys.

The Baltimore and Ohio will place "Bando's Handsome Meadowbrook" in that county in Southern Indiana traversed by its lines in which it is believed it will accomplish the greatest good. The Baltimore and Ohio is not interested exclusively in any one breed of dairy cattle, but rather believes there is plenty of room for purebreds of all breeds. The Baltimore and Ohio is constantly striving to promote the interests of all breeds, and though in this particular instance cooperated with the Jersey interests, yet all breeders of pure bred dairy cattle, regardless of the breed, will profit by the Baltimore and Ohio Better Dairy Sire Special. The project will continue to have a good and lasting influence on the dairy interests for many years to come, particularly in view of the follow-up work which our own Agricultural Department, Purdue University and the American Jersey Cattle Club will foster in the territory covered by the Better Dairy Sire Special.

D. F. A. Sullivan and Others Befriend Lonely Girl

ONE day, early in September, Division Freight Agent D. E. Sullivan left Chicago on Train No. 10. He became interested in the welfare of a little girl, twelve years old, who was travelling alone en route to Washington.

Pullman Conductor Hogan, as well as the train conductor, dining car steward and other members of the crew, saw that she was made to feel at home. She carried a letter which contained no instructions to Baltimore and Ohio men as to berth and meals but the Pullman Conductor expressed his desire to pay for the berth personally.

Above: "Bando's Handsome Meadowbrook," the wonderful young sire purchased from the train by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad for dairy development work in Southern Indiana. Below: Some of the scrub bulls taken out of service by the Better Dairy Sire Special

General Agricultural Agent Quivey and Staff Engaged in the Conduct of the Dairy Sire Special

However, the little girl had sufficient funds to carry her through.

Mr. Sullivan has seven children and naturally takes a special interest in the little ones. He wired Mr. Will C. Butler, Washington, D. C., advising him that the little girl was all right and the expected time of her arrival at Washington. He has since received the following letter from Mr. Butler:

"I assure you that I highly appreciate the interest you took in my little cousin, Georgella, who came to us a short time ago from New Mexico, not only your interest in her welfare but also your kindness in wiring me that she was all right. * * * *

"I wish to emphasize my appreciation of your courtesy to her, also the kindness shown her by Captain Hogan, the dining car steward and the train crew. * * * *

"She thoroughly enjoyed her trip on the Baltimore and Ohio. At some time during her school vacation in the future she will return to New Mexico to visit her relatives. When she does, she will go and return via the Baltimore and Ohio."

An Old Station—But it Shines with the Smiles of Agent Butts

RECENTLY I was at Martinsburg, W. Va., and had an hour and a half to wait for my train. I have known the old place for fifty years. While the station is old, the walls, floors, benches and windows are clean. While sitting in the station, my attention was attracted to the ticket agent, Mr. Butts, and his courteous treatment of the public.

Two gentlemen came into the station 45 minutes before train time. They had some business to transact and wanted tickets. Mr. Butts pleasantly opened his window and attended to their wants. A lady came to him about some trouble with her trunk. The baggage room is downstairs, but instead of directing the lady there, he called the baggageman and arranged the difficulty satisfactorily. Then he called a transfer truck and the trunk was started to its destination. Another friend made! The lady went away all smiles.

Then a passenger came in and asked what time a certain train would leave. He was given the information and in addition our ticket agent added that it reached Cumberland at 1:30. It was all done so cheerfully and courteously that every one went away feeling kindly disposed toward the Baltimore and Ohio. The station may be old, it may bear the marks of age, but the smiles and courtesy of the ticket agent make us forget this and think only of the kindly "Good Neighbor" spirit which fills our boys along the line and daily add to the popularity of the "Friendly Way."

She Evidently Knew Him

(A messenger boy with a telegram for Mr. Smith rings at two in the morning): "Does Mr. Smith live here?"
Feminine Voice (Wearily): "Yes! bring him in."
—Clarksburg Exponent

"More than Met the Demand for Service"

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
Incorporated

Of Winchester and Frederick County, Va.
Winchester, Va.

November 14, 1923

Mr. J. L. Hayes
Division Freight Agent
Baltimore and Ohio Railroad
Baltimore, Maryland

My dear Mr. Hayes:

In view of the splendid service rendered by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in Winchester the last two months, during our apple season here, we feel it nothing more than right and just that we say a few words of commendation relative to the excellent service which you have rendered.

While you are no doubt aware that we were interested in such matters, still at the same time we desire to inform you that we have been right on the job, and we are glad indeed to say, after investigation and inquiry from several of the principal fruit growers here, that your service has been excellent and that you have more than met the demand made upon you for cars.

Again thanking you for your splendid service and cooperation rendered us, and trusting that this same service may continue to the mutual interest of both of us, with best wishes, we remain, at your service.

Yours very truly,
Winchester Chamber of Commerce
(Signed) ANDREW BELL
Secretary

Death Ends Long and Honorable Service of George W. Andrews

By J. E. BARNHART, Assistant Chief Clerk, Chief Engineer Maintenance

AT 7.00 p. m., on November 2, in Baltimore, there passed to its well deserved reward, the soul of the late George W. Andrews, assistant to chief engineer maintenance of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. His life spanned sixty-seven years, four months and eleven days, and a service with the Railroad of forty-three years and three months.

Mr. Andrews was born at Laurel, Md., June 21, 1856. His schooling, to use his own words, "consisted of public, private tutor, Maryland Institute of Baltimore and the help of a talented wife."

He first entered the service of the Railroad at Relay, Md., during the winter of 1873, as a temporary baggage master. He came to Baltimore in March, 1873, and, starting as an apprentice at house carpentering, served three years as such. From 1876 to 1880 he worked for various contractors on the erection of bridges, buildings, wharves, etc., the last eight months of which were spent as carpenter foreman on the erection of the large gas plant for the city of Havana, Cuba.

Upon his return to the United States he reentered the service of the Railroad, July, 1880 as a carpenter in the Freight Car Shop at Mt. Clare under Foreman James Miller. In August, 1882 he was transferred to the Passenger Car Shop under Foreman John Clark where he remained until May, 1883, when he again left the service to take a position with a contractor.

While employed in this work it so happened that he became engaged in the erection of the city home at Mt. Vernon Place, Baltimore, of the late Robert Garrett, then President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. As a result of the fine character of his work on this structure he was offered and accepted, in the fall of 1885, the position of assistant to C. McLean, superintendent of construction of the Philadelphia Division and the New York Terminals under Col. H. T. Douglas, chief engineer. From that time until March 1, 1887, he was in direct charge of all bridge and structure work, which included the building of practically all stations between Canton, Md., and Philadelphia, Pa., with the exception of these at Newark and Wilmington, Del., and Chester, Pa.

On March 1, 1887, he was appointed supervisor of bridges and buildings, Philadelphia, Pa., to Baltimore, Md., his jurisdiction being extended over the Belt Line, Bay View to Hamburg Street, Baltimore, Md., upon opening of operation in 1895. His territory was extended in 1898 over bridges, Baltimore, Md., to Washington Junction, Md., via Washington, and over all bridges and buildings in that territory in 1899. In 1900 jurisdiction was extended over the Old Main Line, Relay, Md., to Brunswick, Md. He remained in charge of this work until 1902, during which period he designed and built the first two units of No. 1 Machine Shop, the erecting shop, the central boiler plant, and later designed and supervised the erection of the third and last unit of machine and boiler shops at Mt. Clare, Baltimore, Md.

On March 15, 1902, he was appointed assistant engineer of bridges and buildings over all lines under J. E. Greiner. On December 1, 1903 the engineer of bridges was relieved of the maintenance of buildings, and that work, together with Mr. Andrews, was transferred to the Maintenance of Way Department under J. B. Dickson. As inspector of maintenance he served in this capacity under J. B. Dickson, A. W. Thompson and E. Stimson until September 1, 1911, on which date he was appointed assistant to engineer maintenance of way, his title being changed on January 1, 1920 to assistant to chief engineer maintenance, having general supervision over the maintenance of the bridges, buildings, docks and wharves, scales and tunnels of the System.

The late G. W. Andrews

He held this position at the time of his death.

In the passing of Mr. Andrews another link with the past, with the early construction of the Railroad, has been broken; the Company has lost the services of a tried, trusty and faithful employe, whose knowledge and ability in his line of work was recognized and appreciated throughout the entire System. Truly it may be said—a valuable employe has passed on.

His fellow employes have sustained the loss of a true friend, one with whom casual acquaintance made life and the world appear better, and to have been accorded the privilege of intimate association with this kind, genial, helpful personality, brought the realization of what true friendship means. And, while we mourn his loss, the memories of past associations will be a help and guidance through the lasting years.

Peace be to our friend and well beloved fellow employe.

Good Neighbors to the Baltimore and Ohio

AN emergency situation on the Charleston Division, November 1, in which one of our passenger trains was involved, required prompt and unusual service on the part of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Company through their exchange offices at Weston and Burnsville.

Under the direction of Miss Mary Mullady, at Weston, and Mrs. Hibbs at Burnsville, chief operators, the exchange girls rendered service that could not be excelled. Superintendent Trapnell informed the Telephone Company of this unusual service and asked that all persons contributing to it be informed as to how much their work was appreciated. Vice-President Williamson, of the Telephone Company, advised Mr. Trapnell that this would be done.

In addition to this we want to mention the unselfish and humane action of Miss Mary Dolan, and Mrs. E. S. Riffe, of Orlando, who threw open their houses for the taking care of the injured and furnished bed linen for bandages; also Messrs. Charley Knight and Bob Heater, of Orlando, who rendered valuable service in caring for the injured.

New Hopper and Box Cars

On November 9 the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company announced that it had placed orders for 500 all steel hopper cars and 500 steel underframe box cars with the Pressed Steel Car Company, McKees Rocks, Pa., and the American Car and Foundry Company, Berwick, Pa., respectively.

When the Baltimore and Ohio Issued "Stock Orders" That Were Used as Currency

IN 1870, Mr. T. M. Maynadier, for many years a member of the Baltimore Chamber of Commerce, was tending store at Harford Furnace, located at the head of the Bush River in Maryland.

A tramp moving along the pike dropped into the store and tried to buy some tobacco by using in payment the original of the certificate shown in the accompanying cut, calling for the payment of 12½ cents to the bearer in stock of the City of Baltimore and on account of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company. Mr. Maynadier accepted the certificate, sold the tramp 10 cents worth of tobacco, and gave him two cents in change.

Several weeks ago in going through some old papers he discovered the certificate and kindly loaned it for reproduction in the MAGAZINE.

The way it happened to come into existence is given in the following, taken substantially from one of our annual reports:

Under an Act of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland and ordinances of the City of Baltimore passed in 1836, the City of Baltimore was authorized to and did subscribe for $3,000,000 of the capital stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, to be applied exclusively to the construction of the road from Harper's Ferry westward, the Commissioners of Finance of the City to borrow the sum necessary to meet the payments for its subscription by means of an issue of City stock created for that purpose, which stock was to bear six per cent. interest.

During the progress of construction work west of Harper's Ferry, 1839 to 1841, financial conditions throughout the country were very bad (banks south of New York having suspended specie payments), and it was impossible promptly to raise moneys necessary through sale of City stock. Therefore, to avoid a suspension of work and apply the City subscription with the least possible loss, and husband the Company's own resources, the Board of Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio resolved to receive from the City, from time to time, if it should deem it expedient for its purposes, the six per cent. City stock, at par, in payment of her subscription to the stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Company.

The Board also proposed to contractors and others furnishing the Company with the necessary labor and materials, that they receive payment in the funded debt of the City, at par, instead of money. To effect this end, the scheme of issuing stock orders fundable in the six per cent. stock, at par, was devised and was carried into effect accordingly, and by these means and to some extent by the direct payment of City stock the work was prosecuted. These stock orders, issued by the Baltimore and Ohio Company, were fundable into City stock, in round amounts, the stock meantime being deposited with the Commissioners of Finance of the City pending its issuance in exchange for the stock orders.

These stock orders were given by the Baltimore and Ohio Company to property owners, contractors and others in payment for rights of way, labor and materials furnished in connection with construction of the line from Harper's Ferry westward, and to a limited extent circulated as money. The stock orders were in quite a number of different denominations, the twelve and one half cent one shown being only one of many.

Greetings from the Charles W. Galloway Auxiliary No. 1

WE started our Fall and Winter meetings with an excellent attendance, although the customary falling off in attendance on account of the hot weather in the summer did not affect the auxiliary.

William J. Dudley, superintendent, Relief Department, was the speaker at our September meeting and gave a most interesting and instructive talk.

Our First Anniversary was celebrated at our October meeting. John Bopp, the well known Baltimore and Ohio caterer, furnished a tempting and appetizing luncheon; one hundred were present. A large iced birthday cake with one candle on it was much in evidence.

A short review of the year's work and accomplishments was given by the president, followed by short talks by the officers

This Certificate Bought Tobacco for a Tramp in 1870

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY		1881.		Manifest No. 188
Freight Manifested from		Initial		Car No.
Duxton O		1500		17 255
1 Tank		255		50
1500		17		255
255		50

The Cost of Sending the Same Tank Today Would be $5.32, an Increase Less Than the Average "Cost of Living" Increase and members. It did the officers good to hear these wholehearted expressions of appreciation and cooperation.

Vice-President Galloway, after whom the Auxiliary is named, was unable to be with us, but he very thoughtfully sent a telegram from Wheeling Junction expressing his regrets at not being present and congratulating the Auxiliary on its fine progress during the past year.

Mrs. Donald R. Hooker was our speaker and everyone present agreed that her talk was a real treat.

A class has been organized to sew one afternoon a week at the Florence Crittendon Home. Mrs. Buxton is in charge.

Our secretary, Mrs. George T. McMillen, is preparing a year book which should make interesting reading.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas, I am,

Yours in friendship and sociability,

MRS. CHAS. W. LEWIS, President

Garrett "Archaeologist" Finds Freight Rates Today Not Excessive When Compared to Forty Years Ago!

By D. E. SULLIVAN, Division Freight Agent, Garrett

SPEAKING of Old King Tut; our archaeologist has been doing some exploring at the ancient town of HOL-GA-TE on the Chicago Division, for some antique of an ancestor and namesake called KING BULL MUL, and with much pride we present, for the benefit of scientific research, for prevention of cruelty to bill-clerks, the result of his first "Excavation."

FOS-TO-RIA to HOL-GA-TE waybill 188, Sept. 15, 1881, one tank, 1500 pounds (not gold plated) $2.55 freight charges.

Looking back forty-two centuries—I mean years—our Chicago Division then being a very small youngster, we note that in those antique days of HOL-GA-TE the poor native who bought this tank had to come across with $2.55 for freight charges—a princely sum in "Ye Ancient Days," when the standard selling price of thousands of articles—from street car fare to beer—was but five cents—FIVE CENTS, say it again, because "Them days is gone forever."

But—what do we care about five cent beer or five cent street car fare today?

The $2.55 freight charges paid by "Ye Ancient Native" of HOL-GA-TE represented approximately two days pay, and, in many lines of work, then some.

Today in this Twin Cylinder Century the same tank, assuming it was iron (and not gold plated) would cost $5.32. But wait. I hear you chuckling right now "Gee, how freight rates have increased." Let's see. What else has increased, how about wages, and all classes of commodities today as compared to forty-two years ago? Have they not increased in many cases many times double?

Be honest now. Would you gladly trade our present day with all its wonderful advantages, inventions, and innumerable "ism's" with that of "Ye Old Ancient HOL-GA-TE," barring of course that strangle hold advantage enjoyed before King VOL-STE-AD ascended his throne at D-R-Y?

Everybody Smiles at Newark Veterans' Meeting

By MRS. R. E. LEONARD, Chairman
Entertainment Committee

AT our meeting on the evening of November 1, there were 150 present, including members of both the Auxiliary and the Veterans' Association.

Brother Dan Moriarity presided over the meeting of the men, and Sister Howard served well in her capacity as president of the Auxiliary. As guests of the evening, we had Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher, from Fairmont, W. Va., and Grand Vice-President and Mrs. J. M. Garvey, of Wheeling.

Of course we all smiled. Neither Brother Fletcher nor Brother Garvey, nor even either of their wives would talk to long-faced audiences. And the smiles stayed on, for the election of officers proved to be a re-election. Brother Garvey gave an interesting talk, followed by Sister Garvey, who should have been named "Smiles," for that's something "she don't do nothin' else but." The meeting was then turned over to the entertainment committee.

A guessing contest was in order. Sister Priorer received a handsome box of stationery, and Brother Silas Higgs a bill fold, for guessing the nearest number of beans in a jar. Refreshments were served, and "hot-dog" sandwiches, doughnuts and coffee occupied the attention of the members until it was time to sing "God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again." Then we all went home as we had come—SMILING!

The Old Flagman

By JAMES MCCHESENEY PRICKETT, in Washington "Times"

There's a little old man by the railroad track,

Who stands in the midst of the throng,
And he waves all day with a little red flag,
To hurry the crowds along.
With his wooden leg he'll thump around,
Then gesture, shout and call,
To the lagging old, to the youthful bold—
He's watching for one and all.

There in the dust and clamor and roar,
We see him day by day,
With his faded clothes and his withered cheeks,
And his frosted beard of gray,
To the mounted men, to the "Taxi" then
The sleepy drayman slow—
Calls "Halt!" and they've heard his warning word,
Then wait for the sign to go.

Sometimes when the dying sun's shafts stream,
Flooding the streets with gold,
He's called by a dream o'er the train of years
To memories' paths of old,
"I'll always wait, by the garden gate,"
These words he hears once more,
While moon beams shine, soft hands entwine—
They enter their cottage door.

So oft he takes fond memories' track
To the land of long ago,
Yet close by his side the engines glide,
And the crowds ebb to and fro,
But he sees them not—there's a light afar,
And it shines through a cottage door,
But it's a light long dim, it will shine for him
Only on that distant shore.

She Wanted To Know

Little Girl—Mother, when do the Indians come on?

Mother—Why, there are no Indians in this play.

Little Girl—Then who scalped all of those men in the front row?

—London Opinion.

Safety Department

Sympathetic Interest in Safety Brings Cordial Response from Employes

By E. C. DRAWBAUGH, Division Operator, Cumberland Division

DURING a previous year, through a certain system adopted, 159 observations were made by the operators on the Cumberland Division by closely noting passing trains, and from their prompt reports 16 cars were set off on line of road, being considered, after examination, unsafe to haul further.

Since the first of the present year 55 unsafe conditions were noted by men in the same branch of the service and nine cars considered unsafe to haul further, were set off line of road.

These observations and corrections appear on the records of the Safety Committee and show that the men in this branch of the service have more than twice the number of safety notes to their credit than any other department or branch of the service.

The detail of following and keeping such an arrangement in effect and properly recorded was considerable, but the results appear to have justified the effort.

As the arrangement in effect resulted in a continued increase in the number of items, a form of report was arranged in order to curtail space as they were published in the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE. In the August number the editor of the MAGAZINE adopted the same form for the other divisions of the System that the Cumberland Division used to record similar items.

A number of men from other departments and branches of the service have been coming to me with safety matters and suggestions. As the practice appeared peculiar I asked several why they made reports to me and was told that it was because they thought such matters would receive attention.

I was stopped on the street by a train service man yesterday morning who reported a defective platform at an outlying switch.

During the first week of the present month opportunity offered to get before a large number of persons matters pertaining to safety at the Cumberland Fair. A safety booth was arranged and it was visited by most of those who visited the fair, including pupils from the schools. The Fair Association stated that their estimated attendance was 15,000 persons during the four days the fair was held. Those visiting the safety booth were shown views of accidents and given literature furnished by the General Safety Committee, outlining ways and means for their protection.

It is believed that a great deal of good for safety resulted from that arrangement and while no accurate estimate can be determined of such benefit it is a fact that no crossing accidents, so far as I know, have occurred in this immediate vicinity since.

I appreciate the privilege of being a member of the Cumberland Division Safety Committee and aim to give safety matters first attention regardless of time or convenience.

The Safety Lesson of Christmas

TO most of us Christmas is the happiest time of the year and the most unselfish time. We open our hearts and our pocketbooks and find happiness in making others happy. We contribute freely for the relief and enjoyment of those who are less fortunate than ourselves. We go out of our way to perform little acts of courtesy and kindness to others. The motorist is more considerate of the pedestrian and the pedestrian is more inclined to wait for the traffic change. Under the influence of the Christmas spirit, there is less desire to get ahead of the other fellow and run the chance of an accident.

NOT because it is a custom, but because I mean it, allow me to wish the Baltimore and Ohio Family a Safe and Prosperous New Year.

ARTHUR D. GANS

SAFETY PICTURE EXHIBITOR FIRST MAGICIAN

BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD CO.

THE MULE ASSISTS THE CROSS CROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY CAMPAIGN

This cartoon is the conception of Agent Carl Croucher, Tunnelton, Ind., who had the drawing made by a local cartoonist

There are some who through illness or accident cannot enjoy Christmas; there are some who are too self centered to feel the joy of Christmas. Both are to be pitied.

Like the spirit of Christmas, the spirit of safety is unselfish. If only ourselves were concerned it would make very little difference whether we got hurt or not. But a belief in safety and in the practice of it is necessary even more for the sake of those who love us and whom we love than for ourselves alone.

Perhaps you are thinking "What can I give the family for Christmas?" The best present you can give them is your own self, safe, happy and healthy. That is the greatest gift. Carry this thought with you during the coming year.

The National Safety Council joins with us in wishing everyone a Merry Christmas and a safe New Year.

Carry Your Own Load—Your Co-Worker Has One of His Own

By R. H. PATTERSON, Locomotive Engineer
Pittsburgh Division

AFTER reading numerous articles in our MAGAZINE on fuel costs, which without a doubt is one of the largest items on the expense account, I feel that we are only touching on a small part of what could be done. No matter how hard one man tries to save, if the other fellow is not putting forth a like effort, the result is discouragement, indifference, waste of fuel and increase in expenses. In other words we have "Poor Cooperation."

This is only one word, but just stop to think what it means! It means just this: no matter what position you hold, you have work to do and it must be done right or the other fellow has to do more than his own to keep things going. Then he goes home too tired in mind and body to enjoy life as he should, due to nothing but poor cooperation. One man fell down on the job, he failed to do his part and wasn't honest either with himself, his fellow workman or his employer.

Are we really doing the best we can or can we do just a little better? It is a pleasure to work when every person does his part, and you know it. Are you one of the backsliders with a guilty conscience or can you look the world in the face and feel that you are doing the best you can? You don't have to be a fireman to help save fuel. Let's have better cooperation and see if we cannot cut our fuel expenses. LET'S TRY!

What I Have Accomplished as a Safety Committeeman

By EDWARD PENNELL, Stevedore
Columbus, Ohio

SAFETY is a personal subject with me and I am proud to think that I have accomplished some needed reforms. Reasoning with my co-workers and pointing out to them some dangerous practices makes me feel that my humble labors in behalf of Safety First have not been in vain.

It has happened that in going on the tops of box cars at three different times I have discovered the running boards to be loose and the boards on cars to be in a dangerous condition. These conditions have been corrected with just a few nails, a little time and forethought. I have also repaired holes in car floors, some of them just large enough to cause injury. That isn't too much trouble to take to save a life, is it?

My interest in this all important cause shall deepen, and where duty calls I will answer so that I may redouble my efforts in the preservation of my fellow men. To me this is not a task, but is that which I love to labor for, not only for the personal safety of employes, but for the preservation of the home and all that it implies.

Emery Storrs and High-Priced Cattle

AMONG the interesting figures in Chicago in the early '70's was Emery Storrs, one of the most distinguished lawyers of his time. He was an orator of great ability. Invited to address a convention of cattle breeders at a banquet in the old Leland Hotel he began his speech by saying, "Mister President and gentlemen of the convention: I have been listening for some time to the merits of the Guernseys, the Jerseys, the Holsteins, the Alderneys and other costly and fancy breeds of cattle, but as an attorney for railroads I wish to tell you gentlemen that the product of an ordinary red cow crossed by a locomotive is the highest-priced animal in the world."

—Saturday Evening Post

Philadelphia Chandler Dealers for Herbert Bros.
Entertained by Mr. Chandler at Cleveland

HERE is the Philadelphia Delegation of Dealers for Herbert Bros., Philadelphia, Agents for the Chandler Motor Car Co., in charge of Mr. T. Mulford Leshner, in the light gray suit, standing on the running board above the cylinder of the locomotive. They are about to start for Cleveland, Ohio, to attend the convention there, as the guests of Mr. Chandler, who arranges two bountiful days of entertainment incidental to a comprehensive tour of the factory, and a thorough description of the new features of the next year's model, with the necessary instruction concerning its handling. This proves a great impetus to the Sales Force, a contest being waged each year to determine which city makes the best showing. Philadelphia is usually a strong contender.

The special movement was made in both directions via our line, and was handled in regular Baltimore and Ohio style. T. P. A. Morgan was in charge. As a token of their appreciation of the service rendered, Mr. Leshner has offered to give us favorable consideration on all their business in the future.

This Letter Makes a Fellow Proud

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH
Martin Luther Enders, Pastor
Cumberland, Md.

Mr. W. B. Calloway
Baltimore, Md.

My Dear Sir:

For several weeks I have been minded to write you, believing that words of commendation are welcome and never amiss.

During the past week I have had occasion to use your lines together with (here the writer mentions three other important eastern railroads—Ed.).

For comfort, and I rode both Pullman and day coach, uniform courtesy and real service, I tell you the Baltimore and Ohio stands first.

Your engineers in starting and stopping trains, your road bed and condition of coaches, and your treatment of passengers from the porter up to the highest official, are of the highest order.

On the Capitol, a couple of months ago, one of your officials, either of Baltimore or Washington, hearing me ask a question of direction, went to considerable trouble to help me, a perfect stranger, find a location in Baltimore City.

These things count. Yesterday in the diner, Mr. J. A. Crouse, who does not know me, although afterward I spoke to him, made me feel as though I was at a home table and not just in a diner of a railroad, and the meal also was of good quality.

In my line, courtesy carries one far, and after using your road from Cumberland for fourteen years, I want to tell you that the policy you are so uniformly pursuing, is noticed all through the traveling public.

Many salesmen who attend my church from time to time, tell me the same story.

Twice in the past month, I stood in Pennsylvania station, New York City, and asked myself the question, "What train do I want to take for Baltimore," and I deliberately selected the Baltimore and Ohio because of the above mentioned things.

Long live the Baltimore and Ohio and her present policy of courteous service! I write you this because being at the head of a corporation, though of a different character, and having the job of pleasing over seven hundred people, a word of praise, a kind expression for service rendered, makes me feel good. Of course I get a little of the other, and I suppose you do too.

May this letter encourage you in your accepted task.

Very sincerely yours,

(Signed) M. L. ENDERS

Taking No Chances

An old lady at the ticket window had purchased her ticket and had handed the ticket agent her money.

"Change at Youngstown, lady," he said.

"None of them tricks, young fellow, I'll get my change before I leave here," she replied.

Safety Roll of Honor

DATE	NAME	OCCUPATION	LOCATION	CONDITION REPORTED
BALTIMORE AND BALTIMORE TERMINAL DIVISIONS
Oct. 5	M. D. Kirby	Operator	Germantown Md.	Defective car
Oct. 9	L. Haslup	Conductor	Sewell Md.	Fire
Oct. 12	W. B. Connelly	Conductor	Halethorpe	Defective car
Oct. 25	L. R. Specht	Station Helper	Adamstown Md.	Defective car
Oct. 31	Samuel Duvall	Trackman	Hoods Mill	Defective car
Oct. 7	W. F. Myers	Engineer	Baltimore	Made good run with freight train.
	H. J. Sheckells	Fireman	Baltimore
Sept. 9	J. G. Neville	Flagman	Orleans Road	Defective car
Sept. 22	W. Eberwien	Engineer	Philadelphia	Assisted patron in handling stationary boiler.
Aug. 27	W. F. Matthews	Agent	Kensington	Defective car
Sept. 17	B. L. Buxton	Operator	Halethorpe	Defective loading
CUMBERLAND DIVISION
Aug. 29	F. A. Elsey	Engineer	Cranberry	Defective car
Sept. 20	J. W. Shaffer	Conductor	Cranberry	Track
Oct. 14	M. P. Canty	Engineer	83 Fill	Track
Oct. 14	E. L. Goldbaugh	Fireman	83 Fill	Track
Oct. 15	R. L. Hamilton	Switchman	Virginia Lane	Track
Oct. 28	R. L. Woodrum	Brakeman	Newburg	Track
Oct. 28	L. J. Casey	Engineer	Newburg	Track
Oct. 28	H. Wolfe	Electrician	Blaser	Track
Sept. 20	W. A. Ditto	Operator	Orleans Road	Wheels sliding
Sept. 23	J. L. Schroder	Operator	Martinsburg	Brakes sticking
Oct. 9	A. C. Hardy	Operator	Little Cacapon	Broken rail
Oct. 10	J. L. Schroder	Operator	Martinsburg	Hot car box
Nov. 1	A. C. Hardy	Operator	Okonoko	Broken rail
Nov. 2	J. D. Rockwell	Operator	Green Spring	Brakes sticking
Nov. 10	S. A. McCullough	Operator	Millers	Car off centre
MONONGAH DIVISION
Oct. 9	W. F. Cross		Morganville	Defective car
Oct. 11	Earnest Edgell		Lost Creek	Fire
Nov. 7	W. F. Cross	Section Foreman	No. 7 Tunnel	Defective car
CHARLESTON DIVISION
Oct. 9	D. Harman	Conductor	Monroe	Defective car
Oct. 14	I. J. Bell	Fireman	Buckhannon	Car derailed
Oct. 19	H. B. Mullins	Conductor		Defective car
Oct. 23	F. Gunter	Conductor	Frenchton	Defective car
Oct. 26	O. C. Fansler	Conductor	Gassaway	Defective car
Oct. 27	H. B. Mullins	Conductor		Defective car
Nov. 10	A. J. Cortwright	Telegraph Gang	Orlando	Track
OHIO DIVISION
Oct. 19	C. Hensley	Fireman	Midland City	Defective car
Oct. 25	P. Mitchell	Agent	Lynden	Defective car
AKRON DIVISION
	R. B. Beil	Engineer	Lorain	Picked up good material
	J. C. Tyrone	Fireman	Lorain
Nov. 8	G. C. Love	Conductor	Lake Jct.	Defective car
	Mrs. Allen Damon		Mallet Creek	Track obstruction
	Floyd Sparks		Boughtonville	Track
Oct. 16	J. W. Pennell	Operator	Ravenna	Defective car
Nov. 5	R. L. DePalma	(Roxy)	Lorain	Defective car
CHICAGO DIVISION
Oct. 21	Dr. J. S. Hull	Co. Physician	Hicksville	Defective car
ST. LOUIS DIVISION
Oct. 30	Heuer	Operator	Trenton	Defective car
	W. O. Guthrie	Operator	Riverdale	Track

The New Britain, a freighter of the Black Diamond Steamship Company, plys between European and North American ports. Her master, Capt. Herman Kiehne of Baltimore, was the master of the four-masted schooner William P. Frey, which was sunk by the German raider, Prince Eitel Friedrich, during the war. He was held prisoner for 45 days by the Germans.

Cooperation of Large Benefit to Black Diamond Steamship Corporation and Baltimore and Ohio

By J. ROSS GOULD, Magazine Correspondent

THE accompanying photograph shows the Black Diamond Steamship Corporation's steamer "New Britain," of which Herman Kiehne is master. Captain Kiehne was formerly a clerk in the Agent's Office, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, Locust Point, Md.

Your correspondent, being desirous of giving our readers some idea of the work being accomplished at this important terminal, asked Mr. P. E. McIntyre, manager, Black Diamond Steamship Corporation, (and a personal friend of the writer) to tell us something of his line and its relationship with the Baltimore and Ohio, which he did, as follows:

"Linking the Baltimore and Ohio with distant parts of the world," said Mr. McIntyre, "is the Black Diamond Steamship Line, whose large freight steamers docking at our Locust Point piers, ply regularly and frequently between Baltimore, and Rotterdam, Amsterdam and Antwerp. Manufactured products of the great industrial centers of the United States tapped by the Baltimore and Ohio, are transported to Holland, Belgium, France, Germany and Switzerland via the Black Diamond Line. On the return voyages, European products are carried for distribution via the Baltimore and Ohio to points in the middle west. A unique instance recently was a shipment of wooden shoes which we brought to Baltimore and delivered to the Baltimore and Ohio for movement to Chicago.

"Imports via our lines for shipment via your lines have shown consistent increases, due in a great measure to the close cooperation between the European representatives of the Black Diamond Line and the efficient organization of Baltimore and Ohio foreign freight agents, the existence and functioning of which organization is simply another indication of the breadth of vision of President Willard.

"To be forwarded to destination via the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad" appearing so frequently on our ships' manifests, is the best indication of the soundness of Mr. Willard's judgment in planning to carry the name and reputation of the Baltimore and Ohio service all over the world.

"The personal friendship existing between officers of my company and the Baltimore and Ohio employees at Locust Point, on whom falls the responsibility of receiving and shipping the import cargoes and expediting delivery to our steamers of the export freight, has developed an esprit de corps and a degree of cooperation that gives receivers and shippers a brand of service that would be impossible if this intense personal interest were lacking. The appreciation of the shippers of this service is reflected in the ever growing volume of freight exchanged between your company and mine."

The writer is also indebted to Mr. McIntyre for his courtesy in securing the accompanying photograph of the "New Britain" from the Baltimore American for use with this article.

Train order received in 1884 by Engineer Hugh Fitzpatrick, now Baltimore Division

But He Got On Somehow

"Does this train make any stops between here and Philadelphia?" asked a rather ragged passenger who had come aboard at New York.

"None whatever," replied the conductor with pride. "This is a through express—wouldn't stop for anything."

"That's all right, then," returned the passenger, settling back in his seat with a relieved air. "You can put me off when we get to Philly. I haven't any ticket."

—American Legion Weekly.

Cause and Effect

The following news item appeared in a metropolitan newspaper recently: "Ikey Ikenstein accidentally drove his car into the parade of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. He would have been 39 years old next September."—T. A. G.

First Bachelor: Why weren't you at your chum's wedding this morning?

Second Bachelor: I prefer to remember him as he was in life. Express.

AUTOMOBILE DEALERS IN BALTIMORE FIND THESE NEW FACILITIES FOR HANDLING THEIR CARS AT OAK STREET STATION
THE LAST WORD IN EFFICIENCY

Top: Outside view of covered fireproof platform. Center: Ample room is provided on unloading platform for quick handling. Bottom: The neat and spacious interior.

Why Telegraph?

First of all we telegraph because we think we cannot afford to wait for the mail delivery. But are we always sure about that? Think it over, Mr. Executive, Mr. Official, Mr. Thousand and One Employees using the wires every day!

It is so easy to send a telegram, but if you only knew how overburdened the limited number of telegraph wires are, and how really important business is often delayed on account of unnecessary telegrams, surely you would give this important detail a second thought.

We handle every day thousands of telegrams which appear to us to be unnecessary. By the word "unnecessary" we do not mean that the business should not be written. But why not use the mails? We are considering revising the "Transportation Department Telegraphic Cipher Code" and good results will be obtained provided a liberal use is made of it. Even now good results could be obtained if every one would study the code book as it is and use it to the best advantage.

Some time ago instructions were issued in regard to the use of symbols which will identify the telegram when a reply is received. What a tremendous saving there is, for example, in writing "A-2 OK B-1," instead of "Your wire date. We are handling in accordance with your wishes," etc. How many of you are familiar with our Circular No. 8-A? Look it up.

We hear a great deal about "Stop That Leak." Fellow employees, here is a splendid opportunity—get busy!

C. A. PLUMLY

Superintendent Telegraph

"guardians" accompanies our story. All of them are loyal employes, good citizens and fathers and are firm believers in the slogan of the Baltimore and Ohio that "Our Passengers Are Our Guests."

On arrival in Chicago, the little girl was met by our Passenger representative and a representative of the Traveller's Aid and escorted to the C. & N. W. station, and at this writing we are advised that a telegram has been received in Baltimore that she arrived at her destination well and happy.

Engineer Schutz and Fireman Dineen Are Fuel Savers

THE accompanying photograph shows Engine 1584 decorated to handle one of the special trains at the Galloway-Fries Celebration in Cincinnati. Through the interest taken by Engineer P. Schutz and Fireman T. Dineen this engine has made a splendid record in conservation of fuel. The following figures show a few days performance:

DATE	SERVICE PERFORMED	TIME	SCOOPS COAL	POUNDS OF COAL PER YARD ENG. HOUR
Aug. 1	Handled St. Louis No. 12, 8th St. to depot, Pullmans to coach yard. Balance day heavy switching at Storrs	8 hrs.	113	198 Pop did not lift
Aug. 2	Same service, and in addition handled Toledo Division No. 56 depot to Storrs	8 hrs.	126	221 Pop lifted once
Aug. 3	Same as August 1	8 hrs. 15 mins.	118	200 Pop did not lift
Aug. 4	Same as August 1	8 hrs.	111	194 Pop did not lift
Aug. 5	Same as August 4	8 hrs.	117	205 Pop did not lift
Total for five days		40 hrs. 15 mins.	585	203 lbs.

The average coal consumption in yard service during the month of August for Cincinnati Terminals was 786.8 pounds of coal per yard engine hour. This, of course, included coal used in engine terminal, cleaning fires, hostling, etc.

Little Beatrice Dollinger's Loneliness Made Everybody a Friend on the Capitol Limited

PASSENGERS waiting for trains at Mount Royal Station on October 29 were interested in a little group on the platform, shortly before the Capitol Limited departed. The central figure was little Beatrice Dollinger, eight years old, of 1915 Linden Avenue, Baltimore, who was leaving on the train to join her father in California. Little Beatrice was taken in charge by Miss Mabel Gessner, passenger representative, and introduced to the men who would look after her comfort on the trip. Engineer E. B. Owens, Conductor Charles Shipley, Pullman Conductor Whitlock and Dining Car Steward Henry Schluderberg took a personal interest in the little lady and assured her sister—who was at the station—that she need have no anxiety about the safety and comfort of the little one.

Some years ago Mrs. Dollinger died, leaving her husband with six small children, three boys and three girls. He moved to California and has sent for his children one at a time. Little Miss Beatrice is the fourth to go. There are two more left in Baltimore who will later go to complete the happy family in their new home in the Golden West.

A photograph of Miss Beatrice and her

In center: Miss Beatrice Dollinger. Left to right: Pullman Conductor Whitlock, Passenger Representative Miss Mabel Gessner, Conductor Charles Shipley, Engineer E. B. Owens, Dining Car Steward Henry Schluderberg, Assistant District Superintendent Pullman Company M. P. Holman, City Passenger Agent L. M. Bunting

FUEL SAVING CREW AT CINCINNATI HELPED CELEBRATE GALLOWAY-FRIES DAY

Left to right: W. T. Darling, Road Foreman of Engines; P. Donnelly, Conductor; R. L. Gallaher, Assistant General Freight Agent; P. Schutz, Engineer; J. H. Meyers, Superintendent; C. D. Douglas, District Freight Agent; T. Dinsien, Fireman

General Foreman Taylor Praises Pullman Porters and "Red Caps"

Lorain, Ohio, November 10, 1923

Editor
Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE
Baltimore, Md.
Dear Sir:

I would like to say a little about my experience in traveling on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from Cleveland to Baltimore with a very sick companion, who was unable to sit up.

We of course had a drawing room, and I must say I had the very best of service. First, I wish to thank the "Red Cap" who met us at Cleveland after our driving thirty-two miles in an invalid carriage. We arrived at the depot and the first man to greet us was the "Red Cap," who asked if we were taking the train. After showing him my ticket and telling him of my companion, he immediately had a bed made in car 101, and when all was ready had my companion carried to the car.

Next, I must thank the porter on that car, as he certainly was a real porter, and I believe he had all the pillows in that car in my section, which made the patient very comfortable.

We experienced no trouble at all in reaching Baltimore. At Washington the next morning, the porter telephoned to Baltimore for an invalid carriage to meet us at the station upon arrival. The carriage was there and also a "Red Cap."

We remained in Baltimore eight days, and on my return to Camden Station, that same "Red Cap" was on the job. He found the car that we were to go in, which had not yet been switched, but that did not prevent him from taking the invalid carriage to the car, where he had the bed made up and my companion was put into the car before it was switched to No. 9.

In car 76 I found the porter equally as good as the one who took us into Baltimore, and we arrived at Cleveland and were tendered the same wonderful service.

I have traveled a great deal but never thought it would be possible to take an invalid wife so far and bring her back with as much comfort as I did, and I want to thank the "Red Caps" and the Porters and trust that the public will appreciate them more, as they are on the job at all times. Here is a staunch booster of the Baltimore and Ohio Road.

(Signed) WILLIAM TAYLOR
General Foreman of Docks

CORRECTION—

On page 35 of our November issue the names under the pictures are incorrect. Mr. Wallace is the gentleman on the left and Mr. Donovan on the right. We apologize to these retired employes for the error. Ed.

News from the George M. Shriver Auxiliary, Martinsburg, W. Va.

Correspondent, CLARA McDONALD TAYLOR

WE have some portraits in our art gallery this month. Master Junior Hess is the three-year-old son of Joseph Hess, clerk, Cumbo. Joseph is a popular little youngster and we knew that his face would brighten up our notes. The other picture is of Yardmaster C. H. Mock, Mrs. Mock and their two interesting children, Charles and Mary Jane.

The George M. Shriver Auxiliary extends to all other lodges of the Veterans and their Auxiliaries our best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. We hope that the coming year will be better than any heretofore. And may all of the auxiliaries get busy and make 1924 a banner year.

Our Auxiliary met in regular session on November 8 with a good attendance. We

The Baltimore and Ohio General Office Duckpin League Standing of Teams—Season 1923-1924

TEAMS	PLAYED	WON	LOST	PER- CENTAGE	PINS	AVERAGE
1 Riverside	36	26	10	722	18003	500.08
2 Engineering and Accounting	36	25	11	694	16542	501.27
3 Comptroller	36	23	13	638	18075	502.08
4 Fuel Agent	36	22	14	611	18414	511.50
5 General Paymaster	36	22	14	611	18080	502.22
6 Maintenance of Way	36	22	14	611	17945	498.17
7 Auditor of Disbursements	36	21	15	583	17473	484.80
8 Operating Vice-President	36	20	16	555	17873	496.47
9 Valuation	36	19	17	527	17223	478.11
10 Motive Power	36	18	18	500	17741	481.69
11 Relief	36	13	23	361	17321	481.22
12 Auditor Passenger Receipts	36	11	25	305	17139	476.00
13 Cost Engineer	36	8	28	22	16499	455.52
14 Mt. Clare	36	2	34	0.55	16811	466.97

Issued November 26, 1923.

Welfare Department

have a fine lot of women in our membership and we trust that they will always make a great effort to attend regularly. Much can be accomplished by regular attendance.

Mrs. A. J. Criswell has been ill but is now improving. We hope that she soon will be with us again. We are sorry to know of the illness of Sister T. Knuckles. We also trust that she, too, will soon return to our midst. We miss her at the meetings.

Brother Edward Rhodes has returned to his home after a stay at The King's Daughters' Hospital as the result of a mashed foot. He is improving nicely, despite the severe suffering which he has endured. His Miles of Smiles helped him out.

Brother Louis Harmon, who was operated on at the City Hospital for gallstones, is out again and feeling fine. We're glad he's O. K. now, for "Lew's" a jolly good fellow.

We regret to learn of the death of James Raymond Orem, nephew of Veteran Harry Wilger, which occurred at the home of his grandmother on Penn Avenue. "Mike", as he was known among his school chums, was a lovable lad and will be greatly missed among his wide circle of friends.

"There is no flock, however watched and tended,

But has one dead lamb;

There is no fireside, howe'er well defended,
But has one vacant chair."

Ellis Taylor, clerk, Cumbo, entertained his friends at a Hallowe'en birthday party at the home of his mother, Mrs. Clara McDonald Taylor. He received a number of lovely gifts. The home was decorated with Autumn leaves and Chrysanthemums.

Cards have been received announcing the marriage of Miss Sarah Gertrude Jackson and James William Hartley, an employe at the Baltimore and Ohio Building, Baltimore. We extend our best wishes for a bright and happy future. Mr. Hartley is the grandson of our Veteran James Hartley, whose picture appeared in the September issue of the MAGAZINE. We wish the newlyweds as long a life as that of "Grandad" Hartley.

Above: Yardmaster C. H. Mock, with his wife and children, Charles and Mary Jane. Below: Junior, son of Clerk Joseph Hess, Cumbo, W. Va.

To a Friend o' Mine at Christmas

"This Christmas time, good friend o' mine,
I wish for you much joy;
A wealth of health for your good self and bliss without alloy.
I'd like to send you lots o' things to cheer
your Christmas Day,
But the best I can do for worthy you is to clasp your hand and say,
You're a friend o' mine!"

Hundreds Attend First Aid Meetings in Chicago

THE accompanying photograph shows a meeting held in Chicago Grand Central Terminal, when the American Red Cross First Aid car was there.

The Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal does things in a big way. When the First Aid car was due there, Superintendent DeVeney arranged a double schedule of demonstrations. While officials, doctors, clerks and shopmen were attending a noon-day class at the Chicago Terminal station, shopmen and brakemen were attending a similar meeting at the Lincoln Street Roundhouse. The meeting at the station brought out such a large crowd that the photographer requested the people to move out on to the platform to enable him to secure a picture.

American Red Cross First Aid Car No. 1 left Baltimore in July for a trip over the Baltimore and Ohio System. After completing its trip over our lines, it will be transferred to other roads and continue the work throughout the United States.

The work so far has been a great success, the total attendance at the fifty meetings held up to October 20 being 18,172. All classes of employes have shown intense interest in the First Aid lessons.

Photo by courtesy of The Red Cross Couriers

A large number of employes assembled in the Baltimore and Ohio Grand Central Station, Chicago, to watch Dr. W. A. Redell (in oval) demonstrate the art of bandaging. The car was overcrowded and it was necessary to get the audience on the platform for a photograph

Among Ourselves

Baltimore and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio Annex Buildings

Law Department

Correspondent, GEORGE W. HAULENBEEK

Each recurring Christmas season brings words and greetings to us from relatives and friends but it should likewise bring to us thoughts of a generous and kindly character, charity in its true sense for all mankind, to the end that hate, suspicion and distrust may be eliminated from our natures and banished from the world. With that achieved, we can be more successful, more efficient and happier and the season of "Peace on Earth, Good Will among Men" will reach all through the year and its beneficent influence will extend all round the world.

JOHN J. CORNWELL, General Counsel

I wish I had space to dilate on the correspondents' visit to Baltimore. The addresses of President Daniel Willard, Vice-President C. W. Galloway, General Manager E. W. Scheer and Chief of Welfare W. W. Wood; John Bopp's dainty lunches so well served; the fine picture work of Chief Photographer G. B. Lukey; the banquet at the Hotel Rennert; the absolute charm of the twenty-one young ladies, and the memorable boat ride to the wonderful coal pier at Curtis Bay—girls, will you ever forget it all? I am just completely spoiled.

The Law Department is, in a measure, a clearing house for office lads. This office trains them and off they go to other departments. It is now revelling in a new one and thus far a good one, too. The one thing that I am able to do, is to size up a person, even an office boy. This new personage is John Richard Maguire, born February 16, 1907. This information I had John write in his own way, and I am glad I requested it, because it gave me an opportunity to test his orthography. If a new arrival spells February as it should be spelled, I can judge pretty well as to his accomplishments in connection with the science of letters and spelling.

George Raymon Brennan, whom John Richard Maguire succeeded, has joined the Tariff Bureau in the Annex. Gov. Cornwell, our general counsel, presented George with a copy of "Knockabout Notes," upon his retirement, and the recipient was much pleased. I should like to have the opportunity to visit the Annex. I could then pay my respects to my friends, Messrs. Schutte, Lambert, Poumairat, Bowhay, Glessner, Heartt, La Motte, Limpert, Maccubbin, Rittenhouse, Ritter, Scheppler and others.

Our J. Ronald Horsey was made chief clerk of the Law Department, vice Edgar W. Young, promoted to the position of assistant general attorney, to take effect November 1, 1923.

It matters very little "whether school keeps or not" as long as I have the continued endorsement of these gentlemen on my efforts in the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE. If the contribution does not merit their approval, I prefer silence. Both of them are endowed with patience, tact and all the other qualifications essential to their new positions, and I greatly rejoice in their promotion. Gov. Cornwell is referred to by West Virginians as the best governor West Virginia ever had. The promotion of Mr. Young and the installation of Mr. Horsey as chief clerk show that he has observed their efficiency and rewarded them accordingly. The Law Department staff is strengthened and benefitted by Gov. Cornwell's action in promoting these gentlemen.

Robert J. Wilde, stenographer, entered the Law Department October 8, taking the place made vacant by the retirement of Mrs. Gertrude L. Kelly. Mr. Wilde will act as secretary to R. Marsden Smith, general attorney. I regard Mr. Wilde as a stenographer of the first class. His work on the Remington is also without fault.

Charles F. Smith, of the firm of Harrington, De Ford, Huxley and Smith, our Youngstown counsel, called recently. Judge J. A. C. Bond of Westminster, Md., was also a welcome visitor. He has been counsel for the company for 51 years. His partner, Francis Neal Parke, always with a smile, gives us frequent greetings.

Years ago, when our trains with even numbers ran west, and odd numbers east, it was a standing joke at Deer Park, where I spent every Sunday, for one to ask if the train approaching the station was yesterday's train or to day's.

Now, Baltimore and Ohio trains encounter no such familiarity, for we operate trains with an exactness that is remarkable, and as I have often observed, I can set my watch by the running of the trains I use on my week-end trips.

In conversing with passengers who are using our lines for the first time I call attention to this especially, adding other qualifications the Baltimore and Ohio possesses. We cannot put it on too thick.

Francis, age 6, and Harold, age 4, children of Frank W. Barringer. Jane Maddox, niece, is daughter of Baltimore and Ohio employe, and stands in front

Office of Vice-President Operation and Maintenance

Correspondent, HARRY H. HARTLOVE
Chief Graphic Clerk

Merry Christmas to Everybody!

BIOGRAPHICAL RAMBLINGS: It is more pleasant and satisfying to be biographed by one's intimate friends than to be written up by one's enemies.

Accordingly—in the interest of human happiness and progress—I am about to present a most interesting character. In the early days of man's evolutionary life upon this planet—he was more closely related to the large roving animals of Central Africa (than he appears to be today), e. g., the brazen baboon and hairy ape.

Seton Thompson, in his "Wild Animals I Have Met," gives an intimate study of our early day ancestors. Natural Science carries us further back to evolutionary origins, claiming man is a growth from bugs and insects.

Immediately we are brought to our task—that of "biographing" Harry P. Vick, formerly of Vicksburg, Virginia, but now residing in our midst on the Chesapeake. In a life such as we are recording, it is not intended to speak extensively of his early days. Satisfied are we that he was born.

Following the motion picture method—let us plunge abruptly into his childhood days. No! WE CANNOT PLUNGE! For a strange situation confronts us—Penn is still in his childhood days and the penning of this part of our history must be left to future writers of quaint curiosities. We are therefore unable to present the entire story but will confine ourselves to—

CHAP. I. CHILDHOOD ACTIVITIES

Theme: A boy's will is the wind's will and the thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts.

SCENE I. Penn is seated before the fire-side—dreaming of yesterday—soft, sad music blows in from the neighborhood drug store—suddenly the door opens and a load of assorted wood comes tumbling into the parlor—a portion of which falls on our hero's lap. He arouses from his reverie and mutters: "That reminds me! I must construct a hen coop."

CAPTION—I LOVED HER ON THE BACK PORCH BEST OF ALL

(Cut back to scene showing back yard and a flock of two lonely chickens craving a home.) Enters Penn carrying a load of wood which he deposits on the ground—then goes through motion of constructing chicken coop.

CAPTION—TWO DAYS LATER—THE COOP IN ACTION

Soito Voce—Owing to limited space your correspondent is unable at this time to complete this heart-rending scenario and out of his sympathy for the readers will spare your tears. Cornet solo by Frank P. Herrman—"O Dry These Tears."

Resignation and Advertisement

"Bill" Fowler—our heretofore track bowler, has temporarily resigned from our Bowling Team. Wanted—A Good Bowling Instructor.

(Continued on page 62)

Note:

All puzzles published in this department will be defined, as far as possible, from the New Standard Dictionary, edition of 1920. It is permissible to use both geographical and biographical words in the construction of puzzles, but when such words are taken from any authority other than the New Standard Dictionary, the name of such authority must be stated at the end of the definition, in parenthesis. Obsolete words will be marked at the end of the definition thus—"obs". Variant spellings of a word must be marked at the end of the definition thus—"var". Address all communications concerning this department to G. H. Pryor, Room 800, Baltimore and Ohio Building, Baltimore, Maryland, and mark the envelope "Puzzles."

THE answers to puzzles published in the September issue are:

1. Par-don-able

2. J U X T A P O S I T I O N
D U O D E C I M A L S
L E A D E R E S S
S C A L E R S
T R O P S
Y T S
S

3. An Ear

4. P
P A L
P A L A S
P A T E N T S
P A L E O G E N E
L A N G A R A
S T E R N
S N A
E

5. C-h-arm

6. C O H U N E
R E N O W N
N I T R I C
T A I L O R
L E O N I D
S T Y M I E

7. Cut-let

8. M O O N E D
O R M O L U
O M E T E R
N O T I C E
E L E C T S
D U R E S S

9. Ivanhoe, Waverley, The Monastery

10. A W H E E L I N G
W H E E L I N G
H E E L I N G
E E L I N G
E L I N G
L I N G
I N G
N G
G

11. THE PULLMAN SLEEPING-CAR

12. Q
C E P
T A B L E
C A T H A R S
Q E B H S N A U F
P L A N E T A E
E R A T I V E
S U A V E R
F E E R Y

13. Cab-in

14. D R A M
R I M E S
A M E N T S
M E N T I O N
S T I L L E
S O L E S
N E S T

CORRECT solutions were received from the following:

N. Jineer, S. T. Udent, Ben Franklin, Atlas, Comrade, Primrose, Pearlle Glen, L. M. N. Terry, J. F. Donovan, G. Hartman Pryor, The Major, Martelia, L. E. Phant, Baltimore, Md.; Winkie, Charleston, W. Va.; Kee Pon, Malden, Mass.; Alec Sander, Philadelphia, Pa.; T. Hinker, Jack O'Lantern, Bangor, Pa.; Phil, Pittsburgh, Pa.; P. M. Pennington, Cumberland, Md.;

Molemi, Gi Gantie, Petite, Dee, St. Louis, Mo.; Jo Mullins, Miami, Mo.; Gemini, Poly, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mam, Albany, N. Y.; Spica, Whitney Crossings, N. Y.; Joaquin, C. Saw, New York City; Arty Ess, Scranton, Pa.; Dan D. Lyon, New Florence, Pa.; Ralph, E. Stroudsburg, Pa.; Tom Crestmore, Johnstown, Pa.; Wick-o-cincy, Cincinnati, Ohio; Reel, Zanesville, Ohio; Mentor, Chicago, Ill.; Emeline, Fairbury, Neb.; Amor, Sioux Falls, S. D.; Kappa Kappa, Fargo, N. D.; Em Jay, Eloise, Arcanus, Iowa City, Iowa; K. T. Did, Nypho, E. R. Woodson, Aluminus, Washington, D. C.; Eureka, Charleston, S. C.; Gee, Asheboro, N. C.; Spud, Yazoo City, Miss.; Ellsworth, Fort Worth, Tex.; Osaple, El Paso, Tex.; Jemand, Wilmington, N. C.; Lateo, Hoboken, N. J.; Fred Dcmimo, Corinth, Miss.; Delmonte, Richmond, Va.; Sherlock Holmes, S. D.; Towhead, Lafayette, Ind.; The Gopher, St. Paul, Minn.

The prize offered in the September issue for a copy of one of the six best sellers was won by N. Jineer (Miss Olive W. Dennis), Baltimore, Md.

New Puzzles

1. DECAPITATIONS

(The decapitated initials form the name of a publication dear to the heart of every Baltimore and Ohio employee).

BEHEAD

"To give security" and get "Indisposition."

"To shun" and get "Unoccupied."

"A cone-bearing forest tree" and get "Part of a circle."

"A piece of furniture" and get "Bodily or mental strength."

"Existing in fancy" and get "To distribute."

"A public walk" and get "The whole."

"A precious stone" and get "A partner."

"A hostile invasion" and get "Assistance."

"Flushed with success" and get "Long delayed."

"Unevenly" and get "Distorted."

"At no time" and get "Eternally."

"To intimidate" and get "A relative."

"Unobstructed" and get "A small inclosure."

"To consecrate" and get "To grant."

"Keen resentment" and get "To value or estimate."

"A fruit" and get "To classify."

"Custom" and get "A short poem."

"To accumulate" and get "An assemblage."

"To gather assiduously" and get "To bend or incline."

"To sum total" and get "To rise."

"A circumference" and get "Single."

"The religion of Mohammed" and get "To shut with force."

"Of little breadth" and get "A pointed weapon."

"A festival" and get "A genus of plants."
Baltimore, Md. Miss Elizabeth Smithson

2. PENTAGON

(Defined by New International Dictionary)

1—A letter,

2—Any of several large South American serpents of the genus Boa,

3—The place of departed spirits,

4—A purple-flowered rutaceous shrub of Texas,

5—One of a ruling body of twelve,

6—(Anat.) The foremen of Magendie,

7—(Glass. Mannf.) A shovel with a turned-up edge, for sand, etc. (var.),

8—To impair (Obs.),

9—Covers.

Baltimore, Md.

Comrade

3. CHARADE (7)

Were I to encounter ONE on the highway,

I'd first call a TWO.

I'd then let it bask on the TOTAL, for my way

Would lead me, methinks, down some dark alley byway

In hasty "adieu."

St. Louis, Mo.

Molemi

4. SQUARE

A boy came running breathless—

"Your house is all afire!"

I FIRST as fast as possible,

Before the flames rose higher.

I saw a man with SECOND,

Wheezing as he ran,

Who said he knew exactly

Where the fire first began!

No engine there was handy

And a THIRD it didn't play;

A pail brigade did service,

But the flames did not allay.

This is a substance bitter,

The same as cafferine;

We had it in our coffee—

We didn't stop to dine!

The forked tongue of fire

FIFTH fiercely from the roof;

An agent for the Phoenix

Clamoring for the proof.

This will name the fabric

Of the curtains all ablaze.

You can't convince this puzzler

That a fire ever pays.

Lafayette, Ind.

Towhead

5. DELETION (4)

There once was a puzzler named Dan,

A genial and sociable man.

The 'fond of his WHOLE

And the comforting bowl

He was fonder of puzzles, was Dan.

But he fell for a lady-like cook

Whomade wonderful FIRSTS from a book;

He made her his wife—

Now the rest of his life

He'll have to quit puzzling and cook.

Fargo, N. D.

Kappa Kappa

6. RHOMBOID

(Defined by New International Dictionary)

Across:

1—Pertaining to or designating any of three isomeric crystalline acids (Chem.),

2—In the form of nodes,

3—Var. of Tabbinet,

4—The planet Venus, when appearing as the morning star,

5—Openings or hollows,

6—More nasty,

7—Persons to whom a lease is given (Law).

Down:

1—A letter,

2—Designating the side of the field next to which the batsman stands (Cricket),

3—A separate portion,

4—Var. of Odal,

5—A large genus of rosaceous, often prickly shrubs, the brambles, including the blackberry, raspberry, etc. (Bot.),

6—A bitter crystalline febrifugal substance found in holly leaves (Chem.),

7—Of or pertaining to the family Canidae,

8—Rubbish,

9—Examinations,

10—A common title in the East for a person in authority, especially the captain of a boat or ship,

11—The diocesan center (Eccl.),

12—A syllable applied in solemnization to the second tone of the diatonic scale (Music),

13—A letter.

Iowa City, Iowa.

Em Jay

7. BEHEADMENT (4)

De'moon she ramble all de night

Till de sun come peekin' through,

Den she curl all up clean out ob sight

What else she gwine to do?

De sun he trabel all day long;

He nevah res' a bit!

An' now he sittin' in de wes'—

Whar else he gwine to sit?

De crow am a' sittin' on de ole dead hin',

He done et all mah cawn!

An' ah's es tahd es ah evah has been Since de day dat ah wuz bawn!

So ah puts up mah ONE an' ah puts away mah hoe,

Mah bones all TWO an' ah can't work no mo'!

Ah's gwine to plunky plunky, plunky,

pleenky, plo,

Pleenky plunky plunky, on mah old banjo!

Baltimore, Md.

Martina

8. DIAMOND

(Defined by New Standard Dictionary)

1—Letter,

2—A projecting crane-arm,

3—French constitutional bishop, 1739-1808 (Phillips Biog. Diet.),

4—Large-rooted varieties of a common beet (var.),

5—A beverage flavored with ginger and charged with carbon dioxide,

6—A stone of the right size for a hand missile,

7—Bible name (page 251),

8—Click-beetles or elaterids,

9—(Prov. Eng.) Marshes subject to overflow,

10—Lake in Norway (Rand & McNally Atlas),

11—A letter.

Pittsburgh, Pa.

Amaranth

9. TRANSPOSITION (5)

The sun was shining brightly,

High up in skies of blue,

And the rays were fairly dazzling,

As they fell upon the TWO.

There we see two lovers,

Passing the time away,

In a ONE they're resting,

As golden sunbeams play.

Baltimore, Md.

D. Lemma

10. RHOMBOID

Across:

1—A pattern,

2—New,

3—Current,

4—Brief letters,

5—A city in Greene County, Ohio.

Down:

1—A letter,

2—Forward,

3—A spot,

4—Smooth,

5—A city in Berkshire County, Mass.,

6—The burbot,

7—The kidney,

8—The seventh note of the diatonic scale,

9—A letter.

Asheboro, N. C.

Gee

11. DELETION (8)

ONE

A sort of second title here is seen
One often notes it on the movie screen.

TWO

Finely discriminating, or refined;

Pervasive; crafty; or acute in mind.

THREE

Characterized by artifice; acute;

Contrived with ingenuity; astute.

Baltimore, Md.

L. M. N. Terry

12. HALF SQUARE

1—A species of ochreous clay which falls to pieces in water with the emission of bubbles (Gr.).

2—An extensive tract of flat or rolling land, covered with tall grass, but destitute of trees,

3—County, N. E. part of S. Dakota,

4—Irritated,

5—Dry,

6—A snare or trap,

7—In Hawaii, a vine,

8—A letter.

Baltimore, Md.

S. T. Udent

13. OCTAGON

(New International Dictionary)

1—Great (Obs.),

2—A kind of skullcap of felt,

3—A St. Louis puzzler,

4—A proteose formed from elastin.

5—One who renters (Obs.),

6—Tutorages,

7—Sycees (Obs.),

8—Hearts, (Duglison).

El Paso, Texas

Osaple

14. MUTATION

TEN TRIPS ALONE

I've made, in my imagination only. But I'm a Rex

Beach fan, a regular guy,

And I long to see the frigid

North, with its midnight sun.

Aurora boreal-

Is, icebergs, polar bears and

Funny whiskered Wal-

Ruses, and the Eskimo girls eating frozen fish and whale blubber.

And I want to see the North Pole

Itself, and the hole it's standing in; and I want to climb it,

Which rhymes with cli-

Mate and sounds the same, but I

Forbear to pull a wisecrack, notwithstanding the temptation.

TEN TRIPS ALONE—in my mind, I

Said, But I'm gonna take a real

One some day.

Fort Worth, Texas

Ellsworth

15. ANAGRAM

(After "Hiawatha"—a long way after)

ROLLED IN HOT TIME: I PACED IT

Would you know the joy of riding o'er the rails of modern time,

Where the safety, speed and comfort, are the things above all others,

Where the diners and the sleepers are best that can be found,

Then I ask you for this favor; Will you listen, will you heed me?

From the roundhouse and the car shop

(everything in perfect order),

Comes the engine and the coaches, ready for your swift conveyance,

Starting out from Union Station, in the Nation's Capital City,

Speeds this train, so bright, so cheerful,

over mountains, rivers, plains,

Till at last it comes to rest in that great and "Windy City,"

At the station called "Grand Central," and your journey now is over.

Looking upward toward the tower, you will note the time recorded,

Which the clock face shows so plainly, to be right, and just "On time."

Baltimore, Md.

The Major

ANAGRAMS

16. QUEER CUTS MADE, AMOS

Sioux Falls, S. D.

Amor

17. THOSE HATTERS

Bangor, Pa.

Jack O'Lantern

18. STATION END, I

Telford, Pa.

P. A. B.

19. BOOM THE R. I. M. RAILROAD

Albany, N. Y.

Mam

* * * * *

The solver sending the first complete list of answers to the puzzles in this issue will be awarded a copy of one of the six best sellers, the selection to be made by the winner from a list that will be submitted.

To receive proper credit all list of solutions must be in my hands by February 5, 1924, the answers and solvers' list will be published in the March 1924 issue.

Just between You and Me

I don't think a single contributor to "In the Realm of the Riddle" failed to call my attention to the fact that puzzle No. 6 in the October issue was identical with puzzle No. 6 in the September issue. The fact is Spud liked his contribution so well that after mature deliberation he sent me a second copy so that I had two copies of the same puzzle on file without knowing it. Of course, a real good puzzle Editor would have discovered this fact and destroyed one of the copies but your humble servant, when looking for a good rhomboid for the October issue, just naturally plucked Spud's contribution. It certainly was a good puzzle and those who solved it in the September issue did not have any trouble with the October number and those who did not solve it in September had another chance in October. So everybody ought to be happy.

Good old Martelia is back again as vide No. 7. Mart certainly knows how to write a flat.

Miss Elizabeth Smithson makes her bow in this issue with puzzle No. 1. We hope to have more of her work in future issues.

In No. 4, Towhead, in spite of his 86 years, is right in line with the youngest of you. What a wonderful rejuvenator puzzling is!

Somebody is likely to stub a toe over L. M. N. Terry's No. 11. Like all of Terry's work it is high grade.

In No. 14 Ellsworth gives us a sample of blank verse and you want to read it carefully if you hope to find the answer which is an unusual word but has to do with ice, polar bears and the land they come from.

The Major says he patterned his No. 15 after Longfellow's "Hiawatha." I guess we will have to take his word for it although I think it is a good thing for The Major that Longfellow isn't here to protect himself.

Our old friend and staunch supporter P. M. Pennington, Cumberland, Maryland, recently performed a very heroic act that nearly cost him his life. He rescued a little girl from in front of a moving freight engine and, although the child was entirely uninjured, Mr. Pennington was struck and severely cut and bruised. I am thankful to say his injuries are not considered fatal and at this writing the prospects are for a speedy recovery. I am sure his fellow contributors to "In the Realm of the Riddle" will join me in wishing his speedy return, with completely restored health, to his favorite pastime of puzzling.

At this joyous Christmas time I want to thank the many boys and girls, old and young, who have so zealously worked to make "In the Realm of the Riddle" interesting to thousands of employees of the Baltimore and Ohio and their families. I trust every one of you may have a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Do the Day's Work

When President Calvin Coolidge was elected President of the Massachusetts Senate, the simplicity and soundness of the speech he made as he took the chair made a lasting impression on his hearers. It was scarcely one hundred words in length, and was as follows:

"Do the day's work. If it be to protect the rights of the weak, whoever objects, do it. If it be to help a powerful corporation better to serve the people, whatever the opposition, do that. Expect to be called a stand-patter, but don't be a standpatter. Expect to be called a demagogue, but don't be a demagogue. Don't hesitate to be as revolutionary as science. Don't hesitate to be as reactionary as the multiplication table. Don't expect to build up the weak by pulling down the strong. Don't hurry to legislate. Give administration a chance to catch up with legislation."

Magazine Correspondents Enjoy Conference in Baltimore on October 26-27

Are Guests of Railroad and Go Home with New Enthusiasm for Their Magazine Work

ON October 26 and 27 about one hundred of the correspondents of the MAGAZINE gathered in Baltimore for the first general Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents ever held by the Baltimore and Ohio, or, so far as we know, by any other railroad. Members of the MAGAZINE staff welcomed the visitors at Camden and Mount Royal Stations on the morning of the 26th, took care of their baggage and directed them either to their rooms reserved at the Hotel Remert, or, if the time for the opening of the first session was near, directly to the meeting room in the General Office Building.

The opening session was purposely set at the late hour of 10:30 to enable the correspondents of the Northwest District to be present without having had to spend two nights in travel, and also to enable the delegates from Philadelphia to come down on the first morning train. As usual all trains were on time and it is believed that every correspondent who attended the conference was present when the first session was begun.

Magazine History is Railroad History

The editor of the MAGAZINE said that he had had such a conference in mind for several years and that he had expected to call such a meeting during the spring of 1923; that such a meeting had been authorized by the Management, but that circumstances indicated that a postponement until the autumn season would be desirable. He mentioned the whole-hearted cooperation given by the Management in planning the meeting, and also the budget of expenses, which, though not lavish, was ample to cover all reasonable expenditures.

He then reminded his hearers that he had just completed ten years' service as editor of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE, and stated that during that long period he had never been requested by any officer of the Railroad to make through the pages of the MAGAZINE one single untruthful statement or suggestion, nor had any such statement or suggestion been made; that his reasonably close association with the men who were directing the activities of the Railroad made him anxious to say without equivocation that the Baltimore and Ohio always wished to lay its cards on the table and play fair.

"The first issue of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE," he said, "was published for the month of October, 1912, my association as editor dating from August, 1913. During the ensuing years the history of the MAGAZINE and, as I see it for that matter, the history of the Railroad, falls into a few well defined epochs, clearly outlined in as many important announcements made from time to time."

He then mentioned and described briefly these epochs in the following order:

1. The announcement of President Willard in 1912 that he placed "Safety Above Everything Else" in importance in the operation of the Railroad, and the subsequent use of these words "Above Everything Else" in President Willard's writing, regularly in the MAGAZINE thenceforth until this slogan had been given a significance among our employes befitting its importance.

2. The announcement made by President Willard at the Deer Park Operating Convention in 1914, when it appeared that the United States would become seriously involved in difficulty with Mexico, that in the event of such a national emergency every other consideration on the Baltimore and Ohio would be sacrificed to permit an efficient support of the government in the movement of men and material.

3. The statement of President Willard at the Deer Park Operating Convention of 1916 that he wished the attitude of the Baltimore and Ohio toward the communities which it serves, to be that of a Good Neighbor.

4. The further enunciation of what the policy of the Baltimore and Ohio should be in time of national emergency such as that brought about by our entrance into the World War in April, 1917, that concern for the interests of the Railroad should be secondary in importance to unremitting loyalty and support to the government; and, coincident with this, the resolution passed by the Board of Directors of the Baltimore and Ohio to the effect that employes entering the service should upon return to Railroad duty after service, be given the same, or as nearly the same positions on the Railroad as possible, as they had upon resignation for enlistment.

5. The statement made in 1920 to one of our Veterans' organizations to the effect that although the Baltimore and Ohio could probably never become the richest nor the largest Railroad in the world, it could, with the loyal support of all employes, be the best Railroad in point of service.

6. The frank appeal made during 1920 by the Management to our Veterans and other employes that they do all in their power to secure freight and passenger business for the Railroad, and the generous and helpful response forthcoming as the result of this appeal.

7. The principle, first enunciated on the cover of the June, 1923, MAGAZINE by President Willard, to the effect that although there were many things which the Railroad could accomplish with the hearty support of its employes, he did not wish them to give this support "because they felt obliged to do so, but because they wanted to do so."

In concluding his talk, the editor emphasized the importance of the work of the correspondents. He said that it was his unequivocal belief that more could be accomplished through the constructive and thoughtful preparation of notes for the Among Ourselves Department than in any other single way, because those correspondents who studied their MAGAZINE work carefully could include in their notes a statement of their personal viewpoint on the most important policies and activities of the Railroad, and could interest the employes they represented in the departments and on the divisions in such matters.

"For," he added, "careful observation indicates that most of the readers of the MAGAZINE turn first to the notes covering the interests of those employes associated with them in everyday work, as given in the Among Ourselves Department."

President Willard

At this point President Willard came into the room. All the correspondents immediately arose and gave him a hearty round of applause. The editor said that although Mr. Willard needed no introduction it was, nevertheless, a great privilege to have him present.

The "Why" of the Magazine

Mr. Willard discussed first the reason for the publication of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE. He said that publishing a magazine was not, of course, the primary business of a railroad, that it was not done for monetary profit, but that, as a matter of fact, it cost the Railroad over $50,000 a year. And he generously added that although this seemed to be a large sum of money for such a purpose, he nevertheless believed that it was money well spent.

"We thought," Mr. Willard continued, "that a Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE might help make a better Railroad, it might help us promote our transportation service in a more satisfactory and economical manner, and in that way serve the public better and promote the prosperity of our stockholders and all others connected with the Railroad.

"On a big railroad like ours it is difficult to keep everybody informed of what is going on and we thought we could help this situation by publishing a magazine which would take each month to all connected with the Railroad brief messages from officers and employes in all ranks and grades of the service.

"It is the desire of the Management to have on the Baltimore and Ohio a relationship of the most intimate and cooperative character between the Management and the men. We believe that our employes are anxious to help us get the best results through cooperative action. The time

1. Mr. George A. S. M. Shaefer, Assistant to the Harbor Engineer, City of Baltimore, who explained the various notable sights on the inspection trip. 2. The Nestor of the Magazine Correspondents, G. W. Haulenbeek, tries to "hog" all the limelight with the ladies, but two other old timers, J. Ross Gould and P. H. Starklauf, were determined to be "in the swim." 3. Captain American of the "Stoney Creek." 4. Listening to H. Irving Martin, newly elected President of the Correspondents' Organization, explain the interesting history of Fort McHenry. 5. West Virginia and Baltimore get together. No wonder the ladies received devoted attention from the male contingent. 6. Learning for the 'steenth time of the wonderful facilities the Baltimore and Ohio has in Baltimore Harbor. 7. Seeing at first hand our record breaking coal loading facilities at Curtis Bay. 8. Kidding the photographer has gone by, so it seems to me, when we can expect to attain them by so called 'driving' methods; I would much rather that we should develop with efficiency, energy and cooperation great success in our operations because we want to do it than because the officers want to do it, or by driving.

Play the Game like a Football Team!

"One of the best examples I know of this relationship in an organization is afforded by a college football team, where the finest teamwork exists, where men work to the point of exhaustion and physical hazard, where they sacrifice leisure and comfort so that they may uphold the reputation of their institution and play commendable and, if possible, a winning game.

"I know how useful the group gathered here this morning can be in helping the Management stimulate among our employees the same kind of loyalty and determination to reach a common goal.

"The Baltimore and Ohio is not now, nor has it been since I have been its chief executive, antagonistic to organized labor as such. I appreciate the reasons why

"The result of this in part," Mr. Willard continued, "was that we have a better relationship on the Railroad today between Management and employees than we have ever had before. This may help everybody to see that misunderstandings like the strike are exceedingly harmful to all interested and involved.

Working WITH the Railroad rather than FOR it

"I wish that all men working for the Baltimore and Ohio could feel, not that they are working for the Railroad, but that they are a part of the Railroad and interested in its success.

"Such an attitude on the part of our employees would mean a large degree of success for the Railroad, and I do not believe that any enterprise can be wholly successful unless the rank and file composing it are contented and interested in furthering its prosperity.

"You could take nothing more important than this thought away from this meeting, and I am sure that you can make excellent use of it in your contact with your fellow employees and in your contributions to the embarrass or hurt anybody. What we want is a good local record, matters of interest to all members of the Baltimore and Ohio family so that men on different divisions can read and know what is happening on other divisions.

Effect of Magazine outside the Railroad

"The MAGAZINE is not published, of course, for general circulation, its readers being principally the employees of the Railroad. But we do place the MAGAZINE in our dining cars and we also send it to quite a number of outsiders who are closely connected with the Railroad business. And I would like to feel that whenever they see the MAGAZINE, they, including our shippers and passengers, will find in it a message indicating the sympathetic spirit of cooperation which exists between the Management and the men.

"In 1916 we had a conference of the operating officers of the Railroad and on that occasion I said that I hoped that the Baltimore and Ohio would be a good neighbor to the almost two thousand communities on our lines, and that in case of fire, flood or men feel that they should organize, and am not opposed to a labor organization which is law-abiding and responsive to the public welfare.

OFFICERS OF CORRESPONDENTS' ASSOCIATION

Left to right: A. E. Erich, Vice-President, representing Southwest District; O. K. Eden, Secretary; Miss Marie Slatterick, Vice-President, West Virginia District; H. Irving Martin, President; Edric C. Greaves, Vice-President, Pittsburgh District; E. E. Alexander, Vice-President, Maryland District

"The sheperfts strike of 1922 is now happily a thing of the past, but I just want to reiterate here what I have already said on several occasions, namely, that the Baltimore and Ohio obeyed the letter and spirit of the law during all this trouble, and also that at any time during the strike it would have been willing to make the settlement with its men which eventually was made."

A New Era in Cooperation

Mr. Willard then said that when the settlement was made the Management determined to make the strike a closed book. He mentioned a visit paid him by certain sheperfts leaders who said that, recognizing the proved fairness of the Baltimore and Ohio in dealing with its men, they desired to offer the Railroad their cooperation to the end that the shop work could be done with greater efficiency and dispatch and with greater interest on the part of their members.

MAGAZINE. I would like to have you understand so clearly the policy of the Baltimore and Ohio in this respect that when you hear somebody say that the Company has done something which is wrong, you will know so well our desire to be fair in all respects and at all times, that you will feel immediately that if what we have done seems to have been unfair, you will be sure that it is a mistake and say so; furthermore, that you will be confident that when such a case has been taken up with the proper officers it will be adjusted properly.

"Such an understanding on your part will not necessarily be reflected in the MAGAZINE, but it will most certainly be reflected in the relationship of the Company toward its employees and toward the public and in that way accomplish much good."

Speaking more particularly of the purpose of the MAGAZINE, Mr. Willard continued:

"I want everyone who gets the MAGAZINE to feel that every statement appearing in it is true. You must be careful when sending in items not to send anything that would any other serious emergency, they would turn instinctively to us for help because they would feel sure that we would be glad to do all that we could for them. We would not expect, nor ask, a return for assistance rendered under such circumstances. We are a part of all of these communities and we want to be just as good a neighbor to them as possible. Certainly if we are that it will be most natural for them to have confidence in us and to entrust us with their business. We are always ready to take the first step to show this good neighbor spirit."

The Usefulness of the Magazine

Referring again to the usefulness of the MAGAZINE, Mr Willard continued:

"We are now coming to the close of one of the most prosperous years in the history of the Baltimore and Ohio, prosperous in part because of the record breaking business which we have handled. Several years ago when business was poor we made an appeal through the MAGAZINE for individual employee solicitation of business, and the help of the MAGAZINE at that time was considerable. Just now we are again beginning to feel a decline in business and I wish you would remember at all times in your work for the MAGAZINE to stimulate that helpfulness which our employes have already showed, but which I believe they can show to an even greater degree in bringing business to our lines. The return which will come from this will not alone be reflected in the prosperity of the Railroad, but also in our ability to keep normal forces steadily employed.

As a Business Getter

"Here, it seems to me, is one of the simplest ways to show how we can help each other. If you get business for the Road it may mean keeping some friend of yours on the payroll whose work is needed to handle that business. And if your securing of the business is multiplied hundreds or thousands of times by other employes doing the same thing, you can easily see how this would contribute toward maintaining steady work in all departments.

"I believe that the MAGAZINE has also made a substantial contribution to greater efficiency in our operations, and this question of efficiency we have with us always.

Efficiency is not Working Harder, but Working More Intelligently

"One thing about efficiency is that it is so difficult to make clear to everyone just what we have in mind. A good many think we are trying to make men work harder or longer for the same pay, but this is not the case."

Mr. Willard then gave the example of the bricklayer who, under the old system of having to stoop and pick up from the level of his feet a brick every time he wished to put it into place, laid fewer bricks, and with a great deal more fatigue, than he could lay by using an adjustable platform next to him on which the bricks are placed by the carrier and picked up without stooping. He also gave other telling illustrations of efficiency as illustrated in our Railroad work. He said:

"We now have an Efficiency Bureau of 25 or 30 men, and their job is to find operations carried on in the same inefficient way as the old bricklayer used, to study them and to bring about common sense improvements in method which will benefit both the worker and the Railroad. Efficiency is simply more intelligently directed effort.

"And when our efficiency men have put into effect some of the improved methods on which they are now working, I want these to be described briefly and clearly in the MAGAZINE so that the reasonableness of this effort on the part of the Management to do our work in a better and more economical way may be made clear to all employes. I hope also that you will follow this work closely and give it all the support you can on the divisions and through your contributions to the MAGAZINE."

In concluding, Mr. Willard expressed his belief that the conference of correspondents would result in a better understanding of what the Management is trying to do and would help substantially in the production of a more interesting and more helpful MAGAZINE.

After the hearty applause which followed his address he stayed to meet the correspondents in person and to have a word with each as they were presented to him.

Following the morning session the correspondents adjourned to the roof of the building where the group photograph accompanying this article was taken by Chief Photographer Luckey. They then returned to the conference room adjoining the building restaurant, where a delicious luncheon was served by John Bopp, restaurateur.

Boat Trip as Guests of Baltimore City

Following the luncheon the correspondents boarded street cars and went to the Municipal Pier where they boarded the excursion steamer "Stoney Creek" and were taken as the guests of the City of Baltimore on a most interesting tour about the harbor. Mr. George A. S. M. Schaefer, assistant to Harbor Engineer Bancroft Hill, brought maps and interesting descriptive data concerning the magnificent facilities of the harbor of Baltimore and the comprehensive plans for its development, and also pointed out its more significant features as the party moved from one point to another.

The inner harbor, covering the wholesale market section of downtown Baltimore, was first visited; then the large expanse of waterfront owned by the Baltimore and Ohio at Locust Point, where our new grain elevator and pier improvements are being built; then the Spring Gardens section, then the Curtis Bay development, including the Baltimore and Ohio's record breaking coal loading pier. A run down into the bay and past the great shipyards and fabricating works of the Bethlehem Steel Company was made, with a quick return past the Canton waterfront development.

The correspondents, some of whom had never been on "salt" water before, thoroughly enjoyed this trip and expressed in rousing cheers as they were disembarking their individual and collective appreciation to Mayor Jackson of Baltimore, his secretary, Mr. Moore, who had planned the trip, and to Mr. Schaefer, who had so ably conducted it.

The Banquet

The dinner that night at the Hotel Renert was a feast that would have tempted the jaded appetite of the most confirmed epicure. How those inlanders from Ohio and Indiana did marvel at the wonderful Lynnhaven oysters served on the half shell by the chefs of this famous old hotel! The printed menu was quite an elaborate one, done up handsomely in Royal Blue in the same size as the MAGAZINE, and having for the cover the same cover picture of the Capitol Limited as was used on the July issue of the MAGAZINE.

Grace was said by T. E. Stacy, secretary, Y. M. C. A., Riverside, Baltimore, who also kindly conducted the chorus singing, this being slipped in between courses and accompanied in great style by Mr. Sylvan Levin, accompanist of the Baltimore and Ohio Glee Club.

Mr. Haulenbeek

The place of honor on the program was given to George W. Haulenbeek, clerk in the Law Department and Nestor of the MAGAZINE Correspondents, he having but recently celebrated his eightieth birthday. His youthful spirit, which had been much in evidence during his characteristic attentions to the fair sex that afternoon, was again bubbling over, the climax coming when he concluded his talk by singing in an unwavering and clear voice a verse or two of his own composition. He made a big "hit." Lack of space prevents a description of the ensuing events commensurate with the pleasure which the correspondents derived from them.

Mr. Scheer

General Manager Scheer told of the early history of the Baltimore and Ohio and disclosed several events in that history which many of the correspondents had never heard of before. We hope to run this history in an early issue of the MAGAZINE. He also expressed his belief in the usefulness of

Photo by J. M. Whealan

The Correspondents enjoyed the hard fought tie football game between the Navy and Princeton on Saturday afternoon the MAGAZINE toward the making of a better Railroad.

Mr. Wood

Chief of Welfare Wood, who was introduced as the "Silver Tongued Orator of the Railroad," enhanced, if possible, his reputation as described in that flowery phrase. He said that this old Railroad of ours was certainly making history and that it is not only an important duty but also a privilege for these preparing the MAGAZINE to chronicle this history in the printed word.

The Manager of our Printing Department, Geo. R. Leilich, expressed his interest in the MAGAZINE and said that his department was giving of its best to produce a creditable publication. He put it up to the editor to get the "copy" to him in time and said he would do the rest. (The editor did not reply.)

The Baltimore and Ohio Glee Club, first heard on this occasion by a number of the correspondents, sang a number of selections. These were heartily received as was Mr. Levin's stirring number on the piano, followed by an encore.

Mr. Hobart Smock, director of the Glee Club during the entire ten years of its existence, told a number of funny stories in his own inimitable way and if any of these were at the time of the telling unknown beyond the confines of Baltimore, it is safe to say that they now have at least a System-wide circulation.

The Correspondents Entertain

One of the especially nice things about the entertainment feature was the help given by the correspondents; Miss Vada Pearl Drumm, soprano, of Cumberland, and Charles H. Minnich, baritone, of East Side, Philadelphia, being first heard, and later Elmer Stoltz, tenor, Pittsburgh, and then Mr. Stoltz and Miss Marie Slatterick, contralto, of Wheeling, in a duet.

The entertainment was concluded with the showing of the Baltimore and Ohio's topical motion picture by Dr. George B. Shattuck. This is a wonderfully interesting film and will eventually be seen with the greatest interest by employees all over the System. It includes the more recent outstanding events on the Road, such as the first trip of the Capitol Limited, the christening of the Martha Washington and Mount Vernon, new dining cars, and the record breaking reconstruction work completed after the summer flood on the Old Main Line.

Friday Morning Business Session

The Friday morning session, beginning at 9.00 o'clock, was addressed by Miss Stevens, associate editor, Mr. Jones, assistant editor, Mr. Dickson, art editor, and many of the correspondents who had been asked to talk informally on subjects assigned them the day preceeding. We regret again that we cannot print even a part of their remarks, on account of lack of space. Suffice to say that the message they brought to the MAGAZINE staff was quite as important and encouraging as the message given them. They showed their enthusiasm for the MAGAZINE work and gave every evidence of determination to get back on their jobs as departmental and divisional reporters and to give the best they could.

Resolutions

At the request of the correspondents a committee on resolutions was appointed, consisting of E. E. Alexander, J. E. Barnhart, Miss Marie Slatterick, George W. Haulenbeek and H. Irving Martin. They prepared two resolutions. One of them was for the MAGAZINE staff, thanking the Railroad through them for the privilege of attending the conference, and the other was addressed to President Willard as follows:

"Inasmuch as it was the privilege of the correspondents of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE, in conference assembled in Baltimore, Md., on Friday, October 26, 1923, to be addressed by our Chief Executive, it is our pleasure, unanimously, to express to Mr. Willard our appreciation of the time devoted by him in thus addressing us and for the inspiration contained in his remarks.

"We wish to assure him of our whole-hearted cooperation in endeavoring to interpret, through the MAGAZINE and by personal contact with our fellow employees, the attitude which it is desired be maintained between the Management and the employees, and we will, by our influence, endeavor to promote and emulate that spirit of willing performance of duty which is so desired by the Management—not, however, because we feel obliged to do so, but just because we want to do so."

Later Mr. Willard acknowledged this resolution as follows:

"Mr. Van Sant has just brought to my attention a copy of the resolution which was passed by the correspondents of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE during their recent conference in this city.

"I appreciate very much indeed the expressions with reference to myself, which were contained in the resolution, but even more do I appreciate the assurance of cooperation, through the MAGAZINE and by personal contact, towards making the Baltimore and Ohio everything that it ought to be and can be as a public agency and large employer of labor. I am confident that the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE, and particularly its staff of correspondents, can render very important and valuable service in this connection."

Permanent Organization of Correspondents

One of the most interesting events of the morning session was the organization of a permanent association of MAGAZINE correspondents. The following officers were elected: President, H. Irving Martin; Vice-Presidents to represent the districts, as follows: Maryland District, E. E. Alexander; Pennsylvania District, Edrie C. Greaves; West Virginia District, Miss Marie Slatterick; Northwest District, Miss Pearl Schmutz; Southwest District, A. E. Erich; and Secretary, O. K. Eden. The Editors composing the MAGAZINE staff are ex-officio members.

Miss Pearl Schmutz, Vice-President, Correspondents' Association, representing Northwest District

It had been hoped that all the vice-presidents of the Railroad with headquarters in Baltimore would be able to come in for just a minute to meet the correspondents before adjournment, but Mr. Shriver and Mr. Fries both had previous important engagements. Just before concluding the morning session, when Mr. Bopp had already begun to serve a luncheon which included more of those famous Chesapeake Bay oysters, Vice-President Galloway came in the door smiling and was led up to the front of the room by "Aunt Mary."

He spoke very briefly of his pleasure in meeting the correspondents and said that he was sure that the MAGAZINE was doing a useful work on the Railroad and that it could always count on his hearty cooperation.

He expressed his gratification over the splendid showing made by the Baltimore and Ohio during the current year and reiterated what had been said so often during the conference to the effect that this is largely on account of the cooperation so much evidenced in the relationship between the Management and men. He said that it was particularly in this respect, in making clearer the policies of the Company and in explaining to employees what we are trying to do, that everybody can get the intelligent, clear viewpoint which is so essential to uniformity of action and the attainment of the best results.

The correspondents did full justice to the splendid luncheon served by Mr. Bopp and adjourned to make their way in small groups out to Baltimore's new stadium, where they witnessed the exciting tie game of football between the Navy and Princeton University, as guests of the Baltimore and Ohio.

Finale

The spirit of the whole conference was one of the utmost sincerity and enthusiasm and the good results of it are already amply shown in the large number of interesting notes submitted for the Among Ourselves Department in this issue.

Two episodes which illustrate, it seems to the writer, how thoroughly sympathetic this group of men and women are to the ideals of the Baltimore and Ohio, are worth telling.

First, in the call for the meeting it was stated that although the Management wished to make ample financial provision for the meeting, it also knew that due economy would be observed by those attending. That this was done is evidenced by the fact that the cost of the conference was several hundreds of dollars under the estimate, brought about in part by considerate expenditures for traveling expenses by those attending.

The other episode is that of three men leaving Baltimore on No. 3 on Saturday night, who, rather than keep their reservations for berths to the exclusion of pay passengers, stayed up all night and all through the next day to reach their homes in far off Illinois.

It is such spirit as this that wins and it cannot help but make itself felt in the personal examples of such employes and in the material which they prepare each month for publication in the MAGAZINE.

Our correspondents believe enthusiastically that the MAGAZINE can be made a great power for good on the Railroad. They will appreciate support in their efforts to bring that result about, from all officers and employes.

Trainmen's Gun Club Host to Baltimore Officers at Wild Duck Feast

FOR about 26 or 27 years a Baltimore and Ohio Gun Club of Trainmen of the Philadelphia Division have been going to Mitchell Point, Swan Creek Shore, about two miles south of Aberdeen, Md., where they maintain a shore bungalow for wild duck hunting and fishing. They also visit it with their families in the summer on vacation, having equipped a fine bungalow.

The "shore" is beautiful, overlooking Swan Creek into the bay and across to the Eastern Shore.

Every year the Club holds a wild duck dinner or a shad bake on some Sunday afternoon when their officials are able to attend. This year it came on November 18 with wild ducks, these delicious birds being in season. The dinner was prepared and cooked by "Chef" Conductor Lane assisted by Conductor R. L. Wilson and Engineers W. Lockhart and G. W. Abrams, supervised by John C. Bashford:

The following guests were present:

E. W. Scheer, general manager, Eastern Lines; C. W. Van Horn, general superintendent; A. K. Galloway, district master mechanic; F. G. Hoskins, division superintendent; C. M. Shriver, terminal superintendent; J. P. Dugan, general baggage and milk agent; H. L. Denton, general superintendent police; C. E. Owen, trainmaster; C. B. Harveson, division engineer; Theodore Blocher, assistant division engineer; G. S. Crites, division engineer; H. K. Hartman, division operator; E. E. Hurlock, division operator; D. W. Laubach, official watch inspector; J. W. Sparks, chief clerk, superintendent; W. H. Hollen, night yardmaster; L. B. Robinson, train dispatcher; B. H. Prinn, signal supervisor; J. J. Swartz-back, dispatcher; J. R. Malone, track supervisor, East End; W. M. Murphy, general yardmaster; O. Loekart, engineer, East Side; Amer Wilson, son of R. L. Wilson; J. M. White, father of general manager, New York Properties.

Twenty-Five Ducks—Count 'Em

Twenty-five ducks, splendidly cooked and toasted to an Eastern Shore flavor, were served, each guest receiving a whole duck.

While the general manager seemed to think that such sumptuousness was somewhat out of keeping with Baltimore and Ohio economy, it was noticed that after a few mouthfuls he began inquiring as to the reserve supply, and kept a sharp eye on the progress the general superintendent was making in clearing away the debris. The way Superintendent Hoskins got away with his delicious morsel was really quite embarrassing. Real old time corn cakes, the kind grandmother used to make, were served, as well as the usual trimmings that go with such good things.

The absence of General Manager White, New York Lines, was regretted, his absence being unavoidable. He attended the duck dinner last year and was anxious to be with the party this year for reasons only those who were there can well appreciate.

Conductor Lane has been supervising the cooking and serving of these dinners for nearly 27 years, or since the formation of the club, and his culinary ability cannot be equaled. General Baggage and Milk Agent Dugan was so impressed with the way it was done that he remarked to Conductor Lane that it showed true Eastern Shore style. Mr. Dugan's surmise was correct, as Mr. Lane was an Eastern Shoreman,

Miss Jane P. Passmore, Glenwood, Pa.; Miss Mabel L. Menges, Baltimore, Md.; Miss Dorothy Rubenstein, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Mary Guthrie, Philadelphia, Pa.; Louisville, Ky.; Miss Norma Applegarthe, Baltimore, Md.; Miss Edith Roach, Columbus, Ohio; Miss Marie Slatterick, Wheeling, W. Va.; M. W. Jones, Assistant I Ohio; E. H. Stoltz, Pittsburgh, Pa.; E. C. Greaves, Glenwood, Pa.; H. R. Lincoln, Baltimore, Md.; T. J. Murphy, Cincinnati, Ohio. Seated: Miss Vada Pearl L Garrett, Ind. At extreme right, seated, Margaret Talbott Stevens, Associate Editor. Back row: J. M. Whealan, Pittsburgh, Pa.; R. S. George, Newark, Ohio; W. L. Cumberland, Md.; W. E. Brugh, Massillon, Ohio; Vernon Lyon, Clarksburg, W. Va.; L. M. Gump, Sabraton, W. Va.; A. E. Erich, Chillicothe, Ohio; S. I. O'Neill, Baltimore, Md.; E. N. Fairgrieve, Pittsburgh, Pa.; A. J. Crampton, Canton, Ohio; W. L. Whiting, Washington, D. C.; A. R. Strome, Chesapeake and Ohio Magazine, Richmond, Va.; H. E. Weifenbach, Baltimore, Md.; H. H. Hartlove, Baltimore, Md.; Earl Shanks, Connellsville, Pa.; Geo. W. Haulenbeek, Baltimore, Md.; H. B. Smith, Cleveland, Ohio; C. E. Thrasher, Dayton, Ohio; John Limpert, Baltimore, Md.; Paul Faustman, Baltimore, Md.; W. H. Tarr, Camden Station, Md.; J. A. Jackson, Newcastle, Pa.; W. H. Bu being born and reared a few miles from Mr. Dugan's old Eastern Shore home.

Before and after the dinner the guests had a most enjoyable time pitching quoits. In the game between General Superintendent Van Horn and General Baggage and Milk Agent Dugan as one team, and General Superintendent Police Denton and District Master Mechanic Galloway as the other, the work of Messrs. Van Horn and Dugan was so accurate that the opposition of the other team was really pathetic. Notwithstanding the assistance rendered by Score Keeper Crites, Messrs. Denton and Galloway were defeated 4 to 1. However the wonderful curves thrown by Denton would make some of our National baseball pitchers turn green with envy. With his accurate eye he could make them curve up around the tree tops and along the edge of the shore. The one peculiarity about Galloway's playing was that when he played along his score was perfect.

The General Manager was so intrigued with the place that he returned that night to try his hand at ducking, going out with the party at 5 a. m. While there were whispered insinuations as to what he had been promised (Denton even intimating that ducks could be bought cheap on the shore), we can honestly say that he brought back six fine specimens, although we would not like to say who did the actual killing.

It was a jolly, friendly party throughout, the officers still talking about it.

Foreman Kinsey a Business Getter

FREIGHT Warehouse Foreman Daniel Kinsey, Hagerstown, exhibited noteworthy zeal in behalf of the Company when he persuaded three of his friends to use the Baltimore and Ohio from Hagerstown to Chicago on their return trip west. On the trip east they had used a competing line. After arriving at their western destination they sent Mr. Kinsey a card telling him how pleased they were with the courtesies shown them by the employees of our Road.

"Naugahyde" Queer Name of New Traveling Bag

MANY railroad men have had their traveling bags ruined by rain or by contact with hot steam pipes and have wondered if the day would ever come when some manufacturer would furnish a bag which would meet a railroader's special needs. Such a bag must have three essentials. It must be able to stand up under rough treatment. It must be able to travel day in and day out in all kinds of weather and keep its good looks. In the engine cab it must be able to risk close contact with hot steam pipes.

Such a bag has recently been placed on the market by the United States Rubber Company. It is known as the "Naugahyde" and is said to meet all of the above requirements.

Naugahyde is a material that is waterproof and wear resisting. It will never chip or crack. Rubber is the basis of the material, which makes it possible to do away with all seams and rivets. When a bag begins to wear out it usually begins to go first at the seams or around the rivets. Naugahyde as a material will outwear leather and a bag made of Naugahyde, having none of the structural weaknesses of ordinary traveling bags, is said to stand rougher treatment and last longer than any bag on the market.

Naugahyde derives its name from the Naugatuck (Conn.) factory of the United States Rubber Company where these bags were originally made. The name has always excited a good deal of curiosity and the Company has received a number of letters from persons who claimed that a "Nauga" was some sort of a mysterious animal which lived in foreign countries.

Speaks Volumes for Service

CONTINENTAL LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Wilmington, Delaware

November 9, 1923

Mr. John P. Dugan
General Baggage and Milk Agent
Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co.
Baltimore, Md.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of November 7 and am pleased to say that the flags have safely arrived and have been unfurled to the pure American air, so far without deleterious effects. I note that it took eight cents to mail them in their careful packing, and I am enclosing an additional two cents to cover this expense.

You certainly have gone to a great deal of trouble about this comparatively unimportant matter and it speaks volumes for the service you give to your patrons. It seems that a man traveling on your Road is almost as well protected as he would be with a Continental Life Insurance policy.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) G. W. GEDDES

Your Passenger?

Have you gotten YOUR passenger, the one who might have used another road?

May as well help somebody start the New Year right!

About one hundred Correspondents of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE assembled from points all over the System, in Baltimore on October 26 and 27, for their first conference. Addresses were delivered by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood. There were interesting business sessions and the entertainment included a splendid dinner, a boat trip on Chesapeake Bay as the guests of the City, and the Navy-Princeton football game at Baltimore's New Stadium.

Front row: left to right; J. E. Barnhart, Baltimore, Md.; E. E. Alexander, Green Spring, W. Va.; R. M. Van Sant, Editor; H. C. Weber, Secretary to Editor; R. Kennett, Columbus, Ohio; E. E. Mannix, East Dayton, Ohio; C. H. Dickson, Art Editor; R. Schemenauer, Sandusky, Ohio; J. A. Renehan, Baltimore, Md.; Miss Francis Leeper, Glenwood, Pa.; T. Dosch, Washington, Ind.; Mrs. Olivia Haight, Fairmont, W. Va.; Mrs. Leah McCoy, Cumberland, Md.; Miss Agnes Barnes, New Castle, Pa.; Miss Pearl Schmutz, Youngstown, Ohio; Miss Lillian Schueler, Baltimore, Md.; Miss Gertrude Crow, Md.; H. F. Smith, Washington, Ind.; D. H. Kirkwood, Foxburg, Pa.; G. J. Goolic, St. George, S. I.; L. M. Mason, Wellston, Ohio; G. Watson James, Jr., Editor, W. H. Zell, Mt. Clare, Md.; C. H. Minnich, Philadelphia, Pa.; Ross Gould, Locust Point, Md.; H. V. Oberender, Baltimore, Md.; Charles Warwick, Baltimore, Md.; O. L. Wallburg, Lima, Ohio; E. B. Oliver, Chicago, Ill.; Helen Station, Md.; Harry Kight, Cumberland, Md.; John Rupp, Baltimore, Md.; G. R. Steen, Marietta, Ohio; C. W. Dixon, Weston, W. Va.; F. W. Harmon, Lorain, Ohio.

Among Ourselves

(Continued from page 51)

Mr. Feeser's Younger Generation

"Doc" Feeser's little girl recently went to Sunday School for the first time. Hurrah for "Doc."

Henry Fankhanel's Column

Henry says, regarding "Bill" Fowler's defection from the Athletic Ranks, that "Bill" bowled three games and lost them all. Henry wants a new instructor—applications must be in English.

Gone to a Warmer Climate

Miss Grace Smith, file clerk in the Rates of Pay Bureau, has gone to Florida on an alligator hunt.

The Cabbage is Always A-Head

Col. Walter Carl smokes from eight to ten cigars (of unknown brand) per diem. The Wilkins Hair Factory was accused of being the cause of the peculiar aroma around his office—but we know different. Ask "Bill" Kinney.

Comments by Our Foreign Representative— E. E. Ramey

Dr. H. H. Hartlove is in very bad repute with the members of the Vice-President's Golf Club account of being too lazy to get up early on Sunday morning to keep his honest engagement with his taxi-cab driver. "Al" Hermann ran his machine out to triple H's house at 6.00 a. m. one Sunday morning but could not arouse that lazy golf hound who slept peacefully on during a tremendous tooting of his horn. Naught could be heard but his deep snoring as he took large chunks of imaginary turf and negotiated several large bunkers and sand traps. Application for reinstatement will positively not be considered until 1924.

To which we have affixed our seal.
Signed: E. E. Ramey and A. O. Hermann.

P. S. It is requested that above named delinquent put his dago shirt and golf clubs away where moth and rust will not corrupt and be compelled to pay storage charge of twenty-five cents per day.

Echoes from the Fuel Department

Mr. Wilkens is somewhat of a literary genius but his talent seems to be wasted on the desert air. His literary activities began with the flood and end with Sir Isaac Newton..

Ting-a-ling-a-ling

We expect to lose our genial file clerk—Jean O'Connor. Answer:—Wedding Bells!

Appreciation—Management, Van and Co.

Your correspondent greatly appreciates the party and courtesies extended by the Management during the recent Correspondents' Convention. We should all feel spurred on to higher endeavor. All together, Correspondents—Three Cheers for Baltimore and Ohio!

Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah!
Here endeth the lesson for 1923.

Car Service Department

Correspondents, H. V. OBERENDER and
CHARLES P. BAYN

We extend to all, compliments of the Holiday Season, and to the new arrivals in this office, a hearty welcome.

Also to Mr. and Mrs. Wolf, our congratulations on the arrival of a daughter!

We are glad to report Elsie Slingerland back after a nice long furlough, feeling much better. Lillian Walker also returned after having been operated on. Now that Lillian has her tonsils and adenoids out, we can expect any day to hear she is singing the leading role in "Tannhauser."

Lillie Turner left November 3 to be married. You can judge a girl's popularity by the parties or "showers" given in her honor. This young lady had four—two miscellaneous, one kitchen and a linen shower.

There are any number of showers being given to our young ladies but the only time the men folk have a shower is when the roof leaks.

Our emotional girl, Marie Brown, is to be married—you never knew when you were speaking to Marie whether she was going to laugh or cry. When you finished you had to be prepared for either, but her smile was effervescent, and we shall miss her greatly.

Rumors are that Doris Ray and Thelma Wilder are soon to be sailing the sea of matrimony. Emma Esslinger caused quite a bit of excitement recently by flashing a new diamond ring. Who'll be the next? Well, here's our best wishes for good luck to all our friends contemplating this journey.

More power to our Ladies' Bowling League. Any girl found powdering her nose before 9.30 a. m. will have to stay after office hours and do penance by writing 5000 times "I have been disobeying orders." This order holds good every day but Christmas Eve, then you can powder your nose 60 times before 9.30 if you want to.

When a certain railroad official comes into our office for records he causes all the girls in a certain department to have palpitation of the heart. We think "Lulu" holds winning cards and we are wondering when she is going to—well! "not far West."

Little Harry Wette, Trace Department, has been saving all year for his wife's Christmas present—what's it going to be, a fur cloak or a Ford?

The Height of Ambitions

- J. S. To win a prize at a mask ball—Try going unmasked.
- Kirby. To be able to hit the right note ($).
- W. H. D. To grow hair.
- T. L. To join K. K. K.
- W. L. K. To have his street paved.
- E. V. D. To look like Valentino.
- R. I. B. To play a cornet.
- E. A. D. To win a nomination.
- C. R. B. To be Mayor of Relay.
- N. A. G. To fix R. L. C.'s radio outfit.
- C. F. To carry his ward Republican.
- Wolf. To keep the baby from crying.
- H. B. To buy fish cheap.
- E. M. To be a Charles Street cowboy.

The Maintenance of Way Department is noted for its athletes and fine babies! Left: J. G. Lenhoff, Clerk, Office Engineer M. of W., at his shore. Right: Little Joe, son of Assistant Engineer Dobson

Office of Chief Engineer Maintenance and Engineer Maintenance of Way

Correspondent, J. E. BARNHART

To the Employees of the Maintenance of Way Department:

A very Merry Christmas and the Best Wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year are extended to all our co-workers in the Maintenance of Way Department. Your effective efforts of the past year are appreciated by the Management; and, in return let us give promise to redouble those efforts to increase effectiveness the coming year.

Very sincerely yours

E. STIMSON

Chief Engineer Maintenance

The Conference of Magazine Correspondents, which was held at Baltimore on October 26 and 27, was a distinct success. From the addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, inspirations were received which will help considerably in promoting the much desired spirit of cooperation between employees and Management. It shall be our pleasure, through our notes, as well as by personal contact, to assist in furthering this spirit of cooperation among our fellow employees, with the hope that, in time, it may predominate in all relationships throughout the System.

It is with a feeling of deep sorrow that we record the death of George W. Andrews, assistant to chief engineer maintenance, which occurred on November 2, after a useful life of 67 years, 4 months and 11 days, and ending a period of service with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad of 43 years and three months. Mr. Andrews will be sadly missed by his associates with whom he labored so long and so well. A brief history of his career will be found on another page of this issue.

It requires quite a bit of "nerve," after one has been out sight seeing all day, visiting distant scenes, via the Railroad, to call one's best girl on the phone upon returning to the city at midnight, and tell her what a wonderful time was had.

It might be interesting to note that we are constructing at our Timber Treating Plant at Green Spring, W. Va., a third retort, which, when completed, will increase the capacity of the plant one half of its present capacity, thereby permitting the treating annually at Green Spring of approximately 1,400,000 cross ties, all of our switch ties, bridge ties, piling and much other bridge timber.

W. R. Edwards, Valuation Department, has been appointed successor to the late George W. Andrews, in the capacity of assistant to chief engineer maintenance. Mr. Edwards has had wide and varied experience in bridge and building work and is well fitted to fill the position to which he has been appointed. All hands together, let's help him get acquainted with his new job.

Some time ago an article was published in our MAGAZINE on our Rail Saw at Martinsburg Shop. We saw the battered ends from rails fit for relaying, thereby obtaining thirty feet and six inches of rail, which when relaid in track, will give many more years of service and a good ride with proper maintenance. As a matter of information, during the first 9 months of this year we have sawed 10,948 tons, or 763,477 feet, of various weights of rail, sufficient to lay 72 miles of single track railroad, thereby releasing worn rail to be relaid in less important branch lines and sidings, or for sale as scrap, according to its condition.

Jim Dyche says "Yes, we have no notes for the MAGAZINE," so we won't print any that he did not give us.

Our co-worker, Dick Talbott, has the sympathy of all in the death of his father, which occurred on November 1, 1923.

J. T. Andrews also has our sympathy in the loss of his father the late George W. Andrews.

The year 1923 has about passed into history and the New Year is rapidly approaching. With its beginning, let us all resolve to put forth every effort to obtain greater efficiency in our work, assist in the promotion of economy and help the Management, through our hearty cooperation, in operating and maintaining the property to the best possible advantage. And, in addition to wishing each other health, happiness and prosperity throughout the New Year, let us extend to the Management our very best wishes for prosperity.

Engineering Department

Correspondent, O. K. EDEN

"It is the desire of the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio to have a relationship between the Management and the men of the most intimate and co-operative character."

The above words (or some to like effect) were spoken by President Willard before the MAGAZINE Correspondents at a conference held October 26 and 27 in Baltimore, which I attended. They apply not only to our correspondents, but to the army of workers on the System.

During the course of the two day conference it was my great pleasure to hear, besides President Willard, Vice-President C. W. Galloway, General Manager E. W. Scheer, and Chief of Welfare W. W. Wood. And all of them, during their brief speeches, stressed the point advanced by our President.

A clipping in a recent issue of the Baltimore Sun informs us that, among other things, "15,000 persons are burned to death, 75,000 die in avoidable accidents, . . . more structures are burned than are built. . . ." Even though Fire Prevention Week may have come and gone, it behooves us to take that "little extra care" that goes to avoid fires. Let us be careful what we do with lighted matches, cigarettes, etc., not only in our homes, but on the public highways and in parks and woods. Most of the fires started are due to carelessness on someone's part. Make sure that "someone" is not YOU.

Bottom of column 3, page 27, October issue of the MAGAZINE. Not a cryptic message, but to those having to do with fastening papers together "a word to the wise is sufficient."

By the way, after you have finished with your copy of the MAGAZINE, instead of relegating it to the waste basket, take the trouble to send it to the Editor, or send it to your correspondent, who will gladly do the needful. And in this connection our Editor has sent out an S. O. S. call for May, July and October, 1923, issues. If you have any that you don't want, send them along.

Waste Means Want!! Stop That Leak!!! Which applies particularly to stationery. If you need only a few copies of a certain form, don't get a pad and then waste the rest. Same way with the various kinds of paper. Remember, Waste Means Want!

Inside and Out at the Navy - Princeton Game

What's the matter with a picture of one or two of you now and then, mostly now. Help brighten up the Engineering Department's notes. Your correspondent, not being gifted with the use of the brush, has to rely upon the help of his friends. Come across. But remember this, whenever you send in a picture for publication, if possible send it in with the notation "need not be returned." It saves expense in the MAGAZINE office.

The first time for many months, our department, as a whole, has a one hundred per cent. representation in this issue. Watch our smoke!

Although rather late, mention should be made of the fact that several of my fellow employees are putting some of their spare evenings to good use, furthering their educational interests by taking courses at the various night schools. They are to be congratulated upon this. For what profiteth a man if he has seven evenings a week to himself and maketh no use of some of them? If a person thinks he has had enough schooling, and has nothing to do at night, let him read good books, see good plays, or go to hear good music. But best of all, in more ways than one, read.

Lack of space restrains me from proclaiming the multitudinal qualities of our "shriek" of the file room. I mean none other than my illustrious friend "Freddie" Gemp. What that boy can't do with a saxophone, to mention one of his many qualifications, isn't worth telling. And talk about sling files. Oh boy!

Between bites and sips at the lunch counter an observer would think a large real estate deal was about to be put over. But the proposition is this: Mr. Fogerty is trying to sell Mr. Aronson a beautiful new bungalow in the Howard Street Tunnel, and Mr. Aronson is insisting that Mr. Fogerty buy the lots he recently bought in the immediate vicinity of Fort Carroll. These gentlemen are the recognized real estate and building sharks of our Bridge Department because of Mr. Aronson's success in cornering the market at Forest Park, and Mr. Fogerty's ability at building houses on falsework, thereby eliminating a damp cellar. The remainder of the Bridge Department think that all competition could be eliminated if the two wizards formed a company and used the old slogan "Absolutely, Mr. Fogerty, positively, Mr. Aronson."

I take this opportunity to thank all who have helped me in preparing notes for the MAGAZINE during the past year. Any suggestions or criticisms as to the betterment of our department are earnestly solicited.

To all of you, wherever you may be: Merry Christmas and Happy New Year!

Office of District Engineer, Baltimore, Md.

Correspondent, J. FORD COLLISON

During the past month we had with us W. H. Edwards, who was showing us how to make a Form 930 correctly. Well, to say the least, he may know something about this 930 business, but we hope he learns how to play Five Hundred before he comes back again. Honestly, we do hate to treat him so. You know the guest should win a few games, at least.

Our old friend "Bill" Gwathmey is surely having a hard time thinking what to buy his daughter this Christmas - whether a piano or a machine. He thinks a piano would be the more sensible, since he would be able to keep her home more. You know, his daughter is at least 18 (months) old now.

Office of District Engineer, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Correspondent, J. M. WHELAN

It was your Correspondent's pleasure to attend recently, at Baltimore, a conference of the "Among Ourselves" representatives of the MAGAZINE. I wish that I might adequately convey to you the spirit of good-fellowship and enthusiasm which prevailed during that meeting.

The keynote of sound common sense, of mutual help and improvement was laid down by no less a personage than our president himself. Mr. Willard, in a talk which lasted the greater part of an hour, urged the correspondents to help in cementing the already cordial relations existing between the Railroad and the employees and the Railroad and the public. An inspiring talk indeed, and one that shaped the whole procedure of the conference.

Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood also spoke along the same line, and their talks were no less inspiring. We were all given a new insight into the importance of our duties on the MAGAZINE and the future which lies ahead of us and the important part which the MAGAZINE is destined to play in that future. The message was clean cut from the kick-off and there was no fumbling of any kind through the game.

It seems to us that any correspondent leaving Baltimore after the recent conference without a more encouraging idea of his importance, missed something which should have been apparent to all in attendance there. It seemed to us, also, that most of the correspondents, in their talks, missed the deeper significance contained in their MAGAZINE relations. The correspondent may be, and is in a peculiar sense, the representative of the Railroad, and what a wonderful lot of good he can do for those he represents. The correspondent who does not endeavor to rise beyond the mere submission of notes for the MAGAZINE does not realize to the fullest the advantages which are his.

By the way, a couple of our pleasant young lady correspondents asked us, as a favor, to help them out from about 6 p. m. until train time Saturday night (last day of Correspondents' Conference). Quite naturally, of course, we consented, and arranged to have them meet some pleasant company in the Capitol Saturday evening. It seems, however, that they took advantage of the immemorial right of every lady to change her mind, and we never did meet them. Our compliments also to the party who pre-empted our seat at the game.

From what we saw we can't blame the youngsters for adopting Aunt Mary; we certainly have not enough relatives ourselves.

By the way, did you hear "Van" rooting for Princeton? From what we heard, he was doing most of it himself.

Did you hear about the young men who were left behind in Washington rather scantily attired? It seems that having gotten off for a breath of air they expected the train would wait for them, but unfortunately the train forgot and moving out left them behind.

The first conference of Engineering Department Accountants was held in the office of District Engineer Clark in Pittsburgh, October 29. Present were Messrs. Righter and Young of District Engineer Mather's Office, Baltimore; McKibben and Kolker of District Engineer Griffith's Office, Cincinnati; and Holtzworth, Eberly and Whealan from Pittsburgh. The question of accounting procedure to be followed in the territories of the various district engineers was gone into most exhaustively in an endeavor to adopt a uniform system for use in all District Engineers' Offices. Many interesting facts developed from the discussions and much good was accomplished. The conference broke up after an all day session with each member certain he had learned something of value to himself in the transaction of his work. It is to be hoped that other meetings can be arranged for as questions develop.

We will shortly welcome to our midst most of those members of our organization who have assisted in rebuilding the bridges on the W. P. & B. Branch. We imagine that the boys will not be at all sorry, although there have been certain attractions in the work. Also, we bet the housewives will feel much relieved when the work is formally completed.

It is rumored that one of our most staid respectable members smoked his first cigarette recently, or was it his first? Most anything can happen now, and our friend "Jim" Connolly is hoping for the best while privately looking for the worst.

Office of District Engineer, Cincinnati, Ohio

Correspondent, G. F. DAUBENMERKLE

I wish everyone in the office a very Merry Christmas and may the New Year bring you continued Health, Happiness and Prosperity.

Transitman Graham is much pleased since the Toledo Division trains enter the Central Union Depot, as his brothers in Cincinnati have not been able to salute him since the change.

Stenographer F. W. Klein is having his troubles these days. Pounds the typewriter during the day and sings Klein, Jr., to sleep at night. Don't worry, "Fred," wait until Numbers 2, 3, etc., appear. You are now getting good practical experience.

Assistant Engineer Callahan entertained his brother "Joe" from Atlanta, Ga., for a day during November.

Transitman H. L. Scribner has been on the east end of the Ohio Division for the past two months, and we miss his smiling countenance around the office. The Plaza Hotel is still doing business at the old stand, "Scrib."

The old saying, "absence makes the heart grow fonder" may be applicable to a certain party in the Engineering Department, Western Lines. Does the shoe fit any of you?

Assistant Engineer Ray attended a bazaar at Lawrenceburg a short time ago and invested 20 cents, for which he won two hams. "James" sure practices economy.

Office of General Baggage and Milk Agent

Correspondent, MABEL L. MENGES

To the Employees of the General Baggage and Milk Department:

My sincere wish for each and every one is that you may catch a large measure of the real Christmas cheer and spirit. This wish is prompted by appreciation of the willing cooperation of our employees and a feeling of assurance that the same hearty cooperation will continue. May the New Year be numbered as one of your best and the Christmas spirit stay with each of you throughout the year.

JNO. P. DUGAN

General Baggage and Milk Agent

Whoever conceived the idea of the Correspondent's Conference had a happy thought. The whole arrangement, from the choosing of speakers and form of entertainment, to the most minute detail for the comfort and convenience of the visitors, could not have been improved upon. For want of words to express it and in order to be brief, it was done in the usual "Baltimore and Ohio Way."

The keynote of President Willard's message, as well as those of the other officials whom we had the pleasure of listening to, was an appeal for a more friendly and perfect understanding between the Management and the employees, and a desire not only for the cooperation of each and every one, but the cheerful and spontaneous cooperation which cannot help but reflect itself in greater efficiency and greater results. The Management wants us to know that our interests are theirs, as has been indicated in many instances, and that their success is ours.

It is really an inspiration to listen to President Willard. As you listen you begin to feel that it is a privilege to work for a railroad that has for its leader such a big-hearted and sympathetic man.

I feel sure that each correspondent went away from the conference filled with enthusiastic belief that the purpose for which the meeting was held will not have been in vain.

The October, 1923, National Dairy Show has passed into history and has been recorded as the most successful one ever held.

There were two outstanding features of this year's dairy show: first, the World's Dairy Congress, representing many foreign countries, which met for the first time at Washington, D. C., in conjunction with the National Dairy Association. The formation of the World's Dairy Congress is, no doubt, because of the realization of the potentialities of the milk industry, not only from a commercial point of view, but also that of the importance of milk as a food; second, the representation of the railroads as an organized Railroad Unit. The Railroad Unit was organized at the Minneapolis-St. Paul, 1922, Show, as the result of a resolution submitted by Mr. Dugan. The railroad representation this year was larger and there was more real interest manifested than at any previous meeting.

The late James S. Bucy, Train Baggage man

It is evident that the transportation of milk is becoming a really live subject, and that its revenue possibilities are just beginning to be realized.

Mr. Dugan was called upon to prepare a paper on "Transportation of Milk in Bulk," which he read at the Syracuse Dairy Session.

There is a man on the Philadelphia Division, coming under this Department, about whom we have been receiving some complimentary reports.

It seems to be customary to withhold all the kind remarks until the person has departed, and then relate them to his friends, but in this case we'll pass the "flowers" on.

Patrons have taken the trouble to write about the courteous and obliging man at this particular station, commending him highly. It is quite evident that he is not catering to any special class or group of patrons, because during the Shriners' Convention he was transferred to Washington to assist with the heavy traffic at that point, and the Company received another letter of appreciation for the courteous and valuable assistance received from this same man. We are also informed that his work is not measured by the clock, and that it is entirely due to his untiring efforts and courtesy that he has secured some valuable patronage.

This person is Matthew C. Minker, baggage agent, Wilmington, Delaware, who puts his whole heart into his work, "not because he feels obliged to, but just because he wants to."

The sudden death of James S. Bucy, train baggageman, was a great shock and the cause of much regret in this office. Mr. Bucy, who was about fifty years of age, spent thirty years of his life in the services of the Baltimore and Ohio. He entered the service in 1893, serving as train baggageman since 1907, his last run being on Trains 7 and 4, between Baltimore and Cumberland.

During these sixteen years not a single instance can be recalled of a serious baggage irregularity. In his death the Company has lost an efficient and loyal employee, and the loss will be keenly felt by this department on account of his close association.

Our deepest sympathy goes out to his family.

We were favored by a call from A. C. Hoover, baggage agent, Weston, W. Va. Mr. Hoover had been in Baltimore for nearly a week undergoing medical treatment, from which he has received considerable benefit.

Office of General Freight Claim Agent

Correspondent, NORMA H. APLEGARTHE

To the Employees of the General Freight Claim Agent's Office:

Another year has sped and Christmas is at hand, bringing festivities and good will. It is with this spirit I desire to thank you for your past cooperation and loyal support during the year, and to Wish you a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Yours sincerely

C. C. GLESSNER

General Freight Claim Agent

The Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents, held in Baltimore, October 26 and 27, was a great success. Each of us was benefitted by the wonderful address of President Willard, as well as the interesting ones of Vice President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood. Many of our out of town correspondents gave us new ideas as to how we may better the MAGAZINE, and it would be well for us all to keep before us the thought which President Willard expressed on the cover of our June MAGAZINE, asking for our constant cooperation towards improving the operation of our Railroad in such ways as may be possible for each of us, not because we feel obliged to do so, but because we want to do so. I ask each of you to cooperate with me as your correspondent, so that I may do justice, to our MAGAZINE and help make it the best magazine in print. It can be done only by cooperation.

"Seven come eleven." But the "eleven" did not appear so Carlisle lost his nerve and, alas, the mustache has disappeared, much to the approval of the young ladies. No girl likes a mustache so take a tip from this, young men, and be "clean cut" fellows.

We have always known that some day we would be able to report something great about Roland L. Baldwin, so it is not a surprise that he expects soon to be the World's Golf Champion. With such an efficient instructor as Mr. Koerner, and Mr. Padgett as caddy, how could he help but have the world at his feet? He gave up base ball, because the game was too rough. Is he not too delicate for this wild game of golf? We suggest something lighter, such as Tiddley Winks, Dominoes or even Mah Jong!

"It pays to advertise," is a well known slogan. In many ways this slogan may be applied to the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE. In the past it has been quite a task to induce the girls to have their pictures appear in the A. O. Columns, but I am looking forward to no such trouble again, since Miss Morwood's picture appeared in the September issue. She has been rushed with mail from an employe of the Union Pacific Railroad, Sacramento, California, who was so charmed he just could not help taking the liberty of writing her. One can never tell what might happen if you have a picture in the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE. It has a wide distribution.

M. F. Hamberger, who has been ill for sometime, is improving and we hope he will be with us soon.

Perry Calls His Home Telephone Number

Perry—Hello, hon, what are you doing, sitting at the window?

—No answer.

Perry—Dear, did you take my watch to the jeweler?

Then the lady answers, much to Perry's surprise:

"Are you crazy man, I am not your wife."

MORAL.—When telephoning be sure to find out who's wife is at the other end of the line.

Freight Traffic Department

Correspondent, DOROTHY RUBENSTEIN

The year about to close has been a notable one in the history of the Baltimore and Ohio from the standpoint of tonnage carried, revenue return and quality of service rendered. These results, when studied as cold figures, are indeed gratifying to those who have the interests of the Road at heart. Even more gratifying are they when considered as the fruitage of the loyalty and will to serve, of the men and women who make up the Baltimore and Ohio family.

Miss Mattie Messick and Mrs. Richardson at the entrance to Estes Park, Col.

Evidence abounds that behind your loyalty to the Company and your courtesy to the public there lies an appreciation of the true Baltimore and Ohio spirit toward employe and patron. In other words, the Baltimore and Ohio means to you not a living but a life; not a machine, but a vehicle for the best self-expression; not simply a checking account on which to draw for material existence, but a depository for the accumulation of duties well done whose interest yield is self-respect.

Can there be any better greeting to you than to wish that the Christmas Season will bring you full measure of joy in the realization of duty well done and that the New Year will be replete with opportunities to interpret the Baltimore and Ohio spirit of service, which will be availed of "not because you have to but because you want to?"

SAMUEL HOUSE
General Freight Agent

It was indeed a pleasure and a rare privilege to be present at the Conference of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE Correspondents, held in Baltimore, Md., October 26 and 27, and to meet the representatives from the various departments and divisions of our System. It was still more wonderful to listen to President Willard make his address, in which he asked that we all cooperate to make this, the Baltimore and Ohio, the best railroad in the world, and through the MAGAZINE, to bring about a more intimate and true understanding between the Management and Employe. On account of pressing business, our Vice-President Fries was unable to speak. Vice-President Galloway and General Manager Scheer also gave short inspiring talks. It is up to us to bend every effort towards the goal that of making the Baltimore and Ohio the "Best and Only," and incidentally to promote that comradeship and spirit of Good Fellowship that means so much to the success of our Road. Let's all pull together, not because we have to, but because we want to, and think of ourselves as being part of the Railroad and not as being forced to work for the Railroad. If we can truthfully strive with this feeling in our hearts, then the success of our Road is assured for all time.

M. H. Llewellyn, formerly stenographer, has been promoted to secretary to O. S. Lewis, freight traffic manager, Baltimore, Md. The V-P's office regrets to lose Herbert, but is glad to see him increase his batting average.

A word of welcome is hereby extended to Ross Hager, who was transferred from the Freight Tariff Bureau at Baltimore to the Office of Vice-President Traffic & Commercial Development as stenographer succeeding Mr. Llewellyn.

Mail Boy! Have you seen the pink envelope this morning, Mr. Spurrier inquiring? Daily News.

Sir Walter Raleigh did not have a thing on our friend Brownie. What is spreading a royal cloak in the mud for a queen to walk on, compared with a fellow rushing out into the middle of Redwood Street during rush hour and holding back a fliyer, so that the two Queens with him could pass safely across the street. Was the red hat and brown coat, or black hat and black coat responsible for this gentleman's strange conduct? At any rate, Sir Walter, fade out of the picture.

All those desiring to learn the latest steps of the Tango and Boston waltz should closely observe J. H. D. as he glides around the room, searching for files. With a little more practice, Dipp says he will challenge Valentino in a tango contest and has no doubt as to who will carry off the honors. Neither have we.

It was with deep regret that we learned of the death of W. N. Wilkins' mother on October 3, and the entire office joins us in expressing our sincere sympathy to Mr. Wilkins in his bereavement.

Our sympathy is also extended to Roland E. Hampe, who had the misfortune of losing his beloved father on October 9.

The Welfare Association sent a basket of fruit as an expression of their hopes for a speedy recovery, to T. E. Cross, who recently underwent an operation at the Maryland General Hospital. We are looking forward to his early return.

A word to the wise: The Traffic Class meetings are for your benefit. Show your appreciation by attendance.

Once again—A Merry Christmas, and may the words "Peace on earth, Good Will towards Men," retain their truth the entire year round in our association.

Office Mail and Express Traffic

Correspondent, T. E. REESE

In approaching the holiday season it is extremely gratifying to see a continuation of that fine spirit of cooperation we have always enjoyed in the department. The Christmas season offers added pleasures in making ourselves happy in our efforts to contribute in every way possible to the further success of the Baltimore and Ohio.

The season's greetings are extended to all, with best wishes for every success and happiness during the New Year.

J. C. McCABAN
Manager, Mail and Express
Traffic Department

Correspondents' Conference in Baltimore, October 26 and 27, was to my mind, "just write."

Certainly no inspiration could have given us more encouragement to write than the appeal that came from our president, Mr. Willard.

I am reminded of a story of a mother endeavoring to write a letter while her little two year old son was playing on the floor around the writing table, when the pen point fell from the holder, and before it could be recovered, the little fellow had picked it up and swallowed it. Naturally some confusion followed until the physician arrived. After the latter had been informed of what had happened, he prescribed in these words, "give it a little ink and that will make it write."

The moral of that story is, that if every one present at our conference will remember the "pen point dictates" given by those to whom we listened, and apply a little ink, we can "make it write" like never before, and put our MAGAZINE on a still higher plane. By doing this we can show our appreciation to those to whom we are indebted for the privilege of getting together to discuss our problems.

Let's make 1924 a banner year for the Company through the medium of our MAGAZINE!

Printing Department

Correspondent, H. TOFT

To All Employees:

It gives me great pleasure at this time of the year to extend to you my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year. May our old friend "Santa" bring you the best of everything.

I will also take this occasion to thank each and every one of you for your loyal and earnest support during the year now closing, and feel sure that with your continued cooperation, we will be able during the coming year to produce more and better work, and at a continuing lower cost.

Again with Best Wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year,

GEORGE R. LEILICH
Manager Printing Plant

Speaking of automobile shows, one has but to visit our Printing Department on any Saturday morning to get an "eyeful." Leading off is our manager, G. R. Leilich, with his fine Marmon. Following him come Composing Room Foreman Frey, with a Willys-Knight, then "Ben" Fauble, King's, followed by Compositor Feusahrens and Caster Room Operator Huckle in Briscoes. Last but not least, Ford has the following representatives: Compositor Schaper, Cost Clerk Lehman, Pressman "Bob" Roth and Cutter Davis.

That ever popular bird, the stork, made its appearance at the home of Compositor Shea and left for the proud parents to love and cherish a fine baby girl, Mary Regina Shea. Congratulations! And may Mary's life be one of sunshine and happiness!

Keyboard Operator Pauline Humrichouse is absent on account of illness. Here's hoping she may have a quick recovery and soon be back punching the keys.

Your correspondent wishes to every reader of the MAGAZINE a Merry Christmas, and may everything you wish for in the line of success and good health for the coming year be yours!

Relief Department

Correspondent, H. IRVING MARTIN

To those associated with the Relief Department and to all the employees of The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, in all branches of the service, we extend wishes for a Happy Christmas and abundant prosperity not alone in the Year Nineteen Twenty-Four, but for all the years to come.

W. J. DUDLEY
Superintendent Relief Department

What impressed me most in the Conference of Correspondents of the MAGAZINE, held in Baltimore, October 26 and 27, was the manifestation of a loyalty that sought

Smith and Buckheimer have become expression in the performance of some act to aid the Railroad in a definite and lasting way.
"Ichthyologists"

Doubtless few of the correspondents came to the conference with an adequate realization of the monetary investment represented by the MAGAZINE. After the presentation of the purpose of the MAGAZINE by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway and General Manager Scheer, all the correspondents returned to their homes determined to make that investment go further and mean more than ever before, to devote their talents and the time at their disposal to widespread advertisement of the principles for which the MAGAZINE stands and through its agency endeavor to influence the daily life and daily work of each employe to a degree hitherto unknown, and to use the facilities at their command to extend the scope of the Company's service to the public; in other words, to demonstrate their loyalty to the Company by unselfish and unremitting efforts to promote its ideals of Public Service.

"What did you get last night?" doesn't refer in any way to something to eat, but is the morning salutation of the members of "The Stay-at-Home Club" to each other, as they review the broadcasting of the night before.

The Club is rapidly increasing its membership, Desverreaux, Franz, Stockbridge and Miss Gerhold being the latest additions to the ranks of radio fans.

"Shake," our original radiologist, seems to have his ether currents turned into his new electric lights. At least his voice is heard no more on wireless, but is traveling the groundline of a duckpin alley.

Some of our scientists have swung over into Ichthyology, (What's that, something to scratch?—No.) and can tell you all about the habits of gold fish, from the common garden kind to the variety that land in the mint. Smith and Buckheimer (not a firm name) have dedicated themselves to science through a random visit to a 5-10 cent emporium. Feasting their eyes and spellbound, they stopped at the aquarium counter and stood hypnotized by the antics of the fish. The first conscious moment brought the same thought to the minds of each. Both bought two of the denizens of the deep, together with all accessories needed to make their homes look like Battery Park Aquarium or Rock Creek Zoological Park.

Now they devote all of their spare hours to the study of the fish and to broadcasting to the world the information thus acquired.

Smith, being of a very tender nature, noting the sad expression about the eyes of his monsters, thought he had broken up a happy family. He, therefore, chased back and bought three youngsters of the finny tribe, to see if happiness could not again be restored to the once happy home. But, alas! the youngsters are gone. Who knows where?

"Nobody loves a fat man." Ask Hachtel, he knows. Curtis is also qualifying for admission to the Fat Men's Club. Stop poking jests at the stout and ask your neighbor if he ever heard that catchy chuckle that Ex-President Taft uses as an ear charmer.

October 25 is the feast day of some half dozen saints and the birth date of many noted people, but it looks bigger to John Meagher because it is the day on which his daughter, Mary Ellen, arrived at his home. It's a happy date for her daddy.

While one of our valued assistant correspondents was strolling through Clifton Park, he saw the burly Desverreaux lined up against the willowy Vernon Miles in a soccer game. Can you imagine it? And Vernon got away with the honors of the game, too.

A few good bowlers are needed to bring our team up to the standard of some of the other departments. While trying out some "would-be's," Guy Riggs, who had learned all he knew about the game by setting up pins, was inveigled into rolling a game. This being Guy's first game, he was nervous at the start, but settled down after the first frame and at the end of the game his score was 135. Now friend Guy has a reputation and nothing can prevail upon him to roll another game.

We add our tribute of love and affection to the memory of George W. Andrews, late assistant to chief engineer of maintenance. As we stood by his coffin, we wished for "the sound of a voice" that was still. A man without an enemy or detractor, a good friend gone forever. May the angels give him the same full-souled welcome he always extended to his fellow workers.

In our own department, Paul Franz mourns the death of his father. To him, also, our condolences are extended.

Office of General Storekeeper

Correspondent, M. J. GREBOW

After a lapse of more than two years, the Office of the General Storekeeper is again bursting into print and expects to continue sending in items from time to time.

Three changes in personnel have occurred during the past summer; M. J. Grebow was transferred from Riverside to the position of secretary to general storekeeper, vacated by Miss Minnie Cox, who left the service to be married. L. E. Riggins, a new employe, was appointed mail clerk, which position was vacated by H. Stack, who was transferred to Mt. Clare as clerk. T. R. Reese was transferred from Mt. Clare to fill the position of stenographer vacated by G. B. McAllester, who was transferred to the office of the vice-president.

Mary Peoples, ardent golf enthusiast, worked hard to win the tournament recently held at Clifton Park. Better luck next time, Mary!

The office force celebrated the victory of the Third Corps, Army, over the Virginia Polytechnic Institute by eating candy. Leslie, you ought to pick winners!

Assistant Chief Clerk James E. Waugh, has gained his second son-in-law within the year by the marriage of his daughter, Gladys, to H. H. Rehling, Mt. Clare.

The entire personnel joins in wishing its many friends on line a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Office of Superintendent of Telegraph

Correspondent, E. M. BRYAN

When it is necessary to use the telegraph wires be concise and brief, use codes and symbols.

I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a very Happy New Year. We have been extremely busy during the year now drawing to a close, and that has made us happy. Idleness does not breed happiness. Let us all hope that the New Year will bring continued happiness and prosperity to one and all.

C. A. PLUMLY

Superintendent Telegraph

The Correspondents' Conference held in Baltimore on October 26 and 27 was just another manifestation of the sincerity and high esteem the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company feels towards its great family of employees. The importance of this Conference was emphasized by the fact that President Willard personally addressed the correspondents. Interesting addresses were also made by Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and others, the general topics being the existing good will and friendliness between the officials and employees and the hope for a continuance of a united spirit in furthering the interests of the Baltimore and Ohio.

With Mr. Adams at the bat and Mr. Donnelly as umpire, we had the World's Series between the Yanks and Giants by telegraph.

Mr. Brown, commercial clerk; was recently retired by the Western Union Telegraph Company after many years of commendable service. We all miss "Uncle Billy." Our congratulations are extended to Miss Claypoole who succeeded him.

How the years roll by! On October 31, the parents of Miss Catherine Owings celebrated their silver wedding and received the best wishes and greetings of their many friends. Not to be out done by any one Carl Ebsworth celebrated his fourteenth anniversary of happy married life on November 3. This was just a quiet affair, but "Ebbie" promises a big turn out next year when he celebrates his fifteenth anniversary.

The "Indian" is none other than Thornton Norris, assistant to general supervisor time service. Thornton has the wildest crush on our file clerk, Miss "Millie" Davies. Look out for the Indian's arrow, "Millie!"

It's easy enough to be pleasant,

When there's nothing to make you blue,
But those who can grin with the wires burning in,

Are telegraph clerks through and through.

Office of General Superintendent Transportation

Correspondent, P. L. FAUSTMAN

To Employees of the Transportation Department.

It is a pleasure to express my sincere appreciation for the efficient service rendered during 1923.

May your Christmas be truly a Merry one, with a Happy and a Prosperous New Year.

W. G. CURREN

General Superintendent Transportation

To Employees of the Transportation Department:

With the approach of the Yuletide season, it is a pleasure for me again to extend to all the folk of the Transportation Department my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and Many Happy and Prosperous New Years.

J. D. CLARKE

Superintendent Transportation

The editor has allotted but a limited space to the MAGAZINE Correspondents' First Conference, which, to say the least, was a great success. I shall, therefore, only touch upon that which to me was the one outstanding feature of the many interesting and educational events that were crowded into the short period.

With sincere thanks and appreciation to Messrs. Galloway, Scheer and Wood, who so kindly and ably gave us their time, the speech of our esteemed president, Mr. Willard, was to me the one high spot of the convention. His talk was largely devoted to the desire for a better understanding between the Management of our great Railroad and its employees, and the sincerity with which he spoke was indeed a revelation. It is a recognized fact that you cannot judge a man by what he says or does in public, but when Mr. Willard said that the management of the Baltimore and Ohio stands for a square deal for its employees and that the only thing the Railroad expects is a square deal in return, there was something in his voice and demeanor that distinguished him from the ordinary speaker, and relieved all doubt as to his sincerity. He was talking from his heart. Every one of his hearers with whom I had an opportunity to speak, agreed that his talk should certainly have a marked influence upon future relations between employer and employee.

If Mr. Willard's speech could have been broadcasted to the fifty or sixty thousand employees of the Company, instead of to the comparatively few present, great strides would have been made toward effecting that better understanding which both sides should most diligently strive to effect for the benefit of the public in general and the Railroad and our families in particular.

Thornton Norris, Telegraph Department, dons the dress of his ancestors

Speaking of courtesy, you seldom pass John Huber, chief elevator dispatcher on the first floor of the Baltimore and Ohio Building, without having him say "Good Morning" to you. A pleasant "Good Morning" is an excellent way to start the day.

At this writing, Hilda Vogt, one of our reliable stenographers, is confined to her bed at Church Home after a somewhat serious operation. We are glad that she is on the mend and hope for her speedy recovery.

The words "Baltimore and Ohio" and "Safety First" have become as closely associated as "Mr. Gallagher and Mr. Shean."

This being Christmas time, it is only fitting that we should give some space to the youngsters. When I asked the members of our Statistical Department to let me have pictures of their babies for the December issue of the MAGAZINE, I was surprised that there were no boys among them. From all appearances, if the present generation follows the footsteps of its predecessors, our Statistical Bureau will be made up of beautiful women instead of men and the names of those that have blazed the trail in the past will be lost to the world forever unless some miracle occurs. But seriously, these little tots must certainly be a source of great pride to their lucky parents.

It was with sincere regret that we heard of the death of the mother of Emma McClayton, secretary to Mr. Kearney. The Grim Reaper reminds us every day that those we love most are only to be with us for a limited period, but there should be consolation in knowing that we have done everything within our power to make them happy and contented during their stay with us.

There is a blind man on a Baltimore street corner who sells almost every kind of magazine and newspaper, who serves you and makes change quicker than the little urchins with two good eyes who scramble to get to you to make a sale and then dig around for the change. It took a great deal of perseverance to accomplish that. If he had given up in despair as some of us are apt to do, he might be asking alms instead of making an independent livelihood.

Ambrose Hardwick has been elected president of the Baltimore and Ohio Glee Club. Congratulations, "Brose." That's quite an honor.

You have often heard it said of some official that Mr. Fitzgerald or Mr. Potter or Mr. Thompson put him where he is, but Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Potter and Mr. Thompson are no longer with us, while he is still on the job. He must have made good or he wouldn't be there.

It has been said that the greatest artists of the vaudeville and legitimate stage secure their material from actual occurrences in daily life. While walking up Lexington Street the other day it occurred to me that this must certainly be true. During a stroll of three squares, I overheard the following incoherent snatches of conversation as I passed by. To me they were quite amusing:

"I would have gone around in 85 but"—
"$75 a month for three rooms and bath"—
"Not a bit of static, I had Havana just as clear as a crystal"—
"$8 a quart"—
"So he says to me, how would you like to go to lunch"—
"Climbed all the hills in high"—
"I always ship Baltimore and Ohio."

TRANSPORTATION DEPARTMENT BABIES ALL GIRLS!

Above, left to right: Mary and Doris, daughters of Harry L. Hatton; Marjorie Virginia, daughter of Ambrose S. Hardwick. Below: Vivian Edna, daughter of Walter Seibert; Evelyn May, daughter of Jos. F. Volk

Valuation Department

Correspondent, J. A. RENEHAN

Christmas greetings to all, and the best of wishes for the New Year! I thank all of you for your earnest, enthusiastic and untiring efforts of the past year to secure a just and equitable valuation for the property of the Baltimore and Ohio. The Company is indeed fortunate to have a department animated by the zeal which is the characteristic of the Valuation Department. May happiness be your lot, and may you ever go onward and upward!

JENKS B. JENKINS

Valuation Engineer

KNOW ALL MEN BY THESE PRESENTS:

THAT, for and in consideration of universal love and affection, the trusteeship of which is given to all men, the undersigned hath extended, given, granted, and conveyed and by these presents doth extend, give, grant and convey to you and each of you a bountiful supply of his wishes that the best of the season and each of the seasons may bring forth.

TOGETHER with all and singular the hereditaments and emoluments thereunto belonging or in anywise appertaining, and the reversions, remainders, issues and profits thereof.

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD all and singular the said good wishes and prosperity to and unto you and your heirs forever, reserving therefrom only that which men feel but cannot explain, that which men long for but seldom have, that which has been the quest of men in all ages.

And the undersigned covenants he shall warrant and defend the same against any and all claims and demands of all persons whomsoever.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned has hereunto set his hand and seal this twenty-fifth day of December, nineteen hundred and twenty-three.

(Signed) J. V. Klier (Seal)

The correspondent wishes to express his sincere appreciation to the Railroad for the opportunity afforded and the innumerable benefits derived in attending the Correspondents' Convention, October 26 and 27.

I believe, as do my fellow correspondents to be sure, that there could be no better way to receive and carry home that inspiring message of President Willard than the conference provided.

The addresses of Vice President Galloway, General Manager Scheer, Chief of Welfare Wood and other officers of the Company, did much to enhance the value of real service given in the right spirit.

And it is my opinion that the direct association and exchange of ideas of the correspondents of the entire Baltimore and Ohio System will prove invaluable in forming an even closer relationship than already exists among our very own Baltimore and Ohio family.

Office of Assistant Comptroller Deverell

Correspondent, JOHN A. RUPP

Assistant Comptroller Deverell wishes everyone a Merry Christmas and all Success and Happiness for the New Year.

Anyone who has heard our esteemed President speak knows that it is a treat to listen to him. To be one of his audience is to profit in many ways. This is, I am sure, the sentiment of all correspondents who were addressed by Mr. Willard on the morning of October 26.

In this connection, I cannot refrain from mentioning some of the specially interesting points brought out by our Chief Executive. He said that we are a part of the 1500 or 2000 communities spread out over our System; that this year was one of the most prosperous our Company had ever had, and that he hoped all employees would continue their good work in securing business for our line. Mr. Willard then said "Efficiency is not working harder, but accomplishing more by doing the work in an improved way." Further along in his address Mr. Willard said: "We want them (the employees) to do more work, but not necessarily to work harder. Efficiency means more intelligently directed effort."

The picture presented herewith is that of our worthy stenographer, John Strauch. If "John Henry," as he is popularly known, were standing, he might get some of his anatomy out of the picture!

Auditor Coal and Coke Receipts

Correspondent, JOHN LIMPET

To Employees in Office Auditor Coal and Coke Receipts:

Greetings!

Another year has rolled around and we have come again to the season of Christmas, commemorating the glad tidings and promise of "Peace on earth and good will to men."

This is a season not only of joy and gladness, but one for retrospect and careful consideration of what we have done individually during the year just past to promote that spirit of peace and good will, of which the world stands so sorely in need at this time.

We may ask ourselves—have we done all that it was possible to do to help accomplish what is so earnestly desired for the return of peace, happiness and good will to the daily life of the world.

Happily for the affairs of this office, much has been satisfactorily accomplished and an advance made in the spirit of cooperation which is so essential in the work we have jointly to perform, and I gratefully thank all of you for what has been done in this respect.

I will, however, take this opportunity to remind you that we cannot stand still or be neutral in this spirit of cooperation, but must go either forward or backward, and I trust that the coming year will see us making great progress in cooperation and mutual efforts for improvement in our work. I hope that this expectation will be fully realized and that we will together come to another Christmastide with hearts full of joy and gladness in contemplation of good work well and faithfully done.

In this spirit I extend to each and everyone of you my thankful appreciation of what has been accomplished in the past year, and with great hopes in this respect for the year that is now before us, and heartily wishing each of you and your families a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year, I am,

Sincerely,

L. A. LAMBERT

Auditor Coal and Coke Receipts

John Strauch, Stenographer, Assistant Comptroller Deverell's Office

"Al" Moore pulled an awful bone recently. He went to a men's store, pulled off his overcoat to try on a dressing gown and then, reaching for the overcoat, declared it was not his—that some one had exchanged when he wasn't looking. Instead he had taken a fellow clerk's overcoat from the wrong locker in the office

As an echo of the Conference of Magazine Correspondents held in Baltimore, October 26 and 27, I merely wish to add my voice in praise of the meetings conducted.

It certainly was a revelation to me to hear the broad views, aims, principles and ambitions of our president, and I trust all employees will read every statement of his affecting the railroads and particularly the Baltimore and Ohio and its employees.

The spirit of the "Good Neighbor" was voiced not alone by our president, but also by C. W. Galloway, Vice-president, E. W. Scheer, general manager, and others.

Having such support, the MAGAZINE should make wonderful progress, and with the help and cooperation of all correspondents, we should have a bigger, brighter, better MAGAZINE in the immediate future.

Sincere greetings for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to the editorial staff, fellow correspondents and all readers of the Best Railroad Magazine in the country.

Last month we gave an account of how "Bob" Burns took a fall out of G. W. Ritterbusch on the bowling alleys and made life miserable for that young man until a return match was arranged. The proverbial worm turned and licked Basso five or six out of eight. He who laughs last laughs best, and Ritterbusch is having his day.

The wedding of Miss Rebecca E. Walter, of this office, and Mr. S. B. Seabreeze was solemnized on October 12. The bride and groom left for a short trip to New York by boat, stopping off at Norfolk. After returning to the city they will occupy an apartment at 712 Gorsuch Avenue, where they will be "At Home" after November 15.

In addition to the hearty good wishes for a long, happy married life, a more substantial gift was made to the newlyweds in the form of a beautiful mahogany clock with candle sticks to match.

The Office Bowling League was off to a flying start at the "Y," night of October 3. Four four man teams are in the field this year, and being evenly matched, should insure a red hot race.

"Quiet" Muth rolled the first spare; "Log Cabin" Reichert crashed into the good for the first strike; Pritchard rolled high for one game with 119, while Lehman was right in back of him with 118, and high for three with 330. Royal Blues and Capitol Limited each captured two while Head Lights and Pull Men had to be content with one each.

October 10 was just an ordinary night with nothing unusual happening.

October 17. Head Lights by taking three from Capitol Limited while Royal Blues dropped two, went into a three team tie for place.

October 24. The big gun during this evening was Mr. Brauer with his 101, 111 and 116. These scores were instrumental in keeping Pull Men in the lead. It is rumored that "Willie" is taking private instructions, which may account for the improvement.

October 31. W. B. D. gets the first "Brown Derby" of the season. (Three down the gutter). Atwell stepped into the wood for a 124 count, which is high for the season. Pritchard mowed down 343 in three games, which is also the season's record. A difference of 15 pins marked the totals rolled by all four teams, which shows how evenly matched they are.

Standing of teams, including games rolled November 7, follows:

	Won	Lost
Head Lights.....	12	6	667
Pull Men.....	11	7	614
Royal Blues.....	7	11	389
Capitol Limited.....	6	12	333

Auditor Disbursements

Correspondent, LILIAN E. SCHUELER

To the boys and girls of the Auditor Disbursements Office in particular and to every member of the great Baltimore and Ohio family in general, greetings; at this, the happy Yuletide, I take the opportunity to wish you all a very, very Merry Christmas and a very, very Happy and Prosperous New Year.

G. H. PRYOR

Auditor Disbursements

At this time o' year everybody, having more or less of the Christmas spirit, is eager to do favors and acts of kindness for friends and relatives. I am going to ask you to do a big favor for yourself, and that is—to read every word in this MAGAZINE about the Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents. Maybe you didn't know that there was one. Oh yes, on October 26 and 27, correspondents from all points on the System met here at Central Building for the first time in the history of the MAGAZINE. At our first session President Willard gave a splendid address, laying emphasis on the spirit of good fellowship and friendliness that exists between the Management and the employees and the part the MAGAZINE plays in furthering this good feeling. In talks from Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood the keynote was helpfulness and cooperation with a view to the goal of making ours the best and safest railroad in the world. But here, I'll stop as you are going to read all about it in other parts of the MAGAZINE.

Murder Will Out

Along with some other news the Morning Sun of October 18 told a bit that had been secretly guarded for months. Here 'tis:

HUFFINGTON - HOFFERT Robert M., 22, 3811 Chatham Road; Anna C., 22.

When this piece of news became known the greatest amount of excitement prevailed. The Fuel Department looked like Tokio, the rest of the office like Yokohama. It was terrible, um hum. Charles Falter and Kitty Holtz went bawdy. Charles was found yelling "Fire" from the roof while Kitty with a raised umbrella insisted in skipping to and fro the entire length of the office. Mr. Zimmerman exclaimed "Ye Gods." He hasn't spoken since. All the fellow clerks sang "Noble, Noble Creature." Well, we certainly have to admit that you put one over on us, "Huff," but nevertheless we all wish you every happiness and success.

Fred Waltzinger, accountant, Fuel Bureau, has returned to his duties after undergoing an operation for appendicitis. We are glad to see him at his desk again.

We have heard many tales of the Bold Knights of many years ago, but none can equal the adventure of the ancestors of our friend Melvin Ennis. It seems that he has traced back his family tree and found that he is of royal blood (probably the sap); however we should feel proud to have among us such a distinguished personage.

Saturday, October 13 was a gala day for the girls of "our bunch." You see Dorothy Robinson had a birthday so we got our heads together and decided to give her a birthday dinner at Log Inn. Somehow or other the "Baby Lincoln" needed attention

Composite picture of Talbott and Bolsi, Auditor Disbursements' Office, about 3 o'clock every morning and so the tried and trusty driver had to stop at Glen Burnie, letting the other cars get ahead. So when the delayed car pulled up at the door of the Inn and Dorothy and its other occupants went into the dining room, they found the table spread with a delicious southern chicken dinner with a birthday cake and candles in the center, and there was an old fashioned log fire in the fire place. And then such a good time as was had. Dorothy says she doesn't even mind getting older if all birthdays will be as happy as that one.

Say boys, did any of you hear our Irish friend, John Murphy, vocalize on October 29? You talk about a nightingale, why that poor bird is not in it with him. What funny sounds you hear when you haven't got a gun.

No wonder the Glee Club is such a success! J. A. Nicholson and John Hoffman are in it.

We wonder why Selma is always smiling these days. Christmas is near so it won't be long now.

The latest is the resignation of Miss Marie Hohman, on November 15, as clerk in the Coupon Bureau. She is going the way of so many of our fair co-workers but she tells us that the eventful day is not until some time in January. Well, we have our doubts. Whenever it is, here's our wish for good luck and happiness, Marie.

Have you noticed the new smile in the office? It belongs to Miss Dorothy Remington who has just taken a position in the Coupon Bureau. We wish you success and hope you will be as happy as one of us.

Here's another bit of news. W. L. Baner, assistant maintenance of way accountant, came in late on the morning of November 8 with one of those smiles that reach from ear to ear. He reported the arrival of a son, an eight and a half pounder. All together, yell "Congratulations!" Father had an awful time keeping the young son from the movies last night but he finally succeeded, telling him he will have no "day-old" youngster bossing the house.

Captain H. R. Wilt, Maintenance of Way Bureau, was transferred to our Police Department, filling a vacancy on the Chicago Division. His service record of 18 years in the regular army should help him in his new occupation. The lure of the open has finally overcome his desire for office work.

Another vacancy in the Maintenance of Way Bureau will be caused by the furlough of E. W. Beck, who is going to Phoenix, Ariz., to recuperate after his recent illness. Well, Walter, old top, we hope you locate the pounds you lost but don't get so fat that your friend John won't recognize you.

We wish to express our deep sympathy to E. M. Talbott in the death of his father; also to Clarence Crosswell in the loss of his father.

Merry Christmas Everybody!

Auditor Freight Claims Office

Correspondent, GRACE L. STANFORD

One of the most pleasing privileges which the coming holiday season brings to me is the opportunity it affords of expressing to you my feeling of esteem and great personal regard.

There is a tie between employer and employee which time only serves to strengthen, and I think that, at this season, one has a keener sense of the value of friendship and loyalty than at any other time of the year. It is this feeling that causes me to pen these words, conveying my best wishes to you, not only for a happy holiday season, but for the best there is in life for many years to come.

This is also an opportune moment to consider one's duty to his Company, and to the Company's patrons. You have weathered a very strenuous period, with fidelity to your work, and with a fair measure of success. Whilst conserving the Company's funds, at all times, you have also endeavored to treat the Company's patrons with fairness and justice. Let the coming year urge you on to renewed energy, to greater fidelity to your work, and to a continued fair and just treatment of the shipping public.

J. F. SCHUTTE

It is my deep regret that it was through Miss Collison's illness that my visit to the recent Conference of Correspondents was made possible; yet it brings out the truth of the ago-old " 'tis an ill wind that blows nobody good."

I am convinced that each of us derived much benefit from this meeting. It has given me a keener insight into the MAGAZINE work—its aims, hopes and accomplishments; the importance of the MAGAZINE in "carrying on" the good wishes of our road to its employees, and extending good-fellowship from one to another. Again, it gave me the opportunity of becoming acquainted with many of the correspondents, thus inciting greater interest in the news Among Ourseives. Further (and I count this the greatest), it gave me the initial privilege of hearing our President, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood. From their talks, I gained a personal knowledge (which before had been received indirectly), of their sentiments towards the "rank and file." That spirit of friendliness and courtesy which has made itself felt not only among the traveling and shipping public, but extending to the employees as well, predominated throughout their addresses, and in fact pervaded the entire conference. The underlying principle of it all was the spirit of cooperation for mutual benefit; those little acts of giving aid or extending kindness—of doing anything to promote prosperity and happiness.

In these days, when one considers that the World is seemingly controlled by selfish motives, it is small wonder that the policy of our own Baltimore and Ohio has made it so highly regarded generally. Seeing the result of this policy and knowing the sentiments of our officials, do we, as individuals contribute daily to promote these excellent principles among ourselves? It is not hard to treat our superiors in this manner, nor is there difficulty in extending it to the public, but do we also treat our fellow workers with the same respect and friendliness? Do we extend the helping hand to the less fortunate, or speak an encouraging word to the down-hearted who are associated with us daily? Surely we know "a house divided against itself will fall" and if we do not practice cooperation and courtesy in our own departments, we cannot expect these qualities to stand out unblemished as the Railroad character. If then, we have not done this there is no better time than now, when the Christmas spirit is here, to begin to put these principles into effect, letting them be our guide in our service towards our Company and ourselves.

W. H. Orem, who has been absent for more than a month, because of illness, is back on the job. Welcome back, "Pop."

Favorable reports have been received from Lillian Dittmar, who is ill with pneumonia, and Stanley Weber, now at Mercy Hospital, recuperating from an operation for appendicitis.

Miss Collison, who is convalescing in the mountains of Pennsylvania, writes that her mission is being fulfilled. She has gained ten pounds in weight during the last month. Some one please tell her that Fontaine Fox has copyrighted "Aunt Eppie." Any way, we can see no flattery in even the cleverest imitation.

"The finest boy in the world" was born to Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Potter, on October 23. Congratulations!

Any of the young men of our department desiring to enlist in the "Home Guards," will please interview "Luke," and J. R. B., who will give them every detail regarding drilling.

Radio News—H. E. B. still broad-casting.

The M. I. T. Division wants to know why "Dot," though not a kicker herself, is so enthusiastic over the foot ball games, whenever "Navy" is on the list. You tell 'em "Dot."

Our chief clerk is making extensive preparations for a gunning trip down on the Sinnepatuxent Bay, (Eastern Sho') on the good old house boat, "Fairfield." We wish him much success—good sport and plenty of game. This will not be in keeping with his previous performances, judging from the story as related by one of the party on a similar trip about a year ago. The story goes—"spying in the distance what he supposed to be a number of beautiful black ducks and Mallards, he stealthily crawled about three fourths of a mile across marsh, through mud and water, until he reached the opposite side of the pond. Exhausted, but still game, he took careful (?) aim and blazed away with both barrels. Immediately he heard a howl of rage. Raising himself carefully so as not to disturb the ducks (which were still feeding), he beheld a long, lanky farmer, rubbing his jean-covered thigh. "What's the trouble," asked the C. C.—"did I hit you?" "Did ye," shouted back the irate farmer, "you're d—

AUDITOR FREIGHT CLAIMS OFFICE EMPLOYEES ENJOY GREAT LAKES TRIP

Misses Sara and Ethel Miller and Lillian Prenger went to Chicago and thence east on the Great Lakes, while Hughes Hantske and John Prenger followed the crowd to Atlantic City

Gifts worthy the Name ~

MODERN time is measured from the first Christmas. How appropriate, then, for a Christmas gift is that modern timekeeper, the Hamilton Watch.

Take advantage of your first Christmas shopping tour and have your jeweler show you the Hamiltons here illustrated.

The "992" is an excellent gift for Dad from the family—or for Dad from himself. The Hamilton wrist watch shown is the choice of women who want both beauty and accuracy in their watches. It can be had in either 14K or filled white or green gold at from $48.00 to $62.00. The artistic thin model Hamiltons are exceptionally fine gifts for young men. They can be had at prices ranging from $43.00 to $250.00, depending upon movement and case.

No matter what Hamilton model you decide upon as a Christmas gift, you can be confident you have made a wise choice—a choice that admits of no regrets. From the sturdy, dependable, railroad grades to the daintiest of wrist watches for women, all Hamiltons are gifts worthy the name.

HAMILTON WATCH COMPANY

LANCASTER, PENNA., U. S. A.

Hamilton Watch

"The Railroad Timekeeper of America"

right, ye did." "Well stranger," replied the C. C. "you may know it was an accident, for I never was known to hit anything I shot at."

Auditor Merchandise Receipts

Correspondent, P. H. STARKLAUF

As the Christmas Season is again approaching, our minds naturally go back to the One Day in the long calendar year when by common consent we lay aside our usual activities and join with hearts and voices in extending good cheer to our fellow men.

And while we are also looking forward to the New Year, it might be well to look in retrospect on "1923," during which it has been a pleasure to recognize the faithful and loyal assistance of the employes in this office. We feel sure of a continued hearty and loyal support during the coming year.

We extend to you the Compliments of the Season and wish you all, individually and collectively, A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

W. E. RITTENHOUSE
N. F. DAVIS
H. S. MACCUBBIN

The Conference of Magazine Correspondents is now a memory and for the many courtesies and the pleasure of meeting my contemporaries I am truly grateful. Here's hoping to see you all again.

Albert Hoffman is sojourning in Heidelberg, famous in pre-war days for its wonderful school of learning. Heidelberg was a scene of activity in the days of the Romans and some of its streets show evidences of those days, even to the name.

The Traffic Class, conducted weekly by the Baltimore and Ohio, has resumed action for the season. Meetings are held in the Assembly Room, 5th floor, General Office Building. Regardless of your position in the general force, Mr. Railroader, you should take advantage of this excellent opportunity to standardize your theory and become fully acquainted with the doings of this vast organization.

Weddings

Miss Eleanor Dolores Jeffries, Interline Settlement, to Edwin T. Meigel, on October 17.

PIER 22, NEW YORK CELEBRITIES

Left: Isabel A., daughter of Captain W. England, tug "Potter," photograph taken in the grounds of Captain England's home, Orange Mountains, N. Y. Right: Miss Hariwig and her fiancé, W. H. Wolfe. The picture seems to indicate that they have left all darkness behind them and are facing a future full of light

Miss Dolores Magdalen Connolly, Interline Settlement Bureau, to Francis Henry Wieman on October 27, by the Rev. Francis Ryan, in St. Mary's Star of the Sea Church, at 9.00 a. m. Fifty young ladies from the school composed the choir. Many folks from the office attended the service, the church being tastefully decorated. The happy couple will reside on Reistertown Road.

Miss Junita Virginia Bundick, Revision Department, to Dr. Robert I. Givens, on October 27, by Rev. C. E. Wise, at North Avenue M. E. Church. Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Mabel Cross, a former employe of this office. Miss Florence Marshall, Agent's Settlement Bureau, played the Wedding March. They will reside in Pocomoke City, Md.

Miss Sarah Gertrude Jackson, Interline Settlement Bureau, to James William Hartley, Jr., Interline Settlement Bureau, on October 31 at 2.30 p. m. by the Rev. Barron, in St. Martin's Church. They journeyed through the South on their honeymoon.

Miss Meta Wahaus, Revision Department, to Harry Lubber, on June 27, at Alexandria, Va.

Congratulations to all the happy couples!

We sympathize with Miss Hilda Erk on the loss of her mother and with Mrs. Bullinger (Miss Marie J. Strasburg) on the loss of her infant child.

Office of Auditor Passenger Receipts

Correspondent, CHARLES C. WARWICK

Once more the Christmas Season comes to us with all its joy and good fellowship, so it is with pleasure and kindly interest that I greet you again.

Peace on Earth, Good Will to All Men.

Grateful for the spirit of friendly and kindly feeling that exists in our office, I want to thank you all for the cooperation and effort given in the performance of your work, and for meeting the many difficult problems of the year which is being brought to a successful close.

I wish to each one of you a very Merry Christmas, and a joyous holiday season, and that the New Year 1924 will be a most successful one in our office and bring happiness and health to all of you.

C. H. POUMAIRAT
Auditor Passenger Receipts

Your attention is directed to an article appearing in another part of this issue, covering the Conference of Correspondents of the MAGAZINE. I wish you all could have attended and enjoyed, with me, among other features of the session, the addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, outlining the policy of the Company towards its employes and its mission to the public.

Helen Kirkwood resigned her position on November 15, to be married. She was one of our most popular clerks. Every ounce of Helen represents just as much good nature, and she can boast of quite a few ounces. Our most sincere good wishes follow her.

Our friend Milton Ulrich is through with women for life. One evening, not long ago, he was seen gracing a street corner in East Baltimore with his presence, dressed in his "Sunday go to meetings," with a box of candy under his arm and an expression of contentment overspreading his countenance. Presently, however, he displayed unmistakable signs of uneasiness, gazing up and down the street and frequently consulting his

PEEPING IN AT PIER 22, NEW YORK

Here's our friend "Walt" at it again. The Hallow'een party was a success. Everyone was there and all enjoyed themselves. Cake was furnished for the cake eaters and ice cream for the ladies. Almost every one joined in the dance and the affair would not be complete unless our cartoonist had been there to get the story in pictures watch. Finally, he wended his way homeward, stifling his disappointment with candy. Cheer up, Milton; there are lots of good fish in the sea.

Our heartfelt sympathy is extended to Miss Blanche Broderick, whose brother died recently, and James McLaughlin, whose father passed away on November 6.

The dance of the Welfare Association, held at Walbrook Hall, November 13, was a most pleasant and successful event, thanks to the Committee, Carl Grund and Willie Thomas.

These affairs remind us of a homecoming celebration. We meet the girls who have deserted our fold to be married, not forgetting the boys whose hearts are still with us, even though their fields of endeavor lie elsewhere.

The music was all that could have been desired, and was especially pleasing, considering that our own Willie Thomas and Nelson Whitecomb performed on the traps and banjo respectively. Later in the evening, augmented by Watts Oldson and Dick Purdy, performing on tin horns, they sounded mighty good.

Then there was confetti; the friendly kind that resembles spaghetti and binds us together so closely.

If you are not attending these affairs, you had better get in line. You don't know what you are missing.

Pier 22, New York

Correspondent, JOHN NEWMAN

With pleasure and satisfaction I again extend the Season's Greetings to the officers and employes of the New York Terminal properties.

As this is the most joyous of seasons let us forget the wrongs, real or fancied, suffered during the past year and may the coming year find each of us a little more considerate of the welfare of those around us.

Wishing you all A Merry Christmas and A Happy and Prosperous New Year.

W. B. BIGGS

Terminal Agent

Our "junior" clerk, Johnny Keany, has just graduated from his first year term of service and has been promised the allotted increase in wages, conditionally, with the understanding that as a sophomore he had to discard his knee-breeches (at home) and adopt "long pants." "No increase in trousers, no increase in pay!" Johnny, who has a long head (to match his feet) only grins and says (talsetto); "What ye trying? To kid me?"—Well, we will see!

(Please mention our Magazine when writing advertisers.)

Carried Nine Years

—2,500 miles a week

That is the record of a Naugahyde Bag recently returned for our inspection.

And it's not a "broken down" bag—there is still solid service in it! Read the following extracts from the letter written by the man who carried it:

"As a Poultry Car Messenger, I have carried this Naugahyde Bag since 1913 for a distance of 1,050,000 miles or about 2,500 miles a week; traveling weekly from New York to Kansas City by way of Chicago and St. Louis.

"It was given some very rough handling during that time but its durability and the service it has given me is remarkable. It was tossed about in trains, freight cars; thrown on station platforms; and mauled about generally.

"In it, besides a week's change of clothing, I have always carried such articles as canned food and hardware."

A bag that can stand up under such hard service is just the thing for the railroad man. Nothing will compare with it in appearance, wear and price. Ask your dealer about Naugahyde Bags. If he can't supply you at once, write direct to us. Made in three sizes—16-inch, 18-inch, and 20-inch.

United States Rubber Company

1790 Broadway, New York City

Trade Mark

NAUGAHYDE BAGS

The following may not be of general interest to the MAGAZINE readers, but the figures will be of particular interest to "curselves" here in New York. Six months ago I reported in these notes that Pier 22 had broken all previous records by handling 25,000 tons freight during the month of March, current year, and added that Freight Agent J. Bayer boasted that he could handle and would set the new mark at 30,000 tons. He is working towards the new mark and nearing it. Our tonnage figures for October show 28,584 gross tons handled, two and a quarter million pounds per working day—and this in the face of the greatest obstacle imposed by the work of tearing up and regrading the West street frontage, which necessitated the removal of the annex-platform, upon which our eastbound perishable was unloaded from in front of the pier, and caused great hindrance to trucking.

Reminding Mr. Bayer of his half-boast, half-promise and remarking on its near fulfillment, he answered: "Credit belongs to the boys who kept on their toes and by hard work and willing service 'put it over.'" That is characteristic of "Joe" Bayer. I know that he kept on his toes himself quite considerably!

Staten Island Lines

Correspondent, G. J. GOOLIC

We wish to extend to each and every employe of the Staten Island Lines, who has faithfully cooperated during the past year, and put forth his best efforts to make our work a success, our Heartiest Greetings.

We hope that each and every one will feel the real Christmas spirit and use it to bring to him the peace of mind that one feels, when a year is well spent in doing his or her very best.

With this Christmas spirit, let us hope that a close companionship can be formed between us that will engender a spirit that can be carried into the next year, and make our work together an unprecedented success.

J. L. STESSEROTT

The Fourth Annual Ball of the Employes' Mutual Benefit Association was held recently at the Stapleton Club Rooms, Stapleton. The hall was crowded and a good time was enjoyed by all who were present. Music was furnished by Professor N. P. Vice.

During the dances, song hits were rendered by Dan Carney and R. Monroe, who had to respond to many encores.

The following were in charge: B. F. Kelly, president; E. E. McKinley, vice-president; J. B. Sharp, treasurer; G. J. Goolic, recording secretary; John V. Costello, corresponding secretary; J. F. McGowan, W. M. Slattery, J. J. LeStrange, executive committee.

Miss Mabel Cole, C. T. time clerk, attended the Girls' Friendly Society Conference which was held in Baltimore in November.

Much credit is due Miss Cole for the business which she gave to us, as she was the one who got 42 first class passengers to travel Baltimore and Ohio, instead of a competing line. After the Conference, a good number of the members journeyed to Washington, D. C. to take in the sights, after which they all returned to New York over the Best and Only.

The "Marker Men" will bid in P. M. jobs now as the steam will all be hooked up for them. HOO RAY!!

CHRISTMAS GREETING—1923

WITH the approach of another holiday season, the exchange of expressions of good will, usual at this time, carry the fulfillment, in large part, of the promises which the future held out a year ago. The fine spirit which has been displayed during the year about to close demonstrated that our confidence in the members of the Baltimore and Ohio Family was not misplaced, and the result of this year's operations attests this more eloquently than words of mine can express.

I look forward to the coming year with renewed confidence, and trust that it will bring to you and yours, much happiness and prosperity.

General Manager, Eastern Lines

Warning! Car No. 82—Contagious

Contagious of what? Listen, trainmen. "Sam" Trichter worked in it and he's married: Trainman "Morris" Grice worked in it and he's married. We're looking out for the next assigned victim.

How's the book coming, W. E. P.?

Notice the expression on Henry Hegdol's face. Why not? He is now a select member of the Royal Blues Orchestra. Say! Henry is some Drummer at that.

Mysteries are becoming so common these days that even the New York Police force has its troubles. A certain rotund gentleman, with honest demeanor and smiling face, thought he was in Mrs. Murphy's boarding house, where they put overalls in the chowder, but after he partook of a certain dish of chowder he knew it was not overalls but die (dye) and he nearly dyed (died).

Walter Pettigrew, our genial assistant engineer, is in love with fraternalism. Notice the Greek emblem on his watch fob. Ask him what it means: we give up.

Dan Carney is at it again: hates publicity, but somehow we cannot leave him out. Our worthy coach is progressing wonderfully with his talent for the minstrel show.

Garlic may taste good to some people, but will the members of our train crews kindly eat it when going to bed and not in the mornings when going on the job! Please! It's terrible, second hand.

Bowe says: "Eat no red meat, it makes you like an animal. Eat chicken, that's white meat, that's what I eat. Vegetables are all right, eat lots of them." No doubt Bowe lived on the farm before he railroaded and still carries his boyhood lessons with him. Good dope—at that!

Chance Remarks

Owen Boylan—Want to buy lots today?
Ryan—How about an engineer?
Pettigrew—What, again. Good Grief!
Holy Smokes! Great Scott!
Leonhardt—As I was saying.
Mayers—Mr. Gibbs, I was called outside a minute.

Red Dolan—Have a few choice houses for sale.

McVeigh—Have a good car for sale, best on the market.

Yard Clerk Larkin—How yer get that way?
Joseph Langford—Anything new?

Ticket Collector Pecoraro—Thatsa nice goil. Say she was nice.

Bill Ivers—Hurry up, get that per diem out.
Mr. Bucks—Yest, the checks will go out today.

Joe Fanella—Good morning, any supplies to give away.

Jimmy Ryan—Were any prepares made to Bethel Ave. within the last five years.

Eastern Lines

Office of General Manager

Correspondent, H. E. WEIFENBACH

Christmas Greetings are certainly in order, and are heartily extended to all, but just one thing will seem even a little more worthy of mention at this time to each correspondent of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE, and that is the thoughtfulness of our Management in providing such a wonderful two-day period as was enjoyed by the correspondents of the MAGAZINE on October 26 and 27 in Baltimore. While our conference afforded an abundance of pleasure, including a talk by President Willard, and also addresses by Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Mr. Wood, chief of welfare department, there was nevertheless a definite and practical business reason for our getting together. It was to learn better the purpose of the MAGAZINE, and the part that the correspondent, as representative of all other employes, takes in fulfilling this purpose, which, briefly stated, is to bring about a better understanding between Management and employes, and among the employes themselves. The principal subject of President Willard's address, as well as of those of all the other officers, was the spirit of cooperation and friendliness which exists on the Baltimore and Ohio today. This spirit may well be called

On Being Timely—

WITH Christmas in the offing, thoughts run to gift ideas. You probably know many a "Jim" or "John" among the railroad men. Or maybe you belong to that great fraternity yourself! And who doesn't know how necessary it is that a railroad man's watch be always up-to-the-minute? Surprise your buddy, or treat yourself, to one of our dependable time-pieces. Let it be a famous Waltham, Elgin, Illinois or Hamilton, from S. and N. Katz, and our Liberal Credit Plan makes the paying for it easy.

Green Gold
ELGIN "DICTATOR" WATCH
$27.50

Pay on the Katz Liberal Credit Plan
Another 25-year guaranteed case watch with the famed Elgin "Dictator" movement. The dial is of green gold to match the distinctively designed case. Monograms Engraved Free.

HAMILTON No. 992
21 Jewels, 20-year case
$58.50

Pay on the Katz Liberal Credit Plan
Who hasn't heard of the famous "Hamilton?" Railroad men have been depending on it for the right time for years and years.

S. and N. Katz

"Official Railroad Watch Inspectors"

Jewelers and Silversmiths—105-107 N. Charles Street

Roland Ave. and 36th St. Eastern Ave. and Third St. Light and Cross Sts.

Baltimore, Md.

Send for our illustrated watch booklet "A Matter of Time"

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

AT RIVERSIDE SHOPS

Left: The new Elwell-Parker truck used at Riverside for removing air pumps and other heavy material from engines. Before its acquisition several men were required to handle such material. Center: Bennett Horner, known locally as "Bent Leg" or "Jockey," erstwhile star catcher of Riverside Baseball team, now operator of the Elwell-Parker truck. Right: Two Riverside employes with long service records. Machinist W. P. Shrewbridge and Benjamin Smoot, who has charge of scrap dock at Riverside the "Christmas Spirit," for is it not one of His commandments whose birth we commemorate on Christmas Day, to "Love thy neighbor as thyself?" Therefore, let us all renew once again, our resolutions to show more of this spirit in our business, and in our lives.

Office Gossip

We used to wonder why it was the "Major" looked so happy when a trip to Grafton was proposed. Now we know.

It is strange how we become attached to various places, and while the "Major" likes Grafton, it is the City of Clarksburg that appeals to Mrs. Craig. Ask the "Sheik" from across the hall—he knows why.

On October 20 our bowling tournament was continued with the following results:

NAME	TOTAL	AVERAGE
Nova Hamilton.....	269	89.6
J. W. Hamilton.....	282	94.0
Total.....	551
C. W. Staines.....	250	83.3
George Seeds.....	297	99.0
Total.....	557

May your Christmas Holiday, and the days and years following it, be filled with joy.

Baltimore Terminal Division

Correspondent, H. R. LINCOLN

Another record was "busted" in handling cars in Baltimore Terminal during the month of October by about 500 cars. 86,529 is the record now, perhaps it will be broken again shortly.

Old Man Stork got tired again when he paused in his flight and dropped a new young lady at the home of Crossing Watchman Foreman W. L. Clary.

Miss "Florrie" Goodman at last has decided that "When in Rome, do as the Romans do," and was observed by the office observer with a young man. They all flop sooner or later.

Our esteemed friend "Jack" Tarr of the Baltimore Division arrived late one morning recently with a black sock and a brown one. His alibi was that he dressed in the dark in a hurry. The "bookies" are offering four to one that he had no others.

We extend our sympathy to Upholsterer J. W. Dudley on the loss of his wife, who died recently.

The editor of the MAGAZINE regrets the loss of H. R. Lincoln as correspondent for the Baltimore Terminal Division. "Abe" has become division claim agent at Gratton, W. Va., and his friends are glad to see him get the promotion and wish him success.

Camden Station

Correspondent, W. H. BULL

Camden has a super-man in the person of Roland A. Garrett. On October 13, Mr. Garrett was getting ready to move into his new home on Calloway Ave., West Forest Park, when Mrs. Garrett, much to Mr.

Media M., daughter of Motor Conductor J. F. Black and granddaughter of Conductor J. D. Black. Little Media is two and one-half years old Garrett's surprise presented him with two fine boys weighing seven and six and one-half pounds. The mother and children are doing well and we extend our congratulations! The twins are named Don LeRoy and Gene Howard. Mr. and Mrs. Garrett have one other child, a boy six years old.

Dan Cupid is again busy and is aiming his darts well. We notice Miss Grace Marks and Miss Myrtle Brandau are wearing engagement rings. The names of the gentlemen have not yet been made public; however, we extend heartiest congratulations.

Your Correspondent desires to say that the addresses of Mr. Willard, Mr. Galloway and Mr. Scheer at the Conference of Correspondents on October 26 and 27 were very much enjoyed. The friendly feeling existing between Management and employes was emphasized and shows the true Christmas Spirit.

It is with pleasure that we extend the season's greetings to the employes of Camden Station. We are sure each one of you in the passing year helped to the best of your ability in handling the large volume of business and we thank you for your loyal support and feel confident we can expect the same cooperation for the coming year.

To all A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year!

W. E. NEILSON

Freight Agent

P. J. TRUESCHLER

Assistant Freight Agent

To all Correspondents the writer wishes A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year.

Mt. Clare Yard

Correspondent, J. F. TEARNEY

Daniel Fealey, Born June 11, 1867. Died October 19, 1923

Mr. Fealey came to this country, landing in New York about the year 1896, and on March 1, 1898, entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as a laborer, Car Department, Mt. Clare. In 1912, when the Mt. Clare Shop Tracks and Relief Train were taken over by the Baltimore Terminal Division, Mr. Fealey was serving as cook on the Relief Train, holding a reputation second to none. His skill was known from the humblest laborer to the highest official: they visited the "Riggers" dining car at the scene of many a wreck and tie-up. Always with a cheery word, "Dan," as he was known among many in Transportation, Car and Motive Power Departments, never turned a man away hungry. He still retained that rich brogue that proclaimed him a son of the "Ould Sod."

Mr. Fealey succumbed, after an operation at the University Hospital. He is survived by his widow and one daughter to whom we extend deepest sympathies.

On November 6, Fireman C. I. Duvall arrived home to be greeted with a surprise in the form of a bouncing baby boy. Congratulations, "Puggy," but where are the cigars?

THE BIG FOUR AT CURTIS BAY

Work Checkers W. F. Frei, Jr., J. Knight, E. Spittle and A. L. Huchaner

"ANDY GUMP" AND OTHER INTERESTING FOLKS AT LOCUST POINT

Left: Robert W. Moran, Assistant Magazine Correspondent; Right: Miss Rubina Poe, who contributes very materially toward making Locust Point a fine place to work

Locust Point

Correspondent, J. ROSS GOULD
Assistant Correspondent, R. W. MORAN

In extending Christmas and New Year Greetings to the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE, and through it to every officer and employee of the Company, my wish is that New Year 1924 may stand out in bold relief as a period of great prosperity to our Company and ourselves with a continuance of that marked spirit of cooperation and good will that has imbued the entire personnel of our great railroad.

"Sincerely,

J. WHITE, Agent

A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year to all Baltimore and Ohio Folks!

I would drink to you all, Rip Van Winkle's toast, made immortal by the great Joseph Jefferson:

"Here's to you and all your family—
May you all live long and prosper."

J. ROSS GOULD

Chief Clerk W. S. Wilson has returned from a visit to his parents, near St. Louis, Mo. Fully armed, with improved health, eager for the fray—which we hope will consist of increased tonnage from the west.

One of our photographs is Miss Rubina Poe, who has been with us filling a temporary vacancy in the Agent's Office, because of the illness of Miss Martha Fox. We regret that Miss Poe has left us. Her bright and sunny disposition many times helped to dispel the clouds. We are, however, compensated somewhat by the knowledge that another local office of the Baltimore and Ohio family has secured her services. We wish her success.

Boost, Don't Knock

When trouble besets you
And work seems to go wrong,
Boost, don't knock.

While clouds seem to gather
Just keep pushing along,
Boost, don't knock.

For you will find whilst repining
The clouds' silver lining
Shows the sun will be shining,
Boost, don't knock.

Our cartoon shows "Andy" Miles, alias "Andy Gump," in one of his characteristic poses. His lack of chin is made up for by his ability to work.

We take pleasure in introducing Robert W. Moran, clerk, Agent's Office, Locust Point. This is the gentleman of whom I wrote in the October MAGAZINE as a victim of Cupid. He has assisted me wonderfully by furnishing cartoons and news items. For fear that some other magazine may profit by his talents I have taken the liberty of appointing him assistant correspondent.

It was my pleasure and privilege to be in conference October 26 and 27 with the correspondents of our MAGAZINE, to meet the large number of sociable co-workers and to listen to the addresses of President Willard and Vice-President Galloway.

Let us all take advantage of the thoughts expressed by these two worthy men and adopt as our motto, "COURTESY AND COOPERATION," courtesy to our fellow employees and the public, cooperation among ourselves, so that the great Baltimore and Ohio Railroad may retain its leadership among railroads. "By working with the Baltimore and Ohio and not for it," we feel that we are partners in its troubles and its triumphs.

The grateful thanks of all are tendered to the Company for the generous manner in which they entertained us. To Messrs. Scheer, Wood, Stacy and Leilech, we are indebted for their interesting talks. Also to Hobart Smock and the Baltimore and Ohio Glee Club, in assisting to round out "One perfect day" which we will always hold in grateful remembrance.

We welcome back to our fold, with congratulations upon her recovery, Miss Martha Fox, who has been absent because of illness.

We are glad to see your smiling face again and admire greatly your bobbed hair.

G. Cann, formerly clerk, Office of Agent, has been transferred to the Agent's Office at Camden Station. Our best wishes are extended.

Talk about your long motor trips and the burning of 90 gallons of "GAS" without moving his car out of the garage. It's a long story. Ask Burke!

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Mount Clare

Correspondent, WILLIAM H. ZELL

The writer had the pleasure of attending the Conference of Magazine Correspondents held last month, when addresses were made by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and others.

Mr. Willard in his speech, said he wanted every employee to feel that he or she was one of our family of 80,000. That we should not feel that we are working for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, but, that we are

Where the Trained Man Wins

"Arrangements have been made with the International Correspondence Schools to conduct their system of instruction among the employees of the Canadian Government Railways, as they have been doing for years among the employees of other railroads throughout the Dominion with great success. Years of observation have convinced the management that the work of the Schools is beneficial to railway employees and the service generally."

—CANADIAN GOVERNMENT RAILWAYS.
Circular No. 11.

Whether you are in the engineering, operating, maintenance or clerical departments, your advancement will depend largely on the thoroughness of your training. And whether you are going to be a trained man or not—whether you are going to advance or stand still—is largely a matter for you to decide.

If you really want a better job and are willing to devote a little of your spare time to getting ready, the International Correspondence Schools can help you. More than two hundred and fifty of the railroad systems of the United States and Canada have indorsed the I. C. S. method of instruction and recommended it to their employees.

You're ambitious. You want to get ahead. Then don't turn this page until you have clipped the coupon, marked the line of work you want to follow and mailed it to the I. C. S. for full particulars.

Marking the coupon is simply the act of investigation—in justice to yourself you can't afford to do less—and it doesn't obligate you in the least. Mark the Coupon NOW.

TEAR OUT HERE INTERNATIONAL CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOLS BOX 8478-C SCRANTON, PA.

Explain, without obligating me, how I can qualify for the position, or in the subject, before which I mark X.

- |   |  |
|---|--|
| <input type="checkbox"/> LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> Pharmacy                  |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Locomotive Fireman       | <input type="checkbox"/> TRAFFICMANAGER            |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Engineer       | <input type="checkbox"/> BOOKKEEPER                |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Traveling Fireman        | <input type="checkbox"/> Cost Accountant           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Inspector      | <input type="checkbox"/> BUSINESS MANAGEMENT       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Air Brake Repairman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Private Secretary         |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Round House Foreman      | <input type="checkbox"/> Business Correspondent    |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Trainmen and Carmen      | <input type="checkbox"/> Stenographer and Typist   |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Conductor        | <input type="checkbox"/> Good English              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> MECHANICAL ENGINEER      | <input type="checkbox"/> SALESMANSHIP              |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Mechanical Draftsman     | <input type="checkbox"/> ADVERTISING               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Machine Shop Practice    | <input type="checkbox"/> Railway Mail Clerk        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Toolmaker                | <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL SERVICE             |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Boiler Maker or Designer | <input type="checkbox"/> ELECTRICAL ENGINEER       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Gas Engine Operating     | <input type="checkbox"/> Electrician               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CIVIL ENGINEER           | <input type="checkbox"/> Electric Wiring           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Surveying and Mapping    | <input type="checkbox"/> Elec. Lighting & Railways |
| <input type="checkbox"/> R. R. Constructing       | <input type="checkbox"/> Telegraph Engineer        |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Bridge Engineer          | <input type="checkbox"/> Telephone Work            |
| <input type="checkbox"/> ARCHITECT                | <input type="checkbox"/> Mining Engineer           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Architectural Draftsman  | <input type="checkbox"/> Stationary Engineer       |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Blue Print Reading       | <input type="checkbox"/> Airplane Engineer         |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Contractor and Builder   | <input type="checkbox"/> AUTOMOBILES               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Structural Engineer      | <input type="checkbox"/> AGRICULTURE               |
| <input type="checkbox"/> Concrete Builder         | <input type="checkbox"/> Poultry Raising           |
| <input type="checkbox"/> CHEMIST                  | <input type="checkbox"/> RADIO                     |

Name _____
Present _____ Employed _____ n-26-22
Occupation _____ Ry _____
Street _____
and No. _____
City _____ State _____
Country _____

Canadians may send this coupon to International Correspondence Schools Canadian, Ltd., Montreal, Canada

The late Walter Easton, Boiler Maker,
Mt. Clare

working with it. One's success in life is the pleasure we derive in doing things of our own free-will; therefore, we should feel the same way while working for the Baltimore and Ohio, as they have always tried to treat their employes fairly in every respect, and we, in turn, should do likewise. He also talked regarding efficiency, stating that efficiency did not mean to work harder and longer, but to do the same amount of work or more in a shorter time, if done in an efficient manner. Here at Mount Clare we have an Efficiency Bureau, which was started to bring about this result.

Mr. Galloway in his speech, said he wished the Correspondents to convey to the employes the feeling that the Company is desirous of bringing the Management and employes closer together. There is every reason to believe, in a family of 80,000 that differences will occur at times. Sometimes in our own families of three or four, differences occur. The Baltimore and Ohio Management has always tried to straighten out these differences to the satisfaction of all concerned. Mr. Galloway further said that no matter how intelligent the officials of a railroad or organization are, unless it has the support of every individual connected with it, it will not function properly or be successful. That is, we must all work together, and we can only make an organization a success by every one putting forth his best efforts.

Mr. Scheer gave a brief history of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, saying that every employe of the Company should feel proud to be connected with such an organization as the Baltimore and Ohio, especially in view of the fact that it has been a pioneer in the railroad field.

General Boiler Foreman A. F. Stiglmeier, has resigned to take a position with the New York Central Railroad at West Albany. He entered the service of the Company in April, 1919, and was popular among his men as well as with the supervising forces. He has their best wishes for future success. He was presented with a handsome gold watch and chain by the men directly under his supervision.

It is with sincere regret that we report the death of Walter Easton, boiler maker, who was connected with the Baltimore and Ohio for twenty-three years. Mr. Easton entered the service in 1901, and remained with the Company until his death. He was forty-five years of age and was one of the most efficient boiler makers in the shop. He had the respect and friendship of his fellow workmen. Mr. Easton was a widower, and leaves one small daughter.

Chief Clerk C. W. Serp was tendered a surprise party on his ..... birthday by the office force. T. R. Stewart acted as speechmaker and wished Mr. Serp many more birthdays, especially if there were "eats" forthcoming.

Accounting Department, Mt. Clare

We didn't know that Mr. Childs was fond of cows, but the accompanying snapshot seems to indicate that such is the case. Mrs. Childs also appears in the picture.

Mr. Whelan's hands are getting white and smooth. We don't know whether washing dishes does it, but Mr. and Mrs. Whelan have gone to housekeeping and we understand the Mrs. is breaking hubby in right!

Superintendent of Shops Office

Rapid strides are being made in the erection of our new office building. We thought perhaps Santa Claus would be good to us and present it to us by Christmas—but, from the looks of things, think we are going to be disappointed.

We regret to learn of the death of Miss Frances Graf, daughter of Rupert Graf, carman, Freight Track. This is the fourth

Louis Knepper, Pensioned
Mt. Clareite

member of Mr. Graf's family to pass away in the last year or so. We all extend our heartfelt sympathy to Rupert.

We take pleasure in announcing that our well known assistant foreman, B. W. Bruffey, has accepted a position as shop inspector, Efficiency Bureau. We wish him the best of luck.

On November 5, Moose Hall, was full of fun and mirth, when the Veterans held their monthly meeting. After all business was transacted, they adjourned to the Entertainment Hall, where they were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. J. Jenkins, and their nine children, whose ages range from 5 to 14 years. Mr. Jenkins and his family gave one of the most interesting musical entertainments that has been given for the Veterans for some time, and Mr. Pascal, chairman, Veterans' Association, should be complimented on securing the services of Mr. Jenkins and family. They played some of the old time melodies, and were applauded after each number. Mr. Jenkins is an employe of the Baltimore and Ohio at the Central Building.

T. R. Stewart, superintendent of shops, takes this opportunity of extending to all the employes under his supervision at Mount Clare a very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

MOUNT CLARE—THE CHAMPIONS—SEASON 1923—BALTIMORE AND OHIO WELFARE LEAGUE

Standing, left to right: Treasurer C. W. Serp, Michaelis, Shipley, Hanna, Leatherbury, MacMillen, Moxley, Williams, Keller and President J. E. Tatum. Seated: Anderson, Eisenocker, McCleary, Manager Southcomb, Flanagan, Smith, Boland and Eyerly. In front: Mascot Scharnagle

MOUNT CLARE SHOPS FOLK

Left: Mrs. Guy Childs. Center: Guy Childs. Right: Charles W. Culver

Boys, here's a picture of "Looley," who used to work around the shop. His real name, of course, is Louis Knepper, retired machinist. He was born in Baltimore on March 18, 1857. His father was Henry Knepper, carpenter and builder in Baltimore.

When he was but four years old Mr. Knepper lost his mother, a sister and three brothers, of smallpox and typhoid. His father was both mother and father to the boy for two years, after which he re-married and the family continued to live in Baltimore.

After a grammar school education, Mr. Knepper learned the carpenter's trade from his father, but not being content with this work, decided to become a machinist. He entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as machinist, No. 2 Machine Shop, in 1879. Fourteen years later he was furloughed and went to work with the Pennsylvania Railroad as machinist. After working at Mt. Vernon Shops for 15 years, Mr. Knepper came back to the Baltimore and Ohio at Mt. Clare. He worked here until the time of his retirement in October, 1922.

Mr. and Mrs. Knepper now make their home on Chase Street. They have five children, all of whom are married except one.

Baltimore Division

Correspondent, W. H. TARR

To Employees of The Baltimore Division:

I am glad of this opportunity to extend to my fellow workers and employees on the Baltimore Division my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

The cooperative spirit and assistance which you have given to the division organization during the past year is highly appreciated.

F. G. HOSKINS
Superintendent

The following letter will be of special interest to all the employees of our division:

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce
Washington, October 24, 1923

Mr. Daniel Willard, President
Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Co.
Baltimore, Md.

My Dear Mr. Willard:

Undoubtedly commendation of your road and its employees occurs so frequently as to become a matter of routine. However, I should particularly like to commend Mr. Richard Newman, passenger agent, Chicago; Train Conductor E. B. Huffman, Trainman L. Gray, Washington Station Master Harry Marks, Pullman Conductor R. P. McNicholas, and E. Craig, Pullman porter of Car 63.

On September 15, I brought my mother from Chicago on The Capitol Limited, and as she is an invalid, she had to be carried on and off of the train on a stretcher. The courtesy and interest of the employees of your road enabled her to make the journey entirely free from any unnecessary discomfort and has made me appreciate the fine spirit of service expressed by the Baltimore and Ohio organization.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) IRVING S. PAULL
Chief Domestic Commerce Division

The home of Brakeman W. L. Henry, Harrisonburg, Va., purchased through the Relief Department

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Welcome to New York and the Alamãc

71 ST STREET AND BROADWAY

A masterpiece of modern hotel creation. Most convenient, yet quiet. A revelation in hospitality and service, offering many innovations including Servidors, taxis, etc.

Unique Congo Room—Medieval Grille and Blue Room Restaurants.

New York's latest hotel achievement

LATZ OWNERSHIP—MANAGEMENT

In the Center of Everything!
SYLVANIA
Philadelphia's
Newest
Hotel

PATENTS

BOOKLET FREE. HIGHEST REFERENCES.
PROMPTNESS ASSURED. BEST RESULTS.
Send drawing or model for examination
and report as to patentability.

WATSON E. COLEMAN
PATENT LAWYER

624 F Street, N. W.

Washington, D. C.

SENSATIONAL SALE

GUARANTEED TYPEWRITERS
Limited quantity fully guaranteed standard make typewriters. Five Days Free Trial. Lowest prices ever offered. Free monthly payments. Send today for FREE booklet of Valuable Typewriter Information and Special Sale Bulletin.

SMITH TYPEWRITER SALES CO.
294-360 E. Grand Ave. Chicago, Ill.

KAY &amp; TODD CO.

Manufacturers of

TAPESTRY

ELK MILLS

MARYLAND

accomplished only by a helpfulness which thorough and loyal co-operation brings. It indicates that every man has done his duty not so much because of an obligation, as what seems to me to have been a desire to do it. All are congratulated.

The pleasure and satisfaction which an accomplishment of this kind must give every man, ought to, it seems to me, and I hope will, spur us on to better things during the year to come.

Very sincerely yours,

J. D. GALLARY

Terminal Train Master

Anyone who listened to the addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, could not fail to be thoroughly impressed with the real sincerity and friendliness on the part of these executives towards not only the correspondents but towards all the employees all over the System. The very fact that a Correspondents' Conference was held, through the courtesy of the Management, shows that vital interest which the Management takes in the work of their employees. As a correspondent, I feel that I can do no greater work than to interpret, if possible, through the MAGAZINE, that wonderful spirit of friendliness on the part of the Management which exists towards every employe of our great railroad, and urge in return the co-operation on the part of all to make OUR Railroad the greatest in the world, and show by our actions that we are cooperating not because we have to but because we want to.

Raymond B. Phillips, freight engineer is being congratulated on the birth of a new daughter. This no doubt accounts for his hearty laugh which can't be imitated. You have to hear it and then you have to laugh with him.

OUR CORRESPONDENT AT EAST SIDE, PA., SENDS US:

Left: Thomas, nine year old son of Wreck Inspector J. E. Waters. Right: Engine 5204 at East Side. Above: "Smitty's Dog." Below: Mrs. Charles Butler, Charles Butler, Janitor, East Side Shop Yard; Mrs. Hiram Taylor. Taken at Norwood, Ohio, while Mr. and Mrs. Butler were visiting Mrs. Taylor

It is worthy of mention that no accidents have occurred in the Car Department at East Side in the four months ending October 31.

Conductor Buchanan Hiatt has recently made application to go on the pension list. Mr. Hiatt was just in the service one year and 28 days when he was promoted to conductor. His first employment was for a contractor when he was 18 years of age. His first run was from Baltimore to Martinsburg. His last run before being taken sick was from Brunswick to Philadelphia. Mr. Hiatt has been spending some time at Martinsburg recuperating.

J. A. Lewis, one of our most enterprising men and who has been agent at Garrett Park for several years, has been promoted to agent at Lexington, Va.

We regret to record the accidental death of Iverson Abbott Carter, chairman, Valuation Department, who at the time of the accident was working out of the Division Engineer's Office. Mr. Carter was a vocational student of the United States Government. He was first assigned during 1919 on the Wheeling Division and later to territory embracing the Baltimore Division. He was struck by Train No. 45 at Lansdowne, Md., October 31. The funeral was under the auspices of Military Escort and Masonic Rites. He was buried in the National Cemetery in Baltimore. Floral decorations were contributed by his fellow employes in memory of him and expressing their sympathy. Mr. Carter is survived by his parents, widow and child.

East Side, Philadelphia, Pa.

Correspondent, C. H. MINNICH

Philadelphia, Pa.

November 12, 1923

Mr. Charles H. Minnich
Magazine Correspondent
East Side, Philadelphia

Dear Sir:

I extend to the employes at East Side, Philadelphia, through you as correspondent for the MAGAZINE, the season's greetings and best wishes for the coming year.

The business, both through and local, handled through the Philadelphia Terminal this fall, has been the greatest in our history. It has moved with greater dispatch than ever before. This could be

Fireman O. O. Forsythe, Pier 40, Philadelphia

PIER 22, PHILADELPHIA, INTRODUCES:

Above: left to right; Florence, daughter of Assistant Accountant Mahoney. "Billie" son of Rate Clerk McDevitt. The other two boys and the first three pictures on the bottom row are the "Happy Bradley Family." Last photo, right, bottom row, is our famous golf player, George Rambo, Pier 12

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Stop That Leak!

Chief Clerk Connors has re-organized his correspondence files so that now, instead of having to go through over 200 files to find a given subject, he has condensed them into 7 separate files which serve the same purpose. This has not only simplified matters but has resulted in a great saving of time, which is really money saved. Also instead of sending innumerable notes to the various foremen in the shops, he has instituted a book which is kept in Round House office which contains one copy each of all instructions to foremen. They look in it each day and sign up on whichever page concerns them. This saves a great number of sheets of stationery, as formerly they might type from two to twelve copies of instructions on same subject. Now only one sheet of paper is required. This also saves stenographer time.

East Side yard crews working in the Atlantic Refining Company's Yard, are now at East Side. On behalf of Messrs. Neilsen and Needham, who run this machine, I wish to thank the Management and Mr. Duffey in particular for their kind and successful efforts in securing for us this efficient and most needful part of our office equipment. The result has been a 100% improvement in the Daily Passing Reports both as regards clearness and also time saved in reproducing the original copies.

I wish to express my most sincere thanks and appreciation to the Management for that wonderful Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents held in Baltimore, October 26 and 27, which I enjoyed more than words can tell.

Pier 40, Philadelphia, Pa.

The accompanying photograph is of Fireman C. C. Forsythe, Pier 40, Philadelphia. His grandmother, Mrs. Mary Hipsley, was born in Baltimore County in 1806. When the Baltimore and Ohio was first

SOME OF PHILADELPHIA'S BEAUTIFUL CHILDREN

Left: Marian. Center: Norman. Right: Jack, age 22 months, weight 34 pounds, height 34 inches. These interesting children are the prides of the home of Engineer Raymond Phillips being furnished with the new style Electric Hand Lantern containing powerful storage battery. "Many are called, but few are chosen." It looks as though the refinery crews were among the "chosen."

Five-hundred feet of new fire hose was installed at the fireplug at the main track bridge at East Side recently.

One of our photographs this month is of Charles Butler, janitor, East Side Car Department, with his wife and cousin, Mrs. Hiram Taylor, Norwood, Cincinnati. The photograph was taken while Mr. and Mrs. Butler were visiting Mrs. Taylor at Norwood.

What's the use of going to Laurel to see the races, when you can see "Al" Barnes and "Bill" Markey, East Side engineers, riding round the Round House every day on their favorite horse "Spark Plug," following up the development and evolution of Engine 5203?

On the morning of October 5, at 1.40 a. m., Extra West, engine 4488, Engineer J. H. Snyder and Brakeman A. S. Myers, noticed a fire at Childs, Md., and stopped train so that rear end was at station. It was seen that the station platform was on fire. Conductor W. E. Lott got several buckets out of the caboose and promptly put the fire out, thus preventing further damage to station. Owing to the time fire occurred, 1.40 a. m., when nobody was around, the prompt action of Conductor Lott in preventing the spread of this fire undoubtedly saved the station from burning down.

A new Ditto Duplicating machine was received here on October 17 for the purpose of reproducing the daily Passing Reports built, and operated by horse drawn cars Mrs. Hipsley conducted a boarding house at Sykesville for the men. This was in 1832. At that time, Sykesville was the end of the railroad.

Mr. Forsythe is one of the oldest firemen in Baltimore and Ohio service and has been in the employ 36 years.

BUY TODAY PAY LATER

BALTIMORE AND OHIO LADY EMPLOYEES

Take advantage of time payment with us through our arrangement with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad as Official Time Inspectors and

Buy Your Husband or Sweetheart

one of these 12 Size, 17-Jewel HAMILTON or ILLINOIS WATCHES, cased in beautiful white or green gold, for Christmas.

$40

PUGH BROS. JEWELRY COMPANY

211 HOUSE BUILDING,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

5410 2nd AVENUE,
Pittsburgh, Pa.

14 HIPPO ARCADE,
Youngstown, Ohio

Name.....
Address.....
Do You work for Baltimore and Ohio?.....
Division..... Capacity.....

CUT OUT AND MAIL TO ANY OF OUR STORES

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

CLEAN THE CARBON OUT OF YOUR CAR FOR $1.00

MR. H. J. FORCE, Chief Chemist of the Lackawanna Railroad Company, has discovered a wonderful carbon eradicator. This preparation is poured into the tank with the gasoline, the car is then driven, and the carbon is quickly removed from the engine. A large number of cars here at Scranton, Pa., have used this with most wonderful results, many of them using it as long as three or four years, and have found their car to be in perfect condition. This preparation will be sent upon receipt of price, pint cans $1.00, by parcel post. Liberal discounts to dealers and agents.

SCIENTIFIC MANUFACTURING COMPANY
Incorporated
Scranton, Pennsylvania

FORD runs 57 MILES on GALLON of GASOLINE

A new automatic and self-regulating device has been invented by John A. Stransky-2024 Fourth St., Pukwana, South Dakota, with which automobiles have made from 40 to 57 miles on a gallon of gasoline. It removes all carbon and prevents spark plug trouble and overheating. It can be installed by anyone in five minutes. Mr. Stransky wants agents and is willing to send a sample at his own risk. Write him today.—dv.

Pier 22, Philadelphia, Pa.

Correspondent, MARY G. GUTHRIE

Next on the list to "Love Honor and Obey" is Charles Witmer, receiving clerk, Pier 12. He thought he would "put one over" on the boys by taking Saturday, October 20, off and getting quietly married to Miss Helen Miller. Congratulations!

"Bill" Smith and Wallace Search, two live wires of the Cashier's Office, Pier 22, continue to hold their popularity with the ladies in the "Single Group."

Miss Edna McFadden, stenographer to terminal agent, has the gift of making others laugh. We look for Keith's to make her an offer to go on the vaudeville stage.

Joseph R. Simmons and George Rambo, clerks, Pier 12, spend their Sundays on the Wilmington Golf Links. From all accounts, they spend more time looking for lost balls than they do in hitting the pill. Last Sunday's Score—18 holes: Simmons 132, Rambo 204.

We extend our sincere sympathy to "Eddie" Duer, claim clerk, in his recent great loss.

Overheard in the office. "Charles Bradley has 'Arithmetic feet,' he puts down one and carries the other." "All right Charles, 'Can a cowhide in a shoe store?' 'No, but a calfskin!'"

"If you bring a smiling visage to the glass you'll meet a smile." Having the day's work meringued with smiles is not only helpful in making extra effort worth while, but sort o' keeps the clouds away. "Work and smile."

On November tenth, sixteen girls from the Cashier's Department, Pier 22, gave a masquerade party and dance at the home of Mae Mooney, assistant delivery clerk. The evening was spent in dancing, singing and all kinds of games, refreshments following.

On September twenty-sixth the assistant business manager of the New York Times was all prepared to take a trip to Chicago via a competing line. Somehow, he came in contact with our famous Edward F. Mitchell, from Pier 62, who formerly sold tickets in the Grand Central Station,

New York. Edward gave him a dozen urgent reasons for selecting the Baltimore and Ohio and persuaded him. His trip to Chicago over our lines was thoroughly enjoyed. We are glad to give Mr. Mitchell credit for the good business he has been getting.

During my trip to Baltimore attending the MAGAZINE Conference, I was more than enthused by the addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood. In all these addresses was the emphasizing of friendliness and helpfulness between the Management and employees all over the railroad. Co-operation must prevail to make us a better and bigger Baltimore and Ohio family. "Let's all get together and start the New Year with that spirit."

Summer has gone, one by one the leaves are falling. Soon the feathery flakes will begin to fly from the sky. Winter is here, and the rush of Christmas. The clerks of the Cashier's Office wish all A Merry Christmas and A Bright and Happy New Year.

Washington, D. C. Freight Station

Correspondent, W. L. WHITING

"Christmas Comes But Once A Year, When It Comes It Brings Good Cheer!" "A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year!" Greetings!

At the close of business on October 31, we show an increase in excess of $950,000 over the same period of 1922. Present indications are that we will exceed last year by at least a million dollars.

I am taking this opportunity of expressing my appreciation for the loyalty and service rendered by the employees of this station, who have done so much to enable us to handle this business.

I hope that each one will receive all of the joy that should come to them during the Christmastide, and that the New Year will bring them health, happiness and prosperity, and a desire to make it a banner Baltimore and Ohio year.

D. M. FISHER
Agent

The above combination of sentiments seems to express all that the festive season stands for—Good Cheer and Happiness—the Good Cheer coming with the heartfelt greetings that come spontaneously from one to another—and the Happiness that all experience in doing something—no matter how small—to make our fellow beings a little happier, putting a little joy into someone's life whose lot, perhaps, has not fallen in such pleasant places as our own.

This is the Christmas Spirit that is so wonderfully portrayed in Dickens' immortal "Christmas Carol," and is, indeed, the same spirit of helpfulness and friendliness that was so splendidly emphasized at our recent Correspondents' Conference.

It was a happy thought of the MAGAZINE Staff when they prevailed upon the Management to sanction the Conference, and to grace it with the presence of so many of the high officials of the Company, just at the time of year when our thoughts were beginning to centre on the coming of the Christmas season. No one who heard the address of President Willard could fail to realize the duty that devolves upon each correspondent to use his or her utmost endeavors to make the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE a medium through which new friendships may be made, and a closer feeling of cooperation and friendship brought about between the Company and the employees. If this should be one of the results of the Conference then it will have proved the successful gathering that its promoters wished for.

Let us all resolve to do our part in this great work and it will not be necessary to wish each other a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year—they will come without the wishing, in the knowledge of "Something attempted, something done!"

However, the Washington, D. C. Correspondent does indeed wish his fellow scribes, and the readers of the MAGAZINE, all the joys and happiness that the season can bring!

The accompanying photograph of one of the old-time engines of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will probably be of interest to some of the Veterans of the road who will remember the time when they were in use, and will also undoubtedly recognize the men standing in front of the engine.

AN OLD TIME LOCOMOTIVE

This photograph was taken at Gaithersburg, Md., in 1880. Engine 635 ran on the Metropolitan Branch to Frederick. In the photo, left to right: Conductor Kline, Brakeman Drury, a newsboy, Baggage man Martin, Engineer P. J. Collins and Fireman W. S. Sartain. Engineer Collins is still running an engine in Washington Yard

At Washington, D. C., 'tis said that Comptometer Clerk T. L. Selke has asked the question, "When shall it be?" and that Miss Mildred Nichols has told him. They look it!

From left to right they are Conductor Kline, Brakeman Drury, a newsboy, Baggage Master Martin, Engineer P. J. Collins, and Fireman W. S. Sartain. Perhaps the one member of the group who is best known to some of us at this station is Engineer "Pat" Collins. "Pat" is still running an engine in our yard and although about thirty-four years have passed since this photograph was taken, he still holds his own with any of the younger men around here.

An interview with "Pat" always discloses some very interesting reminiscences in connection with the New York Avenue Yard and other of the Company's property in and around Washington.

This photograph was taken at Gaithersburg, Md., in 1889, and is therefore quite an interesting relic of the earlier days of railroading on the Metropolitan Branch. Old 635 ran to Frederick, Md.

That our good old friend, Dan Cupid, is again getting his work in among the boys at this station, is clearly shown in the accompanying photograph of our comptometer clerk, Theodore L. Selke, and the "only one girl in this world for him," Miss Mildred Nichols. There is no doubt but that very shortly we shall be hearing the wedding bells ringing for "Teddy" and "Milly," and what a time there will be in Mt. Rainier! "Teddy" is the son of the Baltimore and Ohio agent at Benning, D. C., and naturally has railroading born in him. Good luck to them!

One of our old reliable yard conductors, J. W. Rives, has been granted a furlough, and has gone to Asheville, N. C., to live on a farm for a time, in order to recuperate. Walter has been ailing lately and we all hope that the rest will greatly benefit him, and that he will return prepared to show that there is a lot of life left in the "old boy" yet.

Hatches, Matches and Dispatches

This is the headline that used to appear in some of the old fashioned newspapers instead of the more prosaic heading of "Births, Marriages and Deaths," and as all of these conditions have been in evidence here since the last issue of the MAGAZINE we have used the old fashioned style.

In the "Wee sma' hours of the morn" of October 24, the stork hovered over the residence of Yard Conductor L. K. Mentzell, and left a nice little daughter to cheer the hearts of the happy parents. At last reports the mother and child were doing splendidly, and we wish them all happiness in their little family party, and, of course, hope that there will be "more to follow."

As a passing remark let it be known that a loving daughter-in-law has just presented your correspondent with his "fifth" grandchild—a chubby little boy! This makes four boys and only one girl. Shades of Theodore Roosevelt, will it ever stop! But these things always will happen in the best regulated families. We are glad to state that Mother, Baby, Daddy, Grandmom and Grandpop are all "progressing favorably."

So much for the HATCHES.

Another of our yard conductors, F. E. Reckweg, and Miss Virginia May Andrews distinguished themselves by being joined together in Holy Matrimony on September 12. They left for their honeymoon to visit New York City and other points in the East. The best wishes for a long life of happiness and joy followed them from all their fellow employees and friends.

And that covers the MATCHES.

But it was sad news that came to us recently of the death of one of the old stand-bys around these parts, D. E. Waters. "Dennie," as he was known to all, was for many years a conductor in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio, and although retired, he had not yet been granted a pension. "Dennie" was found dead in his automobile by a passer-by who noticed that his car was stalled by the side of the road. He was on his way to visit friends in the country and an attack of heart trouble came on him and took him before assistance could be rendered. His death came as a shock to his many friends at this station, as he had been in this office only a few days previous to his demise. Our sympathies are extended to his family in their affliction.

Miss Winnie Tyler, O. S. & D. Clerk, has been home sick for several days. We hope to see her back at her accustomed place shortly, completely recovered from her ailment.

Brunswick, Md.

Correspondent, MILDRED T. FISHER

The Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE Correspondents' Conference is stamped indelibly in the memory of every correspondent who was present. We feel deep gratitude to the Company for the benefits derived from the conference and the instructions received and suggestions offered. The addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood were especially helpful. If the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness, as emphasized by them, is practiced, we will all be better railroaders and our railroad will be truly "The Best and Only."

The regular monthly meeting of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association was held November 2. After the business was attended to the doors adjoining the Ladies' Auxiliary Room were thrown open and a social time was spent together. There were about 50 members of both organizations present. An interesting address was made by Terminal Trainmaster Davis and light refreshments were served.

Among our veterans at Brunswick is Boyd P. Chambers. Mr. Chambers has been in the service for 42 years, entering at Martinsburg on February 1, 1881, as caller; he was transferred to Brunswick May 18, 1891, at which place he has worked ever since. Mr. Chambers is 71 years old, but regardless of his age, performs his duties with great enthusiasm. If you will refer to the October issue of the MAGAZINE on page 72, you will see a picture of this loyal employee.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Cumberland Division

Correspondents, JOHN J. SELL AND RALPH L. KETZNER

To All Employees, Cumberland Division:

The year 1923 is rapidly passing, together with its burdens and cares, and will be known as one of the most prosperous. It has marked a period of good fellowship among all employees, and I am proud of the

Let Diamonds say Merry Xmas

FOR A FEW CENTS A DAY

NO MONEY DOWN

18 kt. White Gold, 7 perfect cut, blue-white diamonds set in platinum. Looks like 3 carat solitaire. Special No. 61. Only $59.50

Premier Cluster, 7 carefully matched blue-white diamonds set in platinum. Looks like 3 1/2 carat solitaire. Special No. 71. Only $69.50

THE startling diamond values pictured can be yours without risking a single penny. Each item is ideally suited for a charming Christmas gift. Your selection sent on your simple request without a single penny down. If you don't agree that it is the biggest bargain you ever saw, return at our expense. If you keep it, pay at the rate of only a few cents a day.

YEARLY DIVIDENDS

You are guaranteed 8 1/2 Per Cent, yearly increase in value on all diamond exchanges, also, 5 Per Cent. bonus privilege

MILLION DOLLAR BARGAIN BOOK FREE

The Greatest Bargains in America are pictured in our new MILLION DOLLAR BARGAIN BOOK. Send for your copy today to Dept. 4119. See these wonderful bargains for yourself under the Lyon Charge Account Plan.

J.M. LYON & CO.
2-4 Maiden Lane N.Y.
In Business Nearly 100 years

Want Distributing Agents everywhere for HANSLICK the new original powdered handsoap. Removes grease, grime, ink, paint, and most anything from the hands without injury to the skin. Every mechanic and auto. owner, everybody who gets his hands dirty will be a customer. A great opportunity for a hustler to get in business for himself. Full information free. Send 10 cents, coin or stamps, for liberal sample can.

SOLAR PRODUCTS COMPANY
122E West Lake Street, Chicago

BALTIMORE

THE SOUTHERN BALTIMORE'S
NEWEST AND MOST MODERN
HOTEL
BALTIMORE

many fine records made on the Cumberland Division during this year. Some of these surpassed any previous years' performance, viz.: the highest average miles per car per day, the greatest average number of loads per day moved from some of the division terminals, etc.

I extend to every employe on the Cumberland Division my sincere wishes for a joyous and Happy Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

R. W. BROWN
Superintendent

To All Employes, Cumberland Division:

With the Christmas season at hand, I desire to express to my fellow employes and their families, my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

L. CRAMBLITT
Road Foreman of Engines

All Employes, Cumberland Yard:

Best wishes to you and yours for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. May the Yuletide spirit linger!

J. H. READ
General Yard Master

The correspondents of our various divisions were invited to Baltimore on October, 26 and 27 to attend the first conference of all correspondents. The outstanding features were the addresses of our officials and the interchange of ideas of those attending, as to how to make our railroad a Bigger, Better and, if possible, a Safer railroad.

President Willard said; "We believe in the MAGAZINE principally because it provides an avenue whereby the management may speak to the men and the men may speak to the management. We are always striving to be going forward and bettering our standards. It is not possible for the officers alone to do this but it is only through the work of the men that we can reach and maintain this high ideal. I would like to have all our men feel that they are not working for the Baltimore and Ohio but working with the Baltimore and Ohio. They are working to carry out our principles of Safety, Courtesy, and Efficiency, NOT because they have to but because they WANT to."

Our President further said "The Baltimore and Ohio is fair, not because of any law that says we have to be but because we want to be and when we ask our men for loyalty and higher production, it is not for the purpose of speeding up the work so that the force may be reduced, but rather that the Company may so prosper as to be

ON THE CUMBERLAND DIVISION

Upper left oval: Sam, son of E. Tasker. Right oval: Robert M., age two and one-half years, son of Engineer M. E. Stiteler. Upper center: An old photograph taken at Rowlesburg. The men, left to right, are: J. H. Carnes, O. J. Kelly, now General Foreman, Weston, W. Va., and J. S. Coniff. Lower row, left: R. A. Nine and R. D. Nine, the men in center not known. The Messrs. Nine are twin brothers, both engineers in helper service at M. & K. Junction. R. A. was appointed fireman on December 12, 1909 and engineer October 21, 1917. R. D., fireman February 9, 1910 and engineer October 26, 1917. Center: Roy Ravenscraft and B. E. Tasker. Right: Master Mechanic W. J. Dixon and Superintendent Car Shops O. G. Stanley able to keep employed as many as possible at all times. The policy of the Company in creating Efficiency Bureaus is not to show the men how to work harder but rather to show the men how to produce greater results with less effort. The Baltimore and Ohio does not want furloughs any more than the men do. We want every man of our family to have work and just as long as business will permit we intend to keep them working. I hope that by working with the Baltimore and Ohio, our men will appreciate this fact and by keeping in close touch with the management, make this goal possible."

ON THE CUMBERLAND DIVISION

Above: Another view of the Cumberland Division Supply Train, see notes. Below: left; Veteran Edward Higgins, Harper's Ferry. Center: Painter Foreman E. D. Colgate. Right: The Cumberland tool cars unloading a boiler in Mill Yard, Cumberland, in 1907

Vice-President Galloway said: "I care not what organization an employe may belong to or what his religion may be, if he is loyal, and a workman of our type because he wants to be and not because he has to be or is paid to be, that man is a Baltimore and Ohio man, of the family of which I am proud to belong. You can pay a man to do anything, but if you want it done right, treat the man so that he will want to do it and it is this action of the men in doing their work right that is making our railroad the Best and Only. We want our men to be satisfied, to belong to our great family, and to use the columns of OUR MAGAZINE to speak to each other, as it is in this way that we hope always to have our men remember that it is not upon the officers, but upon them, that the success of our road depends."

General Manager Scheer, in relating the early history of our Railroad said: "We have always enjoyed that spirit in our men that makes them feel we are Bigger, Broader and Better." He further said if there is a condition on our road that is not right today, we want to make it right. "Use the MAGAZINE, it is yours, it justifies its existence because we want our men to tell us in it how we can be safer, have better facilities, and can better the feeling of friendship which exists among us."

To sum up the conference, Fellow Employes of the Cumberland Division, the dominating note in all these talks was the emphasizing of the spirit of friendliness which obtains between the employes and the Management. Furthermore, it is the privilege of the MAGAZINE to further this spirit by informing employes of what the railroad is trying to do and how, keeping all of us posted on current events and providing helpful reading for not only we men in the service but also for those at home, in the way of hints to the housewife and stories for the children.

Let us fall in with this spirit more heartily and if there is a condition that could be made better, or a way in which we could secure more business, some plan that would make our work even more attractive, or an idea that could be worked out to the benefit of our great family, remember you have only to command your divisional correspondents who will see that your suggestion receives proper consideration. It is the desire of the Management that every employe receive a copy of the MAGAZINE and if, for any reason, you are not receiving it the correspondent will arrange that sufficient copies are furnished. In return, may we ask that if some distribution point is receiving more Magazines than are actually necessary we be told of this so that a redistribution can be arranged. President Willard said the MAGAZINE is costing the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad $60,000.00 per year and not one cent was begrudged, but, boys, if we are receiving more copies than we need, let's Stop That Leak!

We are all members of The Baltimore and Ohio Family and proud to be but some of the family don't know what the others are doing. Let's tell them of the records that the Cumberland Division is always breaking, how we get the business, just how it is handled, why we lead in our ear miles. When you know of an item that could be passed on for the general good, let's have it, also the pictures, just a line on the facts and we'll do the rest. We have the best MAGAZINE that is printed, so let's continue to lead the way along with "The Best and Only."

We recently heard a good one on our genial ticket agent at Cumberland, C. H. Taylor. It appears that "Cleve" was all set for a good lunch of custard pie, and after making the purchase was returning to the office with the pie. Then he came in contact with a door that swings both ways. You know the rest.

We understand that our popular night ticket clerk, H. T. Johnson, has become interested in the laundry business at Oakland. We have not heard the name yet, hope it is not "Hop Lee" or "Ying Sing." Harry, the washboard is harder on the back than passing out tickets, but we wish you success anyway.

One of our contributors dug up an old picture of the Cumberland tool cars and crane unloading a stationary boiler in the Mill Yard at Cumberland, back in 1907. The crane in those days was under the supervision of the late Edward J. Napier, who appears in the picture, as well as several old timers who are still in active service and will be recognized by our employes.

On November 7, the Cumberland Veterans inaugurated their winter meetings with a fine program of singing by the Ladies' Auxiliary. Refreshments were served, and an enthusiastic meeting held. Many more enjoyable seasons are in store for the members and their friends during the winter months.

Over twenty seven hundred cars of apples were shipped from points on the Cumberland Division up to November 10, and it was estimated that the predicted crop of 3000 cars would be reached before the end of the season. Practically all the fruit will have been harvested by the end of November, but there will still be a large number of shipments to be made from sheds and storage during the winter.

Our old friend, P. M. Pennington, crossing watchman, Cumberland, suffered a slight injury recently while patrolling his crossing. His many friends are glad to know that he is well on the road to recovery.

We recently had the pleasure of hearing from an old timer, Edward Higgins, Harper's Ferry, W. Va. Mr. Higgins assisted in laying the first cross ties on our main line between Harper's Ferry and Martinsburg about 71 years ago. Before that time, wooden stringers with strap iron had been used for tracks. Mr. Higgins is now 89 years old, and has many fond memories of the early days of railroading on the Cumberland Division. We hope to have the pleasure of interviewing him soon and getting some good stories of the early days of railroading for our MAGAZINE.

On November 5, City Patrolman Isaac D. Boyd noted a broken rail on the Westward track along the Queen City Pavement, Cumberland, and promptly called attention of the Superintendent's Office to it, enabling prompt repairs to be made, without interruption of traffic. Mr. Boyd who is a former Baltimore and Ohio patrolman, was thanked for his watchfulness and prompt action.

We are able to present a good picture of Edward D. Colgate, former painter foreman. Mr. Colgate was called back from the pension list early in the summer to assist with the rush work on the division, and was returned to the pension list on November 1. While in active service Mr. Colgate was always an enthusiastic Safety man, and while serving on the Cumberland Division Safety Committee, recommended the discontinuance of the use of tin cups on our trains for drinking purposes, as well as the sale of coffee, etc., at stations, from a sanitary standpoint. These suggestions were adopted, not only on our line but other lines as well.

The pictures of the Cumberland Division Supply Train will be of special interest to our employes because of the excellent performance of this train for the past fifteen years. Cumberland Division was the pioneer in the operation of a supply train. It is used to distribute material and supplies to agents, operators, trackmen, bridge and buildings and workmen at outlying points on the division.

In connection with the distribution of supplies, on each trip all scrap and material is picked up and brought into the terminal for sorting and reclaiming purposes. Train of engine 4422, operated on October 22, was in charge of Conductor J. H. Hardy and his crew of brakemen, J. P. Adams, L. F. Durst and C. L. Yew, with Engineer J. H. Maine and Fireman E. W. Haller.

The actual work of distribution is in charge of Storekeeper W. H. Shaw and three assistants. They are also accompanied by Signal Supervisor J. G. Lester and Division Operator E. C. Drawbaugh on line and by the Track Supervisors over their territory, so that careful check of actual requirements is always maintained and supplies distributed accordingly.

The thing that makes this train operation especially attractive is the fact that the scrap and usable material reclaimed more than pays for the entire operation. Storekeeper Shaw is shown in company with Track Supervisor of Sub-division Number Three, W. R. House. In the background we see Our Grand Old Man Rizer and his two assistants. Come on, you other divisions, can you give us anything to compare with this example of Cumberland Division efficiency?

This is the season of the year when all our boys are on their toes to handle perishable business and we are proud of the record to date. How is this one? Engine 4417, in charge of Conductor Hipsley and Engineer McNeerney, 6226 tons, dispatched from Cumberland 4.28 p. m., on October 24 with 106 refrigerator perishable loads, of which 70 cars were loaded with grapes. Train was only on the Cumberland Division 4 hours and 50 minutes. This means that all the boys were hitting the ball. The beauty of it is, that this case is not an exception but rather typical of the general rule of highball moves.

Here is a picture of the 2308 switching engine in Cumberland Yard, in charge of Conductor Johnnie Welsh and Engineer "Doc" Hovatter, one of the most popular crews in Cumberland Yard. Fireman George Fisher is standing by the engine and Brakeman "Bill" Davis is on the footboard with Welsh, who is an enthusiastic Safety man. He explained that the reason that there were two men on the front footboard was that they had stopped long enough to pose. The other brakeman consented to snap the group but we will bet if he thought this would ever appear in the MAGAZINE, someone would have had to do the job so that he could get in.

We want to thank all those who have in any way contributed to the success of the MAGAZINE during the current year. Our wish to each member of our great railroad family is that you and yours enjoy a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Cumberland Shops

Correspondent, VADA PEARL DRUMM

To the Employes of Cumberland Locomotive Shop:

At this season of the year especially, the spirit of good-will toward men is prevalent and I take this opportunity to convey to

IN THE LIMELIGHT ON THE CUMBERLAND DIVISION

The Cumberland Division supply train used to distribute material and supplies, see notes. Oval, above: Engine 2308, Cumberland Yard Switcher, in charge of Conductor Johnnie Welsh and Engineer "Doc" Hovatter. Fireman George Fisher is standing alongside the engine and Brakeman "Bill" Davis on footboard with the conductor. Ovals, below, left: Crossing Watchman P. M. Pennington. Right: Conductor W. R. Householder, a story about whom appeared in the November Magazine, Cumberland Division notes

A MERRY CHRISTMAS TO ALL BALTIMORE AND OHIO EMPLOYEES from their friends advertising on this page!

THE SECOND NATIONAL BANK

CUMBERLAND, MD.

THE OLD BIG-STRONG BANK

LIBERTY TRUST COMPANY

CUMBERLAND, MD.

Capital $1,000,000 Surplus $5,000.00

Join our 1924 Christmas Savings Club beginning December 10, 1923.

UNION WOOLEN MILLS

129 Baltimore Street

CUMBERLAND, MARYLAND

A Merry Christmas

Why Not Music This Christmas?

$5 Will deliver to your home any model VICTROLA in our store. Balance in very easy payments. No charges for interest or extras. Your selection of 12 New Records may be added to contract, if desired.

$10 Will deliver the well-known YORK PIANO to your home. Balance in easy payments. No interest; no extras.

$25 Will deliver a Genuine PIANOLA to your home. Balance in easy payments. No interest; no extras.

$25 Will deliver the Famous PREMIER BABY GRAND PIANO to your home. Balance in easy payments. No interest; no extras.

A complete stock of Furniture from the cheapest that is good to the best that is made.

Easy Terms. Discount for Cash.
Delivery Prepaid Anywhere.

The Holland Company

Furniture, Rugs, Pianos,
Victrolas,

145 Baltimore St., Cumberland, Md.

each and every employe of the Cumberland Locomotive Shop my heartfelt appreciation for the cooperation they have so willingly given me during the past year. I hope that the same spirit of friendship and cooperation will continue during the ensuing year.

Wishing all a very Merry Christmas and a Joyous and Happy New Year, I am,
Yours very truly,

JOHN HOWE
Superintendent of Shop

The Baltimore and Ohio Social Club, which is composed of clerks and supervisors at Cumberland, gave a Harvest Moon Dance on October 29 in the Offices of the Superintendent of Shops and Storekeeper.

The decorations of true Hallow'een character, with leaves and foliage predominating, transformed the offices into a beauty bower which elicited much praise for the decorating committee.

Invitations were issued to employes at Piedmont, Martinsburg, Keyser and other points, and at nine o'clock an immense crowd of merrymakers filled the spacious offices, to participate in the wonderful dance program which had been especially arranged by "Peck" Mills' famous Orchestra. It was not long until the gay throng was gliding over the floor in a profusion of confetti and serpentine.

Refreshments were served throughout the evening, and our popular storekeeper presided over the punch bowl with skill second to none, while his able assistant W. E. W. served the cakes with efficiency that would make Mr. Baugh's best sit up and take notice.

It was noted that our ever smiling J. C. G. chose for his partner time and again one certain little miss and drifted gracefully through the crowd gazing upon her with a look in his eyes that seemed to say, "Love Me and the World is Mine."

We had as guest of honor, our Congressman, F. N. Zihlman, Washington, D. C., who joined the crowd and seemed at all times to be enjoying himself.

As the last strains of "Home, Sweet Home" died away and the spacious offices lost their gay crowd, our second dance was pronounced a tremendous success. Here, we wish to express our appreciation to J. C. Glenn, to whom the praise goes almost undividedly for the success of this always-to-be-remembered occasion.

A musical and literary program was rendered at the regular meeting of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association at the Odd Fellows Hall, on November 6. Several vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. T. E. Mewshaw. Miss Elizabeth Hauger acted as accompanist.

We and the Baltimore and Ohio have this in common—we both believe in SERVICE.

BENEMAN & SON

CUMBERLAND, MD.

"Furniture of the Better Kind"

FIRLIE & STAKEM

The Savoy Bowling and Billiard Parlors
(1st and 2nd Floors)

170 Baltimore Street, Cumberland, Md.

Wishing You a Merry Christmas

Phone 2582

"Say It With Flowers"
FROM

BOPP'S

105 Baltimore Street, Cumberland, Md.
Better Flowers at Lower Prices

HAMMERSMITH BROTHERS' RESTAURANT

If It's Good to Eat—WE HAVE IT
IF WE HAVE IT—It's Good To Eat

14 South Front Street, Cumberland, Md.
50 Rooms, $1.00 Up Phone 2662-W

BALTIMORE AND OHIO OFFICIAL WATCH INSPECTORS

S. T. LITTLE JEWELRY CO.
Cumberland and Brunswick

Payroll deductions for any size watch made for any employe

The Drugs That We Sell Are Drugs

and when in need don't forget you will be safe to get them of

J. GEO. HERMANN

159 Baltimore St. - Cumberland, Md.

J. E. LAMP

STAPLE AND FANCY GROCERIES

Phone 96

Cor. Maryland Ave. & Williams St.
CUMBERLAND - MARYLAND

A Merry Christmas

Mid-Atlantic in a Heavy Swell

First Boy: Gee don't she roll! Ain't it awful?

Second Boy: Aw, t'aint nothin. Jest think what old Jonah had?

Both boys ensemble: Aw Gee!

G. K. Seibert

The Store for Men and Boys

SCHWARZENBACH & SON

CUMBERLAND, MD.

Charles A., son of Yard Brakeman J. B. Rudy, Martinsburg, W. Va.

The remainder of the program follows: Solo, W. E. Warner; piano solo, Miss Elizabeth Hauger; reading, Mrs. E. T. Prichard; solo dance, Catherine E. Menefee; selection, Baptist Church quartette, C. H. Taylor, Howard Johnson, Joseph Trenton and A. F. Wilson; reading, Mary Nelson Barnett; musical selection, Miss Reobbie Tenny, accompanied by Miss Thelma Hawk at piano; solo, Mrs. A. Compton. Mrs. J. F. Barnett, Ladies' Auxiliary, had charge of the refreshments.

One of the 50 new Santa Fe type locomotives for the Cumberland Division, just delivered from the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, made its first trip from Brunswick to Keyser on November 6 with 95 empties. The locomotives of the 6100 series, costing $75,000 each, are capable of hauling 12 per cent. more tonnage than the Mikado types.

The engines will be delivered here at the rate of two or three a week, and will give the local division 290 engines.

Fifty Mikados will be transferred to other divisions.

Travel on the motor train between Green Spring and Petersburg, W. Va., was resumed on October 31. This train leaves Petersburg at 7.10 a. m., and returning leaves Green Spring at 1.25 p. m. The new motor is of 75 horsepower and can ascend a three per cent. grade in high gear. The train is equipped with a heating system and contains modern conveniences.

Effective November 1, the Car Department at Cumberland has been separated as between Steel Car Plant and operating forces. C. E. Howdysell has been placed in charge of the Steel Car Plant, and E. A. Connell in charge of the operating forces.

Charles Gunter, Cumberland Division engineer, who a year ago moved his family to Baltimore, Md., has returned to Cumberland. They will occupy their old home on Race Street. All the neighbors are rejoicing over the return of the Gunters, yet no one seems more pleased than "Charlie" himself who says, "There is no place like home."

Patrick Hopkins, assistant shop clerk, Storekeeper's Office, has accepted the position of M. of W. timekeeper in the Office of Division Accountant.

Another ladies' bowling team has sprung up in our midst. This one is composed of clerks from Storekeeper's Office, as follows: Misses Mouse, Burns, Hewitt and Gettle and Mrs. Marie Hopkins. It will be remembered that the girls of the Master Mechanic's Office have for a long time proclaimed themselves champions; however this newly formed team has set out to bring home the bacon and is anxious to meet our present champs. Come on, Blanche, give them a game.

We wish to express our deep sympathy to J. S. Chessirein in the loss of his dear mother.

Martinsburg, W. Va.

Correspondent, W. L. STEPHENS

My best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year to all!

F. G. MAXFIELD

General Foreman

It was a great privilege to attend the recent Conference of Magazine Correspondents in Baltimore, to meet the boys and girls from all over the System and to listen to the addresses of our executives.

President Willard spoke principally upon the helpfulness of the MAGAZINE in giving publicity to the aims and purposes of the Management. He laid special stress upon the need of friendship and helpfulness between Management and men. The principal points mentioned by Mr. Willard were the desire of the Baltimore and Ohio to be a Good Neighbor; to pay an adequate wage; the right to organize and the necessity of efficiency. As he explained these things to us in his clear, understandable way, they seemed to us to be the most important things before us.

Helper Dayton Canby and Miss Ada Stumm were married in Hagerstown on October 11. Congratulations!

Carman Stanton R. Daley and Miss Viola Everts were recently married in this city. Congratulations!

President Fauver, Veterans' Association, and Organizer Ray Russler are busy rounding up delinquents and looking for new members. Keep after them, boys, they are loyal and need only a little prodding.

Martinsburg shop employees were shocked to hear of the death of Assistant to Chief Engineer G. W. Andrews. He was here only a few days before his untimely death. He has been intimately connected with our shop for many years and was a familiar figure in Martinsburg, as he visited the shop from time to time looking after the work in which he was interested. The Baltimore and Ohio has lost an efficient and capable officer and we have lost a sincere and kindly friend.

Our sympathy goes out to our fellow worker, Noah H. Walker, in the death of his father, William W., at Huntington, W. Va., on November 3. The remains were brought to Martinsburg for interment.

Paw Paw, W. Va.

Correspondent, M. L. SHARON

Am sorry that I was unable to attend the Conference of Correspondents in Baltimore, but Providence ruled otherwise for when we had all of our plans laid and ready for the day we were taken with a severe cold, which unfitted us for the journey.

Our neighbor, Eugene Gross, second trick operator, Okonoko Tower, brought down a fine wild turkey one day last week. He (the turkey) may have been fast in a grapevine! The accompanying picture shows Okonoko Tower with Mr. Gross in the window.

Mr. Henry Norton has installed a radio machine at his home on Winchester Street.

Foreman "Daddy" Shipley was on a vacation at Martinsburg and through the Winchester Valley a few Sundays ago to see relatives and friends.

The season for killing deer in West Virginia closed recently. While some of the nimrods were out in full force, for lack of space we are unable to give all names, but we have not heard of any deer being brought in unless they passed through town on foot.

Your correspondent was in Martinsburg recently visiting old friends and acquaintances. Among many we met were Horace Tabb and Harvey Peer, looking fine after their long years of service with the Baltimore and Ohio.

Sabraton, W. Va.

Correspondent, L. M. GUMP

We wish to take this opportunity of wishing a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all employees and their families. May the coming year be the most prosperous you have known.

G. T. HICE, Master Mechanic

F. R. BROWNING, Assistant Trainmaster

C. L. FRETWELL, Supervisor

On October 26 the MAGAZINE Correspondents convened in Baltimore. The conference continued throughout Friday and adjourned Saturday noon. President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood told the conference the intent of the Management toward the employees, expressing themselves as well pleased with the spirit of friendliness, good will and cooperation that exists and emphasizing the importance of the part the MAGAZINE can play in furthering this condition. Mr. Willard was especially emphatic in this respect, stating that this feeling of good will extended even beyond the confines of the Baltimore and Ohio family to the general public itself. In the furtherance of this condition, there is no more powerful agent than the MAGAZINE itself, your Magazine, which combines news, entertainment and instruction for all.

Keyser

Correspondent, H. B. KIGHT

Greetings of the Christmas Season to the Track Department and Maintenance of Way Men of the West End and M. & K. Sub-Division!

Okonoko Tower, in charge of Operator Gross

Your efforts of the past season are fully appreciated. The excellent improvements and superior conditions in our territory are the fruits of good work.

JOHN EDWARDS, JR.

To all Employees:

We extend the Season's Greetings to all employees in train and engine service on the West End, Cumberland Division. May you all enjoy a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

E. P. WELSHONCE

Trainmaster

M. A. CARNEY

Road Foreman of Engines

To All Employees Keyser Terminal:

As the Yuletide season approaches, I desire to extend my heartiest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Bright and Prosperous New Year for each and every one.

Also wish to thank you all for your hearty cooperation since my coming to Keyser and earnestly solicit a continuation of this.

Sincerely

C. C. PITCHER

Acting Terminal Trainmaster

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to Everybody, from your Correspondent.

I want to thank "Ed" Tasker and Charlie Gosnell for their help in making the Keyser notes interesting. I appreciate the cooperation of those who have assisted me in putting our division on the map.

How I wish that our 80,000 employees might have been present when the correspondents held their first conference at Baltimore on October 26 and 27.

The meeting was an inspiration to everyone present and could each employe have been there and have heard the wonderful address of Mr. Willard and Mr. Galloway and Mr. Scheer, and our Welfare Chief, Mr. Wood, I am sure that they would have been delighted.

And could you, fellows, know the Editorial Staff personally, I feel that from right now on, you would do your part in helping to make the notes of your correspondent more interesting. I shall appreciate any notes you send me. Send me pictures—good ones that will reproduce clearly—they are wanted. Especially pictures of the ladies for there is going to be room for all of them, as Mr. Galloway notified us that he has defied the editor to print his picture (Mr. Galloway's) any more for a while.

SHUT THAT BOX CAR DOOR AND HELP STOP THAT LEAK!

Fireman Knabenshue saves a scoop every TWO miles! That helps!

WASHINGTON TOURS, THE EDUCATIONAL TRIP! BOOST 'EM!

Acting Terminal Trainmaster C. C. Pitcher has moved his family to Keyser. The Baltimore and Ohio family welcome you and your family, Mr. Pitcher.

Miss Mildred Clark, the 13-year-old daughter of Yard Brakeman Homer Clark, died at her home on Main Street, October 27, after a lingering illness. The Railroad boys, ever mindful of the burdens of their fellow workman, contributed a beautiful floral tribute. We extend heartfelt sympathy.

Mrs. L. O. Kesner, wife of Car Repairman Kesner, and Brakeman Trenton, were injured when the automobile in which they were riding, turned over, when returning from the funeral of Miss Clark. We are glad to say that their injuries were not serious.

We extend to Brakeman W. E. Spotts and wife our heartfelt sympathy in the death of Mrs. Spotts' father, Mr. Leake.

Congratulations, Mr. Stanley and Mr. Gillum! Mr. O. G. Stanley, formerly general car foreman, has been promoted to superintendent of shops, and Mr. Gillum, former car foreman, succeeds Mr. Stanley.

Agent Earl Anderson is struttin' 'round like he was the stationmaster at Mt. Royal Station, since the waiting room at Rowlesburg has been fixed up so nice. Don't blame you, Earl. It was a big improvement.

The prospective business cards you find in the MAGAZINE were put there for a purpose. When you get a line on some passenger business fill in the card and send to me for solicitation. Mr. Beggs will be glad to know of any prospective freight business, too.

The Keyser employes have banded themselves together and have organized a bank to be known as the Union Bank of Keyser. This Bank will be capitalized at $75,000 and stock is now being sold.

A CHRISTMAS GREETING

To W. E. Cumberland Division Employees from these friends!

THE ROSEMONT RESTAURANT

ARMSTRONG STREET

KEYSER, W. VA.

Keyser's Leading Restaurant

TABLES FOR LADIES

SNYDER BROTHERS Contractors and Builders

PLANING MILL

39 N. Mineral Street

KEYSER, W. VA.

THE WEST END RESTAURANT

KEYSER, W. VA.

Where all the railroad men eat and their patronage is appreciated

STAURING—Your Jeweler

KEYSER, W. VA.

Appreciates your patronage

Watches on Easy Payment Plan

DEPOSITS $1,055,260.26

The First National Bank
Keyser, W. Va.

SPECIAL SAVINGS DEPARTMENT
Interest paid every six months
from date of deposit

The Farmers and Merchants Bank of Keyser

Extends to all Baltimore and Ohio Employees
the Season's Greetings

"The Bank that Service Built"

THE AMERICAN THEATRE

ROWLESBURG, W. VA.

Best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year to our friends and patrons, members of the Baltimore and Ohio Family

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Children of C. B. Gosnell,
Assistant Car Foreman, Keyser

It has recently come to my attention that a truck handled by one of our baggage men brushed against the coat of one of our patrons leaving a spot of grease on the coat. This patron appreciates the fact that this was an accident, and perhaps could not be helped, but called my attention to it in order to prevent a like occurrence. Be careful, truck handlers, clothes cost money, and then, too, everyone is not so easy to please as the patron mentioned here.

The Steel Car Plant is moving forward by leap and bounds and "Ted," with a smile, says "Boys, we have to get our output." Needless to say they are doing it, the way the W. I's keep lining up with their new coats of paint, showing their finish and proving that the steel car force is right on the job.

A new electric crane has been added to the Steel Car Plant, with a 3000 pound lifting capacity. This means more efficiency.

A new derrick for the lifting in place of an entire assembled side of a steel hopper or rack, has been built and is in service at the Steel Car Plant.

The supervising forces of the Car Department have organized what is known as an "Efficiency Cooperation Committee." The object is to promote good fellowship and to hold meetings at which the officials are invited to meet and exchange views; also to encourage suggestion from employees.

The committee is as follows: Assistant Foreman A. K. Bazell, Assistant Foreman C. W. Farley, Assistant Foreman E. C. Kight, Assistant Foreman J. H. Shaffer, Assistant Foreman W. D. Wright, Assistant Foreman R. H. Spotts, Assistant Foreman C. B. Gosnell, secretary.

Now that the Back Shop at Keyser has been assured, we are proud to announce that Car Foreman O. G. Stanley has been promoted to superintendent of shops, covering the Box and Steel Car Plants as well as Cumberland's car forces. Mr. Stanley has been an active and untiring worker giving the Company his undivided attention and using every means in his power to give the best possible service. Working in unison with his corps of assistants, weighing every suggestion for its value and for the betterment of working facilities, he has brought the shops up to their present state of efficiency and has added to the output. Mr. Stanley's motto is "COOPERATION" and the motto is well lived up to by his men and every effort is made to STOP THAT LEAK.

The shop forces congratulate Mr. Stanley on his appointment and promise to him their whole support to make this the most ideal shop on the System.

With sincere regret we have to report the death of Bennie, son of Engineer Blackburn. To the bereaved family we extend our sincere sympathy. Mr. Blackburn has been absent from duty for some time because of serious illness and the death of Bennie was a serious shock to him.

Thank you Mr. Tasker, for your co-operation.

One thing we saw last month was Fireman Knabenshue shoveling his watch into the furnace. What did you see?

Marshall says, "Boiler Clerk Miss Laidlow not only has a 'Boiler Form' but also a 'Cedar Chest.'"

The chestnuts that Car Foreman Keller sent to the clerical force of the Master Mechanic's Office were certainly fine and appreciated, although "Do Do" stated that some of them were "awful meaty."

Roundhouse Foreman Graney has gone over his turkey calls and gotten them in shape for the present hunting season. Miles Heron is trying to learn how to whistle like a turkey and Roundhouse Foreman Horchler has had him practice on the blower line at night.

Uncle "Jack" Griffen and "Bill" Wolfe are getting ready for their annual bear hunt. "Dodger" Murphy, as usual, will go along to carry the game.

Car Apprentice "Chicken" Avers has lost all interest in life, since he has been transferred from the West Side to the loaded track. The "Gravey Traih" now has a new crew.

We have not heard anything lately about our annual minstrel show from Boilermaker Foreman Spicer. What is the trouble, Charlie, did "Kathleen" give the hook to all the home talent?

Shop Clerk Dietz is no longer furnishing us with samples of his talent as cartoonist. What is the matter, Hugh, writers' cramps or "Little Jacks?"

The interior of our Power Plant at Keyser is among the most attractive on the System.

Our Power Plant force is to be congratulated for the interest they take in their work as well as for the neatness of their premises.

A. R. A. Clerk Orndorf is getting his axe sharpened and expects to have the office Christmas tree this year, the best ever. Our last year tree was quite a success and understand that Ethel still has the present she received last year and she has failed during the past year to attain sufficient weight to wear it.

The new pits at Keyser Roundhouse, recently completed, will greatly facilitate the handling of our heavy Mikado type power at this station. These pits, located between the Master Mechanic's Office and Roundhouse, three in number, one a drop pit, are each 200 feet long, and will be used principally for handling East End power. New pen stocks have also been installed and extensive improvements are now being made to the turntable. On the completion of all improvements authorized, the engine handling plant here will be one of the most up-to-date on the System, and the cost of handling brought to a minimum.

The accompanying photograph is of "Sam," youngest son of Assistant Shop Clerk Tasker. "Sam" states that this is not a case of "When shall we three meet again," as this happens to be a mule.

The third trick roundhouse forces are complaining of shortage of oil and cup grease, since "Spooney" Kidwell started a growth on his upper lip.

Our congratulations are extended to J. B. Gillum on his appointment as car foreman at Keyser.

Mr. Gillum entered the service as car helper, being advanced to assistant car foreman, 1905, which position he has held at Keyser until his present promotion.

During this period he has carefully followed the advancement made in car work, both wood and steel equipment, from the former 40,000 lbs. capacity cars to our present equipment of 120,000 lbs. capacity.

Mr. Gillum is a strong advocate for Safety and many of the safety designs that are in use at Keyser, as well as at other points, are the result of his suggestions. Being a member of the City Council at Keyser, he has also had the City take such precautions for safety about the railroad premises that accidents from this cause have been reduced to a minimum.

We have not been able to secure a photograph of "J. B." but will secure one for the next issue, as we know that it will be appreciated by many of our former employes who are engaged in supervising and other capacities at other points on the System and who served their apprenticeship under him, as well as those under his present supervision.

When our Railroad was younger and our engines had not yet grown up we had among them the old 539 manned by Engineman J. H. Carnes and Fireman J. S. Coniff. One day as they stood at Rowlesburg they had their picture taken as shown here. The man in the center is O. J. Kelly, who is now, I believe, master mechanic at Weston. Mr. Carnes is now one of our pensioners and is hale and hearty. He lives at Rowlesburg. Mr. Coniff pulls the throttle on Express Train 29, between Cumberland and Grafton, and puts her through on time.

In our October notes, we mentioned the fact that Yardmaster W. H. Virts had secured some passenger business for the Baltimore and Ohio. He has just received a letter from his friends reading, in part: "I was given every courtesy. * * * * * Since then I have been to Wheeling on the Baltimore and Ohio. One thing distinctive about the Baltimore and Ohio which I notice is the cheaper and better dining car service. I always get better service for less money in your dining cars."

Motive Power Employes, West End, Cumberland Division:

Appreciating the cooperation that you have given me the past year and knowing that the same interest will be shown during the coming year, I gladly wish you and yours a very Merry Christmas and a Bright and Prosperous New Year.

W. J. DIXON
Assistant Master Mechanic

To the Supervision of the Keyser Shops, the Segregated Forces of the Cumberland Shops, and all Employes under these jurisdictions:

The year that is fast drawing to a close has been a very busy one and I feel that everyone has made an effort to Stop the Leak. Our work, therefore, has been not only pleasant but profitable and I am glad to WISH YOU AND YOUR FAMILIES A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

OLIVER G. Stanley
Superintendent of Shops

Green Spring Timber Preserving Plant

Correspondent, E. E. ALEXANDER

Baltimore, November 13, 1923

Mr. E. E. Alexander
Supervisor of Plants

My dear Mr. Alexander:

The year 1923, now nearing its end, has been a record one for the Green Spring Plant. You and your efficient co-workers have established a new high water mark for output and for ties and timbers unloaded and piled for seasoning. During the month of July you exceeded all records for unloading and in this way did your bit in the great common cause, namely—INCREASING THE CAR MILES PER DAY.

To the joy that comes from knowing that you have done your work well will be added the joy of the Christmas Season. That this joy may come to you all in the fullest extent is the sincere wish of the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

On behalf of the Management of the Railroad as well as on my own personal behalf, I extend to you all the best wishes for a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Very sincerely yours

E. STIMSON

Chief Engineer Maintenance

A Merry Christmas All!

Once again it is our pleasure to wish every member of the Baltimore and Ohio family, everywhere, from our heart, a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Get after business!

Another year is fast passing. A number of the old friends who gave us a cherry greeting one year ago are silent now forever. Ere another year marks earth's progress some of us will have joined them. We should then realize the importance of living our own lives in a most befitting manner and with as few regrets as possible, ever devoting our best efforts to the task assigned us, that each day may bring the satisfaction that comes from a duty well performed as the result of honest, conscientious effort. We submit one resolution only for the New Year, viz: Resolved, that I will strive diligently to make today better than yesterday.

Secure one customer!

It became our privilege as correspondent and representative of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE in this community to attend the Conference of Correspondents held in Baltimore, "Home of the Baltimore and Ohio," on October 26 and 27. And we could well fill our allotted space with the impression and inspiration received from this Conference. It was a decided success from start to finish. The address of Mr. Willard Friday morning, as he explained the purpose of the MAGAZINE, made a lasting impression upon all.

Under his encouraging explanation the MAGAZINE assumed new proportions and importance and the correspondents present were made to realize their responsibility, one far greater than simply reporters.

Clinched by Mr. Galloway's able address Saturday morning and the addresses of General Manager Scheer and Mr. Wood, welfare superintendent, Friday night, it truly was an occasion of educational lectures. A meeting, we estimate, will pay 100 per cent. plus.

The entertainment provided was worthy a conference of highest type and character: the trip of inspection around the Port of Baltimore, the delicious dinner with singing by our own Glee Club, our own entertainers and last but not least the thrilling football game between Princeton and Navy, Saturday afternoon, where Mr. Willard's illustration of real enthusiasm was most vividly exemplified. And we are assured results will prove to our Management that it all was justified.

Get busy—get business!

It was with deepest sorrow that we learned of the passing of George W. Andrews, assistant to the chief engineer of maintenance, as recounted elsewhere in this issue. We knew him as a "friend" for a number of years, and whose kindly advice and counsel we greatly prized. We admired him not alone for his bigness but for his gentleness as well. Words fail when we try to express our sympathy to his loved ones. We can only commend them to the only comforter mortals have been able to find in such sorrow, for we too loved George Andrews.

You can help make a better railroad!

Consistent with its efficient conservation policy our Company has installed thirteen experimental tie test sections in main track covering more than 20,000 ties. Here a most careful record of every tie placed, kind of wood, treatment given, traffic conditions, etc., is made. In addition to these we have fourteen one-mile renewal sections on which the life of ties of various grades, treated and untreated, under all conditions, is carefully studied and compiled. An annual inspection by a representative of the chief engineer of maintenance, assisted by the officers of the Division on which they are located, is made. It is a part of our duty and privilege to assist in the inspection of these ties, the interest increasing as the battle between life and destroying agents goes on from year to year. The oldest of these test sections was installed between Windsor and Blanche in 1911. And we consider it of such great interest to employees that we have requested C. C. Crook, our maintenance engineer, to write a brief illustrated account of it for our MAGAZINE. It should be of especial interest and beneficial to our division engineers, supervisors and track foremen.

We serve 15,200 communities!

The record of the Railroad for the current year is certainly one of fulfillment and promise. Increased car miles, increased car loading, increased car handling, absence of congestion, etc., have established a record for private control and ownership.

Born February 28, 1827.

The new Santa Fe Type engine of the 6100 series has attracted much attention of employees and the public.

Today—10,273 miles, 80,000 employees, 13 states.

Carpenter Foreman G. R. Clark has been placed in charge of the framing of ties and bridge ties of the entire system, the work to be done at the Plant. After framing, these ties are given the preserved life treatment to aid them in their struggle against decay and very materially stop one leak.

While a member primarily of all divisions, we feel rather proud that the Cumberland Division duck pin team defeated the Baltimore Division team recently by a wide margin.

One hundred years old in 1927.

Our No. 8 tie storage track has been practically completed and is filled with ties seasoning for treatment. We have in round numbers 1,100,000 ties in storage, 60,000 over previous high record.

We are glad to see the "old" right of way ties come in before it is too late for us to preserve them. We can not make a rotten tie good. We can only make a good tie last longer.

Enlargements of our Plant are being pushed. This includes an additional treating cylinder with necessary appliances for handling increased demands upon the Plant.

We are glad to note that paper of our safety committeeman, E. Allen, was selected for publication in November Safety Flashes. We are still plugging along.

Another industrial leak that we believe will be given closer study in future years is the labor turnover. A leak difficult to stop.

The elimination of two crossings at grade between Green Spring and Springfield by the Baltimore and Ohio and the County, jointly, marks another step forward in a progress that refuses to be checked.

G. C. Conley is having an Arcola hot water heating plant installed in the Company bungalow occupied by him.

The famous Capitol Limited!

Operator J. D. Rockwell has joined the automobile crowd, having recently purchased a Ford touring car. We notice some blisters on his "sending" hand.

Operator V. D. Twigg has purchased and moved into the Edgell property.

Agent F. G. Catlette has moved into the Taylor house vacated by Mr. Twigg.

Best train in the world!

In the Green Spring crowd, Whitlock keeps the lines open, Saville and Wolford keep the wheels turning, Vatlette looks after the revenue, Kaylor rushes the telegrams, While the Tie Plant treats the ties.

One result of the Baltimore Conference was the coupling together of the correspondents into one solid train for a united purpose instead of standing singly on various sidings.

We had hoped to write them all but could not so here's our greeting to you: A better employee—a better railroad in 1924—LET'S GO.

Connellsville Division

Correspondent, C. E. REYNOLDS

To All Employees, Connellsville Division:

The year just passed has been a prosperous one for the Connellsville Division, this having been brought about by the spirit of cooperation existing between Management and employees, and I desire to extend to all officers, employees, their families and friends, my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Sincerely,

G. W. MARTIN
Superintendent

Christmas Greetings, and Happy New Year to all!

Supervisor A. E. Dwire, S. & C. Sub-Division, is walking around now-a-days with a broad smile that won't come off. Why? Because of the arrival of his first granddaughter, on September 12, at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dwire, Somerset, Pa. The little one has been named Betty Leone. Congratulations!

A baby girl arrived recently at the home of Brakeman and Mrs. J. C. Schrader, Somerset, Pa. Congratulations!

We have been informed of the recent wedding of Brakeman O. R. Leer, S. & C. Branch. Heartly congratulations!

The stork recently visited the home of Fireman and Mrs. Fred Damico, and left a fine baby girl. The little one has been named Pauline.

Miss Carrie England, yard clerk, Somerset, Pa., has been confined to her home on account of illness. It is hoped that she may soon be able to resume her duties.

Your correspondent was unable to attend the Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents held in Baltimore, Md., October 26 and 27, but was represented by E. E. Shank, assistant chief clerk to superintendent, who discoursed at length, upon his return, on the favorable impression he received of Baltimore during his short visit to that city, and more emphatically of Baltimore hospitality.

The inspiring speeches of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, which contained only words of friendliness and helpfulness are an indication that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will not only remain in the lead of all other railroads, but will advance to a goal yet unattained. It is gratifying to carry this message to each employee on the Connellsville Division through the MAGAZINE. The knowledge that each individual employee, regardless of department, title or rate, is a cog in the wheel of the Baltimore and Ohio, which revolves smoothly only by co-operation and an energetic application of energy and care, and a determination that the Company will benefit by our endeavors, should spur us on, and be an incentive to do our bit, willingly and faithfully.

CONNELLSVILLE IS PROUD OF HER HANDSOME MEN
Left: C. R. Radcliffe. Center: C. R. Burns. Right: William Finn

Edward Whipkey, age eight months

The fact that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is in the front is evidenced by the request of the Siamese Minister at Washington, D. C., that two natives acquire practical railroad experience on our road. At the present time, one of these gentlemen, Vara Virakorn, is covering the Connellsville Division with Traveling Car Agent Fisher and is fast learning the intricacies of the railroad game. We consider ourselves honored.

Harry R. Humphrey came into the office and advised that he had just returned from an enjoyable vacation in Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, visiting some of his old-time friends and relatives. Harry also said he went fishing and made a nice catch—STOP. If we tell any more, it would be a fish story.

The old axiom "The Pen is Mightier than the Sword" might also be applied in a fitting manner "The Ford is Mightier than a Steam Roller," judging from a recent encounter which our genial Agent W. T. Bateson, Leckrone, Pa., experienced.

Mr. Bateson commutes between Uniontown and Leckrone daily, using a Lizzie for that purpose, and until a few days ago he has never had anything dispute his right to eminent domain of one half the road. On this morning, however, it was drizzling rain and it happened that a steam roller had figured that this would be an excellent day for it to slide over the highway unobserved. Just as Mr. Bateson and his Lizzie came over the brow of a steep hill, he observed in the middle of the road what he at first took for a war tank in action. Being in close quarters and running at a speed which only a Ford can make, there was no other alternative left than for him to ditch his machine, or attempt to knock the steam roller off the road. He essayed the latter, and as a result lost two hub caps and part of one fender, while the operator of the steam roller, in a vain effort to clear the highway, landed it in the ditch, congratulating himself that Mr. Bateson was only capable of driving one Lizzie at one time.

The wife of a Methodist minister in West Virginia has been married three times. Her maiden name was Partridge, her first husband was named Robin, her second Sparrow and the present one is Quail. One grandmother was a Swan and a grandfather was a Jay. He's dead now and a bird of Paradise. The family lives on Hawk Avenue in Eagleville and the fellow who wrote this is a Lyre. (Some Bird.)

Your correspondent desires to solicit your assistance in placing the Connellsville Division notes in the "Among Ourselves Column" where they belong—in the forefront: To do this, however, it is requested that each employe on the division consider himself or herself a committee to report interesting and constructive incidents to him so that proper mention can be made in the columns of the MAGAZINE. You appreciate that it is difficult, if not altogether impossible, to cover the entire division as it should be. With your co-operation and assistance a big task can easily be taken care of. Please feel yourself privileged at any time, to drop us a line or more.

The Superintendent's Office is graced with a new face, belonging to Miss Mary Gallagher, who was transferred to this office from the Division Engineer's Office. We were sorry for the division engineer until we learned that the vacancy had been filled by Miss Nell Berlin who, we know, will soon learn to fill Mary's shoes.

Didcha' notice that Assistant Train Master McClelland doesn't laugh much any more? Didcha' wonder why? He's lost his teeth!

Our messenger, Edward, reports that on September 3 he saved some coal for the Baltimore and Ohio by giving the engineer on No. 42 a pair of old shoes to burn up. His efforts have earned him the title "Economizing Ed." For the benefit of those who read this article might state that there appears elsewhere mention of this young railroader. Judging from his youth and the manner he is helping save coal, we can well expect bigger things—later on.

We regret to announce that Thomas McIntyre, first trick operator, "D" office, Connellsville, has been away for sometime because of illness. We know that "Mack's" many friends will be sorry to know this, and hope for his speedy recovery.

Yes, W. C. McClelland, our congenial chief tonnage clerk has taken unto himself a wife—the date, September 17. "Mac" always did say that two could live as cheaply as one. Congratulations!

On the evening of October 31, a farewell dinner was given to Chester R. Burns, road foreman of engines. Covers for sixteen guests, staff officers of the Connellsville Division, were laid at Pleasant Valley Country Club. Following the dinner, talks were given by many of the guests. A handsome traveling bag was presented to Mr. Burns by Trainmaster McElheny on behalf of guests present, as a token of esteem. Mr. Burns and his family left Connellsville on November 3, for Los Angeles, where he has accepted a position with the Southern Pacific Railroad Company just before Mr. Burns left for Los Angeles, he was presented with a fine gold watch and chain by his office force and engineers and firemen of the Connellsville Division. Mr. Burns had a wide circle of friends on this division, and we were sorry to see him go. We know that he will succeed in his new work.

But Not Twice

Young Mother: "What in the world makes the baby cry so?"

Ditto Father (wearily): "I suppose he overheard me say that I managed to get a little sleep last night."

—American Legion Weekly

Pittsburgh Division and Terminals

Correspondent, E. N. FAIRGRIEVE

To My Staff, Junior Officers, and Employees:

Reviewing the year which we have just passed through, I cannot help but be thankful to each and every one of you for the splendid assistance which you have given in bringing success to our Company.

As a whole, the year has been successful, and with the coming year so full of promise for even a greater business—I bespeak that same loyalty and fidelity which you have always shown "OUR RAILROAD."

E. A. PECK

General Superintendent

Your correspondent had the pleasure of attending the conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents held at Baltimore, October 26 and 27, in the interest of the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE.

During this splendid and inspiring conference, unique in its character as being the first ever held in railroad circles, we were given the unusual opportunity of listening to President Willard, who gave us an inspiring talk concerning the policies of the Baltimore and Ohio with reference to the desired relationship among employes and to the public.

President Willard's address was full of helpful thoughts, and contained many suggestions from which could be derived a conception of the mutual relationship, the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness which now prevails among the employes and between the Management and the employes all over this great railroad of ours, a wonderful asset in itself. But when he said, "I wish that every employe, in the performance of his or her daily task would feel that they were doing the things, not because they had to, but because they wanted to," he expressed a sincerity of purpose, a thought uppermost in his mind, which stands out, pre-eminently, as a message of peace and good will, so appropriate for the season about to be ushered in. This was a beautiful wish, so amiably expressed, brimful of meaning to the vast Baltimore and Ohio family, and I am glad of the opportunity to present it to you through the columns of the MAGAZINE, knowing, as I do, that it came right from his heart.

Lloyd Stephens, age four, nephew of Brakeman Ghrist

We had the pleasure also of listening to excellent addresses by Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Schcer and Chief of Welfare Wood, the dominating note of which broadcasted a message in accord with the expressions of President Willard.

It is the privilege of the MAGAZINE to further this spirit by keeping the employees informed of what the Baltimore and Ohio is trying to do and how, by keeping us posted on current events, and providing helpful reading in general. This friendly and helpful spirit is the essence of our Christmas message to you, and in voicing a Yuletide greeting, we could not wish a more wonderful thing than that this spirit may grow and thrive among us as the years come and go in our relationship with the Baltimore and Ohio family.

It is gratifying to be able to inform you through these columns that the Pittsburgh Terminal Division gained in revenue from check weighing the sum of $354.75 during the month of August, approximately 11% of the total gain of the Eastern Lines. This is fine, and all concerned in making it possible are to be commended for their part in this effort. It is the result of cooperative effort, much appreciated by Superintendent Booth and the Management.

The cute little fellow shown in the accompanying photo is Master Lloyd Stephens, age four years, nephew of Pittsburgh Division Brakeman A. B. Ghrist. His is the smile of contentment, as he sits on his "Choo-Choo" rarin' to go!

Our old, trustworthy, reliable employee John McLain, Traffic Department, whose heart was recently pierced by Cupid's dart, surprised his fellow employees when he took unto himself a wife in the mature years of his life.

The news of John's romance came like a whirlwind to his friends and fellow employees on the Baltimore and Ohio.

Brother John and his bride have just returned from a trip to the Pacific coast. He says he feels as though he had been to the Fountain of Youth. Come on, you fellows who are feeling old and crabby, take an old man's advice and feel young.

We extend to Mr. and Mrs. McLain our heartiest congratulations and best wishes for their future happiness.

Do you know that in the first six months of the present year, there were over a quarter of a million, or, to be exact, 279,628 automobiles observed passing crossings of the Baltimore and Ohio. Think of it, folks, and of this vast number of machines, 212,469 drivers took heed of the ever present "Stop-Look and Listen" warning and passed over the tracks in safety. Twenty four per cent. of the drivers who crossed the tracks took no heed whatever, and some of these are no longer residents of this mundane sphere. The toll of lives taken in crossing accidents yearly is appalling. This does not prove that preaching safety is useless, but that continued safety preaching is imperative and that our efforts should be redoubled in the practice of the great slogan, Safety First. Are you an adherent? Think of what it means to yourself and your dear ones at home!

EDITOR'S NOTE.—A little bird has brought to our office today the accompanying photograph. Pittsburgh Division people will recognize it as Mrs. J. C. McGregor, many others will recognize it as Miss Mary Breen. They were made one and the same person on November 13.

Miss Mary Breen was for several years an assistant correspondent of the MAGAZINE and it is with regret that we have been obliged to comply with her request that she "be dropped from the list." She was in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio about six years, her last service being in the General Superintendent's Office, Pittsburgh. She left the service on November 10, but will still have the interests of our Company at heart, because "her man's an engineer."

Girls in the General Office at Pittsburgh held a shower for Miss Breen on the evening of November 9. There were many beautiful tokens of the high esteem in which she was held. Between laughing and crying, our Mary was—for the first time in her life—absolutely at a loss for words! And she's Irish too. Among the useful gifts were a rolling pin, for use in the management of her husband and a flat iron to iron out any little domestic difficulties.

The members of the MAGAZINE staff have sometimes had occasion to visit the General Offices in Pittsburgh. They were always sure of a cherry smile and a warm greeting from Mary, and while they'll miss her, they join her many friends in wishing Mr. and Mrs. J. C. McGregor every possible joy and happiness in their married life.

Master Mechanic's Office, Glenwood, Pa.

Correspondent, JANE P. PASSMORE

The best way I can express my feeling about the Conference of the Magazine Correspondents is to say that I wish I could have taken all our Baltimore and Ohio Family along. At the meeting on October 26, we were fortunate to be addressed by our President, Mr. Willard; and to hear Mr. Willard express his views and wishes for our Railroad was a treat; especially his wish and hope that the feeling of good fellowship and neighborliness among the employees of the Baltimore and Ohio may be the biggest thing among them. We also were addressed by Vice-President Galloway, and again this feeling of trying to "Pull Together" was manifested. On Friday night at the Banquet at the Rennert Hotel, we were addressed by General Manager Scheer, who gave a brief outline of the history of the Railroad, covering the time when the first engine was run, etc., and I can tell you it was the most interesting thing I have ever heard. At the same banquet, Chief of Welfare Wood gave a most interesting talk.

Speaking of good fellowship—I feel that there was nothing but good fellowship among that crowd of correspondents. All I have to do now is glance through my last issue of the MAGAZINE and read the different names of the Correspondents and I can see it all again. So help me to do our bit, and let me have anything "newsy", so that we may all be able to promote that friendliness through the items in our MAGAZINE.

Lots of smiling faces around Glenwood these days—Time Clerk H. J. Ternent can't help smiling—all on account of a little daughter arriving at his home. Also R. A. Merkel, roundhouse clerk, who wears a smile on account of the arrival of a daughter.

Our sincere sympathy is extended to Electrician and Mrs. R. W. Reilly in the sad loss of their little daughter, after a short illness of Scarlet Fever.

Demmler, Pa.

Who can say that there is a more agreeable crew than Engineer Shuster and Fireman Diggan. They don't come any better. Hats off to Mr. Shuster!

Yardmaster Rush has an awful —time claims he would be sitting pretty if it were

Miss Mary Breen, a valued correspondent of the Magazine, who has left us to make somebody else happy not for ash cars. Cheer up, George, it could be worse.

The other day while glancing through a current magazine, I noted the following, which appealed to me quite a bit; in fact so much that I cannot help but quote it:

Do You Do Your Work Only by the Day?

"If you are a child, building a little house of blocks, you don't care much how it turns out. You know you're going to tumble it over in a minute or two. But if you are a grown man, building a house in which you expect to live your whole life—ah! that's different, isn't it? It's the same about work. If you do it only 'by the day,' you don't care much what you make of it. But if you intend to live and die with it, you put your best into it all the time. If that doesn't spur your ambition, nothing will."

These few words hit the right spot, and it is the way we should feel about our work with the Baltimore and Ohio. As President Willard said, "We should not say that we are working for the Baltimore and Ohio, but that we are with the Baltimore and Ohio." Let's all feel this way and I know we cannot help but make it a better Railroad if possible.

To the Employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, Pittsburgh Division:

As we all know, the year 1923 has been a busy one on the Baltimore and Ohio and the results have been gratifying. This has come about through the cooperation of all our men. I wish each and every one of the employees of the Pittsburgh Division, the Merriest Kind of a Christmas for themselves and families, and the Blessings of a Happy New Year, with a wish that we will all be able to wish one another the same greeting next year.

Very truly yours,
C. E. McGANN
Division Master Mechanic
Glenwood Shops

Correspondent, EDRIC C. GREAVES

To my fellow employees of the Pennsylvania District I extend the Season's greetings and trust that our associations during the coming year will be even more pleasant than they have been in the past.

F. P. PFAHLER
District Master Mechanic

A Merry Christmas from the Correspondent!

Love, peace and good-will are the underlying motives that prompt this salutation. Christmas, the birthday of the Redeemer, typifying the regeneration of man, carries us back to the dawn of the Christian era—yet we can in fervent imagination still hear the song of the angels that announced the good tidings, and see the wonderful Star of Bethlehem that fulfilled the prophecies of old, just as vividly as did the shepherds over nineteen hundred years ago. With this spirit, we rejoice that we can extend this greeting, in its full significance, to all the readers of the MAGAZINE.

It was our good fortune to attend the Conference of the MAGAZINE Correspondents in Baltimore on October 26 and 27.

We would not have missed it for anything in the world. It was a privilege to listen to the addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, and to feel the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness which obtains between the employes and the Management all over the railroad. There is no doubt that this esprit du corps will be maintained and encouraged through the columns of the MAGAZINE by acquainting employes with what the Management is trying to accomplish and keeping them informed on current events. In common accord with our associate correspondents, we voice the sentiment that the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness, which obtained throughout the conference and which is the essence of the true Christmas spirit, will wax stronger and stronger as the years come and go.

G. A. Bowers, assistant master mechanic, Baltimore Terminals, has been at Glenwood performing some special work for the Mechanical Department. Mr. Bowers seems to possess the faculty of always being cheerful, which, to a great extent, accounts for his success in obtaining gratifying results.

Four more switching locomotives were built in Glenwood Locomotive Back Shop during the months of October and November, viz., Nos. 1010, 1011, 1013 and 1014.

There are 1041 men employed at present in the Glenwood Locomotive Back Shop. In the Company's program of modernizing its locomotives, this shop is assigned a certain output for each month. This indicates that the Baltimore and Ohio prefers to employ its own forces to maintain engines.

It is better to wash five fingers at the end of the day than to wish you had them. Moral—Don't wear gloves when working around moving machinery.

Aftermath of the MAGAZINE conference: Sunday, October 27, Train No. 9, Pullman passenger—"I've lost my diamond scarf pin." Porter diligently searches without success. A few minutes later: MAGAZINE correspondent—"Here's your pin, sir." (Found in aisle of car.) Passenger stated he frequently went to New York via another road; promised, however, he would use the "Capitol Limited" in the future.

One of our photographs is of A. E. Heinzenberger, who, until recently, has been the official photographer at Glenwood. He has been advised by his oculist to give up studio work and is now employed in the Office of District Master Car Builder. We are indebted to him for the many photographs which have appeared in the MAGAZINE from this and outlying sections, among the most recent being the views of the Galloway-Fries Day at Cincinnati. He has always answered every call cheerfully and his loss in this particular work is deeply regretted. Mr. Heinzenberger entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio in September, 1911, being assigned to the Car Department. Photography is a side issue with him.

While it is appreciated that every Baltimore and Ohio agent is a good one, yet we have at Glenwood Station, in the person of J. W. Dashiell, one to whom we cannot accord enough praise. He entered the service at Glenwood on January 15, 1904 as ticket agent and Relief Department depository. His duties are various, many of them being self-imposed. In addition to being ticket agent, he takes care of all the outgoing and incoming mail for the various departments at this point; delivers pay-drafts to the trainmen and maintenance of way employes; personally attends to the delivery of the MAGAZINE, oftentimes making hand to hand distribution of it to the craftsmen in the different shops, etc.

When Mr. Dashiell first entered the service at this station, the deposits in the Savings Feature, Relief Department, averaged from $2,000.00 to $2,500.00 per month; at the present time, the monthly deposits amount to $15,000.00 or an annual total of $180,000.00, the increase being largely due to his personal effort and interest and the high regard in which he is held by his fellow employes. He is frequently consulted by members of the Relief Department when they desire to build their homes, or on matters relative to the investment of funds. A quiet and unostentatious gentleman is our agent, ever courteous and obliging—"not because he has to be, but because he wants to be."

SAFETY FIRST WAS THIS MAN'S MOTTO

GLENWOOD, PA.

Upper row, left to right: Shop Order Supervisor W. E. Mohler explaining the schedule to Machinist John Meier. Little Thomas, son of Assistant Chief Clerk to District Master Mechanic. Walter W. McPherson, talking to his pal, Machinist L. Newcomb. Second row: A. E. Heinzenberger to whom the Magazine is indebted for many of the fine photographs from Glenwood. Center: Wear your goggles, there's only one "I" in the alphabet. Practice Safety First. Right: Agent J. W. Dashiell, Glenwood. Third row: Glenwood Back Shop Employment Office. Lower picture: Glenwood Passenger Station

The Power Plant at Glenwood is to be made the best and most modern on the System by a recently authorized $33,500.00 improvement, which includes a modern fireproof enclosure for the new larger capacity high tension transformers and oil switches in the east end of the building, the removal of the wall between the engine and air compressor rooms and the installation of a 3,750 cubic feet motor driven air compressor. The air compressor will be of the latest improved type. No gears are used, the 500 horse power motor operating the two-stage compressor directly through cranks, one on each side of the motor shaft. In connection with this improvement, the Duquesne Light Company is replacing their present 11,000-volt wooden pole transmission line to the Baltimore and Ohio Glenwood Plant with steel towers, which will support cables seventy feet above the ground, so that they will clear the booms on our locomotive cranes. The new line will be constructed for 22,000 volts, which it is proposed to use at some future time.

Division Storekeeper J. R. Orndorff is a great booster of the Baltimore and Ohio. He recently returned to duty after an absence of two years, having been granted a furlough to accept the position of special inspector, United States Railroad Administration, and from the experience gained in the performance of his duties while with the government, he states that the Baltimore and Ohio, in railroad efficiency, is second to none. In his work of checking the period of government operation and auditing claims of many of the larger roads, he had an opportunity of studying the methods and practices in vogue and of making comparisons. He firmly believes that the Stores Department, as at present organized and operated on the Baltimore and Ohio, like various other departments, gets closer to the real facts regarding the material and supply situation, that the reports rendered give a clearer analysis and that the stock balance is kept under better control, resulting in economy in the amount of capital invested. This was forcibly illustrated recently, when the general storekeeper of one of the largest railroads in the country visited Glenwood personally to investigate how it was possible to turn over a million dollar stock within sixty days. Systematic and intelligent handling, strict economy and loyal service are the contributing factors, and the rank and file of the Stores Department at Glenwood feel proud that they contribute to the success of the BEST and ONLY.

Another photograph shows the Employment Office of Glenwood Back Shop in operation. The office was originally opened on March 1, 1923, previous to which time the employment of various craftsmen was taken care of in the Office of Superintendent of Shops. Because of congested conditions, the need for more adequate facilities was apparent and it was decided to organize a distinct and separate department for this work. The office is manned by craftsmen, one from each of the Locomotive and Car Departments, whose duties are to see that applicants are examined by the Company's physician to determine whether they are physically qualified to perform the work in connection with their trade, to examine and supervise the preparation of application forms, etc., thus relieving the supervisory forces of the shop of questioning the applicants as to their qualifications. During the four-day period, October 29 to November 1, inclusive, a total of eighty-nine men was handled by this office, or an average of twenty-two a day.

W. E. Mohler, shop order supervisor, Glenwood Locomotive Back Shop, is shown in the accompanying photograph explaining in detail to John Meier, machinist, the graphic chart posted in the shop showing engine schedule performance. This chart is designed to show the date each engine is placed in shop and the original date scheduled to be turned out, each day's setback being indicated by a red dash and the number of shop days lost by each setback. It also shows the number and per cent. of engines that were released on the original scheduled date, as well as the number and per cent. of engines that were late on their original scheduled date.

The Efficiency Bureau was established at Glenwood during July of this year with a personnel of five practical shop inspectors. This organization is carrying out the policy of efficiency in its true meaning—to help and to correct—not to criticize. With this thought in mind, the organization has recommended and effected more modern methods of performing certain classes of work, improved facilities and is in general working toward standardization and scientific shop management.

The Bureau has met with the hearty cooperation of the foremen and workmen. All fully understand that the benefits derived from the efforts of the Efficiency Bureau, will be shared by all, thereby securing the maximum of prosperity for all concerned.

Glenwood Back Shop

Correspondent, FRANCES E. LEEPER

Greetings. It is my pleasure to extend to my fellow employees at Glenwood Back Shop, a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year. I trust that our relations in the future will be even more pleasant than those of the past.

C. M. NEWMAN

Superintendent of Shops

Merry Christmas from Frances E. Leeper,
Correspondent

It is hoped that Mother Nature will clothe this dear old World in a blanket of snow to make realistic the Christmas Spirit that is in our hearts, and may Greetings be extended to all our fellow workers, because we want to extend them and not because we feel that we have to.

"There is no city like Baltimore, positively no state like Maryland." You may wonder that I, a true Pittsburgher, say this and you are right when you guess that I have heard it from more than one Baltimorean who has come to Glenwood to work and make his future home.

After hearing this expression, I was more curious than ever to see Baltimore, the birthplace of our wonderful "Baltimore and Ohio." The opportunity for me to visit Baltimore never came until the MAGAZINE correspondents were called there for a conference. Well I went, arrived home safely and had a wonderful time. Besides being entertained by the famous Baltimore and Ohio Glee Club, I had the pleasure of hearing our President, Mr. Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, who all spoke of the work the MAGAZINE is doing and how it is helping to a better understanding between the Management and the Employees. Mr. Willard also said that it is the desire of the Management to be fair and square with everyone and that this can only be obtained by cooperation.

The memory of the first Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Correspondents' Conference will always linger in my mind, because I have seen Baltimore, have met Baltimore people, eaten Baltimore oysters (the first I ever ate).

The buzzer system, Superintendent of Shops' Office, is working again, thanks to R. W. Eves. Oh, yes, Mr. Eves was noted several evenings leaving his office attired in overalls. Take them off, R. W., we know you!

The speedometer on our Neostyle Machine has disappeared, screws and all. Will the Ford owner who has stolen this piece of machinery kindly return it to Frank Rush?

There was quite a commotion among the girls last week, when Carl Knocke, secretary to superintendent of motive power, walked into the office. Watch your step, Carl, the girls have your number.

General Car Foreman Battenhouse has a new member in the family. It's a son-in-law this time. Congratulations!

With pleasure I noted G. W. Haulenbeck's brief and complimentary description of Pittsburgh. Yes, Baltimore, we are sailing, even though it is through clouds of smoke.

Foxburg, Pa.

Correspondent, D. H. KIRKWOOD

Your correspondent had the pleasure of being present at the Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents held in Baltimore on October 26 and 27. Correspondents from all over the System were present and each one of us had the pleasure of shaking the hand of President Willard and listening to him speak. He emphasized the feeling of friendliness and helpfulness which obtains amongst the employees and between employees and Management. From his address your correspondent takes this as his motto: "Justice and a square deal for all." Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Department Wood also spoke to us along the same general lines, showing clearly the thought that is uppermost in the minds of all our executives.

Mr. Scheer was to tell us in thirty minutes all there is to know about the Baltimore and Ohio. That thirty minutes went too fast, however. He could have talked for a week and then not be finished telling us all there is of interest about our Railroad.

Mr. Haulenbeck, the youngest old man in the service, (he is over 80 years of age) gave us a brief outline on how to keep young. If he is as popular with the ladies—as we believe he is—in every day life, as he was at the conference, there's a reason. Mr. Scheer said it is easy to see that Mr. Haulenbeck is not a C. T. man since he is young at the age of eighty.

Your correspondent gathered that the executive officers feel that the MAGAZINE has been a useful instrument for good on the road. We all do. Here's to a better and more successful MAGAZINE every issue.

Agent L. T. McDaniels, Sheffield Jet., experienced some thrills and excitement up in his jungles recently. As he was going over the hill for a pail of water, he heard a slight noise. Looking around he saw it was a black bruin feeding on some apples under a tree. When Mr. Bruin saw our congenial agent he evidently wanted to make friends, or perhaps to be a "Good Neighbor." To Mr. McDaniels this was worse than meeting a yeg on the dark streets of Chicago or New York at night so he decided that this was no place for his daddy's son. We are told that the famous horse "In Memoriam" could not hold a candle to "Mac" as he made for the home stretch, leaving hat and water pail far behind. Through the kindness of an exponent of the Baltimore and Ohio slogan "A Good Neighbor" the missing articles were later recovered.

Friends of the Hon. F. L. Harvey will be glad to know that he has been elected Judge of Clarion County. He was endorsed by the Railroad Brotherhoods of Foxburg and received practically every vote in the district, which is composed almost entirely of railroad workers. At rallies held in Foxburg on November 5 and 7, a number of employees spoke in his behalf. Judging by the speech made by Engineer J. A. Galens, who formerly resided in Scranton, we are led to believe that he must have taken a course in speechmaking at the famous Scranton Schools.

Conductor George D. Wise and Engineer A. C. McVoy will shortly move into their beautiful new homes on the hill.

The stork has been pretty busy here of late. He left a boy at the home of Fireman and Mrs. L. M. Shultz, another boy at the home of Fireman and Mrs. C. C. Edinger, and still another boy at the home of Machinist Helper and Mrs. L. M. Shirley. At the home of Car Repairman and Mrs. C. K. Klinger he left a fine baby girl. Congratulations! The future Baltimore and Ohio boys have the majority three to one.

Boilermaker James O. Dunmire is giving dancing lessons to a class, principally composed of Baltimore and Ohio employees. Machinist P. S. Millet is one of the leading students and we are told he will soon be ready to step out into life as a regular Rudolph Valentino.

Machinist Percy Millett has organized the Foxburg Athletic Club. It is interesting to see the third trick force knocking each other about each morning. This shift is known as the "Cheese Branch" of the Club.

Monongah Division

Correspondent, ANNA MARY UNKS

As the happy season of Christmas approaches we stop to ponder on the great glory and peace that God sent men on the night His Only Begotten Son came into the world. It is my sincerest wish that this wonderful spirit may be felt by each and every individual on the Monongah Division. May 1924 be a prosperous year and one filled with the realization of goals aimed at, through faithful service with the Baltimore and Ohio.

Sincerely

M. S. KOPP
Superintendent

One of our photographs this month is of the oldest Monongah Division member of the Baltimore and Ohio Relief Department. He is James Dulin. He was born in Rappahannock County, Virginia, on April 29, 1834. He entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as a carpenter, on April 4, 1864, in which capacity he continued until injured in the Wheeling wreck in 1871. After this accident, Mr. Dulin was sent to Newburg, W. Va., where he worked as stationary engineer and pumper, under Foremen William White and Andy Lee. When he retired he was under the supervision of Foreman James Aldridge, the latter being still in Baltimore and Ohio service at Martinsburg, W. Va.

Mr. Dulin was in the service for forty-nine years and will be ninety years old on his next birthday. He reads—without glasses—the Baltimore Sun, as he did before the Civil War and today is as spry as many younger men of forty-five. He is an active member of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association, Grafton Division No. 11.

The monthly meeting of The Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association was held on November 5, and a jolly time was had by all. Your correspondent, A. M. Unks, was introduced by F. M. Keane and W. E. Hodel, and delivered an address on the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE and the conference held at Baltimore on October 26 and 27, which we are sure will prove of benefit both to the MAGAZINE and employees.

Miss Ada May Beale and Miss Bollinger sang sentimental and comic songs. Mrs. R. A. Walker and little "Joe" Grinnan gave readings, much to the delight of the Veterans and all who were in attendance.

James McClung, former assistant superintendent of the Baltimore and Ohio at Grafton, has accepted the position of terminal superintendent, Western Maryland Railroad, Baltimore, Md. On his departure from our little city, Mr. McClung was presented by A. H. Freygang, in the name of all the clerks on the division, with a ring bearing the Masonic 32nd degree emblem. He also received the best wishes of everyone on our Division.

Clarksburg, W. Va.

Correspondent, VERNON A. LYON

Your correspondent wishes everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. May the same friendly and helpful spirit continue to create good feeling between the Management and employees throughout 1924.

The Conference of Correspondents in Baltimore is but a memory now. Your correspondent appreciated highly the opportunity to hear addresses by President

Doris Lee Stewart and her mother, granddaughter and daughter of Trainmaster Bartlett, Fairmont, W. Va.

Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Department Wood. All of these gentlemen emphasized the spirit of friendliness and co-operation existing on the Baltimore and Ohio.

I desire to say a word of appreciation about our friend D. J. Fury, operator, MD Tower, who has been in the service many years, particularly his careful and close attention to duty in connection with the passenger business. Frequently it is necessary to ask him how a certain train is running. If he knows, he will tell you in his courteous, friendly way; if he does not know, he will find out. His close attention to Pullman space telegrams is helpful to a ticket agent. This is important to us. Passengers waiting to find out if they can secure berths are naturally anxious, and the kindly, helpful cooperation of Mr. Fury has helped us to make many friends for our Company. Mr. Fury is always pleasant and courteous to his coworkers and his disposition is such that we always feel free to call on him for assistance when we need it.

Fairmont, W. Va.

Correspondent, OLIVIA HAIGHT

The Conference of Correspondents held in Baltimore was thoroughly enjoyable, not alone from an entertainment, but from an educational viewpoint. With the warm greeting from President Willard, who is surely a worth while man in every way, one could not do otherwise than his or her best, whether it be at the desk, on line, or getting notes for the MAGAZINE.

Vice-President Galloway and General Manager Scheer also helped us with their talks. Last, and by no means least, is Chief of Welfare Wood, who is the right man to be affiliated with welfare work. He again voiced Mr. Willard's thought that we should do things because we want to and not because we have to.

With such a president and other officers who are likewise "on the square," we should all feel grateful that it is our privilege to work with such men.

Cupid has again visited Fairmont. This time the victim is Miss Edna Rader, formerly chief clerk, Locomotive Shops. Miss Rader became Mrs. G. E. Hayslett on November 2. The happy couple left in the afternoon for Clifton Forge, Va., where they will reside.

Miss Thelma Parker, clerk, Car Shops, Fairmont, was winner of first prize given Hallowe'en night for having the best historical costume. The prize was an attractive mahogany clock.

ON THE MONONGAH DIVISION

Left: Betty, daughter of Caller E. Plum. Center: James Dulin. Right: "Shot" Malone, Grafton Shops

Miss Beula Lowe, only daughter of Mrs. Georgia Lowe, clerk, Fairmont Freight Office, was married to Mr. J. H. Conaway on September 8 at Oakland, Md. The young couple left for Fort Worth, Tex., where they will spend the winter.

The many friends of Hubert Bartlett will be glad to learn of his recent promotion to demurrage clerk, Fairmont Freight Office.

We extend to Engineer J. W. Eidemiller and family our sympathy in the death of his father, Jacob Eidemiller, age 83 years, at Fairmont, on November 2.

Master Carpenter D. B. Taylor is putting in a concrete arch at No. 8 bridge, on the M. R. territory. The arch is almost completed and as soon as the work dries sufficiently to fill in the opening, this will be done and will make a splendid improvement. The old wooden structure will be eliminated.

The accompanying photograph is of Mrs. Blanch Bartlett Stewart and Doris Lee Stewart, daughter and granddaughter of Trainmaster E. Bartlett, Monongah Division.

Doris Lee is the one subject the trainmaster would rather discuss than the Monongah Division.

West Virginia District

To the Officers and Employes of the West Virginia District:

I want to say to you in all earnestness (and of course confidentially, because I do not want to hurt the feelings of officers and employes that are located on mileage other than the West Virginia District), that I am positive officers and employes know each other better and for that reason the bond of sympathy and helpfulness is stronger on the West Virginia District than on any other mileage of any railroad any place in the country.

I am very sure that officers and employes are working together as friends with the same thought in mind—that our Railroad shall continue to be the best on earth—and in that way fully demonstrating to the world the correctness of the fair and impartial policy adopted and carried on by our Executive Officers.

Let us as employes, resolve that for 1924 we will, by giving the very best service we are capable of performing, make the New Year the best our Railroad has ever known, fully appreciating that what helps or hurts our Railroad helps or hurts us.

I thank you personally for your loyalty and helpfulness during 1923, and I wish for you in 1924, health, wealth and happiness.

J. M. SCOTT
General Superintendent

To the Officers and Employes of the West Virginia District:

I want to thank each and every one of you for your loyal services and earnest and hearty cooperation, which have made it possible for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to attain its present high standard and show the results that it has for the past year.

I know that all of us in the West Virginia District have the same end in view, that is, to make our Railroad second to none. Let us keep up the standard, and equal, or if possible, excel our previous records the coming year, 1924.

Wishing you a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

H. H. MARSH
General Freight Agent

Wheeling Division

Correspondent, MARIE SLATTERICK

To All Officers and Employes:

As the season of good cheer approaches, I wish to extend to all of you my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year as well as my sincere thanks for the cooperation and assistance rendered by you all during 1923. This year has proved one of the banner years with our Company, largely attributable to the loyal service of its employes, of whom those on the Wheeling Division are by no means the least.

C. B. GORSUCH
Superintendent

To Officers and Men of the Maintenance of Way Department:

With the season's renewal work over we can pause a few moments and consider what has been accomplished. Each and every one of us will recall "aims" which have been accomplished and perhaps some mistakes that have been made. One thing is certain. Much that we accomplished has been due to the better understanding existing between men and officers, generally brought about by more personal contact and a better understanding of each man's problems through frank discussions of them.

With every man working his best and with the present spirit of cooperation existing it is a pleasure to look forward to the New Year with its problems and anticipate the improvements we can make. I extend to you greetings for the New Year.

A. H. WOERNER
Division Engineer

I wish all the employes of the Accounting Department a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

S. T. SIMMONS
Division Accountant

"Not because we feel obliged to do so, but just because we want to do so," was one of the big thoughts Mr. Willard, our chief executive, put before the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE Correspondents assembled in conference at the Baltimore and Ohio Building in Baltimore, October 26 and 27. As correspondent for the Wheeling Division I think I understand just what he meant. He was trying, more than anything, to put across to each and every one of the eighty-thousand-member Baltimore and Ohio family, what a helpful and friendly spirit exists between the Management and employes all over this Railroad. And because he is one of the busiest men in the whole universe and can't possibly talk to each employe individually he told the correspondents so that they might through the medium of the MAGAZINE

SILVER FOXES

A desirable, safe and profitable investment for small or large capital

One of my plans will suit you. Correspondence solicited

F. A. Warner, Conover, Wisc.

MAGAZINE further this spirit and keep everyone informed as to what is going on.

The talk which Vice-President Galloway gave us on the second day of the Conference was likewise interesting and inspiring. The keen interest he displays in the work the MAGAZINE is doing surely denotes that he is with us heart and soul. Mr. Scheer, our general manager of Eastern Lines, gave a splendid after-dinner speech at the Hotel Rennert where the correspondents were served a splendid banquet. Our beloved silver tongued orator, W. W. Wood, held us quite enthralled when he said in sum and substance "that after all we leave everything to the future generations, so while we're doing a thing, anything, no matter how small, why not do the very best we can while we're at it?" From the bottom of my heart I thank the Management for making it possible for me to go to Baltimore to attend the conference, meet the rest of the correspondents like one big family and to take part in the wonderful program outlined for us. I consider it a privilege, first to be a Baltimore and Ohio employe and second to be connected with the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE and will be only too glad to do anything and everything I can to further its usefulness. At this particular time of the year when we really live to make others happy, what better Christmas greeting could be voiced through these pages than that the wonderful spirit of friendliness and helpfulness of which Mr. Willard spoke may grow and grow as the years come and go.

"To have and to hold until death do us part" * * *. To those ever inspiring words were united in marriage at St. Joseph's Cathedral in Wheeling, on October 31, Miss Catherine Cartwright and John R. Padden. It is truly a Railroad Romance. Mr. Padden is secretary to the superintendent, and Miss Cartwright is a daughter of Mr. E. Cartwright, yardmaster at Bridgeport, Ohio, and herself at one time held a stenographic position in the Wheeling Offices. The bridal couple was attended by Miss Margaret Cartwright, a sister of the bride and Mr. "Tom" Padden, a brother of the groom. After a wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride the newlyweds left on Train 33 out of Wheeling for a honeymoon to the Florida East Coast and on their return will take up their abode in a "love-nest" on 15th Street. John Padden

ON THE WHEELING DIVISION

In oval: Miss Emma Lambert, Telegraph Operator, Porters Falls, W. Va. Right: New Martinsville, W. Va., Freight House force. Left to right: Agent C. C. Hofner, Howard Hofner, Clarence Yost, C. H. Loy, Forrest Clegg and George Copenhaver

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

is one of the best liked and most-looked-up-to young men on the Wheeling Division. His service with the Company extends over a period of seven years. To show their appreciation his fellow employees presented a chest of silver and a dozen silver and cut glass water coasters. Everybody had a great time seeing them off. The grocers in Wheeling and vicinity went out of business as far as rice was concerned and the station platform at Wheeling looked as if it had been "snowed-under." John seemed to be enjoying himself immensely. And who wouldn't? All the girls just went wild and there was a general stampede to kiss the groom. We're just wondering if John realized that it was his last chance to kiss them all!!!

This month we're glad to print a picture of Miss Emma Lambert, telegraph operator at Porters Falls, W. Va. Miss Lambert has been in the service of the Company as telegraph operator for 14 years and has a clear record. Her hobby is fighting "Capital Punishment." She says that Capital Punishment is simply "legalized murder" and that it is only teaching people thou shalt kill instead of "Thou Shalt Not Kill." That no one can be a Christian, be like Christ and believe in Capital Punishment. Miss Lambert says that from the first chapter to the last of the New Testament we cannot find any authority for taking human life, but on the contrary we will find iterated and reiterated that divine commandment "Thou Shalt Not Kill." Miss Lambert advises us she will send free of charge her forty-page booklet against Capital Punishment, which is backed up by the Bible, to any minister of the Gospel, newspaper editor or congressman, if name and address is furnished her.

Track Supervisor W. D. Lucas on the C. L. & W. Sub-Division is a firm believer in Safety. Rather than take chances of being hit he disposed of his Oldsmobile and bought himself a Dusenbergs geared for 85 m. p. h. Looks like it's going to be a case of "Good Morning Judge"!!!!

All Benwood, Bridgeport and Boggs Run yard clerks take notice! Why is it the Division Engineer's Office sometimes gets quick service when trying to get information from the above-mentioned Yard Office and sometimes gets the other kind? Does it make any difference who is on the other end of the 'phone? We wonder!

The Wheeling Division correspondent wants to know who the engineer and fireman were on No. 11's helper up the 17-Mile Grade, Sunday, October 28. This was engine 4403.

Advice recently reached us that about the first of October our correspondent at Wheeling, Miss Marie Slatterick, called on the medical examiner to have her finger dressed. She told the doctor that the laceration was caused by the bite of a "little puppy." May we suggest to our esteemed friend that Blennerhasset Island is noted for alligators—or is it?—Anon.

Merry Christmas!

Accounting Department

Correspondent, A. V. Coxon

Things We Would Like to See

"Bob" Evans taking a girl out for a good time.

Mabel Kelly getting to work at eight o'clock.

Mary Ullom keeping her income tax up to the scratch.

John Friedel when he is not traveling to Philly.

Tony Michel getting his work out on time.

Charles McConkey sitting quiet for five minutes.

W. R. Schmitz buying a package of Mail Pouch.

W. C. Nolte, Jr., working.

Gertrude Dailer without Frank Boyd.

R. C. Gruver when he is bumming something to eat.

"Peewee" Schafer when he is not using the telephone calling Thelma.

Larry Michel in a hurry.

D. W. Edelen when he is not dreaming of Angela.

R. T. Brooks with some of his fish.

"Jimmie" Michels with a clean straw hat.

"Jimmie" Mitchell without his chewing gum.

Anna Kock doing something unimportant.

A. V. Coxon when he is not hungry.

Bernard Lyons when he is not growling about something.

J. O. McBride when he is not telling about his hard luck in the army.

On a Saturday afternoon recently "Bobbie" Evans (alias Rudolph Valentino), our standard operation clerk, left Wheeling on Train 52 to attend a football game at Moundsville. While enroute he noticed that a young lady on the train was trying to flirt with him. After he had picked up enough courage he made himself acquainted and when the train arrived at Moundsville, "Bobbie" failed to get off, and when he came to himself he noticed that the train was standing in the Fairmont station.

PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE RAILROADERS AT PARKERSBURG

Left, above: Louis Kuhn, with his grandchildren, Elizabeth and John Louis Ballway. Below: Little Miss Eileen, daughter of Dick Martine, K-1, with her favorite doll and our correspondent's dog, Jack. James M. Morrison. W. R. Duff, Car Demurrage Clerk, as seen by his little daughter Winona. Right: H. P. Ballway and his daughter, Margaret Francis

He escorted the young lady around Fairmont the balance of the day and returned home on No. 51 that night. When he came back to the office on Monday morning he told us all about the game, and we gave him all the rope he could swallow. He has 'fessed up, saying that he was not at the game, but that he had a wonderful time. Watch yourself, "Bobbie," the next time you fall like that you will break something.

Happy New Year!

Ohio River Sub-Division

Correspondent, CHARLOTTE MARLOWE
Parkersburg, W. Va.

Cycle Nineteen Twenty-Three for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad will soon be history. Recorded, success through co-operative and faithful service rendered by the employees.

Never in the history of any corporation have the efforts of employees been more sincere and better rewarded than with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad in the present year. The cooperation peculiar to Nineteen Twenty-Three is simply the amalgamation of Energy with Contentment. When these two great factors meet business, success is inevitable. Every ounce of energy has been appreciated by this office and we desire to extend kindest memories down the path of Nineteen Twenty-Three and most sincere greetings for Nineteen Twenty-Four.

Sincerely yours,

R. E. BARNHART
Division Freight Agent

We wish to extend to the Baltimore and Ohio Family generally, and the Parkersburg Freight Station Branch especially, the customary Yule-tide Greetings.

We are just closing a strenuous year, having handled the heaviest business, producing the largest revenue for the Company of any year in the history of this Station, and it has been a pleasure to see the cheerful spirit with which the Freight Station employees have met the emergency, and the efficient manner in which they have performed their duties. We feel that they are entitled to a great deal of credit, and we say to each and every one of them in the words of the immortal Joseph Jefferson, "Here's to you and your family. May you live long and prosper!"

F. A. CARPENTER
Freight Agent

We understand that Ralph Nolen is thinking of running for President next fall, but don't know what ticket to come out on. Folks on the Ohio River Division will not vote for him as they are afraid he would lose the keys for the White House.

Foster Carroll, baggage master at Sistersville, has the auto fever. He will buy either an automobile or a Ford soon.

"Art" Carroll, warehouseman at Sistersville, has painted his house on the inside, also painted his work clothes on the outside. If he covered as much of his house as he did his clothes, he did a pretty good job.

Say, "Moody" Lawrence! How is 78 running?

G. W. Drainer, yardmaster and agent at Bens Run, was off duty thirty days account of sickness. He was relieved by Relief Agent L. D. Barker of Raven Rock, W. Va. Mr. Barker went to Williams-town, Nov. 1, to relieve Mr. Cassidy, account sickness. Looks like Mr. Barker will be a busy "woman" this winter.

PARKERSBURG PRESENTS:

Left: Chief Clerk B. E. Deem, with his treasures, "Ted" and "Pat." Right: Cathryn, age 12, daughter of Boiler Inspector E. E. Gocke

Mrs. Fred Arnold, wife of Machinist Helper Arnold, is wondering what it could be that so interested and attracted her husband's attention as to cause him to walk blindly into a hedge fence, completely demolishing said fence, and leaving behind him portions of his clothing as well as a wrecked dinner pail Better 'fess up, Fred.

Two new faces have appeared in the Low Yards. One of them is owned by H. B. Shears (Girls, you should see him! What? He's a caller!) "Piggy" is already well liked. The other face is owned by W. N. Meeks, employed as yard clerk. (Say, Girls, his first name is "Wendell." Huh? Naw, we don't know his 'phone number.) Both Mr. Shears and Mr. Meeks are the wide-awake type, and will make good, we are sure. Greetings to both.

Here is a photo of James M. Morrison, newly retired employe. Mr. Morrison, born April 20, 1858, entered the service of the Railroad, July 5, 1881. He was employed in the M. of W. Department, serving in different capacities until his retirement, September 17, 1923. During his railroad career Mr. Morrison worked under such men as Jas. Malloy and Robt. Malley. He is the father of the well-known and popular Yard Conductor Harry Morrison.

It is seldom indeed that a whole family can get into print with each member distinguishing himself separately. But such is the case in the following:

First we have the honor of reporting the retirement of Louis Kuhn, machinist, pensioned on July 1, 1923, after serving the Baltimore and Ohio continuously for 35 years. Mr. Kuhn's photo appears in this issue with his two grandchildren Elizabeth and John Louis Ballway, children of Car Inspector J. V. Ballway. Mr. Kuhn takes much pride in his grandchildren, and well he may, for they are certainly a fine pair of youngsters. Their dad, J. V. Ballway, while returning home from work, discovered a broken rail on the main line just ahead of No. 77. He immediately notified Yard Master Ewing, who had the broken rail replaced by a new one in time to save any delay to the passenger train. This was good work on J. V.'s part, as this occurred after nightfall, which made it difficult to detect the break. But J. V. can't 'hog' all the limelight. His brother, H. P. Ballway, while looking over a train which was lined up in the yard ready for movement, discovered a wheel on Baltimore and Ohio 136027 (under load of coal) with 20 inches of flange missing. Wheel on this car had to be clamped to allow its removal from yards to shops. This close observation possibly prevented serious accident.

The Ballway brothers have each been in the service 17 years. A photo of H. P. with his little daughter, Margaret Frances, is shown in this issue.

They do say that Brakeman Bob Cariens, Trains 65 and 66, is the most fascinating feller! All the girls at Ripley have gone hog wild about him, if reports are true.

Just look who's here—J. A. Ferguson, alias "Slim", none other than our efficient agent at Spencer. Somebody has dared report that "You can't get him up in the morning" and that he just hangs around when he does get up. Just the same he handled 160 cars of stock out of Spencer this season to Pittsburgh, also his comparative statement for October showed $32,154.41 business done. This looks like he sleeps with one eye open, and that one open for "BIZ." If we get a clue to the anonymous funny one we'll have him boiled in oil.

J. T. Moore, car builder, High Yards, passed away at his home on the Elizabeth Pike, October 28, after an illness of some duration with typhoid pneumonia. Mr. Moore had been in the service off and on for several years. Of a genial disposition he had many close friends among his fellow workers. Interment was made in the burial grounds connected with the Hopewell Christian Church of which the deceased was a member. He is survived by his wife and four sons, to whom we tender our deepest sympathy.

Two weddings of interest to Wheeling and Parkersburg readers, occurred on November 10.

The first is that of Miss Maud Moore, who was united in marriage to Mr. Claude Crawford. The wedding was quietly celebrated at the home of the bride's sister on account of the recent death of her mother. Maud has been a valued employe of the Company for several years, having entered the service in June, 1917. When the Ohio River and Wheeling Divisions were consolidated she went to Wheeling with the Division Accountant's Office, but later returned to Parkersburg, and at the time of her resignation was clerk in the office of General Foreman Smith. Mr. Crawford is associated with his father in the Parkersburg Rig & Reel Company.

The next to take a chance was none other than our Titian-haired beauty, Janice Thorne, the happy party of the other part being Ronald Callander, with the Standard Oil Company, now located at Guayaquil, Ecuador. Janice and Ronald took passage on the Santa Teresa from New York, November 15. They stopped at Havana and Panama on their journey. A little song entitled "The boys I left behind me" would be appropriate in this case, an amusing incident which occurred at the announcement party being father to this thought. When it was found that Janice was to be the bride, speculation was rife as to the identity of the lucky man. We heard someone say "Oh, is it Art?" Another, "Janice, is it Albert?" "Oh, do tell us who it is!" And then she did the unforgivable thing—she sprung a dark horse on us. We will recover in time, but just the same it was a SHOCK.

To Maud and Janice: "Best wishes for the happiness you deserve."

To Claude and Ronald: "Congratulations!"

Well, boys and girls, the impossible has happened! R. C. Garrison, bachelor and so-called confirmed woman hater, fell like a thousand of brick when he beheld Miss Gertrude Smith, who lived next door. After that no grass grew under our little Romeo's feet. He came right out of his shell and became so eloquent of speech that the lady in question permitted herself to be sufficiently urged to become Mrs. Garrison. R. C. declined to be interviewed (he cordially hates publicity) but we are told the lady took up her burden on November 3.

FOUND! The office cat's left eyebrow! Right under Bronson Deem's nose! If it wasn't for his two sweet kids, he'd be punished for defacing (or rather de-eye browning) the cat. His photo appears in this issue with "Ted" and "Pat." The adoration of "Daddy" for the kids, and of the kids for "Daddy," is mutual.

WANTED: Guardian to accompany me twice a month when I receive my paycheck and see that I don't hide it way down in my pocket and forget where it is. Apply to Engineer W. T. (Billy) Crandall.

This notice is inserted with the hope that it will be seen by the person who monthly mails to J. Maloney, care Agent, Parkersburg, a copy of the MAGAZINE. This man was a retired railroad employe who passed away something over a year ago.

Your correspondent regrets that she was unable to attend the conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents in Baltimore on October 26 and 27. From reports, it must have been a most interesting and helpful meeting.

Charleston Division

C. W. DIXON, Correspondent

V. B. HICKMAN, Assistant Correspondent

Knowing there will be many that I will not see personally, I take this means of wishing every employe on the Charleston Division a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous and a Happy New Year. Your support during the year almost passed has been very gratifying and I want you to know that it is appreciated.

W. TRAPNELL, Superintendent

To all the employes in the Maintenance of Way Department of the Charleston Division, I wish to extend my best wishes for a happy and enjoyable holiday season and for a prosperous New Year. You have made a creditable showing in your work during the year just closing and your individual efforts, I assure you, are greatly appreciated.

RICHARD BROOKE, Division Engineer

Your correspondent wishes that all on the Charleston Division, who have an interest in the things that contribute to the general good of our Railroad, its officers and its employes, could have attended the two day Conference of Correspondents of YOUR MAGAZINE, which was held in Baltimore, October 26 and 27. Had you heard the most sincere and unusually inspiring talks of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway and General Manager Scheer; yes, and that of Chief of Welfare

Wood, renewed zeal, added efforts and increased confidence on the part of each of us would be the results. Could you know the depth of the feeling manifested by Mr. Willard, particularly with reference to the relationship that should and does exist between the Management and the men, and which the Management is desirous of intensifying, you could have done nothing less than feel that it would only take a complete willingness on your own part to make YOU A PART of the biggest thing that has ever been seen in the way of co-operative effort between Management and men. And the only thing standing in the way is the lack of that "complete willingness." We have that ONE THING; let's supply it.

A "fellow" correspondent from a neighboring division, knowing that I was trying to get some data together for a special article on an important industry in West Virginia, kindly mailed me the October number of The West Virginia Review which, by the way, is the first number of a brand new publication that is of vital interest to a West Virginian. Should you feel inclined to read anything other than the Holy Scriptures and OUR MAGAZINE, try a copy of this new publication—if you are a West Virginian. (This is not an advertisement.)

It is noted that during the month of September, 1923, the Charleston Division made a nice showing in the matter of

CHARLESTON DIVISION EMPLOYEES GO HUNTING

Left: The hunting party travels on a log train of one of the lumber roads. Right: top to bottom; left to right; Brakeman F. Reese, young son of Conductor G. B. Green, Fireman J. D. Fury, Bridge Carpenter Blaine Swisher, Conductor G. B. Green, Fireman P. L. Fury, with part of his "kill", Brakemen G. Bennett and F. Reese

CINCINNATI HOME, CHILDREN AND BEAUTY DO HONOR TO OUR COLUMNS

Center: Home of Assistant Chief Clerk W. C. Morrison, Transportation Department, purchased through the Relief Department. Left: Mr. Morrison's daughters. Two good reasons why he bought the attractive home shown. Right: "Fair Alice," one of the prides of the Transportation Department handling L. C. L. freight, as compared with the same month last year. With an increase in tonnage we were able to make a reduction in the number of cars used. Most of the credit for this belongs to the local freight crews and the station forces. Keep it up, boys!

In the matter of check-weighing of L. C. L. freight during a recent month, a review of the work at thirteen stations shows amounts saved ranging from $1.08 to $48.60. That shows we are still stopping leaks. More credit to the station forces.

For several years past the Management has in various ways extended its annual Holiday Greeting to its employees. Your correspondent is taking it upon himself, on behalf of the entire personnel of the Charleston Division, to extend to the Management our greeting for the season and the wish for a prosperous year in 1924.

Well, it finally happened! The long looked for event has "came." John Calvin Carpenter, popular third trick train dispatcher at Weston, and Miss Juanita Hostettler, who was formerly employed in the Division Accountant's Office at Weston, were united in marriage at seven o'clock, Wednesday morning, October 24. The happy couple left Weston at eight o'clock the same morning for a trip to eastern and southern points in the States and Havana, Cuba.

We are glad to have with us our new assistant chief clerk to superintendent, L. K. Forthman, who was formerly connected with the Buffalo Creek & Gauley Railway at Dundon, W. Va. The girls seem especially fond of him.

"A Hunting They Did Go"

Just recently a hunting party composed of Conductor G. B. Green and son, Brakenan George Bennet and F. Reese, Bridge Carpenter Blaine Swisher and Monongah Division Fireman J. D. Fury spent a delightful and profitable week in the wilds about ten miles from Camp Run. We are showing some of the pictures that were taken during the week. The spoils consisted of fifty-four squirrels and a coon: the latter being contributed by Brakeman Bennett. Bennett decided to steal an early morning march on the boys one day and ran across the coon, which he thought was a wild cat. Thinking he was fighting for his life, Bennett couldn't help getting the coon. If the stories are true, the reaction was such as to render Bennett unfit except to cook for the next couple of days.

Doubly significant was the gathering of the Weston office forces in the Office of the Superintendent on the afternoon of October 24. First there was a glad welcome that was extended to our superintendent on his return from a forced leave of absence because of ill health. Everyone was glad to welcome Mr. Trapnell back, and he seemed anxious to get going. He exhibited a special interest in a few new faces that had come into the family during his absence. Next there was the farewell greeting to S. W. Pickens, former assistant chief clerk to superintendent, who has accepted position as travelling freight agent. Quite a handsome remembrance was presented to Mr. Pickens, and our newly returned superintendent made the presentation in a very fitting manner.

In our August notes there was an item about "SI" Seymour having lost his canoe. Well, the same jinx seems to still camp on his trail. Recently he was seen at Camden Station, Baltimore just after the arrival of Train No. 4, tearing down the platform at a rate of speed that could hardly have been equalled by Zev or My Own. When stopped by an old friend and asked what was the trouble and why the hurry, he replied "I am trying to find the man that took my grip out of the sleeper and left me his." If he had as much trouble getting his grip as he had getting his canoe, he has our sympathy.

Our sincere sympathy is extended to Captain Tom Smith and family, on the death of their daughter and sister on November 8. Miss Myrtle Smith passed away in a Baltimore Hospital.

Captain "Tom," as he is affectionately known all over the division, is one of our old time, loyal passenger conductors, and we all grieve with him in his irreparable loss.

Western Lines

General Office, Cincinnati

Correspondent, T. J. MURPHY

Best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year to all fellow officers and employees.

The year just closing has been a wonderful one for the Baltimore and Ohio. Let us through courteous dealings and superior service make 1924 surpass 1923.

G. D. BROOKE

Superintendent Transportation
Western Lines

Nothing could more strongly cement friendship between the Management and the employees than personal contact with our chief executive. His words and actions radiate that confidence which has prompted the stockholders year after year to place him in charge of their investment. With the multiple duties attendant upon a railroad president it is difficult to understand how Mr. Willard can devote so much time to keeping in close personal touch with the Baltimore and Ohio family. Yet it is a fact that his ambition appears to be to win employees to the thought that they are component parts of the System, and that the things done in daily routine are done because they are interested in the success of the Baltimore and Ohio and not because they feel it compulsory to do those things.

Inadequately expressed the above represents my impression, gained from the president's address at the Correspondents' Conference held at Baltimore on October 26 and 27. If I can succeed in conveying this impression to some of my fellow workers who have not had the opportunity of hearing the president, I will feel that a good work has been performed and that I have assisted, even though in a small way, in furthering one of the great desires of our president.

Even as we go to press we are still soliciting from the titian haired trace clerk in the Office of Superintendent of Transportation a photograph for publication in the MAGAZINE. On the occasion of the Galloway-Fries picnic at Chester Park, Aunt Mary endeavored to snap the fair Alice but without success. Credit for securing the mermaid pose which appears is withheld.

The editor has been calling for pictures; the correspondent desires to thank the employees of the Transportation Department for giving him a few this month. There are any number of employees in the building who would like to see their pictures in print. "Ain't it the truth?" Come across—we're all in the same family.

The pictured home of W. C. Morrison, assistant chief clerk, Transportation Department, was bought through the Relief Department, which is certainly there in helping us "own our own."

The most recent addition to the office force of the Transportation Department is Marie E. Oliver, a resident of Hyde Park, one of the suburbs of Oakley. Miss Oliver was formerly connected with the Cincinnati

Betty, daughter of A. W. Knapp, Assistant Pass Clerk, Superintendent Transportation's Office, Cincinnati

Agency, thence promoted to the Oakley Agency. Her experience in railroad work is quite an asset in her new position.

Supervisor Transportation Cahill reports the following in support of the Baltimore and Ohio's claim to being a good neighbor: On October 9, account hot box on sleeper on Train 57 leaving Toledo, it was necessary to transfer passengers from one sleeper to another; during the transfer (at least so she thought) a lady passenger lost her pocketbook. Conductor Clifford, in charge of the train, had her ticket to Louisville—her destination was Beaver Dam, Ky. The conductor arranged with General Passenger Agent Squiggins, who was on the train, for a ticket from Louisville to Beaver Dam; he also tendered the lady $5.00 to tide her over. She accepted $2.00 and was profuse in her thanks to the Railroad and particularly to the conductor who proved to be such a good neighbor.

Francis Hughes, stenographer in the Maintenance of Way Department, seeks a cozy fireside for the winter months. He claims many qualifications which eminently fit him to hold hands—other than poker—and respectfully appeals to the feminine population to look him over.

We had a good story about Giles F. Kreidler and his baseball prowess which it is intended to hold in reserve for next summer providing Giles does not show more than he did during the past season.

John Sheeran has put his machine in the back shop because he is unable to get enough people in it to carry home the parts after it acts up when he gets out on the road.

Nearly every time we write, Ruth L. Beitzer is doing something—getting promoted—using the message phone without releasing the conversation, and now she comes along with an announcement and the necessary proof to back it up that soon T. E. Donnelly of Pittsburgh will do as much dictating as she intends to listen to. We sincerely extend our best wishes.

After an illness of several weeks Phyllis Meiers has returned to her desk; she looks as if it did her good.

Since our last notes, C. R. Elkins, assistant superintendent transportation, has become the daddy of a wonderful girl. Congratulations!

C. A. Boyd, secretary to superintendent transportation, is in the second year of law course. Whenever complex problems arise we usually secure Charley's opinion and then do otherwise.

A. W. Knapp, recently promoted to assistant passenger clerk, is developing nicely and promises to become a valuable aid in that department.

Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. F. J. Hornbach, wife of our embargo clerk, whose mother departed this life during the past month.

Congratulations from the employes of the Transportation Department to C. A. Hornbach on the arrival of a son!

W. A. Radspinner, General Manager's staff, has resigned to accept service with the C. & O. Best wishes, Asa!

It is with regret that we learn that Clifton C. Wilson, traveling car agent, is on an extended sick leave. We sincerely wish him a speedy recovery.

F. L. Charles, assistant to general freight claim agent, has returned from a tour, covering about 8000 miles. The trip was via Chicago, St. Paul, west to Yellowstone, thence Spokane, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Albuquerque, Trinidad, Colorado Springs, Kansas City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati. He changed tires eleven times in two days after reaching the hot California paved roads. East from Los Angeles it was over the desert on the "rubber tired pavement," so called because of so many discarded automobile tires strung along the route. During the trip he encountered torrential rains which caused washouts through New Mexico and Colorado—bridges were washed out—at one point tourists borrowed scrapers and rebuilt a bridge. In Missouri he had to use a shovel to dig his car out of the soft road. The party consisted of two couples and Mr. Charles' little nephew.

Freight Traffic Department, Cincinnati

Correspondent, C. BRENNER

Employes of the General Freight Office Cincinnati, congratulate Walker Barrick and wish him the best of luck on the high sea of matrimony. Walker is a fine fellow, and his marriage was a source of pleasure to the whole office.

There have been many promotions in the General Freight Office during the past two weeks. Hilton Rardin is now an assistant chief clerk. Hilton is the kind of fellow whose work day contains 12 hours. He is a hard worker and deserved his promotion. Eddy Gardner, Charley Brenner, Loring Haskett, Arthur Reed, Herald Smith, "Ben" Harris and last but not least, our Clarence, also shared in the moves up. "Eddy" Gardner has left us for St. Louis. St. Louis is getting a mighty fine worker and also a fine chap. "Eddy" was the sunshine of the General Freight Office, his smile never wore off. Good luck "Eddy!" As a parting gift of friendship, the General Freight Office employes presented "Eddy" with a dressing case.

When Howard Reed was over in France, he told an English "Tommy" about our shrubbery here in America. "In our yard, we have a lilac bush fifty feet high." Whereupon the "Tommy" said: "Gee, I wish I could lilac that."

When it comes to dividing candy, see Olive and Lucia, expert candy dividers. Their motto "Two pieces for me and one for you."

Who—Why Column

Who gets mail from Wilmington?
Why "Ash" Tullis is always rushing around?
Why Dunkan gets here at 8 a. m.?
Why Hilton doesn't quit at 5 p. m.?
Why Clarence shed his short trousers?
Why Lloyd likes N. Y.?
Who kicked Amman's dog around?
Why "Ben" Harris smokes "Tenferanickel" cigars?
Why Olive parks her gum under her chair?
Why Elmer rushes home on Wednesday evenings?
Why "Charley" Brenner doesn't buy a cot for use on his job?
Whom Lally was singing with the other night?
Why "Cliff" had his picture taken?
Why Lucia is taking gym work?
Why "Ed" Burke borrows a chew?
Why Lucia hangs out in the front office since November 1.

Be careful or the Who—Why Column will get you.

If anyone who had not been in the General Freight Office for a year should pay us a visit, he would believe that Aladdin had used his wand. New desks, new linoleum and new file cabinets help make our office attractive. Visitors are impressed with the neat business-like appearance the office presents, thus selling the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to them, through the medium of the eye. Let's remember to keep the place looking nice; it pays to advertise.

Don'ts of the office

Don't forget to clear off your desk before leaving.
Don't forget typewriter covers.
Don't leave towels out.
Don't leave desk drawers open.
Don't throw papers on the floor.
Don't forget it pays to keep the place looking neat.

Santa please bring

Lucia a man.
Harold Smith a wife.
Howard Reed an engagement ring.
Amman another hunting dog.
Olive more chewing gum.
Clarence a whistle.

The old and new correspondents of the Freight Traffic Department, E. H. Gardner and C. Brenner

Fireman T. Dineen and Engineer P. Schutz, Cincinnati, who have made good records in saving coal

Dunkan an alarm clock.
Hilton another boy like the one he now has.
Lloyd a game of Tiddle Winks.
Ben Harris more stogies.
Haskett a badge for the Police Force.
Charley Brenner a merry-go-round.
Cliff Brenner a letter from N. Y.
John Maxwell a hobby horse.
Lally a new Ford.
"Ed" Burke some more chewing tobacco.
"Tom" Baker a book on philosophy.
Barrick a night off.
Miss Ruhlman a box of candy.
Ashur Tullis a week's rest.
Todd a new baby doll.
Elmer some dining room furniture.

The personnel of the General Freight Office wish their officers and friends a very Merry and Joyous Christmas for 1923.

Cincinnati Terminals

Correspondent, J. BEEL

To All Officers and Employees,
Cincinnati Terminal Divisions:

Knowing full well that Cincinnati Terminal Division contributed largely to the successful operation of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad during year 1923, and that his was brought about by the hearty cooperation of officers and employees, I take this opportunity of expressing to you my sincerest thanks and appreciation.

May the year 1924 bring forth further accomplishments through your continued cooperation. Wishing you all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, I am Very sincerely,

J. H. MEYER

Superintendent of Terminals

We are all glad to know that Mrs. Beel, wife of chief clerk, Superintendent's Office, is convalescing after a serious operation. We wish her a speedy recovery.

Ivorydale, Ohio

John (Radio) Conrard is busy these evenings getting news from Cumminsville, Leading and Lockland. He claims he could do better were it not for the heat from John Cullen's new furnace causing so much static. If it is in the air, John will get it.

John Jacob Burns, night general foreman, down in the mouth over the poor showing of the N. Y. Nationals in the recent series. Cheer up, John, every team has its day. We hope the Reds will trim them next year.

At this writing Clerk Charles Jenkins is hunting deer in the wilds of Texas. (We don't know if we have the "deer" spelled right or not.)

Fred Nolte, engine inspector, claims the title of being the tallest inspector on the System. His height is 6 ft. 3 in. in his stocking feet. Let's hear from some other long boys through the MAGAZINE.

Master Earl Meehan, third trick machinist, is all smiles over winning a prize in the recent dog parade held during Boy's Week at Cincinnati.

Richard Dick Lyons, the popular second trick engine house clerk, is back on the job after a much needed vacation. He says "Old Broadway is just the same as ever."

The engine house employees are glad to hear that Mrs. George Langland, wife of our popular second trick crew dispatcher, is on the road to recovery after a serious operation.

John (Red) Cullen, second trick boiler inspector, is now classed as a first-class cook. John has charge of the washout plug oven.

Elsworth (Dizzy) Biddleman is out with a challenge to fight any 122 pound man on the System. Send all challenges to Manager "Joe" Sohn, Ivorydale, Ohio.

Back Shop Foreman Charles Woods has moved into his beautiful new home in Edgemont, where he will raise his prize chickens and garden truck.

We extend our sympathy to Marion Dye in the death of his daughter, Dora, who died following an operation.

From the news that has been turned in from the second and third tricks for the MAGAZINE, the correspondent hopes that the first trick will be ashamed to the extent that they will get busy and send us some news.

Akron Division

Correspondent, A. C. HARRIS

We have completed a year of unprecedented activity in all departments, under traffic conditions beyond any previously known, and a review of our achievements must necessarily bring considerable pride and satisfaction. To the employees on the Akron Division, in every department and in every occupation, credit is due, as only their splendid cooperation can explain our success.

I take this opportunity to extend to you the season's greetings and hope that the New Year will bring to yourself and families the fullest measure of prosperity and happiness.

R. B. MANN, Superintendent

To Akron Division Employees and Co-Workers:

Acknowledging the pleasant relations enjoyed during the past year and the record of work accomplished I extend to all the greetings of the season, and wish you, the employees working with you, your families and their families a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

E. J. CORRELL

Division Engineer

Left: Traveling Car Agent H. B. Sherry. Center, front row: left to right: Chief Clerk C. R. Gordon, Passing Report Clerk F. W. Mattie, Location Clerk J. W. Burnett, Car Tracer J. E. Morrissey, Yardmaster "Mike" Murphy. Back row: Checker G. C. Nolte, Interchange Clerk F. L. Stevenson, T. C. A. Sherry, Yardmaster J. B. Clark. Right: Karl F. Wright

One correspondent on the Akron Division felt that he had the best reasons in the world for staying on the job and not attending the Conference of Correspondents at Baltimore recently. A message of sympathy and regret, and later on, an outline of the splendidly prepared program, was furnished the unfortunate one. As the matter now stands, any catastrophe of less importance than the "Jap quake" will scarcely serve to keep him out of any such future gathering.

Frank Truman, a former carpenter foreman, now on the pension list, was a recent Akron visitor. At one time Frank was so well known around Youngstown that he was pointed out as one of the interesting features of the city. To judge from appearances, Frank should be starting out as an apprentice in some trade, in preparation for the old age that will surely come to him within the next fifty years. Frank is now living in Detroit.

The Train Dispatcher's Office boasts of the possession of one of the musical stars of Akron. Train Dispatcher J. A. Phelps is in constant demand and his tenor voice fits in nicely with the various theatrical productions of the Burns Club, as soloist with various church choirs and with the Goodrich Male Chorus. If our Baltimore Glee Club ever visits Akron, or if Phelps ever gets to Baltimore, someone had better arrange a conference.

Mark H. Beard has returned to the Akron Division as assistant division engineer after a brief visit in the Transportation Department. Mr. Beard will be located at Akron.

Death has reached out and claimed Cecilia Abt, former employe of the Division Engineer's Office. While Miss Abt had been with us only one year, we had learned to appreciate her kindly disposition, her unlimited patience in endeavoring to comply with all requests and the sense of responsibility that urged her to struggle along when her strength was hardly equal to the task. We know that we will miss her.

J. E. Feathers, assistant engineer, is one of the efficient horn blowers in the Cleveland Shrine Band. New music holds no terrors for Feathers, as he is familiar with all well known airs, not excluding the ever popular "hot air."

T. D. Morrison, former assistant division engineer, will take over the duties of supervisor at Massillon, in place of E. Landis assigned to other duties.

Assistant Engineer Benson is again suffering from an attack of poison ivy. At the time of the original attack he painted himself with some preparation that made him a real "Yellow Kid." In fact, he was so brilliantly yellow (no figurative speech intended) that it hurt the eyes to look at him. He is now using a white preparation guaranteed to wash off in any weather.

New Castle, Pa.

Correspondent, AGNES L. BARNES

To the Employees of the Northwest District:

The year 1923 has been a memorable one in many ways on the Baltimore & Ohio. It has seen the largest movement in the history of the Railroad; it has seen the railroad resume the dividend on its common stock, this being necessary in order for us to have a healthy standing in the financial world; it has seen a year with practically no strife of any kind between employe and employer, which, to my mind, is the outstanding feature of the year. The relationship between officers and employes has been one of satisfaction to both and this feature has tended to so strengthen and improve the morale as to produce the first two results mentioned and without which no Company can operate satisfactorily.

For the loyal assistance given me by the employes of the Northwest District, I desire at this time to thank them and to wish them all the good things of the Holiday Season and a Happy New Year.

D. F. STEVENS
General Superintendent

The Conference of Baltimore and Ohio Magazine Correspondents, at Baltimore, Md., on October 26 and 27, was greatly enjoyed, and many benefits were derived from the addresses made by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood. We are all willing to do our share towards making the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE a success, as well as to become more efficient in our work.

The aim of the MAGAZINE is to further the spirit of sympathetic interest between management and employes by informing them of the work the Baltimore and Ohio is doing, keeping all posted on current events, and providing helpful reading matter.

Cupid has again hit Central Yard Office, this time our first trick westbound yardmaster, James Kane, whose marriage to Miss Elizabeth Chambers took place in Erie, Pa., on October 22. Good luck, "Jimmie!"

Little Irene Frazier, eight year old daughter of Assistant Car Foreman Roy Frazier, is recovering from a recent operation. The

NEW CASTLE BEAUTIES

Above, left to right: One of our girls who is thinking of joining Mack Sennett's Bathing Beauties, at Lake O'Springs. Francis will be glad to see this photograph. Demurrage Clerk Powell, Car Clerk Swanson and Claim Clerk Maisch, with the Misses Forester and Siffrin, Bill Clerk and Stenographer. Two new Baltimore and Ohio "Break-men," Irene Siffrin and Julia Forester, taking their first lesson in climbing cars. Below: the family of Chief Clerk and Mrs. K. C. Row Lee, value "Seven million dollars each." Twin boys in arms, Clifford Albert and Milton Paul born April 3, 1923

IN THE STEEL DISTRICT, NEWCASTLE, PA.

Left to right: E. Mangold, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Chief Clerk C. R. Gordon, Magazine Correspondent Agnes Barnes; H. A. Huckaba, Agent, American Railway Association. Terminal Trainmaster W. H. Yeager, Passing Report Clerk Fred Mattle, E. Mangold of Pittsburgh, Chief Clerk C. R. Gordon, H. B. Sherry of Baltimore, H. A. Huckaba and Messenger Leroy Walters

child was stricken with infantile paralysis when three years of age, and is now doing nicely. Our best wishes to her.

During the latter part of August, Mary Louise Murphy, three year old daughter of Yardmaster "Mike" Murphy had the misfortune, while playing, to fall off the back porch, breaking her right arm just above the wrist. The break was just about set when the child again fell, breaking the bone in the same place. "Mike" reports the break on the mend, and that he is now watching Mary Louise closely.

"Bill" Childress, who recently went to Lowellville as extra gang foreman, has again returned to the Junction. Glad to see your smiling countenance again, "Bill."

It doesn't look as though the Baltimore and Ohio Basketball team, winners of the City Championship, would be in existence this year. The team is intact, but has received little encouragement. The boys won the Championship last year and by continually being in the eye of the public, furnished the greatest kind of advertisement for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad.

It Pays to Advertise

The following item is taken from The Guest, a Mill Run, Pa., paper, published in November, 1886, which was found in a box car while being switched in New Castle Junction yards:

"At the monthly meeting of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad directors recently, President Garrett stated that the road showed an increase in earnings for the past six months of $1,304,182 over the corresponding period of last year."

There were 51,709 new cars handled through New Castle and New Castle Junction during the month of October, which is an increase of 4741 cars over the month of September.

We are sorry to report the death of Mrs. Charles McGowan, wife of wreck train clerk, on November 1, 1923. Mrs. McGowan was 38 years of age, and had been in ill health for over a year. We all extend our deepest sympathy to Mr. McGowan in his bereavement.

Mae Jenkins, former M. C. B. clerk, Master Mechanic's Office, has been transferred to the Stores Department, vice Harry Crichlow, transferred to the Yard Office.

One of the accompanying photographs is of Karl F. Wright, lieutenant of police, New Castle Junction, Pa., his hours are from 8 to 4, but invariably you will find him on duty five nights out of the week. On October 13, while on duty, he received a call from Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Conductor Smith, about 10:00 p. m. to the effect that a negro had committed a crime in Beaver Falls, Pa., and that he was headed towards New Castle on a fast freight train.

Lieutenant Wright arrested Henry Johnson as he alighted from the train, and found in his possession a 38 calibre revolver fully loaded and four extra cartridges.

New Castle Junction

Correspondent, J. A. JACKSON

At this season of the Happy Christmas-tide, I wish to express my sincere appreciation to the employees of the Motive Power Department, for the splendid cooperation given me during the year just drawing to a close. It is my sincere wish that you may enjoy to the fullest extent the choicest blessings and gifts of this Great Holiday, and it gives me immeasurable pleasure at this time to extend to you my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

J. A. TSCHUOR

Master Mechanic

Our sympathy goes out to Labor Foreman E. J. Scanlon, in the death of his sister, which occurred at New Castle on Monday, November 12. The funeral was held on November 15 from the family residence and was attended by a large number of friends of the deceased.

W. E. Winebrenner, formerly passenger agent at New Castle, has been promoted to travelling passenger agent with headquarters at Cincinnati. "Winey," as he is best known by his legion of friends, first entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as clerk, and by faithful and diligent work, progressed step by step up through the various branches of the Passenger Department. During his three years' service at New Castle he made a host of friends among the travelling public, and by his courteous treatment and pleasing disposition was enabled to increase the passenger business to a considerable extent. The well wishes of his many friends go with him in his new field of labor.

The Conference of Magazine Correspondents, which was held at Baltimore on October 26 and 27, was attended by the New Castle Correspondents, and the wonderful time shown them is beyond description. The program provided for the visitors would have done justice to a gathering much more notable. The old Baltimore and Ohio spirit prompted the staff to arrange a program fit for a king. We enjoyed every minute of our stay in Baltimore, but most significant were the beautiful sentiments expressed in the addresses delivered by our President, Mr. Willard, Vice-President Galloway and General Manager Scheer. We hope that much good will be accomplished as a result of the Conference, and we wish to express our deep appreciation to all for the splendid program which it was our privilege to enjoy.

"Bob" McClain, car clerk, took a day off and went hunting through the wilds of Mercer County, and brought home a nice bunch of rabbits. We hope "Bob" takes another trip soon, as we had a nice feed after the last trip.

Master Mechanic J. A. Tschuor, is the proud possessor of a brand new Big Six S. debaker Coupe. The boss says she steams good, and no failures are going to go on the sheet for this "Studee."

The Shops at New Castle Junction are a bee-hive of activity these days, and the power is being handled through this terminal in quick time, and business dispatched with little delay. The supervisory forces are to be commended for this good showing, and the hearty cooperation of the shop forces is responsible for this good work. Keep the good work up, boys!

C. A. Gill, superintendent motive power, was a welcome visitor at this station during November, for four days. The boys here are always glad to see "Charlie" as his jovial manner and pleasing disposition have made for him a host of friends. We hope to see him soon again.

Engineer K. Smith and Fireman Steese, running test train, loaded with eggs and stock. Photograph taken by D. D. Ballard of Baltimore, at Sterling, on August 3, 1916. Mr. Smith is still running stock train

Youngstown, Ohio

Correspondent, PEARL SCHMUTZ

The trip to Baltimore for the Conference of Correspondents, was not only delightful and entertaining, but enlightening and educational. All the correspondents who attended should have a better idea of the intent and purpose of our MAGAZINE. The getting together of officials of our railroad and representatives of the employes and getting first hand the expressions of friendliness and cooperation, will promote a greater interest and spirit of friendliness between the management and the employes. The influence the MAGAZINE can exert in this direction, by creating a closer relationship between the Management and employes and among the employes all over the entire System, is invaluable, in building and maintaining an organization whose motto is "Courtesy at all times."

To All Employes:

I wish to extend to you and your families my sincere best wish for a Happy Christmas and a Joyous and Prosperous New Year. I thank you for your cooperation and feel confident of your support for the coming year.

(Signed) JAMES AIKEN, Agent

To Every Employe:

We wish to extend to our forces our hearty good wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

J. K. JOLLY, Cashier
FRANK J. OGDEN, Chief Clerk

The following letter was received by J. K. Jolly, treasurer Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association, Akron Division, from W. D. Reed, president, Veterans' Association, Akron Division. "Have just returned from the Galloway-Fries day held at Chester Park, Cincinnati, Ohio. The day was perfect, the people fine and the meeting was a record breaker, it being estimated there were between twenty and twenty-five thousand to witness and share the happiness of two of President Willard's boys, who received diamond studded forty year buttons, for their long years of loyal and brain work, in boosting the Baltimore and Ohio into first place. They deserve all they got and my wish is that they live to enjoy and wear this recognition for many years to come. I met many old time friends as well as new ones, many of whom I did not think of ever seeing. Men and women of all positions and classes. It was a rich experience to me, and while on the trip I did not forget to boost the Veterans' Association, Akron Division. I was chaperoned on the trip by James Aiken and A. Wilson, therefore I was well taken care of."

Mr. Reed is 77 years of age and a wonderful penman. His letter would have to be seen to be fully appreciated.

Margaret Hodge Kohl, stenographer, recently married, has resigned. Mrs. Kohl

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO

Above: Youngstown, Ohio, passenger station, 1923. Below: Youngstown passenger station in 1903, showing Freight and Ticket Agent James Aiken. Oval, left: Marjorie and Bob, children of Cashier J. K. Jolly. Right: Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hart at Denver, Col. Right bottom picture: Agent James Aiken, Youngstown, Ohio, and Assistant Terminal Agent J. T. Campbell, Pittsburgh, Pa., taken in Allegheny City Ticket Office in 1888 has gone to Pittsburgh to reside. Mr. Kohl is secretary to A. L. Doggett.

HASELTON, OHIO, SECOND TRICK ENGINE HOUSE FORCE

Top row, left to right: Stationary Engineer E. H. O'Hara, Machinist S. J. Benedict, Pipe Fitter L. W. Hasely, Boilermaker B. H. Wyer, Helper J. H. Moss, Helper D. Jones, Machinist Mike Baker, Welder A. H. Short, Watchman Eli Maras. Center row: Helper Don Jordan, Helper R. J. Kennedy, Boiler Washer John Sam Paxton, Boiler Washer Marko Milic, Tender Repairman P. Tkurik, Boiler Foreman C. A. Stephenson, Boilermaker J. Duffey. Bottom row: Tender Repairman Joe Gilk, Laborers John Hassay, Mike Hamrock, John Kollar, Helper M. J. Miller. In right oval: Norman Robert, son of Crew Dispatcher R. H. Jones

Viola Walker Olson, a recent bride, entertained the girls of the Local Freight Office at her new home. Mrs. Olson was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. A delicious lunch was served and the evening was a most enjoyable one.

As a courtesy to Anna Fitch, general clerk, Local Freight Office, who has gone to Los Angeles to make her home, the girls entertained at her home. Miss Fitch was presented with a traveling bag.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Strohm, Minneapolis, Minn., announce the birth of a son on October 17. Mr. Strohm was city ticket clerk, Youngstown, for a number of years.

Frances Seaglione, one of the most popular girls in our office, has at last succumbed to the wiles of Dan Cupid. Her marriage to Frank Colao took place on October 11. Following the ceremony at St. Vitus Church a breakfast was served to the bridal party and 50 guests. The reception in the evening was attended by 300, among whom were office associates from Youngstown. Following a honeymoon trip to Washington and New York, the couple are now at home to their friends at East Long Ave., New Castle, Pa.

Elizabeth McDonough, car record clerk, Haselton Yard, has been transferred to the Freight Office as general clerk.

We are glad to welcome in our midst F. W. Ringger of Baltimore, Md.

The girls of the Local Freight Office were entertained at the home of Peggy Uhl, New Castle, Pa., Saturday evening, November 3. The affair was given in honor of Mrs. Frances Colao a recent bride. The honor guest was presented with a beautiful floor lamp, the gift of employees of the Local Freight Office. Music and dancing wiled away the evening, after which a dainty lunch was served. Josephine Griffin and Margaret Griffin, from Haselton Yard Office and Agnes Barnes, from Train Master's Office, New Castle Jet. were guests.

The Akron Division, Ladies Auxiliary of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association, entertained the Veterans with a card party, on November 6. A delightful lunch was served and an enjoyable time reported.

Massillon, Ohio

Correspondent, W. E. BRUGH

I wish each and every member of the Baltimore and Ohio Family, a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

On October 26 and 27, a Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents was held at Baltimore, Md. Everyone had a fine time, and words cannot express our appreciation. We were addressed by our President, Daniel Willard; C. W. Galloway, vice-president; E. W. Scheer, general manager, Eastern Lines and other officials. They spoke about the Good Neighbor spirit of the Baltimore and Ohio, and the friendly feeling between the management and the employees.

On November 6, Conductor H. P. Ryan, Willard, and Brakeman D. W. Saam, Dover, had an automobile accident at Willard, in which Mr. Ryan lost his life, Mr. Saam being seriously injured. Our sympathy is extended to Mrs. Ryan, and we hope Mr. Saam will recover.

Dover, Ohio

Engineer and Mrs. F. P. Arnold are the proud parents of a baby boy born on October 25. Frank wants to make an engineer of him. Congratulations!

The stork has been busy in Dover. On October 26, it left a little girl at the home of Engineer and Mrs. V. W. Kuhn. Congratulations!

Brakeman Edward Crouch, who has been working out of Massillon, came back to Dover in November. "Ed" thinks there is no place like home.

Mike Reidy, yard brakeman, has returned to work, after being away for some time. "Mike" was struck on the leg by a lump of coal which fell off a car.

Haselton, Ohio

Correspondent, LEE RICHARDS

To Motive Power Employees:

At this joyous season, it is fitting that we extend to you our greetings and sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

We wish to express our appreciation to all for the hearty cooperation given us in 1923. Your performance has been gratifying and we sincerely trust that the coming year will be one of happiness and prosperity for you all.

D. A. CASSIDY

I wish to thank all employees of Youngstown Terminal for their splendid cooperation since I have been in charge, and I sincerely wish you one and all, a Merry Christmas, and Happy and Prosperous New Year.

J. C. KLINE

Terminal Trainmaster

The first noise I heard when I got home was "what was doing in Baltimore?" First of all we extend thanks for the way we were entertained, and also to Baltimore City for the interest taken in our conference and their wonderful hospitality.

There are just a few incidents in connection with our trip I will mention, the MAGAZINE covering the rest.

1—Mr Willard's speech—"Safety Above All Things!"

2—To co-operate with our neighbors along the road. In case of epidemic or fire, notify the Company and co-operate with our neighbors at all times.

3—To work for the Company not because you have to but because you want to.

Sympathy is extended to J. C. Ritty, round house clerk, on the death of his infant son.

It has been impressed upon me that Terminal Train Master, J. C. Kline is a firm believer in "Safety First." My advice to the boys is "Watch your foot."

Brakeman Joe Vince was in the limelight at Youngstown this week. Auto—lots of gas—city cop—$25.00 and costs. Not so bad!

Mary Welsh is again with us. She has found that there is only one real place to work and that is for the Baltimore and Ohio.

Conductor Boomhower reports the arrival of a new son. Sorry that we can't report the arrival of some new smokes!

Brakeman Conley was seriously injured in a street car collision, while on his way to work. He is now in St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Friends are invited to call, as he will not be able to get around for some time to come.

The sympathy of the entire force is extended to Conductor and Mrs. D. A. Flynn because of the death of their young daughter.

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS FROM ADVERTISER FRIENDS!

THE MAHONING NATIONAL BANK and THE MAHONING SAVINGS & TRUST COMPANY YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO

We Welcome the Railroad Employees at this Bank and We Offer You: A Banking Service You Will Surely Like.

Hotel Ohio—Tod House

FIREPROOF

RATES:

THE OHIO.....$2.50 up
TOD HOUSE.....$2.00 up

Cafeteria and Dairy Lunch in Connection

The Ohio Hotel Operating Co.

M. C. HARMAN, Pres.

Compliments of

THE CENTRAL SAVINGS & LOAN COMPANY

Federal Street and Central Square
YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO

Make your Savings Bank home with an institution that pays two kinds of interest one—personal, the other

5%

Bell Phone 922

MOSE J. ROSENBAUM & SON

412-414 East Federal Street
OUTFITTERS FOR MEN AND BOYS
YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO

Rochester Fashion Park Clothes, Stetson Hats,
Manhattan Shirts, Signal Shirts, Sweet Orr
Pants and Overalls

HIPPODROME

CONTINUOUS

NOW 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. Daily
12.30 to 11 p. m. Sunday

High-Class Vaudeville and Super Photo Plays

POPULAR PRICES

A good way to check your time is to get the old time piece out when the "Capitol Limited" comes rolling in at 11.07 p. m. Never late!

General Yard Master Updegraph recently passed around the cigars. No explanation could be secured. Someone must have done something or else Updegraph did.

The office force enjoyed the candy sent to them by Mr. Tokohu, Japanese Government Railways, who was in Haselton recently in connection with his study of the America railroads.

Painesville, Ohio

Correspondent, C. C. CLEVENGER

We want to become better acquainted with our fellow employees. We are located on the banks of Lake Erie, in a town of nine thousand population, in one of the most beautiful locations on the Baltimore and Ohio.

We expect to send items each month, hoping others may enjoy them as much as we enjoy reading their items. We feel we get a great deal of benefit as well as pleasure from the MAGAZINE.

We miss F. P. Ryan's familiar face on Painesville streets. Evidently F. P. is staying close home. Congratulations, Francis and Irene. Wish you a prosperous and a happy life.

The Car Shop employees wish to extend their sympathy to N. Allport and family in the loss of Mr. Allport's mother and daughter.

While we regret the loss of Shop Clerk R. G. Goff, we are glad to announce his appointment as postmaster at Painesville. Mr. Goff was in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio for more than twenty years at Painesville.

Lorain, Ohio

Correspondent, F. W. HARMON

My visit to Baltimore on October 26 and 27 to attend the Conference of MAGAZINE Correspondents was most pleasant. The addresses of President Willard, Vice-

AT PAINESVILLE, OHIO

Above: Car Shop Supervising Force at Painesville, twenty years ago. Standing, left to right: Storekeeper Arthur Kaufman, Assistant Storekeeper Harry Flannigan, Assistant Timekeeper Arthur (Monk) King, Timekeeper Joseph King. Seated: Assistant Foreman Andrew Patton, General Car Foreman T. J. Raftery, Piece Work Inspector Carl Perry. The office shown is now used by Storekeeper. Center: the Plant at Fairport where we will handle three million tons of ore this season. Below: Coal Dock, Fairport, Ohio, where we will handle one million tons coal this season

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Correspondent F. W. Harmon, Lorain, Ohio, sends us this photograph of wild ducks on the lake in front of his house, which faces Lake Erie. The ducks are blue bills. Because of ice in the river and lake the ducks were hungry, but managed to get food at times by diving to the bottom of the lake, 16 feet. Food was scattered on the lake by Mr. Harmon to coax them nearer to the shore

President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood were very much appreciated. The friendly spirit existing between the Management and the employes was much in evidence. We are glad that we have the MAGAZINE to further this spirit, which is the essence of Christmas, which will soon be here with its blessings.

The Lorain Docks report a good season in 1923, and are now about to close on account of the cold weather and frozen lakes.

Zack Robinson, general dock carpenter, has left for Florida.

Conductors Sullivan and Mock will soon start for Florida for their health. We will miss them both but hope to see them back again in the spring.

Cleveland Terminal

Correspondent, H. B. SMITH

To Co-workers, Employes and Friends:

The spirit of cooperation that has prevailed during the past year in the Cleveland Terminal has resulted in a performance that has never before been equalled. Much new business has been attracted by our service and our old patrons are still with us. Just so long as this spirit continues we can look forward to good business on our Railroad, and from our hearts we can really celebrate a Happy New Year.

To yourselves and families, we extend best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a happy and successful New Year.

G. R. LITTELL
A. H. GENSLEY
C. A. BURDGE
H. E. KIRKWOOD
J. I. MALONE
J. H. GRAFTON
T. L. ROWE
GEO. MAISCH
DR. A. A. CHURCH

Among those present at the recent Conference of Magazine Correspondents in Baltimore, was the writer. Employes are not fair to their families when they don't take their MAGAZINES home so that the Women's and Children's pages will reach those for whom they are intended. The writer was much impressed by the addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood.

Our officers are certainly trying to make railroad work more attractive by showing their appreciation and giving us all a square deal. It is through the MAGAZINE that the messages of our officers are passed along to our employes so that they may know what the Railroad is trying to do and how. You can't afford to miss any of the future numbers. See that you get your copy from foreman or superior officer.

At Columbus Street Freight House, cheek weighing of freight is getting contagious, Tallymen Wolff, Lipa and Reese all running close for first place, with Lipa in the lead for October. The total for this month amounted to $533.65.

The "Holeproof" girl is not worrying much about style. But Louise is making good as secretary of the Welfare Association.

W. C. Thompson is the new foreman at the Lake Warehouse, and it goes without saying, courtesy and service will predominate.

Thomas Brennan has taken charge of the Fruit Yard and has shown that he can fill his predecessor's shoes.

The Annual Thanksgiving Dinner was a huge success at the Columbus Street Freight Station, much credit being due to the cheerful way our girls responded to the call for food, and the way several of the boys insisted on more than their share. Somebody suggested, for the benefit of the young married folks employed at the station, that such a feast should be held at least once each week. Why not consult the Women's Department of our MAGAZINE when "she" just don't like to cook?

To Louis Kuntz, our junior mailing clerk, we extend our heart felt sympathy in the recent loss of his mother.

Thomas Redding is showing the ability to qualify since accepting a position in the Cashier's Office.

Marie Shirley says that reverses mean nothing in her life. Leap year will soon be here.

Sarah Connelly admits her popularity has increased since it became known that she is driving her Hupp—but the boys haven't yet relieved her of buying gas.

John Disler has recently purchased a cozy home. Don't be surprised to hear of John feathering his nest.

Cleveland Traffic Department

Correspondent, A. R. STROME

Fellow Employes:

Of my 17 years of service in the Traffic Department, the year 1923 has been the happiest and the most prosperous of all.

Business secured for our Company has exceeded our fondest hopes and our service has been improved to such an extent that it has won the praise of our patrons and the attention of our competitors. These accomplishments were the result of the combined efforts of all departments and of all employes.

The Baltimore and Ohio is the oldest railroad in the United States, and a continuance of the spirit of 1923 will soon establish it as "The Most Dependable Railroad" in the United States.

I wish you Christmas Joy and Happiness.

J. C. KIMES

Assistant General Freight Agent

Greetings, Fellow Workers of Cleveland:

It has been a pleasure to be among you and to find the splendid spirit of cooperation which makes hard work a real pleasure.

May the coming year bring you health and a joint prosperity with our "Best and Only Railroad."

C. W. SHINNAMON

Coal Freight Agent

Employes of the Akron Division:

The cooperation and assistance you have given the Passenger Department for the

CLEVELAND TERMINAL

Left: And they said Fred was bashful! Evidently Akron has changed him. Right: Sarah Connelly at the age of two. Her smile still remains

Freight Representatives Roller and Smith, with Magazine Correspondent A. R. Strome, Cleveland, on the roof of the new Union Trust Building past year has been exceptionally gratifying and I wish to thank you one and all for your services in assisting us to increase the passenger revenue on the Division.

I trust we will have the same kindly relations during the coming year.

J. G. STRICKENBURG
Division Passenger Agent

The Traffic Department employes held their first "real" party in their new quarters in the Union Trust Building on October 30.

Decorations, in the nature of black cats, witches and concealed lights, gave the daytime workshop a weird and spooky appearance. Pumpkin pies, doughnuts and cider, together with ghost stories, etc, lent a real Hallowe'en spirit to the occasion.

Music was furnished by "The Roller—One-piece Victor—Orchestra," the transportation of which to the scene of festivities was the cause of no little anxiety to those in charge of the arrangements.

Our new coal freight agent, C. W. Shinnamon, contributed to the enjoyment of the evening, this being his first appearance at any of our social affairs.

Now that vacations are over, everybody has settled down to the job of getting more business for "The Most Dependable Railroad."

From the accompanying photo of Freight Representatives Roller and Smith and Assistant Chief Clerk Strome—taken on the roof of the 22 story Union Trust Building—you can see that at least some of us are getting up in the world.

"Grandfather" Paden, North Baltimore

Things That Never Happen

Ed. Burke late for work.
"Pat" Glancy moving faster than a walk.
Roller leading Cleveland's "Sympathy" Orchestra.
"Jim" White not talking about something to eat.
Tessie without her "gum."
"Jake" Leingang with nothing to do.
Richmond without a flat tire.
Frank Dunkle without a "chaw."
"Mac" not betting on the horse.
Cap't Dano was without a smile.

Aultman, Ohio

Our photo is of Agent J. J. Marlow, Aultman, Ohio. Mr. Marlow commenced work on the C. T. & V. Branch on April 1, 1887, as brakeman. In October of the same year, he had the misfortune to lose a leg while coupling cars equipped with the old link and pin. On February 16, 1889 he was checked in as agent and operator at Aultman, where he has remained ever since. At the time of Mr. Marlow's employment, the branch was known as the Cleveland Terminal and Valley, and his station by the name of Greentown.

The little girl in the photograph is Gladia May, daughter of Mr. Marlow's son Harry, who was formerly a train dispatcher on the Cleveland Division.

J. J. Marlow, Agent, Aultman, Ohio, with his grand-daughter, Gladia

Chicago Terminal

Correspondent, E. B. OLIVER

The Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad at present is dispatching 50 engines every day in switching service, manned by the same number of engine and train crews. An average of nine transfer crews are handling our road work, making a round trip daily. We are operating over 85 miles of double track and 16 miles of single track. We also handle 53 passenger trains daily for the Pere Marquette, Chicago Great Western, Soo Line and Baltimore and Ohio proper, not mentioning the freight trains. Our train dispatchers are handling this large volume of business over an improved telephone system, installed about one year ago. There are 400 to 450 train movements registered every twenty-four hours. The largest volume of business ever handled in one month was in October just past, when 54,270 cars were interchanged with connecting lines, 33,653 being loads. The preceding month, 52,944 cars were interchanged, of which 32,854 were loads. This reflects the co-operation existing between Management and employes.

Crossing Watchman C. Ramsey, North Baltimore, Ohio

Mrs. John Latshaw recently returned from Pasadena, California, with the good news that her daughter, Carrie Latshaw McCarthy, had presented her hubby with a fine baby boy. Carrie, we all know, was employed before her marriage in Mr. Moses' Office, and "Hubby Joe" as a machinist in Robey St. Shops. Carrie and "Joe" will not be outdone by the Rosenbergs and Cloughs. Grandpa and Grandma Latshaw are wearing smiles that won't come off.

Hallowe'en night, Mr. West, sheik of the General Office and private secretary to Mr. DeVeny, was out riding with a bunch of his shebas in a Lizzie Sedan. He had the misfortune to meet a sister Lizzie in collision. Shiek West was painfully cut with broken glass and says it is very uncomfortable for him to sit down. He is now taking dictation standing up.

Notice to Employes

Any employe who has some news that he or she thinks will interest employes in general, will please send it to correspondent or get in touch with him over telephone. Assistance along this line is earnestly solicited and will be appreciated by me. Telephone Austin 7783.

On December 12 there will be a dance and card party for employes and their friends at Midway Masonic Temple Association Building, 64th and Cottage Grove

And here's the Daddy of that fine looking North Baltimore, Ohio, family which appears in these columns. Agent F. W. Paden

AGENT F. W. PADEN, NORTH BALTIMORE, OHIO, IS PROUD OF HIS FAMILY. HERE ARE THE REASONS:
Left to right: Mildred, Mary, Frank Junior and two playmates, Dorothy, Mother and Betty Avenues. The dancing will begin at eight o'clock, the grand march to take place at 9.30. There will be 25 tables for playing Five Hundred and 25 tables for Bunco. One of Chicago's finest 10-piece orchestras will furnish the music.

Chicago Division

Correspondent, GERTRUDE G. CROW

To Employees of the Chicago Division:

The past year has been, in some respects, an eminently successful one for the Chicago Division. We have broken quite a number of records and have manifested our ability to contribute our proportion in achieving for the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad that reputation for service which we know is possible and which we all so strenuously desire. The results accomplished in the past have been solely due to the marked spirit of cooperation which exists and which

I know it is the aim of every one on the Division not only to continue, but to strengthen.

We still have some problems before us which need solution, and I not only thank you for what has been accomplished in the past, but solicit your further cooperation in working out the objects which we desire to accomplish.

Very truly yours,

S. U. HOOPER

Superintendent

Garrett, Ind.

Christmas Greetings to all the Baltimore and Ohio Family.

The Joyous Christmas Season is at hand. The Spirit of Christmas pervades everywhere, and rightly so, for have we not numerous reasons to be joyful?

May the spirit of happiness and contentment so conspicuous during the year 1923, continue, and be intensified during the years to come.

The spirit of co-operation, friendliness and harmony so apparent on the Baltimore and Ohio today exemplifies the Master's wish for "Peace on Earth, Good Will toward Men."

Wishing all a Merry Christmas.

D. E. SULLIVAN

Division Freight Agent

The Correspondents' Conference at Baltimore, October 26 and 27, was one that will not soon be forgotten by those who had the pleasure of attending. The MAGAZINE staff left nothing undone to make the occasion an enjoyable one, this being typical of the feeling of friendliness which exists between the management and the employees, and which was further emphasized in the talks by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood.

THIS PHOTOGRAPH, LOANED BY BLACKSMITH FOREMAN J. T. McSWEENEY, IS OF THE BLACKSMITH FORCE, GARRETT, IND., IN 1907
First row, seated: left to right: C. Stahl, F. Grischke, W. McKee, J. T. McSweeney, Daniel Woodward, Michael McChristal, W. Harris, Aaron Ober, M. Krus.
Second row: A. Rhodes, H. Lumm, Gottlieb Maurer, Jay Snyder, Dave Mortie, C. Lumm, F. Stahl, John Zmyslony. Third row: C. Pausel, J. Stefanski, Henry Geiser, Seward Freest. Fourth row: L. McCorty, V. Maloetspy, V. Zumbunner, V. Paluszak, F. Johnson, F. Galloway, M. Goddowski, C. Bohles

It is the purpose of the MAGAZINE to keep this fact before the employees at all times by publishing articles that will be helpful and interesting, and we hope as the years pass by, that this spirit of friendliness may continue to flourish.

Garrett, Indiana

On the evening of October 29, Floyd Sparks, rural mail carrier, residing about three miles east of Willard, Ohio, discovered eight inches of broken rail on westbound track, Akron Division. He immediately called roundhouse foreman, Willard, by phone, notified him of the condition, and remained there to flag any trains that might be coming, until men arrived to make the necessary repairs.

F. F. Karns, chief clerk to Division Freight Agent Sullivan, has been appointed traveling freight agent, Garrett. The vacancy caused by Mr. Karns' promotion has been filled by F. L. Schlotter, rate clerk.

C. L. Woodcox, night yardmaster, has been granted an indefinite leave of absence to go into business for himself. He has taken over the Auto. Repair Department in McLaughlin's Garage, and has promised to keep all our cars in first-class condition, free of charge.

Freight Claim Prevention meetings are again in vogue on the Chicago Division, the first one being held on October 25, W. A. Clifford, agent, was appointed chairman.

The accompanying photograph shows a number of bones which were found in the Kankakee River, five miles west of Walkerton, Indiana. The river is being dredged at this point, and the bones were discovered at a depth of from 8 to 12 feet beneath the surface. They were sent to Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D. C., and they report that as near as can be determined, the bones were those of a Mammoth, which animal has been extinct for nearly ten thousand years. The large tooth in the fore part of the picture weighs nine pounds.

A unique Hallowe'en party was given at the home of Miss Meta Grischke, on October 30. The rooms were decorated in colors appropriate to the occasion, while the guests arrived in masks. Santa Claus was there, bringing with him clowns, pirates and ghosts of all descriptions. The evening was spent with music and games, prizes having been awarded to E. A. Crow, H. Watkins, Dorothy Brinkman and Vesta Marvin.

Miss Vesta Marvin, stenographer to yardmaster, entertained the following guests at a four course dinner at her home on November 7. Misses Margaret Hammers, Theresa Schunk, Meta Grischke, Clarice Horn, Alma Grischke and Messrs. "Coe" VanLear, L. E. Grove, H. L. Haffner, F. F. Karns, E. A. Crow and G. R. Dean. The evening was spent in dancing and playing progressive Bunco.

A machine long needed at Garrett has been supplied. An Elwell-Parker 3000 pounds capacity portable crane truck, electrically driven, has just been received and is now being installed. With this crane, movement of material will be greatly facilitated about the shops, and will do away with much of the heavy trucking and lifting formerly done by hand. This being the first machine of its kind ever operated here, it is attracting considerable attention.

The photograph of Clarice Horn, secretary to division engineer, and her "official escort," was taken on Mt. Tamalpais, Cal., during the American Legion Convention at San Francisco. Miss Horn was elected delegate from the Twelfth District of Indiana to represent the Ladies' Auxiliary, and from all reports the convention was successful in more ways than one. Miss Horn says that while she has nothing uncomplimentary to say regarding the several western railroads over which she traveled, none of them was up to the maintenance standard of the Baltimore and Ohio, and a noticeable feature was that our dining car service could not be beaten.

North Baltimore, Ohio

The photograph on second preceding page is Crossing Watchman Ramsey, an important figure in the life of our town. Day in and day out, rain or shine, he stands at our main crossing and watches over the safety of our citizens, their families and friends. A short time ago he wanted to leave the service, but North Baltimoreans are warm hearted folk. Such a protest was made that he finally agreed to remain, and there he stands. Always a smile for you, always a hearty handshake for his friends and the pleasant word that makes life worth while.

And his little crossing shanty? It's a picture of neatness, inside and out. During the recent Golden Anniversary celebration, Mr. Ramsey personally decorated it, and it was well worth seeing.

Talking with many of North Baltimore's prominent citizens we heard nothing but praise for our friend, the crossing watchman, and it gives us pleasure to tell the other folk on the System about it and to show them, in a picture, just how Mr. Ramsey looks when he's on the job.

South Chicago

Correspondent, ESTHER J. MOBERG

At the Correspondents' Conference held in Baltimore on October 26 and 27, needless to say, we all had a wonderful time. I sincerely appreciated President Willard's talk and the opportunity to again shake hands with him (he visited us here several years ago); likewise Vice-President Gallo-way's talk. It is an indication of the friendliness and the spirit of cooperation which exists between the management and the employees all over the railroad. Mr. Scheer's talk on the history of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was most interesting, and I thoroughly appreciated Mr. Wood's remarks also.

M. Altherr has again taken up his duties as assistant agent, Mr. Maginn returning to Chicago proper.

The stork has stopped again at John Wolinski's home—a son. That makes nine now, doesn't it, John? Also, a son has made his headquarters at the home of James Polcaster. Where are all the girls?

GARRETT FOLK DIG UP RELICS 10,000 YEARS OLD!

Top row, left: Mrs. "Division Accountant" W. S. Hopkins and C. T. Time Clerk Miss Berenice Grosscup, with Mr. Hopkins' brand new Maxwell sedan. Center: "Sunnybrook," record high jump 7 feet 9 inches, owned by Supervising Agent W. J. Mulvihill and Veteran Steeplechaser P. Callahan, the latter for ten years was trainer for the Governor of South Africa. Right: Miss Clarice Horn, Secretary to Division Engineer and her "Official" escort, on Mt. Tamalpais, Cal. Second row, left to right: General Foreman H. Rees, Master Mechanic E. J. McSweeney, Inspector Harris and Engineer S. T. Leek. Below: Bones found in the Kankakee River, near Walkerton, see notes

Mae McNicholas, our genial telephone operator, became the bride of Ray Miller at a pretty wedding at St. Dorothy's Church on October 10. Congratulations!

We hear that Homer Renick and "Ed" Meyzidlo have also taken the "fatal" step but we haven't been able to secure the names of the "lucky" girls. Last, but not least, Ray O'Brien, yard clerk, has taken unto himself a wife. Why not tell us more about it, boys? Heartiest congratulations!

Mary Ryan has taken up her work on the Reclaims, LaVerne Thompson succeeding her, Frank Stack and Veronica Pluard moving up one notch on the Records. The top of the ladder is not far away. Congratulations!

Terminal Trainmaster R. R. Huggins, M. Altherr, assistant agent, C. H. McCrary, storekeeper, J. E. Quigley, general foreman and R. A. Kleist, car foreman extend their sincere good wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year. In my own little way, I want to say to all—"Ditto." With the New Year, help the writer by sending to her good pictures, and notes galore. South Chicago is on the map—help to keep it there. As President Willard says "Not because we have to, but because we want to."

Newark Division

Correspondent, B. A. OATMAN

To All Employees, Newark Division:

We are approaching the close of the heaviest year's business ever handled by American railroads. Of this business the good old Baltimore and Ohio has handled successfully a large part. This has been made possible by the hearty cooperation and willing effort of every employe from the lowest to the highest, and to those of you on the Newark Division I want to express my sincere thanks and appreciation for your splendid support. May you and yours enjoy a Merry Christmas and an even more Prosperous and Happy New Year.

H. G. KRUSE, Superintendent

Employees, Motive Power Department, Newark Division:

We are nearing the end of another year, one which I am sure was enjoyed by all employes because of the feeling of contentment prevailing among us. Cooperation has been the means of making 1923 one of the most successful in the history of the Baltimore and Ohio. I take this means of extending to you and yours a Very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

F. E. COOPER, Master Mechanic

Maintenance of Way Men, Newark Division:

Greetings and salutations!

During the past year the railroads of the country have broken every record in their history. They have obtained more miles per car, more train tonnage per mile, and added more engines and cars to the rolling stock than ever before.

On our own Newark Division we have received more ballast, more material, more rail than ever before. Water lines have been put in good shape, bridges strengthened and improvements made in signals. We have good reasons to be pleased because these improvements and records were made through the splendid cooperation and work of every man on the Newark Division, and want to congratulate the Maintenance of Way employes for the splendid showing that they have made.

Let next year be a bigger and better year! wish you all a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

A. R. CARVER, Division Engineer

Everyone seems to have taken a great interest in saving, especially employes in the shops. You see hardly any material lying around, the scrap bins are in use always, scrap is sorted and storekeeper has sales certificate for most any kind of scrap. No wonder we are getting along so well—we are saving the waste which comes back to us in cash.

Hot boxes! Yes, we have heard of them before but just stop and think how many cars are set off on a division in one day. The loss of the use of the equipment cuts down our showing in car miles. Let's make a reduction in the number of hot boxes during the coming year a good New Year's resolution.

Charles G. Miller, supervisor of shop schedules, is a married man. He slipped one over on us but we enjoyed the good cigars and sweetmeats just the same. Congratulations, "Charlie!"

After a lingering illness, Machinist William F. Floyd passed from our midst. Mr. Floyd was assistant foreman in Round house at Newark for a number of years. We extend to those who mourn, our heartfelt sympathy.

The sympathy of the Newark Shop employes was extended generously to the widow of Machinist William F. Floyd, who died, October 10 after a lingering illness. The boys presented Mrs. Floyd with a purse containing $315.

We are looking for photographs of employes of the Baltimore and Ohio where a goodly number of the members of the family are employed at various occupations. We have been advised that there are several families on the Newark Division, where five or six members are employed by the Baltimore and Ohio. Will you please mail photos with names, occupations and where employed to Division Correspondent Oatman, Newark, Ohio. Thank you!

If it is a HOME that you are looking for, you could not be in a better position to own one than you are by being employed by the Baltimore and Ohio. You certainly have heard of the furnishing of money by the Relief Department to be used in building a home for you and your family, a place that you can call YOUR OWN. If you have been in the habit of paying rent year after year, listen to this: In seven years you can have your home paid for completely by making regular monthly payments, these deducted from your pay check. How many homes have you paid for since you started to pay rent and what have you to show for all that good money the landlord placed in the bank at interest. Make up your mind that Christmas, 1924 will find you in a home that will in a few years be your own.

The automobile seems to have a good many employes hypnotized, to wit: automobile first, home last!

Our pictures this month include one of Yard Conductor Robert W. Lytle who entered service of the Baltimore and Ohio on September 28, 1901, made an excellent record as clerk and was made yard brakeman, September 7, 1909.

On March 23, 1913 he was made assistant yardmaster at Newark and held this position until August 3, 1913 when he was made yard conductor. "Bob," as everyone knows him, likes handling a train better than supervising and is one of the best yard men we have at Newark.

"Bob" likes his garden and handles it a la Burbank. He has posed for the MAGAZINE while engaged in his favorite pastime.

The Division Engineer's Office has a bowling team, a good one, too, and would like to arrange match games with any good Baltimore and Ohio teams in Newark or vicinity. As a special favor would ask that only good teams reply as we do not care to waste our time on "has been" or "will be" teams.

Accounting Department

Correspondent, R. T. GEORGE

I extend Christmas Greetings and Best Wishes to all employes of the Accounting Department, and I wish to thank all for the hearty cooperation and good fellowship which have been especially noticeable during the past year. I also desire to extend Christmas Greetings and best wishes to the officials and employes of the Operating Department and thank them for the friendly spirit of helpfulness and cooperation which we have received from all. With sincerest regards

JAMES JOHNSTON
Division Accountant

Owing to the illness of Mr. Oatman, I was the only representative from Newark station at the Conference of Correspondents in Baltimore, October 26, 27, and I can personally say that my hat is off to the Company for the splendid entertainment provided. Mr. Willard talked to us in an informal and friendly way and I am proud that I am an employe of a Company having him at its head.

General Manager Scherer and W. W. Wood, chief of the Welfare Department, talked to us at the informal dinner on October 26 and Vice-President Galloway spoke at the meeting held the next day. These gentlemen, and other officials of the Company expressed to us their sincere appreciation of the cooperation of all employes, with wishes that this friendliness may continue to grow.

The MAGAZINE itself is not a business venture of the Company, but is maintained at great expense to further this spirit of good feeling between the Management and the employes, and it is hoped that the employes will use these columns to cooperate with the correspondents by furnishing news of interest to all the other employes over the whole System.

To the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, the employes of the Newark Division extend their sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous and Successful Year 1924.

"Orrie" Reel, transportation timekeeper, is spending his spare time supervising the building of a new $8,000.00 home on Summit Street.

"Tom" Snyder, delegate to the National Convention of the American Legion held in San Francisco recently, has returned home.

Miss Stevens, the "Aunt Mary" of the MAGAZINE staff, appreciates any communications from the ladies. If you have any new recipes or some idea of doing some of your household duties with less effort than formerly, let "Aunt Mary" know about it, and she will inform others on the System, thereby making things easier for them also.

Christmas Greetings!

The season of gladness, joyous homecomings and reunited loved ones, the Christmastide—when the greetings of man to man and the true fellowship of all God's children, bespeak that great and everlasting faith in one Creator and in one Lord Jesus Christ!

This should be the thoughts of each and every one, not only during the Christmas time, but during the New Year to come and each succeeding year thereafter. True

C. C. Grimm: I saw the Ford coming and the truck going, and being in a hurry I thought I'd just ooze in between and get ahead of the Ford fellowship of all God's children. That is what this world of ours was built on, love of man for man, and with this practiced by each of us to make the lives of others more happy, our own lives will be much happier on this earth, and our rewards much greater in the hereafter.

Newark, Ohio, Station

The removal of the month of December, 1923 from your calendar will mark the passing of one of the most successful years in the history of the Baltimore and Ohio and your genuine helpfulness has contributed to this success.

It has been a year of happiness in homes of the majority of the employees because of the steady increase in business which necessitated the employment of an increased number of men and good pay checks every pay day. Steady employment is sure to promote thrift and home conditions become improved when the head of the home is constantly engaged. There is a steady increase in the applications for loans from the Relief Department, hardly a day going by that some one does not inquire in regard to the loans handled through the Relief Department.

The future looks bright indeed for members of the Baltimore and Ohio family and we should start the new year with a feeling of satisfaction that we have helped as best we could to bring about this good result. Your help in making 1924 a better year will no doubt result in an even better ending. May your Christmas be Merry and your New Year Happy.

Mansfield

Correspondent, C. R. STONE

Fred Hannaman, acting agent at Mansfield following Mr. Stockwell's promotion to yardmaster, has now left us and gone back to Shelby. Fred is a nice fellow and we enjoyed his brief visit with us.

Our new agent, R. R. Perry, coming to us from Frederickstown, is a fine fellow and a hustler. Good luck to you, Mr. Perry!

W. O. Stockwell, yardmaster, is having his hands full with the number of cars he has to handle and is working long and hard to keep the business moving and rushing all empties where they are most needed.

The new team tracks south of the Freight House are kept busy right along and we hope that we will have to have more to accommodate the patrons of the Baltimore and Ohio.

The Baltimore and Ohio Savings feature is a great thing and many homes have been bought through careful saving and sacrifice and we will do well to patronize this institution whenever possible to do so. A Penny seems small, but with its brothers, Common Cents, it can work Wonders. It may mean College for the children, a home and business, or many other things that require capital. Take Care Of Your Money and It Will Take Care Of You.

The time is drawing near when Santa Claus is to be the honored guest. What man, woman or child does not think of him at this hour? Father and mother are busy planning, the children are writing to Santa Claus and visioning the little pine tree in the corner beautifully decorated by loving hands. The Christmas spirit is a beautiful one.

Marietta

Correspondent, G. R. STEEN

It was the great privilege of this correspondent to attend the Conference of Magazine Correspondents at Baltimore on October 26 and 27. It gave us an unusual opportunity to see how Baltimore was served by our Company, to meet with others interested, as we are, in Baltimore and Ohio affairs, and to see a wonderful football game. Better, yet, we were enabled to get first hand information as to the way our leaders feel toward us of the rank and file. While listening to addresses by President Willard, who is a man of a very democratic spirit and makes one feel that you had known him for a long time, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare, Wood, we were struck time and again by their very evident sincere friendship for all of us and their desire to help and foster a friendly spirit among ourselves. It is this spirit of good will that overflows and reaches the people we serve and helps us deserve the name, "The Friendly Railroad." I am glad to say that this spirit has been developed to an unusual extent at this station.

Mr. Willard impressed upon us time and again his desire for a closer relationship between employees and Management and he wants us all to say that we are not working for the Baltimore and Ohio, but that we are working with the Baltimore and Ohio. We can all be proud to work for a Company with such a man at its head.

We have had with us for a week, J. A. Byrne, gardner, from Relay, Md., who has been fixing up "Beauty Spots" on our property in line with plans made in early summer. This work was undertaken in cooperation with the officials of the city with the end in view of making "The Pioneer City" the most beautiful on the Baltimore and Ohio. What has been done already will make some of our other stations look like back numbers. We at Marietta appreciate the personal interest taken in this work by Superintendent Kruse, Division Engineer Carver and others.

Mr. A. J. Snodgrass, non-employee, while crossing over our yards the other day, found a broken rail on one of the switches. He immediately notified Section Foreman Daily who repaired it and thereby prevented possible accident.

It so happened that Miss Reynolds, utility clerk, and Joe Kerwin, demurrage clerk, were occupying the same seat going to Circleville the other day. Joe decided he wanted a smoke, so went forward. In the meantime a young gentleman seated across the aisle from Miss Reynolds, after noting that Joe didn't return, said to her, "I see your grandfather is not coming back." Get that, fellows?

We speak for all the employees at Marietta when we extend our best wishes for a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year and say with Rip Van Winkle, "May you live long and prosper."

I wish all the boys in the Maintenance of Way Department a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year

A. LEMASTER, Road Supervisor
Marietta

Our chief clerk and correspondent, G. R. Steen, had the pleasure of attending the recent gathering of correspondents at Baltimore and reports a wonderful time. When he was telling us about the fine banquet all the boys in the office got so hungry that they simply could not work the rest of the morning. This was particularly true of Cashier Schantz, who surely does enjoy a good full meal. Mr. Steen's only disappointment was that he was not able to get acquainted with as many young ladies as he had anticipated. We are sorry, Raymond, but rather imagine you were a little too bashful. How about sending Rate Clerk Mellor over to Baltimore with his new Dodge and inviting some of these young ladies over to see us? Can't you just picture him returning with his ear loaded to full capacity?

C. M. REYNOLDS, Clerk

Sandusky

Correspondent, R. SCHEMNAUER

In the Conference of Correspondents held in Baltimore, October 26, 27, the point which was brought out in all the splendid talks of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway and General Manager Scheer, was that officers and employees alike were doing their best work because of a personal desire to make our Railroad the best in the country. I believe that this spirit is in everybody who serves this Company, for if they did not feel so it would be impossible to make our present fine showing.

The loading of fresh fish at Sandusky, Ohio, is now on in full swing. There is loaded an average of 300 boxes a day for the season which lasts for several months. As the fish go to all points in the United States; to Wheeling, Columbus, Philadelphia and New York, there is good revenue in this business and it is not uncommon to have two or more extra cars to take care of it.

Rolland Bauman and Pearl Lublow of Sandusky have moved to Hazelton, Pa.,

where Mr. Bauman is employed as a car foreman.

Miss Lublow has annexed the title of Mrs. and they served notice on Messrs. Miles, Fisher and Cheshire that they had a fine time looking over the sights at Washington, D. C. Mr. Bauman was formerly at the Sandusky Shops and moved to the Hazelton Shops early this year.

Fred Walsh, the regular operator at Sandusky who took a six months furlough in May, was expected to return to his duties on November 15. C. H. Spaine was here during leave of Mr. Walsh.

Otto Reid has returned to us as a trucker after a two year absence. Reid was formerly a caller at this station when it was operated as a transfer station in 1920. He was married in September.

Wilbur Hartman, Newark, and of the Car Foreman's Office there, is now the night clerk at this station and is progressing well with the work.

John Seitz, who has worked for the Railroad for 25 years, has been assigned to the Market Street Crossing formerly taken care of by the late Ed. Tracey.

The water trains are still being run from Sandusky to Willard. There are three a day, consisting of 30 tank cars each. This requires three train crews and several men to run the pump, which fills a car of 8000 gallons in less than two minutes. In connection with the above we may mention that one of the water trains is under the direction and guidance of none other than John Mitchell the First, the conductor who says himself that he is the best conductor on the Road.

Sandusky Car Department

To Employees, Sandusky Car Shop:

As the year draws to a close it is pleasant to review our work for the past ten months. Through our combined effort our Shop now ranks with the older and larger shops on the System. Because of this we may all look forward to the New Year as offering opportunity for still greater achievement. This year has been the best for Sandusky Shop in the past several years and together we may feel that this year there has been something accomplished, something done. It is with sincere pleasure that I wish you and your families a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

FRANK E. CHESHIRE Foreman

The Shop bowling team, after getting off to a bad start, is now gaining on the Home League leaders. Miles is leading the scoring, with Wobser second, Hirt third, Gast fourth and Hankey fifth. Although both contests with outside teams were lost, return contests have been scheduled.

The Local Lodge of Carmen presented the Shop with a large flag and it was displayed for the first time on October 12.

A number of men who came to us from the L. & N. and the S. L. & S. F., have decided to make Sandusky their permanent home. They have long ago been accepted as competent workmen and valuable employees and we are glad that they have decided to stay with us.

Columbus

Correspondents, R. KENNETT, EDITH ROACH
Employees, Newark Division:

Christmas is the season of good will. Good will has developed among men because they have come to appreciate that when they cooperate they are all better off than when they are antagonistic in their relations toward one another.

That this spirit of good will be manifest at this Christmas season and throughout the New Year is my wish to all the members of our Baltimore and Ohio family.

M. H. BROUGHTON

Trainmaster and Chief Train Dispatcher,
Columbus, Ohio

After a pleasant trip to Baltimore on October 26 and 27, I cannot help but feel all the more that spirit of friendliness and helpfulness between Management and employees, as outlined at our meetings by our officers, President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood in their addresses to us.

That this spirit of friendliness and helpfulness may be with us for years to come, is my Christmas wish to all the readers of our MAGAZINE.

Operator O. A. Rusler, Summit, had the misfortune to fall out of a tree recently, breaking a rib and receiving other slight injuries, causing him to be absent from duty several days.

It is reported around Black Lick that Operator S. G. Gaines is going to move to a farm in the near future, having received the following farm implements on October 31 (Halloween): a two horse wagon, spring wagon, mowing machine, two wheel barrows (one for his wife), a jersey cow, chicken coops and many other small articles. "Shorty" says he may change his mind and have a public sale.

With regret we announce the death of Operator A. E. Wagner's father at his home at Wellston, on October 24. Our sympathy is extended to the bereaved relatives.

The wives of Operators N. McClerg and D. Letherman, Cleveland Avenue, are reported slowly improving after several weeks' illness.

While working on Broad Street, Helper Brakeman H. F. Davis had an accident resulting in the amputation of his right arm. It is reported from the hospital that he is getting along nicely.

Columbus Freight House

Correspondent, EDITH ROACH

Employees, Freight House:

We are closing a most prosperous year for our Company and for our station and one that has shown the good will of our employees.

Let us go through next year with the same cooperation and friendship and make it a still more prosperous year for the Company and the same pleasant kind of a year for ourselves.

E. D. BALDWIN, Agent

As a correspondent, I was invited to Baltimore to attend a Conference of the Correspondents from all over the System.

The addresses by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood made us proud to know that we are part of the Baltimore and Ohio family. The spirit of friendliness and helpfulness which exists between the Management and employees, and among the employees themselves, was the thought most emphasized.

It is the purpose of our MAGAZINE to promote the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness.

It is up to each of us, individually, to do our part in not only reading the MAGAZINE, but contributing to it.

Friendliness and helpfulness are foremost in our hearts at this time. Christmas and New Year's greetings to all! May the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness grow each year!

"Just to tell you how much I appreciated all the flowers, letters and telephone messages I received during my recent illness. And am so glad to be back with you again, co-workers!"—Edith.

We regret to report the death of David Sites, on October 11, with pneumonia. Sympathy is extended to his daughters, Lillie and Bess, of the Local Office.

Glad to report Mrs. R. E. McCuen, wife of claim clerk, is improving from a recent operation.

ON THE NEWARK DIVISION

Above, left to right: Yard Clerk Harry Rhonehouse. Lytle. Car Inspector Louis Traut. Fireman Charles Porter. Below: Veteran Engineer Charles Glen, Conductor Nick Savy, Fireman Charles Porter, Car Inspector Traut. Deer killed by George Souders (right) in the Mountains of Idaho. Mr. Souders is employed at Columbus

OFFICE FORCE OF MASTER MECHANIC AND STOREKEEPER, CHILLICOTHE, OHIO
Standing, left to right: E. Snyder, Miss K. T. Sheehan, G. H. Flagg, O. Hathorne, L. Rahrle, L. Miller, V. Maull. Seated: W. McCarthy, F. Darding, J. E. Wilhelm, O. Leatherwood, C. Botkins. In front, with Wilhelm's arms round him John Fletcher, Jr. Right: G. Donald Vittoe, a new yard clerk, son of Engineer and Mrs. W. E. Vittoe, who recently moved to Chillicothe. Welcome!

Yes, we have some clean office;
We have some clean office today.
Our walls look bright
With the fine sunlight
They look much better this way.
And if you give us some new lights,
We'll tell you you are alright.
But, Yes! We have some clean office;
We have some clean office today.

Mrs. C. L. Johnson entertained Sewing Club on November 1. Radio concert was enjoyed by all.

Our district freight agent has increased his force. Mr. Kuppenger, former chief clerk, is city solicitor; D. H. Reese, Division Freight Office, Newark is chief clerk. Up until a year ago Mr. Reese was with Local Freight Office.

Claim Agent A. G. Burgett has a new flivver.

Chillicothe Advertisers CHRISTMAS GREETINGS

LEVY CLOTHING CO.

70 N. PAINT STREET
Chillicothe - - Ohio

"The Best Place To Shop After All."

HOLIDAY GREETINGS

from

Wiedler & Houser

FOULKE BLOCK - CHILLICOTHE, OHIO

EBENHACK & SON

SELECT YOUR

Furniture and Rug Gifts

HERE

We know that we can Save You Money

105 E. Main St., Chillicothe, Ohio

Ohio Division

Correspondent, A. E. ERICH

To all Employees of the Ohio Division:

At the approach of the holiday season and at the close of another year, I wish to extend to you and yours my heart-felt desire that you may spend a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

We will shortly enter a new year, and the time will come when, in 1925, we will ask ourselves, what we did in 1924. Let our aims for this coming year be Safety First, Increased Train Loads and Decreased Fuel Consumption. Let President Willard's words prevail throughout every day of the new year of 1924. "Not however, because they feel obliged to do so, but just because they want to do so."

J. B. CAROTHERS

Superintendent

Well! fellow workers, when on October 15, "Ye Scribe" received a notice of a "get together" meeting of all correspondents of the MAGAZINE to be held in Baltimore, on October 26 and 27, little did he think he would have the privilege of hearing addresses from President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, but such was the case.

First of all of course, on arrival at the Baltimore and Ohio Building, there were introductions to the MAGAZINE Staff and then "Among Ourselves."

Briefly, the addresses of President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood emphasized the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness which should and does exist between Management and employees and among the employees in general over the entire System; the desire of the Baltimore and Ohio to be a "Good Neighbor" to all, lend a helping hand and do everything possible in cases of disasters that might occur along Railroad, summing up by pointing out that the MAGAZINE promotes this spirit by informing the employees what the Railroad is trying to do and how it is done, keeping them posted on current events and providing helpful reading in general for themselves as well as their families. None of this could be accomplished, however, without the proper spirit of cooperation and energy put forth by every employe who WORKS WITH, NOT FOR, THE RAILROAD.

On October 12, the Freight Claim Prevention Committee on the Ohio Division was organized, after several years of inactivity. The first meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, Chillicothe. E. E. Johnson, agent at Washington C. H. was elected chairman. Personnel of the committee is: J. B. Carothers, superintendent; F. T. Sturtevant, division freight agent; T. E. Banks and R. Mallen, trainmasters; W. Graf and J. M. Mendell, road foremen of engines; J. E. Freshwater, relief agent; E. S. Russell, captain police; S. S. Winters, G. E. Wharff, H. M. Morgan, W. R. Moore, A. L. Townsend, J. W. Townsend, A. Bazler, S. Griffin, H. G. Leever, C. Brown and J. Vance, agents.

Stopping a leak does not necessitate being stingy but simply being thrifty and economical. SAVE and STOP THAT LEAK.

Former City Speed "Cop" H. Bartlett, who for the last five months has been keeping some of the Ohio Division locomotives hot on the various freight trains, has a new arrival at his home. He is undecided whether to make a "speed cop" out of him, or a fireman. One would be good for the City, the other for the Railroad. Which will it be?

R. T. Watkins, first trick operator, Portsmouth, has been transferred to first trick at Dundas. R. Spangler to first trick at Portsmouth and G. F. Nutter to second trick at Portsmouth.

The sympathy of the fellow workers of Carman Helper Elmer Detty is extended to him and his family in the death of his daughter, Virginia Edith, following a four weeks' illness.

Sympathy is also extended to "Ed" Scheer, machinist helper, in the death of his wife.

J. E. Templeton, gang foreman, is wearing a pleased look. He says "it's a boy." Also a Buick. Between the two he is kept busy.

Harry Strausbaugh, assistant gang foreman, has been undergoing treatment at the City Hospital during the last two months. We are glad to announce he is again able to be with us.

W. C. Jones, carman helper, is receiving congratulations of his fellow workers on his recent marriage.

A penny saved is a penny gained. In fuel economy it means—a pound of coal saved is a pound of coal gained. SAVE COAL!

We are sorry to hear that J. E. Freshwater, relief agent, Ohio Division, was compelled to lay off on account of illness. We hope for his speedy recovery.

W. L. Atwood, fireman, took the fatal step and was married on November 1. Good luck!

A. B. Long, track foreman, Washington C. H., is all smiles again. It's a girl this time. This makes "Fred's" sixth. We congratulate him on his fine family.

The many friends of George Burke, engineer, were surprised to learn of his marriage on October 17. Congratulations!

It was with regret that we heard of the death of Mrs. Mary Sunafrank, who passed away at her residence, Chillicothe, following an illness of 18 months. She was the widow of the late Jacob E. Sunafrank, wreck master for a number of years on this division, and mother of C. Sunafrank, machinist, who has our sympathy.

A. M. Davidson, who has been with us for some time as assistant division engineer and later assistant trainmaster, resigned, effective November 1, to accept a position with the Chesapeake & Ohio as assistant superintendent maintenance of way. We wish him success in his new position.

Train Dispatcher Mont a "Business Getter"

Train Dispatcher Oscar Mont, while figuring out an eastern trip recently, learned that some of his neighbors also desired to make practically the same trip, but intended traveling over another road. He prevailed upon them to go via Baltimore and Ohio, which they finally did. Of course after making this trip once over OUR Railroad, they will never use any other route if they contemplate future trips, and will thank Mr. Mont for persuading them to take this route.

On October 29, the members of Division No. 65, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Ladies' Auxiliary No. 12, were entertained with a most enjoyable party at the home of Engineer and Mrs. C. H. Rodehaver. The occasion was in honor of A. Baker, veteran engineer, who is now retired, in commemoration of his 40 years of continuous membership in the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. He was presented with a gold badge, the emblem of honorary membership in the Grand Lodge. Mr. Baker entered the service as fireman August 25, 1871, promoted to engineer in 1876, and to passenger engineer in 1909, in which capacity he served until pensioned a few years ago. May he enjoy many more anniversaries.

Sayings of the Safety Secretary:

Falls, the cause of many accidents, can be prevented by a little care.

Removing or reporting dangerous conditions will help to eliminate them.

The failure of car repairers to use blue flags is about the same as hunting a gas leak with a lighted match.

Did you see what the "SAFETY FLASHES" for October said about the Ohio Division? For the benefit of those that did not get an opportunity to see this, will quote the paragraph:

"Just because traffic is heavy is no reason for assuming that accidents are a necessity. This is a false conclusion. There is one division on our System that has gone through this whole year without a fatal accident to an employee. It is the Ohio Division. Employees are just as busy there as anywhere else on the Baltimore and Ohio, but they seem to have a regard for their own safety and that of their fellows."

PRACTICE SAFETY FIRST ALWAYS. Let that be our motto.

As you know, Christmas is coming and turkeys are fat,

Everybody please, drop a few notes in the correspondent's hat.

But, if you do, or don't, never fear,
He wishes you a Merry Christmas and a
Happy New Year.

Toledo Division

Correspondent, C. E. THRASHER

Dayton, Ohio

December 1, 1923

To all Employees:

We wish you and your families a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and wish to say that the faithful service that you have rendered us is heartily appreciated.

A. A. IAMS, Superintendent

W. B. KILGORE, Train Master

I. E. CLAYTON, Division Operator

The writer can hardly find words to express his appreciation to the Management for the pleasure of attending the Conference of Magazine Correspondents held at Baltimore October 26 and 27. There was not a stone unturned to make this meeting one long to be remembered. I was much impressed with the speech made by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway and General Manager Sheer. After hearing the talks of these three men one feels prouder than ever to be a member of our ever increasing family.

One of the largest patterns ever produced in Dayton was recently completed by The Julien Pattern Mfg. Co. for the Baltimore and Ohio, to be used in casting ash pans for our locomotives. Some of the force of the Julien Pattern Mfg. Co. have been employed on this piece of work continually during the past three months. To give one an idea of how huge this pattern was, 10,000 feet of lumber were used in its construction and it required two box cars to transport it to destination.

It is with regret that we report the death of Stanford P. Post, at Mercy Hospital, Hamilton, Ohio, October 11. At the time of his death Mr. Post was night yard master at Hamilton. He entered the service of the Baltimore and Ohio as a switchman, Oct. 1, 1912 and was promoted to night yard master 1922. He was known and respected by a large circle of friends and fellow employees, who will mourn his loss.

On January 1, 1924, our division expects to have in service 25 new Santa Fe type class S. Engines being built by The Lima Locomotive Works at Lima. These engines will weigh approximately 436,000 pounds, length 101 feet 5 inches, height 15 feet 5 and  $\frac{3}{4}$  inches from rail to stack. Fire box dimensions will be 132 $\frac{1}{4}$  by 96 inches, equipped with duplex stokers and two compound air pumps. These engines will be in service between Ivorydale and Lima and will be of great service in moving the enormous traffic on the Toledo Division.

It is now approaching the time of the year that business usually falls off to some extent, and it behooves you and me to do our part to secure more business in order to avoid the usual lay off of men and women in dull times. Every employee can and should be a freight and passenger solicitor, whether on or off duty. When you hear of people going to some point on our line, endeavor to prevail upon them to travel over "our" road. If you cannot reach them, use the Prospective Business card and forward to the proper traffic representative. This means more work for the freight or passenger agent, more business for the Company, and more prosperity and work for all.

East Dayton, Ohio

Correspondent, EDWARD M. MANNIX

A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year to all.

At this glad season, I embrace the opportunity of expressing to the employees of the Toledo Division my appreciation of their efforts during the past year, and I extend to all my most sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

T. C. O'BRIEN

Master Mechanic

General Foreman W. A. Gilmore joins our master mechanic in his good wishes. This is reciprocated by the employees, who assure him of their good will, their confidence and cooperation during the coming year.

Pretty hard to get a line on our friend Robert O'Neil, but things along the repair track show up nicely under his watchful eye. "Bob," like all our officials, is extending his glad wishes for the Yuletide and wishing all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

LIMA, OHIO, IS PROUD OF HER BALTIMORE AND OHIO FAMILIES

Left: Elizabeth, fifteen year old daughter of Engineer Paul Bogart. She is a sophomore at Central High School and is a talented musician. Center: Leonard and Bernard, sons of Telephone Maintainer Omer Freeman. Right: Telephone Maintainers Omer Freeman, Lima, and H. L. Bates, Hamilton, Ohio. Mr. Freeman entered service in 1905, as trackman and was transferred to Telegraph Department in 1908. He has been on the Toledo Division since 1913. His record as a Safety First man is excellent

During the past month Miss Luella Balcom, clerk, Master Mechanic's Office, quietly slipped away with Michael Goodburn, assistant foreman, Car Department, and "did it." After a honeymoon of two weeks they settled in their beautiful new home on Fairview Ave. Congratulations!

A MERRY CHRISTMAS to Employees from Dayton and East Dayton Business Friends

We Wish to All Our Friends a Merry Christmas and a
Happy New Year

D. A. SAVINO COMPANY
Fancy Groceries
SECOND AND TERRY STREETS

ALHAMBRA THEATRE

We Are Pleased With The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Patronage and Wish all a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year

BERT FIALA

I Wish All Employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad a Merry
Christmas and a Happy New Year

LIPPINCOTT'S PASTEURIZED MILK

That Before-Breakfast Service

J. H. LIPPINCOTT, 65 Brenner Avenue

RAILROAD YOUR WAY TO

J. E. SUTTON'S GROCERY

(Successors To Ballman Bros.)

I WISH ALL A MERRY XMAS AND
A HAPPY NEW YEAR

Third and Findlay Sts.

When in Need of PAINT, HARDWARE and HOUSEHOLD SUPPLIES See

HALL HARDWARE CO.

Third St., near Linden Ave.,
SAVE TIME AND MONEY

A Merry Christmas To All

The General Jackson Fuel Co.

1331 EAST FIRST STREET

Wholesale and Retail

WISHES ALL BALTIMORE AND OHIO EMPLOYEES A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR

That Dependable Grocery

THE WAGNER GROCERY

Staple and Fancy Groceries

Third and Springfield Streets

DAYTON, OHIO

We thank all, and wish them
A Merry Christmas and A Happy
New Year

Echos of the Correspondents' Convention

I cannot refrain from quoting a few high spots in the address of President Daniel Willard to the MAGAZINE correspondents.

"Nothing pleases me better than to have all satisfied."

"I believe that labor has the same right to organize as other interests, and the management has never been opposed to this."

"To work intelligently consumes less effort; a wasted hour can never be regained when lost with intent."

"I want every employe to be a business-getter for our Railroad and I look forward to his or her efforts along this line."

"The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad has on its payroll at present 80,000 employes."

"It costs $350,000.00 per day to meet our payroll. You make this possible only by your united efforts, and remember—to work intelligently consumes less effort."

Vice-President Galloway said: "No matter what position you hold with our Company, your position as MAGAZINE correspondent is a most important one."

"Our MAGAZINE has done much to bring about the good will, mutual understanding and cooperation it was intended for."

"If all the brains of the universe were poured into one man's head, he could accomplish nothing without cooperation."

"A factory superintendent can reach all of his employes under one roof but, the MAGAZINE reaches out and imparts to all our employes things that we want them to know."

General Manager Scheer said: "To know that you are a part of the great Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is itself a cherished possession, and your work as correspondents is appreciated by all."

The writer desires to extend his thanks to all employes, especially to the correspondents, for their cooperation. To my superior officers and my buddies of the shops I wish all the good things the season means, and I hope that sunshine and happiness may be theirs for years to come.

Division Freight Office Dayton, Ohio

Correspondent, G. M. McBRIDE

Geo. F. Aring, formerly chief clerk, Office of Division Freight Agent, Dayton, Ohio, has been promoted to freight representative. Mr. Aring has proven himself efficient as chief clerk and we wish him continued success.

Howard E. Martin, assistant chief clerk, Revision Bureau, Cincinnati, has been promoted to the position of chief clerk to division freight agent, Dayton, Ohio, made vacant by the promotion of Mr. Aring. We welcome him to our midst.

Lima, Ohio

Correspondent, O. L. WALLBURG

Your correspondent expresses his appreciation of the splendid hospitality extended by the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio while he was attending the Correspondents' Conference on October 26 and 27.

The entertainment furnished left nothing to be desired; in addition the correspondents living in Baltimore outdid themselves in their efforts to make the stay of the out-of-town folks enjoyable.

The "Girls" had a wonderful opportunity and enjoyed themselves immensely as they were in the minority. I know one pretty girl who had four "young" men in tow coming back from the football game and they imagined they were taking her home!

Now that we are back on the job, it is up to us to carry out the resolution each of us made in his heart, which was to push forward by word and deed the banner of the Baltimore and Ohio, "Courtesy and Service" throughout the territory covered by our great Railroad.

Yard Conductor "Joe" Shelly is in a serious condition. Hope to see him out again soon. We miss him.

Switchman A. F. Price is back on the job at North Lima after an absence of some months because of an injury. Everybody is glad to see him.

Elmer "Dusty" Rhodes is the proud father of a young yard clerk, who took his first gaze at this old world of ours a short time ago. Congratulations!

"Ted" Newland got himself a new Chevrolet the other day and says it can pass anything on the road. Had a race with a Lima Ice & Coal Company wagon the other day and came in second, which wasn't so bad, considering that Arza Green was cycling on Marion Road the other day and had to use his bell on "Tod" to give him the road.

John Suydam, section foreman, and his men are doing a fine job on the street crossings through Lima, making them smooth with crushed stone and tarvia. Good job, John! Motorists will have a better opinion of the Baltimore and Ohio than ever.

Simple, but fine little act of Baltimore and Ohio Good Neighbors! Drayman was passing freight station on North Street, when a bolt slipped and the bed of the wagon dropped to the street. Freight House Force, just going to lunch, stopped long enough to lift up the wagon bed and set it back on the wheels in response to Agent Colbert's request that they should. Fine!

The interior of the passenger station at Lima is being cleaned and redecorated and presents an attractive appearance. Pleasant surroundings contribute in a large measure to making the beginning of a journey less tiresome, and also help a great deal when folks are waiting for connecting trains. Adding to this, Courtesy and Service, it increases the feeling of comfort and also increases our patronage.

Florence Slygh and Harry Kaufman, two new members of the Baltimore and Ohio family at Lima, would make a wonderful picture holding hands, if your correspondent could ever find them idle long enough to snap them.

We wish all our folks at Lima, on the Toledo Division and everywhere on the System a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year.

Wellston

Correspondent, L. M. MASON

My visit to Baltimore, as correspondent for the MAGAZINE, was a visit that will never be forgotten. Although a business meeting, nothing was left undone to show us a good time. The trip over the water front given to us by the City of Baltimore was a pleasure as well as an education. The football game between the Navy and Princeton University was an enjoyable affair and many other places of interest were visited all over the city. The addresses made by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood emphasized the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness which obtains between the Management and employes all over the system.

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Unloading limestone on right of way between Breese and Beckemeyer, Illinois, to save long haul for farmers

It is the privilege of the MAGAZINE to further this spirit by informing employes of what the Railroad is trying to do and how, keeping them posted on current events and providing helpful reading in general for them. This spirit is the essence of the Christmas spirit and in voicing a Christmas greeting we could not wish a more wonderful thing than that the spirit may grow as the years come and go.

The banquet held at the Rennert Hotel for the correspondents was attended by General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood. The addresses made by these gentlemen were pleasing. Mr. Wood, being introduced as our silver tongued orator, showed that his introduction was no mistake. Mr. Scheer gave us a good talk on the early history of the Baltimore and Ohio, which is the only railroad in the country that operates under its original charter. He said that he was from the Western Lines but didn't say anything about his home town, Zaleski, Ohio, which is only a stone's throw from Wellston.

On behalf of the Wellston sub-division we wish all employes and officers of the Baltimore and Ohio a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, and that the coming year may be the best we have ever had.

J. F. Toumine, freight agent, made a flying trip to Washington, D. C., to attend the laying of the corner stone of the Masonic Temple at Alexandria, Va.

It would be a wonderful thing if automobilists knew that railroad trains only stop at crossings to pick up the dead.

If a man wants his dream to come true he must wake up.

Many a good foot has been lost by a brakeman kicking a coupler between the cars.

Handle with care, cars or tanks which contain acid, or other inflammable substances.

Sometimes in railroad affairs in order to maintain proper discipline and attention to business it is necessary to administer caution and reproof. Likewise, there occur numerous instances of meritorious service deserving of recognition, which are not always so well remembered. This is regrettable, because the desire to please, and to know that we have been successful in the attempt, is an inherent trait in human nature. Too often those who are steadfastly engaged day by day in the faithful performance of duty, regardless of the cost in personal sacrifice, are allowed to think that their efforts are unappreciated. Wherever is found an appreciative foreman, department head, or official, there also will be found a group who always have a good word for "the boss." The "thank you" spirit provides a real actuating motive for unselfish service and is the source of the real pleasure to be found in honest labor.

The spirit that is shown by most of our passenger conductors is the reason for the big travel via the Baltimore and Ohio. A few weeks ago a lady got on No. 68 at Dayton, going to Washington Court House, Ohio. Conductor "Pat" Sweeney asked for her ticket. She replied that she had no ticket, that her daughter had purchased a ticket in Dayton for her, but had forgotten to give it to her. Conductor Sweeney said he would have to collect the fare in cash and that she could turn the ticket in and get a refund for her money. The lady said that she had no money and couldn't pay the fare. After a talk with the lady, Conductor Sweeney decided that she was in earnest and deserved help. He took money from his own pocket and paid the lady's fare from Dayton, Ohio, to Washington Court House. On arrival at destination, another daughter met the old lady at the station, and it so happened that this daughter had not thought to bring any money with her. Conductor Sweeney's name and address were taken and later he was reimbursed.

Do you know that to do anything right, you have to "think;" that the little word "think" is the most important word in the railroad business. I am going to have to "think" to write this article. Just "think" what you could save the Railroad if you would "think" just before you start to do a thing. "Think" how many cars do you bill in a month that are not billed right. A car billed wrong makes more work for you. "Think" and save the work! "Think" and save your Company money. In lots of cases a car billed to the wrong destination is a good cause for a claim against the Company. "Think" to prevent this. We heard of a case where a car came into a station billed to a point in France, and another car came into the same station billed to some other foreign point. The car going to the other foreign country was substituted and billed to France, because it was thought to be the same grade but it happened that a law was in force in France that so much cereals should be used in flour and these cars both contained flour. The France shipment was turned down and a claim presented the Company for $400. If the agent or bill clerk had used the little word "think," the Company would be Four Hundred dollars richer than it is now. This little word "think" will fit in, in any department. Try it in your department and see. Next to "thinking," smiling's best.

I. E. Clayton, division operator, recently wrote your correspondent a holiday thought and good wish as follows:

The strength of a structure depends solely on the strength of the foundation on which it is built. Likewise the strength and future of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, or any other successful venture, is built from the bottom, and the wonderful team work and co-operation that is noticeable on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad today is responsible for the perfection of the solid foundation and understanding that now exists. It is my hope that nothing in the future will loom up to destroy the present good fellowship that we all enjoy.

St. Louis Division

Correspondent, ALTO SMITH

I take this opportunity to extend to all St. Louis Division employes my best wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. The year just drawing to a close has been a most successful one with us, due to the wonderful spirit of cooperation, helpfulness and friendliness which exists on the Baltimore and Ohio today and which is manifest especially on our division. May this same spirit pervade throughout the coming year.

C. G. STEVENS
Superintendent

IN FAR AWAY FLORA

Left: Fireman O. D. Brissenden, who is making special study of fuel conservation. Center, left to right: Fireman R. Gibson, J. P. Berry and F. Englemeier. "Blondy" Williams in cab. Right: Fireman J. P. Berry and his bride

May the Christmas spirit prevail and the New Year give each a full measure of success, prosperity and happiness.

K. S. PRITCHETT, Trainmaster

I wish to extend to the employes of The Baltimore and Ohio my best wishes for 1924. Also wish to thank you for the hearty cooperation and interest you have shown in making The Baltimore and Ohio the best road in the land. I hope that the success that has attended our work in 1923 will be continued during 1924, and that you may have A Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

E. M. WINKS
Agent, Flora, Ill.

*To Motive Power Department Employes,
St. Louis Division:*

Christmas greetings and best wishes to all. It is my sincere wish that your faithful cooperation with the Management of the Baltimore and Ohio will bring continued years of success and happiness to you and yours.

J. J. HERLIHY
Division Master Mechanic

Having experienced a very happy and prosperous year in 1923, it is my hope that we may all enjoy a very Happy, Joyous Yuletide Season.

H. H. SUMMERS
Division Accountant

A renewed spirit of activity will be in evidence as the result of the Conference of Correspondents of the MAGAZINE held in Baltimore last month. The trip was delightful in all respects, especially to the correspondents on the St. Louis Division who are on the far end of the road and whose visits to the eastern section, or "Headquarters," are, of necessity, rare. The courtesy extended to every one and the business transacted are worthy of more than passing mention.

It is regrettable that we cannot publish verbatim, addresses made by President Willard, Vice-President Galloway, General Manager Scheer and Chief of Welfare Wood, but suffice to say that the high points in all these talks was the emphasis placed on the spirit of friendliness and helpfulness which exists between the Management and employes, and that the chief aim of the MAGAZINE is to further this spirit by setting forth the position and policy of the Railroad; that the interests of the employe and employer are common and all should work accordingly, knowing that employers and employes are essential to each others' success. With the advent of the New Year, let us all wish that this spirit may grow until it reaches the fullest extent.

ALTO SMITH
F. H. WRIGHT
LOTTIE DOSCH
H. F. SMITH
L. McCoy

Correspondents

The Freight Claim Prevention Committee meetings have been resumed with two organizations on the St. Louis Division. One will meet at Louisville, Ky. monthly, Agent Chamberlin, Louisville, being chairman and Agent O. B. Conkey, Mitchell, secretary. The other organization meets at St. Louis with Agent Singer of East St. Louis presiding and Agent Kelley as secretary. All staff officers, one conductor and engineer and several station agents form the personnel. The amount of money expended in settling freight claims is appalling, the damage to L. C. L. shipments on the Western Lines for the first nine months of 1923 amounting to over $150,000, due chiefly to rough handling of cars, use of defective equipment, improper refrigeration and other like causes. It can be seen that all classes of employes are more or less involved in damage claims and if everyone will perform efficient service claims can be reduced.

The St. Louis Division now has fourteen of the new type E-27 engines, known as the E-27-CA, E-27-D, and E-27-DA class. These engines are handling thirty-one hundred tons on the St. Louis Division. On account of their cab arrangement they have been nicknamed by the men "Sport Models." With a few more of these engines, the St. Louis Division expects to break all previous records on train loads.

The old Association of Superintendents at Springfield has been revived recently, with a view of improving operations there, especially the interchanging of cars between the railroads. Trainmaster Pritchett, Baltimore and Ohio, in conjunction with several trainmasters of other railroads, drew up the by-laws and constitution of the association, which is known as the Railroad Officer's Association. The Association put into effect certain rules to be observed by the different railroads with respect to the handling of business.

The duck hunting and fishing season is in full swing now and St. Louis Division employes are taking full advantage of it.

Farmers in the vicinity of Omaha, in attempting to get better drainage, employed a dredge boat to enlarge ditches. It was necessary to take bridge out just west of Omaha station to let boat through. By the quick work of Master Carpenter Young and his men, bridge was replaced and it was only necessary to transfer passengers and baggage from two trains.

General Foreman D. L. Booth, Flora, has been transferred to Shops, Ind., as general locomotive foreman, his place at Flora being filled by H. M. Gray. Mr. Booth is not a stranger at Washington Shops, having served his time as apprentice and machinist there.

Norbert Boyd has taken position as yard clerk, Springfield.

Sometime ago in the MAGAZINE, there was a story about the location of the International Shoe Factory at Flora, which was brought to that city largely through the efforts of Trainmaster Pritchett and Industrial Agent Hamme. This shoe factory has now been built and is ready for operation. It should furnish our Company with considerable revenue.

Superintendent's Office

Dispatcher B. B. Pritchett has returned to duty after being ill for some time. "Boots" Booth put them in the hole during his absence.

Road Foreman of Engines Creager and his assistants have been kept busy the past month riding the new modernized engines. Mr. Creager promised a regular graduation day story on these engines that are being assigned to the St. Louis Division, but owing to press of work was unable to get it in for this issue.

Superintendent Stevens and Division Freight Agent Lindsay were in Baltimore early in November, attending staff meetings.

Washington Shops

A. W. Miller, general locomotive foreman, Washington Shops, for the past six years, has been transferred to Lima, Ohio, as general foreman. Before his departure the "locomotive boys" presented him with a fine watch and chain. "Al" appreciated it too, and while he isn't a grand speech-maker, they all realize his appreciation of the gift and givers.

John William Booth made his appearance in the family circle of D. L. Booth, locomotive foreman, on November 1. Mrs. Booth was formerly employed in the office of the General Foreman at East St. Louis, Illinois.

Dear Santa:

Please bring Dorothy Fitts a "Bob" sled,

Blanche Wise a vacation,
Alice Fox an unlimited interest in a candy and cigar store,

Bertha Feagans a Packard chauffeur,
Pearl Kaufman three hundred and sixty-five postage stamps,

Martha Burgess a permanent wave,
Russell Isenogle a "Nash" that will go 90 miles per,

The messenger a pair of roller skates,
The correspondent some "news" notes, for each issue, 1924.

M. T. Sergesketter, accountant, Louisville Freight Office, spent a few days in Baltimore recently visiting the General Offices, particularly the Accounting Department, returning to work reporting his trip interesting and instructive and with nothing but praise for the courtesy shown him by those he met while there.

Miss Marie Blandford, utility clerk, Agent's Office, Louisville, Ky., was away in October, her position being filled by Jange Briggs, New Albany.

A feminine scream will sometimes do more to rout a burglar than a vicious looking automatic. At any rate that is what caused a prowler, who entered the apartment occupied by Stella Allen, Edna Humes and Josephine Fettig, clerks, Superintendent's Office, Washington, hastily to make his exit. The burglar was ransacking the place when Miss Humes woke up. Being cautioned to keep quiet, she obeyed by screaming, awakening the rest of the trio, Josephine proving the heroine and chasing the invader from the premises.

Our recent rush of business has caused Trainmasters Smith and Pritchett to promote a number of brakemen to the rank of conductor. Some of the new "captains" have made their first trips.

Retired Passenger Conductor Frank Frey, residing at Flora, has become interested in poultry raising and spent some time recently at poultry shows near Carlyle, picking up pointers.

An example of the spirit of neighborliness and willingness to cooperate was shown by the Railroad during the month of October, when farmers living between Breese and Beckemeyer, Ill., wanted limestone for use as fertilizer. On account of construction of hard road they would have had to make a long haul if cars were unloaded at Breese and Beckemeyer. To save them this haul the Baltimore and Ohio unloaded the limestone on the right of way near the farmers' homes, it being unloaded from self-clearing cars so that it could be done quickly and without delay to trains.

This ends the work of the MAGAZINE for 1923, spent most happily by the Editorial staff among the employes of the "Friendly Road." May 1924 be a better year for the MAGAZINE, a more prosperous one for the Baltimore and Ohio, and an even happier one for all employes!

ADVANCE OF THE GRAND ARMY

NAPOLEON'S name fills more pages in the world's solemn history than that of any other mortal.

The advance of his Grand Army into Russia is the turning point of his career and marks the beginning of his downfall. During the World War mighty armies marched over the battlefields where Napoleon fought over a century ago. All the causes of this mighty struggle may be learned from the pages of history. The one complete, accurate, authoritative and reliable history, depicting the rise and fall of every empire, kingdom, principality and power, is the world-famed publication,

Ridpath's History of the World

Including a full authentic account of the World War

Dr. John Clark Ridpath is universally recognized as America's greatest historian.

Other men have written histories of one nation or period—Gibbon of Rome, Macaulay of England, Guizot of France; but it remained for Dr. Ridpath to write a history of the entire World from the earliest civilization down to the present day.

A Very Low Price and Easy Terms

We will name our special low price and easy terms of payment only in direct letters. A coupon for your convenience is printed on the lower corner of this advertisement. Tear off the coupon, write your name and address plainly and mail now before you forget it. We will mail you 46 free sample pages without any obligation on your part to buy. These will give you some idea of the splendid illustrations and the wonderfully beautiful style in which the work is written. We employ no agents, nor do we sell through bookstores, so there are no agents' commissions or book dealers' profits to pay. Our plan of sale enables us to ship direct from factory to customer and guarantee satisfaction.

Six Thousand Years of History

RIDPATH takes you back to the dawn of History, long before the Pyramids of Egypt were built; down through the romantic troubled times of Chaldea's grandeur and Assyria's magnificence; of Babylonia's wealth and luxury; of Greek and Roman splendor; of Mohammodan culture and refinement to the dawn of yesterday, including a full authentic account of the World War. He covers every race, every nation, every time, and holds you spellbound by his wonderful eloquence.

Endorsed by Thousands

RIDPATH is endorsed by Presidents of the United States, practically all university and college presidents, and by a quarter of a million Americans who own and love it. Don't you think it would be worth while to mail us the coupon and receive the 46 sample pages from the History? They are free.

Ridpath's Graphic Style

RIDPATH pictures the great historical events as though they were happening before your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman Senate; to march against Saladin and his dark-skinned followers; to sail the southern seas with Drake; to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan. He combines absorbing interest with supreme reliability.

THE RIDPATH HISTORICAL SOCIETY
CINCINNATI, O.

FREE COUPON
THE RIDPATH
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Cincinnati, O.

Please mail, without cost to me, sample pages of Ridpath's History of the World, containing photogravures of The Surrender at Sedan, Napoleon, and other great characters in history. Also write me full particulars of your special offer to Baltimore & Ohio Magazine readers.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

A Christmas Message from the Traffic Department

THE Christmas issue of the MAGAZINE, suggesting the exchange of greetings among the members of our big Railroad family, affords us a most appropriate opportunity for extending our thanks and appreciation to many employes not directly engaged in traffic solicitation, who have, nevertheless, been of substantial help to us during 1923 in securing a record breaking volume of business for our Railroad.

Scarcely a day has gone by that we have not heard of some employe outside of the Traffic Department who has persuaded a passenger or a shipper to try our service. This helpful interest is manifest everywhere one goes on the Railroad and comes from employes engaged in so many different kinds of work that it is doubtful if a single classification has failed to do its part. In train service, in shop, on the track and in the office are men and women who believe in the Company they work for and who want to do all in their power to increase its business.

These employes have been splendid exponents all during the year of the spirit of unselfishness which, at the approach of the Christmastide, touches us in a magical way and makes friendships dearer, work happier and life brighter than at any other time. Yet we believe that this unselfishness has in it more of the quality of thoughtfulness than of sacrifice, for surely if we believe in the ideals of the Company for which we work, and if we are proud of its record and its service, it should be a real pleasure for us to have uppermost in our minds at all times the thought that we can be very powerful agencies for bringing more business to our lines.

We can always speak well of our Company. We can rightfully boast of its splendid reputation for square dealing and for dependable and courteous service. We can tell our friends and acquaintances of its excellent record for "On Time" trains. We can distribute its advertising literature. We can be living examples of the spirit of friendliness and mutual helpfulness which obtains in our family between Management and employes, and also between the Railroad and the people we serve.

As the Baltimore and Ohio has been a pioneer in so many respects, we believe that it is also leading the way in showing how much can be accomplished by a Railroad which has the unified support of its employes in all its activities. Perhaps, strictly speaking, the Traffic Department has only heard from a small number of pioneer business getters in the other departments as compared with the total number of over 70,000 in our entire organization. In emphasizing, therefore, our appreciation of the splendid help that these ardent Baltimore and Ohio supporters have given us in the past few years, may we not express the reasonable wish that their number may so increase during 1924 that the New Year will be the most prosperous in Baltimore and Ohio history for all Departments.

THE TRAFFIC DEPARTMENT

Travel

Education

The Home

Good Reading

Vacations

Recreation

Music

Baltimore and Ohio Magazine

January
1924

The First Lesson in Success

$100
Down
Brings This

Gas or Electric The Lamp—

Comes equipped for choice of gas or electricity. Has 2-light Benjamin socket for electricity only, with 8-foot silk cord ready for use; or comes with 6-foot rubber hose, burner, mantle and chimney for gas.

Mahogany Finish

Standard is 60 in. high, 3 in. in diameter. Highly polished French mahogany finish.

The Shade—

Made in Fifth Avenue design, 24 in. in diameter, of delft blue silk, shirred top, alternating plain and fancy art silk panels. Twelve panels in all, tinsel braid border, with four inch Chenille fringe. American beauty shirred lining. The harmonious color scheme gives effect of red light shining through a blue haze—a rich warm light. Shipping weight, 27 pounds.

Marshall Silky Fringe Pull-Cords

Also pair of Marshall silky fringe cords with 3½ in. silky fringed tassels, giving an added luxurious effect.

For gas use, order by No. G6332NA.

For electricity, order by No. G6333NA.

Send only $1 with the coupon, $2 monthly. Total Bargain Price for lamp and shade, $19.85.

Free Bargain Catalog

Shows thousands of bargains in home furnishings: furniture, jewelry, rugs, curtains, phonographs, stoves, dishes, aluminum ware, etc. All sold on easy terms. Catalog sent free, with or without order. See the coupon.

Floor Lamp With 5th Ave. Silk Shade

Here is something you have always wanted—a beautiful floor lamp with handsome and elegant Fifth Avenue silk shade—to add an extra tone of elegance and luxury to your home. On this generous offer you can see just how this floor lamp and silk shade will look in your home, without risking anything. Send only $1.00 with the coupon below, and we will send it complete to your home on approval, equipped for use with either gas or electricity. We take all the risk.

30 Days Trial

When the lamp outfit comes, use it freely for 30 days. See how beautifully the colorings of the handsome silk shade blend and harmonize with everything in the home. How useful it is, too—so handy for reading, can be moved around with ease to furnish a beautiful light and rich warmth and coziness to any room in the house. If after 30 days trial you decide not to keep the lamp, just return it at our expense and we will refund your $1.00 deposit, plus any freight or express you paid. You cannot lose a single penny.

$2.00 a Month

If you discover that this lamp is a tremendous bargain at the price we ask and you decide to keep it, send only $2.00 a month until you have paid the total bargain price of $19.85. Yes, only $19.85 for this luxurious lamp and silk shade complete. Compare this value with anything you could buy locally at anywhere near the same price—even for spot cash! Straus & Schram gives you this bargain price and almost a year to pay. We trust honest people anywhere in U. S. No discount for cash; nothing extra for credit. No C. O. D.

Price Slashed!

Decide now to see this beautiful floor lamp and silk shade in your home on approval on this price smashing offer. Think how the nickels and dimes slip away for useless things; save them for something worth while that will give satisfaction for years. Send coupon with only $1.00 now! Satisfaction guaranteed.

STRAUS & SCHRAM, Dept. 4011 Chicago, Ill.

MAIL THIS COUPON NOW! STRAUS & SCHRAM Dept. 4011 CHICAGO

Enclosed find $1.00. Ship special advertised Floor Lamp and Silk Shade as checked below. I am to have 30 days free trial. If I keep the lamp, I will send $2.00 a month. If not satisfied, I am to return the lamp and shade within 30 days and you are to refund my $1.00 plus any transportation charges I paid.

- ☐ Gas Floor Lamp No. G 6332NA, $19.85.
☐ Electric Floor Lamp No. G 6333NA, $19.85

Name .....

Street, R. F. D. or Box No. ....

Shipping Point .....

Post Office ..... State .....

If you want ONLY our free catalog of home furnishings, mark X here ☐

BOTH PREMIUMS
FREE

50 inch Table Cloth and 6 Napkins. 6 Silver-Plated
Knives and 6 Forks

This superb 110-piece set, with initial in 2 places on every piece, decorated in blue and gold, with gold covered handles, consists of:

- |                            |  |
|----------------------------|--|
| 12 Dinner Plates, 9 in.    | 12 Cups  |
| 12 Breakfast Plates, 7 in. | 12 Saucers                                       |
| 12 Soup Plates, 7 1/2 in.  | 12 Individual Bread and Butter Plates, 6 1/4 in. |
| 12 Cereal Dishes, 6 in.    | 1 Platter, 13 1/2 in.                            |
| 12 Fruit Dishes, 6 1/2 in. |  |

This Design and Your Initial

in Two Places on Every Piece

- 1 Platter, 11 1/2 in.
1 Celery Dish, 8 1/2 in.
1 Sauce Boat Tray, 7 1/2 inches.
1 Butter Plate, 6 in.
1 Vegetable Dish, 10 1/2 in., with lid (2 pieces)

- 1 Deep Bowl, 8 1/2 in.
1 Oval Baker, 9 in.
1 Small Deep Bowl, 5 inches.
1 Gravy Boat, 7 1/4 in.
1 Creamer
1 Sugar Bowl with cover (2 pieces)

No Money Down!

No C. O. D. Nothing to Pay for Dishes on Arrival

Not a penny now. Just mail the coupon, and Hartman, the Largest Home Furnishing Concern in the World, will send you this complete 110-Piece Dinner Set and with it absolutely FREE the Beautiful 7-Piece, genuine "Indian Head" Linene Set and also the 6 silver-plated Knives and 6 Forks, (pictured above.) Nothing to pay for goods on arrival.

No C. O. D. Use all 3 sets 30 days on Free Trial and if not satisfied send them back and we will pay transportation charges both ways. If you keep them, pay only for the Dinner Set—a little every month. Keep Table Cloth and Napkins and the Knives and Forks as gifts from Hartman. They are FREE. Nothing to pay for them at any time.

Your Initial in Gold, Surrounded by Gold Wreath, in 2 Places on Every Piece (Gold Covered Handles)

You'll be proud to use this beautiful Colonial Martha Washington Set on every occasion—proud of its clear, white, lustrous body and unique decoration. Like the costliest chinaware, every piece is decorated with a rich gold band edge, a mazarine blue follow band and

2 pure gold initials in Old English design, surrounded by gold wreaths. Handles are of solid design, entirely gold covered. Guaranteed all firsts; no "seconds." An amazing value which you must not pass up. And if you act quickly, you also get—

IMPORTANT!

Hartman guarantees that every piece in this set is absolutely first quality—no "seconds." This is a standard "open" pattern. Replacement pieces may be had of us for 3 years. Each piece wrapped in tissue paper. Excellent packing to prevent breakage. Shipped at once

FREE No Money Down Bargain Catalog

Over 300 pages (of which 68 are in actual colors) of the world's greatest bargains in furniture, rugs, carpets, sewing machines, silverware, also farm implements and accessories, etc. No money down. 30 days' free trial. Easy monthly terms on everything you buy. Opening an account with us is like opening a charge account at your local store, but you have nearly a year to pay at Hartman's.

Ask for Catalog No. E 6023

FREE GIFTS

Book explains Hartman's gift plan which brings you, FREE with purchases, articles such as glassware, dishes, silverware, toilet sets, jewelry, table linens, etc. Send a postal for the big free catalog today. "Let Hartman Feather YOUR Nest!"

FREE "Indian Head" Linene Finish 50-in. Round Table Cloth and 6 Napkins to Match—also 6 Silver-Plated Knives and 6 Forks.

With every Dinner Set we send you Free the Handsome Linene Set and 6 heavy, richly patterned knives and forks. This includes a handsome 50-inch round table cloth and 6 pretty 17-inch napkins to match—all of the famous "Indian Head" linene; finished with attractive scalloped embroidered edges. Knives and forks of fine, extra heavy silver-plate in fleur-de-lis pattern. Send at once. Offer is limited.

Order by No. 320FMA23.

Bargain Price, $33.85.

No Money Down. $4 monthly.

7-Piece Linene Set, 6 Knives and 6 Forks are FREE.

Nearly a Year to Pay!

HARTMAN Furniture & Carpet Co.
Dept. 6023 Chicago, Ill.

Send the 110-Piece Dinner Set, No. 320FMA23, Price $33.85, as described, and with it the 7-Piece Linene Set and 6 Knives and 6 Forks, absolutely FREE. I am to pay nothing for the goods on arrival—only the small freight charges. I am to have 30 days' free trial. If satisfied, I will send you $4 monthly until full price of Dinner Set, $33.85, is paid. Will pay nothing at any time for Linene Set, Knives and Forks. Title remains with you until paid in full. If not satisfied, after 30 days' free trial, I will ship all goods back and you will pay transportation charges both ways.

Name.....

R. F. D., Box No. .... or Street and No. ....

Town..... State.....

Occupation.....

Head of Household?.....

HARTMAN FURNITURE & CARPET CO.
Dept. 6023 Chicago, Ill.

Largest Home Furnishing Concern in the World

This No-Money-Down Offer is Special to Readers of Baltimore and Ohio Magazine—This Issue Only

Please mention our magazine when writing advertisers

Volume XI

Baltimore, January, 1924

Number 9

Contents

Prides of the Baltimore and Ohio No. 12—The Thrifty Employee.....	M. T. S. plus C. H. D.	4
Is Your House in Order for 1924?.....		5
Our President's New Year's Greeting.....		6
Prize Winning Article in Traffic Solicitation Contest.....	J. L. Hayes	7
Traffic Tips Received on Cards Inserted in Magazine.....		8-9
J. E. McKibbin, a Live Wire, Secures 250 Carloads of Business for the Baltimore and Ohio.....		10
The Trace Clerk is a Potent Factor in Getting and Holding Business.....	A. Norman Fonda	10
William D. Risch—A "Big Business" Getter.....		11
President Willard's Boyhood Ambition.....		11
Conductor O. A. Best, Newark Division, Stops a Leak.....		11
Thrift Week—A National Event for Individual Happiness.....		12
Thrift is Common Sense—A Science of Living in Which You Can Share if You Will.....	John A. Rupp	13
The Editor's Turn Table.....		14
Homilies of the Hudson.....	John Newman	15
Agent J. W. Dashiell—The Man Who Put Glenwood on the Savings Feature Records—and How He Keeps It There.....		16
If You Think "Thrift" a "Dry" Subject, Try This Pre-Volstedian Flavor!.....	P. L. Faustman	17
Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Clubs' Exhibit Was the Outstanding Feature of the Baltimore Poultry Show.....	O. K. Quivey	19
Messrs. Sell, Kight and Eden Win Handsome Prizes for Year's Work as Correspondents of the Magazine.....		20
Fire Marshalls Meet and Discuss Methods of Improving Fire Prevention Work on the Railroad.....		21
The "Sally Lunn's" That Made President Willard Smile.....		21
A Tribute to John Bradshaw, First Master of Road.....	A. Faure	22
The Boy on the Bulletin Board.....		23
Vice-President Batchelder Honored by Friends on Completion of Fifty Years Railroad.....		23
Arthur D. Gans, a Regular "Demon" on Advertising.....		25
The Coal Bill and the Cinder Pile.....		25
Material and Supplies for General Railroad Operations Cost $1,668,000,000 in 1922.....		27
Assistant Chief Clerk Walter Wilmer Secures Valuable Business.....		27
The Sunshine Special.....	Galen Starr Ross in the "Marietta Times"	28
Hot Off the Wire.....		29
Labor Saver Invented by Foreman G. A. Wagner.....		29
Our Veterans—
Cumberland Shop Band Plays at Charles W. Galloway Auxiliary Memorial Service.....		30
Daniel Willard Auxiliary, No. 5, Pittsburgh, Entertains.....		30
Baltimore Veterans Elect Officers.....		30
Fairmont Veterans and J. M. Scott Auxiliary.....	Mrs. H. Fleming	30
Staten Island Veterans Enjoy Washington Trip.....		31
Agent James Aiken, Youngstown, Celebrates 41 Years' Service.....		31
Newark Division Veterans Honor Joseph M. Workman.....		31
Death of Dr. Charles Arthur Sinsel, Medical Examiner, Grafton.....		31
Last Act of Conductor Charles Ireland Was One of Courtesy to Lady Passenger.....		33
Accurate Weights Insure Correct Freight Charges.....		32
In the Realm of the Riddle.....	G. H. Pryor	34
Pensioners' Roll of Honor.....		37
Women's Department—Edited by Margaret Talbott Stevens
The Value of a Smile.....	Daughters of America Magazine	38
What Women Can Do When They Try.....		38
What I Learned from the Household Budget.....	Mrs. F. E. Cooper	39
New Winter Fashions Show Many Styles That Can be Copied Easily by the Home Dressmaker.....		40
The Happiest Penny of All.....		42
Here is the Coupon for Your Budget Book.....		42
Our Little Railroaders.....	Aunt Mary	43
Little Girl Helps Her Daddy Get a Better Job.....		43
Prize Winners in Children's Contest.....		44
Over Fifteen Hundred Attend First Annual Entertainment and Dance of Chicago Terminals Employees' Association, December 12.....		46
Safety Roll of Honor.....		50
Among Ourselves.....		51

Published monthly at Baltimore, Maryland, by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, to improve its service to the public and to promote a greater community of interest among its employees. Contributions are welcomed. Manuscripts and photographs will be returned upon request.

THE READER AND ADVERTISING

Circulation of the Baltimore and Ohio Magazine is 50,000 copies per issue, our aim being to place it in the hands and in the homes of practically all English speaking employees of the Railroad. An examination of our advertising will show that it conforms to the highest standards. We do not guarantee it, but we believe that it means exactly what it says, and for that reason feel free to urge our readers to patronize our advertisers whenever they consistently can.

The New "B.W. Raymond"—21 Jewel —the Professional Timekeeper for Railroad Men

PERHAPS no one realizes better than official railroad Time Inspectors, the full extent of the Elgin achievement in producing the new "B. W. Raymond" (21 jewel) Railroad Model.

Knowing all they do about railroad watches, Time Inspectors have no hesitancy in saying that this is the most highly specialized time-keeping instrument ever produced for the railroadman.

Balance Wheel—either The Elgin high-tempered Compensating Balance or the new design Invar Balance which gives the closest possible rating over the entire temperature range.

Main Spring—extra long, giving a safety margin of many hours' excess running power.

Regulator—positive in action, giving very close pocket regulation.

Eight adjustments—five of them to positions.

Dial—fine enamel. Large, clear figures. Wide reflector. Correct time visible at a glance in any light.

Case—expressly designed for the railroad man. Safety bow. Dust-proof pendant. Gold filled only. Extra heavy stock, to resist wear.

Each "B. W. Raymond" cased by the Elgin Watch-makers—special close regulation of each watch in its own case.

Let your jeweler show you the new "B.W. Raymond." Check it up detail for detail against your own experienced judgment of what a railroad watch ought to be.

ELGIN

The Professional Timekeeper

ELGIN NATIONAL WATCH COMPANY, ELGIN, U. S. A.

Prides of The Baltimore and Ohio—No. 12

The Thrifty Employee

Turner Penny
Gives Burner
Dollar Some Timely Tips on Saving

BURNER DOLLAR:

What! Going to the bank again? Where DO you get the dough?
You, with a wife and seven kids! Say, Pen, I want to know.

TURNER PENNY:

It isn't that I save so much, but I've just learned the way
To save with regularity, a bit from every "pay."
Save while the sun is shining so that when it rains, you see,
I never have to "scratch" for it; I've made it "scratch" for me.
My family has the habit, too; acquired it long ago,
A little skimping here and there will save a pile of dough.

BURNER DOLLAR:

Say, Pen, you've set me thinking that I'm missing quite a lot.
I'll open an account today and strike while the iron's hot.
And I've been thinking... Sally Jones would make a thrifty wife—
Gee, Pen, you've opened up the way; I'll be your friend for life!

Is Your House in Order for 1924?

Some Suggestions Resulting from the Efforts of an Officer to Obtain Office Efficiency

THERE is a section of our Railroad off the main line which is important enough to have a "big, little" Railroad family of its own. The several departments (and they are rather more varied than usual on account of the peculiar situation of the place), including operating, traffic and accounting, are under the jurisdiction of two officers. Quite recently new and enlarged offices were obtained in an up-to-date and well located building, and the several branches of the jurisdiction which had been housed in separate buildings were brought together in the new quarters. The situation offered an ideal opportunity to set the "big, little" family of officers and clerks in good order, and considerably before the move to the new quarters was made the supervising officers, whom, for convenience, we will call Mr. B, got busy.

Preparing blue prints of the floor space, entrances, corridors, light exposures, etc., of the new quarters, he called a meeting of his staff officers and the chief clerks, gave each a copy and told them that he wanted to work out with them the most efficient arrangement possible of office, desks, etc. Shortly thereafter the final plan of arrangement was ready, new blue prints were prepared and the installation in the new quarters was made accordingly.

Getting Advice of Clerks

Several months working under these conditions showed that the arrangement was practicable and efficient, but Mr. B wanted to make doubly sure, so he prepared a questionnaire, gave every clerk in the office a copy of it, and asked that the data requested on it be ready for him within a week.

The form had the name, date of entering service and present position of each clerk at the top. Under this on the left hand margin were questions similar to these:

1. What, if anything, interferes with your work?
2. What would make your work more efficient?
3. Are your chair and desk comfortable and satisfactory?
4. Is the light O. K?
5. If you use a typewriter, is it in good condition?
6. How do you get your stationery supplies?
7. How is your work given you each day?
8. Is your location in the office of convenient access to the other clerks whose work is most closely related to your own?

Etc.

After getting replies he studied them carefully and then sent one by one for each of the clerks who had filled in the questionnaire.

Improvements Developed

Among many results disclosed were these:

Two young ladies facing each other at a single desk complained, the one that she had to stare at the light coming through a big window opposite her, the other that her back was turned to the window and caused a shadow on her work. A slight rearrangement of the desk and of the desks adjacent was made so that the light now floods their desk in the proper manner.

Two men were found sitting opposite each other at a single desk, and the work of one had no relation whatsoever to the work of the other. Both were moved so that when they completed their part of the work they had only to pass what they had done across the desk where the persons opposite had the next step to handle.

There were several instances somewhat like the last and where a rearrangement of desks meant that instead of the clerks being obliged to get up and walk around the office they were able to keep their seats and merely pass their work to the next desk.

Another young lady complained that she had certain forms to work with which were thirteen inches long, that she had never had carbon paper of that length and that as a result when she had completed the top of the form she had to take the original and carbon out of the typewriter, move the carbon down and reinsert the form to finish it. A supply of the long carbon sheets was immediately purchased, thereby saving the unnecessary removal and reinsertion of the form. Incidentally a study is now being made to reduce the form to the standard 8 x 10½ size and it is expected that this will be worked out with no sacrifice of essential information and with some saving in stationery and further standardizing of sizes.

All these improvements were worked out without one cent additional expenditure, except that for the slightly longer sheet of carbon paper; even this, however, unquestionably resulted in a net economy.

Larger results were brought about in this way: It developed that there wasn't nearly as great systematizing of work as was possible. Auditors were doing the work of file clerks and statisticians spent some of their time doing jobs which should have been done by the office boy, etc.

Now every desk is cleared at the close of business each day. Three clerks report an hour earlier than opening time in the morning, two of them opening the morning mail and placing it on the proper desks and also getting out the unfinished work of the day before and placing it on the proper desks. The other employee sees that ink wells are filled and that blotters and other necessary stationery supplies are ready at hand on each desk where they should be.

The result of this is that when the "whistle blows" in the morning each clerk is busily engaged in the work in which he or she is supposed to specialize and is most proficient. Incidentally tardiness is not permitted in the morning nor quitting work before the close of business each day.

Not Oversystematizing

Now it may appear from the above that Mr. B is a hard taskmaster, a martinet, who does not take the human element into consideration to a sufficient extent: but such is far from being the case. For, in addition to the things outlined above and done in the interest of system and economy, he has made a rearrangement of working and lunch hours which has been a distinct advantage to all the clerks employed under his jurisdiction.

Mr. B made it a special point to put all clerks at their entire ease when the individual investigations were being conducted in his office. Starting with the premise which everybody who has had experience in office work knows to be true, namely, that clerks who are reasonably and systematically busy amid congenial surroundings are much happier than are those who have a chance to loaf and wonder where the next job is coming from, and making it clear to them that this was his standard for the office, he said that he wanted to know each one personally and to have everybody feel that his office door was always open and he always receptive to suggestions for the betterment of service. He urged them to talk with him with the same frankness that they would with one of their fellow clerks, emphasizing that unless there was a thorough understanding on both sides concerning the ideas of office procedure, there never could be complete satisfaction; and that with a thorough understanding of these ideas, he believed it possible to build up an efficient and contented force.

Knows His People

One of the most important things accomplished by this whole investigation was in the personal reaction of Mr. B to the various clerks who came in to see him. He made a pencil note of this reaction on each questionnaire, describing the various clerks with such phrases as: steady, fair, bright but listless, bright but poorly educated, etc. He will keep these questionnaires and his evaluation of personalities, adding to them from time to time as experience permits. And when time for promotions comes these reactions will undoubtedly be of considerable value.

Contact with Public

Another interesting thing which Mr. B has done is to develop a fine esprit de corps in the office in the matter of handling the public. Letters are uniformly answered on the day they are received, if it is in any way possible. Where it isn't possible and the writer can be conveniently reached by phone, he is advised by phone that the information requested will be sent to him just as soon as it can be obtained.

Mr. B frequently makes it his business to telephone his own office from the outside, asking for certain officers who, he knows, are not in. If a clerk answers him over the phone, "Mr. Jones is not in," and hangs up the receiver, he gets a message to report to Mr. B immediately and is advised that the proper thing for him to do under such circumstances is to inform the inquiring party when Mr. Jones will be in and to see if, in the absence of Mr. Jones, he cannot supply whatever information is requested.

Furthermore the antiquated manner of answering the phone with the word "hello" has given place to the up-to-date standard Baltimore and Ohio way of replying: "Baltimore and Ohio, Blank Department, Blank speaking."

(Continued on page 11)

Our President's New Year's Greeting

To All Officers and Employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Company:

A year ago I said in a message addressed to all Baltimore and Ohio officers and employees:

"I earnestly request the co-operation of all in the service, from the lowest in rank to the highest, in an effort to make the New Year a prosperous one for the Baltimore and Ohio Company."

The response to my request has been most gratifying, and I wish all to know that I deeply appreciate their sincere and helpful co-operation towards making the year 1923 a prosperous one for our Company.

Encouraged by the results obtained in 1923, I venture once more to request the continued co-operation of all my associates in the Baltimore and Ohio service. By earnest and sympathetic co-operation we will be able to still further improve the standard of our service to the Public, which should bring to us a larger volume of business as well as steady employment for a larger number of men.

To those who have suffered personal loss or affliction in any way during the year, I extend my sincere sympathy.

The year of 1923 has definitely marked the beginning of an era of good feeling and sympathetic understanding on the Baltimore and Ohio, which I hope will continue and grow stronger with the passage of years.

My best wishes for a Happy New Year for all!

Samuel B. Brice

January 1, 1924

Prize Winning Article in Traffic Solicitation Contest

By J. L. HAYES, Division Freight Agent, Baltimore, Md.

Results of the Prize Contest

The judges in the competition for the best paper submitted on Traffic Solicitation, as announced in the November issue, consisting of Vice-President Fries, General Manager Scheer and Comptroller Ekin, announce that J. L. Hayes, Division Freight Agent, Baltimore Division, submitted the prize winning entry.

Four other competitors submitted very strong papers, final decision as to merit being made in the following order: George S. Harlan, Assistant General Freight Agent, Baltimore; D. E. Sullivan, Division Freight Agent, Chicago, Ill.; C. S. Hendrickson, Traveling Freight Agent, Baltimore Division; C. H. Pumphrey, Division Freight Agent, New York.

Mr. Hayes' paper appears on this page and the papers of the other four competitors mentioned will be published in the next several issues.

THE trite saying that the "Traffic Department is the Sales Department of the Railroad" is true, as its solicitors bear the same relation to the public as do salesmen of industrial concerns. The question involved is "selling" and the solicitor of the railroad is selling transportation.

The man assigned to this work must have the necessary address, courteous manner, experience in dealing with the public, knowledge of the railroad he represents, and, in these days, knowledge of rates and routes which will enable him to answer questions intelligently. All these are essential to success. If the solicitor is so equipped, he should find the following suggestions helpful to successful solicitation.

Analyze Your Territory

In the territory assigned to a solicitor there are certain principal lines of trade moving in both directions, and controlled by either shipper or consignee. These should be analyzed carefully from the standpoint of the railroad by which the solicitor is employed.

Is it receiving its full share of the business moving, and if not, why? Is it a question of service, rates, terminal delivery, preference of shipper or consignee, or any reason which may be taken up through the proper channel and the difficulty overcome? Does shipper sell in markets reached by your railroad, which would give you the maximum haul? If not, endeavor to create such a market by systematic effort on your part with the representative of your railroad at the other end of the line. If your line is being shorthauled for any reason, ascertain why, and act accordingly, either through the shipper or consignee.

Do not forget that the railroad has placed a man at the other end to help you as well as himself, and if you cannot secure the business from the shipper, perhaps the man at the other end can do so from the consignee. Give your full cooperation to the other fellow and get the same from him. Know your territory thoroughly, how the traffic moves, and why.

Interchange Information

If you have local points in your territory do not get the idea that because an industry is local to your line it should be left to work out its own salvation. You can aid it to develop its business by giving it, when possible, advance information covering prospective contracts for construction work, road building, supplies and many other things concerning which it may not have received information as promptly as you, and you may thus insure movement from a plant local to your line, which would otherwise be open to competition, and which you might be unable to secure. Many new markets have been developed in this way, and any development of a local industry means permanent business for the railroad.

Cooperation with Your Own People

The solicitor must of necessity come into contact with the local operating and transportation people, and to secure the best results this should be done as far as possible

(Continued on page 10)

Center: J. L. Hayes, Division Freight Agent, Baltimore Division, whose article won prize of $100.00 in "Traffic Solicitation Contest." Upper left: G. S. Harlan, Assistant General Freight Agent, Baltimore. Upper right: D. E. Sullivan, Division Freight Agent, Chicago Division. Lower left: C. S. Hendrickson, Traveling Freight Agent, Baltimore Division. Lower right: C. H. Pumphrey, Division Freight Agent, New York

Traffic Tips Received on Cards Inserted in MAGAZINE

SEPTEMBER, 1923—FREIGHT

INFORMANT	SHIPPER, CONSIGNEE OR INDUSTRY INVOLVED	BUSINESS REPORTED	ACTION TAKEN AND RESULT
E. E. Baker, Agent, Strasburg, Jct., W. Va.....	Strasburg Orchard & Produce Co., Strasburg, Va.....	25 cars apples.....	Matter handled with Division Freight Agent Phenix, New York. Shipper prefers other railroad delivery

PASSENGER

Ticket Agent Johnson, Philadelphia, Pa.....	Miss G. Wolff, 1150 Broadway, New York, N. Y.....	Trip to Los Angeles, California.	Interviewed by passenger representative, Miss Wolff will give us preference
Miss M. T. Stevens, Associate Editor, MAGAZINE, Baltimore, Md.....	Mr. W. R. Coleman, Southern Electric Co., Baltimore, Md..	Trip to Cleveland, Ohio.....	Interviewed by passenger representative. Being followed
Anonymous.....	Mr. W. C. Wheeler, 1114 Brentwood Ave., Baltimore, Md....	Trip to Honolulu.....	Interviewed by passenger representative. Being followed
R. L. Ketzner, C. T. Department, Cumberland.....	Mr. Frank Barley, Representing Holy Name Society.....	Movement 180 members Holy Name Society, Cumberland to Baltimore, Md.....	Interviewed by passenger representative. Secured party of 180 persons for movement via Baltimore and Ohio
R. L. Ketzner, C. T. Department, Cumberland.....	San Carlos Theatrical Co.....	Movement Cumberland to Grafton and points beyond...	Interviewed by passenger representative. Secured movement via Baltimore and Ohio
G. P. Gulick, M. P. Department.	Mr. Harry Irvine and Family....	Trip to California.....	Interviewed by passenger representative. Mr. Irvine has not decided definitely. Being followed

OCTOBER, 1923—FREIGHT

C. O. Abele, Rate Clerk, Sandusky.....		30 cars building stone to Jackson, Mich.....	Being followed by Division Freight Agent Kendall
F. B. Ayres, Louisville Industrial Foundation.....		2 cars machinery Akron to Louisville, Ky.....	Being followed by Assistant General Freight Agent Marney. Business secured
F. G. Gasperich, Machinist Helper, Mt. Clare.....	Advance Rumley Thresher Co., Laporte, Ind.....	Implements.....	General Freight Agent Carroll followed up with Division Freight Agent Sullivan, Garrett, Ind., who is soliciting shippers
I. C. White, Relief Department, Baltimore, Md.....	Hecht's Furniture Store, S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md...	4000 pounds furniture to Texas..	Routed via New York and Morgan Line
O. K. Quivey, General Agricultural Agent, Baltimore, Md..	Not given.....	2 cars sauer kraut, Chicago to Baltimore.....	Secured for Baltimore and Ohio movement

PASSENGER

W. R. Strickland, Legal Dept., Newark, N. J.....	Miss Ellen Crandell, Durham, N. Y.....	Trip—New York to California.	Trip made via Baltimore and Ohio, ticket having been delivered reading New York to Seattle
Miss M. T. Stevens, MAGAZINE, Baltimore, Md.....	Mrs. Francis Gettinger, Bainbridge Building, N. Y.....	Advice that considerable traveling is done by this individual.	Our representative will solicit future trips via Baltimore and Ohio
E. T. Mitchell (Title, etc., not given).....		Two trips—Philadelphia to Baltimore.....	Business secured for Baltimore and Ohio
E. T. Mitchell (Title, etc., not given).....		Trip—Philadelphia to Chicago.	Being followed. Baltimore and Ohio will be used in December
E. T. Mitchell (Title, etc., not given).....		Trip—Philadelphia to Fresno..	Being followed. Baltimore and Ohio will be used in July, 1924
Mr. McDevitt (Title, etc., not given).....		Trip—Philadelphia to Los Angeles.....	Being followed. Baltimore and Ohio will be used when trip is made
Tip received unsigned.....		Two Trips—Philadelphia to French Lick.....	Baltimore and Ohio used
P. L. Ellis, Car Inspector, North Vernon, Ind.....	Mr. A. A. Tripp, North Vernon, Ind.....	Trip—North Vernon to St. Louis.....	Baltimore and Ohio used
C. W. Berry, Conductor, Gassaway, W. Va.....	Mr. G. A. Youell, Chillicothe, Ohio.....	Inquiry regarding fare—Charleston to Chillicothe, Ohio....	Being followed
C. H. Bonneson, Train Dispatcher, Wheeling, W. Va....	Mr. Nelson McNash, Wheeling, W. Va.....	Inquiry as to details trip Wheeling to Los Angeles.....	Being followed
C. R. Bishop, Agent, Cottageville, W. Va.....	Mr. L. B. Patterson, Cottageville, W. Va.....	Inquiry regarding tourist passenger fare to Jacksonville, Fla.....	Being followed

Traffic Tips Received on Cards Inserted in MAGAZINE

NOVEMBER, 1923—FREIGHT

INFORMANT	SHIPPER, CONSIGNEE OR INDUSTRY INVOLVED	BUSINESS REPORTED	ACTION TAKEN AND RESULT
Wm. D. Risch, Auditor's Office, S. I. R. T. R'y, New York, N. Y.....	Washburn-Crosby Co., Minneapolis, Minn.....	Eight Cars Flour to Long Island.	Secured for movement via Baltimore and Ohio—Approximate revenue $828.00
J. W. Thomas, Office Auditor Merchandise Receipts, Baltimore, Md.....	E. J. Thomas, Baltimore, Md.....	Carload H. H. Goods to Saginaw Mich.....	Matter followed by District Freight Agent King. Movement secured
M. Stanley, Engineer, Fairmont, W. Va.....	R. Shuttleworth, Alpine, Ind.....	Lumber.....	Matter referred by Division Freight Agent Hayes to Assistant General Freight Agent Gallaher, Cincinnati, Ohio. Being followed
C. Becker, Office Assistant Auditor Disbursements, Baltimore, Md.....	Williams S. S. Co., Baltimore, Md.....		Matter referred by Division Freight Agent Hayes to Assistant Foreign Freight Agent Wight. Being followed
H. Irving Martin, Relief Department, Baltimore, Md.....	National Coconut Co., Baltimore, Md.....	Carloads and less.....	Interviewed by District Freight Agent King. All traffic routed Baltimore and Ohio

PASSENGER

J. W. Burnett, Clerk, New Castle, Pa.....	L. W. Slater.....	Makes trips between Philadelphia and New Castle, Pa....	Being followed by passenger representative, Philadelphia, Pa.
J. R. Morrison, Agent, Philadelphia, Pa.....	Mr. & Mrs. T. R. Beck.....	Two-round-trip tickets Philadelphia to Washington.....	Used Baltimore and Ohio service
E. T. Mitchell, Clerk, Philadelphia, Pa.....	Prospective passenger.....	Round trip Philadelphia to Chicago.....	Made trip via Baltimore and Ohio
Miss L. E. Scheuler, Office Assistant Auditor Disbursements, Baltimore, Md.....	Mrs. Harry Hicks, Allegheny Ave., Towson, Md.....	One ticket to California.....	Ticket purchased by Mrs. Hicks
C. V. Smith, Accounting Department, Baltimore, Md.....	G. C. Knipp & Sons, 218 Clay St., Baltimore, Md.....		Interviewed by passenger representative. Being followed.
R. V. Montgomery, Clerk, Freight Agent's Office, Washington, D. C.....	Prospective Passenger.....	Washington, D. C. to Dubuque, Iowa.....	Ticket sold to passenger—Rate $34.31
C. B. Pierce, Telegraph Office, Baltimore, Md.....	Dr. Zaida Brown Kates.....	Has been commuting between Washington and Baltimore via competing line.....	Promises to purchase Baltimore and Ohio ticket when new one is needed
R. L. Ketzner, Assistant Chief Clerk to Superintendent, Cumberland, Md.....		Special train Morgantown to M. & K. Jct.....	Arrangements handled by Passenger Department
H. R. Helvey, Friedens, Pa....	Prospective Passenger.....	Cumberland to California.....	Interviewed by passenger representative. Being followed
T. G. McMahon, Passenger Conductor.....	Three Prospective Passengers..	Trip—Pittsburgh to Los Angeles, Cal.....	Used Baltimore and Ohio Train No. 5, December 18
H. G. Allen, Secretary, Coal Freight Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa.....		Two tickets Pittsburgh to New York.....	Purchased tickets November 28
C. J. Austin, Round House, Washington, Ind.....	Mrs. Fred Bartech.....	Prospective Passenger.....	Interviewed by passenger representative. Being followed
Office of District Freight Agent Markley, Pittsburgh, Pa.....	Prospective Passengers.....	Five and one-half tickets Pittsburgh to Clearwater, Fla....	Baltimore and Ohio tickets purchased
Elmer Becker, General Superintendent's Office, Cincinnati..	Mr. C. T. Hirschfield, 1036 Straight St., Cincinnati, Ohio.	Two tickets Cincinnati to Detroit.....	Mr. Becker solicited Mr. Hirschfield, the former securing tickets and making necessary reservations
Ralph J. Ingraham, Cincinnati, Ohio.....	Mr. J. W. Hendrixson, 3840 Marburg St., Cincinnati, Ohio.	Proposed trip.....	Interviewed by passenger representative, trip postponed

Prize Winning Article in Traffic Solicitation Contest

(Continued from page 7)

through personal conferences rather than through the medium of correspondence. Do not let your local operating man get the idea that you are a constant complainer and rush to put your complaints on paper. Rather, confer with him frequently, lay your problems before him, and as he realizes as well as you the necessity of keeping revenues to a maximum, he will cooperate with you fully so that the railroad may receive the greatest possible benefit through increased traffic, the securing of which may be dependent upon your joint efforts.

As other departments of the railroad have a bearing on your work, keep in touch with them also, as far as you can, particularly the Accounting, Claim and Car Service, enlisting their aid, and learning their regulations and practices, in order that you may be in a position to give intelligent and satisfactory replies to inquiries made by your patrons.

Get Outside Help!

Do not depend upon your efforts alone to obtain information concerning prospective movement of traffic when there are so many other sources available. The daily newspapers are a fertile field, reporters frequently having methods of securing information possibly not open to you. Keep in close touch with Chambers of Commerce, trades bodies and civic and fraternal organizations, all these having local information at times of great value in securing additional traffic. Trade information with representatives of connecting lines with whom you come in contact, and use all these outside agencies to the fullest extent in building up your own knowledge of the situation and opportunities for increased traffic. You cannot be everywhere at one time, but you can strengthen your position by cooperation.

Be Dependable!

Be known as a dependable man representing a dependable railroad. Never make a promise to a patron of the road unless you are sure you can carry it out. If in doubt, tell him so, but make it your business to ascertain whether what he desires can be accomplished and give him the information promptly. One of the greatest assets a solicitor can have is dependability, and by creating in the minds of your patrons a feeling of absolute confidence in you and your services, you can do more toward cementing friendship toward the railroad than in any other way.

Finally the solicitor must be loyal, energetic, unafraid of hard work and rebuffs. He must have a keen scent for traffic possibilities which the ordinary man might overlook, have an abiding faith that his railroad is the best in the world, and be willing at all times to sacrifice self and his own pleasures in the interests of the company he represents. These attributes, together with the ability and desire for absorbing railroad and general knowledge, will win, not only for the man himself, but for the railroad as well, in increased traffic brought about through successful solicitation.

J. E. McKibbin, a Live Wire, Secures 250 Car Loads of Business for Baltimore and Ohio

RECENTLY the MAGAZINE made an appeal to all employees to assist in securing business for our Company. That the opportunities for such missionary work are not confined to the Traffic Department and agency forces has been proven on many occasions.

Recently, J. E. McKibbin, chief clerk to district engineer, Cincinnati, Ohio, was talking to a friend, who is the head of a large builders' exchange. This gentleman was preparing to ship 250 carloads of building material to various points in competitive territory and asked Mr.

McKibbin for information with reference to rates, car supply, etc. Mr. McKibbin immediately got in touch with our Traffic and Transportation Departments and secured the necessary information, and used his influence with his friend to such good extent that shipments were made via Baltimore and Ohio.

This is but one instance of many and goes to show that our employees are doing their full share in securing business for the Baltimore and Ohio. The MAGAZINE is pleased to record the appreciation of the Company for the good work done by our employees in these cases.

The Trace Clerk is a Potent Factor in Getting and Holding Business

By A. NORMAN FONDA, Assistant Chief Clerk to Freight Traffic Manager, New York

EVERYONE dealing directly or indirectly with freight transportation recognizes the supreme importance of carload and less carload tracing.

In the pre-war period, this function was merely a cog of little significance in the great wheel of routine. During that time freight traffic solicitation was not conducted along scientific lines as it is now; the improvement comes from reorganization and new methods perfected since the return of the carriers to corporate control.

Competition today is keen, and as service is practically the only commodity the railroads have to offer the shipping public, much thought and consideration must be given towards improvement in that direction, and tracing is, of course, a dominant factor under the heading of Service.

The trace clerk should possess initiative, tact and diplomacy. Courtesy should be his never failing asset. To attain the desired results, there must also necessarily exist real cooperation between the various departments of the System.

All these factors are essential because the trace clerk, as a Baltimore and Ohio representative, wields great influence—either beneficial or detrimental to the Company's interest—in his dealings with the shipping public.

In a word, the Tracing Department is a splendid medium through which to demonstrate one form of service so much in demand by Baltimore and Ohio patrons, and it is a foregone conclusion that if its representatives give satisfaction, it will redound to our benefit in many ways.

"Velvet"

Whether a train has 50 or 300 people aboard, it has to run because it is scheduled. Furthermore, it costs relatively only a little more to transport the 300 than it does the 50.

When you get just one additional passenger for your road, therefore, you can safely figure that you have added nearly the entire amount of that passenger's fare to the net revenue.

Let's get some of this "velvet!"

William D. Risch

William D. Risch—a Big Business Getter

W. F. RICHARDSON, general freight agent in New York, reports that William D. Risch, Auditor's Office, Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway, recently secured a heavy tonnage movement from the west resulting in revenue of $828. The shipper is an old friend of the Baltimore and Ohio but the business in this case was highly competitive and if it had not been for the personal effort of Mr. Risch to secure it for our line, it might have gone to another road. Thank you, Mr. Risch, and may your tribe increase to legion during 1924!

President Willard's Boyhood Ambition

IN a recent informal address to the Baltimore and Ohio Association of Railway Surgeons, President Willard told a good story on himself. He stated to the doctors that he was particularly interested in their profession because as a boy it was his ambition to become a doctor. "I had no longing to be a railroad man," he said, "although the railroad ran through my father's farm in Vermont, and of course I saw the engines and cars daily. But the public highway also ran by the farm.

"The duties of a boy on the farm in those days seemed to be innumerable. I never had a chance to sit down. There seemed to be no limit to what a farm boy must do, and, funny as it may now seem to you, my keenest desire was to sit down and rest. So when I used to see the old family doctor riding along with his horse and shay, and the doctor sitting comfortably on the seat, probably asleep, while I was mowing hay or doing one of the hundred-and-one other jobs I had,

I used to think what a nice easy job the doctor had, and that my ambition would be realized if I could only be a doctor and sit down."

Conductor O. A. Best, Newark Division, Stops a Leak

CONDUCTOR O. A. Best observed a car of salt cake consigned to Marietta, billed at tare weight of 40,000 pounds, whereas the marked light weight of the car was 35,400 pounds. Notation was made on way bill with result that agent made correction on be encouraged to give us his business. If you were going to place an important commission with some concern, would you not much rather place it in an office which is orderly, systematic-looking and business-like than you would in a place which bore all the earmarks of being slovenly?

"If a person calls on the telephone and gets the short shift implied in the response 'hello! No, Mr. Jones isn't in!' and then has the receiver hung up on him, he is sure to think that we don't know much about accepted business standards, that we are trailing the procession instead of being up among the leaders—and he will direct his inquiries elsewhere.

"Too few of us, remember that successful railroading is an unrelenting struggle to give service in all its forms, that competition is extremely keen and that the business goes to the railroad which gives the best service. In this service there is no more important factor than prompt and courteous handling of inquiries, notices, bills, etc., by the Railroad office force.

"We do not want to make a machine out of any person in this office but we do want to make a good machine out of the entire personnel from the office boy all along the line to myself."

And the two officers represented in our "Mr. B" are such fine examples of ideal office deportment—neat in appearance, quiet, orderly, friendly to clerks and courteous to the public—that it is no wonder they are the most important cogs in this well assembled and smooth running machine!

That Appetizing Cover!

Ever since the publication of our November issue the editorial staff has heard many interesting comments concerning the cover thereof, all of which were complimentary to George Nelson, the chef who smiled the smile that made him famous as he carved the Thanksgiving turkey. However, there was one criticism that is especially worthy of mention. Among our many sins of omission, we are reminded that we neglected to give that cover a title. We apologize.

The most constructive piece of criticism in this connection, is the one given us by our general inspector of transportation, Charles Selden, who not only told us that we ought to have given the picture a title, but suggested a title that would have been most unique and fitting, to wit:

THE CONQUEST OF TURKEY
HANDSOME GEORGE BEHIND THE BREASTWORKS

billing which increased our revenue on the car $6.67. Thank you, Conductor Best!

Is Your House in Order for 1924?

(Continued from page 6)
What It All Means

The point made by Mr. B in these respects is well taken. He explains it to clerks who haven't quite gotten the idea in this way:

"We want to run an up-to-date, business-like place here. If a customer comes in and finds the office full of tobacco smoke, clerks standing in groups idly chatting and talking, and an air of slipshodness about the whole place, he will think we are a bunch of dead ones and he won't

Record from first trip, May 13, to
January 1, 1924

MY pockets were stuffed out with shirts and stockings, and I knew no soul nor where to look for lodging. I was fatigued with travelling, rowing and want of rest, I was very hungry; and my whole stock of cash consisted of a Dutch dollar and about a shilling in copper. The latter I gave to the people of the boat for my passage.... Then I walked up the street, gazing about till near the market-house I met a boy with bread. I had made many a meal on bread, and, inquiring where he got it, I went immediately to the baker's he directed me to.... I bade him give me three penny worth of any sort. He gave me accordingly, three great puffy rolls. I was surprised at the quantity, but took it, and having no room in my pockets, walked off with a roll under each arm and eating the other. Thus I went up Market Street ..... and being filled with one of the rolls, gave the other two to a woman and her child....."

The foregoing paragraph is from Benjamin Franklin's own autobiography.

On that memorable Sunday morning in Philadelphia, Benjamin Franklin practised economy, chiefly because it was necessary, but he spent wisely; when he decided on how much money he should spend, that amount would have bought him either a mug of beer or three rolls; he knew that there was more nourishment in the rolls, and nourishment was what his body needed, not stimulant. He paid cash for what he bought; it is possible that Franklin might have borrowed enough or even begged for his breakfast, but he did not ask for credit. He did not go beyond his means; he might easily have spent his whole shilling—not much, it is true, but it would have afforded him a better breakfast; since, however, he had no employment he intended to make that shilling stretch as far as possible. And yet he shared what he had with others.

Thrift, as Benjamin Franklin saw it, consisted not only in saving wherever and whenever possible, in business, in foods, in pleasure, in clothes, but in spending wisely both time and money, and in being charitable where charity is required. His principles of thrift have been at work in the minds and hearts of diligent people ever since.

Thrift Week

A National Event for Individual Happiness

This month the National Thrift Committee, which is an organization fostered by the Y. M. C. A. and co-operating with forty-eight national, civic, commercial, educational and religious organizations, will celebrate National Thrift Week. The object of the movement is simply to encourage right living through systematic saving and wise spending.

This Engineer Has $20,000 in the Bank

This issue of the MAGAZINE contains several articles which have been selected from many submitted because of the helpful thrift suggestions, especially prepared for Baltimore and Ohio employees, which they contain.

The splendid opportunities offered through the Savings and Loan features of the Relief Department are emphasized, but there are other articles covering saving banks, home budgets and other things.

Several days before Christmas I met one of our best passenger engineers—a comparatively young fellow, too—who told me he was off for a week's holiday. No wonder he could take this time off—HE HIMSELF TOLD ME that he now has on deposit in the Relief Department over $20,000, representing his savings for about twenty years. And he is no miser at that, but one of the heartiest looking and best dressed men I know.

If you want to be happier, start saving—NOW. And a good way to start is to order a budget book for savings. This you can get by sending to the MAGAZINE Office 10 cents, the price charged us.

The week beginning January 17, Franklin's birthday, has been set aside as National Thrift Week. Thursday, January 17 is Thrift Day, the day on which we are to complete our plans for systematic saving; Friday is Budget Day, or the time to make sure that you are using a budget in connection with your household and other expenditures. To meet this need, the National Committee has planned a little booklet, known as "THE BUDGET BOOK WITH A CONSCIENCE." This booklet may be had at cost (10 cents per copy) by writing to the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE, Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md., enclosing ten cents with your letter. This booklet provides for accounts that will fit the needs of every household as well as those of the person who boards, or for anyone who needs to spend money for food, clothing, insurance, savings, etc. There is a place for the records for each day in the year, and the book would be well worth the money to any Baltimore and Ohio employee.

Saturday, January 19 is Pay Bills Day; Sunday, January 20 is Share with Others Day; Monday, January 21 is Life Insurance Day; Tuesday, January 22 is Own Your Home Day—an opportune time to begin thinking about buying a home through the Relief Department; and Wednesday, January 23 is Make a Will Day.

Benjamin Franklin is called the Father of Thrift. To emulate his example does not mean that we shall eat only a boiled potato or a handful of raisins for lunch, as he often did; nor does it mean that we are to walk down the streets of Philadelphia with two rolls under our arms and with the third beating a hasty retreat into our empty stomachs. It simply means that we should use every possible means to spend our money wisely, even down to the little pennies, which are by no means to be despised. It means that to be thrifty employees we must save wherever possible; that each of us should carry a reasonable amount of life insurance; that our recreation hours should be spent in profitable pleasure; that vacations shall be so used as to mean renewed mental and physical energy; that education is a thing worth spending money for, and that money put into a home of our own is money well saved.

There are several stories on Thrift in this issue, prepared to interest especially our own employees in helping themselves. It will pay us all to read them.

Operators!

It costs about $2.30 on an average, to stop a tonnage train. You can often save a considerable part of this amount, when you have "19" orders, by being on the alert and delivering before train has stopped.

With hundreds of tonnage trains all the time moving on different parts of the system, cooperation of operators generally will result in the saving of a large sum during the course of a year.

Thrift is Common Sense—a Science of Living in Which You Can Share if You Will

By JOHN A. RUPP, Magazine Correspondent, Office of Assistant Comptroller Deverell

WHAT constitutes thrift? It means not only saving money but economical management of all one's property. Not storing every penny like a miser but spending wisely and saving all you can. It is a wrong plan to store money in your home where it is not safe. In a bank the funds are properly taken care of and your money works for you. The Savings Banks follow safe policies in investing funds in their keeping, being governed by laws which cover various forms of securities, loans and holdings.

There is thrift of time and energy also. "Making good use of time" and "doing something worth while" come under this heading. It is not right to be unwilling to share funds with a poor family or a hospital that needs aid.

To be thrifty is to be patriotic. During the World War hardly a month passed without a drive being conducted. The people of this country willingly gave their all and we well remember the wheatless, meatless and sugarless days that taught us self-denial.

The importance of knowing how to spend is becoming a practical science under expert study. Much stress has been laid on budget plans. Thus, in business, a budget is to secure profit; in government, to reduce taxes; and in the home, to promote saving. To succeed a man must have a plan and stick to it. At times, circumstances will turn him aside but ever his plan must be in view. Every dollar saved is a soldier of defense. No plan can be well conceived or offer any hope of success which does not have thrift as its basis. Back your plan by will-power and determination.

All through life we look for thrills. When we read a book or if we go to a movie show, we want a thrill every minute. Try building up a savings account and you'll get the biggest thrill of all.

While you are practicing economy you not only are accumulating money, but acquiring the best asset of all—strength of character. Looking at a bank book with a good sum to your credit is like looking at a log-fire; you can see all kinds of pictures in it and can visualize whatever you desire; a new wardrobe, a vacation trip, anything—because you have money in the bank to realize your ambitions. Note the cover on this issue of the MAGAZINE.

Few people get rich quickly. There is no royal road to independence and happiness. The goal can be reached only by continued effort. It is best to start in life as early as possible for when your chance is gone by, like the rushing express train, it doesn't turn around and come back to please you. While you are young the chance is there—before you know it, it is gone and gone for good.

The spirit of thrift is not dormant among Baltimore and Ohio folks, for friendliness and helpfulness obtain between Management and employees all over the Railroad and that is what encourages and nurtures good habits. But it is a privilege for the MAGAZINE to further economy by this Thrift Number and to suggest so many ways in which individual thrift—hence happiness—can be promoted.

This spirit of thrift is the essence of the New Year spirit and in voicing a New Year resolution we could not resolve a better purpose than to save.

May the spirit grow as the years come and go!

American Peace Award

Edward W. Bok, former editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, offered $100,000.00 as an award for the Best Practical Plan by which the United States May Co-operate with Other Nations, looking toward the Prevention of War.

It was the unanimous opinion of the jury of eminent Americans making the award that of the 22,165 plans submitted, Plan Number 1469 was the most practicable. It is desired, however, that an expression of opinion be obtained from the American people concerning this plan and to this end newspapers and magazines are publishing a digest of the plan with a coupon which may be filled in and forwarded to the committee.

Citizens who are interested in any step made toward the prevention of war here have an excellent opportunity of registering their conviction in this respect. Read the digest in your daily paper and if you believe that it offers a practicable plan to minimize the danger of war, send in the coupon.

A-B-Cs of the Relief Department Savings and Loan Feature That Every Employee Should Know

Organized

August 1, 1882.

Purpose

The Savings Feature combines the advantages of a savings and loan association, through which employees and their immediate dependents may accumulate their savings, and from which they may obtain funds to purchase homes to be repaid through reasonable monthly instalments.

The Baltimore and Ohio guarantees four per cent. on all deposits. For a number of years, this Feature has earned and paid not less than five per cent. on deposits and has accumulated a reasonable surplus fund. This Feature loans money to employees on first mortgages on real estate only, at reasonable rates and liberal terms of repayment.

Deposits Made

The total deposits made in the Savings Department from August 1, 1882, to October 31, 1923, have been $36,801,560.11.

Interest Paid Out

The total interest paid on savings during the same period has been $8,343,211.11.

Average Rate of Interest

The average rate of interest paid per annum is 5%.

Loans Granted

From August 1, 1882, to October 31, 1923, there have been 25,050 loans granted to build, purchase and improve homes and to release liens.

Value of Homes Built

The approximate gross value of homes purchased or built through the Relief Department is $40,000,000.00.

Further Information

May be obtained by writing Relief Department, Baltimore and Ohio R. R., Baltimore, Md., or visiting the office in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO MAGAZINE

OFFICE: Mt. Royal Station, Baltimore, Md.

ROBERT M. VAN SANT, Editor
 MARGARET TALBOTT STEVENS, Associate Editor
 M. W. JONES, Assistant Editor
 CHARLES H. DICKSON, Art Editor
 HERBERT D. STITT, Staff Artist
 GEORGE B. LUCKEY, Staff Photographer

Christmas on the Railroad

Christmas never comes but that it brings to the receptive soul new beauties which make the picture of this unfolded day by day more attractive and helpful.

This year it was my good fortune to attend two Christmas "get-togethers" held in Baltimore, one in the Office of the General Freight Claim Agent and the other in the Office of the Auditor of Freight Claims, and I could not help but think during these experiences, of the influence such occasions must have in the everyday work of the employees of these and the other departments which enjoy the same fraternal and friendly spirit. Getting together and singing such impressive and beautiful songs as "Holy Night," "Adeste Fidelis" and the other hymns and carols which so joyfully proclaim the Christmas festival, inevitably makes those participating think, if only for a moment, of the message of peace and good will. This is the essence of the true Christmas spirit and must have a powerful effect during the days of the coming year, in making for greater forbearance, the desire for a clearer understanding of the other fellow's problem, and a determination to pull together for the best interests of the organization we are members of.

And then, as I stood in our Baltimore stations on occasion during the several days before Christmas and witnessed the many home comings—with open arms extended to clasp the loved one long absent from the home fireside and tears of sheer joy coursing down the cheeks of reunited relatives—I could not help but be thankful that I have a small part in this great business of transportation, which, though it takes us at times away from our loved ones, is always ready to bring us back home.

I recall particularly a scene in Camden Station occurring several nights before Christmas. Dozens of immigrants arrived on Number 17 from New York, most of them, I think, from Germany. Here was an uncle still speaking with a broken accent and welcoming his nephew, a clean cut fellow of about 25, with his wife and three children. The uncle told me that he had not seen the boy since he was a baby in his cradle in the homeland and that he was throwing open his home, won in America through industry and hard work, to these relatives of his from the stricken land. And this made me wish, oh, so hard, that the real spirit of the Christmas season could make itself felt in the councils of the world to such an extent that the sorrow and suffering and death which is now being visited upon so many lands through misunderstanding, suspicion and hatred, could be forever banished.

A big problem, you say. Yes, but there is no problem too big for solution if we all try hard enough. Taking a leaf, therefore, from the glad book of Christmas experiences, may we not each resolve for the New Year that it shall not be a selfish season for us, but that every day we will give a thought of good will and personal interest to those less fortunate than ourselves, at home and abroad.

As for the Company and the true spirit of Good Will which is the foundation of the happiness of our great Railroad family, let me commend to all the family the wholesome and beneficial effect of the little pre-Christmas gatherings described above. I hope that 1924 may be such a year with us as to make all department heads all over the Railroad want, when the next Christmas comes, to get together with those under their jurisdiction and to memorialize, as it were, the spirit of good will among us by the singing of Christmas carols, the providing of appropriate entertainment and the exchange of fraternal greetings.

How Do They Do It?

That is a question you often hear on the street today when one of the neighbors drives by in a new car. But believing in the salutary admonition "M. Y. O. B." we won't try to answer it. We prefer to talk about the other fellow who could buy a car but who feels that he can't afford it.

The one we have in mind recently got a new job on the road involving a transfer to a new location. His salary went up twenty dollars a month (he had earned it in keen competition). What is he doing with this twenty?

Did he "blow" it on an assortment of new clothes? Did he encourage his wife to greater expenditures for food? Did he enlarge his entertainment program? Did he spend it on any one of the many unnecessary things that are so alluring when one gets "on velvet?"

No, if these ways to spend unprofitably tempted him, he was strong enough to say "no." His only increased expenditure was $5.00 a month, invested wisely in a higher house rental, and which brought greater comfort and more healthful and attractive surroundings to him and his family of wife and child. The balance of $15.00 a month is being added to the $20.00 he had already been saving, and each month now sees $35.00 go to the Relief Department, to draw interest in his favor at 4½ to 5% on monthly balances.

Not all of us can save $35.00 a month but there are few of us who cannot save something. Why not start now?

Homilies of the Hudson

Rhyme and Reason

This homily is both brief and concise—much in little. Something to think about:

Shiftless rhymes with thrifless,—thrift with lift. See the connections? Many thousand words could be used in elaboration of this, but the space is limited, and it is better that everybody should draw the inferences and work up the proofs for himself. The task is easy because the deductions are obvious.

It is said: "take care of the pennies, the dollars will take care of themselves," and a witty cynic has said "take care of your nickels, somebody else will take care of your dollars." Better than either is "take care of your small change; it grows; and when it is big it will take care of you when you need it, which is about a thousand to one that you do, sooner or later."

Thrift is the opposite of waste. If in personal and household economies the same principles were applied as are applied in manufacturing, there would be no waste, or very little. They say that in the stockyards nothing is wasted except the squeals. Thrift is acquired by practice and becomes a habit. Start the practice early and "get the habit."

"See a pin and pick it up," may or may not "bring good luck," but the stooping is good exercise and the picking is entirely in line with the practice of thrift. The earlier you start practicing—the sooner you get the habit. If "eventually," why not "now"—January, 1924!

Musically Speaking, This is Not Harmony

(See leading paragraph, this page, October issue)

Now that the editor has had his little fun at my expense, with my musical taste, I admit, sorrowfully, that what I don't know about the science of phonics and harmonics is a lot. Furthermore I admit that rugged music, whether in Asa's shroud or in the Italian brass band interpreting Chopin, does not appeal to me—as music.

Music is a succession or combination of sounds that please the ear. There are many combinations of sounds that produce emotional effects without being pleasing to the ear: e. g.—a cat chorus. However there are minds or souls so fortunately endowed that they can hear music in any kind of noise.

Mark Twain tells the world that he composed a song from words he found on his railroad ticket and the clang of a flat wheel pounding the rails. The words were: "Punch, conductor, punch with care—punch in the presence of the passengair," and repeat. The musical score he did not publish. Professor Garrett P. Serviss, in an article dealing with acoustics and phonics, makes the claim that he can hear any melody that he is familiar with and with full orchestration, in the sounds accompanying the train on which he travels. (He should pay extra for that, or the railroad should advertise "free music.")

I knew a fellow once, on board a ship, who heard the tune of "Nearer, My God, to Thee" in the ungodly din made by a hurricane in the fullrigger's top-hamper. Otherwise musical taste undoubtedly is a matter of "cultivation." Savage peoples' ears are pleased with the sounds produced by rattles and tom-toms. The musically highly cultured find music in the Pagliacci prologue. Both are about the same to me.

Taste in music is like the taste in food. The Eskimo likes his whale blubber and "ripe" eidergoose eggs. The epicure wants his venison "high." The Hamburger loves his limburger "as is." And so on. The first raw oyster that I was persuaded to try got no chance to contribute to my nourishment, but later while I was living by the Chesapeake Bay, the oyster, like the sin that we first abhor, later tolerate and finally embrace, became my good friend and favorite.

Returning to music: the spiritual noise in Asa's shroud is as far beyond my range as is Tetrizzini's high E, and if it ever was in my rugged Scandinavian blood it is now out of it (I was subject to nosebleed when a boy.) The songs of the folk among whom I was brought up were simple and mostly plaintive, but they pleased my ear then, and still do, because of my lack of musical culture.

I can hear no music in the breaking of a plate-glass window, though taken separately each piece would give a sound pleasing to the ear; neither do I hear it in thunder or the roar of an angry ocean. Some people, I presume, do. Apollo's lyre only had nine strings stretched across a tortoise shell, but from all accounts there was some "music" in it.

By the Way

Come to think of it, the old copy book text, "Honesty is the best policy," is badly worded because it does not say what it means, if we reflect that "policy" means prudence and calculation, a taking account of risks. A crook with an opportunity spoiled by seeing coming events cast their shadows before in the shape of a cop at the corner, stays honest for the time being—from policy. The Scot who admonished his son to be honest by saying: "Make money, laddie, make money honestly, if you can, but make money," suggested a certain discretion to be good policy in the making of money. Honesty from policy again!

A cynic has said that "every man has his price." He probably knew himself and measured all men with his millimeter rule. Don't believe it. Trust your neighbor. And if it chanced that you found your trust misplaced, accept the circumstance as a casual and extraordinary deviation from the general rule, as the exception that proves the rule. There is more comfort and satisfaction in believing everybody honest until proven guilty than in nursing a suspicion that we are all crooks.

Agent J. W. Dashiell—the Man Who Put Glenwood on the Savings Feature Records—and How He Keeps It There

GOOD morning, Mr. Dashiell. Have you got my pay check?" The speaker is a young yard brakeman who is hard on the heels of the ghost who walks every two weeks.

"Sure, Charlie. Here you are. Run along and cash it—then come back. I want to see you."

Charlie, curious to know what the agent wants with him, hurries back to the ticket window.

"What do you want, Mr. Dashiell?"

"Say, Charlie, did you ever think of opening an account with the Savings Feature?"

"Yes, er, well, you know I have thought a whole lot about it, but it seems like I can't get much together, that is, not enough to start an account. I reckon maybe I could save a dollar or two a month, but that wouldn't amount to so much."

"No? Well, partner, it's just this: How would you like to own about $60 just now? Come in right handy for Christmas, wouldn't it?"

"You're right it would. But I haven't got it, so it's no use to cry over spilled milk."

"No, but money and milk are different. One improves with age, the other doesn't. Do you realize that if you had saved up a little more than a dollar a week since last Christmas you'd have had your $60 now?"

"That's so, I reckon, Mr. Dashiell. Let's see—a dollar and a quarter a week, five dollars a month, five times 12—yes, that's right, all right. Er—a—say, Mr.

Dashiell, how about my starting an account now. Wonder how much I could save by next year. I bet I could do that all right. I'll tell you what, can I start with five dollars?"

"You bet. And more than that, you won't have to bother about depositing it yourself if you don't want to; if you'd rather, we can have it taken right off your pay each month, so you'll be sure of saving it."

"I could do that, Mr. Dashiell, but somehow I'd like to get the money and do the depositing myself. You know how it is; you kinder like to see it, and feel it, and pass it through the window and see it go down in your book to your credit."

"Surely, any way you like it, it's all right. Shall I put you down for an application for a pass book?"

"Yes, suppose you do, Mr. Dashiell, and I'll sure get busy next year and see what I can do to save up a bit. I'll get my wife busy on the job, too. First thing you know we'll be living in a house of our own."

"That's possible, too. Don't you know you can purchase a home through the Relief Department, too?"

"That's right, you can, can't you? But pshaw, I'm dreaming. I've got to go to work. So long, Mr. Dashiell."

"So long, Charlie. Don't forget about the house proposition."

"Watch my smoke!" calls Charlie, laughingly, as he makes a bee line for the roundhouse.

He "Takes His Own Medicine!"

This is the kind of conversation that a "listener in" may hear almost any morning that he happens to drop into the station at Glenwood, Pa. For this is where Agent J. W. Dashiell, the man who has put Glenwood on the Relief Department's map and keeps her there, with his 500 or more depositors, works at his big job.

Mr. Dashiell has only one explanation of how he gets his depositors interested.

"I am so interested in the Savings Feature myself that I just can't help telling other people about it," he says. "I always give this my careful attention. I never delay the handling of accounts. Prompt handling always creates good feeling. Many of the people who have left the service here still keep up their deposits. I make it a point never to be too busy, even on payday, to take on new depositors or to fill in application blanks for a loan. I always encourage young depositors to take out loans for housebuilding."

Mr. Dashiell is a true exponent of thrift. In the 20 years that he has been with the Baltimore and Ohio as agent at Glenwood he has become a well known authority on the handling of money. Even outsiders—those not in the service of the Company—come to him with their problems of investments. Why? Because he always has a supply of information on tap, ready to give it out to those who need it; because he is always willing to be of service; because he is courteous to everybody—he has no "company manners"—and because he is interested not only in making a success of his own job as agent, but in helping his fellow workers along by getting them interested in their jobs.

LOIS DEPOSITS HER DADDY'S SAVINGS

Machinist Frederick T. Ward and his family making their regular "pay day" deposit at Glenwood Station. Mr. Ward stands at the right. At the left of the window is Mrs. Ward, followed by Mr. Ward's sister, Electrician Frazee, and other employees awaiting their turn. Agent Dashiell, who has gotten many Glenwood employees to start saving, may be seen through the window

"And there is nothing that will make a man interested in his job like showing him how he can save money while working at it," says Mr. Dashiell.

When he began his activities in connection with solicitation for Savings Feature depositors, the deposits from Glenwood averaged $3,000 per year; now, however, through the untiring efforts of Mr. Dashiell, the Glenwood deposits average $18,000 per year, or $5 per month for every depositor.

The accompanying picture shows a typical pay day at Glenwood. Machinist Frederick T. Ward, who has 18 years of Baltimore and Ohio service to his credit, is making his regular deposit. Mrs. Ward, not to be outdone by her husband, is seen at the left, ready to make a like deposit. The kiddies, Lois and Katherine, are much interested in seeing what becomes of Daddy's money. Standing in line behind Mrs. Ward is Mr. Ward's sister, followed by Electrician A. R. Frazee and some more of the boys around the shops, all in line awaiting their turn at the window. Mr. Dashiell stands behind the window. His cup of joy is full this morning; he has just filled out the application blanks of two new depositors. When "the boys" take their respective places at the window, the agent will interest them with some of his well chosen words of wisdom about providing for the future by buying homes. Rumor has it that one of the quartette will soon follow Mr. Dashiell's advice.

What would it mean to our employes if every station on the System boasted a booster like Mr. Dashiell?

If You Think "Thrift" a "Dry" Subject, Try This Pre-Volstedian Flavor!

By P. L. FAUSTMAN, Car Distributor, Office of General Superintendent Transportation

JANUARY is being celebrated all over the country as National Thrift Month.

Whenever such a subject is announced the reader automatically sits back and prepares for a long, dry sermon, but let's see if we can't make this a little interesting.

An abridged copy of Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Dictionary says, "Thrift is care and wisdom in the management of one's resources." Realizing my inability to write an article on such a matter, I have endeavored to get some first-hand information from the president of one of Baltimore's leading banks and also from the head of an insurance company in New York, generally recognized as the leading institution of its kind in America.

Let's start on insurance. No doubt, everyone, some time or another, has been visited by an insurance solicitor. When you tell him that you have insurance in the Baltimore and Ohio Relief Department, he tells you very frankly that it is the best to be had, but that next to ours, of course, he has the best on the market. There is an unusual situation; a solicitor actually admitting that another proposition is better than his own. And don't forget that he wouldn't say it unless facts forced him to do so. How foolish, therefore, when we fail to take advantage of the inducements offered by our own Relief Department. The only regret, as I see it, is that $1250 is the limit.

Now what do the big men say?

"Whether you are thrifty as regards money, time, health, strength—any of your resources—you must have a plan for conservation and you must carry it out. If we are short of thrift today, it is because too many of us are prone not to plan and too many more of us who do plan fail to carry out our intentions. There is the advantage—the certainty—of insurance. The man who undertakes the purchase of a policy is always sure of attaining his end no matter if death interposes. It is this assurance that impels continued saving.

"The man who has a little money in bank has a feeling of self-respect and satisfaction, and a safeguard against the inevitable rainy day. In a sense the population is made up of two classes—those who have and those who have not. The 'have-nots' are generally the careless, thoughtless and shiftless element who live from day to day without thought of tomorrow and who become in their old age charges upon their families or their communities. It is from this element that comes most of the radicalism which is such a menace to the stability of the Government and institutions of this country.

"The best thing a boy or young man, or even an old man, can do, is to cultivate this habit of self-denial through the practice of economy and saving. This does not mean niggardliness or stinginess, but the proper appreciation of the necessity of laying aside something regularly in the bank for the purpose of assuring a self-respecting and respected old age."

From personal experience, I find that pay-day is the best day to save.

A little private investigation would indicate that the racetrack and the desire to "keep up with the Joneses" are two of the greatest enemies of Thrift among the younger generation. I know a fellow who would walk ten squares to get an article five cents cheaper than he could purchase it in his immediate neighborhood and then goes out to Pimlico and lose fifteen or twenty dollars at a crack. That's not Thrift. It is also very foolish to try to keep step with the fellow whose salary or income is five or six times that of your own.

You will probably wonder why nothing has been said about the necessity of practicing thrift on the Railroad. If, however, the principle can be properly instilled in men and women in the management of homes, it logically follows that the same practice will be employed in the performance of daily duties in their places of employment, the success of which, after all, means their prosperity.

(Continued on page 40)

An Earned Vacation

Here is a poem that that wise lecturer and poet, Strickland Gillilan, wrote for the Fort Dearborn Magazine:

I set a dollar working, and it didn't feel the strain—
It hasn't any nerves, you know; it hasn't any brain.

For years I gave my strength to toil and necessary play;
I said: "The night comes all too soon—I've got to use my day."
I struggled with the problems that harass all human kind;
Enjoyed it, too, but felt the strain on heart and hand and mind.
I saw the time was coming when I'd have to quit the fight;
I longed to pause and breathe awhile before the fall of night.

Then lo! The fruits of early toil rose up and said to me:
"We'll do your earning now for you; henceforward you are free.
Go, do the things you've always yearned in other years to do.
You've piled a few stray dollars up—we'll now take care of you.
By serving other people who will pay you for our use,
We'll bring enough to justify your war-for-living truce."

Then all the little bonds I'd bought as years had hurtled past
Began to serve their purpose, and I ceased from toil at last.
I said: "I've made a living, through those years of work and strife,
So now, with what I gathered then, I've but to make a life."
Then, too, I thanked the Lord because, back in my giddy youth,
I'd had the sort of guidance that had shown to me the truth.

Just set your dollars working and relieve yourself of strain—
They haven't any nerves, you know, they haven't any brain.

Exhibitors of Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Club

NAME	COUNTY	BREED
William Harmeyer....	Harford.....	Rhode Island Reds
Leroy Kroh.....	Harford.....	Rhode Island Reds
John Anderson.....	Harford.....	Rhode Island Reds
Wesolowski Brothers..	Harford.....	Rhode Island Reds
Margaret Pool.....	Carroll.....	White Rocks
Lucinda Logue.....	Carroll.....	White Rocks
Agnes Emmerick.....	Anne Arundel....	White Rocks
Priscilla Emmerick...	Anne Arundel....	White Rocks
Monterey Jones.....	Anne Arundel....	White Rocks
Gale Mullendore.....	Washington.....	Rhode Island Reds
Donald Haynes.....	Washington.....	Rhode Island Reds
Helen Reese.....	Washington.....	Rhode Island Reds
Graydon Albin.....	Washington.....	Rhode Island Reds
Myrtle Whalen.....	Montgomery.....	Rhode Island Reds
Edith Hobbs.....	Montgomery.....	Rhode Island Reds
James Anderson.....	Montgomery.....	Rhode Island Reds
Donald Hobbs.....	Montgomery.....	Rhode Island Reds
Glady's Graham.....	Prince Georges...	Rhode Island Reds
Earl Tipton.....	Prince Georges...	Rhode Island Reds
Eugene Miller.....	Prince Georges...	Rhode Island Reds
Harry Cord, Jr.....	Prince Georges...	Rhode Island Reds
Betty Engle.....	Garrett.....	White Rocks
Melvin Liller.....	Alleghany.....	Rhode Island Reds
Ralph Kiser.....	Alleghany.....	Rhode Island Reds
Paul Emmert.....	Alleghany.....	Rhode Island Reds
Walter Yoder.....	Alleghany.....	Rhode Island Reds
Hollis Zepp.....	Howard.....	White Rocks
Elwood Anderson.....	Howard.....	White Rocks
Rachel E. Gaver.....	Howard.....	White Rocks
James Jenness.....	Cecil.....	Rhode Island Reds
Virginia Stephens....	Cecil.....	Rhode Island Reds

Above: Pen of Rhode Island Reds exhibited by Miss Edith Hobbs, which won Sweepstakes Ribbon. Center: the well arranged exhibit of the Baltimore and Ohio faced the entrance of the Army. Lower, left: Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Club Premium Ribbons

Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Clubs' Exhibit Was the Outstanding Feature of Baltimore Poultry Show

By O. K. QUIVEY, General Agricultural Agent, Commercial Development Department

DIRECTLY opposite the main entrance, and occupying the most conspicuous space in the great Fifth Regiment Armory, the Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Clubs' Exhibit proved to be the outstanding feature of the great Baltimore Poultry Show, December 4-8, 1923.

It was impossible for a visitor to have gone away from the Baltimore Poultry Show without knowing what the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is doing to improve the Poultry Industry within the state of Maryland, and words of praise were heaped upon the Baltimore and Ohio, the University of Maryland, and the Maryland Boy and Girl Club members for their respective parts in such a successful undertaking.

This project had its beginning a year ago, when the Baltimore and Ohio offered to supply high grade egg settings to a total of 110 Maryland farm boys and girls in those counties traversed by the Railroad. Subsequently a total of 50 setting eggs was shipped last March to each of 110 boys and girls enrolled, and instructions relative to the method of setting and caring for the young chicks were furnished them by the University of Maryland, the County Agricultural Agents, the Home Demonstration Agents, County Club Leaders, etc.

Beginning in August, a series of county poultry shows was held, thus permitting the Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Club members to show their best birds in friendly competition with each other. A total of $20.00 was offered in prizes at each of the county shows and the winners in the county shows were required to enter their best pen of five, consisting of four pullets and one cockerel, at the Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Clubs' Exhibit, which, as stated, was held in connection with the Baltimore Poultry Show.

A total of 31 pens of five birds each was exhibited at Baltimore, by the Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Club members listed on the opposite page.

The Baltimore and Ohio offered a total of eight prizes, which were won by those shown in accompanying table.

In addition to the beautiful premium ribbons which were hung on the winning pens, a very beautiful Sweepstakes Ribbon was also awarded Miss Edith Hobbs, whose pen won over all others in the exhibit, regardless of breed.

While there were failures in every county, and while the project was discouraging to a great many persons connected with it, yet as a whole and taking the exhibit at the Fifth Regiment Armory as the evidence, genuine satisfaction should be felt by all connected with the project, and this should apply to even those club members who failed to win prizes.

Quality was indicated throughout the 31 pens exhibited, and no better proof of this fact can be had than in the statement of Mr. John Kriner, one of the three judges of the exhibit and one of the best known judges of poultry in the United States. Mr. Kriner stated after handling every bird in the Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Clubs' Exhibit and judging them carefully, that he could select one bird from each of five pens, thus making up a special pen of five, with which he could sweep the show and win over all breeds. This statement, coming from a man of Mr. Kriner's recognized ability, should be regarded as a genuine compliment to the Poultry Club members who exhibited at Baltimore.

Of the 31 pens exhibited, 9 were of the White Plymouth Rock breed and 22 were of the Rhode Island Red breed. The White Plymouth Rock egg settings were purchased by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from Mr. W. H. Cowles, Beltsville, Md., and the Rhode Island Red settings from Mr. Aaron Fell, Bethesda, Md.

The Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Clubs' Exhibit was judged by Mr. John Kriner of Stettlersville, Pa., Judge Geo. O. Brown, Baltimore, Md., and Mr. A. Mowll, Hartford, Conn., Judge Brown being generally known as the dean of poultry judges, and widely known for his genuine interest in Boys' and Girls' Club work.

The University of Maryland was represented in this project both throughout the year and at the Baltimore Show by Mr. C. G. Jenkins, State Club Leader, Mr. Peter Chichester, Assistant State Club Leader, and Mr. Wade R. Rice, Extension Poultry Specialist. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was represented by General Agricultural Agent O. K. Quivey and Agricultural Agent E. B. Baugh.

Whatever success may have been attained in this project is due entirely to the cooperation given by all the agencies engaged in it, and it would be a case of the grossest neglect were we to fail to give recognition and thanks to the Baltimore Poultry Show management, Mr. Clinton L. Riggs, President; Mr. Howard S. Thompson, Secretary; Mr. Arthur C. Levering, Treasurer and Mr. Frank Riggs, all of whom gave the most careful consideration to every detail concerned in the planning and execution of those factors entering into the successful staging of the Baltimore and Ohio Poultry Clubs' Exhibit.

What the Magazine Saw Last Month

What Have You Seen?

The B. R. & P. Shop Quartette, DuBois, Pa., riding on Baltimore and Ohio No. 1, en route to International Conference, Y. M. C. A., St. Louis, entertaining the passengers by singing all afternoon. And it was real singing, too!

Trainmaster Garey, Boston and Maine Railway, Concord, N. H., en route to the same conference, on same train, accompanied by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Brunel, also of the Boston and Maine, praising our service. Mr. Garey will be glad to tell any visitors to Concord his inimitable story about seeing rainbows at midnight near the Canadian Line!

Winners of Baltimore and Ohio Prizes

PRIZE	WINNER	COUNTY	BREED	PRIZE
1	Edith Hobbs.....	Montgomery..	Rhode Island Reds	Trip to Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, N. Y. City
2	Margaret Pool....	Carroll.....	White Rocks.....	Trip to Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, N. Y. City
3	Hollis Zepp.....	Howard.....	White Rocks....	Trip to Madison Square Garden Poultry Show, N. Y. City
4	Leroy Kroh.....	Harford.....	Rhode Island Reds	$15.00—cash
5	Elwood Anderson..	Howard.....	White Rocks....	$12.00—cash
6	James Jenness....	Cecil.....	Rhode Island Reds	$10.00—cash
7	Eugene Miller....	Prince Georges.	Rhode Island Reds	$6.00—cash
8	Lucinda Logue....	Carroll.....	White Rocks....	$4.00—cash

Messrs. Sell, Kight and Eden Win Handsome Prizes for Year's Work as Correspondents of the Magazine

DURING recent years the MAGAZINE has been fortunate to secure in exchange for advertising, different sets of books. These have been sent to those correspondents who have done the best all-around work for the MAGAZINE for the year in question. For 1923 the prizes are three sets of Ridpath's History of the World, recognized not only as an interesting but also as an authoritative work. It is freely illustrated and is a good general reference history.

The prize winners are John J. Sell, Office of General Yardmaster, Cumberland; Harry B. Kight, traveling passenger agent, Cumberland, and Oswald K. Eden, Office of Chief Engineer, Baltimore. Correspondents were not considered unless they had contributed items for each issue of the MAGAZINE during 1923, to and including November.

Those, other than the prize winners, who also contributed to all these issues are: Norma H. Applegarthe, Office of General Freight Claim Agent, Baltimore; A. E. Erich, secretary to superintendent, Chilli-cothe; Earl N. Fairgrieve, car distributor, Pittsburgh; G. J. Goolic, Office of Division Engineer, St. George; George W. Haulen-beek, Law Department, Baltimore; R. Kennett, telegraph operator, Columbus; John Newman, terminal timekeeper, Pier 22, New York; B. A. Oatman, Office of Master Mechanic, Newark, Ohio; Edith Roach, billing clerk, Columbus; C. R. Stone, Mansfield; W. H. Tarr, Office of Superintendent, Baltimore Division; J. M. Whealan, Office of District Engineer, Pittsburgh.

Messrs. Oatman and Erich could not be considered because they were prize winners during previous years. All the other correspondents mentioned not only contributed each month, but contributed especially good material. In addition to these there are also quite a number of correspondents who have contributed to every issue since they took up their MAGAZINE work. These will be more in the running during 1924, if it is then possible for us to award prizes.

In the opinion of the writer, Mr. Sell's work during 1923 has been the most outstanding, although he has been hard pushed by Mr. Kight. He has made it a point to see all supervising officers of the Railroad each month to get last minute information from them concerning activities on the Cumberland Division. In addition he seems to have won to an unusual degree the cooperation of his associates. He tells us that Ralph Ketzner, assistant chief clerk to the superintendent at Cumberland, is quite as responsible for the fine quality of the Cumberland Division notes as he has been, but, as we have not been carrying Mr. Ketzner's name as a regular correspondent during all of 1923, we could not consider him for the prize and, unfortunately, it is a prize which cannot well be divided.

Mr. Kight is one of the old standbys of the MAGAZINE and has long evidenced the most intense interest not only in its progress, but also in the general affairs of the Railroad. Having for years been ticket agent at Keyser and for several years agent during the summer months at Deer Park, he was honored during 1923 by promotion to the position of traveling passenger agent. He, too, has won the cooperation of the various departments at Keyser and since his promotion has gotten that larger viewpoint on Railroad work which has been especially helpful to him in preparing his notes for the MAGAZINE. He has frequently contributed special articles, one of his latest contributions being under the title "Eyes to the Blind," a most appealing narrative of his trip with 300 deaf and blind children on a special movement in West Virginia. Mr. Kight is a great lover of books and we are especially glad to name him as a prize winner this year.

Mr. Eden has given us splendid representation in the Engineering Department, and is named for one of the prizes not only because of the quality of his individual work but also because he, too, has been able to get each month a comprehensive survey of the engineering "personals" from the district offices throughout the System. At the Conference of Correspondents he was elected secretary of the permanent Correspondents Association.

We congratulate the prize winners most heartily and also thank the many other correspondents whose work has been so nearly on a par with that sent in by Messrs. Sell, Kight and Eden.

This Waiter an Information Bureau

R. H. BUCY, report clerk, Car Foreman's Office, Mt. Clare, says: "When a person rides the Baltimore and Ohio he can always hear a good word from other passengers about our 'Best and Only.'"

Recently Mr. Bucy was returning to his home in Cumberland on No. 1. The waiter from the diner came through with coffee and sandwiches. Mr. Bucy bought a cup, as did an elderly woman who sat in the seat ahead. He was surprised when he heard the woman ask the waiter about a berth that she was to occupy when she reached Cumberland, but he was still more surprised when the waiter promptly gave her all the information desired. "A bureau of information could not have told her more," declared Mr. Bucy.

"After the waiter had gone the woman turned to me and said, 'I have ridden on many a railroad, but I don't believe that any of them ever showed me more courtesy.' Of course, I assured her that Baltimore and Ohio employes are always glad to give whatever help and courtesy they can at all times."

Left: John J. Sell, Office of General Yardmaster, Cumberland, Md. Center: Oswald K. Eden, Engineering Department, Baltimore, Md. Right: Harry B. Kight, Traveling Passenger Agent, Cumberland, Md.

Fire Marshals Meet and Discuss Methods of Improving Fire Prevention Work on Railroad

ON December 3 the first meeting of the fire marshals on the Eastern Lines was held at Cumberland, Md. Here the men got together with B. S. Mace, superintendent of insurance, and discussed the possibilities of improving fire prevention standards and activities on the Baltimore and Ohio.

Those present were: Superintendent of Insurance B. S. Mace, E. E. Alexander, supervisor, Timber Preservation, Green Spring, W. Va.; Chief Inspector R. R. Hackett, Baltimore, Md., and Insurance Inspectors S. W. Bell and P. J. Reed, Baltimore, Md.; Fire Marshals H. Malloy, Locust Point, Md.; G. A. Torney, Mt. Clare, Md.; W. H. Gardner, Curtis Bay, Md.; J. N. Thinnies, East Side Shops, Philadelphia; G. L. Hennick, Wilmere, Del.; G. J. Lake, Brunswick, Md.; F. O. Smith, Riverdale, Md.; J. P. Roberts, Fairmont, W. Va.; Frank Martin, Clarksburg, W. Va.; W. E. Hodel, Grafton, W. Va.; F. M. Hardy, Martinsburg, W. Va.; F. E. Shelley, Keyser, W. Va.; H. W. Bloss, Cumberland, Md.; C. B. Dailey, Benwood, W. Va.; E. S. Williams, Holloway, Ohio; E. W. Graham, Monongah Shops, Parkersburg; C. McMann, Somerset, Pa.; M. A. Rottler, Connellsville, Pa.; R. J. Millet, Foxburg, Pa.; George C. Williams, Glenwood, Pa.; R. W. Jankey, Gassaway, W. Va.

The meeting was called to order by B. S. Mace, who, in his opening address called the attention of the marshals to the great annual waste caused by fires along the railroads. In 1922 the fire waste in the United States amounted to over $510,000,000, and for the Class 1 railroads of the country, $10,000,000. He further said that, through the cooperation of the fire marshals, by frequent inspections and by carrying out the recommendations made by the various officers, the Baltimore and Ohio is able to keep its fire losses at a comparatively low mark, and that we possibly hold the record for the Class 1 railroads in the United States and Canada. He also touched upon the importance of full cooperation between master mechanics and general foremen and those in charge of the properties, with the fire marshals, without which the last named are unable to accomplish results.

The marshals were impressed with the fact that they are not marshals in name only; that a responsibility is given them to test the various systems and apparatus, to make regular inspections, to take up recommendations and to make corrections immediately; to drill fire brigades at least once in 10 days, to test fire doors, fire pumps, water supply, etc.

Following Mr. Mace's address, a full discussion was held by the men of all problems pertaining to fire prevention, of fire hazards, methods of handling fires, fuel oil installations, safety automatic shut-off valves, and location of storage tanks; fire alarm systems, fire brigades, and the use of fire apparatus for other purposes than for fire. Some of the conclusions were as follows:

That the Mahr valve should be gradually substituted for the Lalor automatic valve, the latter being difficult to keep in operative condition; that new men, without knowledge of or experience in fire prevention methods, in the positions of engineer and fireman, were oftentimes responsible for fires, and that here lay a chance for the fire marshals to do some instruction work; that the fire alarm system must be tested daily; that the master mechanic and general foreman could and should lend more weight to the importance of more general response to fire drills; that it is against the rules to use fire apparatus for any other purpose than for fire protection, and that strict observance of this rule be insisted upon.

Other subjects discussed were: Smoking, Equipment of Yard Engines for Fire Fighting, Handling Explosive, such as gasoline, etc., Open Flame Carbide Inspectors' Lamps, Fire Pumps and Testing.

Much interest was shown in the discussion. At 12.30 p. m. the meeting adjourned and the members enjoyed a delightful luncheon at the Y. M. C. A., specially arranged for by Secretary McDaniels, who received the compliments of "the boys" for the excellent meal. Votes of thanks were extended to Secretary McDaniels, and also to the operating officials for the privilege of the meeting.

The afternoon was spent in visiting and inspecting the Cumberland terminals and shops.

The "Sally Lunn" That Made President Willard Smile

THE age-old saying, "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach," is one which our dining car chefs constantly keep in mind when preparing the delectable dainties which are set before our passengers. Whether William Chew, relief chef on the Martha Washington, was thinking of this or not when he baked some delicious Sally Lunn's one evening in November, we do not know. However, we are certain that he did not know that any of them would be eaten by President Willard. But strange things do happen.

While riding on No. 9 one day in November, President Willard decided to inspect the Martha Washington and her kitchen. E. V. Baugh, manager of dining cars and commissary, proudly escorted him through this, one of our finest diners, and into the kitchen. Here Chef Chew had just finished baking a panful of Sally Lunn's which would tempt the eye of the most discriminating connoisseur. And President Willard was no exception. He picked up one of the Sally Lunn's and tasted it. Chew will tell you what the president said.

"Yes, Ma'am, President Willard done say dat dese was de bestest Sally Lunn's he ever done taste in his life. 'Deed he did!'"

"Are you sure that he really liked them?" we asked.

"Aint nothin' diff'rent," declared Chew, picking up two plates of Sally Lunn's from the table and raising them to show us just how he looked when the president remarked that the muffins were delicious. And Mr. Baugh himself testifies that the chef's smile at that particular moment was nothing short of being celestial.

Chef Chew bakes two kinds of Sally Lunn's. The kind that President Willard liked Chew holds high in the picture. These are made as follows:

One egg, 1 small cup of sugar. Cream well together. Stir well with a lump of butter of the size of an egg. Beat well.

Add one cup of sweet milk and beat well again. Add three and a half cups of flour that has been sifted three times, and into which has been sifted two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Add a pinch of salt. Fill in muffin rings and bake.

The second kind of Sally Lunn, which is more like a sweet rusk, is baked as follows:

Four eggs. Beat whites and yolks separately. One large spoonful of butter rubbed into one quart of flour. Half a yeast cake. 1 cup of warm milk. Set to rise the same as rolls, then put in deep muffin rings to bake.

Chef Chew and his appetizing "Sally Lunn's"

A Tribute to John Bradshaw

First Master of Road of The Baltimore and Ohio

By A. FAURE

THE sight of an occasional Baltimore and Ohio freight car always sends a thrill through my old bones. Whenever the papers mention the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad I take it as a personal affair, and am not satisfied until I've read and reread every word to the end. And, by the way, the Baltimore and Ohio MAGAZINE for February contains a photograph of the Parkersburg bridge which brings to mind something I was reading recently in the autobiography of Andrew Carnegie. He was describing his dealings with John W. Garrett,<sup>1</sup> who made him put up a bond for $50,000 before he would give him the contract to build the Parkersburg bridge. Carnegie also wanted to build the approaches to the bridge. Mr. Garrett told him his own forces were quite capable of taking care of that work. Carnegie expressed his doubts about it. Then the great Baltimore and Ohio president said he knew his men, he had faith in them and trusted them to have the approaches ready by the time the bridge was completed. And so they were. And the job was handled by John Bradshaw,<sup>2</sup> master of construction, of whom Mr. Garrett said years after that in the building of the Parkersburg bridge alone, John Bradshaw had saved his company $50,000.<sup>3</sup>

John Bradshaw was one of the first and very best friends I made on the Baltimore and Ohio. The way our friendship started was this:

Mr. Samuel Spencer<sup>4</sup> had sent me to Philippi, W. Va., with the Baltimore and Ohio proxy to vote the stock of the Grafton and Green Briar R. R. which he had accepted in settlement of moneys advanced for construction, operation, etc. Opposition to this settlement had developed among some of the townships along the line and they objected to this stock being voted by the Baltimore and Ohio representative. Mr. Spencer had asked John Bradshaw to attend that meeting and to act as my guide and counselor in case of trouble, and well it was that I had such a mentor, for the opposition was strong and the meeting stormy, with plenty of open threats of arrest and imprisonment for any one who attempted to vote that stock.

It took all Mr. Bradshaw's influence and diplomacy to make the opposition consent to an adjournment without bringing the matter to a final issue. What with adjournments, postponements, injunctions and all sorts of legal obstructions, it took the best part of a year and required many trips between Baltimore and Philippi before that stock could be voted. It was finally done

Note: The author of this story, himself a loyal employee of the Baltimore and Ohio for 34 years, is now enjoying life under the sunny skies of California, in the town of Sunland. The letter from which the following tribute to Mr. Bradshaw was extracted, was addressed to Mr. George F. Randolph, formerly our first vice-president.

In 1886 Mr. Faure was appointed chief clerk to the first vice-president; in 1887 he became chief clerk to the president; in 1893, secretary of the Valley Railroad of Virginia, subsequently filling the following positions: secretary of the Greenbrier and Belington Railway, of the Point Pleasant and Tygart's Valley Railway, and of the Washington County Railway—all of which were merged into the Baltimore and Ohio in 1901. In 1899 he was appointed fifth vice-president, in order to execute some Baltimore and Ohio securities, and in 1903, chief of Pass Bureau. In 1915 he was made special agent, which position he held at the time of his retirement.

on the very day that Mr. Spencer was elected president of the Baltimore and Ohio. The Grafton and Greenbrier was subsequently sold and reorganized under the name of the Grafton and Belington Railroad.

Mr. Bradshaw attended every one of those trips. To him more than anyone else belonged the credit for the successful termination of the unpleasantness. On those trips we were almost constantly together on the train and during the long waits at Grafton, Philippi and other places. The conversation ran at haphazard, anything to fill in the time. It was thus that I learned much of the history of the Baltimore and Ohio that I could never have learned any other way. Mr. Bradshaw was a delightful conversationalist, quiet, modest, unassuming and well informed on a variety of subjects. He had devoted his life to the service of the Company, had enjoyed to a remarkable degree the confidence and esteem of the Garrett family, and had been an eye-witness and often an actor in the development of the property. Thus, while the remarks that fell from his lips casually seemed insignificant enough, to me they were flashlights thrown on the unwritten history of the road.

Mr. Bradshaw's gentle and retiring disposition appealed strangely to my admiration, and before I had known him very long, I had learned to respect him and to love him almost as a father. After the death of Mr. Robert Garrett, he retained the esteem of Miss Mary Garrett, for whom he often performed missions of trust and confidence.

When he retired from the service at an advanced age, President John K. Cowen wrote him a beautiful letter in which he recited Mr. Bradshaw's long and faithful service, and he closed with the statement above quoted in which Mr. John W. Garrett, speaking of the help he had received from his assistants, said that, in the building of the Parkersburg bridge alone, John Bradshaw had saved his company $50,000.

I saw Mr. Bradshaw several times after that, usually at the annual meeting of the Grafton and Belington R. R. of which he remained a director to the end of his life. He was always quiet, cheerful and happy. He always carried Mr. Cowen's letter in his inside pocket, next to his heart, and said it would accompany him to his grave. Such was John Bradshaw, loyal all through life and even unto death.

Pray pardon this long digression, but could not resist the opportunity and the pleasure to pay a modest tribute to the memory of a long departed friend and loyal employee of the Baltimore and Ohio.

You Have Helped Produce This!

MR. WILLIAM A. BABBITT, Chairman of the Standardization Committee of the Association of Wood Using Industries, has recently said:

"The drives for quick turnover, liquid capital and high-speed production not only have been made possible, but have been more than matched by the nation-wide drive of the railways for quick transit. High-speed production so far this year had produced 23.7 per cent. more carloads of freight. High-speed transit has taken this freight and hustled it to its destination at an increased rate of 27 per cent. more car miles per diem, and a further increase of 12.5 per cent. more ton miles per car.

"In the opinion of the Department of Commerce, the efficiency of the railways has increased one-third during the current year. In other words, the time-in-transit was 50 per cent. longer in 1922 than in 1923."

<sup>1</sup> John W. Garrett was president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad from November 17, 1868 to November 20, 1884.

<sup>2</sup> John Bradshaw was made master of road of the lines west of Cumberland on October 1, 1876, the first man to serve in this position, newly created at that time. He was made master of road of the entire Main Line and branches on November 13, 1878. President John W. Garrett stating, in announcing this appointment, that Bradshaw had then been in the service over 20 years.

On January 12, 1881 he resigned as master of road, presumably on account of ill health. On October 1, 1881 he was appointed superintendent of construction and repairs. President Garrett then stating that Mr. Bradshaw had fully recovered his health.

<sup>3</sup> The officer in general charge of the building of this bridge was, so Baltimore and Ohio history states, James L. Randolph, chief engineer from 1863 to 1883.

<sup>4</sup> Samuel Spencer was second vice-president from December 13, 1882 to November 20, 1884, first vice-president from November 20, 1884 to December 10, 1887 and president from December 10, 1887 to December 19, 1888.

<sup>5</sup> Robert Garrett was first vice-president from August 11, 1881 to November 20, 1884, and president from November 20, 1884 to October 12, 1887.

The Boy on the Bulletin-Board

AT about 2.30 p. m. on November 13, a lady was anxiously scanning the bulletin board showing train arrivals, in the Baltimore and Ohio Union Station, Washington, D. C. Her attention was centered on the arrival of No. 2 from St. Louis and the west. The board showed that it would arrive on Baltimore and Ohio standard, "On Time," at 2.45 p. m.

Fifteen minutes still to wait! The minutes pass like hours. Some one near and dear is coming on the train, whom she has not seen for a long time. Then, three minutes ahead of the advertised time, No. 2 pulls into the station and the passengers get off. Who is this being led along the platform by Passenger Representative Herbert? A boy? Yes, just a little fellow, not quite six years old—her boy—who has traveled all the way from Oklahoma City, Okla., by himself, the latter part of the journey being under the watchful care of the Baltimore and Ohio "Good Neighbors," the train conductors, the dining car stewards, the Pullman conductors and porters, and in fact every member of the Baltimore and Ohio family on the train.

We ask the lady if we may speak to the little fellow a moment and take his photo. Courteously she agrees. We wanted also to get a picture of the members of the crew bringing him safely into Washington but there wasn't enough time. Porter C. G. Walker, an old time Pullman man, was in charge of Car 22, and other passengers told us that he did everything possible for little Barrington. They were also enthusiastic in their praise of Steward Langhorst, the Pullman conductor and every member of the crew. The boy carried with him a letter reading as follows:

"My name is Barrington Douglas. I am going to my mother at 2701 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C., Apartment 606. I have $5.00 in my pocket with which to buy my meals. Will you please assist me in obtaining them. I only want to spend fifty cents for my breakfast and fifty or seventy-five cents for my lunch and dinner. Kindly take my purse and pay for my meals. I must not eat much candy. Mother does not allow me to. I am to change cars in St. Louis to the Baltimore and Ohio. Please see that I am properly transferred and on the right train to my mother. Mr. Pullman Conductor, your kindness to this little man will be appreciated, and please pass the instructions on to the Baltimore and Ohio men."

"Did you have a good trip?" we asked Barrington. "I sure did," he replied, "everybody was so kind to me. Will you be sure to send me my picture?" Assuring him that we would, we turned to bid good bye to his mother, who said: "Good bye. I am unable properly to express my feelings. The kindness and care given this little boy by your Company is remarkable. I can't understand it. Won't you, through your MAGAZINE, assure everyone who helped to make his trip safe and pleasant, how deeply I appreciate it?" We said we would, and so—that's the end of the story. Mother had her boy in her arms again, and the "Good Neighbor" Road had made another lifelong friend.

Vice-President Batchelder Honored by Friends on Completion of Fifty Years Railroading

ON December 3 a goodly number of railroad and personal friends of F. C. Batchelder, vice-president and executive representative in Chicago, met at the South Shore Country Club to greet him at a dinner arranged in his honor. Fifty years previously Mr. Batchelder had begun his service as a telegraph operator with the C. M. & St. P. Railway.

The celebration was an entire surprise to the guest. President Willard had invited him, presumably to dine with him alone, but when Mr. Batchelder arrived with Mr. Willard at the South Shore Country Club, he found about sixty of his friends there to greet him.

The dinner was started after a conductor in uniform had come into the assemblage with a yellow lantern and called out "All Aboard!", naming as the destinations for the train on which the party was about to start the stations on the old Soo Line where Mr. Batchelder worked at the same time President Willard was employed by that Road.

The accompanying picture shows the attractive railroad setting provided for the dinner, with the stations of the old Soo Line on the bulletin board on the left and those on the Baltimore and Ohio on the right, the realistic station scene spreading across one entire side of the room, and showing a train about ready to depart.

Just as the whistle for the start was sounded and the diners were seated, four men, a conductor and brakeman in uniform, and engineer and fireman in overalls, came into the room and sang some verses especially written for the occasion, and during the dinner the same quartet sang some of the songs which were popular during Mr. Batchelder's early railroad days.

Realistic Railroad Setting at Dinner Celebrating Fifty Years' Service of Vice-President Batchelder. Mr. Batchelder is seated in the right foreground of the picture, on President Willard's right. Other familiar faces will be readily recognized.

Mr. Willard told of some of the interesting and amusing experiences he had had with Mr. Batchelder on the Soo Line when he was an engineer and when Mr. Batchelder was chief dispatcher, these being heartily enjoyed, especially by the several old friends of both officers who were present and who had known them in early railroad days.

During the course of the evening Mr. Batchelder was presented with a handsome gold watch and chain, knife, cigar cutter and pencil, as a mark of esteem on the part of those attending the dinner, the presentation being made by Division Counsel J. M. Sheean.

The menu was attractive, showing on the title page the various points at which Mr. Batchelder has been stationed during his long railroad career, and on the two facing centre pages pictures of him as he appeared when he entered the service in 1873 and as he is today. An insert gave the names of the more than one hundred guests invited.

Those present at the dinner included:

B. N. Austin, western passenger representative, Chicago; S. A. Allen, freight traffic manager, Chicago; Frank J. Batchelder, consulting engineer, Chicago; R. N. Begien, vice-president, Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, Richmond, Va.; H. A. Brassert, engineer, Kenilworth, Ill.; Geo. H. Campbell, assistant to president, Baltimore; Jas. Connor, salesman, Chicago; A. H. Curtis, physician, Chicago; L. G. Curtis, chief engineer, Adjustment Division, Baltimore; F. S. DeVeny, superintendent, Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad, Chicago; S. O. Dunn, editor, Railway Age, Chicago; F. J. Eddy, depot ticket agent, Grand Central Station, Chicago; Wm. Egan, locomotive engineer, Garrett, Ind.; Geo. H. Emerson, chief of motive power and equipment, Baltimore; C. W. Galloway, vice-president, Baltimore; Jas. E. Gorman, president, Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway, Chicago; H. H. Hall, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer, Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad, Chicago; M. J. Hallinan, conductor, Chicago; Irving T. Hartz, president, Morden Frog & Crossing Works, Chicago; Jos. E. Hitt, president, Southwest State Bank, Chicago; Wm. L. Hodgkins, president, Brownell Improvement Co., Chicago; S. U. Hooper, superintendent, Chicago Division, Garrett, Ind.; F. B. Huntington, general auditor, Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad, Chicago; Geo. E. Hutchison, public accountant, Chicago; E. L. Ives, engineer, Chicago; W. J. Jackson, president, Chicago & Eastern Illinois R. R., Chicago; H. M. Jouver, general freight and passenger agent, Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad, Chicago; J. R. Kearney, assistant to vice-president, Baltimore; Geo. M. Kridler, assistant freight traffic manager, Chicago; H. A. Lane, chief engineer, Baltimore; E. H. Lee, vice-president and chief engineer, C. & W. I. R. R., Chicago; R. E. Lidster, insurance agent, Chicago; C. Martin, engineer, Garrett, Ind.; Philip Meminger, farmer, Loveland, O.; John Angus Morrison, insurance agent, Chicago; G. P. Palmer, engineer maintenance and construction, Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad, Chicago; H. C. Pearce, director of purchases & stores, C. & O. Railway, Richmond, Va.; Guy M. Peters, lawyer, Chicago; F. G. Robbins, vice-president, Erie R. R., Chicago; Scott M. Rogers, vice-president, E. J. & E. R. R., Chicago; E. W. Scheer, general manager, Eastern Lines, Baltimore; John F. Schurch, vice-president, Manning, Maxwell & Moore, Inc., Chicago; E. H. Sencff, general solicitor, Pennsylvania R. R. Co., Philadelphia; C. Selden, general inspector of transportation, Baltimore; H. D. Sheean, general solicitor, Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal Railroad, Chicago; J. M. Sheean, division counsel, Chicago; Earl Stinson, chief engineer maintenance, Baltimore; D. F. Stevens, general superintendent, Cleveland, O.; J. J. Tatum, superintendent car department, Baltimore; H. B. Voorhees, general manager Western Lines, Cincinnati; W. T. Watkins, Joyce-Watkins Co., Chicago; H. White, chief clerk to vice-president, Chicago; Daniel Willard, president, Baltimore.

Arthur D. Gans a Regular "Demon" on Advertising

Thurston, the Magician, Finds Baltimore and Ohio Silverware in Pockets of Mayor Jackson, of Baltimore

"THE Man Who Knows Everything" once said that every man has a sneaking desire to be called a "regular devil" at least once during his life. However true this may be, we know that when it comes to advertising the Baltimore and Ohio, many of our men employes will have to doff their caps and horns to Safety Moving Picture Exhibitor Arthur D. Gans.

On December 13—mark the date—members of the Demons' Club of Baltimore tendered a dinner to the world renowned magician, Howard Thurston, and Mrs. Thurston. Now it so happens that Arthur Gans is one of the Demons, and a regular one at that, holding the title of Vice Arch Demon in the club, which consists of a number of well known business men of Baltimore who are interested in magic. And Arthur made good use of his demonship by arranging for a novel idea, a banquet to be held at Mt. Royal Station, in one of our handsomest dining cars, the Martha Washington.

First of all, there was the box party at Ford's Theatre, in Baltimore, where Thurston turned out his sackful of magic, much to the delight of the demons and a full house. There were a number of invited guests, including Baltimore's mayor, Howard Jackson; Col. Austin E. Baughman, commissioner of motor vehicles; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis, Attorney; J. F. Muller, Clerk of the Circuit Court; Charles Whiteford; Mr. Daniel E. Derr, of the B. F. Bond Paper Co.; Miss Mabel Gessner, the first woman passenger agent; D. Herbert Schoenrich, Mr. V. J. Albert, Mr. Philip B. Pearlman; General Passenger Agent W. E. Lowes; the editor and the associate editor of the MAGAZINE. Governor Ritchie was also invited, but because of the pressure of business, was unable to attend.

After the delightful entertainment at the theater, the party proceeded to Mt. Royal Station, where the Demons, in their red velvet caps with black velvet horns—you can't do much damage with velvet horns—formed a jolly reception committee.

When Mr. and Mrs. Thurston arrived they were escorted to the ticket window by

The Coal Bill and the Cinder Pile

Archie and Greasy at the Ash Pit

ARCHIE: I understand that the engine crews are instructed to leave their engines with ample steam, water and fire to allow handling over the ash pit and into the house without waste of coal, due to pressure too low or too high.

GREASY: Take a look at our record of Mechanical delay, Archie. That shows that the road supervision is doing its bit to help us get them across the pit in proper shape.

ARCHIE: Greasy, if you find lumps of good coke or unburned coal in the Cinder Pit, I hope you make quick time to the boss fire knocker and find out who is responsible for the waste, then get busy to Stop That Leak.

"GREASY: Look at our cinders, Archie, we haven't any smoke to watch! All cinders, no coke! Our firemen bring them in with the fires burned down just right to clean. They don't shovel it in just for us to dump it into the pit. We keep after the grates, no holes in them, and the fire knockers save the coke and dump the clinkers.

ARCHIE: Good. With a grate area of 70 square feet, a bank of unburned coal that will cover the grate four inches deep, contains half a ton of coal. You can waste it if you don't watch out. I'm glad to see you Stop That Leak.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO STANDARD DINING CAR LETTERING HAS NOT BEEN CHANGED TO WHITE, NOR ARE WE USING RADIUM PAINT—WE'LL HAVE TO BLAME IT ON THE SPIRIT OF THE DEMONS
 1. W. E. Lowes, General Passenger Agent. 2. Miss Stevens, Associate Editor of Magazine. 3. Robert Test, Treasurer of the Demons. 4. Arthur D. Gans, our Safety Motion Picture Operator, who arranged the dinner. 5. Mr. Howard Thurston, Magician Extraordinary and Arch Demon Supreme, in whose honor the dinner was held. 6. Mrs. Thurston. 7. Mr. Daniel Derr, Deputy Automobile Commissioner of Maryland. 8. Mayor Jackson of Baltimore. 9. Mrs. Earl Davis, Wife of Mr. Thurston's Manager. 10. Miss Mabel Gessner, Passenger Representative. 11. Mr. Howard Cone. 12. Demon Jerome Fleishman. 13. Mr. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles of Maryland

the entire party, where they "purchased" the ticket that was to carry them on the "journey" to Magic Land, via the Martha Washington. In the train shed the party paused for a photograph by our Mr. Luckey:

Six-foot demons, of stage scenery atmosphere, pointed the way to the club car, the Demons and their friends entered and the entertainment began.

Mr. Gans took turns as newsboy, presenting to each member of the party a copy of "The Billboard" and "The Sphinx," and as interlocutor in presenting the entertainers.

"Where are we going?" asked Mr. Thurston, "we do not seem to be moving."

"That's because you're on a Baltimore and Ohio train," declared Mr. Gans, "we always move so smoothly that you never notice it."

The conductor called a station stop, and in trooped a half-dozen or more members of the Dixie Jubilee Singers, who had asked for the privilege of singing for Mr. Thurston. The old southern melodies were rendered as only the southern darkey can, and the performance was thoroughly enjoyed. In appreciation of their singing, Mr. Thurston delighted the artists by presenting them with passes to his next performance.

Dining Car Steward Holzhouser announced: "Dinner is now being served; dining car forward!" Once more Mr. Gans stepped forth with a little bag from which he invited each guest to draw a card, to be matched by the placecards at the tables. The Martha Washington looked most inviting. Midnight seemed to enhance her charms, and as the demons and their friends seated themselves they found dainty little crossing signals at each place, each crossing being guarded by a miniature witch or devil.

The appetizing menu, which included roast turkey and everything that would tempt the most fastidious Demon, is a story in itself. Mayor Jackson and Mr. Thurston found themselves in the center of a merry group of Demons and Demonesses, and each tried to outdo the other in funmaking. Telegrams, fake and otherwise, began pouring in, each of which was read, much to the amusement of the listeners. The climax of the evening came when a wire from Mr. Baugh ordered the doors to be closed and the guests searched for dining car silverware that was missing. The great magician undertook to search Mayor Jackson's pockets. Spoons and butter-knives and salad forks were found in the pockets of Baltimore's chief executive, and Thurston also found the tables turned on him. His booty was equally as valuable as that of Mayor Jackson.

At ———sh-h-h-h! o'clock the party ended. The demons and their guests emerged from the brilliant lights of the Martha Washington and made their way through the lightly falling snow to their respective firesides in the warmer regions, and Mr. Gans, "not least but honored of them all," snoozed away the rest of the night, just like a regular—Demon!

It might be added right here that the members of the Demons' Club of Baltimore are all boosters for the Baltimore and Ohio. They travel and ship via the Best and Only, so it was not so strange, after all, that they hailed with delight the idea of a banquet to Thurston in a Baltimore and Ohio diner. And just to show his good will, one of the members, through the solicitation of Mr. Gans, purchased a ticket to Los Angeles, via the Baltimore and Ohio, to be used on the day following the Thurston banquet.

Material and Supplies for General Railroad Operations Cost $1,668,000,000 in 1922

A STUDY undertaken by the Bureau of Railway Economics, and its findings, just made public, show the extent to which the railroads are among the largest purchasers of raw materials in the country's basic industries.

They buy annually 27.8 per cent. of the bituminous coal output and about 6 per cent. of the anthracite production. Directly they consume between 12 and 15 per cent. of the annual iron and steel output, and, indirectly, about 30 per cent. through their orders for all kinds of equipment to equipment manufacturing concerns. In the lumber industry they purchase directly 17.5 per cent. of the total cut, and indirectly, through equipment orders, about 25 per cent. of the total output.

In the copper industry the railroads consume annually about 10 per cent. of the copper and brass produced. In addition, they also buy large amounts of tin, lead and zinc, and considerable cotton in the form of cotton waste. Figures indicating their use of cement are not complete, but a few years ago they were using more than 5 per cent. of the output and, at the present time, are using a larger proportion.

The report of the Bureau shows that in 1922 the Class I railroads used materials and supplies costing $1,668,000,000. This amount and the percentages enumerated above do not include the capital expenditures of the railroads, with the exception of equipment, such as in new construction, the improvement of lines and tracks, new buildings, new shops and other structures. They include only the amounts expended in process of current operations. The purchases of the railroads for capital account, however, sometimes amount to a sum probably almost as great as that from current operations. In 1922, for example, the railroads spent more than $400,000,000 for capital purchases, and for 1923 the amount authorized was in excess of $1,200,000,000. The amounts purchased for capital account are largely determined by the condition of railroad finances generally.

Learn with the Traffic Class

No Dues and All Invited

THE opportunity for self education provided by the Management has brought together again the Traffic Class for the third season. The guiding motive of the first year was to answer the question, "What to Do," the second year,

Assistant Chief Clerk Walter Wilmer, a good business getter

"What We Have," and for this year, "How to Go about It."

The Class gathers Thursday evenings at 8.00 o'clock in the Assembly Room on the fifth floor of the Baltimore and Ohio Building. The name, which might seem to infer eligibility to Traffic Department employees only, is intended to attract every employee of the Company, regardless of the department, and no fees of any nature are charged.

G. F. Owens, chief, Demurrage Bureau, Car Service Department, opened the sessions November 9 with a discussion of Demurrage. Samuel House, general freight agent, subsequently discussed the corporate organization of the Baltimore and Ohio System. W. E. Neilson gave the operation of Camden Station and its subordinate agencies on November 22. Logically following this, C. M. Shriver, superintendent, Baltimore Terminal District, discussed the train operation of the Baltimore Terminals.

Samuel House, general freight agent at Baltimore, is the president of the class. H. D. Stange, chief clerk of the Traffic Department, is chairman. P. H. Starklauff, clerk, Auditor of Merchandise Receipts Office, is secretary. There is an advisory committee headed by G. M. Campbell, freight representative, District Freight Office, assisted by T. E. Hentz, rate clerk, Freight Traffic Department, and S. S. Thompson, rate clerk, Coal Traffic Department.

Assistant Chief Clerk Walter Wilmer Secures Valuable Business

THE members of the Collington Pleasure Club, Inc., C. Frank Markland, President, 1936 N. Gay Street, Baltimore, Md., were guests of the Autumn Pleasure Club of Manayunk, Pa., on Sunday September 2, 1923, using a special train over

(Continued on page 50)

Railroads Are Largest Purchasers of Raw Materials and Products of Basic Industries

Cut by courtesy of Erie R. R. Magazine

The black portions in the above chart show the percentage of the total output of raw materials and the products of basic industries consumed by the railroads annually. The figures are based on the reports of a study made by the Bureau of Railway Economics for 1922

I AM the Joyman. I am a Sunshiner. I am the Conductor on the Sunshine Special.

We run up the Sunny side of the valley of life. We will stop anywhere for anyone. If you are tired and broken and discouraged, don't give up the ship. Just look up the track for the Sunshine Special, and when you see us coming, raise your hand and we will stop. I will help you on and find you a seat where you may sit down, lay back your head and rest. After you are refreshed a bit, look out again at a brighter and a better looking world; pick out a fine tempting station by the way-side, and try it again. If still you fail and fall behind in this mad race of life, don't be downhearted and quit. Just watch for us on the next round trip.

Our schedule is regular and our equipment is dependable. Faith is the track. Hope is the headlight and Love is the engineer. You may ride with us on the Sunshine Special and pay your fare with a smile. Or, if you want to change across-town to the old road of greed and grab, you can buy a transfer with a frown or an ugly word or an unkind deed. But if you do, you will have to take with you all your petty jealousy, hate, suspicion and selfishness, because we need all the room in our baggage car for a full cargo of Sunshine, Hope and Helpfulness for the hungry hearts of men.

We always slow down at Despair Junction; run slower still through the Valley of Sorrow; and stop, whistle and wait at Suicide Cliff. All aboard, Brother or Sister with a broken heart, ride with us. You can buy a round-trip ticket with a smile and we will start when you are ready.

I am the Joyman. I am a Sunshiner. I am the Conductor on the Sunshine Special. I love my job and I am the richest man in the world. I know that any man's rarest possession is that tiny streak of real Soul Sunshine which lights up his world within himself, and teaches him the Divine Truth that the Kingdom of Heaven is within the sacred sanctuary of his own consciousness. For me there is no fear. To me there is naught but Truth, and it shall ever be so with me until my still searching soul comes to the gate at the end of the road and slips unafraid, over the crest of God's great tomorrow—Marietta Times.

Motive Power

ONE of the most effective means that I know of to stabilize employment in the Motive Power Department is for all concerned to demonstrate that we are capable of maintaining equipment at a lower cost in our own shops, with our own men, than it can be maintained in outside shops.

GEORGE H. EMERSON

Chief of Motive Power

Engineering Department

ONE hundred and eighty-seven bridges, including timber trestles, were reconstructed or reinforced on the Baltimore and Ohio System during 1923, requiring the use of 12,200,000 pounds of steel, 1,000,000 feet of timber, and 28,000 cubic yards of masonry. This work was incident to the Company's general policy of providing modern and adequate facilities to meet the public need for transportation.

H. A. LANE

Chief Engineer

Office of General Superintendent Transportation

"A SUCCESSFUL organization is something more than the total ability of the individual members thereof; it contains a 'plus' quantity."

"It is not what a car weighs but the ways in which it can be used that counts."

"It is only when wheels are turning that cars are earning."

"Good ear miles make smiles."

"It is the repeat and satisfied shipper that counts."

"Criticism should be constructive, not destructive."

W. G. CURREN

General Superintendent Transportation

West Virginia District

IN discussing with an engineer yesterday the new department in the MAGAZINE, "Hot off the Wire," which has reference to important, up-to-date news on divisions, districts, etc., he said:

"Well, you certainly have a good squib to start off with."

I replied that I had been thinking of several things that we might send in but would like to know what particular matter he had reference to, and he said, "Well, the Wheeling Division in the month of November made the best showing from a fuel performance standpoint in freight service, and the West Virginia District ran first in the month of November in fuel performance. Certainly that is 'Hot off the Wire.'" The engineer further said, "You might add in making your report to the editor that the Wheeling Division and the West Virginia District expect to continue occupying first place."

The extension of double track, Brydon to Flemington, Monongah Division, a distance of four miles, is about completed and ready to be put into service.

This completes the double track of ten miles between Grafton and Flemington, and means much in the handling of business in that very busy territory.

J. M. SCOTT

General Superintendent

Northwest District

FROM General Superintendent D. F. Stevens' address to the North Baltimore, Ohio, citizens, at their Golden Anniversary.

"The Baltimore and Ohio wants to be a good neighbor. The best description of a good neighbor I have heard was given me by my wife. She said that a good neighbor is one who will loan you a cup of sugar when you need it."

Office of Superintendent Transportation, Eastern Lines

SHOW your faith in Your Railroad. Buy and hold its securities, thereby increasing your interest in its future.

J. D. CLARKE

Superintendent Transportation

Cleveland Traffic Office

J. C. KIMES, assistant general freight agent, Cleveland, sends in a newspaper clipping showing the pictures of four cars loaded with La Palina cigars, which the George B. Scrambling Company had used in one of its advertisements. Mr. Kimes says:

"Kindly note from the attached clipping that there were 3,000,000 La Palinas handled in four Baltimore and Ohio box cars over our line from Philadelphia to Cleveland, Toledo, Columbus and Akron, traffic being secured by this office."

What Railroads Cost Each Person

THE Railway Age has assembled figures showing in cents the difference in cost per person for railroad service in 1923 as compared with 1916.

In the first six months of 1923 the total earnings from all business averaged seventeen million dollars a day, but the payment of it was divided among 110,000,000 people; therefore the average amount collected from each inhabitant was 15.4 cents. Railway rates were the lowest in 1916 that they have ever been. The average cost per person in that year was nine cents. Total freight earnings in 1916 were about seven cents per inhabitant; for the first six months of 1923 they were eleven cents per inhabitant. The increase in the average cost of freight transportation to each person was therefore four cents as compared with 1916.

Directly or indirectly every person pays freight rates on every conceivable class of commodity; food, clothing, fuel, building material, etc.

The earnings of the railways from their passenger business in 1916 averaged 1.9 cents daily for each person—less than the cost of first class postage on a letter—and for this they rendered a service equivalent to carrying each inhabitant a little more than nine-tenths of a mile. In the first half of 1923 their passenger earnings were three cents for each inhabitant of the country. For this charge they rendered a service equivalent to hauling each person a little less than nine-tenths of a mile.

The net operating income available for dividends and interest on debts of the railways in the year 1916 averaged 2.8 cents daily for each inhabitant.

In the first half of 1923 their net operating income averaged only two cents daily for each inhabitant. In other words, the profit the railways made from all the service rendered by them amounted daily for each inhabitant of the country to enough to buy one postage stamp or two sticks of chewing gum.

Since the railways have been earning this year 15.4 cents per day per capita, and have been able to keep only 2 cents of this for their security owners, the question naturally

(Continued on page 37)

Labor Saver Invented by Foreman G. A. Wagner

Spring cap machine, manufactured by Blacksmith Foreman G. A. Wagner, Painesville, Ohio. It is a labor saver and is used under the steam hammer. It makes spring caps as fast as the sheet steel can be placed in position.

Cumberland Shop Band Plays at Charles W. Galloway Auxiliary Memorial Service

ON Sunday evening, November 25, a Sacred Concert and Memorial Service was held at Moose Hall, Baltimore, under the auspices of Charles W. Galloway Ladies' Auxiliary No. 1. The services were in memory of Sisters Jones, Miller, Freitag and Blakeley, who passed to the Great Beyond during 1923. The program was as follows:

PART 1

Hymn—Nearer My God to Thee
Prayer—Rev. B. B. Lovett, D. D., Assistant Pastor, Emmanuel Church, Baltimore
Solo—Face to Face. Miss Edna Wells, daughter of Engineer, Train No. 5, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Charles W. Lewis Memorial Service—Rev. Father Bernard J. McNamara, Sykesville, Md.
Solo—Lead Kindly Light. Miss Clyde Berger
Benediction—Rev. B. B. Lovett, D. D.

PART 2

Sextette from Lucia di Lammermour—The Cumberland Shop Band
Tenor Solo—The World is Waiting for The Sunrise, J. W. Troxell, Cumberland, Md.
Laurel Wreath—The Cumberland Shop Band
Bass Solo—Paradise. Ed. F. Warner, Cumberland, Md.
Address—George W. Sturmer, Grand President, Veterans' Association
Solo—Thank God for a Garden. Miss Vada Pearl Drumm, Cumberland, Md.
Solo—Mighty Lak' a Rose. Mrs. Marguerite Mewshaw, Cumberland, Md.
Closing Address—Mrs. Charles W. Lewis, President, Charles W. Galloway Ladies' Auxiliary No. 1
The Star Spangled Banner—Cumberland Shop Band

The solos were much appreciated and the music of the Cumberland Shop Band, under the leadership of Prof. Frank DeLuca, was of its usual high quality. The entire concert was broadcasted by radio through an arrangement made by Mrs. Lewis with the Baltimore News and American.

Mr. Sturmer paid tribute to the ladies who had passed away and concluded by saying, "They did their duty—let us see that we do ours as well."

Mrs. Lewis, after paying tribute to the departed sisters, said that "We are all better women for having known and loved them." She then explained the work of the Ladies' Auxiliary and told of a special charity taken up by them, the Florence Crittenton home for children. The ladies go to this home one afternoon every week, and make clothes for the little homeless ones. The committee for this work is under the chairmanship of Mrs. W. T. L. McCaghey. A collection was taken up for the benefit of this charity, which amounted to over $43.00. The speaker concluded by expressing regret that Vice-President Galloway was unable to be present, as he had been expected to speak at the service.

The committee arranging for the concert and service was composed of Chairman George T. MacMillen, G. W. Jentner, W. H. Harrigan, C. W. Lewis, W. T. L. McCaghey and J. Edward Stier.

Daniel Willard Auxiliary No. 5, Pittsburgh, Entertains

By THE SECRETARY

ON OCTOBER 8 we met with the Veterans in a social gathering. The ladies had charge of the entertainment program and served a luncheon afterwards.

The Musical Browns, who are the four children of the Brown family, entertained us well. The McElroy children from Homestead gave some delightful Scotch dances. Master Evans sang for us, and Master Klaus, son of one of our engineers, gave a piano solo. Mrs. Harry Lodgson, one of our members, also played for us. Helen and May, daughters of Engineer Laytons, gave a number of delightful selections. Misses Elva and Ruth Miller and Miss Adelaide O'Roke, sang, and a recitation was given by another young lady.

We had the pleasure of having as our guests our grand vice-president and her husband. We trust that they will come often to visit us.

The meeting was proclaimed one of the nicest that we have had for a long time. Mrs. Robert Hill is chairman of the entertainment committee.

Baltimore Veterans Elect Officers

AT the meeting of the Baltimore Division Veteran Employees' Association held in Moose Hall, December 3, the election of officers for 1924 resulted as follows: R. L. Collingsworth, president; Wilson Auld, vice-president; C. B. Snapp, treasurer; Charles R. Weir, recording secretary; M. V. Pascal, financial secretary; John W. Hall, sergeant at arms.

The Board of Directors elected consists of W. S. Bentley, C. R. Purdy, Louis Beaumont, J. D. Riley, E. L. Bell, R. F. Burnett, E. B. Cox, E. E. Brewer, J. E. Robesson, George Sommers, J. T. Mathews.

Delegate to Grand Lodge is C. H. Pennell. Alternate Delegate is W. H. Shaw. Chairman of Entertainment Commission is P. W. Shewbridge.

Fairmont Veterans and J. M. Scott Auxiliary

By MRS. H. FLEMING

THERE was a good attendance at the entertainment given by our Auxiliary at the K. of P. Hall, Fairmont, on November 23. About one hundred and fifty were present and the receipts, one penny for each year of everyone's age, amounted to over $60.00. Refreshments were served, including ginger ale, coffee and sandwiches. The costumes were many and varied and had to be seen to be appreciated.

The only disappointment we had was the absence of our president, Mrs. Fletcher. She was called to McMechen because of the serious illness of her father, Robert Kincaid. We are glad to know Mr. Kincaid is improving and that Mrs. Fletcher will be able to return shortly. For this reason, officers were not elected at our November meeting.

The program was partly humorous and had many clever features. Harry G. Fletcher called the meeting to order and after the singing of "America" we had the pleasure of listening to an address by Superintendent M. S. Kopp, Grafton.

A character sketch was read by Mrs. F. W. Grimes, which won the first prize. Then we had a quartette consisting of Mesdames H. S. Fleming, E. Bartlett and F. M. Wittman and Miss Blanche Seabolt, a solo by Miss Thelma Parker, and a cake walk by Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. Wittman which was the cause of much amusement. A piano and violin number was given by Misses Fletcher and Adams and a duet by Mesdames Wittman and Seabolt.

Grand Vice-President of Veterans and Mrs. John M. Garvey, Wheeling, were present and each gave a talk. Trainmaster Bartlett also made a short address. Mrs. Fay Carpenter as "Carrie Nation" took first prize, and the ladies' promenade at the close of the meeting was much appreciated.

Everyone enjoyed the evening, especially Policeman Adam Fansler, who showed us how to pin the tail on "Maude." Superintendent Kopp, Mr. Shafferman, Mrs. Nuzum and Mrs. Fleming with several others made a fine "figure eight."

Staten Island Veterans Enjoy Washington Trip

F. R. PEARCE, chairman, Welfare Committee, Veterans' Association, Staten Island Lines, writes us in connection with a recent trip of the Veterans' Association to Washington, as follows:

"The Veterans' Association wishes to extend its thanks to the Management for the courtesies extended to them on their trip to Washington, November 15. Mr. Brown, Passenger Department, was at the New York terminal to see us safely and comfortably settled in the car provided for our use. Dining Car Steward J. H. Cragg, Car 1025, did everything possible to make our trip pleasant. There were 28 in our party and the trip was especially pleasant because we do not often have an opportunity to try the famous Baltimore and Ohio dining car meals.

"At Mount Royal we were greeted by the staff of the MAGAZINE, also by Grand President of Veterans G. W. Sturmer, the latter accompanying us to Washington.

"On arrival at Washington, we were met by City Passenger Agent Duvall, who escorted us to the sight seeing buses provided for our use. We saw the public buildings and all the interesting sights of Washington.

"A vote of thanks and hearty cheers by the party for all who assisted in any way to make our journey pleasant and also for the Baltimore and Ohio, concluded our day."

Agent James Aiken, Youngstown, Ohio

Agent James Aiken, Youngstown, Ohio, Celebrates 41 Years of Service

By PEARL SCHMUTZ, Magazine Correspondent

JAMES AIKEN, agent, Youngstown, Ohio, was born at Chewton, Pa., July 20, 1862 and entered the service of the Company at Chewton, Pa., as agent in 1882. In 1885 he was transferred to Warren, Ohio, and two years later went to Allegheny as ticket agent. In January, 1890 he was promoted to chief clerk to general passenger agent at Cleveland. A year later he went to Allegheny, Pa., as ticket agent. In November, 1892 he was promoted to clerk in Superintendent's Office at Butler. In March, 1895 he was made agent at Youngstown, Ohio, which position he has held since that time. He enjoys the friendship of all employees, patrons and traffic managers of industries and is one of the best solicitors on the Baltimore and Ohio R. R. If you want to know how to solicit freight just ask Mr. Aiken how he does it.

He is one of the organizers of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans' Association, a leader in its activities, and is often seen at Veterans' outings at various points on the System. He is a Baltimore and Ohio man, through and through, and thoroughly representative of the best things the Road stands for.

Newark Division Veterans Honor Joseph M. Workman, Veteran Baggage Master

By B. A. OATMAN, Magazine Correspondent

ON Thursday evening, December 6, the Newark Division Veterans and Ladies' Auxiliary pleasantly reminded Baggage Master Joseph M. Workman that he had been in the service of the Baltimore and Ohio for a period of fifty-three years and that December 6, 1923, marked the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birth.

In the presence of a goodly number of Veterans and Ladies of the Auxiliary, Division Superintendent Kruse presented Mr. Workman with an engrossed copy of his service record with the Company, this covering a period of fifty-three years without a mark of any kind in the way of a reprimand, a record which Mr. Workman is justly proud of. Mr. Workman received a number of other reminders, among them a beautiful cake decorated with seventy-five candles, presented by the Newark Division Veterans. A beautiful neck scarf was presented by Conductor James Moore. Mrs. Workman was present and was presented a box of candy.

A glance at the service record of Mr. Workman shows that he entered the service as brakeman in September, 1870, was made baggageman in December, 1874, freight brakeman in February, 1885, passenger brakeman in May, 1885 and baggageman

Baggage Master J. M. Workman

in February, 1907. This position he has filled up to the present time. Mr. Workman is hale and hearty and makes his regular run on the Shawnee Branch every day in the week except Sunday. We congratulate Mr. Workman on this, his seventy-fifth anniversary, and hope that he may be able to spend many similar anniversaries with us on the Newark Division.

Dr. Charles Arthur Sinsel, Medical Examiner, Grafton, W. Va.

Born June 5, 1864 Died December 8, 1923

AFTER serving our Company for 35 years as a medical examiner for the Relief Department at Grafton, W. Va., Dr. Charles Arthur Sinsel died at his home in that City on Saturday, December 8, 1923.

He was 59 years old, having been born at Pruntytown, W. Va., on June 5, 1864.

After graduation from West Virginia University, and attendance at Dennison University, Ohio, he enrolled in the Medical School of the University of Maryland, from which he received the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1888. Within a few months thereafter, or on April 19, 1888, he was appointed as medical examiner for the Employees' Relief Association of the Railroad, and continued with its successor, the present Relief Department, up to the time of his death.

Dr. Sinsel's father, Mr. Arthur Sinsel, who for many years was supervisor of bridges, buildings and water stations on the main line of the Railroad, enjoyed the distinction of having been among those associated with Mr. John W. Garrett, president of our Company, in the incorporation of The Baltimore and Ohio Employees' Relief Association in 1882, and served upon its first Committee of Management and Board of Trustees. The Doctor thus became intimately and closely identified, at its inception, with the first organization of its kind in America—a beneficent institution, having for its principal object the pecuniary relief of employees during disability, provision for the superannuated

STOP THAT LEAK!

STOP THAT LEAK!

STOP THAT LEAK!

Accurate Weights Insure Correct Freight Charges

Gains in Revenue from Check-Weighing and Revising Classification of Inbound and Transfer L. C. L. Freight, November, 1923

Note:—Each month there will be published in the Magazine, statement of increases, shown by stations, made in revenue of the Company by revising classification and check-weighing inbound L. C. L. shipments and L. C. L. freight in transfer

EASTERN LINES

NEW YORK TERMINAL LINES

Pier 22, N. R., N. Y.	$33.30
West 26th St.	3.54

TOTAL.....$36.84

BALTIMORE DIVISION

Brunswick, Md.	$4.57
Brunswick Trf., Md.	660.52
Chester, Pa.	1.05
