IMPORTANT TO TRAVELERS.

Passengers leaving San Francisco for Northern California, Nevada, Oregon or any of the Eastern States, can purchase tickets at the office of the Central Pacific Railroad, 415 California street, where their baggage will be received and checked, and taken to the boat of the Oakland Ferry at 8 A. M. and 4:00 P. M., reach Oakland in 30 minutes, where trains of the Western Pacific Railroad are in waiting to convey them via Stockton to Sacramento, stopping en route at the various minor stations named on the Western Pacific Railroad Time Table.

Or, taking steamer New World, at foot of Vallejo street at 8:00 A. M., and at 4:00 P. M., connect with trains of the California Pacific Railroad for all points on line of road, as per time table elsewhere, arrive at Sacramento at 12:30 P. M., and 8:20 P. M.

Or, if preferring a trip by water, the boats of the Cal. Steam Navigation Company do duty at the same wharf where for years they have made their landings.

At Sacramento, passengers for Knight's Landing, Colusa, Tehama and Red Bluff, take the cars of the California and Oregon Railroad, California Pacific Railroad, or steamers of Cal. Steam Nav. Co. at the foot of K street,

Those destined for Folsom, Placerville, etc., are transferred to cars of Sacramento Valley Railroad, while passengers for Marysville, Oroville and other points north, take cars of the California and Oregon Railroad Company, and California Pacific Railroad.

Passengers for Grass Valley, Nevada, San Juan, Camptonville Forest City Downieville, and Iowa Hill, take stages at Colfax.

At Reno, connect for Virginia, Gold Hill, Silver City, Dayton, Carson Washoe City, and all points in the State of Nevada.

At Winnemucca, with stages for Paradise Valley, Camp Scott, Silver City Owyhee and all points in Idaho Territory.

At Battle Mountain for Battle Mountain Mines, Galena and Austin.

At Palisades with stages for Railroad District, Mineral Hill, Eureka, Secret Canon, Silverado and Hamilton.

At Carlin, with Stages for R. R. District, Mineral Hill, Eureka and Hamilton.

At Elko, with stages for Cope, Boise City and Silver City.

At Kelton, with Hailey's stages for Boise City and Umatilla.

At Corinne, with stages for Helena, Virginia City, etc., Montana Ter.

At Ogden, passengers change to cars of Union Pacific Railroad, with connections as follows:

At Cheyenne, with stage lines for Denver, Central City and Santa Fe.

At Omaha, with Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad, or the Chicago, Burlington and Missouri River R. R., or the Chicago and Northwestern R. R.

At Chicago with Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago, Pennsylvania Central, and Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railroads, to New York, etc.

ELGIN WATCHES!

Manufactured

by the National (Elgin) Watch Co.

PENN'A R. R., GEN. SUPT. OFFICE, ALTOONA, January 19, 1870.
T. M. AVERY, ESQ.

President National Watch Co., Chicago:

DEAR SIR—This Company has purchased and put in the hands of its engine-men, eighty "Raymond movements," which have given excellent satisfaction and proved to be very reliable time-keepers. In addition to these, quite a number of Elgin Watches have been purchased by officers and employees of this Company, all of whom have been well pleased with the efficiency and regularity of the movements manufactured by the National Watch Company.

Respectfully,

EDWARD H. WILLIAMS,

General Superintendent

OFFICE GEN. SUPT. U. P. R. R.,
OMAHA, Dec. 16, 1869.

HON. T. M. AVERY,
Pres. Nat. Watch Co., Chicago, Ill.

DEAR SIR—During the months that I have carried one of your B. W. Raymond Watches it has not failed to keep the time with so much accuracy as to leave nothing to desire in that regard.

For accuracy of time keeping, beauty of movement and finish, your watches challenge my admiration and arouse my pride as an American, and I am confident that in all respects they will compete successfully in the markets of the world with similar manufactures of older nations. They need only to be known to be appreciated.

Yours, most respectfully,

C. G. HAMMOND, Gen. Supt.

The Company's steamers leave San Francisco for New York via Panama, at 11 o'clock A. M. on the 3d and 18th of each month—when either of these dates fall on Sunday, will leave on the Saturday preceding.

Steamer of the 3d touches at Manzanillo—all touch at Acapulco.

Steamer of the 3d makes close connection with steamers from Central and South America.

Steamer of the 3d, is expected to connect with the French Trans-Atlantic Company's steamer for St. Nazaire, and English steamers for Southampton and South America.

Steamers for Hong Kong via Yokohama (connecting at Yokohama with steamer for Shanghai) leave San Francisco at 12 M. on the 1st of each month.

Through tickets to Liverpool by the "Inman" and National Steamship lines can be obtained; also orders for passage from Liverpool or Southampton to San Francisco either from New York or St. Thomas. Passengers berthed through.

A simple-looking country woman on entering a railway carriage, was accosted by a fop, who thought to take a rise out of her, with "How do you do?" "No, that ill," replied the dame, "but I dinna ken wha's speiirin." "Oh don't you know me?" said the fop. "I'm the devil's sister's son." "Eh, laddie," said she, "but you're like your uncle!"

NEW ENGLAND MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., OF BOSTON, MASS.,

Incorporated in 1835.

PURELY MUTUAL.

GOVERNED BY THE
NON-FORFEITURE LAW OF MASSACHUSETTS.

All Policies Exempt from Execution.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED AND AVAILABLE ANNUALLY.

Examine the following statements, and judge for yourselves as to the security and advantages offered:

Cash Assets.....$9,685,481 66
Accumulation for the year ending Dec. 31, 1870.. 1,700,000 00

The New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Boston, is the only company on this coast governed by the Massachusetts Non-Forfeiture Law. This Company was incorporated A. D. 1835, and has accumulated assets of $9,685,481.66.

The following lapsed Policies have been paid on this Coast, under this law by this Company:

POLICY NUMBER	OVER DUE AT TIME OF DEATH	AMT. INS'RD AND PAID.
13,054.....	6 months.....	$5,000
33,016.....	4 months.....	10,000
33,216.....	3 months.....	1,000
29,166.....	10 days.....	2,500
36,559.....	11 months.....	5,000
33,538.....	4 months.....	3,000

Had these Policies been in any other company doing business on this coast, they would have been forfeited.

Consult your own interest by insuring in an old and well-established Company, which supports no Stockholders, but DIVIDES ALL PROFITS AMONG THE ASSURED.

This Company is not restricted to investing its funds in Massachusetts. The funds are invested in the best securities, where the largest interest is obtainable. Thus it has been enabled to return as dividends to the policy holders, in cash, during the last four years, $2,466,109 00. Dividends payable annually, in cash.

Anonymous statements having been circulated that one-third of the profits of this Company are annually paid to the Massachusetts Hospital Fund, it is hereby distinctly affirmed that said provision includes only Stock Companies—the New England being Purely Mutual. Not a single dollar is paid by this Company into the Massachusetts Hospital Fund. The entire surplus is paid to Policy Holders.

An indebted customer enters a provision store, remarking: "I'll take a leg of mutton, and I want to pay for it." "All right," replies the dealer, handing him the meat, which the customer takes and starts to go. "Look 'er here," cries the dealer, I thought you said you wanted to pay for it." "So I do," was the reply, "but I can't." The dealer looked a little sheepish at being sold himself and not selling the hind-quarter for cash in hand.

THE steamer S. exploded several years ago with terrible effect, and burned to the water's edge. Captain S. was blown into the air, alighting near a floating cotton bale, upon which he floated uninjured, but much blackened and muddied. Arriving at last at a village several miles below, to which news of the disaster had preceded him, he was accosted by the editor of the village paper, with whom he was well acquainted, and eager for an item:

"I say, is the S. blown up?"

"Yes."

"Was Captain S. killed?"

"I am the captain!"

"The thunder you are? How high were you blown?"

"High enough to think of every mean thing I ever did in my life before I came down here."

The other started on a run for his office. The pappr was about going to press, and not wishing to omit the item of intelligence for the next issue, two weeks off, wrote as follows:

"The steamer S. has burst her boilers, as we learn from Captain S., who says he was up long enough to think of every mean thing he ever did in his life before he lit. We suppose he was up about three months."

An old lady, but little acquainted with the ways of the world, went into one of the drug stores in East Bridgeport, Ct., the other day, and asked for a dose of castor oil, at the same time inquiring the best method of taking it. The proprietor informed her that soda water was one of the best methods known to the profession, and the old lady appeared satisfied with the information. Supposing, of course, that she desired to take the dose herself, he prepared it by putting the oil in a tumbler and filling it with soda from one of the most approved fountains, and then handing her the glass she drank it with a zest that showed she liked it. After drinking, she quietly took a seat by the counter and waited. The proprietor, noticing that she continued her stay a long time, inquired what more he could do for her. "I am waiting for me dose of ile," she replied, "Why," said he "you have taken that in the soda water, already." "Oh! dear," says she, "the ile wasn't for me, it was for somebody else." She was not a little frightened, and, after being assured there was no danger of its killing her, another dose was dispensed, and taking the bottle in her hand and cramming it quickly into her pocket, she left, inwardly exclaiming: "Oh, dear, what a careless set of fellows the pill-makers are, suppose it had been pisen, it would have killed me, shure."

"George," asked the teacher of a Sunday School scholar, "who, above all others, shall you first wish to see when you get to Heaven?" With a face brightening up with anticipation, the little fellow shouted "Gerliah!"

BLOOMER CUT.

172 miles from San Francisco—Altitude 1,252 feet.

BLOOMER CUT is at the head of Auburn Ravine, on the line of the CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD, and rises abruptly more than sixty feet, after a uniform ascending grade, easy of construction, following the windings of a natural water course, which is now the bed of the Bear River and Auburn Water Company's mining Ditch. This cutting is 63 feet in depth, and 800 feet long; a large portion of the substance being gravel and cobbles, firmly bedded in cement. There being no fills in the neighborhood, requiring the immense amount of earth and gravel removed, shelving roads were constructed at different altitudes, and the refuse hauled around on the slopes of the ridge, and dropped from the carts, sliding down and filling many small ravines. An immense force of men and animals was employed for a period of six months, in making the excavation.

SAN FRANCISCO NEWS LETTER AND CALIFORNIA ADVERTISER,

Devoted to the Leading Interests of California and the Pacific Coast.

The NEWS LETTER is the most reliable organ representing the moneyed and substantial interests of the City and State; its Banking, Real Estate, Commerce, Insurance, Mining and other Stocks. It reflects the times as they pass; men, manners, literature, theatricals and follies. It is piquant and pungent by turns—wise, witty, grave, gay, lively and severe: the mentor, whip and mirror of the town.

Sold by all Booksellers and Agents at every station on the Central and Union Pacific Railroads.

Offices of NEWS LETTER and EUROPEAN MAIL, 623 Montgomery street, and 440 California street, San Francisco. Established Agencies in all the Capital Cities throughout the World.

“THE EUROPEAN MAIL,”

Published every week in London, containing an admirable condensation of latest European News, with Market Reports—32 pages—is issued every Saturday with the NEWS LETTER, of 16 pages; the two publications consisting of forty-eight pages of letter press, are charged to subscribers 25 cents weekly, and can be obtained at every station and chief town in California Nevada, Washington, Oregon and New Mexico.

A respectable old gentleman, somewhat tight, on entering an omnibus got his feet entangled in a lady's dress, and fell headlong. He staggered to his feet, and looking round, indignantly demanded who struck him. A gentleman present remarked sotto voce: "You fell over that lady's feet; nobody struck you." The indignant citizen turned round and surveyed the cause of the accident a moment, and then, as if by no means satisfied with the cause of his mishap, said, "Madame, you've got the biggest feet I ever saw!" "Sir!" responded the lady, flushing with anger. "Pray don't apologize; it ain't your fault, but take my advice, sit sideways in the future, and give them the full range of the bus!"

BEHIND THE MASK.—On the outside of some of Thackeray's "Miscellanies" is a wood-cut drawn by himself, of a dwarf jester of miserable appearance, sitting down with his bauble over his arm, and holding in his right hand the grinning mask which he uses for his public appearance. And this device, we are told, was designed by him to represent the sorrowful attitude of his own mind by nature, and the perfunctory efforts which he made to "tumble" and be merry, to gain his bread. John Leech once drew a ghastly illustration of the performance of a clown in a circus, who was compelled, ill as he was, to go through his part. The drawing represented a figure of Death holding up the hoop, through which the dying man was to jump; and, contrasted with the enjoyment of the spectators, it had a strange, weird effect. Both scenes would seem to epitomise "the life of man:"

"For some must work, while some must weep, Thus runs the world away;"

And many a man goes forth to his work in the morning, leaving some home sorrow, the shadow of which attends him throughout the day, and is never absent from his thoughts. There is a certain physician who goes from one bedside to another during his day's work, and when he returns home has to take his own wife in his arms and carry her up to her bedroom; and this he has done now for ten long years. What a stout heart a man needs to sustain such wear and tear as this!

A termagant, whose husband finally beat her, ran home to her father to complain, and the old man with great indignation, said: "Tell your husband that if he ever beats my daughter again, I'll beat his wife."

A GOOD SHOT.—Dufferton. "Well, I could have sworn I hit the "bull" that time."

Officer in Charge—(having a look through his glass.) "No; but very near. You've killed the cow in the field to the left!"

Dean Swift said: It is with narrow-souled people as it is with narrow-necked bottles; the less they have in them the more noise they make in pouring it out."

THE SKELETON OF THE WRECK.

While Sir Michael Seymour was in command of the Amethyst-frigate, and was cruising in the Bay of Biscay, the wreck of a merchant ship drove past. Her deck was just above water; her lower mast still remaining. Not a soul could be seen on board; but there was a cubhouse on deck, which had the appearance of being recently patched with old canvass and tarpaulin, as if to afford shelter to some forlorn remnant of the crew. It blew at this time a strong gale; but Sir Michael, listening only to the dictates of humanity, ordered the ship to be put about, and sent off a boat with instructions to board the wreck, and ascertain whether there was any being still surviving whom the help of his fellow men might save from the grasp of death. The boat rowed toward the drifting mass; and while struggling with the difficulty of getting through a high running sea close alongside, the crew shouting all the time as loud as they could, an object resembling in appearance a bundle of clothes, was observed to roll out of the cubhouse against the lee shrouds of the mast. With the end of a boathook they managed to get hold of it and hauled it into the boat, when it proved to be the trunk of a man, bent head and knees together, and so wasted away as scarce to be felt within the ample clothes which had once fitted it in a state of life and strength. The boat's crew hastened back to the Amethyst with this miserable remnant of mortality; and so small was it in bulk that a lad fourteen years of age, was able, with his own hands, to lift it into the ship. When placed on the deck, it showed for the first time, to the astonishment of all, signs of remaining life; it tried to move, and the next moment muttered in a low, sepulchral tone, "there is another man." The instant these words were heard, Sir Michael ordered the boat to shove off again for the wreck. The sea having now become somewhat smoother, they succeeded this time in boarding the wreck; and on looking into the cubhouse, they found two other human bodies, wasted like the one they had saved, to the very bones, but without the least spark of life remaining. They were sitting in a shrunk-up position, a hand of one reaching to the deck, as if to regain a bit of raw salt beef, of the size of a walnut, which had dropped from its nerveless grasp. Unfortunate men! They had starved on their scanty store, till they had not strength remaining to lift the last morsel to their mouths. The boat's crew having completed their melancholy survey, returned on board, where they found the attention of the ship's company engrossed by the efforts made to preserve the generous skeleton, who seemed to have just life enough left to breathe the remembrance that there was still "another man," his companion in suffering, to be saved. Capt. Seymour committed him to the special charge of the surgeon, who spared no means which humanity or skill could suggest, to achieve the noble object of creating anew, as it were, a fellow creature, whom famine had stripped of almost every living energy. For three weeks he scarcely ever left his patient, giving him nourishment with his own hands every five or ten minutes; and at the end of three weeks more the "skeleton of the wreck" was seen walking on the deck of the Amethyst; and, to the surprise of all who recollected that he had been lifted into the ship by a cabin-boy, presented the stately figure of a man nearly six feet high.

NOT EXACTLY FAIR.

Many years ago, Hank Miller was the great Omnibus King of New York. That was before street cars were known, and Hank's 'busses were going on all the principal lines. He was a good natured man, quiet and full of fun. The drivers of the 'busses were cashiers too—received the passengers' money, made change, and at night handed over the receipts. One evening Hank was inspecting the stalls of one of the stables, when Johnny Derrick, a well-known driver, came in, and without noticing Hank, emptied his pockets into the next stall and commenced to make up his account.

"That's four shillin' for Hank and four for me," said he, laying them in two different piles. "That's four shillin' for Hank and four for me;" and thus he continued until the money was divided into two piles, with an old half dollar in Johnny's hand.

"How is this?" said Johnny, "who does this belong to? Well, we'll toss up; heads for me and tails for Hank; up he flipped it.

"Tails, by jing!" he exclaimed. "Ah, but that wasn't fair; we'll try again;" and up it went once more.

"Heads! I thought it was mine!" and with a satisfied air he pocketed his share, and started for the office to make his returns.

Hank took a short cut, and when Johnny entered he was at the counter ready to receive the money.

"Good evening," said Johnny, touching his hat to Hank as he laid the money on the counter.

"That's all right, Johnny," said Hank, quietly; "we don't need your services any more."

"Eh! how's that? What's the matter, Mr. Miller?" exclaimed the astonished John.

"Well, I don't think you treated me exactly fair," Hank dryly replied; "you ought to have given me another chance for that four shillin'!"

"Jack," said a gentleman to an old negro, who was rather lazily engaged in cleaning the snow from the premises: "Jack, you don't get along with your job very fast." "Why, master," replied Jack, scratching his wool, "pretty considerable for an old man, I guess; I conceit myself that I can clear more snow away in dese here short days than the spryest nigger in dis city could do in longest summer day as ever was."

Last week a young lady in Lexington, Ky., received the following choice billetdoux: "I saw you at shurtch last sundy nite, and I want to form you an Acquantenans. I am a man of good karicter, and git a celery of $500 per annum. Pleas address box, poost ofis." The young lady returned this reply: "To the Young Man with the Bad Spell—The wish to form an acquaintance is not reciprocal. But if you will call at my house about 6 o'clock in the evening, my brother will make your acquaintance with some first-class calf skin. Perhaps you would prefer making the acquaintance of our dog. He will take to you naturally. He always had a taste for calves."

A MAN out west, who offered bail for a friend, was asked by the Judge if he had any encumbrance on his farm. "Oh, yes," said he, "my old woman."

THACKERY tells of an Irish woman begging to him, who, when she saw him putting his hand in his pocket, cried out, "May the blessings of God follow you all the days of your life"—but when he pulled out his snuff-box, immediately added—"and never overtake you!"

BEN. HOLLADAY, member of Congress from Kentucky, once gave the following toast: "Champagne for true friends, and true pain for sham friends."

Horace Greeley's little boy, who attends an up town school, will tell the truth any way you can fix him. The other day the teacher spelled out the word "grace," and asked the young man to pronounce it. He gave it up, when the teacher to refresh his memory, asked him, "What did your father say this morning before eating breakfast?" The boy thought a minute, and finally said. "Pa said 'D—n these eggs, they're rotten!'"

THE last case of suicide for insufficient cause comes from Illinois. A girl had labored for four years to make her hair curl, but couldn't get a kink in it on any terms, so she couldn't see the use of living. She would have been saved, but the boy took the stomach pump to the wrong house, and went to work on the hired girl. She was much astonished at the treatment, but had just come to this country, and thought it was one of the customs of the country.

A TERRIBLE LOSS.—An Illinois woman committed suicide by hanging herself to an apple tree. At the funeral a neighbor, noticing the sad appearance of her husband, consoled him by saying that he had met with a terrible loss. "Yes," says the husband, heaving a sigh, "she must have kicked like thunder to shake off six bushels of green apples that would have been worth a dollar a bushel when they got ripe!"

A MAN in Covington, Ky., made a bet the other day that he could drink a pint and a half of Cincinnati whisky in twelve hours. He won the bet, says the Louisville Journal, and his widow remarked at the funeral the next day that it was the first money he had earned by hard work in ten years.

IN Iowa, a merchant sent a dunning letter to a man, who replied by return mail: "You say you are holding my note yet. That is all right—perfectly right. Just keep holding on to it, and if you find your hands slipping, spit on them and try it again. Yours affectionately."

THOUGHT HE HAD THE TOOTHACHE.—Two Dutch farmers at Kinderhook, whose farms were adjacent, were out in their respective fields when one heard an unusually loud hallooing in the direction of a gap in a stone wall and ran with all speed to the place, and the following conversation ensued: "Shon, vat ish te matter?" "Vell, den," says Shon, "I was trying to climb on te top of dish high stone wall, and I fell off, and all te stone tumbled down onto me, and has broken one of mine legs off and both of mine arms, smashed my rib in, and deese pig stones are laying on de top of mine body." "Ish dat all?" says the other; "vy, you hallow so loud I tot you got te tootache."

Jessie had been doing something which her mamma had told her that she mustn't do. She had been eating currants, and, of course, got her mouth all stained; that's the way she was found out. Her mamma said: "You know you were forbidden to eat currants." "But mother, Satan tempted me." "Why didn't you say, 'get thee behind me, Satan?'" "I did say, 'get thee behind me, Satan;' and he went and got behind me, and pushed me right into the currant bushes!"

Abraham Lincoln used to say the very best story he ever read of himself was this: Two Quakeresses were traveling on the railroad, and were discussing the probable termination of the war. "I think," said the first, "that Jefferson will succeed." "Why does thee think so?" asked the other. "Because Jefferson is a praying man." "And so is Abraham a praying man." Yes; but the Lord will think Abraham joking!" the first replied, conclusively.

During the late war, the Dutch Surgeon of a Pennsylvania Regiment became exasperated against General S——, and vented his angry feelings in these words: "Gott in Himmel! I don't vant to say any dings against General S——, but I vish der Lord vanted 'im."

"Why don't you wear your ring, my dear?" said a father in a ball-room, to his daughter. "Because, papa, it hurts me when any one squeezes my hand." "What business have you to have your hands squeezed?" "Certainly none; but still, you know, papa, one would like to keep it in squeezable order."

THE TEMPLE-TOMBS OF JAPAN.

Oriental Architecture and Ornamentation.

The knowledge of architecture displayed in a Japanese temple is about as crude as that displayed in their houses. Massiveness is the first characteristic of their temples, and after that comes the color. All the temples that we saw that were of any size, and used by the common people, were about the same. All were raised about fifteen feet above the stone pavement by which you reach them, and ascended to by steps of stone or wood. Their length along the front was about sixty feet, their depth thirty, and their height about forty or fifty. Of this height, nearly two-thirds was taken up by the tiled hip-roof, from under which projected huge beams, sometimes arranged in tiers along the front, the lower ones receding, sometimes simply used at the corners. These beams and the front pillars, together with the end faces of the temples, were most invariably painted red; but what in our architecture would be called the frieze, was usually ornamented with wood carvings of angels very siren-like in appearance, the drapery flowing backward in such a way that it might readily pass for a fish's tail. But though there were specimens of harpies and arions, I saw no sirens.

Mounting the steps of this temple, you would generally find yourself face to face with a contribution box of about a ton capacity, the top grated like a huge cage. Whether this style of contribution box is used as a hint, or because the Japanese have a coin (especially coined for this purpose, I should judge, from the preference given to it by contributors) worth about one one-hundredth of a cent, and can therefore afford to make quite a contribution, as far as appearances are concerned, without taxing their purses much, I could not learn. This contribution box usually stands outside of the temple proper. Within the railings beyond is the polished mat floor, kept perfectly clean, from the center of which rises the altar and image of Buddha, the latter usually gilded. Tinsel flowers hang around him, and in front is the table on which burns the inevitable Josh stick, and upon the ends of which lotus flowers, symbolical of longevity, cut in wood or cast in metal, are supported in flower pots. The ceilings are sometimes plain, sometimes painted. From them depend huge lanterns and tinsel work. Images of Josh, cut in wood, and varying in size from life downwards, fully realizing the notion of Satan as portrayed by our ancestors, are arranged at the sides of some of the temple porches. Drums of wood, to be beaten by the shaven priests in their religious ceremonies, also hold a conspicuous place.

To reach these temples you enter a huge red gateway which appears like a shallow section of the temple, and pass along a paved way to the temple steps, by the side of which may usually be found a stone tank open or covered, in which the worshippers wash their hands before service.

These are the leading features of their temples and the more usual surroundings; but they may be infinitely varied. The grounds about some temples are ornamented with lighthouses like bronze lanterns, and vases to hold eight or ten gallons of water, shaped like a lotus flower, also cast in bronze. The carving too, varies much in richness, according to the temple. The grounds about them are often handsomely laid out, the trees being trained into solid masses of foliage of various shapes. Often two bandy-legged tigers, unrecognisable, but to be taken upon faith, share the guardianship with the hideous horned demons of red and green, that guard the entering gate.

Having previously seen nothing but lacquer work to give us any notions of the refinement in art of which the Japanese were capable, we were by no means prepared for the beauty of detail of the work that we found at the temples of Sheba at Yeddo. In the grounds about these temples the Tycoons have been buried, and each generation has vied with its predecessors in embellishing their tombs; as a consequence in these we have the finest specimens in decorative art of which the Japanese are capable. It is only within the last year or two that foreigners have been able to gain admission to these grounds; but since the Mikado has gained the upper hand, as a sort of humiliation to the Tycoon, he has thrown them all open.

In the majority of these tombs the arrangement was the same and threefold. First, and raised a few steps from the ground, there was an octagonal building of about thirty feet in diameter, the outside faces of which were carved in the forms of birds and flowers, and gilded. Opening a double door, also handsomely carved and gilded, before you open the snow white mats and held in a handsome gilt frame turned towards the East, was (if the temple was Sintoo) the steel mirror, the emblem of purity. In line with this building, and raised by several more steps, was an enclosed space, the enclosing fence being carved with the figures of birds and animals, and gilded. Opening the double doors of this fence, you pass under a little porch, the ceiling of which was colored very beautifully in the arabesque style, and thence into a second octagonal temple of about the same size as the first, and similarly ornamented without; opening the doors of this, and removing your shoes, you step upon beautifully white mats within, and find yourself face to face with the mausoleum which is supposed to contain the remains of the Tycoon. This was generally cylindrical in shape, having a diameter of three feet, and raised upon a lotus flower cut in stone or bronze. The mausoleum was, in some cases, of bronze; in others of red and black lacquer. In front of it was a lacquered table, upon which stood Japan lilies of bronze or wood, in either case beautifully executed. A bronze stork, three feet high, standing upon a tortoise, was sometimes placed in front of this. The walls and ceilings were painted and carved with the figures of birds, the favorites being hawks and storks. Lacquer and gold were also used wherever no more elaborate work was attempted. We were astonished beyond measure. We had expected to find nothing but grotesque carvings and common tinsel, but here was artistic work, in its line of the highest order. The covering was rich, often brilliant, but in perfect taste; the carvings were full of life and energy; so, too, were the animal paintings, while nothing could surpass the simple richness of the deep black lacquer pillars often capped with bronze. All the bronze castings, the mausoleums, the storks, the turtles, the flowers, were perfect in their way. So, too, were the bronze lanterns used to decorate the courts around the temples, and given by the various Tycoons as presents. We came away from these temple tombs, of which there are some eighteen, all differing in detail, though similar in design, with an increased respect for the Japanese as artists. A people who have attained such a mastery over colors, and are so advanced in the working of the metals, are capable of making rapid improvement.

A NICE young man put a sheet around him to scare a Dutchman. The Teutonic gentleman says: "I shust jumped out von de corner, und vip der gost all.de time. I would vip him if he was a whole grave-yard!" Some one asked the young man what ailed his black eye, and he said "he received bad news from Germany."

A Gentleman was traveling in Tennessee, and was obliged to stop at a farm house for the night, owing to the scarcity of hotels. During the progress of the evening meal, he observed an urchin tugging at a loaf of bread. At length the urchin cried out: "Granny, thar's har on the bread." The lady remarked that it was only a piece of corn silk. "Corn Silk!" exclaimed he; "how came corn silk to have a nit on it. That's what I want to know."

"My dear doctor," said a lady, "I suffer a great deal with my eyes." "Be patient, madam," he replied, "you would probably suffer a great deal more without them."

Two gentlemen, the one named Woodcock, the other Fuller, walked together, and happening to see an owl, the latter said:—"That bird is very much like a Woodcock." "You are quite wrong," said the first, "for its Fuller in the head, Fuller in the eyes, and Fuller all over."

A YOUNG lawyer of Philadelphia wrote to an old limb near Chicago thus: "Is there an opening in your part of the country that I can get into?" Answer: "There is an opening in my back yard about thirty feet deep, no curb around it. If that will suit, come on."

Two boot-blacks were passing up Chatham street, when one accosted the other with "I say Jack, 'f I 's you I'd be 'shamed o' me-self pickin' up old second hand chaws terbacker!" "Tend t' yer own business," retorted Jack. "I guess this is good enough to learn on."

THE EXPRESS TICKET.

One of the pleasantest journeys I ever took was made a short time back, in company with a total stranger, but who proved to be the most chatty, most communicative person I ever met with, although his code of morals was undoubtedly rather lax. We got in at the London terminus, and as he almost at once asked me where I was going, we found we were each bound to the same large city. I fancied he had been dining rather generously, from his face, which was a little flushed; he had plenty of excellent cigars, and was very liberal with them; and ere we had ridden half-a-dozen miles, he produced a pack of cards and asked me to play. I declined; and he said with a smile: "Afraid of strangers with cards? Well, you are quite right; but we shall do no harm to each other."

I hastened to assure him that I was under no suspicion as regarded himself, but that I did not care for cards.

"There you are to blame," he returned; "you should always suspect strangers who want you to play at cards. Why should a man carry a pack with him if he does not intend to profit by their use? Take my advice, and always be on your guard."

"But then," I said with a smile, "by your own rule you would lead me to suspect you."

"You wouldn't be far wrong, if you did," he replied, with a very meaning nod; I only wished to play for a cup of coffee at the refreshment station; but I have played in railway carriages for very different stakes—and won them. However, I am all right to-night, and don't want to win anybody's money. I cleared eight hundred over the Leger, and that will last me for some time."

I congratulated him on his good fortune, and said I wish I had been as lucky.

"If it shouldn't do you more good than it will me, you needn't mind," he returned; "light come, light go; but still it is better to have a few hundred in your pocket, than to be without a penny to pay your fare, as I have been on this very railway."

"Indeed!" I ejaculated, as he made a pause here; "that must have been awkward."

"Awkward! I believe you," he said. "But there! a man with his head screwed on the right way, need never be at a loss, in a rich country like this. I hadn't a penny—at any rate, I hadn't a tenth part of the required fare—with me; I was bound to keep an engagement, a long way down the line, and I had not a friend who would lend me a sixpence; and hence I found myself, one evening, a quarter of an hour before the train started. Something like a fix, eh? What should you have done?"

"Well," I replied, "I hardly know. If I had a watch——"

"But I hadn't," he interrupted, "nor anything else that would fetch two pounds seven, the price of a ticket. A first-class ticket, of course, I mean; I had made up my mind to ride first-class: I liked it best, and, under the circumstances, it was just as feasible as any other."

"Then, perhaps, I should have gone to the station master or superintendent," I said, "and told him all about it; and if that wouldn't do, I must have stopped in London."

"Then it wouldn't have done, you may swear," he replied, "station masters are not so soft as that. Well, now, I'll tell you all about it; and it may be of use to you to know some day, and what is possible to be done in such a fix."

I need not tell you how I came to be so placed—speculative men are often in such a position; we always get out of it somehow, however, and I did this time. When I arrived at the station, there was the train, with the engine waiting a little way off, blazing and hissing away; some of the passengers had taken their seats, but most of them were walking up and down, or having a parting glass with their friends, and looking at the book-stalls. How I envied the shabbiest of them all! for he, whoever he was, had his ticket, and I could not get mine. If the train had gone right through, I would have taken my seat, and chanced dropping out just before they stopped; but I knew they examined tickets half-way, so that would not do. If the journey had been all by the same engine, I would have lain at the back of the tender, on the coke, as I did once to a place nearly a hundred miles down the line; but I knew they changed engines, so this, again, wouldn't do. I saw one person on the platform who I recognized, but as he was a clergyman—a dean, in fact—who was always preaching against us racing-men, and had once actually persuaded the townspeople to put their races down, I knew he was of no use. Yet I couldn't keep away from him; he had a sort of a fascination for me; I may call it a presentment that he was to get me out of my hobble. Well, the bustle increased; you know, of course, how busy the station gets just before an express starts. The engine came back and hooked on; the porters ran about with their barrows of luggage, the passengers left the refreshment rooms and book-stalls, and clustered around the doors of the carriages; the dean got into a compartment by himself, and there I was walking up and down in the darkest part of the platform, and only five minutes left.

I paused for a moment before a little room where I saw the guards go in and out, and wondered whether one of the men would let me ride with him if I told of a good thing I knew—I really did not know of it—for the Cambridgeshire, when all at once a splendid idea struck me. It was the very thing! The door of the little room was half open, so that I could see no one was in there, and several coats and caps, belonging to the guards, were hanging on the walls. I glanced down the platform; every railway official seemed up to his eyes in business—no one was looking that way. I popped into the room in an instant—had put on a coat and cap, which fitted me beautifully—and was out again in a few seconds. There was no time for reflection, nor did I need any; my mind was already made up, so, pushing past the people with the air of a regular guard, born and bred, I put my head into the carriage where the dean sat, and said: "Tickets, if you please." The old gentleman was reading a book; he looked round, pushed his spectacles a little higher on his nose, and exclaiming: "Dear me! I had quite forgotten," he handed out his ticket, which I very coolly pocketed, and was moving away, when the old gentleman said: "This is a new rule, to take the tickets at starting, isn't it?"

"Yes, sir," I answered, touching my cap; "only been in force this month, sir."

"Oh," he said, and began reading his book again.

At this instant the bell for starting rang, and the guards began to bawl out: "Any more going on?" but there was plenty of time for me. I dashed back to the little room, but hang me! if there wasn't a guard in there, feeling among the great-coats, and swearing horribly, as I could hear, at some of his mates, for moving his particular coat out of its place. I stood behind the long double-ladder they wheel about to clean the lamps, took off the poor fellow's coat and cap, and flung them down by the door, put on my own cap, and hurried across the platform as though I had just come from the refreshment-room. The station-doors were closed, but a guard catching sight of me, shouted: "Now, sir, this way, or you will be too late!" He opened a carriage door, and pushed me in, just as the engine sounded its whistle, and the tug came which moved us on. I was in the carriage with the dean! There was nobody else there, as I well knew, and I really felt very uncomfortable; didn't at all suppose he would recognize me, but yet there was a sort of feeling which made me wish that the guard had put me anywhere else. However, there was no help for it now, and I made up my mind to see at once if there was any danger of recognition; so the first time he put down his book, although it was only to cut some leaves, I offered him a newspaper. He declined it; but I had obtained an opening, and I followed up my offer with a few remarks about the weather, and so forth—quite enough to let me see that he did not at all remember my voice. I couldn't sleep, but I pretended to do so; and on we went, scarcely another word having been spoken on either side, until the train slackened speed; and I knew we were near the station where they examined the tickets, and where, of course, the murder must be out. When the carriage drew up alongside the ticket platform, and I could hear the familiar cry of 'All tickets ready,' I feigned to be reading my paper very intently, although, in reality, I was watching and listening with all my might. I saw the dean look up curiously when he first heard the shouts; he listened, too, with a puzzled air, and took off his spectacles and wiped them, as if that would help him understand it; however, I have no doubt he thought the notice did not apply to him, so he calmly put his glasses on again. At that moment a guard—a regular one this time I thought to myself—look in, and of course said: 'Tickets if you please.' I gave him mine, which he merely glanced at and returned; and then I screwed myself into a corner as much out of the light as I could manage. The old clergyman had of course done nothing. 'Now, sir, if you please,' said the guard.

‘Eh?’ returned the dean, looking round, and pushing up his spectacles, which seemed to be a habit with him.

‘Tickets, sir, tickets; look alive if you please, sir,’ answered the man.

‘Tickets! tickets,’ echoed the dean; ‘mine is all right. I gave it up.’

‘Not to me, sir,’ said the guard; ‘and no one else has been near the carriage.’

‘Oh, but I gave it up before we started,’ explained the old gentleman; ‘it is a new rule—has only been in force this month.’

Upon my word I thought I should have burst with laughter here, the dean explained this so innocently.

‘New rule, sir!’ said the guard. ‘No such a thing. We examine the tickets here, and take them at your journey’s end.’

‘Now, Popkins!’ shouted a superior of some kind; ‘haven’t you finished with that carriage yet?’

‘Come, sir, look sharp with that ticket,’ urged the guard.

‘What do you mean?’ demanded the clergyman, who was clearly getting angry. ‘What do you mean, sir? I have given up my ticket to one of your men, and I am rather inclined to think it was yourself.’

Popkins was now shouted at again very angrily, and his answer brought two or three others around the carriage-door.

‘Now what’s all this delay about?’ said a man in a very swaggering tone (I suppose he was in some authority there)—‘what’s all this about, Popkins?’

‘Why,’ said the guard, ‘this party has n’t got a ticket. He says he gave it up at London; and, not satisfied with that, says he gave it up to me.’

‘Nay, nay; I am not certain about that,’ said the old gentleman. ‘I only say I gave it up to some guard, who told me it was a new rule, and he was much such another man as yourself.’

‘Oh, that won’t do,’ said the chief officer harshly; ‘we must have your ticket or your money, or else we shall have to remove you from the carriage. We have these games tried on us very often.’

‘Do you, indeed?’ said the old gentleman. ‘Do you, indeed? There is my card, sir, and I shall leave you to take your own course.’

Well, when they saw who he was they naturally cooled down a bit and grew more civil; but by this time the other passengers had got anxious, and were putting their heads out of all the windows and asking what was the matter.

‘Perhaps this gentleman,’ said the guard, meaning, of course, myself, ‘who must have been in the carriage at the time, can tell us something about it. You didn’t give up your ticket, sir, because I have just examined it.’

‘Unfortunately,’ said the dean, speaking before I could answer, ‘the gentleman was not in the carriage; he came in just as the train was starting, and after the collection of the tickets.’

'I am afraid, sir, you are under a great mistake,' said the chief one; 'and we shall be compelled to write to you for this money if you do not pay now. We can't keep the train here all night; so you must do as you please, as, of course, we can have our remedy against you.'

The old gentleman looked more angry than ever, and pulling out his purse exclaimed, 'There sir! there is your money; but rely on it, you will hear from Jessom & Jessom, my solicitors, sir, on the matter. It is an atrocious robbery!'

'You will have your ticket given to you at the next station,' said the other. 'I will not delay the train by going to the office now; I will send word on by the guard. But depend upon it, sir, you are in error; you are, indeed. All right; forward!'

'Error, sir! error!' exclaimed the dean. 'You shall see, sir; you shall see. I don't care for your ticket. You may make me pay again, if you please, when I get to my destination. I believe this company is capable of anything; but I will teach them a lesson. This gentleman shall be my witness of the transaction—I will take your card, sir.' The men cleared from the window, for the engine whistle sounded, and off we went. 'Oblige me with your card, sir,' continued the dean. 'I need hardly ask you if you ever saw so nefarious a proceeding?'

'Never, sir; absolutely scandalous!' I replied. 'But do you think it worth your while to take any further notice of it? It will involve you in a great deal of trouble.'

'Trouble, sir! what do I care for that!' demanded the dean indignantly. 'It is my duty to expose such conduct; and I will do it. I will thank you for your card, sir.'

I felt it would be dangerous to refuse a card, so I expressed my sympathy with him, and gave him the card of a foreign gentleman of my acquaintance, which I luckily had in my pocket. Then the old gentleman seemed to be brooding over his injury, and scarcely spoke another word. When he came to the refreshment station the guard brought him his ticket, which he took without a syllable, and at our next station we both got out. I saw his carriage was waiting for him; and I have no doubt that Mrs. Dean had all the particulars before an hour was over. As for my friend whose card I gave, I never heard whether the dean had tried to find him or not; in fact, although I called him my friend, we were by no means friendly—You think the whole transaction rather fishy, eh?' ejaculated my companion, interrupting himself.

'I think it downright dishonest,' said I frankly, 'unless you repaid the dean.'

'Oh, I did that,' responded he. 'I sent the old gentleman a post-office order in the name of my foreign friend. I'm a racing man and up to a thing or two, but I'm as straight as a die for honesty.'

Well, well, I wonder where my communicative friend is now. I dare say the pitcher has gone once too often to the well in his case, as with the thousand other clever fellows we read of in their appropriate histories.—Chambers' Journal.

ROUGH ON THE GAL.—A lover who was slighted by the females, very modestly asked a young lady if she would let him spend the evening with her.

"No," she angrily replied, "that's what I won't."

"Why," replied he, "you needn't be so fussy; I didn't mean this evening, but some stormy one, when I can't go any where else."

IN the early stages of his ministry the celebrated Dr. Strong, of Hartford, Conn., preached some time in a neighboring village. One day a committee called upon him to settle with him for his services, and after stammering a while, signified to him that his further services were not desired.

"What does this mean," asked the Doctor.

"Why," replied the spokesman, with some hesitation, "the people have got the impression that you are inclining to universal salvation."

"Gentleman," answered the Doctor, "I never have preached that doctrine; but if I ever should, I promise to make the people of this town an exception!"

BILLINGS, with the Chinese celestial profix, don't like the Jack to take the Ace: Yewker iz a mulatto game, and don't compare to old sledge in majesty anny more than the game of pin duz to a square church raffle. I never play Yewker. I never would learn how, out ov principle. I wuz born close to the Connecticut line, in Nu England, where the game of 7-up, or old sledge, wuz born, and exists now in awl its pristine virginity. I play old sledge tew this day in its native fierceness. But I won't play enny game, if I know mi character, where a jack will take an ace, and a ten spot won't count for game. I won't play no such kind ov game, out ov respect to old Connektikut, my natiff stait.

A lady called on the sexton of the Catholic cemetery at Knoxville a few days ago, with a view of purchasing a small lot in which to bury her husband. The sexton politely informed her that she would be obliged to get a permit before he could accommodate her. In the conversation he asked: "How long has your husband been dead?" "Oh, he ain't dead yet, sir; he's very sick, though, and I am expecting him to die every day," was the candid reply.

An eminent Scotch divine met two of his own parishioners at the house of a lawyer whom he considered to be too sharp a practitioner. The lawyer ungraciously put the question, "Doctor, these are members of your flock; may I ask do you look upon them as white sheep or as black sheep?" "I don't know," answered the divine, dryly, "whether they are black or white sheep; but I know, if they are long here, they are pretty sure to be fleeced."

The conductor of an omnibus said to a young lady passenger—"Miss, your fare." "Well, if I am," she replied, "I don't want any of your impertinence."

J. WALKER'S VINEGAR BITTERS

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS,

Whether in Young or Old, Married or Single, at the Dawn of Womanhood or at the Turn of Life, these Tonic Bitters have no Equal.  Send for a Circular.

They are a Gentle Purgative, as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and all the Visceral Organs.

Hundreds of Thousands bear testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.  What are they?  They are

NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK,

Made of Poor Rum, Whisky, Proof Spirits, and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced and sweetened, to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetisers," "Restorers," etc., that lead the tippler on to Drunkenness and Ruin; but a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the

GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER

AND

A LIFE-GIVING PRINCIPLE,

A perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all Poisonous Matter and restoring the Blood to a Healthy Condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, or Kidneys, these Bitters have been most successful. Such diseases are caused by VITIATED BLOOD, which is generally PRODUCED BY DERANGEMENT OF THE DIGESTIVE ORGANS.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION.

Headache, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Biliary Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other Painful Symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the Torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of Unequalled Efficacy in Cleansing the Blood of all Impurities, and imparting new Life and Vigor to the whole system.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores.

Cleanse it when you find it Obstructed and Sluggish in the Veins.

Cleanse it when it is Foul, and your feelings will tell you when.

Keep your Blood Pure, and the Health of the System will follow.
